
This is a reproduction of a library book that was digitized by Google as part of an ongoing effort to preserve the information in books and make it universally accessible.

GoogleTM books

<https://books.google.com>

Weekly Compilation of
PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Monday, July 8, 1974

Volume 10 • Number 27

Pages 727-791

THE PRESIDENT'S TRIP TO BELGIUM AND THE SOVIET UNION

Index of Contents

THE PRESIDENT'S TRIP TO BELGIUM AND THE SOVIET UNION

DEPARTURE FROM THE WHITE HOUSE.....	727	SOVIET UNION—Continued
BELGIUM		Luncheon in Minsk, exchange of toasts.....	742
Arrival in Brussels, remarks.....	728	Radio and television address to the Soviet people...	744
Text of "Declaration on Atlantic Relations".....	729	Dinner honoring Soviet leaders, exchange of toasts...	748
NATO Council meeting, remarks of Press Secretary		Limitation of anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol
Ziegler	730	to treaty.....	750
Luncheon in Brussels, exchange of toasts.....	732	Limitation of underground nuclear weapons tests,
SOVIET UNION		treaty and protocol.....	751
Dinner in Moscow, exchange of toasts.....	735	Environmental warfare, joint statement.....	753
Energy cooperation agreement.....	737	Joint communique.....	753
Housing construction agreement.....	739	United States-Soviet Union summit meeting, re-
Heart research agreement.....	740	marks of Secretary of State Kissinger.....	763
Economic, industrial, and technical cooperation		REPORT TO THE NATION.....	766 agreement	741
ACTS APPROVED.....	791	LETTERS, MEMORANDUMS, ETC.
APPOINTMENTS AND NOMINATIONS		Supreme Court case, reply brief filed by attorneys
Council on International Economic Policy, Execu-		for the President.....	772
tive Director (William D. Eberle)	788	REPORTS TO THE PRESIDENT
Federal Energy Administration		Railway labor-management dispute, report of
Assistant Administrator for Conservation and		Emergency Board No. 185.....	789
Environment (Roger West Sant)	789	STATEMENTS BY THE PRESIDENT
General Counsel (Robert E. Montgomery, Jr.) -	789	Death of Mrs. Martin Luther King, Sr.....	771
Nominations submitted to the Senate.....	791	Death of President Juan Domingo Perón of Ar-
CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES....	791	gentina	771
DIGEST OF OTHER WHITE HOUSE ANNOUNCEMENTS..	790	Energy conservation.....	788
EDITOR'S NOTE.....	791	Independence Day, 1974.....	790

[A Cumulative Index to Prior Issues appears at the end of this issue.]

WEEKLY COMPILATION OF Presidential Documents

Published every Monday by the Office of the Federal Register, National Archives and Records Service, General Services Administration, Washington, D.C. 20408, the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents contains statements, messages and other Presidential materials released by the White House during the preceding week.

The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents is published pursuant to the authority contained in the Federal Register Act (49 Stat. 500, as amended; 44 U.S.C. Ch. 15), under regulations prescribed by the Administrative Committee of the Federal Register, approved by the President (37 F.R. 23607; 1 CFR Part 10).

Distribution is made only by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents will be furnished by mail to subscribers for $15.00 per year, payable to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The charge for a single copy is 50 cents.

There are no restrictions on the republication of material appearing in the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents.

Administration of Richard Nixon

PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Week Ending Saturday, July 6, 1974

The President's Trip to Belgium and the Soviet Union

Remarks¹ of the President Upon Departure From the White House. June 25, 1974

As you probably know the official sendoff will be at Andrews this morning. But I am delighted to see all the members of the White House Staff up bright and early working. [Laughter] And I do want to wish you the very best over the Fourth of July. I hope it is very good weather wherever you are, whether here working or whether some other place where you may go for a vacation. In any event we know that we go on these trips and wish all of you could go along. But you are with us in spirit, and that helps a great deal.

NOTE: The President spoke at 8:12 a.m. on the South Lawn at the White House.

The President's Trip to Belgium and the Soviet Union

Remarks¹ of the President at Departure Ceremonies at Andrews Air Force Base. June 25, 1974

Members of the Cabinet, members of the diplomatic corps, and ladies and gentlemen:

I first want to express my appreciation to all of you for taking the time to come off to see us as we take off on another "Journey for Peace." This time, we go first to Brussels, as you know, and then to Moscow.

Our purpose in Brussels will be to meet with old friends and to renew our support of the great NATO Alliance which for 25 years has been responsible for and indispensable for keeping the peace in Europe. We expect to give new purpose and new direction to that Alliance on the occasion of visiting with the heads of government of most of the NATO countries.

From Brussels, we go on to Moscow. There, we shall have the opportunity to meet again with General Secretary Brezhnev and his colleagues. The purpose of this summit meeting, as was the purpose of the other two—the first in Moscow 2 years ago, and in Washington and in other parts of the United States last year—is threefold:

- first, we expect to strengthen the bilateral relations between the two strongest nations in the world;
- second, we hope to develop areas of cooperation to displace confrontation in other critical areas of the world that might be those places where conflict could develop between the two great powers; and
- third, we hope to make more progress on a goal that we began to achieve and move forward toward in 1972, of limiting both the burden and also the threat of nuclear arms over our two nations and over the world generally.

These are very great goals, and, like all great goals, they are very difficult to achieve, just as was the case of the goals we sought to achieve on our first trip to the Mideast. But we are confident that when we look at these goals, not only must we seek to achieve them but we believe that we can achieve them because when we speak of the two strongest nations, the Soviet Union and the United States, cooperation between these two great peoples is indispensable if we are to build a structure of peace in the world that will last.

And we know that with American strength, American resolve, and, above all, American determination and dedication, that we will be able to make progress on this long but vitally important "Journey for Peace," not only for America but for all mankind.

We have appreciated particularly the messages that we have received before each of these trips from people all over America because your prayers, your good wishes for our success means that the American people, the great majority, are united behind the efforts we are making to attempt to resolve differences that otherwise would lead to a runaway arms race, that otherwise would lead to confrontation not only between two great powers but all over the world, that otherwise would dash all the hopes and the ideals that Americans have had from the beginning of this country, the ideal of a world of peace so that we can devote the energies of all great peoples to the works of peace and not simply to preparing for war.

¹ The remarks are reprinted from last week's issue in order to have complete coverage of the President's trip in this issue.

Thank you.

NOTE: The President spoke at 8:32 a.m. at Andrews Air Force Base, Md.

The White House announced on June 25 that the official party would include:

THE PRESIDENT

MRS. NIXON

HENRY A. KISSINGER, Secretary of State

U.S. Ambassadors:

AMBASSADOR DONALD A. RUMSFELD, U.S. Representative on the Council of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization

AMBASSADOR LEONARD K. FIRESTONE, U.S. Ambassador to the Kingdom of Belgium

AMBASSADOR AND MRS. WALTER J. STOESEL, JR., U.S. Ambassador to the U.S.S.R.

ALEXANDER M. HAIG, JR., Assistant to the President

RONALD L. ZIEGLER, Assistant to the President and Press Secretary

MAJ. GEN. BRENT SCOWCROFT, Deputy Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs

HELMUT SONNENFELDT, Counsellor of the Department of State

ARTHUR A. HARTMAN, Assistant Secretary of State for European Affairs

Arrival in Brussels

*Remarks of the President, King Baudouin I, and NATO Secretary General Joseph Luns at the Welcoming Ceremony at Melsbroek Military Airport.
June 25, 1974*

KING BAUDOUIN. Mr. President, because Belgium has for several years been the headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, during which time it has also been the host of the European Communities, it is my duty and pleasure to welcome you again this evening on the soil of my country.

You have just completed a tour in the Middle East in the course of which the happy results of untiring diplomacy have been confirmed. We all hope that the efforts made will be the prelude to final peace in that region.

In 2 days' time you will be in Moscow, where you will carry on conversations, the outcome of which is important for us all. Before starting them, you have desired not only to come here to sign the Ottawa Declaration of Atlantic Relations, which again precisely states our convergent objectives, but also to make confident contacts with the heads of the governments of friendly and allied nations in order to explain your views and obtain their opinion.

We are delighted with the action you have taken. It shows once more that however much times may change, there is still between our peoples the same fundamental understanding based on so many common memories, and so many peaceful contests or deplorably cruel battles waged side by side, and on faith in the same essential values.

Mr. President, throughout the world all men feel increasingly bound together by the same destiny. We know that they eagerly wish hostilities to cease, tensions to be reduced and a just and lasting peace to be established.

We wish you and Mrs. Nixon a cordial welcome and express our hopes for the success of the work we shall carry out together.

THE PRESIDENT. Your Majesty, Mr. Secretary, and all of our distinguished guests:

Your Majesty, I wish to express our grateful appreciation for your gracious welcome, and also for your eloquent words with regard to the hopes we all share for building a structure of peace in the world.

And it is indeed an honor for me to join with my colleagues in the Atlantic Alliance in tomorrow reaffirming our dedication to the great principles of that Alliance. What we must all recognize is that the Atlantic Alliance has been indispensable in keeping the peace in Europe for the past 25 years.

As you have noted, this visit to Brussels comes midway between two other visits, the first to the Mideast and the next to the Soviet Union. It is significant that this is the case because this symbolizes the central role that the Atlantic Alliance plays in pursuing our goal of a lasting peace in the world. Without the Alliance, it is doubtful that the détente would have begun, and without continuing a strong alliance, it is doubtful if the détente would continue.

It is also very significant that this meeting will take place in Brussels, now the capital of Europe, and in Belgium, a nation which has suffered so much in two World Wars. And I am sure that all of those attending the meeting tomorrow will have in their hearts these sentiments that we wish that whatever we do there and whatever decisions we make and whatever we say may contribute to the goal we seek, not only for each of our own countries but for all nations in the world, a peace that will last.

SECRETARY GENERAL LUNS. Your Majesties, Mr. President:

It is with very great pleasure that I welcome you, Mr. President, on your arrival in Brussels for the forthcoming high-level meeting of the North Atlantic Council.

It is 5 years since you last sat in the Council that was in Washington. Then you spoke of entering into negotiations with the Soviet Union on a wide range of issues on the basis of full consultation and cooperation with American allies.

In the 5 intervening years, aided by your distinguished Secretary of State, you have given dramatic effect to that policy.

As His Majesty has just remarked, you come from the Middle East, where your journey has opened new prospects for the future in that area and for the world at large. You go on to Moscow to take one more step along the road of negotiation with the Soviet Union.

Tomorrow you will consult with your friends and allies and sign with them the Declaration on Atlantic Relations. Your visit will once again mark a page in the history of the Council and of our Alliance.

NOTE: The exchange of remarks began at 8:38 p.m. at Melsbroek Military Airport, Brussels, Belgium. King Baudouin and Secretary General Luns spoke in English.

Declaration on Atlantic Relations

Text of the Declaration Signed at the Meeting of the North Atlantic Council in Brussels. June 26, 1974

1. The members of the North Atlantic Alliance declare that the Treaty signed 25 years ago to protect their freedom and independence has confirmed their common destiny. Under the shield of the Treaty, the Allies have maintained their security, permitting them to preserve the values which are the heritage of their civilization and enabling Western Europe to rebuild from its ruins and lay the foundations of its unity.

2. The members of the Alliance reaffirm their conviction that the North Atlantic Treaty provides the indispensable basis for their security, thus making possible the pursuit of détente. They welcome the progress that has been achieved on the road towards détente and harmony among nations, and the fact that a Conference of 35 countries of Europe and North America is now seeking to lay down guidelines designed to increase security and co-operation in Europe. They believe that until circumstances permit the introduction of general, complete and controlled disarmament, which alone could provide genuine security for all, the ties uniting them must be maintained. The Allies share a common desire to reduce the burden of arms expenditure on their peoples. But States that wish to preserve peace have never achieved this aim by neglecting their own security.

3. The members of the Alliance reaffirm that their common defence is one and indivisible. An attack on one or more of them in the area of application of the Treaty shall be considered an attack against them all. The common aim is to prevent any attempt by a foreign power to threaten the independence or integrity of a member of the Alliance. Such an attempt would not only put in jeopardy the security of all members of the Alliance but also threaten the foundations of world peace.

4. At the same time they realize that the circumstances affecting their common defence have profoundly changed in the last ten years: the strategic relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union has reached a point of near equilibrium. Consequently, although all the countries of the Alliance remain vulnerable to attack, the nature of the danger to which they are exposed has changed. The Alliance's problems in the defence of Europe have thus assumed a different and more distinct character.

5. However, the essential elements in the situation which gave rise to the Treaty have not changed. While the commitment of all the Allies to the common defence reduces the risk of external aggression, the contribution to the security of the entire Alliance provided by the nuclear forces of the United States based in the United States as well as in Europe and by the presence of North American forces in Europe remains indispensable.

6. Nevertheless, the Alliance must pay careful attention to the dangers to which it is exposed in the European region, and must adopt all measures necessary to avert them. The European members who provide three quarters of the conventional strength of the Alliance in Europe, and two of whom possess nuclear forces capable of playing a deterrent rôle of their own contributing to the overall strengthening of the deterrence of the Alliance, undertake to make the necessary contribution to maintain the common defence at a level capable of deterring and if necessary repelling all actions directed against the independence and territorial integrity of the members of the Alliance.

7. The United States, for its part, reaffirms its determination not to accept any situation which would expose its Allies to external political or military pressure likely to deprive them of their freedom, and states its resolve, together with its Allies, to maintain forces in Europe at the level required to sustain the credibility of the strategy of deterrence and to maintain the capacity to defend the North Atlantic area should deterrence fail.

8. In this connection the member states of the Alliance affirm that as the ultimate purpose of any defence policy is to deny to a potential adversary the objectives he seeks to attain through an armed conflict, all necessary forces would be used for this purpose. Therefore, while reaffirming that a major aim of their policies is to seek agreements that will reduce the risk of war, they also state that such agreements will not limit their freedom to use all forces at their disposal for the common defence in case of attack. Indeed, they are convinced that their determination to do so continues to be the best assurance that war in all its forms will be prevented.

9. All members of the Alliance agree that the continued presence of Canadian and substantial US forces in Europe plays an irreplaceable rôle in the defence of North America as well as of Europe. Similarly the substantial forces of the European Allies serve to defend Europe and North America as well. It is also recognized that the further progress towards unity, which the member states of the European Community are determined to make, should in due course have a beneficial effect on the contribution to the common defence of the Alliance of those of them who belong to it. Moreover, the contributions made by members of the Alliance to the preservation of international security and world peace are recognized to be of great importance.

10. The members of the Alliance consider that the will to combine their efforts to ensure their common defence obliges them to maintain and improve the efficiency of their forces and that each should undertake, according to the rôle that it has assumed in the structure of the Alliance, its proper share of the burden of maintaining the security of all. Conversely, they take the view that in the course of current or future negotiations nothing must be accepted which could diminish this security.

11. The Allies are convinced that the fulfilment of their common aims requires the maintenance of close consultation, co-operation and mutual trust, thus fostering the conditions necessary for defence and favourable for détente, which are complementary. In the spirit of the friendship, equality and solidarity which characterise their relationship, they are firmly resolved to keep each other fully informed and to strengthen the practice of frank and timely consultations by all means which may be appropriate on matters relating to their common interests as members of the Alliance, bearing in mind that these interests can be affected by events in other areas of the world. They wish also to ensure that their essential security relationship is supported by harmonious political and economic relations. In particular they will work to remove sources of conflict between their economic policies and to encourage economic co-operation with one another.

12. They recall that they have proclaimed their dedication to the principles of democracy, respect for human rights, justice and social progress, which are the fruits of their shared spiritual heritage and they declare their intention to develop and deepen the application of these principles in their countries. Since these principles, by their very nature, forbid and recourse to methods incompatible with the promotion of world peace, they reaffirm that the efforts which they make to preserve their independence, to maintain their security and to improve the living standards of their peoples exclude all forms of aggression against anyone, are not directed against any other country, and are designed to bring about the general improvement of international relations. In Europe, their objective continues to be the pursuit of understanding and co-operation with every European country. In the world at large, each Allied country recognizes the duty to help the developing countries. It is in the interest of all that every country benefit from technical and economic progress in an open and equitable world system.

13. They recognize that the cohesion of the Alliance has found expression not only in co-operation among their governments, but also in the free exchange of views among the elected representatives of the peoples of the Alliance. Accordingly, they declare their support for the strengthening of links among Parliamentarians.

14. The members of the Alliance rededicate themselves to the aims and ideals of the North Atlantic Treaty during this year of the twenty-fifth Anniversary of its signature. The member nations look to the future, confident that the vitality and creativity of their peoples are commensurate with the challenges which confront them. They declare their conviction that the North Atlantic Alliance continues to serve as an essential element in the lasting structure of peace they are determined to build.

NOTE: The President and other NATO leaders signed the declaration in a ceremony at NATO Headquarters in Brussels, Belgium on June 26, 1974. The declaration had been approved by the North Atlantic Council at a meeting in Ottawa, Canada, on June 19, 1974.

North Atlantic Council Meeting

Remarks of Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler Concerning the President's Remarks to the Brussels Meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. June 26, 1974

The President was pleased and impressed this morning with the discussions of the North Atlantic Council. All of the delegates in various ways spoke of the vitality of the Alliance, of the continued need of a strong common defense while we pursue better East-West relations.

President Nixon found the general harmony of views expressed in the NATO Council this morning most gratifying. He welcomed the support around the table to full and frank consultation on all issues in which the interest of the allies are involved.

President Nixon also noted with interest, as did others who attended the meeting this morning, the remarks of Chancellor Schmidt regarding the importance of economic problems that the NATO countries are facing. The President, incidentally, also referred to this matter, which I will get into in a moment, in his own remarks.

President Nixon appreciated the positive comments around the table as each representative spoke concerning the role that he had played and that Secretary Kissinger played in the Middle East negotiations and also the expressions of confidence and support for our policies in East-West issues on the eve of the Moscow summit.

The President began his remarks following Secretary Luns' opening comments at about 10 minutes after 10. He spoke for about 25 minutes. We will not provide a text of the President's remarks because this was, of course, a consulting session and a private session, but I will provide to you at this time the general framework of what the President said to the NATO Council and generally the President's views regarding the Declaration that was signed today.

In President Nixon's remarks to the Council, the President, of course, welcomed the signing of the Declaration in this 25th anniversary year of the Alliance, stating to the Council that it lays the groundwork for another quarter century of Atlantic cooperation, solidarity, and security. And the President pointed out that the Declaration forms the foundation for even a brighter future.

The President pointed out that the Declaration signifies that as NATO enters its second quarter century, the Alliance stands stronger and more united than ever before.

In his opening remarks to the Council, the President made the point, which has been made before, that the world we face in 1974 is, of course, very different from the world of 1949. At that time, the President said, peace was in serious jeopardy and the sovereignty of many of the nations of Europe was in jeopardy. The prime need, the President went on to say, was for unity in the common defense so that a period of rebuilding could go forward.

Today, he said that the very success of NATO over the last 25 years provides the security for the pursuit of national, regional, and global interest, but there is no less a need for security and no less a need for unity in pursuing our common objectives.

Indeed, the President pointed out, it is more important than ever to keep before us the recognition of our common objectives, referring to the Alliance, as to reconcile our interests as individual nations with our interests as allies.

Again, referring to the document signed today, the President pointed out that it demonstrates recognition by all members that if we are to successfully pursue our individual national interests, again referring to the Alliance, then we must do so in essential harmony and, above all, remain united in the common defense of every member of the Alliance.

The President also discussed the significance of the Declaration signed today in the context both of his forthcoming visit to the Soviet Union and his recent visit to the Middle East.

The President, again referring to the Declaration, noted that the Declaration reaffirms the foremost purpose of the Alliance, that of assuring the common defense. He emphasized the importance of each Alliance member devoting the efforts and resources necessary to maintain NATO forces at the proper strength.

He said that for the United States part, that he would again, and did, renew our pledge that the United States will maintain and improve our forces in Europe if there is a similar effort by our allies, and the United States will not reduce forces unless there is a reciprocal action by the other side.

The President pointed out that reductions in conventional forces in Europe can have repercussions far out of proportion to the number of men involved and the amount of money saved. They can set into motion, the President said, a chain of reductions whose consequences could be tragic and went on to make the point that the price of peace is continued strength.

He said that defense and détente are essential to each other and that only by strengthening détente can we eventually reduce the defense burden our people must now support, of course addressing the NATO Conference and referring to the nations involved.

Beyond that, he said the United States is encouraged by the direction and pace of recent efforts, as reflected in the Declaration, to give fresh impetus to NATO's partnership.

In particular, he cited the recognition given to the importance of meaningful consultations to the work of the Alliance, and he indicated the United States' full preparedness to consult on matters of Alliance interest.

He pointed out and reiterated the position that Secretary Kissinger stated in Ottawa and again recently in his press conference, that consultation should not be viewed as a legally binding obligation.

That is not the purpose of the Declaration; rather, it is to symbolize a spirit of cooperation within the Alliance which the United States hopes will grow into a recognition that no member of the Alliance should consider taking any actions or action affecting the Alliance without seeking the support and understanding of its members.

He went on to point out—and I am not directly quoting the President but paraphrasing—that while it is true that the legal obligations of the Alliance are confined geographically, events that occur outside the formal area of obligations can affect us all.

This is a point that Secretary Kissinger, as you recall, made in Ottawa, and the United States recognizes this reality and affirms today our determination to consult fully on all matters which affect the interest of the allies.

I call your attention again to Secretary Kissinger's comments and also the pool report last night where reference was made to this point.

The President also said—and this is recognized in the Declaration of our common defense and political association—that these elements of the common defense and political association must be sustained by cooperative and constructive economic relations.

He said that the United States will approach economic issues in a spirit of friendship and in the conviction that the common goal is to benefit all peoples and those of the world at large, including the less developed countries.

A few more concluding comments: The President in his remarks emphasized the importance of the Alliance to the efforts being made toward greater international peace and stability and in this context he cited the importance of the new Declaration to the current efforts being made to ease East-West tensions and to improve relations with the Soviet Union.

Western cohesion, the President said, provides the basis on which the policy of détente can be conducted in the common interest. He noted, for example, the opportunities to bring the arms race under control and to build a network of East-West cooperative agreements contributing to mutual restraint and expanded contacts between peoples and said that the meeting today of the NATO Council provides significant evidence of Western solidarity and forms a vital backdrop for the upcoming summit in Moscow.

In discussing the upcoming Moscow summit, the President made reference, of course, to the extensive briefing that Secretary of State Kissinger provided to the Foreign Ministers in Ottawa and spoke in general and long-range terms about the summit. Addressing the summit specifically, the President told the Council that he felt there were three aspects to the Moscow summit. He said that we will exchange views on, of course, the major international issues, and that we will have an extensive review of the entire state of our bilateral relations. He said that he expects that a number of agreements will be signed in various cooperative areas and that there was difficult negotiating ahead in relation to arms control, but that he hoped there would be progress also in that area.

He discussed each of these categories, of course, in more detail than I am providing.

In reference to détente and what détente means to the Alliance and what détente means to the United States, he said that it gives us a chance to try to bring the nuclear arms race under control before it can get out of hand.

Secondly, he said it creates an environment in which problems ranging from energy to peace can be addressed outside the context of bipolar confrontation, and third, it builds up a network of East-West trade and cooperative agreements that should reinforce mutual restraint and may gradually ameliorate conditions in the East.

In discussing also the upcoming Soviet talks, the President assured the NATO Council that the United States would continue to consult fully and again made reference to the fact that Secretary Kissinger will return to Brussels on July 4 to consult with our allies.

In discussing the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe and the mutual balanced force reduction and all other issues in which the interests of our allies are engaged, such as strategic arms limitation talks, he said that American positions will continue to be developed in full consultation and in concert with our allies. He made a point of emphasizing that we will never sacrifice the interest of our allies to achieve agreements.

He talked then, in concluding his remarks, about the Middle East and the recent Middle East trip. He pointed out that the recent crisis there and the first tentative steps toward its resolution have provided the clearest possible demonstration that all of us have a stake in maintaining peace outside our own boundaries, of course, referring to the countries present in the NATO Council.

He said that because of its unique position—referring to the United States—and the desires of the parties in the area, the United States must continue to play a central role and will continue to play a central role in the process of seeking realistic diplomatic alternatives to war.

He went on to say that at the same time there is no American intention of attempting to exclude anyone from the area, that we, the United States, recognize that our European allies have vital interests there and will wish to play substantial roles of their own, and we hope that our activities in the area, he said, can be coordinated so that we can work together for peace and economic progress.

Then, finally, in summing up, the President feels that this morning's session of the North Atlantic Council provided the President with the occasion to express the very great satisfaction of the United States with the new Declaration on Atlantic Relations which underlines the continuing strength, spirit, and unity of purpose of NATO at a time when the nations of the Alliance are facing major challenges and opportunities.

NOTE: Mr. Ziegler made the remarks at his news conference at the Manhattan Center, Brussels, Belgium, on Wednesday, June 26, 1974. They were not issued in the form of a White House press release.

Luncheon in Brussels

Exchange of Toasts Between the President and King Baudouin I at a Luncheon for Government Leaders Attending the Meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. June 26, 1974

KING BAUDOUIN. Mr. President, Your Excellencies the heads of governments, and gentlemen:

It is a great pleasure for me cordially to welcome you to Brussels, the headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

You have, this morning, signed the important Declaration, which the Atlantic Council approved a few days ago at Ottawa and have thus, on the occasion of its 25th anniversary, drawn attention to the youth and vigor and cohesion of the Alliance.

On April the 4th, 1949, President Truman declared, when the Washington treaty was signed, that "For us, war is not inevitable. We do not believe that there are blind tides of history which sweep men one way or another. . . . Men with courage and vision can still determine their own destiny."

We, today, who no longer feel afraid, can estimate how much the situation has changed. What was happening 25 years ago now appears to be as far behind us as would the events of a period we had not lived through.

The panic in which our defense was hastily set up so that we might survive has given way to a feeling of security, which goes so far as to make us skeptical about the existence of any danger.

By their determination and by the choices they made, the men with vision, of whom Mr. Truman spoke, have allowed our younger people to have no experience of war. They have also rejected the old rules of political action, under which fixed purpose often took the place of law and power that of ethics.

By entering into a system of collective defense, Belgium has made a fundamental option in order to avoid a recurrence of the wars which, twice within 35 years, had ravaged the country, to participate in the quest for a lasting peace, and to foster the construction of a united Europe.

Owing to the safeguard provided by the solidarity and indivisibility of our defense, it is possible to conduct a policy whose primary objective is peace and, more particularly in Europe, the pursuit of understanding and co-operation with all the countries of the Continent.

To be sure, the Alliance is not altogether identical with defense. Since a few years ago, a correlation has been established between the notions of defense and détente. They had, until then, been separate.

Defense, for its own sake, seemed to exclude détente. The outcome of détente seemed to be to destroy defense. Since then, the delicate threads which bind them together and strengthen the significance of them both have been grasped.

Without defense, there can be no equilibrium of forces, and no coexistence is possible. Without détente, there can be no progress towards peaceful solutions. The Atlantic Treaty, which is an instrument of security, thus appears as a combination of forces tending to peace.

Belgium, moreover, has always hoped that, in the spirit of friendship and solidarity which ought to mark the relations between allies, the progress made as regards the political unification of Europe should favor the establishment of a transatlantic dialogue between two equal partners.

The idea is, in any case, recognized by all, since, in the Ottawa Declaration, we welcomed the beneficial effect that the further stages toward unity, which the member States of the European Community are determined to pass through, will have for the Atlantic Alliance.

From Belgium's point of view, the two choices—European and Atlantic—are complementary. Without the achievement of a genuine European union on the political level, the European states and the European Community will be unable to assume the responsibility imposed on them by their economic success.

Unless they speak with one voice, how can they play a part in diplomacy, make original contributions to more equitable relations between the industrialized states and those that are trying to develop, and, finally, uphold the essential democratic values?

The assertion of that European identity will foster more thorough cooperation and will give the transatlantic dialog the nature of a conversation between equal partners, who take care to show respect for each other and are united in a joint venture.

The Alliance is permanently confronted with the internal problems of states, the loosening of bonds, and the weariness of efforts. But, due to Western solidarity and to the habit of living together, it may be stated—and seems rather paradoxical—that, after adding up the problems before it, the Alliance has always been in better health than might have been feared.

Of course, the Alliance is challenged and, if it were not, anxiety would have to be felt about its vitality. No viable and active institution fails to make headway between the pressures of opposing forces.

Twenty-five years after its establishment, the governments have confirmed the commitments entered into and have placed them in the context of the new requirements. After having justified its existence in the past, the Alliance remains one of the guarantees of our future.

It is with a thought to that future that I request you to join me in raising your glasses to our continued co-operation.

THE PRESIDENT. Your Majesty, my colleagues from the Atlantic community and distinguished guests:

Your Majesty, we are all most grateful for your eloquent remarks, and we can think of no more appropriate place or time in which to celebrate what in effect is an anniversary.

As I stand in this place, I think back 5 years when you so graciously hosted a luncheon on my first visit to NATO. I think back over what has happened over those 5 years. It is perhaps safe to say that more profound changes have occurred in the world in those 5 years than have occurred in any peacetime period in this century.

There has been the opening of a dialog between the United States, as well as other nations, but between the United States and the People's Republic of China where one-fourth of all the world's people live. We have substituted for a period of confrontation with the Soviet Union a period of negotiation, and other nations as well in the European and Atlantic community have done so.

The very long and difficult war in Vietnam has ended, and most recently developments have occurred in the Mideast which, while only a first step, are nevertheless a most hopeful step toward a goal that every nation around this table represented has an interest in—the goal of a permanent and just peace in that critically important part of the world.

And as we look over those 5 years of developments, we, of course, can see how much the world has changed. We also can see how much the world can change and be changed in the future provided we continue the strength, the purpose, of this great Alliance without which most of these great initiatives could not have been undertaken and would not have succeeded.

Today in the brief talks I have had with some of my colleagues in the Atlantic community and also in the meeting this morning, the plenary session, I have heard raised very justifiably, the issues that are on the minds of every leader in the industrial, more advanced nations of the world today—the problem of inflation, the problem of energy, the problem of international monetary matters, balance of payments, economic problems generally.

And, of course, all of us are recognizing the fact that in various nations, in addition to economic problems there are the continuing political problems which will always be present in free societies.

If we look at those problems that we presently confront, by themselves, and at the moment, they seem overwhelming. But today, around this table, we can be thankful that the problems we face today, as distinguished from 5 years ago, are primarily the problems of peace rather than the problems of war. And this is progress.

It is progress, although it does not mean that the task we have as leaders is easier, because in fact, it is more difficult, more difficult because peace is not something that is achieved at a certain time and then signed and sealed by a treaty which brings it into being.

Peace is a process in which agreements and treaties and understandings must continually be made and continually be reaffirmed, whereas in the case of war, once it ends then peace in the sense of absence of war begins as the result of the signing of a document or some other kind of agreement.

And so to those gathered here on this historic occasion, I recognize, as all of you recognize, that the challenges that we confront today in building a structure of peace are as great in their way and in some ways more great because they are more complex than the challenges of leading nations in war.

This is an anniversary, a 25th anniversary, and usually we think of an anniversary as an end of an era; this, I think, we would all rather think of as the beginning of an era.

This great Alliance in its first 25 years came into being and was indispensable for the purpose of saving freedom and preserving the peace in Europe. This Alliance, for the next 25 years, will have a greater goal and a broader one of preserving freedom wherever it exists but also of building a structure of peace not only for Europe and the Atlantic community but for all the world. This is a great goal for an alliance and it is a great goal to which all of us as leaders can be proud that we are dedicated to it.

I think, for example, back 15 years when a very young, but very wise King addressed a Joint Session of the Congress of the United States, when I was then—I thought I was—a young Vice President presiding along with the Speaker over that session. And I remember well what he said. He said that it takes 20 years of peace or more to make a man. It takes only 20 seconds of war to destroy him.

And so when we think of peace we are thinking not only of ourselves—looking back on the years we have been privileged to serve our nations—but we are thinking of generation upon generation of young people all over this world, young people who have not known a full generation of peace in this century, young people who live in nations who share totally different philosophies from ours, but young people with the idealism, with the hopes, with the drive that is so characteristic of youth wherever they are in whatever nation any place in the world.

And we, in this great community of ours, can be proud that for the past 25 years we have served the cause of preserving peace. For the next 25 years we can broaden that cause, as I have indicated, to serve the cause of peace not only for Europe and the Atlantic community but for all mankind.

When I spoke at the beginning of the new relationships that have been developed between the People's Republic of China and, for example, the United States, between the Soviet Union, where I will be tomorrow, and the United States, I did not intend to leave with this distinguished company, or any others who may listen to these words, any illusions.

We live in a world where there are still deep and basic differences about philosophy. We live in a world however, where whatever those differences are, statesmen must find ways to solve them without resorting to the use of force that could destroy civilization as we know it.

When we negotiate, for example, with the Soviet leaders, we can and will negotiate on such matters as arms control, on troops, on European security, on trade, on health, on the environment, on energy. But there is one thing that is not negotiable, and that is the great principles that are the foundation of the Atlantic community, principles of freedom, of justice, principles which we have inherited in many instances, and some have acquired, but principles which we deeply believe in, must be defended and, we trust, preserved for generations to come.

That does not mean to suggest that those we negotiate with will not have the same determination to stand by their philosophies and their principles as we will by ours.

What it simply does mean is this: that in the world in which we live with the nuclear power that overhangs it, there is no alternative to peace, there is no alternative to negotiation.

And you can be sure that as far as we are concerned, we not only will consult with our allies in this great Alliance before but also afterwards, to make sure that our negotiations serve not only the cause of peace but also the cause of freedom and everything it means to those who are privileged to be members of this great Alliance.

Your Majesty, we are grateful for the hospitality that you have extended to all of us who are members of this community, and consequently, it is for me a very great honor on behalf of all of my colleagues in the Atlantic community to respond to your remarks and to propose a toast. But before doing so, I should like to add one word about the sometimes unsung heroes in this whole area of negotiations, communiques, declarations, and the rest.

When history is written many years from now, it may well be said—it probably will be said—that the leaders of nations were the architects of peace. That may be true; it may not be true. But of this I am sure, and every one of my colleagues in a position of head of a government I am sure will agree: While the leaders and the heads of government may be the architects of peace, the builders of peace are their ministers, the foreign ministers, and all of the others around this table who devote their lives to the art of diplomacy, to carrying out whatever programs or policies will contribute to a goal of peace for not only our time but for all times to come.

And so then, on behalf not only of my colleagues, the architects, but also on behalf of all those who are here, the builders of this new world which we trust will be a world of peace, I ask you to raise your glasses to our host, His Majesty, the King.

To the King.

NOTE: The exchange of toasts began at 2:17 p.m. at the Royal Palace, Brussels, Belgium. King Baudouin began his remarks in French and concluded in English; as printed above, his remarks follow the text of the White House press release.

For the text of the Declaration on Atlantic Relations, see page 729 of this issue.

Dinner in Moscow

Exchange of Toasts Between the President and General Secretary Leonid Ilyich Brezhnev at a Dinner Hosted by Soviet Leaders in Granovit Hall of the Grand Kremlin Palace. June 27, 1974

GENERAL SECRETARY BREZHNEV. Esteemed Mr. President, esteemed Mrs. Nixon, ladies and gentlemen, comrades:

We are glad once again to greet here in the Kremlin as guests of the Soviet Union, the President of the United States of America and Mrs. Nixon, as well as the American statesmen accompanying the President.

This is already the third meeting between the leaders of our countries in just a little over 2 years since a cardinal turn became evident in Soviet-American relations towards normalization and the development of peaceful cooperation.

On the firm basis of the fundamental agreements which were signed in 1972 and 1973 and are known all over the world, we have made tangible progress. Probably never before have ties and contacts between the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and the United States in different areas of political, economic, and cultural activity been as lively as they are today.

Nowadays thousands of people annually travel from America to the Soviet Union and from the Soviet Union to America. Mutual visits of ministers, contacts among businessmen, meetings between scientists and public figures, concert tours, various exhibitions and tourist trips have become customary events. Parliamentary ties are beginning to develop.

We have been glad to welcome in the U.S.S.R. Senators and Congressmen belonging to the two biggest parties of the United States, and a delegation of the U.S.S.R. Supreme Soviet recently visited America.

The material foundation of our good relations is becoming stronger as well. The volume of trade has increased several times over during the last 2 years, and several important long-term contracts have been signed.

At the same time, we all know that much remains to be done here both in the sense of making economic ties more balanced and stable and in the sense of clearly establishing the principles of equality and respect for each other's interests in this area of relations. Credit is certainly due to those farsighted members of the business community of the United States who correctly understood the mutually advantageous nature of the development of economic ties between our countries and their importance for both our peoples and who actively support their government's line in this matter.

The biggest contribution, however, which we, Soviet and U.S. statesmen of the seventies of the twentieth century, can make to the cause of greater well-being and happiness for our peoples and for all mankind is undoubtedly the reduction and subsequently the complete removal of the possibility of war between our two states.

To insure stable peace between the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A. is the chief task in the development of Soviet-American relations and the leaders of both countries are continuing to devote unflagging attention to its solution. For all the useful things that we can achieve in this direction future generations will remember us with kind words.

If we fail to solve this task, however, all other achievements in the development of mutual relations may lose their significance.

The new Soviet-American summit meeting, as it is usually called, is a new step in the great endeavor which we jointly initiated with you, Mr. President, 2 years ago and which we resolutely intend to pursue, for it meets the fundamental interest of the peoples of the two countries and the interests of world peace.

Experience shows that progress along this path requires effort, sometimes quite a bit of it. The relaxation of tension in Soviet-American relations, as in international relations generally, comes up against rather active resistance. There is no need for me to dwell on this subject since our American guests know better and in more detail than we about those who oppose international détente, who favor whipping up the arms race and returning to the methods and procedures of the cold war.

I just want to express my firm conviction that the policy of such individuals—whether they themselves know it or not—has nothing in common with the interests of the people. It is a policy that attests most likely to the unwillingness or inability of its proponents to take a sober look at the realities of the present-day world.

We are confident, however, that the people also will support those who seek to assure their peaceful future and a tranquil life for millions of people, not those who sow enmity and distrust. That is why we believe that the good results it has proved possible to achieve in Soviet-American relations in the last 2 years shall not be erased, particularly since their improvement has already justified itself and has in many respects given practical proof of its usefulness for both sides and for the world as a whole.

Today the task, as we see it, is to consolidate the successes already achieved and to advance further along the main road that we have jointly chosen to follow. The third round of Soviet-American summit talks has begun. We shall be discussing both the further development of bilateral relations and a number of international problems.

Although we have different viewpoints on several matters, we shall seek, and I feel not unsuccessfully, agreed ways toward the further consolidation of peace and mutually advantageous cooperation. I believe it can definitely be said that our talks will proceed in a business like and constructive spirit. We, for our part, express the hope that this time as well our meeting will be as fruitful as the preceding meetings in Moscow and Washington.

Esteemed Mr. President, I do hope that you and Mrs. Nixon feel well on Moscow soil in the Kremlin residence with which you are already familiar. Soon you will be seeing the southern coast of the Crimea where on the Black Sea shores hundreds of thousands and even millions of our country's workers, farmers, and office employees annually spend their vacations at health resorts. I do hope you like the Crimea. We certainly love it.

For my part, I shall be glad to reciprocate to some extent the hospitality that was accorded to us last summer on the Pacific Coast in San Clemente. I trust that in the Crimea there will be no less comfortable conditions for quiet and productive discussions.

I also hope that the visit to the Hero City of Minsk, the capital of Soviet Byelorussia, will also be interesting for you, Mr. President. This title of honor has been conferred upon the Byelorussia capital for its outstanding feat of arms in the years of our joint struggle against the Hitlerite aggressors.

Of course, we would have liked you to see more of the Soviet Union and to travel around our country, but since you have not been able to make your visit a longer one, I should like to express the wish that it should prove to be at least as useful and pleasant as possible.

May I propose a toast to the health of the President of the United States, Mr. Richard Nixon, and Mrs. Nixon.

To the health of all the American guests present in this hall.

To peace and friendship between the peoples of the Soviet Union and the United States of America.

To lasting peace all over the world.

THE PRESIDENT. Mr. General Secretary Brezhnev, President Podgorny, Premier Kosygin, all distinguished guests:

To you, Mr. General Secretary, on behalf of all of your American guests, I express our grateful appreciation for not only the hospitality you have extended to us tonight but for the very generous words of friendship you have just spoken.

And I am very gratified that I shall have the opportunity to see more of your great country on this visit, and I trust that on your next visit to the United States next year you will be able to see more of our country as well.

All of us gathered here tonight are fortunate to be present at a moment of great historical significance. Two years ago, in this place, we began the process which has resulted in a profound change in the relations between the two strongest nations in the world.

We have moved in those 2 years from confrontation to coexistence to cooperation. And while, as the General Secretary has correctly pointed out, we have many problems yet to negotiate on, the success of our negotiations to date gives a good indication of the progress we can and will make in this third summit meeting.

To see the extent of the progress that has been made, we can point to the fact that over the past 2 years more agreements have been negotiated and signed between our two countries in those 2 years than in the entire history of the relations of our two countries up to that period.

And it is significant to note the character of those agreements. In part, they have dealt with the concern that both of our nations have with regard to the need to avoid war, and motivated by that desire, the desire to avoid war, we have begun the process of limiting nuclear arms.

And in 1973, we negotiated and signed the historic agreement with regard to the prevention of nuclear war. But that is only one side of the equation as far as our agreements are concerned. We both seek peace, but we seek peace that is more than simply the absence of war. We seek peace because of the positive progress it can bring to both of our peoples.

And that is why we have negotiated a number of agreements in the areas of peaceful progress. They are too numerous to mention, but they cover all fields of human endeavor: health, science, the environment, the peaceful exploration of space, agriculture. Many others could be added, but together what they mean is that both our great peoples now have a stake in peace from a positive standpoint.

We must still do everything we can to negotiate those agreements that will lessen the burden of armaments and reduce the danger of war. But we must go further and add to this and to give to every individual in each of our countries a positive stake in peace, because it is in this way that two peoples with different systems of government can establish relationships that will not be broken in the future.

And it is also, I think, very worthwhile to note how these agreements were negotiated. They were possible because of a personal relationship that was established between the General Secretary and the President of the United States. And that personal relationship extends to the top officials in both of our governments.

It has been said that any agreement is only as good as the will of the parties to keep it. Because of our personal relationship, there is no question about our will to keep these agreements and to make more where they are in our mutual interests.

And also, we both can say that this new relationship between our two nations is overwhelmingly supported by the people of the Soviet Union and overwhelmingly supported by the people of the United States.

And now, looking to the future, we wonder how history will judge the leaders of these two nations and their people during this period. Too often in the past, history has judged those nations to be great which were engaged in aggressive war and in conquest. But what we are doing is establishing a record where the two strongest nations in the world and their leaders will seek greatness not by what they might accomplish in war but greatness by what they accomplish in the works of peace.

And without the cooperation of these two strongest nations in the world, the cooperation of both their leaders and their people, there can be no lasting peace in the world. And consequently, we believe that these meetings that we have had and those that we will have in the future will lead to our meeting the challenge of history for a strong nation to be remembered as a peace-making nation rather than as a war-making nation.

Let this be our legacy for the generations ahead. And that is why I say that we should raise our glasses to our host, the General Secretary and his colleagues, to peace between the Soviet Union and the United States of America, and to peace for all peoples in the world, the peace to which the relations between our two nations can make such an enormous contribution.

NOTE: The exchange of toasts began at 8:24 p.m., in Granovit Hall of the Grand Kremlin Palace, Moscow, U.S.S.R. General Secretary Brezhnev spoke in Russian, and his remarks were translated by an interpreter.

As printed above, this item follows the text of the White House press release.

Energy

Agreement Between the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics on Cooperation in the Field of Energy. June 28, 1974

The United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics;

Attaching great importance to meeting the energy needs of the two countries, with proper regard to the protection of the environment;

Recognizing that the development of cooperation in the field of energy can benefit the peoples of both countries and all mankind;

Desiring to expand and to deepen the cooperation now existing between the two countries in the field of energy research and development;

Recognizing the need to create better mutual understanding of each country's national energy programs and outlook;

Convinced that cooperation in the field of energy will contribute to the overall improvement of relations between the two countries;

In accordance with and in development of the Agreement between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics on Cooperation in the Fields of Science and Technology of May 24, 1972, and the agreement on Cooperation in the Field of Environmental Protection between the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics of May 23, 1972, as well as in accordance with the Agreement between the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics on Scientific and Technical Cooperation in the Field of Peaceful Uses of Atomic Energy of June 21, 1973, and the General Agreement between the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics on Contacts, Exchanges and Cooperation of June 19, 1973;

Have agreed as follows:

ARTICLE I

The Parties will expand and strengthen their cooperation in the field of energy on the basis of mutual benefit, equality and reciprocity.

ARTICLE II

The main objectives of such cooperation under this Agreement are:

a. to use the scientific and technical potential of both countries to accelerate by cooperative efforts research and development in the areas of existing and alternative sources of energy as well as to increase effectiveness in the use of energy and its conservation, and

b. to achieve a better mutual understanding of each country's national energy programs and outlook.

ARTICLE III

1. Cooperation will be implemented in the following areas:

a. technologies concerning the exploration, extraction, processing and use of fossil fuels, including but not limited to oil, shale, natural gas and coal, and, in particular, new methods of drilling and of increasing the rate of extraction and degree of recovery of oil and natural gas from strata, and of mining, extracting and processing coal and shale;

b. the exchange of relevant information, views and methods of forecasting concerning the natural energy programs and outlooks of the respective countries, including all questions of mutual interest related to production, demand and consumption of the major forms of fuels and energy;

c. technology for developing non-conventional sources of energy, such as solar and geothermal energy and synthetic fuels;

d. energy-related environmental technology; and

e. measures to increase the efficiency of energy use and to restrain demand.

2. Other areas of cooperation may be added by mutual agreement.

ARTICLE IV

1. Cooperation between the Parties may take the following forms:

a. exchange of scientists and specialists;

b. exchange of scientific and technical information, documentation and results of research;

c. establishment of groups of experts for the planning and execution of joint research and development programs;

d. joint work by theoretical and experimental scientists in appropriate research centers of the two countries; and

e. holding joint consultations, seminars and panels.

2. Other forms of cooperation may be added by mutual agreement.

3. Cooperation under this Agreement will be carried out in accordance with the laws and regulations of the respective countries.

ARTICLE V

1. In furtherance of this Agreement, the Parties will, as appropriate, encourage, facilitate and monitor the development of contacts and cooperation between organizations, institutions and firms of the respective countries, including the conclusion, as appropriate, of implementing agreements for carrying out cooperative activities under this Agreement.

2. To assure fruitful development of cooperation, the Parties will render every assistance for the travel of scientists and specialists to areas of the respective countries appropriate for the conduct of activities under this Agreement.

ARTICLE VI

1. For implementation of this Agreement, there shall be established a US-USSR Joint Committee on Cooperation in the Field of Energy. Meetings of the Joint Committee will be convened once a year in the United States and the Soviet Union alternately, unless otherwise mutually agreed.

2. The Joint Committee shall take such action as is necessary for effective implementation of this Agreement including, but not limited to, consultations on the energy situation and outlook of the respective countries; approval of specific projects and programs of cooperation; designation of appropriate participating organizations and institutions responsible for carrying out cooperative activities; and making recommendations, as appropriate, to the two Governments. The Joint Committee shall establish the necessary working groups to carry out the programs, projects and exchange of information contemplated by this Agreement.

3. Each Party shall designate its Executive Agent which will be responsible for carrying out this Agreement. During the period between meetings of the Joint Committee, the Executive Agents shall maintain contact with each other, keep each other informed of activities and progress in implementing this Agreement, and coordinate and supervise the development and implementation of cooperative activities conducted under this Agreement.

ARTICLE VII

Nothing in this Agreement shall be interpreted to prejudice or modify any existing agreements between the Parties, except that energy projects within the Agreement between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics on Cooperation in the Fields of Science and Technology of May 24, 1972 and the Agreement between the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics on Cooperation in the Field of Environmental Protection of May 23, 1972 which clearly fall under this Agreement henceforward will be implemented pursuant to this Agreement.

ARTICLE VIII

Unless an implementing agreement contains other provisions, each Party or participating institution, organization or firm, shall bear the costs of its participation and that of its personnel in cooperative activities engaged in pursuant to this Agreement.

ARTICLE IX

1. This Agreement shall enter into force upon signature and remain in force for five years. It will be automatically extended for successive five-year periods unless either Party notifies the other of its intent to terminate this Agreement not later than six months prior to the expiration of this Agreement.

2. This Agreement may be modified at any time by mutual agreement of the Parties.

3. The termination of this Agreement will not affect the validity of implementing agreements concluded under this Agreement between institutions, organizations and firms of the respective countries.

DONE at Moscow on June 28, 1974, in duplicate, in the English and Russian languages, both texts being equally authentic.

FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

RICHARD NIXON

President of the United States

FOR THE UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS:

N. V. PODGORNYY

Chairman, Presidium, USSR Supreme Soviet

NOTE: The agreement was signed at a ceremony in St. Vladimir Hall of the Grand Kremlin Palace on Friday, June 28, 1974.

Housing Construction

Agreement Between the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics on Cooperation in the Field of Housing and Other Construction. June 28, 1974

The United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics;

Desiring to develop cooperation in the field of housing and other construction;

Realizing that a more effective application of new and traditional building materials and techniques can contribute to more rational utilization of the resources available to both countries;

Desiring to exchange information and techniques in the field of housing and other construction;

Believing that cooperation in the field of housing and other construction offers benefits for both the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics;

Convinced that such cooperation will serve to contribute to the improvement of relations between the two countries;

Noting cooperation already being implemented in these areas under existing agreements, and in accordance with the General Agreement between the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics on Contacts, Exchanges, and Cooperation, signed June 19, 1973;

Have agreed as follows:

ARTICLE I

The Parties will develop and carry out cooperation in the field of housing and other construction on the basis of mutual benefit, equality and reciprocity.

ARTICLE II

This cooperation will be directed to the investigation and solution of specific problems of mutual interest in the field of housing and other construction.

Initially, cooperation will be implemented in the following areas:

a. innovative techniques for the improvement of life safety, reliability, quality, and economy of buildings and building materials including: organization and management of construction, new methods and materials, and the improved use of traditional methods and materials;

b. performance criteria for housing and other construction in seismic areas with special consideration of the impact of geophysical conditions;

c. improvement of construction methods in areas of extreme climatic conditions, such as cold and arid regions, including techniques for erection and finishing of buildings under sustained freezing, and foundation construction under unusual soil conditions;

d. Services to housing and other buildings, including water supply, waste disposal, heating, lighting, and ventilation, with special reference to combined utility functions; and

e. planning, design, and construction of new towns. Other areas of cooperation may be added by mutual agreement.

ARTICLE III

Cooperation pursuant to this Agreement may be implemented by the following means:

a. exchange of experts, advanced students and delegations;

b. exchange of scientific and technical information and documentation;

c. conducting joint conferences, meetings and seminars;

d. joint development and implementation of research programs and projects; and

e. other forms of cooperation which may be mutually agreed upon.

Such cooperation shall be conducted in accordance with the constitution and applicable laws and regulations of the respective countries.

ARTICLE IV

In furtherance of the aims of this Agreement, the Parties will, as appropriate, encourage, facilitate and monitor the development of cooperation and direct contacts between agencies, organizations and firms of the two countries, including the conclusion, as appropriate, of implementing agreements for carrying out specific projects and programs under this Agreement.

ARTICLE V

1. For the implementation of this Agreement, there shall be established a US-USSR Joint Committee on Cooperation in Housing and Other Construction. This Committee shall meet, as a rule, once a year alternately in the United States and the Soviet Union, unless otherwise mutually agreed.

2. The Joint Committee shall take such action as is necessary for the effective implementation of this Agreement, including, but not limited to, approval of specific projects and programs of cooperation, designation of appropriate agencies, organizations, and joint working groups to be responsible for carrying out cooperative activities, and making recommendations, as appropriate, to the Parties.

3. Each Party shall designate its Executive Agent which will be responsible for coordinating and carrying out this Agreement, and, as appropriate, in their respective countries, shall assure the cooperation of other participating institutions and organizations. During the period between meetings of the Joint Committee, the Executive Agents will maintain contact with each other and will coordinate and supervise the development and implementation of cooperative activities conducted under this Agreement.

4. Unless an implementing agreement contains other provisions, each Party or participating institution, organization or firm shall bear the costs of its participation and that of its personnel in cooperative activities engaged in under this Agreement.

ARTICLE VI

Nothing in this Agreement shall be interpreted to prejudice other agreements between the Parties or their respective rights and obligations under such other agreements.

ARTICLE VII

1. This Agreement shall enter into force upon signature and remains in force for five years. It will be automatically extended for successive five year periods unless either party notifies the other of its intent to terminate this Agreement not later than six months prior to the expiration of this Agreement.

2. This Agreement may be modified at any time by mutual agreement of the Parties.

3. The termination of this Agreement shall not affect the validity of implementing agreements concluded under this Agreement between interested agencies, organizations and firms of the two countries.

DONE at Moscow on June 28, 1974, in duplicate in the English and Russian languages, both texts being equally authentic.

FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

RICHARD NIXON

President of the United States

FOR THE UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS:

A. N. KOSYGIN

Chairman of the Council of Ministers of the USSR

NOTE: The agreement was signed at a ceremony in St. Vladimir Hall of the Grand Kremlin Palace on Friday, June 28, 1974.

Heart Research

Agreement Between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics on Cooperation in Artificial Heart Research and Development.
June 28, 1974

The Government of the United States of America and the Government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics;

Reaffirming the importance that medical science has for mankind today;

Realizing the advisability of further uniting the efforts of both countries in resolving the pressing problems of medical science;

Recognizing the great importance of scientific research and the study of heart disease, which is one of the leading causes of mortality in both their countries as well as throughout the world;

Desiring to expand and strengthen common efforts to promote the development of an artificial heart;

Realizing that the development of an effective artificial heart could eventually lead to a reduction in mortality;

In pursuance and further development of the Agreement between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics on Cooperation in the Field of Medical Science and Public Health, signed May 23, 1972;

In accordance with the General Agreement between the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics on Contacts, Exchanges and Cooperation, signed June 19, 1973;

Have agreed as follows:

ARTICLE I

Both parties undertake to develop and extend scientific and technical cooperation in artificial heart research and development on the basis of equality, reciprocity and mutual benefit.

ARTICLE II

The cooperation will be concentrated in the areas of research on, and joint development and testing of devices, materials, instruments and control mechanisms which will provide cardiovascular support including total heart replacement.

ARTICLE III

The cooperation provided for in the preceding Articles may be implemented principally in the following ways:

- a. exchange of scientific and technical information;
- b. organization of joint conferences, workshops and meetings of experts;
- c. exchanges of specialists and delegations;
- d. preparation of joint publications and technical manuals; and
- e. familiarization with and exchange of technical aids and equipment.

In the course of implementing this Agreement, other forms of cooperation may also be determined by mutual agreement.

ARTICLE IV

The parties will delegate practical implementation of this Agreement to the US-USSR Joint Committee for Health Cooperation. The Committee shall approve the programs of cooperation, designate the participating organizations responsible for the realization of these programs, and periodically review the progress of the cooperation.

ARTICLE V

Cooperation shall be financed on the basis of reciprocal agreements worked out by the Joint Committee, using the resources of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare of the United States of America and the Ministry of Health of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, as well as the resources of those organizations and institutions taking part in the cooperation.

ARTICLE VI

Such cooperation will be carried out in accordance with the laws and regulations of the respective countries.

Nothing in this Agreement shall be construed to prejudice or modify other agreements concluded between the two parties.

ARTICLE VII

This Agreement shall enter into force upon signature and shall remain in force for three years after which it will be extended for successive five year periods unless one party notifies the other of its intent to terminate this agreement not less than six months prior to its expiration.

This Agreement may be modified by mutual agreement of the parties.

DONE at Moscow on June 28, 1974, in duplicate, in the English and Russian languages, both texts being equally authentic.

FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

HENRY A. KISSINGER

The Secretary of State

FOR THE UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS:

N. V. PODGORNYY

Chairman, Presidium, USSR Supreme Soviet

NOTE: The agreement was signed at a ceremony in St. Vladimir Hall of the Grand Kremlin Palace on Friday, June 28, 1974.

Economic, Industrial, and Technical Cooperation

Long Term Agreement Between the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics To Facilitate Economic, Industrial, and Technical Cooperation. June 29, 1974

The United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics,

Desiring to promote continuing orderly expansion of economic, industrial, and technical cooperation and the exchange of relevant information to facilitate such cooperation between the two countries and their competent organizations, enterprises, and firms on a long term and mutually beneficial basis,

Guided by the Basic Principles of Relations between the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics of May 29, 1972, the Joint American-Soviet Communique of June 24, 1973, and the principles set forth in the Agreement between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Regarding Trade dated October 18, 1972,

Have agreed as follows:

ARTICLE I

The Parties shall use their good offices to facilitate economic, industrial, and technical cooperation in keeping with established practices and applicable laws and regulations in the respective countries.

ARTICLE II

Cooperation which shall be facilitated as contemplated in Article I shall include:

- a. purchases and sales of machinery and equipment for the construction of new enterprises and for the expansion and modernization of existing enterprises in the fields of raw materials, agriculture, machinery and equipment, finished products, consumer goods, and services;
- b. purchases and sales of raw materials, agricultural products, finished products, consumer goods, and services;
- c. purchases, sales and licensing of patent rights and proprietary industrial know-how, designs, and processes;
- d. training of technicians and exchange of specialists; and
- e. joint efforts, where appropriate, in the construction of industrial and other facilities in third countries, particularly through supply of machinery and equipment.

ARTICLE III

In order to assist relevant organizations, enterprises, and firms of both countries in determining the fields of cooperation most likely to provide a basis for mutually beneficial contracts, a working group of experts convened by the Commission mentioned in Article V shall meet not less frequently than once a year to exchange information and forecasts of basic economic, industrial, and commercial trends.

ARTICLE IV

To promote the cooperation foreseen in this Agreement the Parties undertake to facilitate, as appropriate, the acquisition or lease of suitable business and residential premises by organizations, enterprises, and firms of the other party and their employees; the importation of essential office equipment and supplies; the hiring of staffs; the issuance of visas, including multiple entry visas, to qualified officials and representatives of such organizations, enterprises, and firms and to members of their immediate families; and travel by such persons for business purposes in the territory of the receiving country.

ARTICLE V

The US-USSR Commercial Commission established pursuant to the Communiqué of May 26, 1972, is authorized and directed to monitor the practical implementation of this Agreement, when necessary jointly with other American-Soviet bodies created by agreement between the Governments of the two countries, with a view to facilitating the cooperation contemplated in this Agreement.

ARTICLE VI

This Agreement shall enter into force on the date of its signature, and shall remain in force for 10 years.

The Parties shall agree not later than six months prior to the expiration of the above period upon measures which may be necessary to facilitate further development of economic, industrial, and technical cooperation.

DONE at Moscow on June 29, 1974, in duplicate, in the English and Russian languages, both texts being equally authentic.

FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

RICHARD NIXON

President of the United States of America

FOR THE UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS:

L. I. BREZHNEV

General Secretary of the Central
Committee of the CPSU

NOTE: The agreement was signed at a ceremony in St. Vladimir Hall of the Grand Kremlin Palace on Friday, June 28, 1974.

Luncheon in Minsk

Exchange of Toasts Between the President and Fedor Anisimovich Surganov, Chairman of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, at the Luncheon at the Government Guest House. July 1, 1974

CHAIRMAN SURGANOV. Esteemed Mr. President, esteemed Mrs. Nixon, ladies and gentlemen, comrades:

Permit me, on behalf of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet and the Government of the Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic, to welcome you, Mr. President, in the capital of our Republic.

We hope that your stay on Byelorussian soil will be pleasant and that it will give you an opportunity to get some idea about our people and their life, about their history and present day successes.

Your visit to the Byelorussian Republic is coinciding with the celebration of a date that is very dear to us, the 30th anniversary of the liberation of Byelorussia from the German fascist invaders, and today we recall the grim days when the peoples of the Soviet Union and of the other countries of the anti-Hitler coalition fought courageously against the common foe, nationalism, which threatened the freedom of the peoples and indeed civilization itself.

The Byelorussian people are well aware and remember what war means, and they cherish the benefits of peace and creative effort.

Every fourth citizen of this Republic perished in the heroic struggle against fascism, about nine and one-half thousand towns and villages were destroyed, and our capital, Minsk, was almost totally devastated, about three million people remaining homeless.

In the past 30 years, thanks to the selfless labor of our people and the paternal assistance of all the peoples of the Soviet Union, we have not only rehabilitated the war ravaged economy but have also achieved significant new successes in economics and in the development of culture, science and health, and in raising the living standards of the people.

Like other towns and cities in this Republic, the Hero City of Minsk has been reborn out of ruins and is today vigorously developing. Having defended their freedom and independence, the Soviet people, engaged in peaceful creative labor, are vitally interested in preventing war and in strengthening international peace and security.

And that is why they wholeheartedly welcome the favorable changes that are taking place in the international arena and the cardinal turn that has become discernible of late in relationships between the United States and the Soviet Union.

The constructive development of Soviet-American relations, in our firm conviction, meets the interests not only of the Soviet and American peoples, but also the interests of the peaceful future of all mankind. The joint desire of the peoples of the Soviet Union and of the United States to live at peace with one another has already found its practical embodiment in concrete deeds which have been registered in a series of joint documents and this has indeed become an important factor of international relations.

Your new visit to the Soviet Union, Mr. President, and your new meetings and discussions with the General Secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, Comrade Leonid Brezhnev, and with other Soviet leaders, are regarded by the Byelorussian people, as they are by all the peace-loving people, as a new and important landmark in Soviet-American relations and as the further concrete embodiment of the line aimed at insuring peace and establishing in international practices the principles of peaceful coexistence and mutually advantageous and equal cooperation of states.

We are confident that this is the line of the future, regardless of all the efforts made by the forces of the past to reverse the process of international détente.

Permit me to propose a toast to the health of the President of the United States of America and Mrs. Nixon, to the health of all the members of the President's party, to peace and cooperation between the Soviet and American peoples, and to the consolidation of peace and international security.

THE PRESIDENT. Mr. President of the Republic, Mr. Chairman of the Council of Ministers, and Mr. Secretary of the Party:

And for those Americans who are here, that translated, in terms of Byelorussian, means Mr. Podgorny, Mr. Brezhnev, and Mr. Kosygin. [Laughter]

On behalf of all our American guests, I wish to express our appreciation for this beautiful luncheon. And I want all of you to know that when the General Secretary, Mr.

Brezhnev, picked the city and the Republic in which we would come, I now know why he picked Minsk.

I thought first it might be because Minsk and Byelorussia is famous the world over for a tiny girl, a pert girl, Olga Korbut. [Laughter]. But I have found in my conversations with my friends from the right and the left seated here that not only are the women of Byelorussia beautiful, but they are strong and courageous.

It is difficult to know the meaning of war until one has an opportunity to come in contact with it on an individual basis. And I find that both the Secretary on my right and the President on my left have come into contact with war as fighters in the war, but also who know war because they have close relatives and, in their case, their own mothers who were killed in the war.

And the question is why has this city been designated a hero city for the Soviet Union? First, because it suffered so much, along with the whole Republic of Byelorussia. Second, because not only the men but the women fought and were courageous throughout the war. And third, despite the long years of occupation, the city and the Republic has come back until now it is on the way to its greatest years in the period ahead.

And so, this is truly a hero city and a hero republic. And I think General Secretary Brezhnev wanted Mrs. Nixon and me to visit this city in order to help you celebrate this great day in which you complete 30 years since liberation.

How do we best celebrate such a day? With a magnificent luncheon like this, with fine food, good wines, and good company; by a parade yesterday and by visits to memorials that we will be privileged to make later in the afternoon.

But the best way to celebrate a day which marks the ending of a war is to build peace. And the greatest and best memorial that we can build to the one-fourth of all the citizens of this Republic who were killed in World War II is to build a structure of peace so that their children and grandchildren will not die in another war.

As I saw these fine looking young men who served us, this thought crossed my mind: What we who served in World War II have on our hands is the responsibility of determining whether these young men will grow up in a period of peace or whether they, too, will have to go through the horrors of war. And I can assure you that in our first two meetings—the first in Moscow, the next in Washington and other parts of the United States—and the third here in the Soviet Union, that the General Secretary and his colleagues and the members of our party have been devoting our full time toward the great goal to see to it that the two strongest peoples and the two strongest nations in the world will not devote their efforts and waste their young men in war but will work together for peace between themselves and for all people in the world.

And it is very appropriate that in this city and in this Republic that has known war for so many centuries that today we speak in terms of peace and friendship for all people.

May Minsk in the future not be remembered simply where virtually every generation a battle is fought, but as a great city which contributed to prosperity and peace for all the people in this Republic.

So, therefore, I will propose that we raise our glasses to our hosts, the President, the Chairman of the Council of Ministers, the Secretary of the Party, to the Hero City of Minsk, to all of those brave men and women who died and suffered during World War II, and to the new generation which will grow up in peace because of what we are able to do.

NOTE: The exchange of toasts began at 2:21 p.m. at the Government Guest House, Minsk, Byelorussian Soviet Socialist Republic. Chairman Surganov spoke in Russian, and his remarks were translated by an interpreter.

As printed above, this item follows the text of the White House press release.

ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE OF THE SOVIET UNION

The President's Radio and Television Address. July 2, 1974

Dobryy vecher [Good evening]:

Two years ago, at the first of these summit meetings, your Government gave me the opportunity to speak directly with you, the people of the Soviet Union. Last year, at our second meeting, General Secretary Brezhnev spoke on radio and television to the people of the United States. And now, tonight, I appreciate this opportunity to continue what has become a tradition, a part of our annual meetings.

In these past 2 years, there has been a dramatic change in the nature of the relationship between our two countries. After a long period of confrontation, we moved to an era of negotiation, and now we are learning cooperation. We are learning to cooperate not only in lessening the danger of war, but in advancing the work of peace.

We are thereby helping to create not only a safer but also a better life for the people of both of our countries. By reflecting on how far we have advanced, we can better appreciate how strong a foundation we have laid for even greater progress in the future.

At our first summit meeting 2 years ago, we signed the first agreement ever negotiated for the limitation of strategic nuclear arms. This was an historic milestone on the road to a lasting peace—and to mankind's control over the forces of his own destruction.

We have many difficulties yet to be overcome in achieving full control over strategic nuclear arms. But each step carries us closer and builds confidence in the process of negotiation itself.

Our progress in the limitation of arms has been vitally important. But it has not been the only product of our work at the summit. We have also been steadily building a new relationship that over time will reduce the causes of conflict.

In the basic principles for our mutual relations, agreed to in Moscow in 1972, and in the agreement on prevention of nuclear war, signed last year in Washington, we have established standards to guide our actions toward each other in international affairs generally so that the danger of war will be reduced and the possibility of dangerous confrontations will be lessened.

What is particularly significant is that our negotiations have been far wider than the reduction of arms and the prevention of wars and crises. The pattern of agreements reached between us has opened new avenues of cooperation across the whole range of peaceful relations.

For example, we are working together in programs which will bring better health, better housing, a better environment, as well as in many other fields. Trade between our two countries totaled a record $1.4 billion in 1973. That is more than twice the level of the previous year. This means more goods and a greater choice available for the people of both of our countries.

It was exactly 15 years ago next month when I was here in Moscow as Vice President that I first spoke to the people of the Soviet Union on radio and television. In that speech I said, "Let our aim be not victory over other peoples, but the victory of all mankind over hunger, want, misery and disease, wherever it exists in the world."

The agreements we have reached at these summit meetings—on health, for example, including this year's agreement on artificial heart research—will help us toward that great victory. At the same time, they will give the people of both of our countries a positive stake in peace.

This is crucially important.

Traditionally, when peace has been maintained, it has been maintained primarily because of the fear of war. Negotiators have been spurred in their efforts either by the desire to end a war or by the fear that their failure would begin a war.

The peace we seek now to build is a permanent peace. And nothing permanent can be built on fear alone. By giving both of our nations a positive stake in peace—by giving both of our peoples hope, something to look forward to as the results of peace—we create a more solid framework on which a lasting structure of peace can be built and on which it then can stand strong through the years.

The peace we seek to build is one that is far more than simply the absence of war. We seek a peace in which each man, woman, and child can look forward to a richer and a fuller life. This is what the people of the Soviet Union want. This is what the people of America want. And this is what the people of all nations want.

Our two nations are great nations. They are strong nations, the two strongest nations in the world.

Too often in the past, the greatness of a nation has been measured primarily in terms of its success in war. The time has come to set a new standard for the measure of greatness of a nation. Let our measure of greatness be not by the way we use our strength for war and destruction, but how we work together for peace and for progress for ourselves and for all mankind.

Let us recognize that to be great, a strong nation need not impose its will on weaker nations. A great nation will establish its place in history by the example it sets, by the purposes for which its power is used, by the respect that it shows for the rights of others, by the contribution it makes toward building a new world in which the weak will be as safe as the strong.

In these meetings, we have been seeking to ensure that the power of both of our nations will be used not for war and destruction, but rather for peace and for progress.

Our two nations will continue to have differences. We have different systems. And, in many respects, we have different values. Inevitably our interests will not always be in accord.

But the important thing is that we are learning to negotiate where we have differences, to narrow them where possible, and to move ahead together in an expanding field of mutual interests.

One of the most important aspects of our developing new relationship might be stated this way: Just as a cloth is stronger than the threads from which it is made, so the network of agreements we have been weaving is greater than the sum of its parts. With these agreements, we have been creating a pattern of interrelationships, of habits of cooperation and arrangements for consultation—all of which interact with one another to strengthen the fabric of the new relationship. Thus each new agreement is important not only for itself but also for the added strength and stability it brings to our relations overall.

We have been weaving this fabric of cooperation not just because we are idealistic about peace—and we are—but because we are practical about peace. The words of the agreements we sign are important; even more important is how we carry them out in practice—how we translate the ideal of peaceful cooperation into the practice of peaceful cooperation. In this growing network of agreements, of exchanges, of patterns of cooperation, we are demonstrating not just the ideal of peace but the practice of peace.

In the course of many years, I have visited memorials to the dead of many wars, in many countries. Yesterday, I laid a wreath at one of the most moving memorials I have ever seen—the Khatyn Memorial, outside Minsk. A huge bronze statue of Joseph Kaminsky, the village blacksmith, carrying his 15-year-old dead son in his arms, stands today above the graves of what was the village of Khatyn.

Chimneys stand where the houses were, with a memorial bell in each chimney tolling for the dead, not only for Khatyn but also for the hundreds of other villages that were destroyed and the millions of others who died—a stark reminder to all nations, and for all time, of the terrible cost of war.

As I laid the wreath, I thought of the people of Khatyn, and I thought especially of the children of Khatyn. I reflected on the fact that our efforts now must be directed not against any one nation or group of nations, but against the evil of war itself.

And I also thought of the living memorial that we today must build—the living memorial of a lasting peace, so that the children of those who sacrificed in war, and their children's children, can be spared the tragedy of Khatyn, and can know instead the security of a human brotherhood that reaches across the boundaries of all nations.

When we first met at the summit 2 years ago, both sides were venturing into the untried waters of something new. And we were, perhaps, a bit uncertain, even apprehensive, about where it would lead.

But now, we and the leaders of the Soviet Union have come to know one another. Each of us has a much fuller understanding of the policies of the other country, even where those policies differ.

Thus, we have been able to meet this year, as we will meet again next year in the United States, not in an atmosphere of crisis, but rather in an atmosphere of confidence—confidence that the work we have embarked on is going forward.

In fact, it might be said that the most remarkable thing about this summit meeting is that it is taking place so routinely, so familiarly—as a part of a continuing pattern that would have seemed inconceivable just a few years ago.

Peace is not only a condition; if it is to last, it must also be a continuing process. And these meetings are an example of that process in action.

As allies in World War II, we fought side by side in the most terrible war in all human history. And together with our allies we won the victory. In winning that victory, the people of the Soviet Union and the people of the United States shared a common hope that we also had won a lasting peace. That hope was frustrated, but now we have a new opportunity.

Winning victory in war is difficult. It requires extraordinary courage, stamina, and dedication from every individual citizen in the nation. But in some ways, the building of a lasting peace is even more difficult than waging war because it is more complex. We must bring to the task of building that peace the same kind of courage, of stamina, of dedication that inspired us in our struggle for victory in war.

And the fact that our task of building peace is more complex does not mean that we cannot succeed.

Let me give a striking example which demonstrates that point. In the whole field of modern technology, no mission is more complex than the mission of sending men into space. The joint Soviet-American space mission planned for next year—the joint Soyuz-Apollo mission—is in many ways symbolic of the new relationship we are building between our two nations.

It is symbolic for several reasons—reasons which carry important lessons about that new relationship.

For one thing, the rocket technology developed for war is being used for peace.

And for another, Soviet and American spacemen, starting from their separate countries, will find their way toward one another and join with one another—just as we are doing and must continue to do across the whole range of our relationship.

By standardizing their docking techniques, they will make international rescue missions possible in case future space missions encounter trouble in space; thus they will make space safer for the astronauts and the cosmonauts of both of our countries—just as our new relationship can make life on earth safer for the people of both of our countries.

Finally, and perhaps more important, this joint mission—for which our astronauts are now here in the Soviet Union training alongside your cosmonauts—is being made possible by careful planning, by precise engineering, by a process of working and building together, step by step, to reach a goal that we share, and this is the way that together we can build a peace, a peace that will last.

One of the greatest of your writers, Leo Tolstoy, once told this story. A very old man was planting apple trees. He was asked: "What are you planting apple trees for? It will be a long time before they bear fruit, and you will not live to eat a single apple."

The old man replied, "I will never eat them, but others will, and they will thank me."

Our two nations bear a shared responsibility toward the entire world. And we, too, must plant now so that future generations will reap a harvest of peace—a peace in which our children can live together as brothers and sisters, joining hands across the ocean in friendship, and ushering in a new era in which war is behind us, and in which together, in peace, we can work toward a better life for our people and for all people.

Spasibo, y do svidaniye. [Thank you and goodbye.]

NOTE: The President spoke at 7:01 p.m. in the Green Room at the Grand Kremlin Palace, Moscow, U.S.S.R. His address was broadcast live on radio and television in the Soviet Union and simultaneously, via satellite, in the United States.

Dinner Honoring Soviet Leaders

Exchange of Toasts Between the President and General Secretary Brezhnev at a Dinner at Spaso House Hosted by the President and Mrs. Nixon. July 2, 1974

THE PRESIDENT. Mr. General Secretary Brezhnev, President Podgorny, Prime Minister Kosygin, and all of our distinguished guests from the Soviet Union and our guests from the United States:

Mr. General Secretary, it is difficult to express in words how much we have appreciated the hospitality, the boundless hospitality, you have extended to all of us from our American party. And we are honored to have you in this house tonight.

As we look back over the last 5 days, we have many unforgettable memories, the magnificent dinner the first night in the Kremlin, the superb performance at the Bolshoi Theater which, in effect, allowed us through music, through dance, and through song to visit virtually all of the Soviet Union, and then the first opportunity that most of us have had, and certainly the first opportunity I have had, to go to the Crimea, to Oreanda, and then yesterday the visit to Minsk.

The difficulty with our position at this point is that your hospitality has been so great we do not know how to equal it when you make your next visit to the United States just a year from now. But I can assure you that you will be received warmly and that we expect next year to continue on the path of progress which began just 2 years ago on my first visit as President to Moscow in 1972.

Tomorrow we will sign the final documents of our meetings. Altogether with the other documents that we have agreed to, they will add up to a very significant progress in Soviet-American relations, progress toward our common goals of reducing the danger of war and increasing the hopes for and actually the products of peace, the benefits of peace for all of our people.

Yesterday, when I visited the famous memorial at Minsk, many thoughts went through my head. I referred earlier in the television address to the village blacksmith, Kaminsky, holding his dead 15-year-old son in his hands.

I thought of many things, but above all, what that young boy whose life was snuffed out at such an early age might have been if he lived. Possibly there was a great scientist, one who could possibly have composed great music, or created beautiful works of art, or one who in the field of medicine might have found an answer to the problem of cancer or one of the other dread diseases which afflict all of mankind.

And as I think of our work together with you and your colleagues, I realize that we are working for the future of our children, our grandchildren, and for all of those who live throughout the world.

Our goal will not be accomplished in one meeting or two or even three. But by continuing our close consultation, by continuing our meetings, we will make definite progress toward our goal of a permanent peace between our two nations and for all people.

None of this would have been possible in the past or will be possible in the future unless it was supported, as it is, by a majority of our people. I know from my visit to the Soviet Union that your policies are supported by the great majority of the Soviet people, your policies looking toward the reduction of the dangers of war and increasing the opportunities for peace. And I can assure you, Mr.

General Secretary, that our policies, looking toward closer relations and friendship, not only with the Soviet people but with the leaders of this government has the support of the great majority of the American people.

And finally, I would say that the progress that we have made and will make in the future, not only was possible and will be possible because of the support of our people, it is possible and will be possible because of the initiative taken by the leaders of both countries.

And all of us who have had the opportunity to meet with you and members of your government have valued the personal relations and the personal friendship that has been established by these meetings. And whatever our differences, we must recognize they could never be solved unless we met as friends.

And so, tonight, in proposing the health of the General Secretary, the President, President Podgorny, Prime Minister Kosygin, and to all of our Soviet guests, I do so in the spirit of friendship that has developed over these past 2 years.

We raise our glasses to you because of your official capacities, but more important, we raise our glasses to you because we are friends and because we know that that friendship and that personal relationship that we have at all levels will continue toward the lasting peace that the peoples of both of our countries want so much.

And so, to the health of General Secretary Brezhnev and all of our other distinguished Soviet guests, to friendship between the Soviet people and the American people, and to peace for all peoples which that friendship can help create, I ask all of you to rise and raise your glasses.

GENERAL SECRETARY BREZHNEV. Esteemed Mr. President, esteemed Mrs. Nixon, ladies and gentlemen, comrades:

First of all, I would like to thank you, Mr. President, for your friendly words and wishes addressed to our country and its people. The Soviet people, on their part, entertain feelings of respect and friendship for the American people. We are sure that these mutual good feelings will grow and strengthen as the relations between our countries develop further along the road of peace and cooperation.

Your visit, Mr. President, as well as our talks, are drawing to a close. You and we already have every reason to say that the results of this meeting, like the outcome of the two previous ones, can be described as constructive and weighty. I am referring first of all to the new steps in a field which may rightfully be called central in Soviet-American relations, the field of lessening the risk of war and restraining the arms race.

The signing of several important agreements and of the joint communique on the talks between the leaders of the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A. is still to come. Without anticipating the concrete content of those documents, I should just like to stress that agreement on such matters as a new considerable limitation of the antiballistic missile system of the two countries, the agreed limitation of underground nuclear tests, new efforts aimed at the further limitation of strategic offensive arms, and several other measures all mean a substantial advance along the jointly charted path of consolidating peace and mutual confidence.

This complex could perhaps have been still broader but what has been agreed upon this time tangibly strengthens and deepens the relaxation of international tension and serves the cause of peace throughout the world.

A further progressive development of Soviet-American relations is also betokened by the agreements on expanding commercial and economic and scientific and technological cooperation between the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A. signed during our meetings.

Ahead lie new horizons and new spheres of cooperation to the benefit of both our great peoples and of peace-loving people in the entire world. In large scale economic projects and in the development of new sources of energy, on transportation lines, in scientists' laboratories and in architects' designing rooms, everywhere new shoots of a fruitful mutually beneficial cooperation between our countries will spring forth in the name of peace and a better life for man.

I trust you will agree with me, Mr. President, that these days have once more convincingly proved the significance that meetings at the highest level have for the development of Soviet-American relations in a good constructive direction. They facilitate the possibility of approaching on a broader basis and with due account of the historical perspective and the lasting interests of the peoples, the solution of many problems, including the most difficult and complicated ones, and they give an impetus to all the links of state machinery and to the representatives of both sides at different levels.

In this connection, I feel we should express our gratitude to all the officials of our diplomatic, foreign trade, and other departments, agencies and organizations who on the instructions of their superiors took part in the great and painstaking work to prepare this meeting and the appropriate agreements.

I would like to say a few words more about our talks on international problems. As during our previous meetings with President Nixon, they were thorough, quite frank and useful. Given all the differences of views and positions of our two countries on a number of specific questions, both the Soviet and, evidently, the American participants in the talks have treated and continue to treat as a matter of paramount importance joint or parallel efforts by the Soviet Union and the United States to strengthen universal peace and create conditions for the peaceful cooperation of all states in the spirit of the well-known principles of peaceful coexistence and the provisions of the United Nations Charter.

The last 2 years have already shown the useful influence that the improvement of Soviet-American relations may have in this sense. It has certainly played a positive role in ending the war in Vietnam and in creating conditions for certain progress towards a peaceful settlement in the Middle East and in convening the European conference.

Now, the task, as we see it, is successfully to complete what has been started and to ensure that the development of Soviet-American relations continues to be beneficial for universal peace and for the security of nations.

I feel it will be no exaggeration to say that the political results of our talks will be a new confirmation of the determination of both sides to go on developing and deepening ties and cooperation between our two countries in many fields and to act on the international scene in favor of détente and peace.

This is exactly what we expected from the talks, and that is why we express our satisfaction with their results.

We appreciate the contribution that you have made, Mr. President, to the achievement of these results, and we wish you and the entire Administration and the Congress of the United States every success in giving effect to the good initiatives of peace, growing mutual confidence, and useful cooperation embodied in the documents signed in the days of this meeting, as well as in those Soviet-American documents that were signed last year and the year before last.

You may rest assured that the leadership of the Soviet Union, fully supported by the entire Soviet people, will do all in their power in this direction. We are glad, Mr. President, that Mrs. Nixon and you have returned from your trip to the Crimea and to Byelorussia with good impressions.

For my part, I want to say that I remember with gratification my stay in the United States last summer, and I thank you, Mr. President, for the invitation to pay a new visit to the United States next year.

Availing myself of this occasion, I wish to congratulate you, Mr. President, on the coming national day of the United States, Independence Day, and to wish the American people peace, happiness, and well-being.

I propose a toast to the health of the President of the United States of America, Richard Nixon, and Mrs. Nixon, to the further development of relations of friendship and cooperation between the Soviet and American peoples, to a lasting peace between all people.

NOTE: The President spoke at 9:24 p.m. at Spaso House, the American Ambassador's residence in Moscow, U.S.S.R. General Secretary Brezhnev spoke in Russian, and his remarks were translated by an interpreter.

As printed above, this item follows the text of the White House press release.

Limitation of Anti-Ballistic Missile Systems

Protocol to the Treaty Between the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics on the Limitation of Anti-Ballistic Missile Systems.
July 3, 1974

The United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, hereinafter referred to as the Parties,

Proceeding from the Basic Principles of Relations between the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics signed on May 29, 1972,

Desiring to further the objectives of the Treaty between the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics on the Limitation of Anti-Ballistic Missile Systems signed on May 26, 1972, hereinafter referred to as the Treaty, Reaffirming their conviction that the adoption of further measures for the limitation of strategic arms would contribute to strengthening international peace and security.

Proceeding from the premise that further limitation of anti-ballistic missile systems will create more favorable conditions for the completion of work on a permanent agreement on more complete measures for the limitation of strategic offensive arms,

Have agreed as follows:

ARTICLE I

1. Each Party shall be limited at any one time to a single area out of the two provided in Article III of the Treaty for deployment of anti-ballistic missile (ABM) systems or their components and accordingly shall not exercise its right to deploy an ABM system or its components in the second of the two ABM system deployment areas permitted by Article III of the Treaty, except as an exchange of one permitted area for the other in accordance with Article II of this Protocol.

2. Accordingly, except as permitted by Article II of this Protocol: the United States of America shall not deploy an ABM system or its components in the area centered on its capital, as permitted by Article III(a) of the Treaty, and the Soviet Union shall not deploy an ABM system or its components in the deployment area of inter-continental ballistic missile (ICBM) silo launchers permitted by Article III(b) of the Treaty.

ARTICLE II

1. Each Party shall have the right to dismantle or destroy its ABM system and the components thereof in the area where they are presently deployed and to deploy an

ABM system or its components in the alternative area permitted by Article III of the Treaty, provided that prior to initiation of construction, notification is given in accord with the procedure agreed to by the Standing Consultative Commission, during the year beginning October 3, 1977, and ending October 2, 1978, or during any year which commences at five year intervals thereafter, those being the years for periodic review of the Treaty, as provided in Article XIV of the Treaty. This right may be exercised only once.

2. Accordingly, in the event of such notice, the United States would have the right to dismantle or destroy the ABM system and its components in the deployment area of ICBM silo launchers and to deploy an ABM system or its components in an area centered on its capital, as permitted by Article III(a) of the Treaty, and the Soviet Union would have the right to dismantle or destroy the ABM system and its components in the area centered on its capital and to deploy an ABM system or its components in an area containing ICBM silo launchers, as permitted by Article III(b) of the Treaty.

3. Dismantling or destruction and deployment of ABM systems or their components and the notification thereof shall be carried out in accordance with Article VIII of the ABM Treaty and procedures agreed to in the Standing Consultative Commission.

ARTICLE III

The rights and obligations established by the Treaty remain in force and shall be complied with by the Parties except to the extent modified by this Protocol. In particular, the deployment of an ABM system or its components within the area selected shall remain limited by the levels and other requirements established by the Treaty.

ARTICLE IV

This Protocol shall be subject to ratification in accordance with the constitutional procedures of each Party. It shall enter into force on the day of the exchange of instruments of ratification and shall thereafter be considered an integral part of the Treaty.

DONE at Moscow on July 3, 1974, in duplicate, in the English and Russian languages, both texts being equally authentic.

FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

RICHARD NIXON

President of the United States of America

FOR THE UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS:

L. I. BREZHNEV

General Secretary of the Central
Committee of the CPSU

NOTE: The protocol was signed at a ceremony in St. Vladimir Hall of the Grand Kremlin Palace on Wednesday, July 3, 1974.

Limitation of Underground Nuclear Weapons Tests

Treaty Between the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics on the Limitation of Underground Nuclear Weapons Tests. July 3, 1974

The United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, hereinafter referred to as the Parties,

Declaring their intention to achieve at the earliest possible date the cessation of the nuclear arms race and to take effective measures toward reductions in strategic arms, nuclear disarmament, and general and complete disarmament under strict and effective international control,

Recalling the determination expressed by the Parties to the 1963 Treaty Banning Nuclear Weapon Tests in the Atmosphere, in Outer Space and Under Water in its Preamble to seek to achieve the discontinuance of all test explosions of nuclear weapons for all time, and to continue negotiations to this end,

Noting that the adoption of measures for the further limitation of underground nuclear weapon tests would contribute to the achievement of these objectives and would meet the interests of strengthening peace and the further relaxation of international tension,

Reaffirming their adherence to the objectives and principles of the Treaty Banning Nuclear Weapon Tests in the Atmosphere, in Outer Space and Under Water and of the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons,

Have agreed as follows:

ARTICLE I

1. Each Party undertakes to prohibit, to prevent, and not to carry out any underground nuclear weapon test having a yield exceeding 150 kilotons at any place under its jurisdiction or control, beginning March 31, 1976.

2. Each Party shall limit the number of its underground nuclear weapon tests to a minimum.

3. The Parties shall continue their negotiations with a view toward achieving a solution to the problem of the cessation of all underground nuclear weapon tests.

ARTICLE II

1. For the purpose of providing assurance of compliance with the provisions of this Treaty, each Party shall use national technical means of verification at its disposal in a manner consistent with the generally recognized principles of international law.

2. Each Party undertakes not to interfere with the national technical means of verification of the other Party operating in accordance with paragraph 1 of this Article.

3. To promote the objectives and implementation of the provisions of this Treaty the Parties shall, as necessary, consult with each other, make inquiries and furnish information in response to such inquiries.

ARTICLE III

The provisions of this Treaty do not extend to underground nuclear explosions carried out by the Parties for peaceful purposes. Underground nuclear explosions for peaceful purposes shall be governed by an agreement which is to be negotiated and concluded by the Parties at the earliest possible time.

ARTICLE IV

This Treaty shall be subject to ratification in accordance with the constitutional procedures of each Party. This Treaty shall enter into force on the day of the exchange of instruments of ratification.

ARTICLE V

1. This Treaty shall remain in force for a period of five years. Unless replaced earlier by an agreement in implementation of the objectives specified in paragraph 3 of Article I of this Treaty, it shall be extended for successive five-year periods unless either Party notifies the other of its termination no later than six months prior to the expiration of the Treaty. Before the expiration of this period the Parties may, as necessary, hold consultations to consider the situation relevant to the substance of this Treaty and to introduce possible amendments to the text of the Treaty.

2. Each Party shall, in exercising its national sovereignty, have the right to withdraw from this Treaty if it decides that extraordinary events related to the subject matter of this Treaty have jeopardized its supreme interests. It shall give notice of its decision to the other Party six months prior to withdrawal from this Treaty. Such notice shall include a statement of the extraordinary events the notifying Party regards as having jeopardized its supreme interests.

3. This Treaty shall be registered pursuant to Article 102 of the Charter of the United Nations.

DONE at Moscow on July 3, 1974, in duplicate, in the English and Russian languages, both texts being equally authentic.

FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

RICHARD NIXON

The President of the United States of America

FOR THE UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS:

L. I. BREZHNEV

General Secretary of the Central Committee of the CPSU

PROTOCOL TO THE TREATY BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AND THE UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS ON THE LIMITATION OF UNDERGROUND NUCLEAR WEAPON TESTS

The United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, hereinafter referred to as the Parties, Having agreed to limit underground nuclear weapon tests,

Have agreed as follows:

1. For the Purpose of ensuring verification of compliance with the obligations of the Parties under the Treaty by national technical means, the Parties shall on the basis of reciprocity, exchange the following data:

a. The geographic coordinates of the boundaries of each test site and of the boundaries of the geophysically distinct testing areas therein.

b. Information on the geology of the testing areas of the sites (the rock characteristics of geological formations and the basic physical properties of the rock, i.e., density, seismic velocity, water saturation, porosity and depth of water table).

c. The geographic coordinates of underground nuclear weapon tests, after they have been conducted.

d. Yield, date, time, depth and coordinates for two nuclear weapons tests for calibration purposes from each geophysically distinct testing area where underground nuclear weapon tests have been and are to be conducted. In this connection the yield of such explosions for calibration purposes should be as near as possible to the limit defined in Article I of the Treaty and not less than one-tenth of that limit. In the case of testing areas where data are not available on two tests for calibration purposes, the data pertaining to one such test shall be exchanged, if available, and the data pertaining to the second test shall be exchanged as soon as possible after a second test having a yield in the above-mentioned range. The provisions of this Protocol shall not require the Parties to conduct tests solely for calibration purposes.

2. The Parties agree that the exchange of data pursuant to subparagraphs a, b, and d of paragraph 1 shall be carried out simultaneously with the exchange of instruments of ratification of the Treaty, as provided in Article IV of the Treaty, having in mind that the Parties shall, on the basis of reciprocity, afford each other the opportunity to familiarize themselves with these data before the exchange of instruments of ratification.

3. Should a Party specify a new test site or testing area after the entry into force of the Treaty, the data called for by subparagraphs a and b of paragraph 1 shall be transmitted to the other Party in advance of use of that site or area. The data called for by subparagraph d of paragraph 1 shall also be transmitted in advance of use of that site or area if they are available; if they are not available, they shall be transmitted as soon as possible after they have been obtained by the transmitting Party.

4. The Parties agree that the test sites of each Party shall be located at places under its jurisdiction or control and that all nuclear weapon tests shall be conducted solely within the testing areas specified in accordance with paragraph 1.

5. For the purposes of the Treaty, all underground nuclear explosions at the specified test sites shall be considered nuclear weapon tests and shall be subject to all the provisions of the Treaty relating to nuclear weapon tests. The provisions of Article III of the Treaty apply to all underground nuclear explosions conducted outside of the specified test sites, and only to such explosions.

This Protocol shall be considered an integral part of the Treaty.

DONE at Moscow on July 3, 1974.

FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

RICHARD NIXON

The President of the United States of America

FOR THE UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS:

L. I. BREZHNEV

General Secretary of the Central Committee of the CPSU

NOTE: The treaty and protocol were signed at a ceremony in St. Vladimir Hall of the Grand Kremlin Palace on Wednesday, July 3, 1974.

Dangers of Environmental Warfare

U.S.-U.S.S.R. Joint Statement Concerning Future Discussions on the Dangers of Environmental Warfare. July 3, 1974

The United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics:

Desiring to limit the potential danger to mankind from possible new means of warfare;

Taking into consideration that scientific and technical advances in environmental fields, including climate modification, may open possibilities for using environmental modification techniques for military purposes;

Recognizing that such use could have widespread, long-lasting, and severe effects harmful to human welfare;

Recognizing also that proper utilization of scientific and technical advances could improve the inter-relationship of man and nature;

1. Advocate the most effective measures possible to overcome the dangers of the use of environmental modification techniques for military purposes.

2. Have decided to hold a meeting of United States and Soviet representatives this year for the purpose of exploring this problem.

3. Have decided to discuss also what steps might be taken to bring about the measures referred to in paragraph 1.

Moscow, July 3, 1974

FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

RICHARD NIXON

The President of the United States of America

FOR THE UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS:

L. I. BREZHNEV

General Secretary of the Central Committee of the CPSU

NOTE: The joint statement was signed at a ceremony in St. Vladimir Hall of the Grand Kremlin Palace on Wednesday, July 3, 1974.

JOINT COMMUNIQUE

Text of the Joint United States-Soviet Communiqué Issued at the Conclusion of the President's Visit. July 3, 1974

In accordance with the agreement to hold regular US-Soviet meetings at the highest level and at the invitation, extended during the visit of General Secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union L. I. Brezhnev to the USA in June 1973, the President of the United States of America and Mrs. Richard Nixon paid an official visit to the Soviet Union from June 27 to July 3, 1974.

During his stay President Nixon visited, in addition to Moscow, Minsk and the Southern Coast of the Crimea.

The President of the United States and the Soviet leaders held a thorough and useful exchange of views on major aspects of relations between the USA and USSR and on the present international situation.

On the Soviet side the talks were conducted by L. I. Brezhnev, General Secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union; N. V. Podgorny, Chairman of the Presidium of the USSR Supreme Soviet; A. N. Kosygin, Chairman of the USSR Council of Ministers; and A. A. Gromyko, Minister of Foreign Affairs of the USSR.

Accompanying the President of the USA and participating in the talks was Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, US Secretary of State and Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs.

Also taking part in the talks were:

On the American Side: Walter J. Stoessel, Jr., American Ambassador to the USSR; General Alexander M. Haig, Jr., Assistant to the President; Mr. Ronald L. Ziegler, Assistant to the President and Press Secretary; Major General Brent Scowcroft, Deputy Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs; Mr. Helmut Sonnenfeldt, Counselor of the Department of State; and Mr. Arthur A. Hartman, Assistant Secretary of State for European Affairs.

On the Soviet Side: A. F. Dobrynin, Soviet Ambassador to the USA; A. M. Aleksandrov, Assistant to the General Secretary of the Central Committee, CPSU; L. M. Zamyatin, Director General of TASS; and G. M. Korniyenko, Member of the Collegium of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the USSR.

The talks were held in a most businesslike and constructive atmosphere and were marked by a mutual desire of both Sides to continue to strengthen understanding, confidence and peaceful cooperation between them and to contribute to the strengthening of international security and world peace.

I. PROGRESS IN IMPROVING US-SOVIET RELATIONS

Having considered in detail the development of relations between the USA and the USSR since the US-Soviet summit meeting in May 1972, both Sides noted with satisfaction that through their vigorous joint efforts they have brought about over this short period a fundamental turn toward peaceful relations and broad, mutually beneficial cooperation in the interests of the peoples of both countries and of all mankind.

They emphasized the special importance for the favorable development of relations between the USA and the USSR of meetings of their leaders at the highest level, which are becoming established practice. These meetings provide opportunities for effective and responsible discussion, for the solution of fundamental and important bilateral questions, and for mutual contributions to the settlement of international problems affecting the interests of both countries.

Both Sides welcome the establishment of official contacts between the Congress of the US and the Supreme Soviet of the USSR. They will encourage a further development of such contacts, believing that they can play an important role.

Both Sides confirmed their mutual determination to continue actively to reshape US-Soviet relations on the basis of peaceful coexistence and equal security, in strict conformity with the spirit and the letter of the agreements achieved between the two countries and their obligations under those agreements. In this connection they noted once again the fundamental importance of the joint documents adopted as a result of the summit meetings in 1972 and 1973, especially of the Basic Principles of Relations Between the USA and the USSR, the Agreement on the Prevention of Nuclear War, the Treaty on the Limitation of Anti-Ballistic Missile Systems, and the Interim Agreement on Certain Measures with Respect to the Limitation of Strategic Offensive Arms.

Both Sides are deeply convinced of the imperative necessity of making the process of improving US-Soviet relations irreversible. They believe that, as a result of their efforts, a real possibility has been created to achieve this goal. This will open new vistas for broad mutually beneficial cooperation, and for strengthening friendship between the American and Soviet peoples, and will thus contribute to the solution of many urgent problems facing the world.

Guided by these worthy goals, both Sides decided to continue steadfastly to apply their joint efforts—in cooperation with other countries concerned, as appropriate—first of all in such important fields as:

- removing the danger of war, including particularly war involving nuclear and other mass-destruction weapons;

- limiting and eventually ending the arms race especially in strategic weapons, having in mind as the ultimate objective the achievement of general and complete disarmament under appropriate international control;

- contributing to the elimination of sources of international tension and military conflict;

- strengthening and extending the process of relaxation of tensions throughout the world;

- developing broad, mutually beneficial cooperation in commercial and economic, scientific-technical and cultural fields on the basis of the principles of sovereignty, equality and noninterference in internal affairs with a view to promoting increased understanding and confidence between the peoples of both countries.

Accordingly, in the course of this summit meeting both Sides considered it possible to take new constructive steps which, they believe, will not only advance further the development of US-Soviet relations but will also make a substantial contribution to strengthening world peace and expanding international cooperation.

II. FURTHER LIMITATION OF STRATEGIC ARMS AND OTHER DISARMAMENT ISSUES

Both sides again carefully analyzed the entire range of their mutual relations connected with the prevention of nuclear war and limitation of strategic armaments. They arrived at the common view that the fundamental agreements concluded between them in this sphere continue to be effective instruments of the general improvement of US-Soviet relations and the international situation as a whole. The USA and the USSR will continue strictly to fulfill the obligations undertaken in those agreements.

In the course of the talks, the two Sides had a thorough review of all aspects of the problem of limitation of strategic arms. They concluded that the Interim Agreement on offensive strategic weapons should be followed by a new agreement between the Soviet Union and the United States on the limitation of strategic arms. They agreed that such an agreement should cover the period until 1985 and deal with both quantitative and qualitative limitations. They agreed that such an agreement should be completed at the earliest possible date, before the expiration of the Interim Agreement.

They hold the common view that such a new agreement would serve not only the interests of the Soviet Union and the United States but also those of a further relaxation of international tensions and of world peace.

Their delegations will reconvene in Geneva in the immediate future on the basis of instructions growing out of the summit.

Taking into consideration the interrelationship between the development of offensive and defensive types of strategic arms and noting the successful implementation of the Treaty on the Limitation of Anti-Ballistic Missile Systems concluded between them in May 1972, both Sides considered it desirable to adopt additional limitations on the deployment of such systems. To that end they concluded a Protocol providing for the limitation of each Side to a single deployment area for ABM systems instead of two such areas as permitted to each Side by the Treaty.

At the same time, two protocols were signed entitled "Procedures Governing Replacement, Dismantling or Destruction and Notification Thereof, for Strategic Offensive Arms" and "Procedures Governing Replacement, Dismantling or Destruction, and Notification Thereof for ABM Systems and their Components." These protocols were worked out by the Standing Consultative Commission which was established to promote the objectives and implementation of the provisions of the Treaty and the Interim Agreement signed on May 26, 1972.

The two Sides emphasized the serious importance which the US and USSR also attach to the realization of other possible measures—both on a bilateral and on a multilateral basis—in the field of arms limitation and disarmament.

Having noted the historic significance of the Treaty Banning Nuclear Weapon Tests in the Atmosphere, in Outer Space and Under Water, concluded in Moscow in 1963, to which the United States and the Soviet Union are parties, both Sides expressed themselves in favor of making the cessation of nuclear weapon tests comprehensive. Desiring to contribute to the achievement of this goal the USA and the USSR concluded, as an important step in this direction, the Treaty on the Limitation of Underground Nuclear Weapon Tests providing for the complete cessation, starting from March 31, 1976, of the tests of such weapons above an appropriate yield threshold, and for confining other underground tests to a minimum.

The Parties emphasized the fundamental importance of the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons. Having reaffirmed their mutual intention to observe the obligations assumed by them under that Treaty, including Article VI thereof, they expressed themselves in favor of increasing its effectiveness.

A joint statement was also signed in which the US and USSR advocate the most effective measures possible to overcome the dangers of the use of environmental modification techniques for military purposes.

Both Sides reaffirmed their interest in an effective international agreement which would exclude from the arsenals of states such dangerous instruments of mass destruction as chemical weapons. Desiring to contribute to early progress in this direction, the USA and the USSR agreed to consider a joint initiative in the Conference of the Committee on Disarmament with respect to the conclusion, as a first step, of an international Convention dealing with the most dangerous, lethal means of chemical warfare.

Both Sides are convinced that the new important steps which they have taken and intend to take in the field of arms limitation as well as further efforts toward disarmament will facilitate the relaxation of international tensions and constitute a tangible contribution to the fulfillment of the historic task of excluding war from the life of human society and thereby of ensuring world peace. The US and the USSR reaffirmed that a world disarmament conference at an appropriate time can play a positive role in this process.

III. PROGRESS IN THE SETTLEMENT OF INTERNATIONAL PROBLEMS

In the course of the meeting detailed discussions were held on major international problems.

Both Sides expressed satisfaction that relaxation of tensions, consolidation of peace, and development of mutually beneficial cooperation are becoming increasingly distinct characteristics of the development of the international situation. They proceed from the assumption that progress in improving the international situation does not occur spontaneously but requires active and purposeful efforts to overcome obstacles and resolve difficulties that remain from the past.

The paramount objectives of all states and peoples should be to ensure, individually and collectively, lasting security in all parts of the world, the early and complete removal of existing international conflicts and sources of tension and the prevention of new ones from arising.

The United States and the Soviet Union are in favor of the broad and fruitful economic cooperation among all states, large and small, on the basis of full equality and mutual benefit.

The United States and the Soviet Union reaffirm their determination to contribute separately and jointly to the achievement of all these tasks.

Europe

Having discussed the development of the situation in Europe since the last American-Soviet summit meeting, both Sides noted with profound satisfaction the further appreciable advances toward establishing dependable relations of peace, good neighborliness and cooperation on the European continent.

Both Sides welcome the major contribution which the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe is making to this beneficial process. They consider that substantial progress has already been achieved at the Conference on many significant questions. They believe that this progress indicates that the present stage of the Conference will produce agreed documents of great international significance expressing the determination of the participating states to build their mutual relations on a solid jointly elaborated basis. The US and USSR will make every effort, in cooperation with the other participants, to find solutions acceptable to all for the remaining problems.

Both Sides expressed their conviction that successful completion of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe would be an outstanding event in the interests of establishing a lasting peace. Proceeding from this assumption the USA and the USSR expressed themselves in favor of the final stage of the Conference taking place at an early date. Both Sides also proceed from the assumption that the results of the negotiations will permit the Conference to be concluded at the highest level, which would correspond to the historic significance of the Conference for the future of Europe and lend greater authority to the importance of the Conference's decisions.

Both Sides reaffirmed the lasting significance for a favorable development of the situation in Europe of the treaties and agreements concluded in recent years between European states with different social systems.

They expressed satisfaction with the admission to the United Nations of the Federal Republic of Germany and the German Democratic Republic.

Both Sides also stressed that the Quadripartite Agreement of September 3, 1971, must continue to play a key role in ensuring stability and detente in Europe. The US and USSR consider that the strict and consistent implementation of this Agreement by all parties concerned is an essential condition for the maintenance and strengthening of mutual confidence and stability in the center of Europe.

The USA and the USSR believe that, in order to strengthen stability and security in Europe, the relaxation of political tension on this continent should be accompanied by measures to reduce military tensions.

They therefore attach importance to the current negotiations on the mutual reduction of forces and armaments and associated measures in Central Europe, in which they are participating. The two Sides expressed the hope that these negotiations will result in concrete decisions ensuring the undiminished security of any of the parties and preventing unilateral military advantage.

Middle East

Both Sides believe that the removal of the danger of war and tension in the Middle East is a task of paramount importance and urgency, and therefore, the only alternative is the achievement, on the basis of UN Security Council Resolution 338, of a just and lasting peace settlement in which should be taken into account the legitimate interests of all peoples in the Middle East, including the Palestinian people, and the right to existence of all states in the area.

As Co-Chairmen of the Geneva Peace Conference on the Middle East, the USA and the USSR consider it important that the Conference resume its work as soon as possible, with the question of other participants from the Middle East area to be discussed at the Conference. Both Sides see the main purpose of the Geneva Peace Conference, the achievement of which they will promote in every way, as the establishment of just and stable peace in the Middle East.

They agreed that the USA and the USSR will continue to remain in close touch with a view to coordinating the efforts of both countries toward a peaceful settlement in the Middle East.

Indochina

Both Sides noted certain further improvements in the situation in Indochina. In the course of the exchange of views on the situation in Vietnam both Sides emphasized that peace and stability in the region can be preserved and strengthened only on the basis of strict observance by all parties concerned of the provisions of the Paris Agreement of January 27, 1973, and the Act of the International Conference on Vietnam of March 2, 1973.

As regards Laos, they noted progress in the normalization of the situation as a result of the formation there of coalition governmental bodies. Both Sides also pronounced themselves in favor of strict fulfillment of the pertinent agreements.

Both Sides also stressed the need for an early and just settlement of the problem of Cambodia based on respect for the sovereign rights of the Cambodian people to a free and independent development without any outside interference.

Strengthening the Role of the United Nations

The United States of America and the Soviet Union attach great importance to the United Nations as an instrument for maintaining peace and security and the expansion of international cooperation. They reiterate their intention to continue their efforts toward increasing the effectiveness of the United Nations in every possible way, including in regard to peacekeeping, on the basis of strict observance of the United Nations Charter.

IV. COMMERCIAL AND ECONOMIC RELATIONS

In the course of the meeting great attention was devoted to a review of the status of and prospects for relations between the USA and the USSR in the commercial and economic field.

Both Sides reaffirmed that they regard the broadening and deepening of mutually advantageous ties in this field on the basis of equality and nondiscrimination as an important part of the foundation on which the entire structure of US-Soviet relations is built. An increase in the scale of commercial and economic ties corresponding to the potentials of both countries will cement this foundation and benefit the American and Soviet peoples.

The two Sides noted with satisfaction that since the previous summit meeting US-Soviet commercial and economic relations have on the whole shown an upward trend. This was expressed, in particular, in a substantial growth of the exchange of goods between the two countries which approximated $1.5 billion in 1973. It was noted that prospects were favorable for surpassing the goal announced in the joint US-USSR communique of June 24, 1973, of achieving a total bilateral trade turnover of $2.3 billion during the three-year period 1973-1975. The Joint US-USSR Commercial Commission continues to provide an effective mechanism to promote the broad-scale growth of economic relations.

The two Sides noted certain progress in the development of long-term cooperation between American firms and Soviet organizations in carrying out large-scale projects including those on a compensation basis. They are convinced that such cooperation is an important element in the development of commercial and economic ties between the two countries. The two Sides agreed to encourage the conclusion and implementation of appropriate agreements between American and Soviet organizations and firms. Taking into account the progress made in a number of specific projects, such as those concerning truck manufacture, the trade center, and chemical fertilizers, the Sides noted the possibility of concluding appropriate contracts in other areas of mutual interest, such as pulp and paper, timber, ferrous and non-ferrous metallurgy, natural gas, the engineering industry, and the extraction and processing of high energy-consuming minerals.

Both Sides noted further development of productive contacts and ties between business circles of the two countries in which a positive role was played by the decisions taken during the previous summit meeting on the opening of a United States commercial office in Moscow and a USSR trade representation in Washington as well as the establishment of a US-Soviet Commercial and Economic Council. They expressed their desire to continue to bring about favorable conditions for the successful development of commercial and economic relations between the USA and the USSR.

Both Sides confirmed their interest in bringing into force at the earliest possible time the US-Soviet trade agreement of October 1972.

Desirous of promoting the further expansion of economic relations between the two countries, the two Sides signed a Long-Term Agreement to Facilitate Economic, Industrial and Technical Cooperation between the USA and the USSR. They believe that a consistent implementation of the cooperation embodied in the Agreement over the ten-year period will be an important factor in strengthening bilateral relations in general and will benefit the peoples of both countries.

Having reviewed the progress in carrying out the Agreement Regarding Certain Maritime Matters concluded in October 1972 for a period of three years, and based on the experience accumulated thus far, the two Sides expressed themselves in favor of concluding before its expiration a new agreement in this field. Negotiations concerning such an agreement will commence this year.

V. PROGRESS IN OTHER FIELDS OF BILATERAL RELATIONS

Having reviewed the progress in the implementation of the cooperative agreements concluded in 1972-1973, both Sides noted the useful work done by joint American-Soviet committees and working groups established under those agreements in developing regular contacts and cooperation between scientific and technical organizations, scientists, specialists and cultural personnel of both countries.

The two Sides note with satisfaction that joint efforts by the USA and USSR in such fields of cooperation as medical science and public health, protection and improvement of man's environment, science and technology, exploration of outer space and the world ocean, peaceful uses of atomic energy, agriculture and transportation create conditions for an accelerated solution of some urgent and complicated problems facing mankind.

Such cooperation makes a substantial contribution to the development of the structure of American-Soviet relations, giving it a more concrete positive content.

Both Sides will strive to broaden and deepen their cooperation in science and technology as well as cultural exchanges on the basis of agreements concluded between them.

On the basis of positive experience accumulated in their scientific and technological cooperation and guided by the desire to ensure further progress in this important sphere of their mutual relations, the two Sides decided to extend such cooperation to the following new areas.

Energy

Taking into consideration the growing energy needs of industry, transportation and other branches of the economies of both countries and the consequent need to intensify scientific and technical cooperation in the development of optimal methods of utilizing traditional and new sources of energy, and to improve the understanding of the energy programs and problems of both countries, the two Sides concluded an agreement on cooperation in the field of energy. Responsibility for the implementation of the Agreement is entrusted to a US-USSR Joint Committee on Cooperation in Energy, which will be established for that purpose.

Housing and Other Construction

The two Sides signed an agreement on cooperation in the field of housing and other construction. The aim of this Agreement is to promote the solution by joint effort of problems related to modern techniques of housing and other construction along such lines as the improvement of the reliability and quality of buildings and building materials, the planning and construction of new towns, construction in seismic areas and areas of extreme climatic conditions. For the implementation of this Agreement there will be established a Joint US-USSR Committee on Cooperation in Housing and Other Construction which will determine specific working programs.

For the purpose of enhancing the safety of their peoples living in earthquake-prone areas, the two Sides agreed to undertake on a priority basis a joint research project to increase the safety of buildings and other structures in these areas and, in particular, to study the behavior of pre-fabricated residential structures during earthquakes.

Artificial Heart Research

In the course of the implementation of joint programs in the field of medical science and public health, scientists and specialists of both countries concluded that there is a need to concentrate their efforts on the solution of one of the most important and humane problems of modern medical science, development of an artificial heart. In view of the great theoretical and technical complexity of the work involved, the two Sides concluded a special agreement on the subject. The US-USSR Joint Committee for Health Cooperation will assume responsibility for this project.

Cooperation in Space

The two Sides expressed their satisfaction with the successful preparations for the first joint manned flight of the American and Soviet spacecraft, Apollo and Soyuz, which is scheduled for 1975 and envisages their docking and mutual visits of the astronauts in each other's spacecraft. In accordance with existing agreements fruitful cooperation is being carried out in a number of other fields related to the exploration of outer space.

Attaching great importance to further American-Soviet cooperation in the exploration and use of outer space for peaceful purposes, including the development of safety systems for manned flights in space, and considering the desirability of consolidating experience in this field, the two Sides agreed to continue to explore possibilities for further joint space projects following the US-USSR space flight now scheduled for July 1975.

Transport of the Future

Aware of the importance of developing advanced modes of transportation, both Sides agreed that high-speed ground systems of the future, including a magnetically levitated train, which can provide economical, efficient, and reliable forms of transportation, would be a desirable and innovative area for joint activity. A working group to develop a joint research cooperation program in this area under the 1973 Agreement on Cooperation in the Field of Transportation will be established at the Fall meeting of the Joint US-USSR Transportation Committee.

Environmental Protection

Desiring to expand cooperation in the field of environmental protection, which is being successfully carried out under the US-USSR Agreement signed on May 23, 1972, and to contribute to the implementation of the "Man and the Biosphere" international program conducted on the initiative of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), both Sides agreed to designate in the territories of their respective countries certain natural areas as biosphere reserves for protecting valuable plant and animal genetic strains and ecosystems, and for conducting scientific research needed for more effective actions concerned with global environmental protection. Appropriate work for the implementation of this undertaking will be conducted in conformity with the goals of the UNESCO program and under the auspices of the previously established US-USSR Joint Committee on Cooperation in the Field of Environmental Protection.

Cultural Exchanges

The two Parties, aware of the importance of cultural exchanges as a means of promoting mutual understanding, express satisfaction with the agreement between the Metropolitan Museum of Art of New York City and the Ministry of Culture of the USSR leading to a major exchange of works of art. Such an exchange would be in accordance with the General Agreement on Contacts, Exchanges and Cooperation signed July 19, 1973, under which the parties agreed to render assistance for the exchange of exhibitions between the museums of the two countries.

Establishment of New Consulates

Taking into consideration the intensive development of ties between the US and the USSR and the importance of further expanding consular relations on the basis of the US-USSR Consular Convention, and desiring to promote trade, tourism and cooperation between them in various areas, both Sides agreed to open additional Consulates General in two or three cities of each country.

As a first step they agreed in principle to the simultaneous establishment of a United States Consulate General in Kiev and a USSR Consulate General in New York. Negotiations for implementation of this agreement will take place at an early date.

Both Sides highly appreciate the frank and constructive atmosphere and fruitful results of the talks held between them in the course of the present meeting. They are convinced that the results represent a new and important milestone along the road of improving relations between the USA and the USSR to the benefit of the peoples of both countries, and a significant contribution to their efforts aimed at strengthening world peace and security.

Having again noted in this connection the exceptional importance and great practical usefulness of US-Soviet summit meetings, both Sides reaffirmed their agreement to hold such meetings regularly and when considered necessary for the discussion and solution of urgent questions. Both Sides also expressed their readiness to continue their active and close contacts and consultations.

The President extended an invitation to General Secretary of the Central Committee of the CPSU, L. I. Brezhnev, to pay an official visit to the United States in 1975. This invitation was accepted with pleasure.

RICHARD NIXON

President of the United States of America

L. I. BREZHNEV

General Secretary of the Central Committee CPSU

NOTE: The joint communique was signed at a ceremony in St. Vladimir Hall of the Grand Kremlin Palace on Wednesday, July 3, 1974.

United States-Soviet Summit Meeting

Remarks of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger at His News Conference at the Conclusion of the President's Visit to the Soviet Union. July 3, 1974

I thought I would give you a brief summary of the summit as we see it, and I think the best way to start is to look at it in terms of the press conference in which I tried to explain the purposes of the meeting.

I pointed out that there are three fundamental purposes in these summit meetings. One, for the leaders of the Soviet Union and the United States to exchange ideas and to check assessments about international affairs in general. The necessity for this arises because as the two nations capable of destroying humanity, they have a special obligation to prevent conflicts caused by inadvertence, by miscalculation, by misassessment of each other's motives, examples of which history is replete.

The second is to see whether they can, by meeting the needs of their peoples and of mankind, construct a network of positive relationships that will provide an incentive for moderation and for a beneficial and humane conduct of foreign policy.

The second large objective is to prevent the nuclear arms race and the arms race in general from dominating international affairs, and I want to stress again that this objective is no mean goal and one that will occupy American administrations in the absence of comprehensive agreements for as far into the future as we can see.

It is not only the complexity of the weapons and their destructiveness, it is also the justifications that will have to be used in each country to sustain large armament programs that will, over a period of time, present a major obstacle to the humane or even safe conduct of foreign policy.

And the third general goal is to identify those areas of common interests, either produced by the nonmilitary aspects of technology or by others or by the nature of modern life in which the Soviet Union and the United States can cooperate and thereby create a perspective on world affairs that recognizes the interdependence of events and the fact that isolation and confrontation are, over a period of time, inimical to progress and inconsistent with human aspirations.

Now, in terms of these three objectives, a great deal of time was spent by the two leaders in reviewing the international situation, and I will get into details when I go through the various documents.

There were the most extensive discussions at that level of the arms race that have ever taken place and with a frankness that would have been considered inconceivable 2 years ago, indeed with an amount of detail that would have been considered violating intelligence codes in previous periods.

So, on the issue of SALT, for example, on which I will have more to say in a few minutes, the words of the communique, that far-reaching and deep conversations took place, are of very profound significance, and in the next phase of the discussions, difficulties cannot be caused by misapprehensions about each other's general intentions and general perceptions of the nature of the strategic environment.

And thirdly, there were a series of agreements, about most of which you have already been briefed, in the field of cooperative relationships.

Now, let me speak for myself about the two areas of arms control and the general review of the international situation.

With respect to arms control, let me cover first the agreements that have been made and then let me talk about the strategic arms limitations talks.

With respect to the agreements that have been made, there are three. The agreement that neither side will build the second ABM site, the agreement on the limited threshold test ban, and thirdly, the agreement to begin negotiations on environmental warfare.

With respect to the first agreement in which both sides forgo the second ABM site, you remember that the permanent agreement on defensive weapons, signed in Moscow in 1972, permitted each of the two countries to maintain two ABM sites, one to defend its capital, the second to defend an ICBM field, provided that field was no closer than 1,300 kilometers to the capital.

The United States at that time opted for a defense of an ICBM field. The Soviet Union opted for a defense of its capital. There were provisions of the number of interceptors and radars that could be maintained at each site, but there is no point in going through these.

The United States and the Soviet Union have now decided to forgo that second ABM site and to maintain only the one ABM site that each currently has which is Moscow for the Soviet Union and an ICBM field for the United States. However, because it was thought desirable to keep some flexibility with respect to which area could be defended, each side is permitted at one time during the course of the agreement and once in a 5-year period, to alter its original decision.

In other words, if the United States should decide that it would prefer to defend Washington rather than the ICBM site, we have the option once in a 5-year period to move from the ICBM site to Washington and equally the Soviet Union has the option of moving once in that 5-year period from Moscow to an ICBM site.

That option, having once been exercised, cannot be exercised the second time. In other words, countries cannot shuttle their ABM sites back and forth between the capital and an ICBM field. Each side, in short, has the option once to reverse its original decision and it may do so once in any 5-year period when the treaty comes up for automatic review.

The significance of this agreement is that it reenforces the original decision implicit in 1972, in fact, explicit in 1972, that neither side would maintain ABM defenses. It makes it even more difficult, if not impossible, to break out of the agreement rapidly, and, in turn, the decision to forgo ABM defenses has profound strategic consequences which are sometimes lost sight of.

You must remember that the original impetus for the multiple warheads derived from the desire or the necessity to overcome ABM defenses and to make sure that the required number of missiles would get through.

In the absence of ABM defenses, the extraordinary number of foreseeable multiple warheads will create a situation in which such terms as superiority should not be lightly thrown around because they may be devoid of any operational meaning.

The notion of nuclear sufficiency of what is necessary under conditions of no ABM defenses requires careful correlation with the number of available warheads. For present purposes, I want to say that any idea that any country can easily achieve strategic superiority is almost devoid, under these conditions, of any operational significance and can only have a numerical significance.

The ABM agreement reenforces the element of strategic stability that was inherent in the original ABM agreement made in 1972. The second agreement on the threshold test ban prohibits underground nuclear explosions above 150 kilotons and will therefore have the tendency to concentrate that competition in the ranges of the lower yield weapons. The date for its going into effect has been put into the future because a number of additional agreements remain to be worked out.

There remains to have an agreement on the peaceful uses of nuclear explosions in which adequate assurance will be given that they will not be used to circumvent the intention of the agreement, and there is an agreement in principle that the inspection of peaceful nuclear explosion, among other things, will involve prior notification, precise definition of the time and place, and the presence of observers which is a major step forward in our discussions.

The second subject that will require further discussion is the exchange of geological information which is needed for the adequate verification of this threshold test ban.

The third area in which an agreement was reached was to begin discussions on the dangers of environmental warfare from the point of view of overcoming these dangers. This is a form of warfare that is in its infancy, the nature of which is not properly understood and which obviously, by definition, can have profound consequences for the future of mankind.

The United States and the Soviet Union, in the near future, will open discussions on this problem of environmental warfare.

In addition to these three agreements, two protocols will be signed on the Standing Consultative Commission, and we will certainly make diplomatic history because it will be the first time that secret agreements are publicly signed. The agreements are being kept secret at the request of the Soviet Union because they involve dismantling procedures for replacement missiles under the interim agreement and the ABM agreement. However, they will be submitted to the appropriate Congressional committees upon our return to the United States.

Let me say a word about the Standing Consultative Commission. The Standing Consultative Commission was created in the 1972 agreement in order to implement the provisions for replacement or destruction of weapons under the two agreements on defensive and offensive weapons.

There is a protocol for defensive weapons, because the United States will have to dismantle some deployments that have taken place at a site which under the agreement we can no longer maintain and the Soviet Union will have to dismantle 15 ABM launchers and associated radars on their test ranges.

Secondly, there is a protocol for offensive weapons which discusses dismantling and replacement procedure under the provisions of the interim agreement where all land-based missiles can be traded in for modern sea-based missiles and where older submarine-launched nuclear missiles can be traded in for newer submarine-launched sea-based missiles.

These are the two protocols that have been the subject of illuminating exchange that took place just before I left the United States.

It must be understood that it was the assignment from the beginning of the Standing Consultative Commission to work out precise provisions for replacement and dismantling, that for that purpose they had to go into greater technical detail than was the case in the agreement, and that two protocols will be signed, one to implement the defensive provisions, the other to implement the offensive provisions.

They break no new ground, they change no provisions. If I may say so, they close no loopholes, they deal only with the technical implementation of agreements previously reached. They will be submitted to Congressional committees. They are not policy documents. They are technical documents, in implementation of the 1972 agreement, and they are being signed now as a result of work extending over a period of 18 months because it is only now that the replacement provisions are becoming effective due to the fact that the missiles, the ICBM's, did not have to be dismantled until the submarines containing the 741st missile on the Soviet side underwent sea trial.

Now these are the agreements that have been reached.

Now let me say a word about strategic arms limitation talks. As I pointed out prior to our coming here, the Administration considers the problem of strategic arms limitation one of the central issues of our time. It is one of the central issues because if it runs unchecked the number of warheads will reach proportions astronomical compared to the time when Armageddon seemed near, when there were something less than 1,000 warheads on both sides.

It is important because a perception may grow that these warheads will provide a capability which will not be sustained by any systematic analysis, but because in any event they bring about a gap between the perceived first and second strike capabilities which in itself will fuel a constantly accelerating arms race.

Now the problem we face in these discussions is that under the interim agreement the Soviet Union possesses more missiles, though if you add together the total number of launchers, that is to say, strategic bombers, there is no significant gap, and after all, it was not the Soviet Union that made us build bombers, that was our own decision, and therefore, an attempt has been made to establish a correlation between the number of MIRV missiles and the number of launchers in which perhaps to some extent the larger numbers of missiles on one side can be offset by a larger number of MIRV's on the other.

The difficulty with this approach has been the limited time frame within which it was attempted to be implemented so that during the maximum deployment period it would not be clear whether any of these limitations would not simply be to provide a base for a breakout when the agreement lapsed.

Therefore, the two leaders have decided that the principal focus of the discussions would not be on a brief extension of the interim agreement tied to an equally brief MIRV agreement, but to see whether the three factors, time, quantity of launchers, and quantity of warheads cannot be related in a more constructive and stabilizing fashion over a longer period of time, that is to say, by 1985.

And in the context, some of the difficulty of relating the various asymmetries in number can be taken care of and a stability can be perhaps achieved in deployment rates that would remove, to a considerable extent, the insecurities inherent in an unchecked arms race.

As the communique says, the two sides will reconvene their delegations in Geneva on the basis of this approach and on the basis of instructions growing out of the summit meeting.

With respect to the review of the international situation implicit in the communique, I think I will confine myself to a few observations and primarily answer your questions.

The basic purpose of this review was, as I have pointed out, to attempt to avoid miscalculation and where possible, bring about cooperative action.

In Europe, the principal focus were two subjects: the European Security Conference and the mutual balanced force reductions.

With respect to the European Security Conference, the United States repeated its position, which is that we are prepared to have that security conference end at the summit level if the results of the conference warrant it, and that we would believe that such a conference, with adequate results, could make a contribution to European security.

That phrase has been used by Western statesmen now for 2 years, and it will not in itself advance matters until we can define for ourselves what results we constitute justifying a summit conference. We have put that question to our European allies at Ottawa, discussions of it have begun in Brussels, and we hope to be able to have at least a Western answer to this in the relatively near future.

[At this point, the Secretary read the Middle East section of the communique, printed on page 758.]

Finally, the communique lists the area of bilateral relations that have already been covered in previous briefings on which separate agreements were signed. In addition to the ones that have been signed, there will be additional cooperation in space and technology of high-speed transportation and in the area of environmental protection where both sides will create biosphere areas, that is, areas which are kept free of the encroachment of modern technology to use for purposes of comparison with areas in which major environmental problems are posed.

Now, these are the main outlines of the conference and of the agreements that have been signed. They should be seen in the context of what is now and what will remain for the decades ahead, the problem of preserving the peace, namely, that the United States and the Soviet Union make every honorable effort to avoid the catastrophe of war, and every endeavor to improve the lot of humanity, and that for this purpose the regular meeting of their leaders—which the communique points out can be supplemented for special occasions between the yearly intervals that have been set—performs an essential role.

NOTE: Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler introduced Secretary Kissinger at 10:10 a.m. at the Intourist Hotel, Moscow, U.S.S.R. Following his opening remarks, Secretary Kissinger answered reporters' questions. The White House press release also included the question-and-answer session.

REPORT TO THE NATION

The President's Remarks at Loring Air Force Base, Maine, Following His Return From Belgium and the Soviet Union, With Welcoming Remarks by the Vice President. July 3, 1974

THE VICE PRESIDENT. Mr. President, Mrs. Nixon:

It is a very high honor and a very great privilege for me to welcome you home again and to say what better way could the American people celebrate our 198th Fourth of July than with the assurance that you bring our world a little safer and a little saner tonight than it was when you left.

You know, Mr. President, that it was my life-long goal to be Speaker of the House of Representatives until you upset it last October. The great State of Maine has given us two very distinguished Republican Speakers during the 19th century, and I would like to recall something Speaker Tom Reed said almost prophetically here in 1885, and I quote, "The reason why the race of man moves so slowly," Speaker Reed said, "is because it must move all together."

From your first mission to Moscow, Mr. President, in the days that you had the job that I now have, you have seen the global dimension of peace and pursued it with patience, preparation, and performance.

As our President, you have not only demonstrated the truth of Speaker Reed's observation but you have permitted us to see much of mankind moving slowly, but perceptibly, all together in the direction of peace.

Your strategy for peace, Mr. President, has been bold but never rash, courageous but never foolhardy, tough but never rude, gentle but never soft. One by one, from China through Southeast Asia, through the Middle East, through the Soviet Union, through the NATO Alliance, you have emplaced the building blocks of a solid foundation for a better understanding of international relations than we have had in our lifetime and perhaps in the history of our country.

Permit me to say, Mr. President, and say particularly to Mrs. Nixon, who has been your faithful partner throughout literally millions and millions of miles of air travel, and sometimes on her own, that she has charmed and captivated both the officials and the citizens of every country she has visited and surely is entitled to be saluted in her own right again as First Lady of the World.

Mr. President, I wished you Godspeed last week and urged all of our countrymen to pray for you, for your safety and success on this historic mission. My prayers, and those of our fellow countrymen, have been answered many-fold. I cannot escape the conclusion that the Biblical injunction, "Blessed are the peacemakers," has again been confirmed.

Ladies and gentlemen, the President of the United States.

THE PRESIDENT. Mr. Vice President, I want to express appreciation not only on my own behalf but also on Mrs. Nixon's behalf for your very gracious and generous words.

Governor Curtis and Mrs. Curtis and to all of our friends here in Maine, I want to thank you for giving us such a splendid welcome as we return.

I know that as I see cars parked what a real effort it is to come out to an air base. It took a lot of time, and we appreciate that effort, and we thank you very much.

To each and every one of you, and to perhaps millions who are listening on television and radio, I can assure you of one thing, and that is, it is always good to come home to America. That is particularly so when one comes home from a journey that has advanced the cause of peace in the world.

We left Moscow earlier today, and as we did there were hundreds of United States and Soviet flags flying side by side, and I thought of the fact that tomorrow millions of Americans will be flying the flag from their homes on the Fourth of July. And you will be flying those flags proudly because of what it means in your own lives and in our lives and also because of what our flag means in the world. We can be very proud of the American flag all over the world today.

I thought also of how much more that flag means to the world because of the role the United States has been playing in building a structure of peace from which all nations can benefit, a role which was symbolized so dramatically by those flags flying side by side in the Soviet Union.

Our generation, which has known so much war and destruction—four wars in this century—now has an opportunity to build for the next generation a structure of peace in which we hope war will have no part whatever.

This is the great task before us, and this is the greatest task in which any people could be summoned. In the past month, Mrs. Nixon and I have traveled over 25,000 miles visiting nine countries in Western Europe and the Middle East, as well as, of course, the Soviet Union. The visit to each of these areas had a separate purpose but in a larger sense all of these visits were directed toward the same purpose, and they are all interacted and interconnected.

Among the nations of the Middle East, among those of the Western Alliance, and between the United States and the Soviet Union, new patterns are emerging, patterns that hold out to the world the brightest hopes in a generation for a just and lasting peace that all of us can enjoy.

In the Middle East a generation of bitter hostility, punctuated by four wars, is now giving way to a new spirit in which both sides are searching earnestly for the keys to a peaceful resolution of their differences.

In the Western Alliance, 25 years after NATO was founded, there has been given a new birth, a new life to that organization as embodied in the Declaration on Atlantic Relations that we signed 7 days ago in Brussels at the NATO heads-of-government meeting before going on to Moscow. In the series of United States-Soviet summits that we began in 1972, we have been charting a new relationship between the world's two most powerful nations, a new relationship which is designed to insure that these two nations will work together in peace rather than to confront each other in an atmosphere of distrust and tension, which could lead, if it were not corrected, to war.

At this year's summit, we advanced further the relationship that we began two years ago in Moscow and that we continued at last year's summit in the United States. In the communique we issued earlier today in Moscow, both sides committed themselves to this goal, the imperative necessity of making the process of improving United States-Soviet relations irreversible.

This sums up what the whole broad pattern of our expanding range of agreements is designed to achieve, to make the improvement not just a one-day headline, not just a one-day sensation, but a continuing, irreversible process that will build its own momentum and will develop into a permanent peace.

At this year's meeting, we reached a number of important agreements both in the field of arms limitation and also in the field of peaceful cooperation. In the field of arms limitation, three of the agreements we reached are of special note. One of those involves the exceedingly difficult question of offensive strategic nuclear arms, and this base, as we know, is involved in that particular kind of operation.

Two years ago we signed an interim agreement on offensive strategic weapons covering the 5-year period until 1977. This year we decided that this interim agreement should be followed by a new agreement to cover the period until 1985. We agreed that this should deal with both quantitative and qualitative aspects of strategic nuclear weapons, that it should be concluded well above and well before, I should say, the expiration of the present agreement.

We also agreed that the extensive work we have already done toward hammering out such a long-range agreement should go forward at Geneva in the immediate future on the basis of instructions growing out of our talks at the highest level during the past week.

Now, the two sides have not yet reached a final accord on the terms of an agreement. This is a difficult and a very complex subject, but we did bring such an accord significantly closer, and we committed both sides firmly to the resolution of our remaining differences.

The second important arms control agreement that we reached deals with the anti-ballistic missile systems. You will recall that 2 years ago we agreed that each country should be limited to two ABM sites. The agreement we signed earlier today in Moscow strengthens and extends the scope of that earlier measure by restricting each country to one ABM site.

And then the third arms limitation agreement deals with underground testing of nuclear weapons. It extends significantly the earlier steps toward limiting tests that began with the 1963 test-ban treaty. That original treaty barred the signatories from conducting tests in the atmosphere, in outer space, and underwater. Today, we concluded a new treaty that for the first time will also cover tests underground. It will bar both the Soviet Union and the United States, after March 31, 1976, from conducting any underground test of weapons above a certain explosive power, and it will also require both countries to keep tests of weapons below that power to the very minimum number.

This is not only another major step toward bringing the arms race under control, it is also a significant additional step toward reducing the number of nuclear and thermonuclear explosions in the world.

Now, arms limitations, of course, are enormously and crucially important, but the work of these summit meetings is much broader, just as the nature of the new United States-Soviet relationship is much broader. This year, the important new agreements we reached in the area of peaceful progress included new programs for cooperation between our two countries in energy, in housing, in health, and also an agreement on long-term economic cooperation designed to facilitate increasing mutually beneficial trade between our two countries.

The significance of these agreements goes beyond the advances each will bring to its particular field, just as the significance of our summit meetings goes beyond the individual agreements themselves. With this growing network of agreements, we are creating new habits of cooperation and new patterns of consultation, and we are also giving the people of the Soviet Union, as well as our own people in the United States, not just a negative but a positive stake in peace.

We are creating a stable new base on which to build peace, not just through the fear of war but through sharing the benefits of peace, of working together for a better life for the people of both of our countries.

The United States-Soviet agreements at the summit contribute importantly to the structure of peace we are trying to build between our two countries and in the world. The continued strength of the Western Alliance is also an essential and major element of that structure and, so too, is the development of a new pattern of relationships and a new attitude toward peace in areas of tension such as the Middle East.

The fact that the NATO meeting in Brussels came midway between the trip to the Middle East and the one to the Soviet Union is symbolic of the central role that the Western Alliance must play in building the new structure of peace.

It is clearly understood by the leaders of the Soviet Union that in forging the new relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union, we will not proceed at the expense of traditional allies. On the contrary, the continued strength of the Western Alliance is essential to the success and to the process in which we are engaged of maintaining and developing the new relationship to the Soviet Union.

The development of that new relationship provides an opportunity to deepen the unity of the Western Alliance. We must not neglect our alliances, and we must not assume that our new relationship with the Soviet Union allows us to neglect our own military strength. It is because we are strong that such a relationship that we are now developing is possible.

In his first annual message to the Congress, George Washington said, "To be prepared for war is one of the most effective means of preserving peace." That statement is true today as it was then, and that is why all of you who are serving in our Armed Forces today are actually serving in the peace forces for America and the world. We thank you for your service.

We are prepared, we in the United States, to reduce our military strength but only through a process in which that reduction is mutual and one that does not diminish the security of the United States of America. It is to that end that we have been working.

Twenty-five years ago when the NATO Treaty was signed, it was called "an act of faith in the destiny of Western Civilization." That description was prophetic as well as accurate, and now, 25 years later, we might well say the new structure of peace we are building in the world is an act of faith in the destiny of mankind. Like anything built to be permanent, that structure must be built step by careful step. It must be built solidly. It must be such a structure that those who use it will preserve it because they treasure it, because it responds to their needs, and because it reflects their hopes.

Two years ago in my report to the Congress on returning from the first of the United States-Soviet summits, I expressed the hope that historians of some future age will write of the year 1972, not that this was the year America went up to the summit and then down to the depths of the valley again, but that this was the year when America helped to lead the world up out of the lowlands of war and on to the high plateau of lasting peace.

And now, 2 years, two summits later, the realization of that hope has been brought closer. The process of peace is going steadily forward. It is strengthened by the new and expanding patterns of cooperation between the United States and the Soviet Union. It is reinforced by the new vitality of our Western Alliance and bringing such encouraging results as the new turn toward peace in the Middle East.

In all of our travels, to which the Vice President has referred, one message has come through more clearly than any other. We have seen millions and millions of people over these past few weeks, and, from their faces as well as the words of those we have seen and the thousands we have met in every part of the world, this is the message, and that is, that the desire to end war, to build peace is one that knows no national boundaries and that unites people everywhere.

Something else also comes through very loud and very clear: The people of the nations that we visited—and we saw them, as I have indicated, not only by the thousands but by the millions—want to be friends of the American people and we reciprocate. We want to be their friends, too.

In the early years of our Nation's history, after America had won its independence, Thomas Jefferson said: We act not just for ourselves alone but for the whole human race.

As we prepare tomorrow to celebrate the anniversary of that independence, the 198th anniversary, we as Americans can be proud that we have been true to Jefferson's vision and that, as a result of America's initiative, that universal goal of peace is now closer, closer not only for ourselves but for all mankind.

Thank you very much and good evening.

NOTE: The Vice President spoke at 7:37 p.m. at Loring Air Force Base, Maine. The welcoming ceremony and the President's address were broadcast live on radio and television.

Death of Mrs. Martin Luther King, Sr.

Statement by the President. June 30, 1974

The President and Mrs. Nixon were most distressed to learn of the tragic death of Mrs. Martin Luther King, Sr., the death of one of her parishioners, and the wounding of another.

It is a terrible irony that a family whose devotion to non-violence has so greatly advanced the cause of social justice in the United States should have two of its own members struck down in this fashion.

The President's prayers are with Dr. King, Sr., in this hour of his bereavement, and with the members of the Ebenezer Baptist Church upon whom this tragedy falls with a special force.

NOTE: Mrs. King, 69, was slain by an assailant during services at the Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta, Ga., on Sunday, June 30, 1974.

The White House later announced that the President had designated Stanley S. Scott, Special Assistant to the President, as his personal representative at funeral services for Mrs. King in Atlanta, Ga., on Wednesday, July 3, 1974. Other members of the official delegation included H.R. Crawford, Assistant Secretary for Housing Management, HUD, and John H. Powell, Jr., Chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

The statement was released at Washington, D.C., and Oreanda, Ukrainian Soviet Socialist Republic.

Juan Domingo Peron

Statement by the President on the Death of the Argentine President. July 1, 1974

Mrs. Nixon and I on behalf of the American people have sent a message of condolence to the wife of former President Peron. We are saddened by the death of the President of the Argentine Republic, Juan Domingo Peron, who was a source of inspiration to his countrymen. At a time when others would have been content to retire from public life he accepted the challenge to return to his country to guide and assist the Argentine people. He dedicated the last years of his life to this task.

NOTE: Juan Domingo Peron was President of the Argentine Republic from 1946 to 1955, and from September 1973 until his death in Buenos Aires on July 1, 1974, at the age of 78.

The White House later announced that the President had designated Secretary of Commerce Frederick B. Dent as his Personal Representative, with the rank of Special Ambassador, at funeral services for President Peron in Buenos Aires on Thursday, July 4, 1974. The delegation also included Robert C. Hill, U.S. Ambassador to Argentina, and Jack B. Kubisch, Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs.

The statement was released at Washington, D.C., and Moscow, U.S.S.R.

Supreme Court Case

Reply Brief Filed by Attorneys for the President. July 1, 1974

In the Supreme Court of the United States

OCTOBER TERM, 1973

Nos. 73-1766 and 73-1834

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, PETITIONER

v.

RICHARD M. NIXON, PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES
ET AL., RESPONDENTS

RICHARD M. NIXON, PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES,
CROSS-PETITIONER

v.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, RESPONDENT

ON WRITS OF CERTIORARI BEFORE JUDGMENT TO THE UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA CIRCUIT

REPLY BRIEF FOR THE RESPONDENT, CROSS-PETITIONER
RICHARD M. NIXON, PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

INTRODUCTION

The vitally important considerations that must control decision of this case, and that require reversal of the district court, were expressed in the opinion of Chief Justice Chase, for a unanimous Court, in Mississippi v. Johnson, 4 Wall. (71 U.S.) 475, 500-501 (1867).

The Congress is the Legislative Department of the government; the President is the Executive Department. Neither can be restrained in its action by the Judicial Department; though the acts of both, when performed, are, in proper cases, subject to its cognizance.

The impropriety of such interference will be clearly seen upon consideration of its possible consequences.

Suppose the bill filed and the injunction prayed for allowed. If the President refuse obedience, it is needless to observe that the court is without power to enforce its process. If, on the other hand, the President complies with the order of the court and refuses to execute the acts of Congress, is it not clear that a collision may occur between the Executive and Legislative Departments of the Government? May not the House of Representatives impeach the President for such refusal? And in that case could this court interfere in behalf of the President, thus endangered by compliance with its mandate, and restrain by injunction the Senate of the United States from sitting as a court of impeachment? Would the strange spectacle be offered to the public wonder of an attempt by this court to arrest proceedings in that court? These questions answer themselves.

It will not do to say, as the Special Prosecutor does, that "the President is the head of the Executive Branch. . . ." (S.P.Br. 79) (emphasis in original).¹ Instead, as the Court said in Johnson, "the President is the Executive Department." Or, as Chief Justice Taft, also speaking for a unanimous Court, said in Ex parte Grossman, 267 U.S. 87, 120 (1925): "The executive power is vested in a President."

Johnson is important also for its recognition of the utter impropriety of this Court becoming involved in the constitutional process of impeachment. Surely this Court can judicially notice the fact that proceedings are underway in the House Judiciary Committee looking to possible impeachment of the President. The late Thomas Reed Powell is said to have defined the legal mind as a mind that can think of one of two things that are inescapably interrelated without thinking about the other. Only those who would accept this cynical view of the legal process would suppose that this case and the investigation in the Judiciary Committee are wholly unrelated, or that this Court can render a decision in this case without that decision having a heavy impact, one way or the other, in the impeachment process that is so clearly committed exclusively to the House and the Senate.

We shall contend, as we did in our initial brief, that, as it was so powerfully put by Judge Wilkey in his dissent in Nixon v. Sirica, 487 F.2d 700, 763-799 (D.C. Cir. 1973), the critical issue is "Who Decides?", and that this Court should affirm the proposition, not seriously challenged for the first 184 years of our constitutional history, that it is for the Chief Executive, not for the judicial branch, to decide when the public interest permits disclosure of Presidential discussions.

¹ "Pres. Br." refers to the President's brief filed with this Court on June 21, 1974. "S.P. Br." refers to the Special Prosecutor's brief filed on the same date. "P.S.A." refers to the President's Sealed Appendix. These references are followed by appropriate pagination.

It was and is the President's right to make that decision initially, and it is the American people who will be the judge as to whether the President has made the right decision, i.e., whether it is or is not in the public interest that the papers (tapes) in question be furnished or retained. If his decision is made on visibly sound grounds, the people will approve the action of the Executive as being in the public interest. If the decision is not visibly on sound grounds of national public interest, in political terms the decision may be ruinous for the President, but it is his to make. The grand design has worked; the separate, independent Branch remains in charge of and responsible for its own papers, processes and decisions, not to a second or third Branch, but it remains responsible to the American people. (487 F. 2d at 797) (emphasis in original).

The central point at issue here is not whether the President's judgment in this particular instance is right or wrong, but that it is his judgment. In exercising the discretion vested in him, and in him alone, the President may make a mistaken assessment of what best serves the public interest—but courts also on occasion make mistakes. The President in this exercise of discretion may make a decision that is unpopular—but if so he must suffer the political consequences. The President may even take such action that would constitute a high crime or misdemeanor, but to quote again from Chief Justice Taft in Ex parte Grossman, 267 U.S. 87, 121 (1925): "Exceptional cases like this, if to be imagined at all, would suggest a resort to impeachment rather than to a narrow and strained construction of the general powers of the President."

These are the themes we will develop in the balance of this Reply Brief.²

² Having already submitted a 137-page brief, we regret burdening the Court with so lengthy a reply. We have endeavored so far as possible to avoid repetition, and do not, by failing to renew all of the points made in our initial brief, withdraw any of those. But the case is both important and unique, and because of the briefing schedule ordered by the Court this is the first opportunity we have had to respond to the arguments of the petitioner.

We agree with the statement of the Special Prosecutor (Supplemental Brief, June 21, 1974 at 5) that the application of Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83 (1963) to privileged materials not in the prosecutor's possession is not properly before this Court. See Sup. Ct. Rule 23(1)(c); Andrews v. Louisville &

I. THE SPECIAL PROSECUTOR HAS FAILED TO ESTABLISH ANY BASIS FOR THE JURISDICTION OF THE DISTRICT COURT

In our initial submission we argued that the courts lack jurisdiction over an internal dispute of a co-equal branch of government (Pres. Br. 27-44) and that such an intra-branch dispute is preeminently a political question and outside the scope of Article III. (Pres. Br. 44-48).

Primarily, the Special Prosecutor appears to allege jurisdiction on two grounds: (1) that this is not an intra-branch dispute, for in all criminal proceedings, the Attorney General does not represent the executive branch but rather the United States as a sovereign entity; and (2) even if the Special Prosecutor is an inseparable part of the executive branch, the delegation of authority and independence given to him by Acting Attorney General Bork is, in itself, sufficient to create jurisdiction in this matter. (S.P. Br. 24-47). As we now show however, both arguments fail to withstand analysis.

In an attempt to negate the intra-executive nature of this dispute, the Special Prosecutor repeatedly asserts that he, as the alter ego of the Attorney General, does not represent the President or the executive branch in a criminal proceeding but rather the United States as a distinct sovereign entity. (S.P. Br. 27-29).³ Such an argument is without merit for there is no sovereign entity distinct from the three recognized branches of the government. Nor, as a practical matter, is the Attorney General unique in his capacity to act in the name of the United States, for most, if not all federal actions are performed in the name of "the United States," the ultimate symbol of this nation's sovereignty. To suggest that a governmental action is not a judicial, executive or legislative action, simply because it is taken in the name of the United States, is to confuse the basic symbol of the government with the functional divisions of its authority. The term

Nashville R. Co., 406 U.S. 320, 324-325 (1972); Namet v. United States, 373 U.S. 179, 190 (1963); Mazer v. Stein, 347 U.S. 201, 206 n. 5 (1954); see generally R. Stern & E. Gressman, Supreme Court Practice 297-298 (4th ed. 1969).

³ This argument is premised upon 28 U.S.C. 516 which provides:

Except as otherwise authorized by law, the conduct of litigation in which the United States, an agency, or officer thereof is a party, or is interested, and securing evidence therefor, is reserved to officers of the Department of Justice, under the direction of the Attorney General.

"United States" does not refer to a separate entity but is a composite description of the three independent and co-equal branches of the government. Within their respective roles, each coordinate branch acts in the name of the United States. Thus, it is of no distinguishing consequence that the Attorney General or the Special Prosecutor invokes the name of the United States in conducting a criminal prosecution. Nor does this invocation divest the Attorney General or the Special Prosecutor of their status as subordinate officers within the executive branch of government.⁴

To accept the Special Prosecutor's position that there is, in essence, an independent branch of the government known as the United States, would make meaningless the delegation of authority and balance of power existing between the three branches, and destroy the tripartite form of government established by the Framers. It would create an additional fourth branch of the government with its own independently derived authority, entitled to its own representation in court and responsible to none of the other branches. Such a proposition is without logical or constitutional merit.

Alternatively, by tracing the statutory authority of the Attorney General, the Special Prosecutor at pp. 27-29, 35-36, 40-42 of his Brief appears to be suggesting to this Court that there may be some legislative basis for his authority akin to a legislative regulatory agency,⁵ which would nullify the claim that the present dispute is intra-executive in nature. He summarizes his position as follows: in discharging his responsibilities, "the Special Prosecutor does not act as a mere agent-at-will of the President. He enjoys an independent authority derived from constitutional delegations of authority by the Congress to the Attorney General and from the Attorney General to him . . ." (S.P. Br. 34).

⁴ The Special Prosecutor's assertion that he acts not "in the President's name or at his behest" (S.P. Br. 34) is effectively negated in his own statement of facts where he acknowledges that on October 26, 1973, the President announced that a new Special Prosecutor would be appointed and emphasized that he, the President, had no greater interest than seeing that the Special Prosecutor has the independence he needs to prosecute the guilty and clear the innocent. (S.P. Br. 10)

⁵ United States v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 337 U.S. 426 (1949). This case has been fully discussed by us (Pres. Br. 37-38) and that discussion is equally applicable to Secretary of Agriculture v. United States, 350 U.S. 163 (1956), which also involves a suit by an executive department against the Interstate Commerce Commission.

We do not contest the Special Prosecutor's assertion that his authority is derived from the Attorney General, but it is precisely this derivation of authority that conclusively establishes the executive nature of the office he holds. The Attorney General can only delegate to a subordinate officer the same authority and status he himself possesses. Thus, even as the alter ego of the Attorney General in a particular matter, the Special Prosecutor is necessarily vested with the same executive status, and no more. To assert that either the Attorney General, an executive cabinet member, or any subordinate officer within the Department of Justice, acts in a legislative or even quasi-legislative capacity when conducting a criminal prosecution is so contrary to the settled law as not to warrant further comment. It remains only to be said that all executive departments exist with some statutory basis, but this does not in anyway alter the exclusively executive nature of their duties and responsibilities. As we pointed out at the beginning, "the President is the Executive Department." The Attorney General is but "the hand of the President." Ponzi v. Fessenden, 358 U.S. 254, 262 (1922). He is the agent of the President, and any direction given by him is but a direction by the President. Confiscation Cases, 7 Wall. (74 U.S.) 454 (1869). Article II, section 3, imposes on the President the duty to "take Care that the Laws be faithfully executed," and though the President ordinarily acts through the Attorney General and his subordinates, they are acting for the President, not for the legislative branch.⁶ Con-

⁶ In Runkle v. United States, 122 U.S. 543, 557 (1886), this Court stated:

There can be no doubt that the President, in the exercise of his executive power under the Constitution, may act through the head of the appropriate executive department. The heads of departments are his authorized assistants in the performance of his executive duties, and their official acts, promulgated in the regular course of business, are presumptively his acts. That has been many times decided by this court. Wilcox v. Jackson, 13 Pet. 498, 513; United States v. Eliason, 16 Pet. 291, 302; Confiscation Cases, 20 Wall. 92, 109; United States v. Farden, 99 U.S. 10, 19; Wolsey v. Chapman, 101 U.S. 755, 769.

In addition, the Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit in Smith v. United States, 375 F. 2d 243, 246 (5th Cir. 1967) stated:

The President of the United States is charged in Article 2, Section 3, of the Constitution with the duty to "take care that the laws be faithfully executed. . ." The Attorney General is the President's surrogate in the prosecution of all offenses against the United States.

sequently, the Special Prosecutor, like the Attorney General, must be considered an executive officer engaged in the exclusive performance of an executive function, namely the prosecution of individuals charged with criminal activities. Thus, neither under the legislative theory nor the sovereign entity theory proposed by the Special Prosecutor has he demonstrated that the present dispute is anything more than an intra-executive dispute beyond the jurisdiction of the district court.⁷

Finally, the Special Prosecutor alleges that the delegation of authority to him by Acting Attorney General Bork, combined with the repeated assurances that he would be free to carry out his responsibilities, confers jurisdiction upon the court to resolve the instant dispute.⁸ Such an argument fails for three fundamental reasons. First, the Judiciary has never had jurisdiction to review or determine what evidence the executive branch shall or shall not use in the furtherance of its own case in a criminal proceeding. See, e.g., United States v. Cox, 342 F. 2d 167 (5th Cir.), cert. denied, 381 U.S. 935 (1965). The responsibility for making this determination has always been within the executive branch, and includes the power to balance and determine what confidential governmental materials would, if disclosed, be detrimental to the public interest. A decision by the executive branch not to use a particular document, even one which tends to support its own burden of proof in a criminal prosecution, has not been and is not a proper subject for judicial review. (Pres. Br. 39-41).

Second, such a decision is exclusively within the duties and responsibilities delegated by the Constitution to the Chief Executive, for he alone was vested

⁷ The Special Prosecutor erroneously cites this Court's decision in Sampson v. Murray, 414 U.S. 904 (1974), for the proposition that the district court has jurisdiction to intervene in an intra-branch dispute. That case is however totally inapplicable for it involved a suit by a private citizen against the United States Civil Service Commission alleging that the individual had been erroneously discharged from federal employment.

⁸ The Special Prosecutor correctly asserts, at some length, that a federal regulation has the force and effect of law and is therefore binding upon the parties. Accardi v. Shaughnessy, 347 U.S. 260, 266-267 (1954). However, by raising the question of the jurisdictional basis for the district court's action, Counsel for the President cannot be said to be acting in violation of the Special Prosecutor's rights under 38 Fed. Reg. 30, 738 (1973), nor interfering with the independence granted to the Special Prosecutor to carry out those responsibilities delegated to him, for both parties are under an independent obligation to this Court to discuss the jurisdictional aspects of the present proceeding.

with the obligation to see "that the Laws be faithfully executed." U.S. Const. Article II, section 3. Unless the President has delegated his authority to a subordinate officer, the President's decision in such matters is final, and an improper subject for judicial review.⁹

Third, there has been no delegation of this responsibility by the President to the Attorney General or the Special Prosecutor in the instant case.¹⁰ Nor has the Attorney General attempted to delegate this authority to the Special Prosecutor.¹¹ This conclusion is fully supported by the brief filed by the Special Prosecutor before this Court, for there is a notable absence of any claim by the Special Prosecutor that he was, in fact, delegated the President's responsibility to weigh the public interest in determining what presidential material shall or shall not be used in this proceeding. Since this responsibility was retained by the President, there can be no basis for a claim that the President acted beyond the scope of his constitutional authority in determining not to use certain presidential material in this case. In so doing, as Professor Bickel pointed out, he is simply "exercising the lawful powers of his office, which he may do until removed upon impeachment and conviction." New York Times, June 3, 1974, p. 30. Because this decision is clearly within the prosecutorial discretion vested in the executive branch, and in particular in the Chief Executive, the district court is without jurisdiction to review this determination.

The district court's lack of jurisdiction was not altered, as the Special Prosecutor suggests, merely because he may "determine whether or not to contest the assertions of executive privilege or any other testimonial privilege." 38 Fed. Reg. 30, 738 (1973). In this suit, the Special Prosecutor is merely asking this ⁹ There is no merit to either the contention that the President is without authority to direct or control the actions of a subordinate officer or that his control is limited to his ability to discharge an executive employee. (S.P. Br. 35). Even the authority relied upon by the Special Prosecutor, 2 Op. Att'y Gen. 483 (1831) acknowledges the President's right to direct the actions of a subordinate officer.

Upon the whole, I consider the district attorney as under the control and direction of the President, in the institution and prosecution of suits in the name and on behalf of the United States; and that it is within the legitimate power of the President to direct him to institute or to discontinue a pending suit, and to point out to him his duty, whenever the interest of the United States is directly or indirectly concerned. 2 Op. Att'y Gen. 487 (1831).

¹⁰ See Pres. Br. 29 n. 14.

¹¹ See Pres. Br. 43 n. 31.

Court to determine whether the Chief Executive was correct in determining that certain executive materials should not, in the public interest, be used to further this prosecution. However, neither the President, the Attorney General, or the Special Prosecutor, by agreement or otherwise, can foist upon the courts the executive branch's own responsibility for determining the advisability of using certain executive materials in the furtherance of its own case. Nor, through judicial review, can the executive branch compel the court to resolve or determine the wisdom of a discretionary decision made by the Chief Executive when it is within the bounds of his constitutional authority. Therefore, not even through the mechanism of a lesser official like the Special Prosecutor, can the executive or the legislative branch confer jurisdiction upon the courts to review any discretionary determinations, solely within their respective spheres. In this regard, even the Special Prosecutor is forced to concede that neither "the President nor the Department of Justice could confer jurisdiction on the courts when such jurisdiction is constitutionally impermissible." (S.P. Br. 42). In all circumstances it is constitutionally impermissible for a district court to review a decision by the executive branch, especially the Chief Executive, that it will not use a particular document even to the benefit of its own case. Accordingly, the Special Prosecutor has failed to establish any basis for the district court's jurisdiction to intervene in this intra-branch dispute for the purpose of reviewing a prosecutorial decision made by the Chief Executive in the course of a criminal proceeding.¹²

II. A CONSTITUTIONAL ASSERTION OF A PRESIDENTIAL PRIVILEGE IS NOT REVIEWABLE BY THIS COURT

We deem it important to emphasize three points: (1) The issue at stake is presidential privilege, founded in the Constitution, relating to conversations of the President with his closest advisers, not the concept of executive privilege as it may be generally applicable to persons in the executive branch and under other circumstances; (2) The resolution of this issue lies in an analysis of the design of our government as a whole and its development, including but not limited to that of judicial precedents¹³ (Pres. Br. 54-68); and (3) We repeat: "Significantly, the precise issue of the 'absoluteness' of executive privilege, as applied to presidential communications, has never been squarely confronted and definitely resolved by this Court." (Pres. Br. 51). To the extent there exists relevant judicial precedent, it supports the President's position. (Pres. Br. 74-82).

¹² We find no necessity to repeat our position as to the power of the Court to entertain and determine a political question. (Pres. Br. 44-48). However, there is one point that must be emphasized. Since Mississippi v. Johnson, 4 Wall. (71 U.S.) 475 (1867), this Court has correctly been reluctant to intervene in political questions involving discretionary decisions that are properly the sole prerogative of a coordinate branch of government. No dispute could more clearly entangle this Court in a "political question" than the present dispute, which unquestionably affects the ongoing impeachment inquiry, and thus would be an intrusion by the Judiciary on the Legislature as well as the Executive. Only last week the Court refused to "distort the role of the Judiciary in its relationship to the Executive and the Legislature. . . ." Schlesinger v. Reservists Committee to Stop the War, — U.S. —, No. 72-1188, Slip Op. p. 19 (June 25, 1974).

Because of the nature of the privilege asserted by the President, the bald statement of the Special Prosecutor that ". . . this Court has squarely rejected the claim that the Executive has absolute, unreviewable discretion to withhold documents from the courts" (S.P. Br. 18) is unsound. The mainstay of the Special Prosecutor's position, United States v. Reynolds, 345 U.S. 1 (1953), sustained, without the necessity of judicial inspection, a claim of privilege made on national security grounds by the Secretary of the Air Force.¹⁴ Regardless of what principles may be extracted from that case, one thing is clear: the Court did not decide any constitutional issues. In summarizing Reynolds, (S.P. Br. 54), the Special Prosecutor omitted the language of Chief Justice Vinson, which reveals the true nature of the case:

Both positions have constitutional overtones which we find it unnecessary to pass upon, there being a narrower ground for decision. . . .

. . . Since Rule 34 compels production only of matters 'not privileged,' the essential question is whether there was a valid claim of privilege under the Rule. . . . We think it should be clear that the term 'not privileged' as used in Rule 34, refers to 'privileges' as that term is understood in the law of evidence. (345 U.S. at 6).

¹³ See Winter, Watergate and The Law 54-55 (American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research 1974)

¹⁴ It should also be noted that the Court felt the necessity for the evidence sought was dubious. 345 U.S. at 11. In circumstances strikingly similar to those of the present case, it was noted that the Government had offered to make available, for testimony, the flight crew whose written statements were a prime object of the plaintiffs' discovery motions.

With the exception of Committee for Nuclear Responsibility, Inc. v. Seaborg,¹⁵ 463 F. 2d 788 (D.C. Cir. 1971), the other cases relied upon by the Special Prosecutor are for the same reason not relevant to this Court's disposition of the present dispute.

Roviaro v. United States, 353 U.S. 53 (1957), turned on the nature of the "informer's privilege," a government privilege arising out of an interest in effective law enforcement. Carr v. Monroe Manufacturing Company, 431 F. 2d 384 (5th Cir. 1970), a racial discrimination case against private and state defendants, dealt with an absolute privilege claim based on a state statute.¹⁶ Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp. v. United States, 157 F. Supp. 939 (Ct. Cl. 1958), a breach of contract case, involved a claim of executive privilege by the Administrator of the General Services Administration. In language echoing that of this Court in Reynolds, the court defined the privilege claimed solely in terms of the law of evidence, with its foundation in custom or statute.¹⁷ The Seaborg case involved an attempt by environmentalists to enjoin the explosion of a nuclear underground test by the Atomic Energy Commission. In response to discovery efforts to ascertain whether the requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act had been met, the government, through five agency heads, asserted a claim of executive privilege based on constitutional grounds. That claim was summarily rejected by the court of appeals without reference to any judicial precedent or historical analysis.¹⁸ That fact, coupled with the realization that presidential communications were not involved, deprives the holding of that case from exerting any meaningful influence on the precisely-drawn issue which is before this Court.

Our position, contrary to that apparently assumed by the Special Prosecutor (S.P. Br. 49-50), is not at odds with this Court's decision in Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. v. Sawyer, 343 U.S. 579 (1952). The touchstone of that holding was that President Truman's action in directing the seizure of the steel mills

¹⁵ In Seaborg, the court stated that in United States v. Reynolds, supra, the issue of executive privilege based, on the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers, had been noted, but not decided. 463 F. 2d at 793.

¹⁶ The court utilized Reynolds, as an analogy, to buttress its decision against absolute privilege. 431 F. 2d at 388.

¹⁷ In Kaiser, the court held, without judicial review of the documents requested, that no production was required.

¹⁸ 463 F. 2d at 793. Three of the judges of the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit who were part of the majority in Nixon v. Sirica, 487 F. 2d 700 (D.C. Cir. 1973) comprised the unanimous Court Seaborg.

was not supported by any statutory or constitutional provision or concept; it exceeded all express and inherent power of the Presidency. In contrast, President Nixon's action, i.e., his assertion of executive privilege, is based squarely on the Constitution.¹⁹ All the foregoing cases are examples where the Judiciary has reviewed, in varying degrees, claims of privilege exerted by lesser officers in the executive branch of government. Although, as we have shown, they are readily distinguishable from the case at bar, we recognize that a court will necessarily be confronted with similar issues and must review and determine them. In fulfilling its duty to resolve all the issues before it, a court, at times, must exercise its authority in a manner consistent with competing interests, e.g. a claim of privilege against self-incrimination.²⁰ However, in this case the court's duty and authority of review is complete when it determines that the President of the United States has asserted privilege.

Environmental Protection Agency v. Mink, 410 U.S. 73 (1973), deserves comment because of the Special Prosecutor's allusion to it. There the controversy centered around the government's asserted right of non-disclosure of certain documents under a provision of the Freedom of Information Act, a statute exempting from disclosure non-factual intra-agency advisory material. This Court fashioned a method of examination whereby the trial court could separate factual data from exempt material.²¹ In remanding the case, in ¹⁹ See Soucie v. David, 448 F. 2d 1067, 1071 n. 9 (D.C. Cir. 1971); (Pres. Br. 49-50). We call the Court's attention to S.P. Br. 57 n. 43, where the Special Prosecutor notes Professor Wright's summary of commentators' skeptical attitude toward the belief that executive privilege is rooted in the Constitution. This Court should be aware of the actual setting of that observation. Professor Wright, in the text, was discussing governmental privileges covered by the proposed Rules of Evidence. He observed: "There [in the proposed rules] is no mention of the general executive privilege and it is to be abolished except to whatever extent it may be required by the Constitution. 8 Wright & Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure: Civil § 2019 at 175 (1970) (emphasis added). The footnote that elaborates that textural statement and that encompasses the language cited by the Special Prosecutor has the following remark as its initial thrust:

The Supreme Court has said that the claim of an executive privilege has "constitutional overtones." U.S. v. Reynolds, 1953, 73 S. Ct. 528, 531, 345 U.S. 1, 6, * * * part thereby reversing the decision of the court of appeals for the plaintiffs, this Court held that "in camera inspection" was not automatic since the agency may be able to show, by affidavit, that the items sought are, in fact, exempt. 410 U.S. at 93. The Special Prosecutor has attempted to utilize this case for the proposition that "the constitutional separation of powers does not give the Executive any constitutional immunity from judicial orders for the production of evidence." (S.P. Br. 61). In this regard, Justice Stewart at the outset of his concurring opinion noted that no constitutional claim was involved, and there was no issue regarding the nature or scope of executive privilege. 410 U.S. at 94. The second point to be noted in the Mink case is that no one was compelled to do anything. The Court did not discuss what might legally occur if the claim of privilege was ultimately rejected and noted the difficulty in analogizing Freedom of Information Act cases to ordinary litigation because of the non-availability of the option to dismiss or strike a defense which exists in the latter.

²⁰ See discussion in United States v. Reynolds, 345 U.S. 1, 8-9 (1953).

²¹ It also held that certain documents could not be subjected to any "in camera" inspection. 410 U.S. at 81-85. As to documents concerned with national defense, Justices Marshall and Brennan felt the need for secrecy was a decision solely for the Executive. 410 U.S. at 99-100.

Lastly, United States ex rel. Touhy v. Ragen, 340 U.S. 462 (1951), has been cited in support of the Special Prosecutor's contention that the Judiciary has the power to compel production of evidence from the executive. (S.P. Br. 63). This case, once again, involved a decision in which the production of documents was not ordered. This Court upheld the validity of a Department of Justice regulation, which constituted the basis for the FBI agent's refusal to comply with a subpoena duces tecum. In the holding, this Court specifically stated:

Petitioner challenges the validity of the issue of the order under a legal doctrine which makes the head of a department rather than a court the determinator of the admissibility of evidence. In support of his argument that the Executive should not invade the Judicial sphere, petitioner cites Wigmore, Evidence (3 ed.), § 2379, and Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cranch 137. But under this record we are concerned only with the validity of Order No. 3229. The constitutionality of the Attorney General's exercise of a determinative power as to whether or on what conditions or subject to what disadvantages to the Government he may refuse to produce government papers under his charge must await a factual situation that requires a ruling. (340 U.S. at 468-469) (emphasis added).

Immediately following his reference to Ragen, the Special Prosecutor quotes (S.P. Br. 63) certain language from a work of Professor Wright in an attempt to emphasize his contention concerning the judicial power of enforcement in this case. The entire text of the partially quoted statement of Professor Wright now follows:

In private litigation refusal of a government officer to comply with a court order overruling a claim of executive privilege and ordering disclosure could lead to conviction of contempt," but there is a natural reluctance to invoke this sanction and the extraordinary writs of mandamus and prohibition have been held available to review contempt citations. If the government is a party, the court may penalize it for its failure to comply with a disclosure order by invoking any of the sanctions set forth in Rule 37(b)(2). In this way the court can achieve fairness in the case before it without actually compelling production of the information that the government is determined to keep confidential. 8 Wright and Miller, Federal Practice and Procedure: Civil, § 2019, at 172-173 (1970).

When holdings, as opposed to random language, command our attention, it becomes evident that such judicial precedent as does exist in fact supports the President's concept of executive privilege rather than that urged by the Special Prosecutor.

The Special Prosecutor cites Conway v. Rimmer, [1968] 1 All E.R. 874, in support of his argument that the Executive cannot be given unreviewable discretion in these matters. (S.P. Br. 56 n. 41). Conway, far from supporting the Special Prosecutor's view, is in fact wholly consistent with the position we are advancing. It is true that in Conway the House of Lords overruled what had been the English rule that a claim of privilege, no matter how routine or unimportant the document, is binding on the courts. Their Lordships, however, were at great pains to distinguish the kind of low-level routine papers there involved from papers at the highest level of government. Every one of the speeches drew this distinction and made it clear that when high-level documents, of the sort we have in the present case, are sought, the court must accept the Executive's claim of privilege without further inquiry. Thus in the principal speech Lord Reid said that "there are certain classes of documents which ought not to be disclosed whatever their content may be." He then referred to "cabinet minutes and the like" as an example of a class of documents that ought not to be disclosed until they "are only of historical interest." [1968] 1 All E.R. at 888. Lord Hodson instanced "cabinet minutes, despatches from ambassadors abroad and minutes of discussions between heads of departments" as among those that are absolutely protected by a claim of Crown privilege. [1968] 1 All E.R. at 902, and see also his remark at 905. Lord Pearce said:

²² The Special Prosecutor's recitation of Professor Wright's language ends here.

Obviously, production would never be ordered of fairly wide classes of documents at a high level. To take an extreme case, production would never be ordered of cabinet correspondence, letters or reports on appointments to offices of importance and the like; but why should the same yardstick apply to trivial documents and correspondence with or within a ministry. [1968] 1 All E.R. at 910.

The observation of Lord Upjohn was in a similar vein:

No doubt there are many cases in which documents by their very nature fall into a class which requires protection such as, only by way of example, cabinet papers, foreign office despatches, the security of the State, high-level inter-departmental minutes and correspondence, and documents pertaining to the general administration of the naval, military and air force services. . . . So, too, high-level inter-departmental communications, to take, only as an example on establishment matters, the promotion or transfer of reasonably high-level personnel in the service of the Crown; but no catalogue can reasonably be compiled. The reason for this privilege is that it would be quite wrong and entirely inimical to the proper functioning of the public service if the public were to learn of these high-level communications, however innocent of prejudice to the State the actual contents of any particular document might be; that is obvious. [1968] 1 All E.R. at 914-915.

Only Lord Morris of Borth-Y-Gest did not attempt to specify particular kinds of documents that are absolutely privileged, but he too noted that "[i]n many cases it will be plain that documents are within a class of documents which by their very nature ought not to be disclosed." [1968] 1 All E.R. at 901.

This recognition that there are some kinds of documents on which the decision of the Executive must be final, and not subject to review by the courts, is wholly consistent with what was held in United States v. Reynolds, 345 U.S. 1, 10 (1953), and indeed the Reynolds opinion was quoted in the principal speech in Conway of Lord Reid. [1968] 1 All E.R. at 887. It is consistent also with this Court's disclaimer in Marbury v. Madison, 1 Cranch (5 U.S.) 137, 170 (1803) of any judicial power to order "an intrusion into the secrets of the cabinet. . . ."

The distinction insisted upon so vigorously by all of the judges in Conway is the distinction that should control here. Decisions concerning material in the lower echelons of government or material of a routine, everyday nature, are not in point. The subpoena here in issue calls for recordings and notes of conversations between the President of the United States and his closest advisers.

We referred in our initial brief to "[t]he velocity with which the confidentiality of presidential communications has eroded. . . ." (Pres. Br. 133). Demands for presidential recordings or papers or even for presidential testimony have come from judges and defendants all over the country, both state and federal.²³ In his letter of July 23, 1973, to Senator Ervin, the President observed that "the tapes could be accurately understood only by reference to an enormous number of other documents and tapes, so that to open them at all would begin an endless process of disclosure and explanation of private Presidential records. . . ." The accuracy of that observation is now a matter of common knowledge. Initially Special Prosecutor Cox subpoenaed tapes and notes of nine conversations. His successor has been furnished all existing material covering those conversations and the President has voluntarily given Special Prosecutor Jaworski tapes of many other conversations. Now the Special Prosecutor seeks to require production of 64 more conversations. Should he be successful in that attempt, only a very foolhardy person would dare to predict that this would be the end of the matter and that the demand for private presidential material would not continue to grow insatiably.

All that we have said on this point was succinctly put by a distinguished constitutional lawyer, Charles ²³ See Pres. Br. 68 n. 51.

L. Black, Jr., who has observed that refusal to disclose communications of the kind involved in this litigation is not only the President's lawful privilege but his duty as well, for it is a measure necessary to the protection of the proper conduct of his office, not only by him but, much more importantly, by his successors for all time to come.

* * * * *

It is hard for me to see how any person of common sense could think that those consultative and decisional processes that are the essence of the Presidency could be carried on to any good effect, if every participant spoke or wrote in continual awareness that at any moment any Congressional committee, or any prosecutor working with a grand jury, could at will command the production of the verbatim record of every word written or spoken. Black, "Mr. Nixon, the Tapes, and Common Sense" New York Times, August 3, 1973, page 31.²⁴

Although the Presidency will survive if the lower court's decision is allowed to stand, it will be different from the office contemplated by the Framers and occupied by Presidents, from George Washington through today.

III. THE CONSTITUTIONAL PRIVILEGE HAS NOT BEEN WAIVED

The Special Prosecutor purports to offer the Court an easy solution to the hard problems of this case when he says:

the Court must use its process to acquire all relevant evidence to lay before the jury. In the present context it can do so with the least consequences for confidentiality of other matters and future deliberations of the Executive Branch by ruling that there has been a waiver with respect to this entire affair. (S.P. Br. 123).

The Court is offered three theories on which the Special Prosecutor thinks a holding of waiver can be justified. These are the President's statement of May 22, 1973, authorizing his aides to testify about Watergate-related matters (S.P. Br. 119), the President's release to the public of transcripts from 43 Watergate-related Presidential conversations (S.P.

Br. 119),²⁵ and the fact that H. R. Haldeman has been permitted to hear tapes of selected conversations (S.P. Br. 122). Neither singly nor together do any of these waive the President's privilege not to disclose other conversations that are still confidential.

It is of course a truism that ordinary evidentiary privileges can be waived, as the cases discussed by the Special Prosecutor indicate. (S.P. Br. 117-121). But the separation-of-powers notions that underlie what is commonly referred to as "executive privilege" are such that ordinary common law notions of waiver are wholly inapplicable here. The privilege refers to the power of the President to decide whether or not the public interest permits disclosure of particular information. Because the President determines that the public interest permits making public certain information or because he determines that it is in the public interest to disclose other information to those persons in and out of government in whom he has confidence and from whom he seeks advice, he is not thereby precluded from determining that still other information must, in the public interest, be kept in confidence. The matter was well put by Professor Alexander Bickel:

Again, the issue is not whether the President has waived his privilege to keep the tapes secret. To the extent that it exists and with respect to matter that it covers, I do not see how the privilege can be waived. Naturally, if a document or a tape is no longer confidential because it has been made public, it would be nonsense to claim that it is privileged, and nobody would trouble to subpoena it either, since it would be available.

But nature and reason of the privilege are rather to repose in the President and in him alone the subjective judgment whether to maintain privacy or release information—and which, and how much, and when, and to whom. Far from being waived, the privilege, it seems to me, is as much exercised when information is released as when it is withheld. Bickel, "Wretched Tapes (cont.)," New York Times, August 15, 1973, p. 33.

A constitutionally-based privilege, which exists only so that the President, like the courts and like Congress, ²⁴See the fuller expression of Professor Black's view in Cong. Rec. E5320-E5322 (daily ed. August 1, 1973); see also Carr, Bernstein, Morrison, Snyder, & McLean, American Democracy in Theory and Practice 609-610 (1956); Winter, Watergate and The Law 55 (American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research 1974).

²⁵The President stated in his Formal Claim of Privilege (J.A. 48a) that he advanced no claim of privilege with respect to those portions of 20 tape recorded conversations for which transcripts have been made public. Accordingly, those portions of the 20 tapes are not at issue in this case as the President has no objection to judicial authentication.

can function effectively hardly vanishes because, in Professor Black's phrase, "little mousetraps of 'waiver' are sprung." Letter of Prof. Charles L. Black, Jr., Cong. Rec. E5320, E5323 (daily ed. August 1, 1973).

Nor is there any merit in the argument that by allowing his aides to testify on Watergate matters, the President waived privilege as to tape recordings. There is an inherent distinction between testimonial evidence and tape recorded conversations. This distinction is emphasized and evidenced by the very existence of the present dispute. It should be obvious—and the published transcripts that have been released vividly confirm—that recordings are the raw material of life. By their very nature they contain spontaneous, informal, tentative, and frequently pungent comments on a variety of subjects inextricably intertwined into one conversation. It is precisely with that distinction in mind, and with a strong desire that the truth about Watergate be brought out, that the President has not asserted a presidential privilege with regard to testimony about possible criminal conduct or discussions of possible criminal conduct. But testimony can be confined to the relevant portions of the conversations and can be limited to matters that do not endanger other privileged matters. Recordings cannot be so confined and limited, Alderman v. United States, 394 U.S. 165, 182 (1969), and thus the President has concluded that to produce recordings would do serious damage to presidential privacy and to the ability of that office to function effectively.

The distinction between testimonial evidence and other forms of tangible evidence is not only recognized by the executive branch, as there is a common congressional practice in waiving congressional privilege and authorizing oral testimony by congressional staff members in court, but refusing to permit submission of related tangible material. See Nixon v. Sirica, 487 F. 2d 700, 772 (D.C. Cir. 1973) (Wilkey, J., dissenting), citing United States v. Brewster, 408 U.S. 501 (1972), and 118 Cong. Rec. S. 16,766, 92nd Cong. 2d Sess. (October 4, 1972) See also S. Res. 338, 120 Cong. Rec. 4973, 93rd Cong., 2d Sess. (daily ed., June 12, 1974).

The distinction has been recognized also in this Court. Indeed the short answer to the Special Prosecutor's claim of waiver with regard to the materials now sought may be found in United States v. Reynolds, 345 U.S. 1 (1953). In that case the United States refused to produce an Air Force investigation report of an airplane crash as well as written statements by the survivors of the crash. It offered to allow the survivors to give depositions and to testify as to all matters except those of a "classified nature." The Supreme Court sustained the claim of privilege with regard to the documents sought. The offer to allow the witnesses to testify, far from being a waiver of privilege as to the documents, was expressly relied on by the Supreme Court as a reason for upholding the claim of privilege. 345 U.S. at 11. Similarly, the court of appeals in Senate Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities v. Nixon, No. 74-1258 (D.C. Cir., May 23, 1974), regarded an identical waiver argument, offered by the plaintiffs in that case, as so lacking in substance that it did not merit discussion in the opinion.

Finally, there is much weight in a point made by Judge MacKinnon in his dissent in Nixon v. Sirica, 487 F. 2d 700, 758-759 (D.C. Cir. 1973). He wrote:

There has been no waiver. This conclusion rests upon three factors: the strict standards applied to privileges of this nature to determine waiver; the distinction between oral testimony and tape recordings; and, most important, considerations of public policy that argue persuasively for a privilege that permits the Chief Executive to disclose information on topics of national concern without that which properly ought to be withheld in the public interest.

Like Judge MacKinnon, we think that the most important of these points is the one last stated. Plainly the country is best served when there is the maximum disclosure possible from the Executive, consistent with the requirements of the public interest. This President, like his predecessors, has always acted on that principle. Disclosure has been the rule and claim of privilege the rare exception. But if this Court were to accept the Special Prosecutor's beguiling suggestion that this case can be decided on a narrow ground of waiver, the inevitable long-term consequence must be less disclosure, not more, since Presidents will be reluctant to make public even those things that can be released without harm to the public interest, if by doing so they may be held to have waived their constitutional privilege to withhold related information that the nation's interests require be kept confidential.

IV. THE SPECIAL NATURE OF THE PRESIDENCY

The Special Prosecutor states an obvious and important truth when he reminds us that "in our system even the President is under the law.” (S.P. Br. 68) (emphasis in original). A fundamental error that permeates his brief, however, is his failure to recognize the extraordinary nature of the Presidency in our system and that the Framers, who fully understood this, provided an extraordinary mechanism for making a President subject to the law.

The President is not merely an individual, to be treated in the same way as any other person who has information that may be relevant in a criminal prosecution. He is not, as the Special Prosecutor erroneously suggests, merely “the head of the Executive Branch.” (S.P. Br. 79) (emphasis in original). Instead, as we pointed out at the beginning of this brief, it was announced by this Court more than a century ago, and since reiterated, that “the President is the Executive Department.” Mississippi v. Johnson, 4 Wall. (71 U.S.) 475, 500 (1867). So much is apparent from the Constitution itself. Article II begins with the simple but sweeping declaration: “The executive Power shall be vested in a President of the United States of America” (emphasis added). In addition, the President, as this Court has recognized, is, more than any other officer of government the representative of all of the people. Myers v. United States, 272 U.S. 52, 123 (1926). Chief Justice Taft went on to say that as the President is elected for four years, with the mandate of the people to exercise his executive power under the Constitution, there would seem to be no reason for construing that instrument in such a way as to limit and hamper that power beyond the limitations of it, expressed or fairly implied.

It was no mere happenstance that all executive power was vested in a single person, the President. This was a subject of recurring debate at the Constitutional Convention. Suggestions of a multi-member Executive were repeatedly pressed and as repeatedly rejected. It was seen, as Dr. Franklin said, as “a point of great importance.” 1 Farrand 65.

In this respect the Executive differs from the other two great branches of government. The legislative power is vested by Article I in “a Congress of the United States,” divided into two bodies and composed now of 535 members. The judicial power is, by Article III, spread among the nine Justices of this Court and the hundreds of judges of the inferior courts that Congress has seen fit to ordain and establish. But one person, and one person alone, is entrusted by Article II with the awesome task of exercising the executive power of the United States. “The President is the Executive Department.” This difference, as we shall develop below, has important consequences. It serves to distinguish many of the cases relied on by the Special Prosecutor, involving as they do individual members of the legislative and judicial branches. Specifically, the particular position the President occupies in our constitutional scheme means that the courts cannot issue compulsory process to compel him to exercise powers entrusted to him in a certain way, that, so long as he is President, he is not subject to criminal process, and that, as a logical corollary, he may not, while President, be named as an unindicted co-conspirator.

Of course, as we have already pointed out (Pres. Br. 52 n. 45), the Framers did not want a king, and Hamilton devoted all of the 69th Federalist to demonstrating that the Presidency, as created in the Constitution, bore no resemblance to the monarchy from which the colonists had successfully rebelled. The term of the President is limited to four years. The legislative branch controls the national purse strings, the war power, and the general policy direction of government. The President is given only a limited veto, subject to being overridden, over legislative acts. He is given no role whatever in the process of constitutional amendment. Finally, and most important for present purposes, the President may be removed from office by conviction on impeachment, and after he has left office, either through expiration of his term or by conviction on impeachment, he is subject to prosecution for crimes that he may have committed.

We have already developed in detail the process by which the impeachment provisions of the Constitution took form. (Pres. Br. 95–104). The language of Article I, section 3, clause 4, can hardly be read in any other way than that indictment of a President can only follow his conviction on impeachment. This was certainly the understanding of the delegates at Philadelphia, of the contemporary expositors of the Constitution, and of students of constitutional law from 1787 until today.

There is nothing in United States v. Isaacs, 493 F. 2d 1124 (7th Cir. 1974), cert. denied — U.S. —, (June 17, 1974), that is contrary to what we have just said. A judge of a court of appeals is not the judicial branch. He is a part of that branch, but the Judiciary can function uninterrupted during those rare occasions when a single judge is forced to stand trial on a criminal charge. The Presidency cannot function if the President is preoccupied with the defense of a criminal case, and the thought of a President exercising his great powers from a jail cell boggles the mind.²⁶

The President, as we have noted, is the Executive Department. If he could be enjoined, restrained, indicted, arrested, or ordered by judges, grand juries, or marshals, these individuals would have the power to control the executive branch. This would nullify the separation of powers and the co-equality of the Executive.

The conclusion that the President is not subject to indictment while in office is consistent also with a proper ordering of government. When this principal national leader, elected by all of the people, is to be removed, it is proper that the removal be considered and accomplished only by a body that, like the President, is politically representative of the whole Nation. Impeachment is a process designed to deal with the problem of criminal conduct by the President and yet still preserve the majoritarian character of the Republic. Criminal indictments or judicial orders cannot provide the tools to remove or limit a whole branch of government, and were not contemplated by the Founders for such a purpose. Only the branch of government that represents the people who elected the President, the legislative branch, can take actions that will in any way remove or tend to remove a President from office. This is the function of Congress, not of a grand jury.

For reasons that we have already fully developed (Pres. Br. 107-115), it follows a fortiori from the non-indictability of an incumbent President that he cannot be named as an unindicted co-conspirator, and that the action of the grand jury in this case must be ordered expunged. The ability of a President to function is severely crippled if a grand jury, an official part of the judicial branch, can make a finding that a President has been party to a criminal conspiracy and make this in a form that does not allow that finding to be reviewed or contested and disproved." To allow this would be a mockery of due process and would deny to Presidents of the United States even those minimal protections that the Constitution extends to prison inmates subject to disciplinary proceedings. Wolff v. McDonnell, — U.S. —, No. 73-679 (June 26, 1974).

²⁶ It is also worthwhile noting that at the Convention the discussion of impeachment was wholly in terms of a remedy against the President. Berger, Impeachment: The Constitutional Problems 100 (1973). The inclusion in Article II, section 4, of the "Vice President, and all Civil Officers of the United States" was made without discussion in the closing hours of the Convention. 2 Farrand 575.

If the grand jury had before it evidence, competent or otherwise, United States v. Calandra, 414 U.S. 338 (1974), that led it to think that the President had been party to a crime, its only permissible course of action was to transmit that evidence to the House Judiciary Committee, rather than to make a gratuitous, defamatory, and legally impermissible accusation against the President.

Presumably the Special Prosecutor advised the grand jury to make this finding, and did so with the thought that it would strengthen his hand in litigation such as the present case (P.S.A. 8). If the President could be considered a co-conspirator, then all of his statements would arguably come within the exception to the hearsay rule and would meet the requirement of Rule 17(c) that subpoenaed material must be evidentiary in nature. In addition, this impermissible finding is relied on by the Special Prosecutor for his argument (S.P. Br. 90-102) that executive privilege vanishes if there is a prima facie showing of criminality. But even if the grand jury were empowered to make this finding—and as a matter of law it cannot—we have already shown that an allegation of criminal activity does not overcome the assertion of presidential privilege (Pres. Br. 82-86), and that a grand jury finding, based as it is only on a showing of probable cause, falls far short of the prima facie showing of criminality that is required to defeat even the usual evidentiary privileges. (Pres. Br. 115-122.)²⁸

²⁷ And to suggest that the naming of a President as a criminal co-conspirator, even if unindicted, is not an "impeachment" of the President is, we submit, to play games with common words and common sense.

²⁸ The cases relied on by the Special Prosecutor (S.P. Br. 98) are not to the contrary. Such cases as Ex parte United States, 287 U.S. 241, 250 (1932), Ewing v. Mytinger & Casselberry, 339 U.S. 594, 599 (1950), and the others cited stand only for the proposition that a grand jury indictment conclusively establishes that there is probable cause to hold the person named for trial. They do not hold that the grand jury's action is an evidentiary showing of a prima facie case.

Again the Special Prosecutor is not helped by United States v. Aldridge, 484 F. 2d 655, 658 (7th Cir. 1973); United States v. Bob, 106 F. 2d 37 (2d Cir. 1939), cert. denied, 308 U.S. 589

The Special Prosecutor makes the surprising suggestion that the President enjoys no privileges or immunities.

One might infer quite plausibly from the specific grant of official privileges to Congress that no other constitutional immunity from normal legal obligations was intended for government officials or papers. (S.P. Br. 77).

But it is quite clear that the privileges given to individual members of the legislative branch by Article I, section 6, were given them for a specific and well-understood purpose. This was to protect the legislators "against possible prosecution by an unfriendly executive and conviction by a hostile judiciary . . ." United States v. Johnson, 383 U.S. 169, 179 (1966). It was "designed to assure a co-equal branch of government wide freedom of speech, debate, and deliberation without intimidation or threats from the Executive Branch." Gravel v. United States, 408 U.S. 606, 616 (1972).

The Executive needed no protection from himself. As chief of state, chief executive, commander-in-chief, and chief prosecutor, he had no need to fear intimidation by a hostile executive or prosecution by an unfriendly executive. In addition, he was protected further by the elaborate procedure for impeachment, and by his immunity from criminal process until he had been convicted on impeachment. Thus the Constitution says nothing about immunities of the Executive comparable to what it says about members of the legislative branch because to have done so would have been to guard against an evil that could never come to pass.

Even members of the executive branch do have to fear damage actions brought by private citizens, and this Court has not been slow to read into the Constitution an implied immunity to protect the Executive in this situation. The leading case is Spalding v. Vilas, (1940); or the other cases he cites with regard to attorney-client privilege. In those cases the privilege was held to vanish only after the government by proof at trial, had made a prima facie showing of criminal involvement.

Finally, the Special Prosecutor's heavy reliance on Clark v. United States, 289 U.S. 1 (1933) (S.P. Br. 95-97, 100-101, 108-109), is misplaced. Quite aside from the very different nature of the "privilege," or, more properly, rule of competency, there in issue, Justice Cardozo was quick to point out that "[i]t would be absurd to say that the privilege could be got rid of merely by making a charge of fraud," 289 U.S. at 15, and that "there must be a showing of a prima facie case sufficient to satisfy the judge that the light should be let in." 289 U.S. at 14.

161 U.S. 583 (1896), frequently relied on in this Court and always with approval. E.g., Barr v. Matteo, 360 U.S. 564, 570 (1959); Scheuer v. Rhodes, 413 U.S. 919, 927 n. 8 (1974).

The Special Prosecutor would have the Court believe that the discretion about production of documents, which it has always been recognized that Presidents have, shrinks to a mere ministerial duty to produce what is demanded whenever a court disagrees with the Chief Executive's assessment of what the public interest requires. The argument seems little more than a play on words, intended to avoid the decisions, from Marbury on, that the courts may compel ministerial acts but that they cannot interfere with discretionary decisions of high executive officers.

Nothing could be clearer than that the decision to disclose or to withhold the most intimate conversations of the President with his chief advisers involves the gravest and most far-reaching possible considerations of public policy. Who can say what the long term, or even short term, public effects of the President's decision to make public transcripts of tapes of his conversations about Watergate will be? It was a difficult and monumental decision, and no man living can predict with assurance how ultimately the history of this country, and indeed of the world, may be influenced by it. It was a discretionary decision in the most important sense, and it is nonsense to call such a disclosure it can be argued that official powers, since they exist only for the public good, never cover occasions where the public good is not their aim, and hence that to exercise a power dishonestly is necessarily to overstep its bounds. A moment's reflection shows, however, that that cannot be the meaning of the limitation without defeating the whole doctrine. What is meant by saying that the officer must be acting within his power cannot be more than that the occasion must be such as would have justified the act, if he had been using his power for any of the purposes on whose account it was vested in him . . . (177 F. 2d at 581).

²² In the Barr case this Court relied heavily, in discussing immunity for executive officers, on the well-known opinion of Judge Learned Hand in Gregoire v. Biddle, 177 F. 2d 579 (2d Cir. 1949), where judicial immunity was at issue. Several of Judge Hand's insights in that case are applicable here. Thus he says:

Again Judge Hand observed that "[t]here must indeed be means of punishing public officers who have been truant to their duties . . ." 177 F. 2d at 581. But the Constitution provides three sanctions against a truant President. He is subject to the political sanction of being defeated for reelection and to the legal sanctions of conviction on impeachment and of criminal punishment after he has been removed from office.

"ministerial" merely because the final action of disclosure can be accomplished by a messenger.

A presidential decision to release the confidential tapes or written memoranda of his meetings with his advisers involves the same basic discretion as his initial decision to make such records. Surely neither the courts nor Congress could require Presidents to make such recordings on the ground that they would then be available should there be charges of misconduct against aides to some future President.

This case must be viewed in the light that the President is the executive branch, co-equal to the multi-membered legislative and judicial branches. If that co-equality is to be preserved, the President cannot be subject to the vagaries of a grand jury nor deprived of his power to control disclosure of his most confidential communications. If he misuses his great powers, he must be proceeded against by the remedy that the Constitution has provided.

V. THE SPECIAL PROSECUTOR HAS NOT DEMONSTRATED A UNIQUE AND COMPELLING NEED FOR THIS MATERIAL

The Special Prosecutor makes the casual suggestion that "[t]here is a compelling public interest in trying the conspiracy charged in United States v. Mitchell, et al., upon all relevant and material evidence." (S.P. Br. 107). Doubtless every prosecutor in history has thought the same thing. The genius of the law, happily, has rejected that course, and in this case the Special Prosecutor's suggestion begs every important question before the Court. A prosecutor has the right to every man's evidence "except for those persons protected by a constitutional, common-law, or statutory privilege." Branzburg v. Hayes, 408 U.S. 665, 688 (1972). If, as we have argued, the materials at issue are subject to a valid privilege, based both on the Constitution and on the common law, the Special Prosecutor may not have them, no matter how relevant or material he thinks they may be, any more than he could require the defendants in this case to produce relevant and material evidence based on what they told their attorneys or based on confidential communications with their wives.

Our argument, of course, has been that the great question is, as Judge Wilkey put it, "Who Decides?", and that the answer to that question is that the President decides. But even if we are wrong on that, and the courts play a limited role under unusual circumstances, as held by the majority in Nixon v. Sirica, 487 F. 2d 700 (D.C. Cir. 1973), the showing made by the Special Prosecutor falls far short of the requirements that the court of appeals announced in that case. The court there used the terms "critical," 487 F. 2d at 706, "peculiarly necessary," 487 F. 2d at 717, and evidence "for which no effective substitute is available," 487 F. 2d at 717, to describe the grand jury's need for the tapes there under subpoena. We predicted in our initial submission that the Special Prosecutor could make no similarly compelling showing in this case (Pres. Br. 86-95), and his brief has confirmed that fact. There is not one statement in the Special Prosecutor's Brief that suggests or even implies that if he is unable to obtain the material sought, the prosecution of this case will not be successful.³⁰

The Special Prosecutor claims "that the 'unique' circumstances which led to the rejection of the President's claim of privilege in the context of a grand jury investigation have continued applicability." (S.P. Br. 107-108) He, of course, finds it convenient to ignore other salient portions of the opinion in Nixon v. Sirica that are adverse to his position. It must be remembered that the court of appeals went to great lengths in that case to limit its holding "strictly to that required by the precise and entirely unique circumstances of the case," 487 F. 2d at 705, and specifically acknowledged that "we have attempted to decide no more than the problem before us—a problem that takes its unique shape from the grand jury's compelling show of need." 487 F. 2d at 722.

The Special Prosecutor cites Committee for Nuclear Responsibility v. Seaborg, 463 F. 2d 788 (D.C. Cir. 1971), to illustrate the possible consequences of not overcoming a privilege. (S.P. Br. 108). For "[o]therwise the head of an executive department would have the power on his own say-so to cover up all evidence of fraud and corruption when a federal court or grand jury was investigating malfeasance in office, and this is not the law." 463 F. 2d at 794. (emphasis added).

³⁰ It is significant that on June 3, 1974, Charles W. Colson pleaded guilty to the felony of obstructing justice, 18 U.S.C. § 1503, in the case of United States v. Ehrlichman, et al., (D.D.C. Cr. No. 74-116) and subsequently all other charges against him were dismissed. Thus, assuming arguendo the Special Prosecutor does have a need for the subpoenaed items, the fact that Colson is no longer a defendant, certainly diminishes considerably, if not obviates completely, any need the Special Prosecutor may have ever had for subpoenaed items numbered: 1, 4, 5, 6, 13 and 17.

But such a consequence is obviously not possible in our present situation³¹ where the President has already permitted his closest aides and advisors to give public and grand jury testimony. In addition, voluminous documents and materials have been submitted to the Special Prosecutor, to the congressional committees investigating Watergate, and to the public at large. As a result, grand jury indictments have been returned, and a number of convictions have already been obtained. There can be no valid assertion that if the privilege is not overcome in the present case, the consequences stated in Seaborg would result. The Seaborg case, rather than supplying reasons for overcoming the privilege in this case, illustrates the absence of any reason for doing so.

We have previously argued that the Special Prosecutor has failed to satisfy the requirements of Criminal Rule 17(c) for subpoenaed material. (Pres. Br. 122-133). We continue to believe that. Although in general we do not disagree with the propositions of law advanced by the Special Prosecutor on this issue,³² we take serious issue with his application of the law to the facts of this case, and particularly to his attempt, implicit in his discussion of the facts, to shift the burden on the issue of relevancy to the President. The Special Prosecutor is seeking the materials. He must show that the documents are evidentiary and relevant. It is not for the President to prove that they are not.

³¹ This fact is conceded by the Special Prosecutor, who in order to support his waiver theory freely admits that the President has "authorized voluminous testimony and other statements concerning Watergate-related discussions and his recent release of 1216 pages of transcript . . ." (S.P. Br. 116-117), and that "there has been extensive testimony in several forums concerning the substance of the recorded conversations now sought for use at the trial in United States v. Mitchell, et al." (S.P. Br. 118-119).

³² We do take issue with the suggestion that the subpoena upheld in Bowman Dairy Co. v. United States, 341 U.S. 214 (1951), was much less particular than the subpoena in the present case. (S.P. Br. 126). The subpoena in Bowman was specifically limited to the documents, books, records, and objects "which were either presented to the grand jury or would be offered as evidence at trial." 341 U.S. at 217. This was a much more particularized showing of relevance and admissibility than the Special Prosecutor has made.

His reference to United States v. Carter, 15 F.R.D. 367, 371 (D.D.C. 1954), for the proposition that Rule 17(c) reaches materials useful for impeachment (S.P. Br. 128) is misleading, since that case, and many others we have cited (Pres. Br. 130), hold that impeachment materials cannot be obtained in advance of trial and one must wait to see if the person in question actually testifies.

But even if there is enough in the Special Prosecutor's conclusory statements to turn the color of legal litmus paper with regard to Rule 17(c), in its application to ordinary documents, he has failed to show the critical and compelling need that is required to overcome a claim of presidential privilege even under what we think to be the too permissive standard of Nixon v. Sirica.

CONCLUSION

Two years of Watergate have left their mark on America. Apart from its impact on the lives of the many men and women involved in the events, Watergate will affect practices, attitudes, and values in our political life in ways that are diverse and lasting and, it is to be hoped, for the good. Without the passage of another law or the imposition of another sentence Watergate will have wrought a great change in American life. But the processes of the law that have been set in motion by that set of events must run their course. What remains to be seen is whether the tides that surge about Watergate will alter the relationship among the branches of government; whether, in short, the complex and sensitive balance of our constitutional structure will be impaired.

Our last word is therefore essentially a neutral one. In choosing this closing note we do not abandon our expectations for success or our conviction that we are right. We simply recognize that there has been enough argument about the powers and privileges of particular individuals who happen to occupy high office in the three branches and exercise their authority temporarily and in a representative capacity. For in the final analysis it is the Constitution we are all analyzing, arguing, expounding, and, in a sense of mutuality, undertaking to protect for the long life of the Nation.

In this setting the terminal question is: What decision best defends the constitutional structure of American government? What decision lifts the resolution of this case above the passions of this moment in history and safeguards the strengths and integrity of the Constitution against the exigencies of an unknown and unknowable future? There is no doubt about the power, indeed the responsibility, of the Court to answer justiciable questions that are appropriately posed about the meaning of the Constitution. Nor, in our submission, is there any question but that the central idea of the Constitution is the distribution of power among the separate branches and the resolution of controversy and disagreement by accommodation rather than confrontation. A constitution is a way of governing, not a set of codified specifications for the resolution of disputes among the sovereign branches. There are blank spaces on the constitutional canvas that must be left untouched if the Constitution is to bear the same creative relation to our future that it has to our past.

In our briefs, we and the Special Prosecutor have cited Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. v. Sawyer, 343 U.S. 579 (1952), to support conflicting arguments. We quote the opening words of Mr. Justice Frankfurter's concurring opinion, confident in the knowledge that they reflect beliefs we and the Special Prosecutor hold in common:

Before the cares of the White House were his own, President Harding is reported to have said that government after all is a very simple thing. He must have said that, if he said it, as a fleeting inhabitant of fairyland. The opposite is the truth. A constitutional democracy like ours is perhaps the most difficult of man's social arrangements to manage successfully. Our scheme of society is more dependent than any other form of government on knowledge and wisdom and self-discipline for the achievement of its aims.

* * * * *

Rigorous adherence to the narrow scope of the judicial function is especially demanded in controversies that arouse appeals to the Constitution. The attitude with which this Court must approach its duty when confronted with such issues is precisely the opposite of that normally manifested by the general public. So-called constitutional questions seem to exercise a mesmerizing influence over the popular mind. This eagerness to settle—preferably forever—a specific problem on the basis of the broadest possible constitutional pronouncements may not unfairly be called one of our minor national traits. An English observer of our scene has acutely described it: 'At the first sound of a new argument over the United States Constitution and its interpretation the hearts of Americans leap with a fearful joy. The blood stirs powerfully in their veins and a new lustre brightens their eyes. Like King Harry's men before Harfleur, they stand like greyhounds in the slips, straining upon the start.' The Economist, May 10, 1952, p. 370.

The path of duty for this Court, it bears repetition, lies in the opposite direction. (343 U.S. at 593-594).

Respectfully submitted,

JAMES D. ST. CLAIR
MICHAEL A. STERLACCI
JEROME J. MURPHY
LOREN A. SMITH
JAMES R. PROCHNOW
EUGENE R. SULLIVAN
JEAN A. STAUDT
JAMES J. TANSEY
Attorneys for the President

Of Counsel

CHARLES ALAN WRIGHT
LEONARD GARMENT

The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500
Telephone Number: 456-1414

July 1, 1974

Council on International Economic Policy

Announcement of Intention To Nominate William D. Eberle To Be Executive Director. July 1, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate William D. Eberle to be Executive Director of the Council on International Economic Policy. He will succeed Peter M. Flanigan, who has resigned to return to private life. Mr. Eberle has been Special Representative for Trade Negotiations, with the rank of Ambassador, since November 1971, and he will continue in that position.

He is Chairman of the interagency trade organization established by the Trade Expansion Act of 1962 and is the chief representative of the United States in trade agreement negotiations. He is also a member of the Council on International Economic Policy.

Mr. Eberle was born on June 5, 1923, in Boise, Idaho. He received his A.B. degree from Stanford University in 1945 and his M.B.A. from Harvard University Graduate School of Business in 1947.

He was a partner in the Boise, Idaho, law firm of Richards, Hago & Eberle from 1950 to 1960, when he became vice president of Boise Cascade Corp. in Boise. In 1966, he was named president of American Standard, Inc., in New York City. He was chairman of American Standard when he was named Special Representative for Trade Negotiations in 1971.

Mr. Eberle has been co-chairman of the Urban Coalition, a director of the National Industrial Conference Board and the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, and a trustee of Stanford University and the Committee on Economic Development.

He is married to the former Jean Quick of New York City. They have four children.

Energy Conservation

Statement by the President After Receiving Reports on Energy Savings by the Federal Government and Business and Industry. July 2, 1974

The energy crisis in America has passed, but the energy challenge is as great as ever. Our goal must be to develop the capacity for self-sufficiency in energy, and to achieve this goal we must continue our efforts to both expand energy supplies and conserve energy.

In June of last year, I directed the Federal departments and agencies to reduce their anticipated energy consumption by at least 7 percent over the succeeding 12-month period. At the same time, I appealed to consumers, to industry, and to other organizations to join in a nationwide, voluntary campaign of energy conservation.

John C. Sawhill, the Administrator of the Federal Energy Administration, has now reported to me on the progress of the Federal effort. The achievements are impressive. During the third quarter of the Federal program, savings in the nondefense agencies amounted to 19 percent of anticipated energy usage, while savings by the Defense Department rose to 31 percent. The composite savings of 30 percent for the quarter exceed the records of 20 and 26 percent, respectively, achieved during the first and second quarters of fiscal year 1974. Figures for the fourth quarter are not yet available, but when they are, we are confident that the Federal Government will have far exceeded our original goals for the year.

The total savings for the first 9 months of the Federal program represent the equivalent of 75 million barrels of oil or approximately $600 million in reduced costs to the taxpayer for energy.

I am also pleased by a report I have received from the Secretary of Commerce, Frederick B. Dent, on the progress made by business in response to the voluntary program I asked him to undertake with the business community. He reports that energy consumption in the industrial sector was reduced by 5 percent per unit of output during the period of October 1973 through January 1974. This rate of savings, which the Secretary expects will be maintained or exceeded in 1974 by all of commerce and industry, represents an annual savings of the equivalent of 425 million barrels of oil. He indicates that 8,000 chief executives have pledged to undertake energy management programs and that some individual companies are reporting savings in excess of 20 percent. Many companies are also reporting that improved energy management is reducing their costs and increasing productivity. Since private industry accounts for approximately 65 percent or two-thirds of our country's energy consumption, these savings will have a significant impact upon our national consumption levels.

We learned last winter that all of us can contribute to energy conservation. Voluntary actions by millions of Americans were a critically important factor in bringing our Nation through the oil crisis. The continuing accomplishments of the Federal Government and of business and industry should serve as a splendid example of the way that further savings can be achieved and, as part of Project Independence, will advance us toward our ultimate goal of self-sufficiency in energy.

I welcome this opportunity to commend the Federal departments and agencies as well as private industry for their fine leadership. In the final analysis, of course, their efforts alone are not enough. Every American must join in this cause. Our ability to achieve energy independence will depend heavily upon the conservation efforts of all segments—consumers, business, and government.

Federal Energy Administration

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Robert E. Montgomery, Jr., To Be General Counsel. July 2, 1974

The President is announcing his intention to nominate Robert E. Montgomery, Jr., of Virginia, to be General Counsel of the Federal Energy Administration. Mr. Montgomery has been serving as Assistant General Counsel of the Federal Trade Commission since March 1973.

Mr. Montgomery was born on March 15, 1939, in Pittsburgh, Pa. A Rhodes scholar, he received his B.S. degree from the United States Military Academy in 1960 and his M.A. from Magdalen College, Oxford University, England in 1963. He received his J.D. from the University of California School of Law in 1969, where he was editor-in-chief of the California Law Review.

He served as a captain in the U.S. Army from 1963 to 1969. In 1969, he became Assistant to the General Counsel, Department of the Army, at the Pentagon. In 1971, he became General Counsel in the Office of Consumer Affairs before his appointment as Assistant General Counsel of the Federal Trade Commission.

Mr. Montgomery is a resident of Alexandria, Va., and is married to the former Sandra Jennings. They have three children.

Federal Energy Administration

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Roger West Sant To Be Assistant Administrator for Conservation and Environment. July 2, 1974

The President is announcing his intention to nominate Roger West Sant, of California, to be an Assistant Administrator (Conservation and Environment) of the Federal Energy Administration. Since 1971, Mr. Sant has been the vice president for planning and development of the Saga Administrative Corp. in Menlo Park, Calif.

Mr. Sant was born on May 24, 1931, in Los Angeles, Calif. He received his B.S. degree from Brigham Young University in 1955 and his M.B.A. with distinction from Harvard University Graduate School of Business in 1960. He was the recipient of the Donald Kirk David Fellowship as the outstanding student from the Northwest.

He served as a financial analyst with the Hewlett Packard Co. from 1960 to 1961 before becoming controller-treasurer and chief financial officer and a member of the board of directors of Williams Instrument and Research in 1962. In 1965, he was named vice president for finance and controller of the Syntex Laboratories of Palo Alto, Calif. He was a lecturer in finance at the Stanford Graduate School of Business in 1968 before joining the Saga Corp. in 1971.

He is married to the former Victoria Post. They have four children.

Railway Labor-Management Dispute

Announcement of Report of Emergency Board No. 185 Investigating the Dispute Between Certain Railroads and Sheet Metal Workers. July 2, 1974

Emergency Board No. 185, appointed on May 21, 1974, by Executive Order 11783, has submitted its report to the President.

The Board was created pursuant to the President's authority under Section 10 of the Railway Labor Act to avert a potential work stoppage against the Nation's railroads by some 5,300 sheet metal mechanics represented by the Sheet Metal Workers' International Association, AFL-CIO.

The issues in the dispute included the union's proposal for a 16 percent wage increase and a cost-of-living escalator clause to be included in its new agreement. These proposals, considerably larger in magnitude than those agreed upon during 1973 by the unions representing the overwhelming bulk of organized railroad employees, were based upon the rapid inflation in consumer price levels that have taken place since other key railroad settlements were made nearly a year ago. The Sheet Metal Workers also proposed changes and clarifications in several of the working rules affecting their craft.

The Board recommended that the association accept the pattern railroad settlement of a 4 percent wage increase effective January 1, 1974, and recommended that the association withdraw its proposal that a cost-of-living escalator clause be included in this current agreement. The basis for the Board's recommendations was that the combination of the proposed general wage increase and the carrier pickup of a substantial proportion of employees' former contributions into the railroad retirement fund approximated a 10 percent increase in employee net spendable income during 1973-74. The Sheet Metal Workers' spendable income would therefore remain equal with inflation during their current contract. The Board noted that the Sheet Metal Workers will participate in the negotiations for the next round of railroad collective bargaining that are about to begin. The Board also recommended a modified approach to the emergency force reduction rule which applies when employees are temporarily furloughed because of storms, floods, or work stoppages against a railroad carrier.

NOTE: The 16-page "Report to the President by Emergency Board No. 185, Appointed by Executive Order 11783, Dated May 21, 1974, Pursuant to Section 10 of the Railway Labor Act, as Amended" was made available with the release.

For Executive Order 11783, see page 535 of this volume of the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents.

Independence Day, 1974

Statement by the President. July 3, 1974

The Fourth of July is a uniquely American holiday. But it is also a holiday that echoes the hopes and aspirations of people throughout the world. In each of my trips abroad, I have seen tangible evidence of people's basic belief in the value of the principles that underlie our Republic, and outpouring of affection and respect for the Nation that Abraham Lincoln called "the last, best hope of earth".

On this Independence Day, as we celebrate our Nation's birth, let us pledge that by our example, we will continue to carry to the people of other lands the basic American message of independence, liberty, and human dignity.

Digest of Other White House Announcements

Following is a listing of items of general interest which were announced to the press during the period covered by this issue but which are not carried elsewhere in the issue.

June 25

Following their arrival in Brussels, Belgium, the President and Mrs. Nixon called on King Baudouin and Queen Fabiola at the Royal Palace. The President then met at the Royal Palace with Belgian Prime Minister Leo Tindermans and Foreign Minister Renaat Van Elslande.

June 26

The President held separate meetings with Chancellor Helmut Schmidt of the Federal Republic of Germany, Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Great Britain, and Prime Minister Mariano Rumor of Italy at the residence of the United States Ambassador to Belgium.

The President hosted a reception at the U.S. Ambassador's residence for delegates to the NATO meeting, senior NATO staff members, senior Belgian officials, and U.S. officials in Brussels.

June 27

The President and Mrs. Nixon left Brussels and flew to Moscow, where they were greeted at Vnukovo II Airport by General Secretary Brezhnev, President Podgorny, Premier Kosygin, Foreign Minister Gromyko, and Ambassador Dobrynin.

June 28

During his visit to Moscow, the President went to the Aleksandrov Gardens to lay a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

The President and Mrs. Nixon, in the evening, attended a performance at the Bolshoi Theater.

June 29

The President and General Secretary Brezhnev left Moscow and went to Oreanda in the Ukraine where they continued their discussions.

June 30

The President and General Secretary Brezhnev went for a cruise on a Soviet naval yacht on the Black Sea.

July 1

The President and Mrs. Nixon left Oreanda and went to Minsk. During his visit to Minsk, the President participated in wreath-laying ceremonies at the Victory Monument in Minsk and at the Khatyn Memorial near the city.

The President and Mrs. Nixon returned to Moscow.

July 3

Following departure ceremonies at Vnukovo II Airport, the President and Mrs. Nixon returned to the United States. Upon arrival at Loring Air Force Base, Maine, the President reported to the Nation on his trip. The President and Mrs. Nixon then continued on to their home in Key Biscayne, Fla.

NOMINATIONS SUBMITTED TO THE SENATE

NOTE: The Senate being in recess, no nominations were submitted during the period covered by this issue.

CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES

The following releases of the Office of the White House Press Secretary, distributed during the period covered by this issue, are not included in the issue.

Released June 26, 1974

News conference: on the President's upcoming summit meeting with Soviet leaders—by Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, Secretary of State

Released June 28, 1974

News conference: on meetings between President Nixon and General Secretary Brezhnev—by Ronald L. Ziegler, Press Secretary to the President, and L. M. Zamyatin, Director General, TASS

Fact sheet: U.S.-U.S.S.R. agreement on cooperation in the field of energy

Fact sheet: U.S.-U.S.S.R. agreement on cooperation in the field of housing and other construction

Fact sheet: U.S.-U.S.S.R. agreement on cooperation in artificial heart research and development

News conference: on U.S.-U.S.S.R. agreements on energy, housing construction, and heart research—by Ronald L. Ziegler, Press Secretary to the President, and Arthur A. Hartman, Assistant Secretary for European Affairs, Department of State

CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES—Continued

Released June 29, 1974

Fact sheet: U.S.-U.S.S.R. long term agreement to facilitate economic, industrial, and technical cooperation

News conference: on the U.S.-U.S.S.R. long term agreement to facilitate economic, industrial, and technical cooperation—by Ronald L. Ziegler, Press Secretary to the President, L. M. Zamyatin, Director General, TASS, and Arthur A. Hartman, Assistant Secretary for European Affairs, Department of State

Released June 30, 1974

News conference: on meetings between President Nixon and General Secretary Brezhnev at Oreanda, Ukrainian S.S.R.—by Ronald L. Ziegler, Press Secretary to the President, and L. M. Zamyatin, Director General, TASS.

Released July 1, 1974

Statement: on House Judiciary Committee procedures—by Dean Burch, Counsellor to the President

Released July 2, 1974

Advance text: the President's radio and television address to the people of the Soviet Union

Released July 3, 1974

Fact sheet: Protocol to the ABM treaty

ACTS APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT

Approved June 30, 1974

H.J. Res. 1056..... Public Law 93-323
Joint resolution to extend by thirty days the expiration date of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

H.J. Res. 1057..... Public Law 93-327
Joint resolution to extend by thirty days the expiration date of the Export Administration Act of 1969.

H.J. Res. 1061..... Public Law 93-321
Joint resolution making further urgent supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1974, for the Veterans Administration, and for other purposes.

H.J. Res. 1062..... Public Law 93-324
Joint resolution making continuing appropriations for the fiscal year 1975, and for other purposes.

H.R. 8586..... Public Law 93-330
An act to authorize the foreign sale of the passenger vessel steamship Independence.

H.R. 14854..... Public Law 93-326
National School Lunch and Child Nutrition Act Amendments of 1974.

H.R. 14434..... Public Law 93-322
Special Energy Research and Development Appropriation Act, 1975.

H.R. 14832..... Public Law 93-325
An act to provide for a temporary increase in the public debt limit.

H.R. 14833..... Public Law 93-329
An act to extend the Renegotiation Act of 1951 for eighteen months.

S. 411..... Public Law 93-328
An act to amend title 39, United States Code, with respect to certain rates of postage, and for other purposes.

Editor's Note

Note Concerning the Closing Time of This Issue

The President was in Florida at the cutoff time of this issue. Releases issued there but not received in time for inclusion in the issue will be printed next week.

CUMULATIVE INDEX TO PRIOR ISSUES

Second Quarter, 1974

[See Index of Contents for Documents in this Issue]

Aaron, Henry.....	388	Addresses and Remarks of the President—Continued		Appointments and Nominations
Acts approved. See last page of text in each issue		Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, departure from Washington.....	718	Administrative Conference of the United States, Council, Vice Chairman.....	408
Adair, E. Ross.....	569	United States Naval Academy, commencement.....	575	Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations.....	410
Adams, Andrew S.....	445	Veterans affairs, radio address.....	378	Advisory Council on Historic Preservation.....	556
Addict Treatment Act of 1974, Narcotic.....	520, 529	Administrative Conference of the United States.....	408	Advisory Council for Minority Enterprise.....	411
Addresses and Remarks of the President		Adult Education, National Advisory Council on.....	569	Advisory Council on Spanish-Speaking Americans, member.....	600
Belgium, departure from Washington.....	718	Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations.....	410	Agency for International Development, Deputy Administrator.....	380, 389
Cancer control, proclamation signing ceremony.....	382	Advisory Council on Historic Preservation.....	556	Agriculture Department, Assistant Secretary.....	380, 389
Chamber of Commerce, annual dinner.....	470	Advisory Council on Intergovernmental Personnel Policy, abolishment.....	721	Air Force Academy, U.S., Board of Visitors.....	429
Colorado River Basin Salinity Control Act, signing ceremony.....	716	Advisory Council for Minority Enterprise.....	411	Air Force Department Assistant Secretary.....	422, 447
Comprehensive Health Insurance Plan, radio address to Nation.....	532	Advisory Council on Spanish-Speaking Americans.....	600	Chief of Staff.....	527, 529
Daughters of the American Revolution.....	418	Aeronautics Board, Civil.....	524, 548	Air Quality Advisory Board.....	406
Disaster Relief Act of 1974, signing ceremony.....	535	Aeronautics and space, annual report.....	393	Ambassadors, United States
Drug addiction and alcohol abuse bills.....	520	African Development Bank.....	437	Bahamas.....	541, 570
Economy, national, radio address to the Nation.....	549	African Development Fund.....	437	Bahrain.....	445, 488
Federal Energy Administration Act of 1974, signing ceremony.....	497	Agee, James L.....	719, 726	Burundi.....	601, 609
International Exposition on the Environment.....	493, 494	Agency. See other part of title		Costa Rica.....	438, 488
Meetings with foreign leaders		Agnew, Harold Melvin.....	558, 570	Cyprus.....	429, 447
See also Middle East visit		Agriculture, Department of Assistant Secretaries.....	380, 389, 724	Dahomey.....	714, 726
Egypt, Ambassador Ashraf Ghorbal.....	425	Secretary.....	493, 606, 650, 653	Malawi.....	540, 570
Latin American and Caribbean Foreign Ministers.....	414	Agriculture and agricultural programs, cooperation with Egypt.....	625	Malta.....	601, 609
Mexico, Senate President Enrique Olivares Santana.....	522	Ahmanson, Caroline.....	600	Oman.....	483
Saudi Arabia, Prince Fahd.....	582	Ahmed, Aziz.....	547	Qatar.....	506, 529
Memorial Day, 1974, radio address to Nation.....	553	Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC).....	377	Sweden.....	389
Mexico-United States Interparliamentary Conference, 14th.....	522	Aikens, Joan.....	487	United Arab Emirates.....	439, 488
Michigan, Congressional campaign tour.....	397-402	Air Force, Department of the Assistant Secretary.....	422, 447	Upper Volta.....	541, 570
Middle East visit		Chief of Staff.....	527, 529	Zaire.....	483
Alexandria, Egypt.....	616, 618	Secretary.....	527	Asian Development Bank, U.S. Governor.....	570
Amman, Jordan.....	641, 645	Air Force Academy, U.S., Board of Visitors.....	429	Board of Foreign Scholarships.....	556
Azores.....	647	Air Quality Advisory Board.....	406	Board for International Broadcasting.....	405, 447
Cairo, Egypt.....	612, 614	Alabama, disaster assistance.....	386	Board of Parole.....	421, 447
Damascus, Syria.....	629, 631	Alaska		Civil Aeronautics Board.....	524, 548
Departure from Washington.....	590, 611	Disaster assistance.....	715	Coastal Plains Regional Commission, Federal Cochairman.....	431, 447
Jerusalem, Israel.....	634	Wilderness areas, proposed.....	606, 607	Commerce Department, Patent Office, Examiners-in-Chief.....	510, 529
Jidda, Saudi Arabia.....	626, 627	Alaska Railroad, report transmittal.....	547	Committee for Purchase of Products and Services of the Blind and Other Severely Handicapped, members.....	585
Principles of Relations and Cooperation Between Egypt and the United States, signing ceremony.....	620	Albert, Sen. Carl.....	594	Commodity Credit Corporation.....	427, 447, 488
Return to Washington.....	648	Albrecht, Richard R.....	723	Communications Satellite Corporation.....	548
Salsburg, Austria.....	612	Albright, Tenley E.....	404	Corporation for Public Broadcasting.....	449, 488
Tel Aviv, Israel.....	632	Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism Prevention, Treatment, and Rehabilitation Act Amendments of 1974, Comprehensive.....	520, 529	Costa Rica, delegation to inaugural ceremonies for President Quirof.....	509
Mississippi Economic Council.....	439	Alcohol and Alcoholism, National Institute on.....	529	Defense Department Assistant Secretary.....	487, 511
National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency.....	589	Alexander, Ruth Hammack.....	406	Joint Chiefs of Staff, Chairman.....	527, 529
Ohio disaster inspection tour.....		Algeria, President Houari Boumedienne, meeting with President.....	407	Defense Manpower Commission.....	423
Dayton.....	396	Allott, Gordon.....	558, 570	District of Columbia, Public Service Commission, member.....	600, 609
Kenia.....	393-395	Al Saud, Fahd ibn Abd al Aziz.....	582	Environmental Protection Agency, Assistant Administrators.....	411, 447, 719, 726
Oklahoma		Alsop, Stewart.....	553	Federal Communications Commission.....	526, 548
Enid, Vance Air Force Base.....	514	Ambassadors		Withdrawal of prior nomination.....	548
Stillwater, Oklahoma State University.....	514	Foreign, presentation of credentials, visits, etc.....	425, 586	Federal Energy Administration Administrator.....	541, 570
Phoenix, Ariz.....	489	United States. See Appointments and Nominations; Resignations and Retirements; or country to which assigned		Assistant Administrators.....	583, 609
Pompidou, Georges, memorial services.....	391	American Revolution, Daughters of the.....	418	Federal Energy Office, Administrator.....	413
Presidential tapes and documents, subpoena, address to the Nation.....	450	American Revolution Bicentennial, coins.....	423	Federal Financing Bank.....	496
Syrian-Israeli agreement on disengagement of forces.....	561	American States, Organization of.....	414	Federal Home Loan Bank Board, Chairman.....	655, 726
		Amtrak. See National Railroad Passenger Corporation
		Anderson, Stanton D.....	438, 488

Appointments and Nominations—Continued

Federal Maritime Commission, Commissioner	571, 587
Federal National Mortgage Association, Board of Directors	519
Federal Power Commission	527, 548
Federal Prison Industries, Inc., Board of Directors	446
Federal Trade Commission	449, 488
Health, Education, and Welfare Department
Assistant Secretary	421, 447
Education, Commissioner of	421, 447
Rehabilitation Services Administration, Commissioner	445
Housing and Urban Development Department
General Counsel	571, 587
Under Secretary	379, 389
Inter-American Development Bank, Governor	570
International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, U.S. Governor	570
International Commission for the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries, Commissioners	557
International Exposition on the Environment
Commissioner of Federal Exhibit	381, 389
Commissioner General	723
International Monetary Fund
U.S. Executive Director	422, 447
U.S. Governor	570
Interstate Commerce Commission, Commissioner	571, 587
Labor Department, Wage and Hour Division, Administrator	537, 570
Military Academy, U.S., Board of Visitors	429
Mississippi River Commission	510, 529
National Advisory Council on Adult Education	569
National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services, members	585
National Advisory Council on Vocational Education, members	656
National Corporation for Housing Partnerships, Board of Directors	382, 389
National Council on the Humanities, members	600
National Railroad Passenger Corporation, Board of Directors	432, 447, 525, 548
National Science Foundation, Board members	722, 726
National Transportation Safety Board, member	608, 609
National Voluntary Service Advisory Council	503
Naval Academy, U.S., Board of Visitors	429
Navy Department
Chief of Naval Operations	389
Secretary	521, 529
Under Secretary	714, 726
Nominations submitted to the Senate. See last page of text in each issue
Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, U.S. representative	445, 488
Overseas Private Investment Corporation, Board of Directors	385, 389
President's Commission on Personnel Interchange	539
President's Committee on the National Medal of Science, members	557
President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports	404
Rural Telephone Bank, Board of Directors, member	724
State Department
Chief of Protocol	377, 379
Deputy Inspector General, Foreign Assistance	392, 408
Deputy Secretary	598, 653
Under Secretary	598, 653

Appointments and Nominations—Continued

Transportation Department, Assistant Secretary	719, 726
Treasury Department
Assistant Secretary	655, 726
Deputy Secretary	723
Deputy Under Secretary	502, 529, 558
General Counsel	723
Mint, Bureau of the, Director	431, 447
Secretary	413, 447
Treasurer of the United States	558, 570
Under Secretary	502, 529, 570
Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences, Board of Regents, member	602, 609
United Nations, General Assembly, sixth special session, U.S. Representatives and Alternates	381, 389
United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, members	558, 570
U.S. attorneys
California	446, 488
Kentucky	389
Louisiana	389
Mississippi	511
Missouri	406
Montana	389
New Jersey	389
New York	446, 488
North Carolina	511
U.S. circuit judge, 7th circuit	427, 447
U.S. Court of Military Appeals, chief judge	656, 726
U.S. district judges
California	570
New Jersey	511
New York	570
Puerto Rico	547, 570
Texas	426, 447
Virginia	488, 511
Washington	547, 570
U.S. marshal, North Carolina	427, 447
United States Railway Association	469, 564
United States Tariff Commission, Chairman	411, 447
United States Tax Court, judges	449, 488, 584, 609
White House Fellows	534
White House Staff
Counselor for Economic Policy	551
Special Assistants	581, 582
World Health Organization	496
Appropriations, request for reduction	377
Appropriations Act, 1974, Second Supplemental	600
Arab-Israeli conflict. See Middle East
Arab terrorist attack at Ma'alot, Israel	524
Arends, Repr. Leslie C.	511
Arkansas, disaster assistance	568, 585, 652
Armed Forces, United States
Army Department reorganization	594
Europe	525, 554
Memorial Day message	552
Pay adjustment	406
U.S. Naval Academy, commencement address	575
Armed Forces Day, 1974	531
Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, United States	558, 570
Armstrong, Anne L.	527, 569
Army, Department of the, reorganization	594
Arragon, Ben	503
Arthritis Month, 1974, National	473
Arts and National Council on the Arts, National Endowment for the	430
Asad, Hafiz al-	561, 629, 631
Ash, Roy L.	446, 510, 528, 547, 608, 717
Asian Development Bank	437, 570
Assar, Nassir	547
Assisted Health Insurance Plan, proposed	533
Atlantic Fisheries, International Commission for the Northwest	557
Atomic Energy Commission	608, 624
Austria
President Franz Jonas, death	439
President's visit	612
Automobile Industry	397

Awards and Citations

National Teacher of the Year Award, 1974	427
Presidential Medal of Freedom	655
Aydellott, Gale B.	565
Azores, President's visit	647, 648
Bad Axe, Mich.	399
Bahamas, U.S. Ambassador to	541, 570
Bahrain, U.S. Ambassador to	445, 488
Baker, Sen. Howard H., Jr.	505, 536
Balance of payments	525
Baldeschwieler, John D.	557
Barba, Louis R.	519
Barham, Rear Adm. Eugene Alexander	429
Barr, John A.	411
Bartlett, Sen. Dewey F.	514, 515, 724
Bauman, Arnold	725
Bedell, Catherine May	411, 447
Bekins, Claude	723
Belgium
President's visit
Announcement	652
Departure from Washington	718
U.S. Ambassador to	527
Bell, Terrell H.	421, 447
Bellmon, Sen. Henry	514, 515
Bennett, Henry G.	517
Bennett, Ivan L., Jr.	557
Bennett, Jack Franklin	502, 529
Bennett, Sen. Wallace F.	547
Bensinger, Peter B.	446
Bertrand, Dr. John R.	724
Besson, Frank S.	432, 447
Bicentennial, American Revolution	423
Bill Signings
Alcohol abuse bill, remarks	520
Colorado River Basin Salinity Control Act, remarks and statement	716
Disaster Relief Act of 1974, remarks and statement	535, 536
Energy Supply and Environmental Coordination Act of 1974, statement	722
Fair Labor Standards Amendments of 1974, statement	391
Federal Energy Administration Act of 1974, remarks and statement	497, 498
GI bill eligibility, extension, statement	568
Indian Financing Act of 1974, statement	409
Narcotic Addict Treatment Act of 1974, remarks	520
Second Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1974, announcement	600
Veterans' Disability Compensation and Survivor Benefits Act of 1974, statement	568
Billington, James H.	556
Binder, Robert H.	719, 726
Bing, R. H.	557
Blatnik, Repr. John A.	536
Blatz, Frank H., Jr.	565
Bleicken, Gerhard D.	539
Blind and Other Severely Handicapped, Committee for Purchase of Products and Services of the	585
Board. See other part of title
Bomar, Thomas R.	655, 726
Booth, Arch N.	470, 472
Borling, John L.	534
Boteler, Charles M., Jr.	527
Bottoms, Robert Allan	503
Boumedienne, Houari	407
Boy of the Year	387
Brandt, Willy	407
Bray, John M.	483, 605
Brennan, Peter J.	392, 509, 511, 529
Bress, David G.	483, 605
Brewer, John H.	410
Brewer, W. Donald	725
Brezhnev, L. I.	566, 718
Brimmer, Andrew F.	566
Brinegar, Claude S.	608
Briscoe, John Hanson	410
Broadcasting, Board for International	405
Broadcasting, Corporation for Public	449, 488

Brooks, Mary T.....	431, 447	Colorado River Basin Salinity Control Act.....	716	Congress, Communications to—Continued
Brown, Repr. Clarence J.....	396	Colson, Charles W.....	464, 481, 482, 542, 543, 545, 565	Wilderness preservation, message transmitting proposals.....	606
Brown, Gen. George S.....	527, 529	Colton, Kent W.....	534	Conlan, Jocko.....	489
Brown, J. Melissa.....	534	Commerce, Chamber of, annual dinner.....	470	Conlan, Repr. John B.....	489
Brownell, Herbert.....	522, 716	Commerce, Department of		Connecticut, U.S. attorney.....	725
Browning, James L., Jr.....	446, 488	Patent Office.....	510, 529	Conner, Robert E.....	387, 403, 404, 446, 568, 594, 595, 715
Buchanan, John H., Jr.....	381, 389	Secretary.....	387, 521, 608, 719	Conservation
Budget		Commerce Commission, Interstate.....	571, 587, 721, 725	Coastal zones.....	573
District of Columbia.....	535	Commission. See other part of title		Energy.....	424
Federal spending, statement.....	717	Committee. See other part of title		Wilderness preservation.....	606
Budget, Office of Management and. See		Commodity Credit Corporation.....	427, 447, 488	Conservation Corps, Youth.....	599
Management and Budget, Office of		Communications Commission, Federal.....	526, 548	Constandy, John P.....	392, 408
Bulgaria, Ambassador to U.S.....	586	Communications Satellite Corporation.....	548	Consumer Advisory Council.....	457
Burch, Dean.....	439, 527, 569	Comprehensive Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism Prevention, Treatment, and Rehabilitation Act Amendments of 1974.....	520, 529	Coolahan, James A.....	457
Burdick, Repr. Quentin N.....	536	Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.....	599	Cooper, Charles A.....	655, 726
Bureau. See other part of title		Comprehensive Health Insurance Plan, proposed.....	532, 548	Corporation for Public Broadcasting.....	449, 488
Burke, James E.....	565	Congress		Cost of Living Council
Burns, Arthur F.....	446, 547, 718	House of Representatives		Director.....	446, 510, 547
Burundi, U.S. Ambassador to.....	601, 609	Armed Services Committee.....	555	Economic stabilization program, quarterly report.....	380
Bush, George H.....	528	Judiciary Committee.....	397, 432, 450, 459, 510, 531, 538, 539, 553, 584, 591, 592	Termination.....	650, 651
Business Development Program, Indian.....	409	Meetings with the President		Cost of living task force, proposed.....	550
Business and Industry, private investment in Egypt.....	624	Bipartisan leadership.....	446, 569, 653	Costa Rica
Businessmen, National Alliance of.....	599	Courtesy calls by individual Members.....	387, 388, 487, 510, 527	President Daniel Oduber Quiroz, inaugural ceremonies.....	509
Busing.....	537	Republican leaders.....	389, 611	U.S. Ambassador to.....	488, 489
Butts, Earl L.....	493, 606, 650, 653	Senate majority leader.....	388	Costello, John M.....	519
Bushardt, J. Fred.....	542, 546	Sequoia , meetings with certain Members.....	527, 569	Council. See other part of title
Byrne, John J.....	405	Senate Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities.....	505	Court documents. See Watergate investigation
Cabinet, meetings with the President.....	569, 653	Congress, Communications to		Courts, United States
Oacheris, Plato.....	605	Aeronautics and space, annual report transmittal.....	393	U.S. attorneys
Cain, Paul T.....	404	Alaska Railroad, report transmittal.....	547	California.....	406, 488
Cairns, Theodore L.....	557	Army Department reorganization, letter to President of Senate and Speaker of House.....	594	Connecticut.....	725
Calden, Gertrude Beckwith.....	569	Coastal zone management, annual report transmittal.....	573	Georgia.....	586
California		Council of Economic Advisers, report transmittal.....	555	Kentucky.....	389
Disaster assistance.....	501	District of Columbia budget, message transmittal.....	535	Louisiana.....	389
U.S. attorney.....	446, 488	Economic stabilization program, quarterly report transmittal.....	380	Mississippi.....	511
U.S. district judge.....	570	Executive Schedule.....	499	Missouri.....	408
Wilderness area, proposed.....	606	Federal advisory committee, annual report transmittal.....	608	Montana.....	389
Callaghan, James.....	547	Federal Railroad Safety Act administration, annual report transmittal.....	586	New Jersey.....	389
Calley, William L., Jr.....	509	Foreign assistance programs, message.....	433	New York.....	446, 488
Cambodia, U.S. assistance.....	435	International Wheat Agreement, transmittal of protocols to Senate.....	519	North Carolina.....	511
Camp, Repr. John N. Happy.....	514, 515	Manpower Report of the President, annual report transmittal.....	431	Wisconsin.....	725
Cancelliere, Marion A.....	724	Medical science program with Japan, annual report transmittal.....	496	U.S. circuit judges, 7th circuit.....	427, 447
Cancer Control Month, 1974.....	382, 383, 389	National Credit Union Administration, annual report transmittal.....	487	U.S. Court of Military Appeals, chief judge.....	656, 726
Cannizzaro, Frank.....	656	National Endowment for the Arts and National Council on the Arts, annual report transmittal.....	430	U.S. district judges
Carpenter, Lawrence A.....	421, 447	Natural Gas Pipeline Safety Act administration, annual report transmittal.....	653	California.....	570
Carruthers, Garrey E.....	534	North Atlantic Treaty Organization, U.S. forces in Europe, report.....	525	Florida.....	608
Carruthers, Preston C.....	656	Radiation Control for Health and Safety Act administration, annual report transmittal.....	586	New Jersey.....	407, 487, 511
Casiano, Manuel A., Jr.....	411	River basin commissions, annual report transmittal.....	385	New York.....	570, 725
Cass City, Mich.....	401	St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, annual report transmittal.....	509	Pennsylvania.....	509
Catto, Henry E., Jr.....	377, 389			Puerto Rico.....	547, 570
Cederberg, Repr. Elford A.....	398			Texas.....	426, 447
Central Treaty Organization.....	547			Virginia.....	488, 511
Chad				Washington.....	547, 570
Ambassador to U.S.....	586			U.S. marshals
U.S. Ambassador to.....	725			Georgia.....	437
Chafetz, Morris.....	529			North Carolina.....	427, 447
Chamber of Commerce, annual dinner.....	470			U.S. Tax Court, judges.....	449, 488, 584, 609
Channing, Walter H.....	503			Credit Corporation, Commodity.....	427, 447, 488
Checklist of unpublished releases. See last page of text in each issue				Credit Union Administration, National.....	457
Chester, John J.....	509			Credle, Thomas P.....	404, 423
Chiles, Sen. Lawton.....	509			Critical Choices for America, National Commission on.....	427
China, People's Republic of, Governors visit.....	446			Critzer, James G.....	381, 389
Chinese People's Institute of Foreign Affairs.....	446			Cross, Sam Y.....	422, 447
Chowder and Marching Society.....	388			Cultural exchanges, cooperation with Egypt.....	625
Civil Aeronautics Board, member.....	524, 548			Curtis, Candace.....	487
Civil Service Commission.....	601			Curtis, Sen. Carl T.....	586
Clark, Edward.....	558, 570			Cyprus, U.S. Ambassador to.....	429, 447
Clark, George.....	387			Dahomey, U.S. Ambassador to.....	714, 726
Clark, Ruth.....	487			Dale, Francis L.....	496
Clausen, Alden W.....	540			Daughters of the American Revolution.....	418
Coastal Plains Regional Commission.....	431, 447			David, Edward E., Jr.....	548
Coastal zone management, annual report transmittal.....	573			Davies, Rodger P.....	429, 447
Cobb, Jewel P.....	723, 726			Davis, John Morgan.....	509
Cohen, Mitchell H.....	407			Day, James V.....	571, 597
Coin Week 1974, National.....	423			Dayton, Ohio.....	396
Cole, David L.....	510			Dean, John Wesley, III.....	452, 454-456, 459-469, 481, 482
Cole, Kenneth R., Jr.....	395, 569
Colleges and universities, VA Man-on-the-Campus program.....	567
Colorado, wilderness area, proposed.....	607

Defense, Department of						Environment Day, 1974, World	574
Assistant Secretary	487, 511					Environmental Coordination Act of
Joint Chiefs of Staff	527, 529					1974, Energy Supply and	722
Secretary	527, 586					Environmental Protection Agency
Defense Manpower Commission	423					Administrator	608, 622
Defense Transportation Day and Na-						Assistant Administrators	411,
tional Transportation Week, 1974,						447, 547, 719, 726
National	513					Erickson, William H.	656, 726
Denend, Leslie G.	534					Ervin, Sen. Sam J., Jr.	505
Denmark, Prime Minister Pol Hartling,						Esenbel, Melih	547
meeting with President	407					Ethiopia, U.S. Ambassador to	569
Dent, Frederick B.	387, 608					Europe, U.S. forces	525, 554
Development Association, Interna-						European Economic Community
tional	437					International Wheat Agreement	519
Dicke, Robert H.	557					Trade agreement	566
Dickstein, Sidney	483, 546, 605					European Migration, Intergovernmental
Digest of other White House announce-						Committee for	527
ments. See last pages of text in each						Evans, Gov. Daniel J.	446, 493
issue
Diplomatic relations with Syria, re-						Executive Orders
sumption	632					Advisory Council on Intergovern-
Disaster assistance						mental Personnel Policy (EO
Report to the President	426					11792)	721
States receiving						Delegation of authority to the Secre-
Alabama	386					tary of State (EO 11779)	424
Alaska	715					Economic stabilization program, ter-
Arkansas	568, 585, 652					mination (EO 11781, 11788)	484, 650
California	501					Executive Schedule (EO 11780)	430
Georgia	386, 387					Exemption of Kenneth H. Tuggle
Hawaii	501					from mandatory retirement (EO
Illinois	386, 403, 594, 715					11791)	721
Indiana	386					Federal civilian pay adjustment (EO
Iowa	715					11777)	408
Kansas	594					Federal employees' appeals from ad-
Kentucky	386					verse action (EO 11787)	601
Michigan	386, 404					Federal Energy Administration, effec-
Minnesota	595					tuation (EO 11790)	720
Mississippi	422					Federal Financing Bank Advisory
Missouri	595					Council (EO 11782)	497
North Carolina	386, 404					Inspection of the President's tax re-
North Dakota	520					turns by the House Judiciary
Ohio	386, 568					Committee (EO 11786)	584
Oklahoma	595					Joint funding functions, transfer to
Tennessee	386					General Services Administrator
West Virginia	408					(EO 11784)	562
Wisconsin	446					Military pay adjustment (EO 11778)	406
Disaster Relief Act of 1974	535, 536, 548					President's Committee on East-West
District of Columbia						Trade Policy (EO 11789)	719
Budget, message to Congress	535					Railway labor-management dispute
Home rule charter	501					(EO 11783)	535
Public Service Commission	600, 609					Security requirements for Govern-
Dixon, Robert G., Jr.	547					ment employment (EO 11785)	572
Doar, John M.	397, 432, 510, 539					Executive Schedule	430, 499
Dobrynin, A. F.	569					Expo '74. See International Exposition
Dodson, Mayhew W., III	557					on the Environment
Dole, Sen. Robert	586					Exports, trade agreement with Euro-
Dolibois, John E.	556					pean Economic Community	586
Domenici, Sen. Pete V.	536					Fahd, Prince. See Al Saud, Fahd ibn Abd
Domestic Council						al Aziz
Committee on Veterans Affairs	379, 388					Fahmy, Ismail	427
Executive Director	395					Fair Labor Standards Amendments of
Donaldson, William H.	510					1974	391
Drug Abuse Prevention, Special Action						Faisal, King	626-628
Office for	529					Fannin, Sen. Paul J.	489, 493
Duncan, Joseph W.	528					Father's Day, 1974	584
Duncan, Virginia	450, 488					Federal advisory committees, annual
Dunlop, John T.	446, 510, 547					report	608
Dunlop, Robert Gallbraith	525, 548					Federal Communications Commission	526,
Dunne, Thomas P.	395, 396, 426, 428					548
DuPont, Robert L.	529					Federal employees. See Government
Dutton, Leslie	487					employees
Earth Week, 1974	425					Federal Energy Administration
Eberle, William D.	556					Administrator	511,
Economic Advisers, Council of						541, 550, 570, 608, 652, 720
Acting Chairman	446					Assistant Administrators	583, 609
Chairman	510, 511, 547, 608, 717, 726					Bill signing, remarks and statement	497,
Report transmittal	555					498
Economic Cooperation and Develop-						Executive order	720
ment, Organization for	445, 488					Federal Energy Administration Act of Economic Opportunity, National Ad-						1974	497, 498, 511, 720
visory Council on	510					Federal Energy Office	400,
Economic Policy, Council on Interna-						413, 424, 497, 498, 720
tional, Executive Director	713, 719					Federal Financing Bank	496, 497
Economic stabilization program						Federal Financing Bank Advisory
Quarterly report	380					Council	497
Termination	484, 650					Federal Home Loan Bank Board, Chairman	511, 655, 726
Economy, national
Address to Nation	549
Council of Economic Advisers, report
transmittal	555
Inflation	380, 489, 549, 717
Eddy, Donald G.	520
Education, National Advisory Council
on Adult	569
Education, National Advisory Council
on Vocational	656
Education Amendments bill, Elementary and Secondary	537
Edwards, Charles C.	496
Egypt
Meetings with President
Ambassador Ashraf Ghorbal	425
Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy	427
Nuclear reactors	624
President's visit
Alexandria, informal remarks en route	616
Dinner in Alexandria	618
Dinner in Cairo	614
Welcoming ceremony	612
Principles of Relations and Cooperation Between Egypt and the United States	620, 622
U.S. assistance	434
Egyptian-Israeli Military Working
Group	561
Egyptian Joint Cooperation Commission, United States	566, 623
Ehrlich, S. Paul, Jr.	496
Ehrlichman, John D.	453,
456, 457, 459, 461-468, 481, 482, 542,
543, 546, 565, 596
Elections, Michigan, campaign tour,
eighth Congressional district	397-402
Elementary and Secondary Education
Amendments bill	537
Ellington, Edward Kennedy "Duke"	540
Elliott, Robert R.	571, 587
Ellsberg case	542, 565, 596
Ellsworth, Robert	487, 511
Elysée Palace	407
Employee Health Insurance program,
proposed	533
Employment Program for Youth, Federal Summer	412, 599
Employment Service for Youth Placement	599
Employment and Training Act, Comprehensive	599
Employment and unemployment
Council of Economic Advisers, report
transmittal	555
Economy, national, address to the
Nation	549
Minimum wage	391
Workmen's compensation programs,
State	520, 529
Youth, summer	412, 599
Energy
Conservation	424
Council of Economic Advisers, report
transmittal	555
Domestic sources, development	550
Prices	549, 550
Remarks	439
Research and development	556
Energy, Committee on	607
Energy Administration, Federal	497,
498, 511, 541, 550, 570, 583, 608, 609,
652, 720
Energy Administration Act of 1974,
Federal	497, 498, 511, 720
Energy Emergency Action Group, abolishment	608
Energy Office, Federal	400,
413, 424, 497, 498, 720
Energy Research and Development Administration, proposed	556
Energy Supply and Environmental Coordination Act of 1974	722
Engle, James B.	714, 726
Enid, Okla.	514
Environment, Colorado River, Salinity	716
Environment, International Exposition
on the	381, 389, 493, 494, 509, 723

Federal Insurance Administration, Administrator	521	Gesell, Gerhard A.	542, 546, 565, 566	Housing and Urban Development, Department of
Federal Maritime Commission, Commissioner	571, 587	Ghorbal, Ashraf	425	Assistant Secretary	511
Federal National Mortgage Association	519	GI bill	567, 568	General Counsel	571, 587
Federal Power Commission	527, 548	Glaever, Ivar	557	Secretary	395, 396, 426, 510, 511, 536, 540
Federal Prison Industries, Inc.	446	Gibberga, Lillian M.	600	Under Secretary	379, 389
Federal Property Council	424	Gifford, William L.	407	Howard, John A.	726
Federal Reserve System, Board of Governors	446, 547, 586, 718	Gilligan, Gov. John J.	396	Howard, Malcolm J.	602, 605
Federal spending. See Budget; Economy, national		Giscard d'Estaing, Valéry	532, 586	Howe, Eunice P.	487
Federal Summer Employment Program for Youth	412, 599	Goldstein, Jonathan L.	389	Hubbard, William Neill, Jr.	722, 726
Federal Trade Commission	449, 488	Goldwater, Sen. Barry	489, 493, 509	Hubbell, Rear Adm. Lester E.	423
Fellner, William J.	726	Government departments and agencies		Hughes, Caroline E.	656
Felt, Adm. Harry D.	724	Energy conservation	424	Humanities, National Council on the	600
Feltner, Richard L.	380, 389, 427, 447	Supplementary appropriations	600	Hundley, William G.	486, 606
Ferguson, Clarence Clyde, Jr.	381, 389	Government employees		Hunt, E. Howard	454-455, 460-464, 481
Ferre, Luis A.	600	Appeals from adverse action	601	Hunt, Repr. John E.	387
Financing Bank, Federal	496, 497	Executive Schedule	430, 499	Hurn, Bert C.	498
Financing Bank Advisory Council, Federal		Pay adjustment	406, 600	Hussein I, King	641, 645, 646
Finnan, Frances	487	Security requirements	572	Hutchinson, Repr. Edward	451, 487
Firstone, Leonard K.	527	Governors, bipartisan delegation to China	446
Fisher, Max	587	Graham, Pierre R.	541, 570	Illinois
Fisheries, International Commission for the Northwest Atlantic	557	Grand Canyon, Havasupai Indian Reservation	493	Disaster assistance	386, 408, 594, 715
Flag Day and National Flag Week, 1974	567	Green, Ronald W.	557	Wilderness area, proposed	607
Flanigan, Peter M.	713	Greene, Thomas C.	605	Imports, wheat	730
Fletcher, Arthur A.	540	Greenfield, Stanley M.	547	Income tax, President's	384, 411, 553, 584
Fletcher, J. A.	388	Graham, Robert Coleman	571, 587	Indian Affairs, Bureau of, Commissioner	493
Flood, Repr. Daniel J.	724	Griffin, Sen. Robert P.	389, 398, 511	Indian Business Development Program	409
Florida, U.S. district judge	608	Griswold, Erwin N.	545	Indian Financing Act of 1974	469
Food		Gromyko, A. A.	407, 408	Indiana, disaster assistance	386
Imports	720	Guinea, Ambassador to U.S.	586	Indians, American	499, 498
Meat	606, 650	Gurney, Sen. Edward J.	505	Indochina, U.S. assistance	435
Prices	549, 550, 606			Industrial Peace, National Commission on	510
Food, President's Committee on	652	Hackerman, Norman	722, 726	Inflation. See Economy, national
Food Aid Convention	519	Haig, Alexander M., Jr.	388	Ingersoll, Robert Stephen	593, 633
Food Conference, World	517	Haldeman, H. R.	459-458, 481, 482, 539, 545	Inouye, Sen. Daniel K.	505
Ford, Vice President Gerald R.	510, 547, 569, 590, 594, 611, 648	Hall, Andrew C.	546, 605	Insurance, health	532, 548
Foreign assistance, message to Congress	493	Hall, Cary H.	429	Insurance Administration, Federal	531
Foreign Scholarships, Board of	556	Haller, Fred	503	Insurance Agents, National Association of Mutual	527
Foregren, Leonard A.	405	Hamilton, William F.	534	Intelligence Advisory Board, President's Foreign	586
Foster, Charles H. W.	557	Hargraves, J. Archie	556	Interagency Classification Review Committee	457
France		Harper, John D.	540	Inter-American Development Bank	487, 570
Interim President Alain Poher, meeting with President	406	Harris, Raymond Alexander	382, 389	Interest rates	549
President Georges Pompidou, death	381	Harvey, James	400-408	Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration	527
President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing	532, 586	Harvey, William R.	585	Intergovernmental Personnel Policy, Advisory Council on	721
U.S. Ambassador to	388	Hauberg, Robert E.	511	Intergovernmental Relations, Advisory Commission on	410
Visit by the President	391	Hauser, Gustave M.	385, 389	Interior, Department of the Assistant Secretary	509
Frank, James	429	Havasupai Indian Reservation	493	Secretary	409, 493, 607, 608, 609, 720
Frates, William S.	546, 596, 605	Hawaii		Internal Revenue Service, President's taxes	385, 411
Fri, Robert W.	540	Disaster assistance	501	International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, U.S. Governor	570
Funding functions, joint, transfer to General Services Administrator	562	Wilderness area, proposed	606	International Broadcasting, Board for	406, 447
Gallinghouse, Gerald J.	389	Hawke, Russell Jackson, Jr.	431, 447	International Commission for the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries	557
Gardner, Stephen S.	723	Head, Mary J.	432, 447	International Development, Agency for	380, 380, 496
Garment, Leonard	406, 467	Health, Education, and Welfare, Department of		International Development Association	457
Garn, Edwin Jacob	410	Assistant Secretary	421, 447	International Economic Policy, Council on	713, 719
Gas Pipeline Safety Act administration, Natural	653	Commissioner of Education	421, 447	International Exposition on the Environment	381, 389, 493, 494, 509, 586, 723
Gaudion, Douglas	547	Rehabilitation Services Administration, Commissioner	445	International Monetary Fund	447, 570
Gaylord, E. K.	569	Secretary	377, 427, 521, 527, 529, 532	International North Pacific Fisheries Commission	389
General Services Administration, Administrator, transfer of joint funding functions	562	Health insurance	532, 548	International Telephone and Telegraph, antitrust decision	539
Geneva conference on Middle East	618	Health Organization, World	496	International Wheat Agreement	519
Genscher, Hans-Dietrich	653	Health Sciences, Uniformed Services University of the	602, 609	Interstate Commerce Commission, Commissioner	571, 587, 721, 725
George, Mary	405	Hébert, Repr. F. Edward	555	Investment Corporation, Overseas Private	385, 390
Georgia		Hecker, Dr. Michael H. L.	574	Iowa, disaster assistance	715
Disaster assistance	386, 387	Heffner, Hubert	557	Ireland, Lucille	557
U.S. attorney	586	Helms, Sen. Jesse A.	388	Irwin, John N., II	368
U.S. marshal	427	Henderson, J. Welles	586	Israel
Germany, Federal Republic of		Hennessey, John M.	586	Arab terrorist attack at Ma'alot, letter to Prime Minister Meir	534
Meetings with the President		Herbert, Adam W.	534
Chancellor Willy Brandt	407	Hinton, Deane R.	483
Mayor Klaus Schuets	427	Historic Preservation, Advisory Council on	556
U.S. forces	525	Hoffman, Paul G.	655, 726
Vice-Chancellor and Minister of Foreign Affairs Hans-Dietrich Genscher	653	Holcomb, Luther	548
		Hollifield, Repr. Chet	497
		Hollander, Robert B., Jr.	600
		Holloway, Adm. James L., III	389
		Holt, Repr. Marjorie S.	724
		Home Loan Bank Board, Federal	511, 655, 726
		Home rule charter, District of Columbia	501
		Hoopes, David C.	581
		Horton, Repr. Frank	724
		Housing, availability of financing	503, 549
		Housing Partnerships, National Corporation for	383, 389

Israel—Continued

Disengagement of forces with Syria.....	561, 569	Labor	535, 724	Malek, Frederic V.....	540
Joint statement.....	638	Railway dispute.....	535, 724	Malta, U.S. Ambassador to.....	601, 609
President's visit		State workmen's compensation pro-grams.....	520, 529	Maltester, Jack D.....	410
Dinner in Jerusalem.....	634	Labor, Department of		Man-on-the-Campus program, Veterans Administration.....	587
Welcoming ceremony.....	632	Secretary.....	392, 509, 521, 529	Management and Budget, Office of, Director.....	446, 510, 528, 547, 608, 717, 719
U.S. assistance.....	434	Under Secretary.....	509, 529	Mandel, Gov. Marvin.....	446
Italy, President Giovanni Leone, meet- ing with President.....	406	Wage and Hour Division, Adminis- trator.....	537, 570	Manpower Commission, Defense.....	423
ITT. See International Telephone and Telegraph		Land use, recreation.....	430, 583	Manpower Report of the President.....	431
Jackson, C. C., Jr.....	540	Lane, Lyle.....	509	Mansfield, Sen. Mike.....	388, 586
Jackson, Miss.....	439, 446	Laos, U.S. assistance.....	435	Manufacturers, National Association of.....	547
Jacobs, Donald P.....	525, 548	Law Day, U.S.A., 1974.....	469	Marcy, Carl M.....	558, 570
Japan, meetings with the President		Law Enforcement Assistance Admin- istration, Administrator.....	573	Maritime Commission, Federal.....	571, 587
Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira.....	547	Lay, Herman W.....	540	Maritime Day, National.....	382
Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka.....	407	Leavitt, Milo D.....	496	Mark, David E.....	601, 609
Japan Cooperative Medical Science Program, United States.....	496	Lee, Robert E.....	526, 548	Marrs, Theodore C.....	581
Jarman, Repr. John.....	514, 515	Legacy of Parks program.....	430, 583	Martin, Repr. James G.....	387, 587
Jaworski, Leon.....	483, 510, 545, 546, 562, 565, 596, 597, 605, 657, 710	Legal Rights for Retarded Citizens Week, 1974.....	513	Martin, Joseph, Jr.....	558, 570
Jelinek, David C.....	585	Leone, Giovanni.....	406	Mathias, Sen. Charles McC., Jr.....	724
Jewish Organizations, President's Con- ference of Major.....	587	Leong, Herlinda Chew.....	585	Maw, Carlyle E.....	598, 658
Johansen, Brig. Gen. Eivind H.....	585	Lestin, Elise Rosenbaum.....	585	Mayer, William H.....	715
Johnson, Donald E.....	379	Letters, Messages, Telegrams		McAdams, Francis H.....	608, 609
Johnson, James E.....	405	Arab terrorist attack at Ma'alot, letter to Israeli Prime Minister Meir.....	524	McCahill, John A.....	474, 431
Joint Chiefs of Staff.....	527, 529	Armed Forces Day, 1974, message.....	531	McClendon, Sarah.....	378
Joint funding functions, transfer to General Services Administrator.....	562	Council on International Economic Policy, Executive Director and As- sistant to the President Peter M. Flanigan, exchange of letters on resignation.....	713	McCone, John A.....	558, 570
Joint Statements		French elections, message to President-elect Valéry Giscard d'Estaing.....	532	McCormick, Betty L.....	534
Israel.....	638	House Judiciary Committee, open sessions, letter from Special Coun- sel St. Clair to Chairman Rodino.....	531	McCormick, David.....	510
Jordan.....	646	Law Enforcement Assistance Admin- istration, Administrator, exchange of letters on resignation.....	573	McElroy, William D.....	587
Jonas, Franz.....	439	Memorial Day message to Armed Forces.....	552	McGregor, William.....	498
Jones, Gen. David C.....	527, 529	Milk support price and ITT antitrust decision, letter from Special Coun- sel St. Clair to John M. Doar.....	539	McIntire, Clifford G.....	565
Jones, Stewart H.....	725	Presidential tapes and documents Doar, John M., letter from Special Counsel St. Clair.....	397	McLucas, John L.....	527
Joint statement.....	646	Gesell, Gerhard A., letters from Special Counsel St. Clair.....	585, 596	Meanor, H. Curtis.....	511
President's visit		Rodino, Repr. Peter W., Jr., letters from President.....	538, 592	Means, Warren W.....	656
Conclusion of visit.....	645	Special Counsel St. Clair.....	531, 591	Meat, supplies and prices.....	606, 650
Dinner in Amman.....	641	Levi, Edward Hirsch.....	600	Medals. See Awards and Citations
U.S. assistance.....	434	Levine, Louis L.....	656	Mediation Board, National.....	724
Judiciary Committee, House.....	397, 432, 450, 459, 510, 531, 538, 539, 553, 584, 591, 592	Lewis, Arthur D.....	469	Medical cooperation with Egypt.....	625
Justice, Department of		Lewis, Roger.....	432, 447	Medical Science Program, United States-Japan Cooperative.....	496
Assistant Attorney General.....	547	Lichenstein, Charles M.....	582	Medicare.....	593
Board of Parole.....	421, 447	Liddy, G. Gordon.....	456, 457, 461, 466, 467	Meetings with Foreign Leaders
Law Enforcement Assistance Admin- istration. See Law Enforcement Assistance Administration		Ligon, Marmaduke Roberts.....	583, 609	Austria, Chancellor Bruno Kreisky.....	612
Solicitor General.....	545	Ling, Joseph T.....	405	Egypt, President Anwar al-Sadat.....	612, 614, 616, 618, 630
Special Prosecutor.....	483, 510, 545, 546, 562, 585, 596, 597, 605, 657, 710	Lissey, David H.....	556	Israel, President Ephraim Katzir.....	632, 634
Kamm, Robert B.....	514-517	Loans, small business.....	396	Jordan, King Hussein.....	641, 645
Kansas, disaster assistance.....	594	Loesser, Lt. Col. Norma Maine.....	423	Portugal, President Antonio De Spínola.....	647
Katzir, Ephraim.....	632, 634	Long, Sen. Russell B.....	533, 547	Saudi Arabia, King Faisal.....	636, 637
Keith, Hastings.....	423	Louisiana, U.S. attorney.....	389	Syria, President Hafez al-Assad.....	629, 631
Kenna, E. Douglas.....	547	Lubar, Sheldon B.....	519	Meir, Golda.....	524, 561, 635, 636, 682
Kennedy, Sen. Edward M.....	533	Lugar, Richard G.....	410	Memorandums to Federal Agencies
Kent, Ralph E.....	540	Lujan, Repr. Manuel, Jr.....	509	See also Letters, Messages, Telegrams
Kentucky		Luna, Charles.....	432, 447	Federal energy conservation.....	424
Disaster assistance.....	386	Lund, Duane R.....	556	Summer employment for youth.....	412
U.S. attorney.....	389	Luns, Joseph.....	547	Memorial Day, 1974
Key Biscayne, Fla. 387, 407, 528, 546, 547, 569		Lynn, James T.....	384, 396, 426, 428, 510, 511, 536, 540	Message to Armed Forces.....	552
Keys, Brady.....	411	Ma'alot, Israel.....	524	Prayer for Peace.....	552
Khalafbari, Abbas Ali.....	547	Macaulai, Stella.....	503	Radio address to Nation.....	553
Kingsley, Daniel T.....	527, 548	MacDonald, Joseph V.....	432, 447	Menasco, Horace E.....	585
Kirkland, Lane.....	558, 570	Mack, Maynard.....	600	Merker, Evelyn K.....	510, 529
Kissinger, Dr. Henry A.....	408, 416, 545, 561, 566, 569, 608, 638, 653	Mack, Adm. William P.....	575	Merriam, Robert E.....	410
Klein, Maj. Gen. Julius.....	527	Mac Lane, Saunders.....	722, 726	Mexico
Kleindienst, Richard G.....	453, 456, 469, 461, 464-466, 468, 539	Madsen, Truman G.....	600	Colorado River, salinity.....	716
Koch, Noel C.....	582	Magruder, Jeb Stuart.....	487, 461, 464-466, 481	Senate President Enrique Olivares Santana.....	522
Kohler, Foy D.....	405, 447	Malawi, U.S. Ambassador to.....	540, 570	Mexico-United States Interparliamen- tary Conference, 14th.....	522
Korff, Rabbi Baruch.....	589			Michigan, disaster assistance.....	396, 404
Kreisky, Bruno.....	612			Middendorf, J. William, II.....	521, 529
Krock, Arthur.....	410			Middle East
Krulak, Lt. Gen. Victor H.....	724			Arab terrorist attack at Ma'alot, let- ter to Israeli Prime Minister Meir.....	524
Kunsmiller, John H.....	585			Geneva conference.....	618
				Israeli-Syrian disengagement.....	561, 569
				President's visit
				See also specific country
				Departure from Washington.....	500, 611
				Itinerary.....	572
				Return to Washington.....	648
				Syria, resumption of diplomatic rela- tions with U.S.....	632
				U.S. assistance.....	434
				U.S.-Egyptian Joint Cooperation Commission.....	585

Middlebrooks, David L., Jr.	608	National Maritime Day, 1974	382	Pakistan, Minister of State of Foreign Affairs and Defense Aziz Ahmed, meeting with the President	547
Milestones, Gordon Krupaw	510, 529	National Mediation Board	724	Pan American Day and Pan American Week	408
Military Academy, U.S., Board of Visitors	429	National Railroad Passenger Corporation	432, 447, 525, 548	Paraguay, Foreign Minister Raul Sapena Pastor, meeting with President	414
Military Appeals, United States Court of	656, 726	National Railway Labor Conference	535, 724	Parks, See Recreation
Military pay adjustment	406	National Science Foundation		Parnell, Francis W.	496
Milk support price	539	Assistant Director	725	Parole, Board of	421, 447
Miller, Israel	587	Board members	722, 726	Paraky, Gerald L.	558, 570
Mills, Repr. Wilbur D.	533	National Security Council	653	Passman, Repr. Otto E.	510
Minimum wage	391	National Teacher of the Year, 1974	427	Patent Office	510, 539
Minnesota		National Transportation Safety Board	608, 609	Payne, Samuel B.	565
Disaster assistance	595	National Voluntary Service Advisory Council	503	Pennsylvania, U.S. district judge	509
Wilderness areas, proposed	607	National Volunteer Week, 1974	426	Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation	726
Minority Enterprise, Advisory Council for	411	National Wilderness Preservation System	606, 609	People's Republic of China, See China, People's Republic of
Mississippi		Natural Gas Pipeline Safety Act administration	653	Personnel Interchange, President's Commission on	539
Disaster assistance	422	Natural resources, coastal zones	573	Personnel Policy, Advisory Council on Intergovernmental	721
U.S. attorney	511	Naval Academy, United States Board of Visitors	429, 724	Petersen, Henry E.	453, 456, 457, 460, 461, 466-468
Mississippi Economic Council	439, 446	Commencement address	575, 587	Phoenix, Ariz.	488, 489, 509
Mississippi River Commission	510, 529	Navy, Department of the Assistant Secretary	510	Physical Fitness and Sports, President's Council on	404
Missouri		Chief of Naval Operations	389	Pipeline Safety Act administration, Natural Gas	653
Disaster assistance	595	Secretary	521, 529	Podgorny, N. V.	407
U.S. attorney	408	Under Secretary	714, 726	Poelker, John H.	410
Mitchell, James L.	379, 389	Neely, H. Mason	600, 609	Pohar, Alain	468
Mitchell, John N.	453, 456, 461, 463-466, 474, 482, 539, 602, 603	Neff, Francine	558, 570	Pollution, See Environment; specific subject
Mock, Lawrence E., Jr.	534	Nelson, Lyle M.	556	Pompidou, Georges	381, 388, 391
Montana		Nesen, Robert D.	510	Porter, Keith R.	587
Wilderness areas, proposed	607	Neumann, Donald O.	724	Porter, Robert W.	426, 447
U.S. attorney	389	New Jersey		Porter, Roger B.	534
Montoya, Sen. Joseph M.	505, 724	U.S. attorney	389	Portugal, meeting in the Azores with President Antonio De Spínola	647, 648
Moomaw, Rev. Donn D.	405	U.S. district judges	407, 487, 511	Potter, David Samuel	714, 726
Moore, Gov. Arch A.	446	New York		Pouliot, Leonard B.	583, 609
Moore, Adm. Thomas H.	527	U.S. attorneys	446, 488	Power Commission, Federal	527, 548
Moran, Bill	510	U.S. district judges	570, 725	Prayer for Peace, Memorial Day	552
Morgan, Gerald D.	525, 548	Nichols, Brig. Gen. Wayne S.	510, 529	Presidency, National Citizens Committee for Fairness to the	527, 589
Mortgage Association, Federal National	519	Nix, Robert N. C.	381, 389	Presidential Medal of Freedom, Paul G. Hoffman	655, 726
Mortgages	504	Noel, Gov. Philip W.	446	Presidential Scholars	558
Morton, Rogers C.B.	493, 607-609	Notziger, Franklyn C.	540	Presidential Scholars, Commission on	510, 558, 725
Mother's Day, 1974	412	Nominations submitted to the Senate. See last page of text in each issue		Presidential tapes and documents	397, 432, 450, 459, 473, 505, 510, 538, 542, 574, 591, 592, 602, 657
Mulcahy, Edward W.	725	North Atlantic Council	652, 718	President's Commission on Personnel Interchange	539
Murphy, Betty Southard	537, 570	North Atlantic Treaty Organization Brussels meeting with North Atlantic Council	652, 718	President's Commission on White House Fellowships	534
Murphy, Jerome J.	474, 481, 506, 542, 546, 564, 598, 602, 605	Secretary General, meeting with the President	547	President's Committee on East-West Trade Policy	719
Murray, Bill Carnes	427	Twenty-fifth anniversary proclamation	384	President's Committee on Food	682
Murray, Grover E.	722, 726	U.S. forces in Europe	525, 554	President's Committee on the National Medal of Science	557
Muse, Martha T.	556	North Carolina		President's Conference of Major Jewish Organizations	587
Naples, Ronald J.	534	Disaster assistance	386, 404	President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports	404
Narcotic Addict Treatment Act of 1974	520, 529	U.S. attorney	511	President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board	586
Narcotics and dangerous drugs	520, 529	U.S. marshal	427, 447	President's travel Domestic
National Advisory Council on Adult Education	569	North Dakota, disaster assistance	520	Annapolis, Md.	575
National Advisory Council on Economic Opportunity	510	Nuclear reactors, Egypt	624	Bad Axe, Mich.	399
National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services	585	Nunn, Sen. Sam	724	Cass City, Mich.	401
National Advisory Council on Vocational Education, members	656	Nye, Stephen A.	449, 488	Dayton, Ohio	396
National Alliance of Businessmen	599	O'Bryan, Dr. Philip, Jr.	602, 609	Enid, Okla.	514
National Arthritis Month, 1974	473	Office. See other part of title		Jackson, Miss.	439, 446
National Association of Manufacturers	547	Ohio, disaster assistance	386, 568	Key Biscayne, Fla.	387, 407
National Association of Mutual Insurance Agents	527	Ohira, Masayoshi	547	Phoenix, Ariz.	458, 489, 509
National Citizens Committee for Fairness to the Presidency	527, 589	Oil Policy Committee	720	Saginaw, Mich.	399, 407
National Coin Week 1974	423	Oklahoma, disaster assistance	595	Sandusky, Mich.	408
National Commission on Critical Choices for America	427	Oklahoma State University	514	Spokane, Wash.	488, 493, 494, 509
National Commission for Industrial Peace	510	Okum, Connie	388	Stillwater, Okla.	510, 514
National Commission on State Workmen's Compensation Laws	520	Older Americans Month, 1974	473	Xenia, Ohio	393-395, 407
National Corporation for Housing Partnerships	382, 389	Olivares Santana, Enrique	522
National Council on the Humanities	600	Olson, John O.	725
National Credit Union Administration	467	Oman, U.S. Ambassador to	483
National Defense Transportation Day and National Transportation Week, 1974	513	O'Mella, Richard Joseph	524, 548
National Endowment for the Arts and National Council on the Arts	430	O'Neill, Rev. Michael	585
National Flag Week, 1974, Flag Day and	567	Oregon, wilderness area, proposed	606
National Institute on Alcohol and Alcoholism	529	Organization of American States	414
		Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development	445, 468
		Orrick, William H., Jr.	570
		Overseas Private Investment Corporation	385, 389
		Owen, Thomas B.	724
		Pacific Fisheries Commission, International North	388
		Packwood, Otis L.	389
		Paganelli, Robert P.	505, 529

President's Travel—Continued

Foreign—Continued

Middle East.....	590, 611-650
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.....	566, 718
Prochnow, James R.....	598

Proclamations

Cancer Control Month, 1974 (Proc. 4281).....	383
Earth Week, 1974 (Proc. 4287).....	425
Father's Day, 1974 (Proc. 4297).....	584
Flag Day and National Flag Week, 1974 (Proc. 4295).....	567
Law Day, U.S.A., 1974 (Proc. 4289).....	469
Legal Rights for Retarded Citizens Week, 1974 (Proc. 4293).....	513
Mother's Day, 1974 (Proc. 4285).....	412
National Arthritis Month, 1974 (Proc. 4290).....	473
National Coin Week 1974 (Proc. 4286).....	423
National Defense Transportation Day and National Transportation Week, 1974 (Proc. 4292).....	513
National Maritime Day, 1974 (Proc. 4280).....	382
National Volunteer Week, 1974 (Proc. 4286).....	426
NATO, 25th Anniversary (Proc. 4282).....	384
Older Americans Month, 1974 (Proc. 4291).....	473
Pan American Day and Pan American Week (Proc. 4284).....	409
Prayer for Peace, Memorial Day, May 27, 1974 (Proc. 4294).....	552
Small Business Week, 1974 (Proc. 4283).....	386
Wheat Imports (Proc. 4298).....	720
World Environment Day, 1974 (Proc. 4296).....	574

Public Broadcasting, Corporation for.....	449, 488
Public Service Commission of the District of Columbia.....	600
Puerto Rico, U.S. district judge.....	547, 570
Qatar, U.S. Ambassador to.....	505, 529
Quadriad, meeting with the President.....	446
Quirof, Daniel Oduber.....	309
Rabasa, Emilio.....	416
Rabin, Yitzhak.....	638
Radiation control.....	586
Railroad Passenger Corporation, National.....	432, 447, 525, 548
Railroads, safety.....	586
Railway Association, United States.....	469, 564
Railway Labor Conference, National.....	535, 724

Railway labor-management dispute.....	535
Rampton, Gov. Calvin L.....	446
Randolph, Sen. Jennings.....	536
Ray, Dixy Lee.....	608
Ray, Gov. Robert D.....	446
Ray, Ronald E.....	584
Recreation, parks and open spaces.....	430, 583
Rehabilitation Services Administration.....	446

Reports to the President

Federal assistance to tornado disaster victims.....	426
Interagency Classification Review Committee.....	487
National Commission for Industrial Peace.....	510
United States Naval Academy, Board of Visitors.....	724
Republican Party
National chairman.....	528
National committee.....	446
State chairmen.....	446
Research and Development Administration, Energy, proposed.....	556

Resignations and Retirements

Ambassadors, United States
Burundi.....	387
Chad.....	725
Ethiopia.....	569
Commission on Presidential Scholars, member.....	510, 725
Committee for Purchase of Products and Services of the Blind and Other Severely Handicapped, member.....	585
Consumer Advisory Council, Chairman and member.....	487
Council on International Economic Policy, Executive Director.....	713
Environmental Protection Agency, Assistant Administrator.....	547
Federal Reserve System, Board of Governors, member.....	586
Interior Department, Assistant Secretary.....	509
International Exposition on the Environment, U.S. Commissioner General.....	586
International North Pacific Fisheries Commission, Commissioner.....	388
Interstate Commerce Commission, Commissioner.....	725
Justice Department, Assistant Attorney General.....	547
Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, Administrator.....	573
National Advisory Council on Economic Opportunity.....	510
National Science Foundation, Assistant Director.....	725
Navy Department, Assistant Secretary.....	510
Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation, Board member.....	725
State Department, Under Secretary.....	510
Treasury Department
Assistant Secretary.....	586
Deputy Under Secretary.....	407
Under Secretary.....	407
U.S. attorneys
Connecticut.....	725
Georgia.....	586
Wisconsin.....	725
U.S. district judges
Florida.....	608
New Jersey.....	407, 487
New York.....	725
Pennsylvania.....	509
U.S. marshal, Georgia.....	427
United States Tariff Commission, member.....	724
White House staff, Assistant to the President.....	713
Retarded Citizens Week, 1974, Legal Rights for.....	513
Rhodes, Repr. John J.....	389, 489, 724
Ribicoff, Sen. Abraham.....	497, 533
Rice, Donald B., Jr.....	722, 726
Richardson, Elliot L.....	468
Riegger, Geri M.....	534
Rifal, Zayd al.....	683
River basin commissions.....	385
Robinson, George S., Jr.....	534
Robinson, Glen O.....	526, 548
Rockefeller, Blanchette.....	600
Rockefeller, Nelson A.....	427
Rodino, Repr. Peter W., Jr.....	451, 457, 531, 538, 591, 592
Roedel, Philip M.....	388
Rogers, Stillman D.....	429
Rogers, William P.....	464, 467, 482
Roos, Lawrence K.....	410
Rowe, Mrs. Oliver.....	527
Rural Telephone Bank.....	724
Rush, Kenneth.....	547, 550, 551, 580, 589, 587, 606, 608, 650, 653, 717, 726
Rust, Edward B.....	470, 472

Sadat, Anwar al-.....	566, 612-625, 682
Saginaw, Mich.....	397, 407
St. Clair, James D.....	397, 432, 458, 474, 431, 483, 509, 510, 531, 539, 542, 546, 564, 565, 574, 591, 596, 598, 602, 605, 657, 710
St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation.....	509
Sandborn, Peggy.....	457
Sandusky, Mich.....	469
Santarelli, Donald E.....	573
Sapena Pastor, Raul.....	414
Satellite Corporation, Communications.....	548
Saudi Arabia
President's visit.....
Conclusion of visit.....	627
Dinner in Jidda.....	626
Prince Fahd, meeting with the President.....	582
Sawhill, John C.....	413, 497, 511, 541, 570, 606
Scall, John A.....	381, 389, 655
Schaufele, William E., Jr.....	391, 399
Schiffer, Susan B.....	534
Schlesinger, James R.....	527, 586
Schloth, William J.....	586
Schmidt, Benno C.....	399
Schmuits, Edward C.....	502, 527
Schools, federally impacted districts.....	537
Schubert, Richard F.....	509, 511, 529
Schuetz, Klaus.....	427
Science, President's Committee on the National Medal of.....	557
Science Foundation, National.....	722, 725
Science and technology, cooperation with Egypt.....	625
Scowcroft, Maj. Gen. Brent.....	388
Scranton, William W.....	564
Security Council, National.....	653
Security requirements, Government employees.....	572
Severs, Gary L.....	446, 726
Segretti, Donald.....	467
Sempler, Robert.....	387
Sencer, David J.....	496
Sequoia, meeting with certain Members of Congress.....	527, 569
Shapiro, David.....	546, 606
Sheet Metal Workers' International Association.....	535
Shields, L. Donald.....	722, 726
Shouse, Jouett.....	726
Shultz, George P.....	500, 510, 586
Silbert, Earl J.....	466
Siler, Eugene E., Jr.....	389
Silvestro, Clement M.....	556
Simon, William E.....	400, 413, 446, 447, 497, 499, 510, 547, 570, 608, 624, 718
Sinclair, Joseph S.....	724
Sirica, John J.....	483, 606
Skylab stations.....	399
Small business loans.....	396
Small Business Week, 1974.....	586
Smith, Gerard C.....	558, 570
Smith, J. Stanford.....	539
Smith, Loren A.....	509
Smith, Robert P.....	601, 609
Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley.....	487
Smith, W. K.....	565
Smoak, Marion H.....	389
Sneed, Joseph T.....	466
Soames, Christopher.....	556
Southeast Asia. See Indochina; specific country
Soviet Union. See Union of Soviet Socialist Republics
Space program, aeronautics and space, annual report.....	388
Spain, Jayne Baker.....	540
Spanish-Speaking Americans, Advisory Council on.....	600
Sparling, James.....	398, 400-403
Special Action Office for Drug Abuse Prevention.....	529
Sperline, Elizabeth.....	540

Spicer, Mrs. Donald.....	418	Stillwater, Okla.....	514	Treasury, Department of the—Continued
Spinoia, Antonio De.....	647, 648	Strachan, Gordon C.....	466	Internal Revenue Service. See Internal Revenue Service
Spokane, Wash.....	381	Stratton, Repr. Samuel S.....	724	Mint, Bureau of the, Director.....	431, 447
	389, 488, 493, 494, 509, 586, 723	Strausz-Hupé, Robert.....	389	Secretary.....	499, 510, 547, 608, 624, 650, 651, 718, 719
Sports, President's Council on Physical Fitness and.....	404	Strawberry Queen of 1974.....	487	Secretary-designate.....	413, 446, 447, 510
Staggers, Repr. Harley O.....	487	Strelow, Roger.....	411, 447	Treasurer of the United States.....	558, 570
Stans, Maurice J.....	469	Strickler, Frank H.....	469	Under Secretary.....	407, 502, 529, 570
Starr, Bart.....	405	Subversive organizations list, abolishment.....	572	Treaties and other international agreements
State, Department of		Suez Canal, joint working group.....	624	International Wheat Agreement, transmittal of protocols to Senate.....	519
Agency for International Development.....	380	Suffridge, James A.....	385, 389	Principles of Relations and Cooperation Between Egypt and the United States.....	622
Chief of Protocol.....	377, 388, 389	Sullivan, Eugene R.....	474, 481, 602, 605	Trione, Henry F.....	382, 389
Deputy Inspector General, Foreign Assistance.....	392, 408	Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1974, Second.....	600	Trotter, Virginia Y.....	421, 447
Deputy Secretary.....	598, 653	Supplementary Centers and Services, National Advisory Council on.....	585	Tuggle, Kenneth H.....	721
Secretary.....	408, 424, 561, 608, 638, 653, 719	Supreme Court of the United States.....	562, 597, 602, 657, 710	Turner, William C.....	445, 488
Under Secretary.....	510, 598, 653			Twinam, Joseph W.....	445, 488
State workmen's compensation programs.....	520, 529			Ullman, Edward L.....	432, 447
Statements by the President		Swearing-In Ceremonies		Umstattd, Elizabeth.....	487
Azores, departure.....	648	Treasury Department, Secretary.....	499	Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences.....	602, 609
Colorado River Basin Salinity Control Act, signing ceremony.....	716	White House Staff, Counsellor for Economic Policy.....	560	Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Cancer research, cooperation.....	383
Deaths		Sweden		Meetings with the President
Alsop, Stewart.....	553	Swedish Ambassador to U.S.....	586	Ambassador A. F. Dobrynin.....	569
Ellington, Edward Kennedy "Duke".....	540	U.S. Ambassador to.....	389	Chairman N. V. Podgorny.....	407
Gaylord, E. K.....	569	Syria		Foreign Minister A. A. Gromyko.....	407
Jonas, Franz.....	439	Diplomatic relations, with U.S.....	632	Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, eight members.....	547
Krock, Arthur.....	410	Disengagement of forces with Israel.....	561, 569	President's visit
Pompidou, Georges.....	381	President's visit		Announcement.....	566
Disaster Relief Act of 1974, bill signing.....	536	Conclusion of visit.....	631	Departure from Washington.....	718
District of Columbia, home rule charter.....	501	Dinner in Damascus.....	629	United Arab Emirates, U.S. Ambassador to.....	439, 488
Economic stabilization program, termination.....	484	Talmadge, Sen. Herman E.....	505	United Kingdom, Prime Minister Harold Wilson, meeting with President.....	407
Elementary and Secondary Education Amendments bill.....	537	Tanaka, Kakuei.....	407	United Nations
Energy Supply and Environmental Coordination Act of 1974, bill signing.....	722	Tannenwald, Theodore, Jr.....	449, 488	Economic and Social Council, U.S. Representatives to Statistical Commission.....	528
Fair Labor Standards Amendments of 1974, bill signing.....	391	Tansey, James J.....	474, 481	General Assembly, sixth special session, U.S. Representatives and Alternates.....	381, 389
Federal Energy Administration Act of 1974, bill signing.....	498	Tapes, President's conversations. See Presidential tapes and documents		U.S. Representative.....	655
Federal energy conservation.....	424	Tariff Commission, United States.....	411, 447, 724	United States Air Force Academy.....	429
Federal spending.....	717	Tax Court, United States.....	449, 488, 584, 609	United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. See Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, United States
Havasupai Indian Reservation.....	493	Taxation, reduction.....	551, 556, 717	United States Courts. See Courts, United States
Housing policy.....	503	Taylor, Davie P.....	422, 447	United States-Egyptian Joint Cooperation Commission.....	566, 623
Indian Financing Act of 1974, bill signing.....	409	Teacher of the Year, National, 1974.....	427	United States-Japan Cooperative Medical Science Program.....	496
Summer jobs programs for youth, bill signing.....	599	Telephone Bank, Rural.....	724	United States Military Academy.....	429
Trade agreement with European Economic Community.....	566	Tennessee, disaster assistance.....	386	United States Naval Academy.....	429, 575, 587, 724
VA Man-on-the-Campus program.....	567	Terrorism.....	524	United States Railway Association.....	469, 564
Veterans benefits bills.....	568	Texas, U.S. district judge.....	426, 447	United States Tariff Commission.....	411, 447, 724
Welfare programs, appropriations.....	377	Theberge, James D.....	556	United States Tax Court.....	449, 488, 584, 609
Workmen's compensation programs, State.....	520	Thomas, John F.....	527	United States v. Calley	509
		Thomas, Lowell.....	586	University of the Health Sciences, Uniformed Services.....	602, 609
Statements Other Than Presidential		Thompson, Morris.....	493	Untener, Andy.....	527
Government meat purchases, Counsellor for Economic Policy Rush.....	650	Thornley, Margo L.....	656	Upper Volta, U.S. Ambassador to.....	541, 570
Meat supplies and prices, Counsellor for Economic Policy Rush.....	606	Tilley, Norwood Carlton, Jr.....	511	Urstadt, Charles J.....	382, 389
Presidential tapes, report of U.S. district court advisory panel, Special Counsel St. Clair.....	574	Tobin, Francis X.....	594, 595, 715	Utah, wilderness area, proposed.....	607
President's income tax, Press Secretary Ziegler.....	553	Togo, Ambassador to U.S.....	586
Tornado disasters, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development Lynn.....	386	Tom, Vivian.....	427	Vance Air Force Base, Okla.....	514
		Tone, Philip W.....	427, 447	Varner, Durward Belmont.....	450, 488
Staudt, Jean A.....	474, 481, 542, 546, 564, 598, 599	Tonelli, Joseph P.....	405	Vázquez Carrizosa, Alfredo.....	416
Steiger, Repr. Sam.....	489, 493	Torruella del Valle, Juan R.....	547, 570	Vermont, wilderness area, proposed.....	607
Stein, Herbert.....	510, 511, 547, 608, 717, 726	Trade		Veterans
Stein, Jacob A.....	483, 605	Agreement with European Economic Community.....	556	Benefits bills.....	568
Stennis, Sen. John C.....	555	Cooperation with Egypt.....	624	Meeting with the President.....	510
Sterlacci, Michael A.....	474, 481, 509, 542, 546, 564, 598, 602, 605	Wheat.....	519	Memorial Day, 1974.....	552
Sterner, Michael.....	439, 488	Trade Commission, Federal.....	449	Radio address.....	378, 389
Stevens, Robert C.....	501	Trade Negotiations, Special Representatives for.....	719	VA Man-on-the-Campus program.....	567
Stevenson, Robert A.....	540, 570	Trade Policy, President's Committee on East-West.....	719	Veterans Administration.....	378, 567
Stewart, Potter.....	499	Trager, David G.....	446, 488	Veterans Disability Compensation and Survivor Benefits Act of 1974.....	568
		Train, Russell E.....	608, 722	Veterans Services, Domestic Council Committee on.....	379, 388
		Training Act, Comprehensive Employment and.....	599
		Transportation, Department of
		Alaska Railroad, report transmittal.....	547
		Assistant Secretary.....	719, 726
		Secretary.....	608
		Transportation Day and National Transportation Week, 1974, National Defense.....	513
		Transportation Safety Board, National.....	608, 609
		Treasury, Department of the
		Assistant Secretary.....	586, 655, 726
		Deputy Secretary.....	723
		Deputy Under Secretary.....	407, 502, 529, 558
		General Counsel.....	723

Vice President. See Ford, Vice President Gerald R.		Watergate investigation—Continued		Williams, Gov. John R.	489
Vietnam, Republic of, U.S. assistance...	435	Letters to—Continued		Wilson, Harold	407
Vietnam, South. See Vietnam, Republic of		Rodino, Repr. Peter W., Jr., from		Wilson, James Q.	510
Vincent, Lillian	487	President	538, 592	Wilson, John J.	469, 483, 605
Virginia, U.S. district judge	488, 511	Special Counsel St. Clair	531, 591	Wilson, Max E.	427, 447
Vocational Education, National Advisory Council on	556	Presidential tapes and documents	397, 432, 450, 459, 473, 505, 510, 538, 542, 574, 591, 592, 602, 657	Wimer, David J.	581
Volcker, Paul A.	407	Supreme Court review	562, 597, 602, 657, 710	Wimpress, Gordon D., Jr.	556
Volunteer Week, 1974, National	426	Webber, Frederick L.	502, 529	Winkie, Joe D.	568, 585, 595, 652
Voorhees, Donald S.	547, 570	Weber, John W.	583, 609	Wisconsin
Wage, minimum	391	Weicker, Sen. Lowell P., Jr.	505	Disaster assistance	446
Wakefield, Stephen A.	509	Weinberger, Caspar W.	377, 427, 527, 529, 532	U.S. attorney	725
Wallace, David H.	557	Weiss, Herman L.	540	Wogan, John B., Jr.	429
Waller, Gov. William	439	Weiss, Seymour	541, 570	Wolle, William D.	483
Warren, Gerald L.	432, 572	Welfare system	377	Woods, Rose Mary	454
Warringer, D. Dortch	488, 511	Werker, Henry F.	570	Woods, Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow	487
Washburn, Abbott	526, 548	West Virginia, disaster assistance	403	Workmen's Compensation Laws, National Commission on State	520
Washington		Wheat, imports	720	World Environment Day, 1974	574
U.S. district judge	547, 570	Wheat Agreement, International	519	World Food Conference	517
Wilderness area, proposed	607	Wheat Trade Convention	519	World Health Organization	496
Washington, D.C. See District of Columbia		White, Barbara M.	381, 389	Wright, Charles Alan	474, 481, 509, 542, 546, 564
Washington, Ruth B.	510	White House Fellows	534	Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio	396
Water pollution	717	White House Staff		Xenia, Ohio	393-395, 407
Watergate investigation		Assistants to the President	388, 569, 713	Yates, Graem	387
Court documents	473, 505, 542, 562, 597, 602, 657, 710	Counsellor for Economic Policy	550, 551, 560, 587, 606, 608, 650, 653, 717, 719, 726	Yeutter, Clayton	724
Document summarizing Watergate conversations	459	Counsellors	527, 569	Yost, Robert L.	387
House Judiciary Committee	397, 432, 450, 459, 510, 531, 538, 539, 553, 584, 591, 592	Deputy Assistant	388	Young, Jefferson Banks	724
Letters to		Deputy Press Secretary	432	Youth, summer employment	412, 599
Doar, John M., from Special Counsel St. Clair	397, 539	Special Assistants	581, 582	Youth Conservation Corps	599
Gesell, Gerhard A., from Special Counsel St. Clair	565, 596	White House Statements		Youth Placement, Employment Service for	599
		President's income tax	384	Zaire, U.S. Ambassador to	483
		Wilbur, Richard C.	584, 609	Zambia, Ambassador to U.S.	586
		Wilcox, Howard S.	429	Zausner, Eric Roger	584, 609
		Wilderness preservation, message	606	Ziegler, Ronald L.	481, 482, 533
				Ziev, Joel D.	585
				Zimmerman, Julian H.	519
				Zumberge, James H.	722, 726

The Univ. of Mich.
Reference

Weekly Compilation of
PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Monday, July 15, 1974

JUL 24 1974

Volume 10 • Number 28

Pages 793-804

Index of Contents

ACTS APPROVED.....	804	CONGRESS, COMMUNICATIONS TO
ADDRESSES AND REMARKS		International coffee agreement, message trans-
(See also Bill Signings)		mitting report.....	796
French gift for the American Bicentennial celebra-		DIGEST OF OTHER WHITE HOUSE ANNOUNCEMENTS..	802
tion	796	EDITOR'S NOTE.....	804
Wushu troupe from the People's Republic of		EXECUTIVE ORDERS
China	801	Civil defense medical and food stockpiles (EO
ANNOUNCEMENTS		11794)	798
Disaster assistance for Ohio.....	798	Disaster relief functions (EO 11795)	799
APPOINTMENTS AND NOMINATIONS		Secretary of Agriculture (EO 11793)	796
Foreign Claims Settlement Commission, Chairman		LETTERS, MEMORANDUMS, ETC.
and member (J. Raymond Bell)	793	French gift for the American Bicentennial celebra-
National Commission for the Observance of World		tion, exchange of letters with French President
Population Year, 1974, Chairman, Vice Chair-		Valéry Giscard d'Estaing.....	797
man, and members.....	798	PROCLAMATIONS
Nominations submitted to the Senate.....	804	Captive Nations Week, 1974 (Proc. 4302)	801
White House Staff, Deputy Assistant to the Presi-		United Nations Day, 1974 (Proc. 4300)	794
dent (Sidney L. Jones)	795	White Cane Safety Day, 1974 (Proc. 4301)	794
BILL SIGNINGS		World Population Year, 1974 (Proc. 4299)	793
Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control		STATEMENTS BY THE PRESIDENT
Act of 1974, remarks and statement.....	799, 800	(See also Bill Signings)
CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES....	804	Death of Earl Warren.....	795

[A Cumulative Index to Prior Issues appears at the end of this issue.]

WEEKLY COMPILATION OF Presidential Documents

Published every Monday by the Office of the Federal Register, National Archives and Records Service, General Services Administration, Washington, D.C. 20408, the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents contains statements, messages and other Presidential materials released by the White House during the preceding week.

The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents is published pursuant to the authority contained in the Federal Register Act (49 Stat. 500, as amended; 44 U.S.C. Ch. 15), under regulations prescribed by the Administrative Committee of the Federal Register, approved by the President (37 F.R. 23607; 1 CFR Part 10).

Distribution is made only by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents will be furnished by mail to subscribers for $15.00 per year, payable to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The charge for a single copy is 50 cents.

There are no restrictions on the republication of material appearing in the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents.

Administration of Richard Nixon

PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Week Ending Saturday, July 13, 1974

Foreign Claims Settlement Commission

Announcement of Intention To Nominate J. Raymond Bell for Reappointment as a Member and Chairman of the Commission. July 9, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate J. Raymond Bell, of the District of Columbia, for reappointment as a member of the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission for a term of 3 years. The President also announced that Mr. Bell would be redesignated Chairman of the Commission upon his confirmation and reappointment.

Mr. Bell has held this position since November 1, 1973, and has served as Chairman of the Commission since his designation on November 11, 1973. He is serving a term as member expiring October 21, 1974.

He was born on January 7, 1908, in New Orleans, La. Mr. Bell is a graduate of the Atlanta Law School and has been admitted to the bars of Georgia, New York, and the District of Columbia. Before his appointment in 1973, he had been associated with the Washington office of the California based law firm of Wyman, Bautzer, Rothman and Kuchel. For 24 years until December 1972, Mr. Bell was with Columbia Picture Industries, Inc., and was vice president for corporate and government relations when he left the firm. Earlier he was an executive of Capital Airlines, and a reporter with the Atlanta Georgian-American and the Detroit Times.

The Foreign Claims Settlement Commission has jurisdiction to determine claims of the United States nationals against foreign governments for compensation for losses and injuries sustained by them, pursuant to programs authorized under the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949 and the War Claims Act of 1948. Available funds have their sources in international settlements, or liquidation of foreign assets in this country by the Departments of the Treasury or Justice, and from public funds when provided by Congress. The Commission was established by Reorganization Plan 1 of 1954 and consists of three members serving terms of 3 years.

World Population Year, 1974

Proclamation 4299. July 9, 1974

*By the President of the United States of America
a Proclamation*

One of the most pressing challenges in the last third of the twentieth century is to find ways of meeting the basic needs of the world's burgeoning population.

The causes of population growth are well known: death rates have been cut dramatically by welcome advances in medical science and health services while birth rates have not declined. As a result, according to estimates by the United Nations, some 80 million people will be added to the world's population this year and, if current trends continue, the world's total population of more than 3.8 billion could double by the first decade of the twenty-first century.

While the causes are clear, the solutions are not. Many tough choices will have to be made. The United States has no interest in imposing solutions upon other countries, but it does seek to help in a way which maintains our traditional respect for human freedom and dignity. The concern of all nations should remain with the human and physical environment of all of our fellow men and in seeking together ways in which mankind can discover new paths to partnership and progress.

As many of the developing countries have already discovered, it is urgent that acceptable solutions be found to this challenge. The United Nations has designated 1974 as World Population Year, and has called upon all governments and peoples to participate in its observance. In August of this year, the United Nations will convene a World Population Conference in Bucharest, Romania. The United States Government welcomes the declaration of World Population Year as an historic opportunity for all nations to study their own and world patterns of population growth and distribution.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, RICHARD NIXON, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate and proclaim the year 1974 as World Population Year in the United States. I call upon the Congress and officials of our Federal, State and local governments, educational institutions, religious bodies, private organizations, the information media, and the people of the United States generally to join this year in promoting a better understanding of the magnitude and consequences of world population growth and its relation to the quality of human life and in renewing our commitment to human dignity and social justice.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this ninth day of July, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninety-ninth.

RICHARD NIXON

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 2:27 p.m., July 9, 1974]

United Nations Day, 1974

Proclamation 4300. July 9, 1974

*By the President of the United States of America
a Proclamation*

Americans are increasingly aware of the interdependence of all nations, large and small. We, our allies, and our adversaries are increasingly aware that many of the problems which affect us mutually can only be solved within a global context. It is with this fact in mind that we observe United Nations Day on October 24, 1974. The relevance and promise of this forum have been demonstrated repeatedly during the past year. True to its Charter, the United Nations has made historic contributions to the peace of the world.

We are all grateful to the Secretary General of the United Nations, to the Security Council, and to the United Nations Emergency Force for their part in halting the fighting in the Middle East, hopefully opening the way for a lasting settlement there.

We are grateful, too, for the United Nations' initiatives in fostering global economic and social progress. In the wake of the world energy crisis, the General Assembly and other United Nations bodies have turned their attentions to the problems of raw materials and development. The pioneering Law of the Sea Conference, in which all nations are represented, has convened to address the complex questions of regulating human activities on the high seas and protecting the marine environment. The United Nations is preparing now for Conferences later this year on World Food and on World Population. Both will address basic problems affecting the very quality of life on this planet.

By these endeavors, the United Nations manifests vividly its unique role as the one international instrument of action to which virtually all nations subscribe. For this role, for past accomplishments, and as a standard bearer for future world peace and prosperity, the United Nations deserves the appreciative recognition and continuing support of all Americans.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, RICHARD NIXON, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, October 24, 1974, as United Nations Day. I urge the citizens of this Nation to observe that day with community programs that will promote understanding of and support for the United Nations and its affiliated agencies.

I have appointed Frank Cary to be United States National Chairman for United Nations Day and, through him, I call upon State and local officials to encourage citizens' groups and all agencies of communication to engage in appropriate observances of United Nations Day in cooperation with the United Nations Association of the United States of America and other interested organizations.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this ninth day of July, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and ninety-ninth.

RICHARD NIXON

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 2:27 p.m., July 9, 1974]

NOTE: The White House also announced on July 9 that the President had appointed Frank Cary, of Armonk, N.Y., as United States National Chairman for United Nations Day, 1974.

White Cane Safety Day, 1974

Proclamation 4301. July 9, 1974

*By the President of the United States of America
a Proclamation*

More than a million Americans have severe visual disabilities. A few years ago most of these individuals would have been condemned to a life of dependence upon others. But a simple device—a White Cane—has given most of them mobility and with it, independence.

If those blessed with the gift of good eyesight do their part, those who are denied this blessing may still enjoy the independence they must have to work and support themselves and, not infrequently, their families. They can enjoy the independence they need to be fulltime partners in the life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness which more fortunate Americans enjoy.

We should be constantly aware of the significance of the White Cane and, without hesitation, extend every courtesy to those who carry it. In this way we can respect the privacy and independence of our visually disabled while, at the same time, assuring that we do nothing to hinder their ability to shape and pursue a productive and fulfilling life.

In recognition of the significance of the White Cane, the Congress, by a joint resolution of October 6, 1964 (78 Stat. 1003), authorized the President to proclaim October 15 of each year as White Cane Safety Day.

Now, THEREFORE, I, RICHARD NIXON, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim October 15, 1974, as White Cane Safety Day.

I urge all Americans to mark this occasion by giving greater consideration to the special needs of the visually handicapped, and particularly by learning to heed the White Cane in order that our visually handicapped may use our streets and public facilities with maximum safety.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this ninth day of July, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninety-ninth.

RICHARD NIXON

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 2:28 p.m., July 9, 1974]

Deputy Assistant to the President

Announcement of Appointment of Sidney L. Jones. July 9, 1974

The President today announced the appointment of Dr. Sidney L. Jones as Deputy Assistant to the President. Dr. Jones will serve as Deputy to the Counsellor to the President for Economic Policy, Kenneth Rush.

Dr. Jones, from April 1972 to March 31, 1973, was Minister Counselor for Economic Affairs in the U.S. Mission to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Brussels.

From August 1969 to August 1971, Dr. Jones was with the Council of Economic Advisers, serving as a Senior Staff Economist until March 1970, when he became Special Assistant to the Chairman. From 1965 to 1969 and during 1971-72, he was professor of finance in the University of Michigan's Graduate School of Business Administration. From 1960 to 1965, he was assistant professor, then associate professor of finance at Northwestern University. He has also been a director of Bradley Woods and Co., an investment advisory firm in New York, N.Y., and Washington, D.C.

He was born on September 23, 1933. Dr. Jones was valedictorian of the 1954 graduating class from Utah State University. He served as an officer in the U.S. Army from 1954 to 1956, and received his M.B.A. (1958) and Ph. D. degrees from Stanford University.

He is married to the former Marlene Stewart. They have five children and live in Potomac, Md.

Earl Warren

Statement by the President on the Death of the Former Chief Justice of the United States. July 9, 1974

I am deeply saddened at the death of former Chief Justice Earl Warren. America has lost one of her finest public servants. He was a man to whom the public trust was a sacred trust. Few men have been called upon to do so much in the service of their nation, and few have performed with such distinction. Even in retirement, Earl Warren repeatedly gave his talents to the service of his countrymen.

County District Attorney, State Attorney General, Governor of California, candidate for Vice President of the United States, and Chief Justice of the United States, Mr. Warren gave each task his full energy and ability. Much honor was paid him, and he gave much honor in return.

Earl Warren not only rendered outstanding service to our country, but he was a distinguished figure in the Republican Party. In all things he was never a partisan of political advantage, but always a partisan for America.

He was an articulate spokesman for the ideals he cherished. He did not invite controversy, but neither did he shun it; he fulfilled his duty as he saw it.

Mrs. Nixon joins me in extending to the Warren family our sincere condolences. While Mr. Warren's death deprives us of a good and able American, his service to America will continue to shape the course of American life for generations to come, and will reflect the highest purposes of America forever.

NOTE: Earl Warren, 83, died at Georgetown University Hospital, Washington, D.C., on July 9, 1974. He was Governor of California from 1943 to 1952 and served as Chief Justice of the United States from 1953 to 1969.

On Friday, July 12, the President attended funeral services for Mr. Warren at the Washington Cathedral.

Secretary of Agriculture

Executive Order 11793. July 10, 1974

DESIGNATION OF CERTAIN OFFICERS OF THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE TO ACT AS SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE

Under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by section 3347 of title 5 and section 301 of title 3 of the United States Code, and as President of the United States of America, it is hereby ordered as follows:

SECTION 1. In case of the absence, sickness, resignation, or death of the Secretary of Agriculture and the Under Secretary of Agriculture, an Assistant Secretary of Agriculture or the General Counsel of the Department of Agriculture, in such order as the Secretary of Agriculture may from time to time prescribe, shall act as Secretary of Agriculture. If no such order of succession is in effect at that time, they shall act as Secretary in the order in which they shall have taken office as Assistant Secretary or General Counsel.

SEC. 2. Executive Order No. 10481 of August 15, 1953, entitled "Designation of Certain Officers of the Department of Agriculture to Act as Secretary of Agriculture", is hereby revoked.

RICHARD NIXON

The White House,
July 10, 1974.

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 2:53 p.m.,
July 10, 1974]

International Coffee Agreement

The President's Message to the Congress Transmitting the Annual Report on the Operations of the Agreement. July 10, 1974

To the Congress of the United States:

In accordance with the International Coffee Agreement Act, as extended and amended, I transmit herewith my annual report on the operations of the International Coffee Agreement in 1973.

The overproduction and surpluses in coffee which prevailed when the 1962 and 1968 coffee agreements were negotiated no longer existed when the 1968 agreement expired on September 30, 1973. In fact, the agreement's price-quota provisions had lapsed nine months earlier and it was clear that producers and consumers would be unable to reach agreement on similar provisions in a new coffee agreement. The 1968 agreement, therefore, was extended for two years effective October 1, 1973, but without its operative economic clauses.

A decade of international cooperation on coffee as represented by the 1962 and 1968 agreements should not be ignored. The prevailing atmosphere has not been conducive to agreement on the terms of any new coffee agreement containing operative economic provisions. However, it has been felt desirable to keep together the experienced secretariat staff of the International Coffee Organization to serve as a competent authority for the collection and dissemination of coffee statistics and other information on world production, trade and consumption while maintaining a framework in which consultations on coffee and negotiations for a new agreement could take place.

In the absence of operative economic provisions in the extended agreement and with a view to effecting some control over prices, a number of the producing nations have been attempting to concert their efforts to support coffee prices. We have repeatedly emphasized, during the negotiations for the modified extension of the 1968 International Coffee Agreement and on other occasions, our strong view that such unilateral producer actions are incompatible with the concept of international producer-consumer cooperation on coffee problems.

RICHARD NIXON

The White House,
July 10, 1974.

NOTE: The report, entitled "1973 Annual Report to the Congress on the International Coffee Agreement" (12 pp., plus annexes), was published by the Department of State.

French Gift for the American Bicentennial Celebration

Exchange of Remarks Between the President and French Ambassador Jacques Kosciusko-Morizet on Plans for a Sound and Light Spectacle at Mount Vernon. July 10, 1974

THE PRESIDENT. This is a splendid thing that your government in France is doing.

AMBASSADOR KOSCIUSKO-MORIZET. Yes, Mr. President. In 1976, the American people will be celebrating the Bicentennial of the independence of their Nation. Of course, the Bicentennial is an American commemoration. That is also an anniversary for France, the anniversary of our relations between our two countries, the anniversary of our participation in the Independence War, and the celebration of a friendship, devoted, which has never failed for all of history and has been filled with comments, and advice, and mutual achievements.

And because the people of France are committed to the Bicentennial of the independence of the United States, President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing asked me to remit to you a letter presenting the American people with the sound and light spectacle, which in '76 will take place at Mount Vernon on the site of the historical mansion of George Washington.

And we think it was a proper time to make this announcement in the week between Independence Day and Bastille Day.

THE PRESIDENT. Mr. Ambassador, I want to express appreciation on behalf of all of the American people for this splendid gesture on the part of the French people and the French Government.

And would you express my personal appreciation to your President, Valéry Giscard d'Estaing, for his interest in this?

I would say that any historian knows that had it not been for the support of France, the United States would not be independent today, and that special relationship is one that we Americans have never forgotten.

We have always stood by France, and France has always stood by us, and it will continue in the future.

Also, with regard to the sound and light programs, I think you should know that in 1963 I took a trip with my family through various parts of Europe and the Middle East, and I saw a sound and light program in three different places: one in Rome, one also in Athens, and another one in Cairo at the Pyramids. It is a splendid concept.

And I know that it is primarily due to those French who participated in developing the concept that those programs have been put on and to have one during our Bicentennial year, to have it at Mount Vernon, I think, is as fine a gift—we will call it that—that you can make, you and your people, to the United States.

I think hundreds of thousands, perhaps millions, of Americans will come there to see it, and they will be reminded not only of our independence but of the part that France has played in gaining the independence and also of the continued French-American friendship, which is as strong today as it was that day, and will remain so.

AMBASSADOR KOSCIUSKO-MORIZET. Thank you, Mr. President. I will see President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing next week. I can bring your messages to him.

THE PRESIDENT. Yes, I will look forward to seeing him sometime in the future.

Thank you.

NOTE: The President spoke at 12:35 p.m. in the Oval Office at the White House. Accompanying Ambassador Kosciusko-Morizet were: Administrator John W. Warner of the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration, Anne L. Armstrong, Counsellor to the President, and Mrs. Thomas Turner Cooke, regent of the Mount Vernon Ladies Association.

For the text of the letters exchanged between President Nixon and President Giscard d'Estaing, see the following item.

French Gift for the American Bicentennial Celebration

Exchange of Letters Between President Nixon and French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing on Plans for a Sound and Light Spectacle at Mount Vernon. July 10, 1974

Dear Mr. President:

I was greatly pleased to receive your letter of June 20 informing me that the people of France will present the people of the United States with a Sound and Light Spectacle for Mount Vernon in commemoration of the Bicentennial of the United States. It is especially fitting that this particular art form, which has been perfected in France for the purpose of dramatizing your country's great historical treasures, be utilized to dramatize one of America's most cherished symbols of its struggle for independence.

In acknowledging this generous gift on behalf of the American people, I join you, Mr. President, in a tribute to the bonds of friendship which have joined our two nations since the 18th Century, and which will continue to link them as we act together to forge a structure of peace in the years to come.

Sincerely,

RICHARD NIXON

My dear President,

The forthcoming celebration of the Bicentennial of the United States stirs in France a popular and loud echo.

We treasure the memory of the historical events which associated closely our nation to the birth and the independence of the United States of America. The friendship which links our two peoples and which has been sustained and strengthened by so many ordeals we have been through side by side originated on the land and sea battlefields of the War of Independence.

As a token of this friendship, I am pleased to let you know that we have decided to offer to the American people a "sound and light" spectacle which would take place from the year 1976 onwards, in Mount Vernon, on the site of the historical mansion of George Washington, which numerous French people, including myself, have visited.

Please accept, my dear President, the assurances of my very high consideration.

VALÉRY GISCARD D'ESTAING

NOTE: For the exchange of remarks between President Nixon and French Ambassador Kosciusko-Morizet concerning the gift, see the preceding item.

Disaster Assistance for Ohio

Announcement of Disaster Declaration and Authorization of Federal Assistance Following Heavy Rains and Flooding. July 11, 1974

The President today declared a major disaster for the State of Ohio as a result of heavy rains and flooding, beginning about June 22, which caused damage to public, private, and agricultural property. The President's action will permit the use of Federal funds in relief and recovery efforts in designated areas of the State.

Federal assistance from the President's Disaster Relief Fund will include temporary housing accommodations for families whose homes were destroyed or seriously damaged, debris removal, emergency protective measures, and the repair or restoration of damaged streets, roads, bridges, and public facilities and utilities. Low-interest-rate disaster loans for homeowners and businesses will be made available by the Small Business Administration under the authorities of Public Law 93-24, and emergency loan assistance will be made available by the Farmers Home Administration.

Federal relief activities in Ohio will be coordinated by the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, Department of Housing and Urban Development, under the direction of Administrator Thomas P. Dunne. Mr. Dunne will designate the specific areas within the State eligible for Federal assistance, based upon Federal and State damage assessments.

Mr. Robert E. Connor, Regional Director for Federal Disaster Assistance, HUD Region 5, will be designated as the Federal Coordinating Officer to work with the State in providing Federal disaster assistance under the Disaster Relief Act of 1974, Public Law 93-288.

Civil Defense Medical and Food Stockpiles

Executive Order 11794. July 11, 1974

REVOKING EXECUTIVE ORDER NO. 10958, RELATING TO THE CIVIL DEFENSE MEDICAL AND FOOD STOCKPILES

Under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1958, and as President of the United States of America, Executive Order No. 10958 of August 14, 1961 is hereby revoked.

Nothing in this order shall be deemed to modify or diminish the civil defense and emergency preparedness planning functions assigned to the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare by Executive Order No. 11490 of October 28, 1969, those assigned to the Secretary of Defense by that order and Executive Order No. 10952 of July 20, 1961, or those assigned to the Administrator of General Services by Executive Order Nos. 10952, 11051 of September 27, 1962, 11490, or 11725 of June 27, 1973.

RICHARD NIXON

The White House,
July 11, 1974.

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 3:07 p.m.,
July 11, 1974]

National Commission for the Observance of World Population Year, 1974

Announcement of Appointment of 20 Members and Designation of Chairman and Vice Chairmen. July 11, 1974

The President today announced the appointment of 20 persons as members of the National Commission for the Observance of World Population Year, 1974. They are:

- CLIFFORD M. HARDIN, of St. Louis, Mo., vice chairman, Ralston-Purina Co., St. Louis.
- MRS. NORMAN C. ARMITAGE, of Alexandria, Va., president, National Federation of Republican Women.
- SPRAGUE H. GARDINER, of Indianapolis, Ind., professor of obstetrics/gynecology, Indiana University School of Medicine, Indianapolis.
- EDWARD N. COLE, of Bloomfield Hills, Mich., president and chief operating officer, General Motors Corp., Detroit, Mich.
- CHARLES H. CRUTCHFIELD, of Charlotte, N.C., president, Jefferson-Pilot Broadcasting Co., Charlotte.
- LEV E. DOBRIANSKY, of Alexandria, Va., professor of economics, Georgetown University, Washington, D.C.
- MRS. CECIL G. GRANT, of the District of Columbia, public schools coordinator of Youth Serving Youth tutoring program, and part-owner, Colour Graphic Inc., Washington, D.C.
- REV. DEXTER L. HANLEY, of Scranton, Pa., president, University of Scranton.
- MRS. JACK A. DROWN, of Rolling Hills, Calif., civic leader.
- MILDRED F. JEFFERSON, of Boston, Mass., assistant clinical professor of surgery, Boston University School of Medicine, Active General Surgery, University Hospital, Boston University Medical Center.
- JOSEPH M. SEGEL, of Yeadon, Pa., president of the Franklin Mint, Inc., Yeadon, Pa.
- FRANK W. NOTESTEIN, of Princeton, N.J., visiting senior research demographer, office of population research, Princeton University, and president emeritus, the Population Council of New York.
- AIDA CASANAS O'CONNOR, of Orangeburg, N.Y., attorney, New York State division of housing and community renewal, New York, N.Y.
- LEAHSENETH O'NEAL, of the District of Columbia, professional track star and director of tenant relations, Savage-Fogarty Companies Inc., Washington, D.C.
- FRANK A. PALUMBO, of Vienna, Va., secretary-treasurer, International Association of Fire Fighters, Washington, D.C.

EDWARD J. PISZEK, of Fort Washington, Pa., president and owner, Mrs. Paul's Kitchen, Philadelphia, Pa.
 JODY ELMER SMITH, of Ayrshire, Iowa, mayor of Ayrshire.
 ELVIS J. STAHR, JR., of Greenwich, Conn., president, National Audubon Society, Audubon House, New York, N.Y.
 ARTHUR R. TAYLOR, of Summit, N.J., president, CBS, New York, N.Y.
 NICOLAS PALEN THIMMESCH, of Chevy Chase, Md., syndicated columnist, Los Angeles Times Syndicate, Washington, D.C.

The President also announced the designation of Clifford M. Hardin to serve as Chairman and the designations of Mrs. Norman C. Armitage and Sprague H. Gardiner to serve as Vice Chairmen of the Commission.

The Commission was established by Executive Order 11763 of January 17, 1974, and consists of not more than 20 members appointed by the President from among citizens in private life. Members serve at the pleasure of the President and without compensation.

The purpose of the Commission is to promote the appropriate observance in the United States of 1974 as World Population Year. The Commission will conclude its work by the end of the year 1974 and make a report to the President on its work within 30 days thereafter, at which time the Commission shall be terminated.

Disaster Relief Functions

Executive Order 11795. July 11, 1974

DELEGATING DISASTER RELIEF FUNCTIONS PURSUANT TO THE DISASTER RELIEF ACT OF 1974

By virtue of the authority vested in me by the Disaster Relief Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-288; 88 Stat. 143), section 301 of title 3 of the United States Code, and as President of the United States of America, it is hereby ordered as follows:

SECTION 1. (a) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is designated and empowered to exercise without the approval, ratification, or other action by the President, all of the authority vested in the President by the Disaster Relief Act of 1974, hereinafter referred to as the "act", except: (1) the authority vested in the President by section 301 of the act to declare emergencies and major disasters, by section 313 of the act to prescribe time limits for granting priorities for certain public facilities and certain public housing assistance, by section 401 of the act to provide for the repair, reconstruction, restoration, or replacement of Federal facilities, by section 412 to provide legal services, and by title V to provide for economic recovery, which are hereby reserved to the President; (2) the authority vested in the President by that part of section 202(c) of the act concerning the utilization and availability of the Federal civil defense communications system for the purpose of disaster warnings which the Secretary of Defense is empowered to exercise by this order; and (3) the authority vested in the President by section 409 of the act concerning food coupons and distribution, which the Secretary of Agriculture is empowered to exercise by this order.

(b) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development may delegate or assign to the head of any agency of the executive branch of the Government, subject to the consent of the agency head concerned in each case, any authority or function delegated or assigned to the Secretary by the provisions of this section. Any such head of the agency may redelegate any authority or function so delegated or assigned to him by the Secretary to any officer or employee subordinate to such head of the agency.

(c) The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development shall prepare a plan for the implementation of the provisions of section 412 of the act, relating to legal services, and shall submit that plan to the President through the Director of the Office of Management and Budget.

SEC. 2. The Secretary of Defense is designated and empowered to exercise, without the approval, ratification, or other action of the President, the authority vested in the President by section 202(c) of the act concerning the utilization and availability of the Federal civil defense communications system for the purpose of disaster warnings.

SEC. 3. The Secretary of Agriculture is designated and empowered to exercise, without the approval, ratification, or other action of the President, all of the authority vested in the President by section 409 of the act concerning food coupons and distribution.

SEC. 4. This order shall be effective as of May 22, 1974, and all actions taken by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development pursuant to the act prior to the date of this order are, to the extent such actions would be authorized and under this order, ratified.

RICHARD NIXON

The White House,
 July 11, 1974.

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 10:26 a.m.,
 July 12, 1974]

Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974

The President's Remarks at the Bill Signing Ceremony at the White House. July 12, 1974

On this occasion, I would like to speak briefly about the significance of this bill. The major problem facing the country today, whether it is abroad or at home, is the problem of inflation. This bill deals with that problem, and that problem is one that affects every American.

There are many causes for inflation, as we know, but a major cause for inflation is overspending by government, when government spends more than it takes in in revenues. And this bill addresses that particular part of the problem because as we work together to keep down the cost of government, it means that we can help keep down the cost of living for every American.

I should say that one of the reasons we have had difficulties in the past in this respect—and I speak not only of this Administration but all administrations, Democrat and Republican—is that too often the Congress has been, and both sides in this respect, and the executive have appeared to be at odds.

But fighting inflation is everybody's battle. It is not a Republican battle or a Democratic battle. It isn't the executive's battle or the Congress' battle. Everybody must fight together.

What this bill is is the most significant reform of budget procedures since the Congress and this country began. What this bill does is to provide a means whereby the Congress and the executive, not only now but in administrations to come, will work together to keep the budget from getting out of control.

And by working together, it means that by keeping down the cost of government, as I have already indicated, we can help every American family balance their family budgets.

I want to express particularly the appreciation that is due to the members of the committee who have worked a long time, as you can see from the size of this bill, to develop it. I want to commend the bipartisan spirit which motivated it throughout. And I would say finally that that same spirit of bipartisanship, that same spirit of cooperation, not only between parties but between the Congress and the executive, will enable us to achieve two goals: one, to see that the '75 budget in which we are currently working does not go beyond the amounts that we proposed when we first submitted it, and two, to achieve a goal in the 200th year of this Nation's history that we all want to achieve, of a balanced budget in 1976.

That is our goal; we are out to achieve it. We believe this battle can be won, but it can only be won by the Congress and the President working together.

That is why I pledge, certainly, my cooperation in this respect, and I know, from having signed this bill and the work that went into it, that we will have the cooperation of Congress.

Thank you.

NOTE: The President spoke at 10:25 a.m. in the Oval Office at the White House. As enacted, the bill (H.R. 7130) is Public Law 93-344, approved July 12, 1974.

For a statement by the President on the bill, see the following item.

Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974

Statement by the President Upon Signing the Bill Into Law. July 12, 1974

I take special pleasure today in signing H.R. 7130, the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974. I commend the Congress for this landmark legislation, and I pledge the full support of the executive branch in helping fulfill the great promise of this bill.

In each of my five Budget Messages I have urged the Congress to review and reform its procedures for considering the Federal budget and pledged the support and cooperation of this Administration in achieving this vital national goal. During the past year, the Congressional committees concerned worked energetically and effectively with this in mind. H.R. 7130 is the result.

Under this legislation, the Congress will, for the first time, focus on overall budget totals early in the legislative process and then relate individual appropriation items to each other within a general set of spending priorities.

Budget committees in the House and Senate, assisted by a new Congressional Budget Office, will be established to develop overall spending levels and priorities.

A tight timetable is established for Congressional action on authorizing legislation and appropriation bills, and a reconciliation process is provided to bring appropriation bills into line with prescribed overall budget totals.

In short, this bill will allow the Congress to step up to full and equal responsibility for controlling Federal expenditures.

Prior to the enactment of this bill, the Congress has had to consider a large number of separate measures with no system for establishing priorities relating to an overall spending goal. This system did not impose sufficient disciplines on the Congress to stop the passage of pork-barrel legislation or to resist the pressure of special interest groups seeking a disproportionate share of the tax dollar. Costly programs could be enacted without adequate consideration of their added burden to the taxpayer. This lack of discipline in Congressional procedures has been one of the major factors behind the sizable increases in Federal spending over the past decade.

The Congress has wisely recognized these weaknesses and taken steps to correct them through the passage of this legislation.

There are provisions in this bill I hope will be simplified if the requirements imposed by them prove to be restrictive. The impoundment control provisions, in particular, may well limit the ability of the Federal Government to respond promptly and effectively to rapid changes in economic conditions.

Nevertheless, this bill represents a major step toward reform of the Congressional budgetary system. Its enactment is especially timely because an excessive rate of inflation makes the need for careful consideration and control over Government spending more crucial than ever. Already the Congress has enacted, or has pending, programs which could add some $4 billion to our 1975 budget proposals of $305 billion. I will have no choice but to veto bills which substantially exceed my budget.

The 1976 budget also gives us the opportunity to work together to face our fiscal responsibilities. In the near future, I will send to each department and agency their preliminary budget guidance for 1976. It will reflect a balanced budget in 1976. To achieve this balance, I plan to propose a broad range of legislation which will be needed to cut back individual programs.

I am confident that the Congress will assist me in this effort to keep spending from exceeding my proposed budget levels. H.R. 7130 will permit the high level of cooperation which will be required to achieve this critical goal.

NOTE: As enacted, the bill (H.R. 7130) is Public Law 93-344, approved July 12, 1974.

For the President's remarks at the bill signing ceremony, see the preceding item.

Captive Nations Week, 1974

Proclamation 4302. July 12, 1974

*By the President of the United States of America
a Proclamation*

Consistent with the principles upon which this Nation was founded, we believe that democratic liberties are among the basic human rights to which all men are entitled. We do not seek to impose our beliefs upon others, but we do not hide our sympathies towards the desires of those who, like us, cherish liberty and self-determination. In support of this sentiment, the Eighty-Sixth Congress on July 17, 1959, by a joint resolution, authorized and requested the President to proclaim the third week in July in each year as Captive Nations Week.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, RICHARD NIXON, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate the week beginning July 14, 1974, as Captive Nations Week.

I call upon the people of the United States to observe this week with appropriate ceremonies and activities, and I urge rededication to the cherished ideal of freedom for all.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this twelfth day of July, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninety-ninth.

RICHARD NIXON

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 4:49 p.m., July 12, 1974]

Wushu Troupe From the People's Republic of China

The President's Remarks to Members of the Martial Arts and Acrobatic Troupe During Their Visit to the White House. July 12, 1974

Mr. Ambassador, we want to express our appreciation to the performers who have been here today at the White House, and I only wish that we could see the entire performance. From what I have heard, it has been an enormous success at the Kennedy Center on Wednesday night.

This is another of a series of visits between our two countries that began in the year 1972. And what we think is important is that this is another demonstration of the basic friendship between the Chinese people and the American people.

We believe that the Chinese people are a great people. We believe the American people are a great people. And we believe that our two peoples have always been destined to be friends and never enemies. And we know that as you travel through the United States that you will certainly make many friends for the Chinese people, and we know, too, that as we have an opportunity to welcome you that you will convey to our friends in the People's Republic of China our warm good wishes to Chairman Mao, to Premier Chou En-lai, and all our good friends we met in 1972.

Normalization of relations between our two countries continues to be a major goal of American foreign policy, and while this, of course, is primarily an entertainment group, I can assure you that this symbolizes the evidence that both of our governments are making to bring our two countries closer together and our two peoples closer together.

And I would simply say finally that if I ever need a bodyguard, I will just take these three with me [referring to the three youngest members of the troupe].

NOTE: The President spoke at approximately 3 p.m. in the Rose Garden at the White House.

The 48-member troupe was in Washington for performances at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts. Ambassador Huang Chen, Chief of the Liaison Office of the People's Republic of China in Washington, accompanied the troupe.

Digest of Other White House Announcements

Following is a listing of items of general interest which were announced to the press during the period covered by this issue but which are not carried elsewhere in the issue. Appointments requiring Senate approval are not included since they appear in the list of nominations submitted to the Senate, below.

July 7

The President went by helicopter to Palm Beach, Fla., to visit the Mar-A-Lago estate which was bequeathed to the Federal Government upon the death of Marjorie Merriweather Post as a temporary residence for visiting foreign dignitaries and heads of state. He then returned to Key Biscayne.

The President returned to Washington from his home in Key Biscayne, Fla.

July 8

Vice President Ford met with the President in the Oval Office at the White House to review the President's trip to Belgium and the Soviet Union and to discuss domestic legislation.

On behalf of the President, Special Counsel James D. St. Clair presented oral argument in the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of United States v. Richard M. Nixon, President of the United States, et al., and Richard M. Nixon, President of the United States v. United States.

HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger met with the President at the White House to discuss current legislation pending before the Congress.

The President met with Counsellors Anne L. Armstrong, Dean Burch, and Kenneth Rush.

July 9

Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon met with the President at the White House to discuss the Secretary's upcoming trip to the Middle East and Europe.

The President met with a group of economic advisers. Participating in the meeting were: Counsellor to the President Kenneth Rush, Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon, Director Roy L. Ash of the Office of Management and Budget, Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the Federal Reserve Board, and Chairman Herbert Stein of the Council of Economic Advisers.

Ambassador James D. Hodgson called on the President at the White House prior to assuming his post as U.S. Ambassador to Japan.

Roy L. Ash, Director of the Office of Management and Budget, met with the President to discuss the domestic economy and the budget.

Secretary of the Interior Rogers C. B. Morton and Under Secretary John C. Whitaker met with the President at the White House.

July 10

The bipartisan Congressional leadership met with the President at the White House. The President and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger briefed the leaders on the President's meetings in Brussels and the Soviet Union.

Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan met with the President to discuss the problem of unemployment and Labor Department programs.

The President today accepted, with the deepest gratitude for his distinguished service, the resignation of Maj. Gen. Charles L. Southward as Commanding General of the District of Columbia National Guard, effective August 2, 1974.

The President today accepted, with appreciation for his contributions, the resignation of John Ellis O'Neill as a member of the National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services, effective today.

The President today submitted to Judge Gerhard A. Gesell sworn response to written interrogatories in the case of United States of America v. John D. Ehrlichman, et al.

Ten Congressmen were the President's guests for dinner on board the Presidential yacht Sequoia.

July 11

The President held a breakfast meeting at the White House with House Republican leaders John J. Rhodes and Leslie C. Arends and Vice President Ford. They discussed the legislative calendar for the remainder of the year.

The President met with the Cabinet to discuss the problem of inflation.

The President met with a group of business leaders and economists to discuss the state of the economy.

The President today accepted, with deep gratitude for his service, the resignation of Eugene E. Berg as Assistant Secretary of the Army for Installations and Logistics, effective July 15, 1974.

The President transmitted to the Congress the fourth annual report of the Secretary of Transportation on hazardous materials control, as required by the Hazardous Materials Transportation Control Act of 1970.

Senate Republican leaders Hugh Scott and Robert P. Griffin and Vice President Ford met with the President to discuss the legislative calendar for the remainder of the year.

Senator Carl T. Curtis of Nebraska and Representative LaMar Baker of Tennessee met with the President.

July 12

The President met with Dana Mead of the Domestic Council who is leaving the White House Staff to join the faculty of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y.

The President met with Roy Goodearle who is leaving his position as Associate Director of the Oil and Gas Division in the Department of the Interior.

Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz met with the President at the White House.

The President announced his intention to nominate Joseph W. Keene, of Shreveport, La., for reappointment as United States Marshal for the Western District of Louisiana for a term of 4 years.

The President left Washington for a stay at his home in San Clemente, Calif.

ACTS APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT

Approved July 4, 1974

S.J. Res. 218----- Public Law 93-331
Joint resolution to extend by thirty days the expiration date of the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945.

Approved July 8, 1974

H.R. 1376----- Private Law 93-77
An act for the relief of J. B. Riddle.
H.R. 8747----- Public Law 93-334
An act to repeal section 274 of the Revised Statutes of the United States relating to the District of Columbia, requiring compulsory vaccination against smallpox for public school students.

H.R. 8823----- Private Law 93-78
An act for the relief of James A. Wentz.

H.R. 9800----- Public Law 93-336
An act to amend sections 2733 and 2734 of title 10, United States Code, and section 715 of title 32, United States Code, to increase the maximum amount of a claim against the United States that may be paid administratively under those sections and to allow increased delegation of authority to settle and pay certain of those claims.

H.R. 12412----- Public Law 93-333
Foreign Disaster Assistance Act of 1974.

H.R. 12799----- Public Law 93-332
An act to amend the Arms Control and Disarmament Act, as amended, in order to extend the authorization for appropriations, and for other purposes.

H.R. 15124----- Public Law 93-335
An act to amend Public Law 93-233 to extend for an additional twelve months (until July 1, 1975) the eligibility of supplemental security income recipients for food stamps.

Approved July 9, 1974

H.R. 5266----- Private Law 93-79
An act for the relief of Ursula E. Moore.

Approved July 10, 1974

S. 3490----- Public Law 93-338
An act providing that funds apportioned for forest highways under section 202(a), title 23, United States Code, remain available until expended.

S. 3705----- Public Law 93-337
An act to amend title 38, United States Code, to provide a ten-year delimiting period for the pursuit of educational programs by veterans, wives, and widows.

H.R. 8660----- Public Law 93-340
An act to amend title 5 of the United States Code (relating to Government organization and employees) to assist Federal employees in meeting their tax obligations under city ordinances.

ACTS APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT—Continued

Approved July 10, 1974—Continued

H.R. 8977----- Public Law 93-341
An act to establish in the State of Florida the Egmont Key National Wildlife Refuge.

H.R. 13221----- Public Law 93-342
An act to authorize appropriations for the saline water program for fiscal year 1975, and for other purposes.

H.R. 14291----- Public Law 93-339
An act to amend the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries Act of 1950 to permit United States participation in international enforcement of fish conservation in additional geographic areas, pursuant to the International Convention for the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries, 1949, and for other purposes.

H.R. 15296----- Public Law 93-343
An act to authorize the Commissioner of Education to carry out a program to assist persons from disadvantaged backgrounds to undertake training for the legal profession.

NOMINATIONS SUBMITTED TO THE SENATE

The following list does not include promotions of members of the Uniformed Services, nominations to the Service Academies, or nominations of Foreign Service officers.

Submitted July 8, 1974

ROBERT EVERARD MONTGOMERY, Jr., of Virginia, to be General Counsel of the Federal Energy Administration (new position).

ROGER WEST SANT, of California, to be an Assistant Administrator of the Federal Energy Administration (new position).

STEPHEN S. GARDNER, of Pennsylvania, to be Deputy Secretary of the Treasury, vice William E. Simon, elevated.

RICHARD R. ALBRECHT, of Washington, to be General Counsel for the Department of the Treasury, vice Edward C. Schmults, elevated.

Submitted July 9, 1974

J. RAYMOND BELL, of the District of Columbia, to be a member of the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission of the United States for a term of 3 years from October 22, 1974 (reappointment).

JAMES C. HILL, of Georgia, to be United States District Judge for the Northern District of Georgia, vice Sidney O. Smith Jr., resigned.

A. ROBY HADDEN, of Texas, to be United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Texas for the term of 4 years (reappointment).

NOMINATIONS SUBMITTED TO THE SENATE—Continued

Submitted July 9, 1974—Continued

ARTHUR F. VAN COURT, of California, to be United States Marshal for the Eastern District of California for the term of 4 years (reappointment).

JOHN A. BIRKES, Jr., of Massachusetts, to be United States Marshal for the District of Massachusetts for the term of 4 years (reappointment).

Submitted July 10, 1974

WILLIAM D. EBERLE, of Connecticut, to be Executive Director of the Council on International Economic Policy (new position).

Submitted July 11, 1974

MURRAY I. GURFEIN, of New York, to be a United States Circuit Judge, Second Circuit, vice Paul R. Hays, retiring.

CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES

The following releases of the Office of the White House Press Secretary, distributed during the period covered by this issue, are not included in the issue.

Released July 8, 1974

News conference: on current legislation pending in Congress—by Caspar Weinberger, Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare

Released July 9, 1974

News conference: on the President's meeting with a group of his economic advisers—by Kenneth Rush, Counsellor to the President for Economic Policy

Released July 10, 1974

Fact sheet: French Bicentennial gift

Released July 11, 1974

News conference: on the President's meeting with a group of business leaders and economists—by Kenneth Rush, Counsellor to the President for Economic Policy

Statement: on White House tapes—by James D. St. Clair, Special Counsel to the President

Released July 12, 1974

Fact sheet: Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974

News conference: on the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974—by Roy L. Ash, Director of the Office of Management and Budget

Editor's Note

Note Concerning the Closing Date of This Issue

The President left Washington on Friday, July 12, for a stay at his home in San Clemente, Calif. Releases issued there but not received in time for inclusion in this issue will be published next week.

CUMULATIVE INDEX TO PRIOR ISSUES

Third Quarter, 1974

[See Index of Contents for Documents in this Issue]

- ABM. See Anti-ballistic missile systems
Acts approved. See last page of text in each issue
- Addresses and Remarks of the President
- Belgium
 Arrival in Brussels..... 728
 Departure from Washington..... 718, 727
 Luncheon in Brussels..... 732
 Union of Soviet Socialist Republics
 Address to the Soviet people..... 744
 Departure from Washington..... 718, 727
 Minsk..... 742
 Moscow..... 735, 748
 Report to the Nation, Loring Air Force Base, Maine..... 766
- Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocols to treaty on the limitation of..... 750, 756
- Appointments and Nominations
- Council on International Economic Policy, Executive Director..... 788
 Federal Energy Administration
 Assistant Administrator..... 789
 General Counsel..... 789
- Argentina, President Juan Domingo Peron, death..... 771
 Armed Forces, United States, Europe..... 729, 731
 Arms control and disarmament..... 750, 751, 753, 755, 756, 763, 764, 769
 Atlantic Relations, Declaration on..... 728, 729, 731
 Baudouin I, King..... 728, 732, 790
- Belgium
 King Baudouin I..... 728, 732, 790
 President's visit
 Arrival in Brussels..... 728
 Declaration of Atlantic Relations..... 729, 731
 Departure from Washington..... 718, 727
 Luncheon in Brussels..... 732
 Prime Minister Leo Tindermans..... 790
 Brezhnev, L. I..... 735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
 Burch, Dean..... 791
 Business and Industry, U.S.S.R., cooperation with..... 741, 759, 791
- Checklist of unpublished releases. See last page of text in each issue
 Commerce, Department of, Secretary..... 788
 Commercial Commission, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics..... 741
 Congress, House Judiciary Committee..... 791
 Construction, cooperation with U.S.S.R..... 739, 761, 791
- Construction, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in Housing and Other..... 739, 761
- Cooperation in Europe, Conference on Security and..... 757
- Cultural exchanges, cooperation with U.S.S.R..... 762
- Dent, Frederick B..... 788
- Digest of other White House announcements. See last page of text in each issue
- Eberle, William D..... 788
- Economic cooperation with U.S.S.R..... 741, 759, 791
- Economic Policy, Council on International, Executive Director..... 788
- Emergency Board No. 185, railway labor dispute..... 789
- Energy
 Conservation..... 788
 U.S.S.R., cooperation with..... 737, 761, 791
 Energy, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in the Field of..... 737, 761
 Energy Administration, Federal..... 788, 789
- Environment
 U.S.S.R., cooperation with..... 753, 762
 U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint statement..... 753
 Environmental warfare..... 753, 765
- Europe
 U.S. forces..... 729, 731
 U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint communique..... 757
- Fabiola, Queen..... 790
- Federal Energy Administration
 Administrator..... 788
 Assistant Administrator..... 789
 General Counsel..... 789
 Ford, Vice President Gerald R..... 766
- Geneva Peace Conference on the Middle East..... 758
- Germany, Federal Republic of, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt..... 790
- Government departments and agencies, energy conservation..... 788
- Hartman, Arthur A..... 791
- Health, cooperation with U.S.S.R..... 740, 761, 791
- Health Cooperation, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee for..... 740, 761
- Heart research, cooperation with U.S.S.R..... 740, 761, 791
- Housing, cooperation with U.S.S.R..... 739, 761, 791
- Housing and Other Construction, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in..... 739, 761
- Independence Day, 1974..... 790
- Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor..... 790
- Industry. See Business and Industry.
- International Economic Policy, Council on..... 788
- Joint Statements
- Union of Soviet Socialist Republics..... 753
- Judiciary Committee, House..... 791
- Key Biscayne, Fla..... 790
- King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr..... 771
- Kissinger, Dr. Henry A..... 763, 791
- Kosygin, A. N..... 740, 790
- Labor, railway dispute..... 789
- Loring Air Force Base, Maine..... 766, 790
- Luns, Joseph..... 728
- Meetings with Foreign Leaders
- Belgium
 King Baudouin I..... 728, 732, 790
 Prime Minister Leo Tindermans..... 790
- Germany, Federal Republic of, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt..... 790
- Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor..... 790
- Union of Soviet Socialist Republics
 Chairman N. V. Podgorny..... 790
 General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev..... 735, 748, 790
- Premier A. N. Kosygin..... 790
- United Kingdom, Prime Minister Harold Wilson..... 790
- Middle East
 North Atlantic Council meeting, remarks..... 731
 U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint communique..... 758
- Missile systems, protocol to treaty on the limitation of anti-ballistic..... 750, 756
- Montgomery, Robert E., Jr..... 789
- News Conferences Other Than Presidential
- President's visit to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Secretary of State Kissinger..... 763
- Nominations submitted to the Senate. See last page of text in each issue
- North Atlantic Treaty Organization
 Brussels meeting with North Atlantic Council..... 728, 731, 732, 769
 Declaration on Atlantic Relations..... 729, 731
 Secretary General Joseph Luns..... 728
- Nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of underground..... 751
- Peron, Juan Domingo..... 771
- Podgorny, N. V..... 739, 741, 790
- President's foreign travel
 Belgium..... 718, 727-735
 Union of Soviet Socialist Republics..... 718, 735-771
- Railway labor-management dispute..... 789
- Reports to the President
- Emergency Board No. 185, railway labor dispute..... 789
- Research, medical..... 740, 761, 791
- St. Clair, James D..... 787
- SALT. See Strategic arms limitations
- Sant, Roger West..... 789
- Sawhill, John C..... 788
- Schmidt, Helmut..... 790
- Science and technology, cooperation with U.S.S.R..... 737, 740, 741, 761, 791
- Security and Cooperation in Europe, Conference on..... 757
- Space program, cooperation with U.S.S.R..... 762
- State, Department of
 Assistant Secretary..... 791
 Secretary..... 763, 791
- Statements by the President
- Deaths
 King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr..... 771
 Peron, Juan Domingo..... 771
 Energy conservation..... 788
 Independence Day, 1974..... 790
- Statements Other Than Presidential
- Brussels meeting with the North Atlantic Council, Press Secretary Ziegler..... 731
- Strategic arms limitations..... 750, 753, 755, 756, 763, 764, 769
- Supreme Court of the United States..... 772
- Surganov, F. A..... 742
- Technology. See Science and Technology
- Tindermans, Leo..... 790
- Transportation, cooperation with U.S.S.R..... 762
- Treaties and other international agreements
 Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol to treaty on the limitation of..... 750

Treaties and other international agreements—Continued

Agreements with U.S.S.R.
Economic, industrial, and technical cooperation	741
Energy	737
Heart research	740
Housing and construction	739
Declaration on Atlantic Relations ..	729
Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of	751
Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of	751
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics
Agreements with U.S.
Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol on the limitation of	750, 756
Construction	739, 761, 791
Economic, industrial, and technical	741, 759, 791
Energy	737, 761, 791
Heart research	740, 761, 791

Union of Soviet Socialist Republics—Con. Agreements with U.S.—Continued

Housing	739, 761, 791
Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of	751
Chairman N. V. Podgorny	739, 741, 790
General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev	735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
Joint statements	753
North Atlantic Council meeting, remarks	731
Premier A. N. Kosygin	740, 790
President's visit
Address to the Soviet people	744
Departure from Washington	718, 727
Dinners in Moscow	735, 748
Luncheon in Minsk	742
News conference by Secretary of State Kissinger	763
United Kingdom, Prime Minister
Harold Wilson	790

United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Commercial Commission.....	741
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in the Field of Energy-----	737, 761
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in Housing and Other Construction -----	739, 761
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee for Health Cooperation.....	740, 761
Watergate investigation
Court documents.....	772
House Judiciary Committee.....	791
Supreme Court review.....	772
Weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of underground nuclear.....	751
White House Staff, Counsellor.....	791
Zamyatin, L. M.....	791
Ziegler, Ronald L.....	731, 791

JUL 29 1974

The University
of Michigan
Reference

Weekly Compilation of
PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Monday, July 22, 1974

Volume 10 • Number 29

Pages 805-818

Index of Contents

ACTS APPROVED.....	818	CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES.....	818
ADDRESSES AND REMARKS		CONGRESS, COMMUNICATIONS TO
National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency, telephone remarks with Rabbi Korff	813	Government executive development, message transmitting proposals.....	808
United States Space Week, 1974, exchange of remarks	815	DIGEST OF OTHER WHITE HOUSE ANNOUNCEMENTS..	817
ANNOUNCEMENTS		EDITOR'S NOTE.....	818
Disaster assistance for Minnesota.....	805	LETTERS, MEMORANDUMS, ETC.
APPOINTMENTS AND NOMINATIONS		(See also Resignations and Retirements)
Health, Education, and Welfare Department, Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, Administrator (Robert L. DuPont, Jr.)	806	National security investigations and wiretaps, letter to Chairman, Senate Foreign Relations Com- mittee	807
Nominations submitted to the Senate.....	818	PROCLAMATIONS
Office of Economic Opportunity, Director (Bert A. Gallegos)	807	Imports of brandy (Proc. 4304)	807
Securities and Exchange Commission, member (Philip A. Loomis, Jr.)	806	United States Space Week, 1974 (Proc. 4303)	805
Transportation Department, Federal Aviation Ad- ministration, Deputy Administrator (James E. Dow)	817	RESIGNATIONS AND RETIREMENTS
White House Staff, Special Assistant to the Presi- dent (Fernando E. C. DeBaca)	816	Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers (Herbert Stein)	815
		STATEMENTS BY THE PRESIDENT
		Death of Dizzy Dean.....	813
		Death of General Carl A. Spaatz.....	807
		Joint declaration of principles with Spain.....	814

[A Cumulative Index to Prior Issues appears at the end of this issue.]

WEEKLY COMPILATION OF Presidential Documents

Published every Monday by the Office of the Federal Register, National Archives and Records Service, General Services Administration, Washington, D.C. 20408, the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents contains statements, messages and other Presidential materials released by the White House during the preceding week.

The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents is published pursuant to the authority contained in the Federal Register Act (49 Stat. 500, as amended; 44 U.S.C. Ch. 15), under regulations prescribed by the Administrative Committee of the Federal Register, approved by the President (37 F.R. 23607; 1 CFR Part 10).

Distribution is made only by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents will be furnished by mail to subscribers for $15.00 per year, payable to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The charge for a single copy is 50 cents.

There are no restrictions on the republication of material appearing in the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents.

Administration of Richard Nixon

PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Week Ending Saturday, July 20, 1974

United States Space Week, 1974

Proclamation 4303. July 13, 1974

*By the President of the United States of America
a Proclamation*

Just five years ago, two Americans thrilled the world when they took man's first steps on the moon.

The heavens have intrigued and mystified man for all of recorded history. In that single journey five years ago, man's knowledge of our universe, diligently gathered over the centuries, resulted in a spectacular leap away from the earth.

That leap was more than a tribute to man: it was also a tribute to America, for it would never have been possible without a concerted, cooperative effort joining Government, industry and science. Organized and led by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and supported by our citizens, the Apollo program showed what America can do when our people agree on a goal and follow through to achieve it.

The knowledge to be gained from space will lead to scientific, technological, medical and industrial advances which cannot be fully perceived today. In time man may take for granted in the heavens such wonders as we cannot imagine—just as superhighways across America would amaze the Puritans of 1620 or transatlantic flights would astound those who passed on the legend of Icarus. But we know that a beginning has been made that will affect the course of human life forever.

It is entirely fitting that we should commemorate the beginnings of man's journey into his universe on the anniversary of that first landing on the moon by the men of Apollo 11.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, RICHARD NIXON, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim the period July 16 through July 24, 1974, as United States Space Week and urge the people of the Nation to mark this period in ways that express their pride in the leading role our Nation has played in the exploration and use of space which can contribute so greatly to a better land and a better world.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this thirteenth day of July, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninety-ninth.

RICHARD NIXON

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 10:40 a.m.,
July 15, 1974]

NOTE: The text of the proclamation was released at San Clemente, Calif.

For a related release, see p. 815 of this issue.

Disaster Assistance for Minnesota

Announcement of Disaster Declaration and Authorization of Federal Assistance Following Storms and Flooding. July 13, 1974

The President today declared a major disaster for the State of Minnesota as a result of severe storms and flooding, beginning about June 18, which caused damage to public, private, and agricultural property. The President's action will permit the use of Federal funds in relief and recovery efforts in designated areas of the State.

Federal assistance from the President's Disaster Relief Fund will include disaster unemployment assistance for eligible individuals, debris removal, and the repair or restoration of damaged streets, roads, bridges, and public facilities and utilities. Low-interest-rate disaster loans for homeowners and businesses will be made available by the Small Business Administration under the authorities of Public Law 93-24, and emergency loan assistance will be made available by the Farmers Home Administration.

Federal relief activities in Minnesota will be coordinated by the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, Department of Housing and Urban Development, under the direction of Administrator Thomas P. Dunne. Mr. Dunne will designate the specific areas within the State eligible for Federal assistance, based upon Federal and State damage assessments.

Mr. Robert E. Connor, Regional Director for Federal Disaster Assistance, HUD Region 5, will be designated as the Federal Coordinating Officer to work with the State in providing Federal disaster assistance under the Disaster Relief Act of 1974, Public Law 93-288.

NOTE: The announcement was released at San Clemente, Calif.

Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Robert L. DuPont, Jr., To Be Administrator. July 15, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Robert L. DuPont, Jr., of Chevy Chase, Md., to be Administrator of the Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration. This is a new position created by Public Law 93-282 of May 14, 1974.

Dr. DuPont has served since June 12, 1973, as Director of Special Action Office for Drug Abuse Prevention. From 1970 to 1973, he was administrator of the Narcotics Treatment Administration of the District of Columbia government's Department of Human Resources.

He was born on March 25, 1936, in Toledo, Ohio. Dr. DuPont attended high school in Colorado, received his B.A. from Emory University in 1958 and his M.D. from Harvard Medical School in 1963. His post-graduate training includes medical intern, Cleveland Metropolitan General Hospital (1963-64); psychiatric resident and teaching fellow, Massachusetts Mental Health Center, Harvard Medical School (1964-66); clinical associate, National Institutes of Health (1966-68).

Dr. DuPont, from 1968 to 1970, was a research psychiatrist and acting associate director for community services of the District of Columbia Department of Corrections. He is a consultant to the Veterans Administration, the Food and Drug Administration, and the Special Action Office for Drug Abuse Prevention. He is also a member of the National Advisory Council on Drug Abuse Prevention, the Drug Abuse Task Force of the National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals, and the Advisory Board of the National Drug Abuse Training Center. Dr. DuPont was the recipient of the 1971-72 Melvin C. Hazen Award, presented to the outstanding young man in the D.C. government by the Downtown Jaycees.

NOTE: The announcement was released at San Clemente, Calif.

Securities and Exchange Commission

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Philip A. Loomis, Jr., for Reappointment as a Member of the Commission. July 15, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Philip A. Loomis, Jr., for reappointment as a member of the Securities and Exchange Commission for the term expiring June 5, 1979.

Mr. Loomis has been with the Securities and Exchange Commission since 1954 and has been a member of the Commission since August 13, 1971. From 1963 to 1971, he was General Counsel of the Securities and Exchange Commission, after serving from 1955 to 1963 as Associate Director (1955), then Director (1955-63), of the Division of Trading Exchanges (now Trading and Markets).

In his capacity as General Counsel to the Commission, Mr. Loomis drafted the 1960 amendments to the Investment Advisory Act of 1940 and had the primary staff responsibility for the legislation which became the Securities Acts Amendments of 1964. He also supervised the staff work on the legislation which became the Securities Investor Protection Act of 1970.

He was born June 11, 1915, in Colorado Springs, Colo. Mr. Loomis earned his A.B. at Princeton University in 1938 with highest honors. He is a 1941 cum laude graduate of Yale Law School. Mr. Loomis received the Career Service Award of the National Civil Service League in 1964, the SEC Distinguished Service Award in 1966, and the Justice Tom C. Clark Award in 1971. He is a member of the American Bar Association, Federal Bar Association, and Los Angeles Bar Association.

Mr. Loomis and his three daughters reside in Chevy Chase, Md., and maintain legal residence in Pasadena, Calif.

NOTE: The announcement was released at San Clemente, Calif.

General Carl A. Spaatz

Statement by the President on the Death of the First U.S. Air Force Chief of Staff. July 15, 1974

As a pioneer Army aviator, as the leader of the largest single air command in the history of military aviation, and as the first U.S. Air Force Chief of Staff, Gen. Carl Spaatz served his country with courage, honor, and ability and earned for himself a place in history.

No individual deserved more credit than General Spaatz for creating the proud, independent tradition of the U.S. Air Force and for building America's supremacy in the air.

Mrs. Nixon and I join with all our fellow citizens in extending our sympathy to his wife and family, and in mourning the passing of a great patriot and a great military leader.

NOTE: Carl A. Spaatz, 83, died at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Washington, D.C., on July 14. He served as first Air Force Chief of Staff from September 1947 until his retirement in 1948.

The statement was released at San Clemente, Calif.

National Security Investigations and Wiretaps

Text of the President's Letter to Chairman J. William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Dated July 12, 1974. Released July 15, 1974

Your letter of June 25 has been brought to my attention, and I welcome this opportunity to affirm my public statement of May 22, 1973, as quoted in your letter, and to add the following comments.

You appreciate, I am sure, the crucial importance of secrecy in negotiations with foreign countries. Without secret negotiations and essential confidentiality, the United States could not have secured a ceasefire in South Vietnam, opened relations with the People's Republic of China, or realized progress in our relations on the SALT negotiations with the Soviet Union.

The circumstances that led to my decision to direct the initiation of an investigative program in 1969 are described in detail in the May 22 statement. I ordered the use of the most effective investigative procedures possible, including wiretaps, to deal with certain critically important national security problems. Where supporting evidence was available, I personally directed the surveillance, including wiretapping, of certain specific individuals.

I am familiar with the testimony given by Secretary Kissinger before your Committee to the effect that he performed the function, at my request, of furnishing information about individuals within investigative categories that I established so that an appropriate and effective investigation could be conducted in each case. This testimony is entirely correct; and I wish to affirm categorically that Secretary Kissinger and others involved in various aspects of this investigation were operating under my specific authority and were carrying out my express orders.

NOTE: The text of the letter was made available by the White House Press Office at San Clemente, Calif. It was not issued in the form of a White House press release.

Office of Economic Opportunity

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Bert A. Gallegos To Be Director. July 16, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Bert A. Gallegos, of Denver, Colo., to be Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity. He will succeed Alvin J. Arnett, who has held the position since September 20, 1973, and who has resigned effective July 31, 1974.

Mr. Gallegos has served since March 10, 1972, as Assistant Director and General Counsel of the Office of Economic Opportunity. From 1950 to 1972, he was engaged in the private practice of law in Denver, and he served in the Colorado State Legislature from 1956 to 1964. Mr. Gallegos was a member of the Denver school board from 1971 until he assumed his current position.

He was born on September 19, 1922, in Santa Fe, N. Mex. Mr. Gallegos received his B.A. (1942), LL.B. (1945), M.P.A. (1972), and Ph. D. (1972) degrees from the University of Colorado.

Mr. Gallegos resides in Falls Church, Va.

NOTE: The announcement was released at San Clemente, Calif.

Imports of Brandy

Proclamation 4304. July 16, 1974

TERMINATION, IN PART, OF THE SUSPENSION OF BENEFITS OF TRADE AGREEMENT CONCESSIONS AND ADJUSTMENT OF DUTY ON CERTAIN BRANDY

*By the President of the United States of America
a Proclamation*

1. WHEREAS, pursuant to the authority vested in him by the Constitution and the statutes of the United States of America, including section 252(c) of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962 (19 U.S.C. 1882(c)) and section 350(a)(6) of the Tariff Act of 1930, as amended (19 U.S.C. 1351(a)(6)), the President, in response to certain unreasonable import restrictions on poultry from the United States maintained by the European Economic Community (the EEC), suspended, by Proclamation No. 3564 of December 4, 1963, the application of the benefits of certain trade agreement concessions;

2. WHEREAS, the President has determined that it is in the interest of the United States to restore, in part, the application of the benefits of trade agreement concessions suspended by Proclamation No. 3564 in order to encourage the resolution of outstanding trade disputes between the United States and the EEC, including the removal of unreasonable import restrictions on poultry from the United States maintained by the EEC;

3. WHEREAS, section 255(b) of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962 and section 350(a)(6) of the Tariff Act of 1930, as amended, authorize the termination, in whole or in part, of a proclamation issued pursuant to title II of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962 and section 350 of the Tariff Act of 1930, as amended, respectively.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, RICHARD NIXON, President of the United States of America, acting under the authority vested in me by the Constitution and the statutes of the United States of America, including section 255(b) of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962 and section 350 of the Tariff Act of 1930, as amended, in order to restore the application of the benefits of trade agreement concessions on certain brandy valued over $9 per gallon, suspended by Proclamation 3564 of December 4, 1963, do hereby proclaim—

(1) the termination of such part of Proclamation 3564 of December 4, 1963 as proclaims a rate of duty inconsistent with that provided for in the amendment made by paragraph (2) of this proclamation; and

(2) the amendment of subpart B of part 2 of the Appendix to the Tariff Schedules of the United States to read as follows:

Item	Article	Rates of duty
		1	2
945.16	Brandy, valued over $17.00 per gallon provided for in items 168.20 and 168.22.	$5 per gal.	No change

The rates provided for in the amendment made by paragraph (2) of this proclamation shall be effective as to all articles entered, or withdrawn from warehouse, for consumption on and after July 1, 1974.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this sixteenth day of July, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninety-ninth.

RICHARD NIXON

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 11:33 a.m., July 17, 1974]

NOTE: The text of the proclamation was released at San Clemente, Calif.

GOVERNMENT EXECUTIVE DEVELOPMENT

The President's Message to the Congress Proposing Enactment of Programs To Improve Training and Selection of Government Executives. July 17, 1974

To the Congress of the United States:

Over the past four decades as the Federal Government has grown larger and more powerful, the people it serves have expressed widespread dissatisfaction that the Government has also grown increasingly unresponsive to their needs.

One of the foremost objectives of this Administration has been to reverse that trend, restoring the original vitality of the federal system and returning the traditional power of the people over their governing bodies.

At the centerpiece of our efforts has been the concept of New Federalism and the many programs such as General Revenue Sharing which help to carry out its principles.

Through revenue sharing programs, we are seeking to channel funds, authority and responsibility to those governments that are best able and willing to serve the needs of the people. General Revenue Sharing is already providing States and localities with a predictable amount of Federal funds with a minimum number of restrictions and controls. In a similar vein, State influence has been increased through our grant program for law enforcement assistance, and we have sought to replace a score of categorical grants for manpower programs with a block grant approach. The next steps along this road should be the establishment of block grants for community development, enactment of the Unified Transportation Act, and enactment of the Responsive Governments Act.

Supporting these New Federalism initiatives has been a concurrent effort to rationalize and streamline the organization of Government departments and agencies. We have created an independent United States Postal Service, and we have established the Environmental Protection Agency, the Special Action Office for Drug Abuse Prevention, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, the Federal Energy Administration as well as other new organizations. I have also proposed to the Congress and continue to support a fundamental realignment of the executive departments.

In addition, we have established regional boundaries and Federal regional councils to harmonize activities of the principal agencies disbursing grants-in-aid, and we have greatly improved Federal consultation with State and locally elected officials on the administration of federally assisted programs.

IMPROVING THE MANAGEMENT OF GOVERNMENT

Yet we recognize that even as we work to change basic relationships among Federal, State and local governments through our New Federalism efforts, it is also vitally important to ensure that the people who manage the institutions of government become as efficient and responsive to human needs as possible.

To improve general management of the Federal Government, I launched an intensive effort last year to establish clear objectives for Federal agencies and departments and to measure our progress toward meeting those objectives—not by producing a thinly veiled display of activity or by rearranging work processes but by producing specific program results. Each major department and agency has been working with me in developing objectives to be achieved throughout the year, and they are measuring specific results by specific deadlines. These commitments are continually reviewed and help to guide day-to-day operations until the objectives are met.

Today I call upon the Congress to join me in carrying forward our program of managerial reform by enacting and otherwise supporting a comprehensive series of changes to improve the quality of management at all levels of government.

Specifically, I ask the support of the Congress for my proposals to begin a large-scale effort aimed at upgrading the training and education of government executives and to institute reforms in the personnel system by which Federal executive manpower is managed. These two initiatives should contribute substantially to the achievement of fundamental, long-term improvements in the capacity of governments to manage their programs more effectively.

EDUCATING CAREER EXECUTIVES

I propose that we give first attention to improving the means by which our current managers and executives learn the art of public management. Such learning comes from both work experiences and formal education and training. Because of the lack of appropriate emphasis, many of our career managers and executives have not had the benefit of recent education or training in modern methods of management. American business and industry have proved that education and training in management improves the capacity of people to lead more effectively. The level of investments in this type of training made by progressive private employers greatly exceeds public sector investments for the same purpose. It is time that government caught up.

Therefore, I am taking three related actions:

First, I am instructing the Civil Service Commission to establish a Program Management Fellowship with selected colleges and universities for postgraduate educational programs for Federal executives. I shall recommend to the Congress an appropriation of $10 million for the first 250 Federal participants in this program. This sum will pay for both tuition and salaries of those in the program. In this program our best career employees will increase their managerial perspective and expertise and will learn more effective ways of administering significant governmental activities such as delivery of health care, transportation, and community development.

Special program emphasis of this kind, when coupled with curriculum offerings in up-to-date management, will equip our public executives to meet the demands of highly complex programs so that they will deliver what they promise to the American people. To support the planning, installation, and continuing conduct of these special educational programs and to ensure that the best candidates are selected on a competitive basis, I propose that they be centrally financed and administered by the Civil Service Commission.

Second, I propose to increase the management capability of State and local program managers through additional postgraduate education. Under the authority of the Intergovernmental Personnel Act, State and local government personnel will have the opportunity to collaborate with their Federal colleagues in the Program Management Fellowship if they so choose. Having key leaders from Federal, State, and local governments learn together about management as it applies to their program responsibilities should improve the program delivery capability at all levels of government. To support this new program, to increase the level of short-term management training available to State and local managers, and to continue to improve personnel management will require amending the Intergovernmental Personnel Act (IPA) and a doubling of the current $15 million appropriation request for the IPA Program. With these funds it will be possible to educate, through long-term programs alone, approximately 250 State and local managers a year, while paying a portion of their salaries. I hope this approach will encourage State and local governments to increase their own development and training of executives.

My third proposal is to accelerate the management development of career Federal executives through short-term training courses. I am asking the Civil Service Commission to move promptly to acquire a perma-ment facility for the Federal Executive Institute on the professional and graduate grounds of the University of Virginia. The Federal Executive Institute has already demonstrated its value. Now it is time to enlarge its capability. The Institute would be enlarged and have its functions expanded to handle the knowledge and skill needs of our future executives. The Federal Government looks forward to cooperating with the State of Virginia in this effort.

IMPROVING CAREER EXECUTIVE PERSONNEL SYSTEMS

Executive performance in the Federal government is currently hampered by a cumbersome, fragmented personnel system, by weak selection procedures, and by the absence of financial incentives for career employees. To rectify these conditions, I am taking four actions.

Federal executives are employed under a number of appointing authorities which make the effective management and utilization of this valuable resource very difficult. There can be no comprehensive, periodic review of each agency's total need for positions by either the Civil Service Commission or the Congress. Further, the manner in which a majority of these people are classified and paid is unreasonably inflexible and provides limited opportunity to recognize differences in individual performance and ability.

The Congress has given preliminary consideration and provided advice on the first proposal the Administration made to reform the executive manpower management system. I soon will be sending to the Congress new legislation which incorporates earlier Congressional views. The new Executive Personnel System I propose will:

1. Provide flexibility to assign senior career executives where they are most needed;
2. Compensate on the basis of individual capability within broad salary bands;
3. Remove the current, inflexible quotas and other statutory allocations applicable on the number in the highest three grades, but maintain a responsible oversight on the total number;
4. Recognize the distinction between the executives with career commitments and those temporarily working for the Government; and,
5. Improve the overall management of our total executive resources by providing for a comprehensive annual analysis and review by the Congress and the executive branch.

Enactment of this legislation would provide the means to build and maintain an effective and responsive Federal executive work force. I urge early and favorable consideration by the Congress.

Second, I strongly urge prompt congressional action on the recommendation for pay increases for Federal executives that I submitted on May 7, 1974. The failure of the Congress to approve higher salaries for the executive, legislative, and judicial branches has created a severe problem within the Government that needs to be remedied quickly. Some 10,000 executives are now paid the same salary. This pay compression denies fair increases in compensation and the incentive to seek greater responsibility. For many of the top staff within the Government, it has become financially more rewarding to retire than to remain in the Federal service. Failure to relieve this situation may well lead to a serious decline in the quality of our management capability.

Third, to insure that those individuals entering our executive ranks in the future are managerially fit, I have asked the Civil Service Commission to improve the criteria by which individuals are judged for those positions. There must be assurance that these individuals have been adequately prepared to handle their new responsibilities. While technical competence will remain a factor in filling executive positions with leadership responsibilities, demonstrated managerial capability will be more heavily weighed in the future.

Finally, I am calling for and supporting new and original efforts to reward outstanding performance among our executives. We do not offer our executives strong personal incentives to be aggressive and achieve results. Often our most deserving and promising civil servants leave the Government in search of employers who are better able to recognize and reward their ability. We cannot afford to lose such people.

Therefore, I am directing that the Incentive Awards Program be more widely utilized to recognize outstanding managerial performance. There will be experimentation with group awards that executives can selectively use to reward subordinate managers who are especially effective. But awards for outstanding individual executive performance will also continue. We must overcome traditional reluctance to use these legislative authorities to reward executive excellence.

BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE

Both the Congress and the President must act responsibly to create an executive work force at the national level that is second to none. There is no more demanding nor vital career than executive management in the Federal service. We should act now in order to achieve the long term reforms that build and maintain an executive corps capable of dealing with the policy and management complexities of the future.

The new initiatives I am taking and the legislation I am proposing are designed to build upon the efforts made by this Administration over the past five years to reform the management of government programs. Within the past year, significant progress has been made to make the investments necessary to develop our finest career managers and executives. We must not imperil the future by failing in our duty to prepare career executives to carry out their responsibilities with skill and wisdom.

What I am proposing is an essential part of my efforts to enable governments, at all levels, to deliver what they promise. Not everyone can manage the public's business. The measures I am today proposing will develop those who can.

RICHARD NIXON

The White House,
July 17, 1974.

NOTE: The text of the message was released at San Clemente, Calif.

Death of Dizzy Dean

Statement by the President. July 17, 1974

To my generation of Americans, Dizzy Dean will always be remembered as the blazing young fastballer who led the Gashouse Gang of St. Louis to the pinnacle of baseball glory. To the young, Dizzy will also be remembered as the sportscaster who brought an extra touch of excitement and color to every game he covered. Dizzy Dean was indeed a man for all generations, and America is saddened today by his death.

Mrs. Nixon and I join sports fans everywhere in mourning the loss of this legendary figure.

NOTE: Dizzy Dean, 63, died at St. Mary's Hospital in Reno, Nev., on July 17, 1974. He was a pitcher with the St. Louis Cardinals from 1930 to 1938 and was elected to the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum in 1953.

The statement was released at San Clemente, Calif.

National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency

The President's Telephone Remarks to Members of the Committee Meeting in Washington. July 18, 1974

THE PRESIDENT. Rabbi Korff.

RABBI KORFF. Mr. President, good evening, sir.

THE PRESIDENT. It is good to hear your voice.

RABBI KORFF. Thank you so much, Mr. President.

If I may, just for a moment before you proceed, read to you the sentiments of this assembly.

Dear Mr. President, those who have admired you since your political youth can now only paraphrase Robert Frost: We do not find you changed from him we knew, only more sure of all you thought was true. Sure that your country has both the will and the resources to sustain its freedom at home and share its bounty abroad. Sure that any government of the people must be close to their supervision, bound by their frugality, and limited to their purpose. Sure that the people's rights can be protected only by a Constitution plainly read and strictly interpreted. Certain, despite your detractors, that history is shaped by the stalwart and vindicates the brave. Indeed, in your case, history's verdict is already clear.

Now, Mr. President, we are all ready to listen to you.

THE PRESIDENT. Well, first I want to extend to you, Rabbi Korff, and all of our very distinguished friends tonight, our appreciation not only for your warm words, but also to each of you for attending this dinner.

I regret that Mrs. Nixon and I were unable to attend the Second Citizens' Congress, but I can assure you that the Nixon family will be well represented, because I talked to Julie a little earlier in Indianapolis, and she is flying in from her job there, and will be there to represent the family.

And I think you will agree, all of you, after you hear Julie, that no President could have a better personal representative than Julie.

Your efforts to build a grassroots organization, Rabbi Korff, with 2 million members, reminds me of something that General de Gaulle once said, it is one of my favorite quotations. He said that France is never her true self unless she is engaged in a great enterprise. That was true of France, of any great nation.

Here in America, we have all been guided by that same sense of national purpose and what has made America the great nation it is today is that our people have always devoted themselves to great enterprise, enterprises greater than themselves.

In these difficult times, when world peace depends so fundamentally upon the strength and the unity of America, you have joined together, Democrats and Republicans, to support an office which is bigger than any party, the office of the Presidency of the United States.

And I know that each one of you has made a personal sacrifice to further that great enterprise. I realize, from having talked to Rabbi Korff, that caravans have come all the way from California, from States in the Mountain States, the Midwest, the Northeast, and I am very grateful for the fact that all of you have done this on your own expense because you believe in something.

I am particularly indebted to you for personal reasons. But others will follow me in this office beginning in 1977, when I shall have finished my term of office to which I was elected. And those future Presidents will thank you, all of you in this group tonight, and your hundreds of thousands of colleagues across the Nation, for rallying behind the office of the Presidency at this crucial time.

You have persisted under the most adverse and sometimes the unfair sort of criticism. You have never wavered. You have not lost your faith when many would like to see you do so, and you have not quit when quitting might have been easier, and you are not going to quit because we are going to continue until we win.

As long as you have this kind of strength in fighting for a cause you believe in, a cause bigger than yourselves, as long as America has this kind of strength, we shall never fail to remain, in Lincoln's words, the last best hope of earth.

I also want to express my appreciation for the tribute you are paying tonight especially to members of the White House Staff and others within the executive branch. The men and women you are honoring deserve the praise of all Americans, for they are unstinting but often unsung in their service to the country, service that most of them render at great personal sacrifice. And by your support for them and for the office of the Presidency, you make it possible for all of us to carry out our responsibilities more effectively.

While I know Rabbi Korff would not want me to have this personal reference, I do think that all of those with whom he has worked will appreciate it, as I do. Rabbi Korff's eloquence, his intelligence, his dedication have been a great source of strength to me and all of us in these difficult times.

I want to thank each and every one of you for your friendship and support. I just wish I could be there to shake hands with each of you and to thank you personally.

And I say in conclusion, let us continue to work together, because together we shall keep America on its great mission of bringing a new era of peace with justice for the world and progress and opportunity for every American at home.

Thank you very much.

RABBI KORFF. Would you listen, Mr. President, to the response of the people.

(Crowd chanting "We love Nixon.")

Mr. President, I am happy to tell you that more delegates than we expected have arrived and the overflow had to be accommodated in additional ballrooms. We are very grateful for the spirit that unites us and very grateful for the leadership you have given us, and we love you dearly.

THE PRESIDENT. Well, I can't tell you again how very much I have appreciated all the work that has gone into not only this dinner but also the hours and hours and days and days of work that have gone into all of your efforts to date. And you can be sure that I shall do everything that I can to be worthy of your trust. And you can be sure I shall not let you down.

RABBI KORFF. Mr. President, may I, with your kind permission, as you pointed out your White House Staff, I would like to read to you our resolution in recognition of your staff. May I, Mr. President?

Without the slightest apology to those who have already preempted the phrase and distorted it, we honor all the President's men, especially those who for performing their duty with loyalty and courage have provoked the wrath of all his enemies. These men, and the women, too—as I look at Anne Armstrong—it should be noted, have defended not only their chief, but also the prerogatives and independence of his office.

In so doing, they have aided both Mr. Nixon and his successors to the Presidency, whoever they may be. As the future generation recalls with horror this year's assault upon our Constitutional heritage, it will remember, too, that the President was not alone in his ordeal but was well and faithfully served by the young, and not so young, in civilian and military dress with accent Southern or Yankee or even more exotic.

As the President's bold determination strikes our admiration so their steadfast sense of purpose must provoke our emulation.

Mr. President, may we take leave of you now?

THE PRESIDENT. Yes, and our very best to everybody who is there again, and we will be hoping to see you all personally.

RABBI KORFF. Thank you very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 5:31 p.m., P.d.t., from San Clemente, Calif., to the second congress of the National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency meeting at the Shoreham Americana Hotel, Washington, D.C.

Rabbi Baruch Korff, chairman of the committee, introduced the President.

As printed above, this item follows the text of the White House press release.

Joint Declaration of Principles Between the United States and Spain

Statement by the President Upon Signing the Joint Declaration. July 19, 1974

I am very pleased to sign today this important document which highlights the close relations which the United States and Spain have had for over 20 years.

This Declaration articulates the fundamental principles which govern the cooperation between our two countries in many fields and proclaims our intention to continue this cooperation in the future. It also recognizes that the other nations of the North Atlantic area have benefited from our cooperation, especially in the field of security where our mutual endeavors have strengthened the cause of peace.

This Declaration not only outlines our successful efforts in the past to work together for the security of both countries, but it addresses also the challenges of the future. In this regard our two countries are determined to expand our cooperation across broad ranging areas of mutual interest—such as the fields of scientific, economic, technical, and cultural cooperation—as well as in the collective defense effort.

I feel that the signing of this Declaration, which was initialed last week in Madrid by Foreign Minister Cortina and Secretary Kissinger, marks an important milestone in the cordial relations between the United States and Spain. As friendly partners, we believe that our close association will benefit the peoples of both our countries and that our common effort will be of benefit to all who desire peace and progress in the world.

NOTE: The President signed the joint declaration at a ceremony in his office at the Western White House. Present at the ceremony were: Joaquin Cervino, Chargé d'Affaires of the Spanish Embassy in Washington, Andre Drake, Spanish Consul General in Los Angeles, and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. Prince Juan Carlos y Borbon, interim Chief of State of Spain, signed the joint declaration at a ceremony in Madrid.

The President's statement was released at San Clemente, Calif.

United States Space Week, 1974

Exchange of Remarks Between the President and Former Astronaut Neil Armstrong on the Fifth Anniversary of the First Manned Landing on the Moon. July 19, 1974

MR. ARMSTRONG. Mr. President, you have proclaimed this week to be United States Space Week in conjunction with the fifth anniversary of our first successful landing on the Moon. It is my privilege to represent my colleagues, the crewmen of Projects Mercury, Gemini, Apollo, and Skylab, and the men and women of NASA and the hundreds of thousands of Americans from across the land who contributed so mightily to the success of our efforts in space in presenting this plaque which bears the names of each individual who has had the privilege of representing this country in a flight above the surface of the Earth.

THE PRESIDENT. Thank you very much, Neil.

It is hard to realize that 5 years ago we had the dinner in Los Angeles honoring the crew of which you were the captain, but in that period of time, there have been so many more who have gone to the Moon and who are now participating, of course, in the new projects which will culminate in the joint Soviet-American enterprise in 1975.

Five years ago, I don't think we would have anticipated that would happen, although I know you expressed at that time, you and your colleagues, the hope that what we were doing in space would be shared with other people throughout the world. And that is exactly what we are doing.

I think it is also very generous of you, but very appropriate to point out that there are the names of a very few, very courageous and able and intelligent people, including of course yourself, on this plaque. They could not have done what they did without the backing of some 400,000 people who have, at one time or another, been engaged in the space program.

And so this plaque will represent the efforts of all of those who have made our program possible, who have made the United States first in the exploration of space.

We will put it in an appropriate place in the White House so that thousands of visitors who come through there will be able to be reminded, particularly in this next week or 2 weeks, of what we have done in the field of space.

And finally, I would say this: That there are those who might wonder was it worth it? We are now finding that in terms of even practical application, apart from exploration, that it was worth it.

As you were telling me just a few moments ago in the office, the areas of geology, of topography, predictions with regard to the weather, and needless to say in communications, all of these have received a tremendous input that they would not have had unless we had had the space program.

In addition, there is the fallout technologically which cannot be estimated in terms of money, technologically, because of the contribution of the space program. But most important, I think the greatest contribution of this program is not exploration and it is not the technology, where we are getting benefits that are material, but it is the spirit that you and your colleagues in the program have had the opportunity to demonstrate to the American people all over the world.

We are proud of the men who have gone to space, we are very proud of all of those who helped you make it possible to go into space. Without a great challenge you can't be a great person, and we have demonstrated through this program, and we congratulate you again 5 years later, you and your colleagues, for all that you have done.

NOTE: The exchange of remarks began at 12:25 p.m. at the Western White House.

As printed above, this item follows the text of the White House press release.

For the text of the proclamation, see p. 805 of this issue.

Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers

Exchange of Letters Between the President and Herbert Stein Upon Mr. Stein's Resignation. July 19, 1974

Dear Herb:

I have your letter of July 1, and though I have known of your plans for some time, it is nevertheless with reluctance and the deepest personal sense of regret that I accept your resignation as Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, effective on a date to be determined.

With your departure, I am losing an immensely valued economic adviser who has served this Administration with unqualified dedication, and who for nearly three years has guided the Council with great distinction as its Chairman. It has been a period of exceptional challenge but also unusual opportunity for economic policy, and I believe we have accomplished much in relation to the size of the problems which have confronted us. Your participation in the crucial decisions during this time has clearly left its imprint on our economic policies and, I am confident, it will leave a favorable mark on the Nation's economic history.

Through your regular reports, I have been kept well informed about the economy, and the analyses you and the Council have provided me have given valuable insights into complex economic issues. I have especially admired the skill, clarity and substance with which you have been able to carry out the difficult but essential responsibility of explaining the economy and our policies to the public. I know your many friends and colleagues throughout government join me in saying your sound counsel and experienced leadership on economic matters will be greatly missed.

As you assume your new position at the University of Virginia, I welcome this opportunity to express not only my appreciation for your outstanding contributions to the well-being of our Nation, but also my thanks for the loyalty and dedication you have given me personally. This has meant a great deal. You may be certain we will take advantage of your proximity to call upon your talents in the future. In the meantime, Pat joins me in extending to Mildred and you our heartfelt good wishes for every success and happiness in the years ahead.

Sincerely,

RICHARD NIXON

Dear Mr. President:

My departure having been delayed three times, the day is approaching when I must leave the Chairmanship of your Council of Economic Advisers to take up my professorship at the University of Virginia at the beginning of September. I want on this occasion to thank you for the consideration you have shown me and the confidence you have placed in me. No CEA Chairman could want a more supportive and understanding President than you have been.

You have been responsible for conducting U.S. economic policy during a turbulent period, when the whole world was swept by storms of inflation. Your policy has been firm and decisive. The results have surely not been all we would have liked, but there has been no serious recession, inflation is less violent than in most other developed countries, and the U.S. has a good prospect for reducing its inflation rate. The real incomes of the American people are higher now than they have ever been except briefly in 1973, and will undoubtedly move on to new heights. You have taken steps toward reforms of many aspects of policy, domestic and international, that will strengthen the American economy and the world economy in the future. If there is support for persisting on your present anti-inflationary path the record of your terms will stand high in objective histories of the American economy. You will be recognized as a world leader in the fight against the economic disease of democracies—inflation, just as you are a world leader in the fight against the political disease of nations—wars.

To serve you has been a pleasure and a privilege. It is with deep regret that I shall leave the stimulating life in the Executive Office and the group of dedicated men and women in the Administration who are assembled to serve the Nation under your guidance.

Please be assured of my continued best wishes and support.

Sincerely yours,

HERBERT STEIN

NOTE: The text of the letters was released at San Clemente, Calif.

Special Assistant to the President

Announcement of Appointment of Fernando E. C. DeBaca. July 19, 1974

The President today announced that he would appoint Fernando E. C. DeBaca, of Albuquerque, N. Mex., as Special Assistant to the President. He will serve as deputy to Counsellor to the President Anne Armstrong, for Hispanic Affairs.

Since January 1972, Mr. DeBaca has served as Regional Director for the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare in San Francisco, Calif. He was appointed by the President in March 1973 to serve as Chairman of the Federal Regional Council in Region IX, in addition to his HEW responsibilities. Federal Regional Councils are the top regional coordinating bodies of the Federal Government and are composed of the regional heads of the major domestic grant-making agencies. From January 1971 to January 1972, Mr. DeBaca was with the U.S. Civil Service Commission as Director of the Sixteen Point Program for Spanish Speaking Americans, a program designed to improve opportunities in the Federal career service for Hispanic Americans.

He was born on January 20, 1938, in Albuquerque, N. Mex. Mr. DeBaca received his B.A. degree from the University of New Mexico in 1961 and served in the U.S. Army from 1962 to 1964. He was with the New Mexico State government from 1968 to 1971 as State manpower coordinator, assistant State personnel director, regional tax director, and as commissioner of the New Mexico Department of Motor Vehicles. From 1964 to 1967, he was Special Agent in Charge, Nevada Test Site/Hawaii Test Range, Intelligence and Security Directorate, Defense Atomic Support Agency.

NOTE: The announcement was released at San Clemente, Calif.

Federal Aviation Administration

Announcement of Intention To Nominate James E. Dow To Be Deputy Administrator. July 19, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate James E. Dow, of Fairfax, Va., to be Deputy Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation. He will succeed Kenneth M. Smith, who has resigned.

Mr. Dow has served since August 1972 as Associate Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration. He has been with the FAA and predecessor agencies since 1943. From 1967 to 1972, he was Director of the FAA's Office of Budget after serving as Director of the National Airspace System Program Office (1965-66), Chief of the Plans Division of the Air Traffic Service (1964-65), and Chief of the Systems Management Division, Research and Development Service (1963-64). Prior to his Washington assignments, Mr. Dow held air traffic control positions in Cleveland and Cincinnati, Ohio; Willow Run, Mich.; Olathe, Kans.; and Kansas City, Mo.

He was born on March 15, 1921, in East Machias, Maine. Mr. Dow received his B.S. degree from the University of Maine in 1943 and during 1966-67 studied at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs.

Mr. Dow is married to the former Shirley Ruth Gardner. They have three daughters and reside in Fairfax, Va.

NOTE: The announcement was released at San Clemente, Calif.

Digest of Other White House Announcements

Following is a listing of items of general interest which were announced to the press during the period covered by this issue but which are not carried elsewhere in the issue. Appointments requiring Senate approval are not included since they appear in the list of nominations submitted to the Senate, below.

July 13

Vice President Ford met with the President at the Western White House.

July 15

The President and members of the First Family went to Palm Desert, Calif., where they remained overnight at the home of Walter H. Annenberg, U.S. Ambassador to the United Kingdom.

July 16

Rabbi Baruch Korff called on the President at the Western White House to present him with a copy of his book entitled "The Personal Nixon; Staying at the Summit."

The President has accepted the resignation of Alvin J. Arnett as Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

July 17

The White House announced that, at the recommendation of the Secretary of State, the President has decided to send Under Secretary of State Joseph J. Sisco to London for talks on Cyprus with British and Turkish officials.

July 19

The President met at the Western White House with a group of his economic advisers. Participating in the meeting were: Kenneth Rush, Counsellor to the President for Economic Policy, Chairman Herbert Stein of the Council of Economic Advisers, and Director Roy L. Ash of the Office of Management and Budget.

NOMINATIONS SUBMITTED TO THE SENATE

The following list does not include promotions of members of the Uniformed Services, nominations to the Service Academies, or nominations of Foreign Service officers.

Submitted July 15, 1974

JOSEPH W. KEENE, of Louisiana, to be United States Marshal for the Western District of Louisiana for the term of 4 years (reappointment).

Submitted July 16, 1974

ROBERT L. DUPONT, JR., of Maryland, to be Administrator of the Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration (new position).

PHILIP A. LOOMIS, JR., of California, to be a member of the Securities and Exchange Commission for the term expiring June 5, 1979 (reappointment).

CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES

The following releases of the Office of the White House Press Secretary, distributed during the period covered by this issue, are not included in the issue.

Released July 13, 1974

News conference: following his meeting with the President—by Vice President Gerald R. Ford

CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES—Continued

Released July 16, 1974

News conference: following his meeting with the President—by Rabbi Baruch Korff, chairman, National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency

Released July 17, 1974

Fact sheet: on Government executive development

Released July 19, 1974

News conference: on the economy—by Herbert Stein, Chairman, Council of Economic Advisers

Remarks: on the House Judiciary Committee proceedings—by Ronald L. Ziegler, Press Secretary to the President

ACTS APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT

Approved July 12, 1974

H.R. 29----- Public Law 93-349
An act to provide for payments by the Postal Service to the Civil Service Retirement Fund for increases in the unfunded liability of the Fund due to increases in benefits for Postal Service employees, and for other purposes.

H.R. 3534----- Private Law 93-80
An act for the relief of Lester H. Kroll.

H.R. 7089----- Private Law 93-83
An act for the relief of Michael A. Korhonen.

H.R. 7128----- Private Law 93-81
An act for the relief of Mrs. Rita Petermann Brown.

H.R. 7130----- Public Law 93-344
Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974.

ACTS APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT—Continued

H.R. 7397----- Private Law 93-82
An act for the relief of Viola Burroughs.

H.R. 7724----- Public Law 93-348
National Research Act.

H.R. 9281----- Public Law 93-350
An act to amend title 5, United States Code, with respect to the retirement of certain law enforcement and firefighter personnel, and for other purposes.

H.R. 11105----- Public Law 93-351
An act to amend title VII of the Older Americans Act relating to the nutrition program for the elderly to provide authorization of appropriations, and for other purposes.

S. 2137----- Public Law 93-345
An act to amend the Act of October 15, 1966 (80 Stat. 953, 20 U.S.C. 65a), relating to the National Museum of the Smithsonian Institution, so as to authorize additional appropriations to the Smithsonian Institution for carrying out the purposes of said Act.

S. 3458----- Public Law 93-347
An act to continue domestic food assistance programs, and for other purposes.

S.J. Res. 202----- Public Law 93-346
Joint resolution designating the premises occupied by the Chief of Naval Operations as the official residence of the Vice President, effective upon the termination or service of the incumbent Chief of Naval Operations.

Editor's Note

Note Concerning the Closing Time of This Issue

The President was in San Clemente, Calif., at the cut-off time of this issue. Releases issued there but not received in time for inclusion in the issue will be printed next week.

CUMULATIVE INDEX TO PRIOR ISSUES

Third Quarter, 1974

[See Index of Contents for Documents in this Issue]

ABM. See Anti-ballistic missile systems
 Acts approved. See last page of text in each issue

Addresses and Remarks of the President

Belgium
Arrival in Brussels.....	728
Departure from Washington.....	718, 727
Luncheon in Brussels.....	732
Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, signing ceremony	799
French gift for the American Revolution Bicentennial, exchange of remarks with French Ambassador Jacques Kosciusko-Morizet.....	796
People's Republic of China, martial arts and acrobatic troupe visit to the White House.....	801
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics
Address to the Soviet people.....	744
Departure from Washington.....	718, 727
Minsk	742
Moscow	735, 748
Report to the Nation, Loring Air Force Base, Maine.....	766
Agriculture, Department of, Secretary.....	796, 799, 803
Albrecht, Richard R.....	804
American Revolution Bicentennial, French gift.....	796, 797, 804

Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocols to treaty on the limitation of..... 750, 756

Appointments and Nominations

Council on International Economic Policy, Executive Director.....	788, 804
Federal Energy Administration
Assistant Administrator.....	789, 804
General Counsel.....	789, 804
Foreign Claims Settlement Commission
Chairman	793
Member	804
National Commission for the Observation of World Population Year, 1974, members.....	798
Treasury Department
Deputy Secretary.....	804
General Counsel.....	804
U.S. attorney, Texas.....	804
U.S. circuit judge, 2d circuit.....	804
U.S. district judge, Georgia.....	804
U.S. marshals
California	804
Louisiana	803
White House Staff, Deputy Assistant.....	795
Arends, Repr. Leslie C.....	802
Argentina, President Juan Domingo Peron, death.....	771
Armed Forces, United States, Europe.....	729, 731
Arms control and disarmament.....	750, 751, 753, 755, 756, 763, 764, 769
Armstrong, Anne L.....	802
Army, Department of the, Assistant Secretary	802
Ash, Roy L.....	802, 804
Atlantic Relations, Declaration on.....	728, 729, 731
Baker, Repr. LaMar.....	802
Baudouin I, King.....	728, 732, 790

Belgium
King Baudouin I.....	728, 732, 790
President's visit
Arrival in Brussels.....	728
Declaration of Atlantic Relations.....	729, 731
Departure from Washington.....	718, 727
Luncheon in Brussels.....	732
Prime Minister Leo Tindermans.....	790
Bell, J. Raymond.....	793, 804
Berg, Eugene E.....	802
Bicentennial, American Revolution.....	796, 797, 804

Bill Signings

Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, remarks and statement.....	799, 800
Birknes, John A.....	804
Brennan, Peter J.....	802
Brezhnev, L. I.....	735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
Budget, federal spending.....	799, 800
Budget, Office of Management and. See Management and Budget, Office of Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, Congressional.....	799, 800, 804
Burch, Dean.....	791, 802
Burns, Arthur F.....	802
Business and Industry, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	741, 759, 791
Butz, Earl L.....	803
Cabinet, meeting with the President.....	802
California, U.S. marshal.....	804
Captive Nations Week, 1974.....	801
Cary, Frank.....	794
Checklist of unpublished releases. See last page of text in each issue
Civil defense medical and food stockpiles	798
Claims Settlement Commission, Foreign	793, 804
Coffee Agreement, International.....	796
Commerce, Department of, Secretary.....	788
Commercial Commission, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics	741
Congress
House of Representatives, Judiciary Committee.....	791
Meetings with the President
Bipartisan leadership.....	802
Republican leaders.....	802
Sequoia meetings.....	802

Congress, Communications to

Hazardous Materials Transportation Control Act of 1970, annual report transmittal.....	802
International Coffee Agreement, annual report transmittal.....	796
Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974.....	799, 800, 804
Connor, Robert E.....	798
Construction, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	739, 761, 791
Construction, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in Housing and Other	739, 761
Cooperation in Europe, Conference on Security and.....	757
Council. See other part of title

Courts, United States
U.S. attorney, Texas.....	804
U.S. circuit judge, 2d circuit.....	804
U.S. district judge, Georgia.....	804
U.S. marshals
California	804
Louisiana	803
Massachusetts	804
Cultural exchanges, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	762
Curtis, Sen. Carl T.....	802
Defense, Department of, Secretary.....	799
Dent, Frederick B.....	788
Digest of other White House announcements. See last pages of text in each issue
Disaster assistance, Ohio.....	798
Disaster relief functions.....	799
District of Columbia, National Guard, Commanding General.....	802
Domestic Council.....	802
Eberle, William D.....	788, 804
Economic Advisers, Council of, Chairman	802
Economic cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	741, 759, 791
Economic Policy, Council on International, Executive Director.....	788, 804
Economy, national
Federal spending.....	799, 800
Inflation	800, 802
Emergency Board No. 185, railway labor dispute	789
Energy
Conservation	788
U.S.S.R., cooperation with.....	737, 761, 791
Energy, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in the Field of.....	737, 761
Energy Administration, Federal.....	788, 789
Environment
U.S.S.R., cooperation with.....	753, 762
U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint statement.....	753
Environmental warfare.....	753, 765
Europe
U.S. forces.....	729, 731
U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint communique.....	757

Executive Orders

Civil defense medical and food stockpiles (EO 11794).....	798
Disaster relief functions (EO 11795).....	799
Secretary of Agriculture (EO 11793).....	796
Fabiola, Queen.....	790
Federal Energy Administration
Administrator	788
Assistant Administrator.....	789, 804
General Counsel.....	789, 804
Federal Reserve System, Board of Governors	802
Federal spending. See Budget; Economy, national
Food, civil defense stockpiles.....	798
Ford, Vice President Gerald R.....	766, 802
Foreign Claims Settlement Commission	793, 804
France
Bicentennial gift.....	796, 797, 804
President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing.....	797
Gardner, Stephen S.....	804
Geneva Peace Conference on the Middle East	758

Georgia, U.S. district judge.....	804	Middle East		Sequoia meetings, with certain Members of Congress.....	802
Germany, Federal Republic of, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.....	790	North Atlantic Council meeting, remarks.....	731	Simon, William E.....	802
Gesell, Gerhard A.....	802	U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint communique.....	758	Southward, Maj. Gen. Charles L.....	802
Glacard d'Estaing, Valéry.....	796, 797	Missile systems, protocol to treaty on the limitation of anti-ballistic.....	750, 756	Space program, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	762
Goodearle, Roy.....	803	Montgomery, Robert E., Jr.....	789, 804	State, Department of Assistant Secretary.....	791
Government departments and agencies, energy conservation.....	788	Morton, Rogers C.B.....	802	Secretary.....	763, 791, 802
Griffin, Sen. Robert P.....	802	Mount Vernon, French sound and light spectacle for American Revolution Bicentennial.....	796, 797, 804	Statements by the President
Gurfeln, Murray I.....	804	National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services.....	802	Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, signing ceremony.....	800
Hadden, A. Roby.....	804	National Commission for the Observance of World Population Year, 1974.....	796	Deaths
Hartman, Arthur A.....	791	News Conferences Other Than Presidential		King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr.....	771
Hazardous materials transportation.....	802	President's visit to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Secretary of State Kissinger.....	763	Peron, Juan Domingo.....	771
Health, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	740, 761, 791	Nominations submitted to the Senate. See last page of text in each issue		Warren, Earl.....	795
Health Cooperation, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee for.....	740, 761	North Atlantic Treaty Organization		Energy conservation.....	788
Health, Education, and Welfare, Department of, Secretary.....	802, 804	Brussels meeting with North Atlantic Council.....	728, 731, 732, 769	Independence Day, 1974.....	790
Heart research, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	740, 761, 791	Declaration on Atlantic Relations.....	729, 731	Statements Other Than Presidential
Hodgson, James D.....	802	Secretary General Joseph Luns.....	728	Brussels meeting with the North Atlantic Council, Press Secretary Ziegler.....	731
Housing, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	739, 761, 791	Nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of underground.....	751	Stein, Herbert.....	802
Housing and Other Construction, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in.....	739, 761	Office. See other part of title		Strategic arms limitations.....	750, 753, 755, 756, 763, 764, 769
Housing and Urban Development, Department of, Secretary.....	799	Ohio, disaster assistance.....	796	Supplementary Centers and Services, National Advisory Council on.....	802
Impoundment Control Act of 1974, Congressional Budget and.....	799, 800, 804	O'Neill, John Ellis.....	802	Supreme Court of the United States.....	772, 802
Independence Day, 1974.....	790	People's Republic of China, Washu Troupe, visit to the White House.....	801	Surganov, F. A.....	742
Industry. See Business and industry.		Peron, Juan Domingo.....	771	Technology. See Science and technology
Interior, Department of the Associate Director of Oil and Gas Division.....	802	Podgorny, N. V.....	739, 741, 790	Texas, U.S. attorney.....	804
Secretary.....	802	Population control.....	793	Tindermans, Leo.....	790
Under Secretary.....	802	Population Year, 1974, National Commission on the Observance of World.....	796	Trade, coffee.....	796
International Coffee Agreement.....	796	Post, Marjorie Meriweather.....	802	Transportation, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	762
International Economic Policy, Council on.....	788, 804	President's travel		Treasury, Department of the Deputy Secretary.....	804
Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor.....	790	Domestic, Palm Beach, Fla.....	802	General Counsel.....	804
Japan, U.S. Ambassador to.....	802	Foreign		Secretary.....	802
Joint Statements		Belgium.....	718, 727-735	Treaties and other international agreements
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.....	753	Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.....	718, 735-771	Agreements with U.S.S.R.
Jones, Sidney L.....	795	Proclamations		Economic, industrial, and technical cooperation.....	741
Judiciary Committee, House.....	791	Captive Nations Week, 1974 (Proc. 4302).....	801	Energy.....	737
Keene, Joseph W.....	803	United Nations Day, 1974 (Proc. 4300).....	794	Heart research.....	740
Key Biscayne, Fla.....	790, 802	White Cane Safety Day, 1974 (Proc. 4301).....	794	Housing and construction.....	739
King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr.....	771	World Population Year, 1974 (Proc. 4299).....	793	Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol to treaty on the limitation of.....	750
Kissinger, Dr. Henry A.....	763, 791	Railway labor-management dispute.....	789	Declaration on Atlantic Relations.....	729
Kosciusko-Morizet, Jacques.....	796	Reports to the President		Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of.....	751
Kosygin, A. N.....	740, 790	Emergency Board No. 185, railway labor dispute.....	789	Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of.....	751
Labor, railway dispute.....	789	Research, medical.....	740, 761, 791	Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Agreements with U.S.
Labor, Department of, Secretary.....	802	Resignations and Retirements		Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol on the limitation of.....	750, 756
Letters, Messages, Telegrams		Army Department, Assistant Secretary.....	802	Construction.....	739, 761, 791
French gift for the American Revolution Bicentennial, exchange of letters with French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing.....	797	District of Columbia, National Guard, Commanding General.....	802	Economic, industrial, and technical.....	741, 759, 791
Loring Air Force Base, Maine.....	766, 790	National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services, member.....	802	Energy.....	737, 761, 791
Louisiana, U.S. marshal.....	803	Rhodes, Repr. John J.....	802	Heart research.....	740, 761, 791
Luns, Joseph.....	728	Rush, Kenneth.....	802, 804	Housing.....	739, 761, 791
Management and Budget, Office of, Director.....	802, 804	St. Clair, James D.....	787, 802, 804	Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of.....	751
Massachusetts, U.S. marshal.....	804	SALT. See Strategic arms limitations		Chairman N. V. Podgorny.....	739, 741, 790
Mead, Dana.....	802	San Clemente, Calif.....	803	General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev.....	735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
Medical stockpiles for civil defense.....	798	Sant, Roger West.....	789, 804	Joint statements.....	753
Meetings with Foreign Leaders		Sawhill, John C.....	788	North Atlantic Council meeting, remarks.....	731
Belgium		Schmidt, Helmut.....	790	Premier A. N. Kosygin.....	740, 790
King Baudouin I.....	728, 732, 790	Science and technology, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	737, 740, 741, 761, 791	President's visit
Prime Minister Leo Tindermans.....	790	Scott, Sen. Hugh.....	802	Address to the Soviet people.....	744
Germany, Federal Republic of, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.....	790	Security and Cooperation in Europe, Conference on.....	757	Departure from Washington.....	718, 727
Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor.....	790			Dinners in Moscow.....	735, 748
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Chairman N. V. Podgorny.....	790			Luncheon in Minsk.....	742
General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev.....	735, 749, 790			News conference by Secretary of State Kissinger.....	763
Premier A. N. Kosygin.....	790			United Kingdom, Prime Minister Harold Wilson.....	790
United Kingdom, Prime Minister Harold Wilson.....	790

United Nations Day, 1974.....	794	United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee for Health Cooperation.....	740, 761	Weinberger, Caspar W.....	802, 804
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Commercial Commission...	741	Van Court, Arthur F.....	804	Whitaker, John C.....	802
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Coop- eration in the Field of Energy....	737, 761	Warren, Earl.....	795	White Cane Safety Day, 1974.....	794
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Coop- eration in Housing and Other Con- struction	739, 761	Watergate investigation Court documents.....	772	White House Staff Counsellor for Economic Policy...	802, 804
		House Judiciary Committee.....	791	Counsellors	791, 802
		Supreme Court review.....	772, 802	Deputy Assistant.....	795
		Weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of underground nuclear.....	751	World Population Year, 1974.....	793, 798
				Wushu Troupe.....	801
				Zamyatin, L. M.....	791
				Ziegler, Ronald L.....	731, 791

The University
of Michigan
Reference

AUG 9 1974

Weekly Compilation of
PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Monday, July 29, 1974

Volume 10 • Number 30

Pages 819-995

Index of Contents

ACTS APPROVED.....	995	APPOINTMENTS AND NOMINATIONS—Continued
ADDRESS AND REMARKS		State Department, Assistant Inspector General, Foreign Assistance (Joseph Z. Taylor)	830
Dinner at the home of Roy L. Ash.....	819	BILL SIGNINGS
Inflation, address to the Nation.....	830	Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974, state- ment	838
Supreme Court decision, remarks by Special Coun- sel to the President.....	829	CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES.....	995
ANNOUNCEMENTS		DIGEST OF OTHER WHITE HOUSE ANNOUNCEMENTS..	994
Disaster assistance for New York.....	829	EDITOR'S NOTE.....	995
Emergency assistance for the Virgin Islands.....	828	LETTERS, MEMORANDUMS, ETC.
APPOINTMENTS AND NOMINATIONS		House Judiciary Committee impeachment inquiry, brief filed by the Office of the Special Counsel to the President.....	840
Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman and member (Alan Greenspan).....	828	NEWS CONFERENCES
Federal Energy Administration, Director of Inter- governmental and Regional Relations (Wil- liam W. Geimer).....	839	James D. St. Clair, Special Counsel to the Presi- dent, on House Judiciary Committee impeach- ment inquiry.....	822
Federal Regional Councils (10 chairmen).....	829	RESIGNATIONS AND RETIREMENTS
Foreign Claims Settlement Commission, member (Wilfred J. Smith).....	839	President's Commission on White House Fellow- ships, member (Robert V. Hansberger)	830
Interior Department		STATEMENTS BY THE PRESIDENT
Assistant Secretary for Energy and Minerals (Jack W. Carlson).....	838	(See also Bill Signings)
Director, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (Lynn Adams Greenwalt).....	838	Supreme Court decision on Presidential tape re- cordings	829
Nominations submitted to the Senate.....	995
President's Commission on White House Fellow- ships (3 members).....	830

[A Cumulative Index to Prior Issues appears at the end of this issue.]

WEEKLY COMPILATION OF Presidential Documents

Published every Monday by the Office of the Federal Register, National Archives and Records Service, General Services Administration, Washington, D.C. 20408, the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents contains statements, messages and other Presidential materials released by the White House during the preceding week.

The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents is published pursuant to the authority contained in the Federal Register Act (49 Stat. 500, as amended; 44 U.S.C. Ch. 15), under regulations prescribed by the Administrative Committee of the Federal Register, approved by the President (37 F.R. 23607; 1 CFR Part 10).

Distribution is made only by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents will be furnished by mail to subscribers for $15.00 per year, payable to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The charge for a single copy is 50 cents.

There are no restrictions on the republication of material appearing in the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents.

Administration of Richard Nixon

PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Week Ending Saturday, July 27, 1974

House Judiciary Committee Impeachment Inquiry

Brief Submitted to the Committee by the Office of the Special Counsel to the President. Dated July 19, 1974. Released July 20, 1974

Editor's Note

The brief, as submitted to the House Judiciary Committee, has been reproduced in facsimile as a supplement to this issue, beginning on p. 840. Corrections announced by the White House Press Office have been incorporated in this reproduction.

Dinner at the Home of Roy L. Ash

The President's Remarks at a Dinner in His Honor at the Home of the Director of the Office of Management and Budget. July 21, 1974

Roy, Mrs. Ash, and all of our very distinguished friends:

I am very grateful, certainly, for those words that the Director of the Office of Management and Budget has just spoken. And I speak not only for myself but for Pat and for Tricia and Ed, for his remembering them as well.

And I am particularly grateful that he gave us the opportunity on this trip to California to meet a number of people who we have known for a great many years. In fact, most of you are about as old as I am. [Laughter] And when I think of the campaigns going back 27 years, I see some who were even here then, I realize how long we have worked together and fought together for good causes.

I want you to know, too, that the only regret I have on such an occasion like this is that we can't have the opportunity to sit and chat with each of you as we have here at this table. But when there are 150 people, you can have only one table for eight, and consequently, that opportunity is denied.

And I suppose that many of you out there, all of whom, of course, we met in the receiving line, wonder what we talked about.

I would normally say that on such an occasion that when you see the President of the United States and his wife at a table with six other people, well, they talk about the very things you are talking about—what happened at the Bohemian Grove before you came down—you wonder whether that swimming pool is really there under you or not, and you hope the boards don't break because that is a swimming pool you are all sitting on there, you know.

And you wonder about the fact that Roy Ash is probably the only person in this great city or in this Nation, who has his own tent.

He owns the tent. I mean, he doesn't rent it, he owns it himself, he constructed it. That, among many other reasons, is one of the reasons we made him Director of the Office of Management and Budget.

But tonight, it would be of interest for you to know that as we saw two or three members of the White House Staff come up and speak to me, that we have had some very serious international problems over the last few hours, I should say the last several days.

And at this time, it appears that there are some very hopeful signs and that a very positive announcement will be made, perhaps before we finish this dinner, be made from Washington at the State Department.

I will not indicate to you what the nature of that announcement is except to say this: That in this rather tragic struggle, it could have been much more tragic and would be if it were to be allowed to continue between two friends and allies of the United States, arising over Cyprus.

This struggle is one that could only be averted by the leadership of the United States of America. This is true in all parts of the world today. American leadership is the key to whether or not nations that could be at swords' point, nations that could be engaged in a war against each other, may find a way to get along, to avoid war, and in this instance, of course, our goal has been, as you have noted, to attain a cease-fire between Greece and Turkey before it exploded between these traditional enemies in times past, but two nations that have been friends and NATO partners over the last 27 years. This certainly is a goal that we were rightfully dedicated to, both from the standpoint of the great NATO Alliance but also from the standpoint of two nations involved.

So, I hope that this announcement which will be made in Washington in the next few minutes, is one that will be followed by the action that we all desire, a cease-fire and then the process of developing again a friendly relation between two nations who are our allies and our friends and, of course, are essential to the whole great NATO Alliance which is the cornerstone of America's foreign policy and the free world's foreign policy in all of Western Europe.

Now, so much for the seriousness that we talked about. There were many other things as well, but since we are off on this track for a moment, just let me say as I look back over the 5½ years that Roy has referred to—and as a matter of fact, he really counts those days, I hadn't realized that it is just 2½ years, but you see he keeps the budget, and he knows all about this sort of thing—but I realize as we look at America's role in this potentially explosive struggle between Turkey and Greece, the role that we are playing and will continue to play, that looking back over the past 5½ years that all of us, as Americans, regardless of our partisan affiliation, can be proud of the role America, our country, has played in making this world a safer and better place for all people on it not just for ourselves.

I don't refer just to the event that means the most to most Americans, because it—our friends and our families and so forth, I mean the ending of the war in Vietnam, the fact that our young people are not being drafted, these are things that we all understand. But difficult, long, arduous as that terrible struggle was, we have to realize that other developments have occurred over the past 5½ years that will have far more lasting and far greater effect in terms of building a peaceful world than simply ending that war on the kind of a just and honorable basis that was essential if we were able to continue to play the role of world leader.

I refer, for example, to events that didn't seem possible 5½ years ago, the new relationship with those who rule over one-fourth of all the people of the world, the People's Republic of China; the new relationship with the Soviet Union in which we now have had three summit meetings, a fourth one to be scheduled next year, and in which while we still recognize that with the Soviet Union, as with the People's Republic of China, we have great philosophical differences, differences that are not going to be changed by any kind of agreement that we may enter into, that nevertheless we have been able to develop and are developing means whereby peoples with different governments, different systems of government, different principles, different ideals, can settle those differences peacefully and can work together rather than against each other to build a more peaceful world.

I could refer also to more recent events. Many of you followed the trip to the Middle East. And I think most Americans perhaps were rather surprised to see the great outpouring of real friendship for the United States of America that was apparent every place that we went, not just with Egypt, Cairo, and Alexandria, where in the space of 2 days, there were perhaps 6 to 6½ million people by most estimates out, but in all the other capitals that we visited, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Damascus, the oldest inhabited city in the world that has been inhabited continually, and of course, Jerusalem, and then finally in Amman, Jordan.

The fact that an American President—and here it was not just the man, it was more than that, it was the United States of America as the leader of the free world—that we have after so many years of difficulty with many of these nations were received in that way, tells us something about America's role in the world.

Let me put it quite bluntly. We have made our mistakes in foreign policy over the years. Looking at this century, when we consider the four wars in which we have been engaged, we can be proud that the United States has always fought to defend freedom and never to destroy it.

We have always fought to keep the peace, to bring peace, and never to break the peace. And consequently, the United States, in all parts of the world, is respected. The United States, in most parts of the world, is not only respected but there is real affection for the American people and for our government. And, in any event, we are not feared, not feared in terms insofar as any fear that the United States would use its great power and its great wealth for the purpose of conquest or destruction or breaking the peace.

As we look back over those events and as we look at the current problem that we have in the Mediterranean, I would only suggest this: that we Americans are a very impatient people. We like to think that there is an instant solution to every problem, and we are impatient when we get a war over with. Peace, isn't it wonderful; we can just take it for granted.

We must recognize that for the balance of our lives, for the balance of this century, and perhaps well into the next century—and no one can look further than that, but certainly well into the next century—a strong responsible United States of America is indispensable if peace is to be kept in the world. There is no one else that can play that role. There is no other nation in the free world that can take up that great responsibility, and so we have that responsibility.

We believe over the past 5½ years that we have met it and met it reasonably well. We think more progress has been made in that period for building a peaceful world than has been made in any similar period, certainly in this century, and probably in this period of modern civilization.

There is a very real chance that due to the profound changes that have been made—the new relations with the People's Republic of China, the new relationship with the Soviet Union, the beginning of a peaceful era in the Middle East—that as a result of these profound changes the chance for peace to survive on a world basis is better now than it has been at any time in this century.

And yet, any time that we say that, when we have an incident like the one that has occurred over the past few days involving America's friends and allies, it shows us how fragile that structure is. It shows us how much it needs constantly to be tended. It shows us how important it is that not only the United States of America but particularly the leadership of the United States of America assume the responsibility of world leadership which is ours, and never back away from it because that might be the easier course.

It also explains something else that I think is very important that Roy has touched upon tangentially, at least, and that is apart from the man, the office of the Presidency must never be weakened because a strong America and a strong American President is something which is absolutely indispensable if we are to build that peaceful world that we all want.

This brings me to one other point that I want to mention here tonight, particularly in Roy's presence and in the presence of so many other people in the Administration who are out here with me, and it is very simply this: That in order for the United States to play the role it does in the world, we not only need the military strength, we not only need the diplomatic skill, but essential to that role is an America that maintains the position of world leadership, and this we have without any question.

We can argue about whether we are number one or number two in this or that or the other area, but economically the United States is the wonder of the world. We can say that despite the problems we have—the energy crisis through which we have passed and are still passing to an extent, the problem of inflation, which is a world problem incidentally—and having met with most of the world leaders recently, I can assure you that I wouldn't trade their problems for ours any time, as difficult as ours are. But in order to maintain that strong economy, it is necessary to have responsible leadership, and it is necessary to make some very hard decisions.

Roy Ash is one of those men who has to make a lot of them. He is a man who has to say no, no to a spending program that might help some of the people, but would raise the cost of living for all of the people. And when we have to make, as we will, some very hard budget decision in the next few weeks and months, it will be necessary for us to veto some spending bills that the Congress is inevitably going to pass far exceeding our budget, just remember we do that not because we like to say no to some good cause, but because the greater cause is the whole problem of inflation which affects every person in this country. We are out to win that battle, and we can't win it unless we start right with the Government of the United States itself.

I can assure you that with the leadership of men like Roy Ash and Herb Stein, who is here tonight, and the rest, we are going to set the example in Washington of fighting the battle of the Federal budget so that people can win the battle of the family budget at home.

And Roy, we thank you for your leadership and all that you have meant in this respect. Before you cheer too long, you must remember that you may be writing Roy a letter one of these days saying, "Why did you cut this program or that one?" Remember, we told him to, and you applauded it here tonight. But he will not do anything, you can be sure, unless I am backing him, and I will back him all the way, just as he backs the Administration.

Let me just conclude with two personal thoughts. One, as we stand here in this beautiful home in Bel Air, I think of the sacrifice that men like Roy Ash and his wife and family have made to come to Washington to serve there. Obviously it is a financial sacrifice but also it is a personal sacrifice. I haven't been to the Ash home in Washington, but I can't imagine it is like this. It is probably very nice, but it couldn't be like this.

And I think, too, of the dedication of people who have done that. There are many in this room who I could mention who have served in this Administration: Dave Packard over here, Bob Finch, Herb Klein, Charlie Thomas, Fred Russell, and others. They are legion. But what is vitally important for us all to remember is this—we think in terms of those who hold the highest office, the Presidency of the United States and all the glory, even though it has sometimes many very great burdens, burdens which we assume without any complaining about them, because that is part of the job—but we have to remember that for this government of ours to work effectively, it takes men and women of great dedication willing to sacrifice a great deal, willing to take a lot of unfair criticism, which they do, if they do anything worthwhile, to come to Washington and do a job.

And I just want to say that I have been very proud of the people we have had in our Administration for their dedication. I have been proud of the hard work they have put in. When people say look at our record in the field of foreign policy, or look at what we have accomplished in this or that or the other area, I can just assure you this: It isn't done simply by one individual; it is done because there are hundreds of people in top leadership and, of course, thousands throughout the Administration, many of whom I never get a chance to meet and thank personally, who are also working.

So, I pay a tribute not only to Roy, to his family, but to all of the other Administration families who are here tonight, and my thanks to them.

And finally, to all of you. I mentioned that we go back a number of years. I look around here, and I don't see any of you looking a bit older. And I remember when I campaigned the old 12th Congressional district out through San Marino in that area, and some who live there, I remember. And when I campaigned the State of California, for the United States Senate and I met most of you then if I hadn't met you before, in 1950, and then of course, the Presidential campaigns, the Vice President campaigns and the rest.

You wonder sometimes, and I am often asked, you know, how do you really take the burden of the Presidency, particularly when at times it seems to be under very, very grievous assault. Let me say it isn't new for us to be under assault because since the time we came into office for 5 years we have had problems. There have been people marching around the White House, when we were trying to bring the war to an end, and we have withstood that, and we will withstand the problems of the future.

People wonder, how does any individual these days, when we have very high-pressured campaigns in usually the media and the rest, to taking on public figures, how does an individual take it, how does he survive it, how do you keep your composure, your strength and the rest?

Well, there are a number of factors. First, you have got to have a strong family, and I am very proud of my family. But second, you have got to have also a lot of good friends, people that you have known through the years, people who write you, who call you, or who see you and say, "We are sticking by you." I can assure you that no man in public life—and I have studied American history rather thoroughly—has ever had a more loyal group of friends, has never been blessed with certainly a more loyal group of friends who have stood by him through good days as well as tough days than I have.

I am just very, very proud to be here among our California friends and to say from the bottom of my heart for all the years past and for all the years to come, thank you very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 8:27 p.m. at the home of Director Roy L. Ash of the Office of Management and Budget in Bel Air, Calif.

As printed above, this item follows the text of the White House press release.

House Judiciary Committee Impeachment Inquiry

*News Conference of Special Counsel to the President
James D. St. Clair. July 22, 1974*

MR. ST. CLAIR. Thank you all for coming.

I have, at the request of the President, reported to him this morning regarding the conclusion of the investigation and the evidence phase of the investigation, in any event, and have reviewed with him the events that transpired over the past, I guess, 9-odd weeks, reviewed with him the proposed charges that have been prepared by the staff for purposes of discussion, and concluded and advised him that in my judgment, if all the evidence were viewed objectively, it would not sustain any one of those charges.

Now, during the last 8 or 9 weeks, it has been inappropriate, I thought, to answer questions that you all have had, from time to time. Now that the committee has voted to go public, so to speak, with the hearings, and publish the entire record, I felt it not inappropriate to answer such questions as would be pertinent to the inquiry at this stage and would be glad to do so now.

Mr. Cormier [Frank Cormier, Associated Press].

Q. Mr. St. Clair, when the book of White House tapes first came out, we were told they contained all the relevant material relating to Watergate, and we had that assurance from you and the President.

Last week, you came up with a fragment of another tape which hadn't been in the original. Why did it take so long for this to surface?

MR. ST. CLAIR. Mr. Cormier, the situation was this: That when the original White House submission of some 1,240 pages of transcript were prepared, based on the information we then had, we felt this did tell all of the Watergate story. As often happens, however, during the course of a hearing, witnesses sometimes change their testimony, and in this event, one witness did seem to me to shift his testimony from what he testified on a previous occasion.

Therefore, this additional tape, or portion of a tape, became relevant, whereas before, in my view, it was simply repetitious or redundant. This particular portion of the tape made it quite clear as of the day after the payment at the earliest, the President was still of the view that blackmail could not be paid, that he would not pay it. And it seems to me very important, in the light of the change in testimony of one of the witnesses, to make it quite clear the President could not have known of nor authorized a payment when the day after the payment he is still talking about it and that is the situation with respect to that piece of tape.

Q. Mr. St. Clair, are you appearing this afternoon in anticipation of a Supreme Court decision tomorrow?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I have no basis for anticipating a decision tomorrow.

Q. A second related question, if I may. Would you be appearing at this hour and this place if the networks had not agreed to carry your appearance?

MR. ST. CLAIR. You are talking about a subject I know very little about. I am pleased to be here and answer such questions as I can. I believe this is an appropriate time to do so because I think the American people are interested in this subject matter.

Q. Mr. St. Clair, we haven't been able to get an answer in past weeks to this question. Perhaps you can do it now.

MR. ST. CLAIR. I will try.

Q. Okay. Will the President obey the Supreme Court no matter what they say this week?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I am sorry to have to disappoint you. The same basis for my declining to answer, I think, in the past has to be adhered to now. To answer the question so it will not be misunderstood would require a speculation on my part and lead to other questions as to whether the Court would say this and whether the Court would say that.

I think most lawyers would recognize that it is highly improper to discuss a case that is pending before a court that is under consideration by that court. And therefore, I feel it inappropriate until such time as the Court decides the matter to not inject my view as to what that decision either will or ought to be.

Q. If I may follow that, we are not really asking you to inject yourself into the case at all, to discuss it one way or another. We are asking you if you, as the President's lawyer, will assure us he will obey the highest court in the land, no matter what it decided?

MR. ST. CLAIR. Again I must insist, I feel to answer the questions would inject my view as to what the decision ought to be. And therefore, I have consistently and will continue to consistently continue to not answer.

Q. Is there precedent for the President refusing to say he would obey the highest court in the land?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I don't know of any. I haven't actually researched it, although I do think Thomas Jefferson, in the Aaron Burr case, made some comments as to whether or not he was going to abide by Justice Marshall's decision, but I think it is really appropriate to let the Court decide the matter without any pressure from the media by reason of any interrogations or answers by me.

Q. Mr. St. Clair, you are a sworn officer of the court, sworn to uphold the law of the land. Would you continue to defend the President if he disobeyed a Supreme Court ruling?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I am sorry, I think that is substantially the same question.

Q. I don't think it is at all.

Q. How did you find the President's mood? Is he very concerned or very confident?

MR. ST. CLAIR. To me, he seems quite confident. Of course, he is engaged in other matters at this moment, involving the foreign policy of the country, but I spent approximately 2 hours with him today reviewing the entire matter, and from my observation, he seems quite confident.

Q. Mr. St. Clair, last week Counsellor Burch suggested that the House Members are not grand jurors but political jurors and should consider the effect on the country as well as what the President might accomplish if he is allowed to continue to serve. How much weight do you think the Members should put on the evidence and how much on the political question Mr. Burch raised?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I would not want to start advising the Members as to what they ought to do. But to answer your question, it seems to me impeachment inquiries are essentially political proceedings. In fact, the framers of the Constitution, I think, fully intended this result. Therefore, realistically speaking, I think the members of the committee are bound to apply political considerations to their decision, but I do not believe this would necessarily mean they would ignore the evidence.

I think they would have to, and I am sure most of them, at least, would apply factors both in the political and in the trial features of the matter.

Q. Mr. St. Clair, in your 150-page brief, you frequently cite the testimony of Mr. Haldeman, Mr. Ehrlichman, and Mr. Mitchell. Since these men have been indicted on several counts of perjury, do you have any independent verification of what they say or why should anyone believe them?

MR. ST. CLAIR. First of all, sir, I hope that we haven't come to a point in this country where the charge of a crime constitutes a conviction of it. Mr. Mitchell, for example, was charged with perjury in the trial in New York and acquitted of it. So I don't think we ought to presume because they are charged with perjury that they are guilty of it.

But I think the record is replete with confirmation of what in fact they said. For example, when you get all said and done with the Watergate matter, the alleged coverup, you find that I think seven of the principal aides of the President are under indictment.

Now, it is very difficult to conclude, as I view it, that that result could have come about if the President were in effect interfering with the administration of criminal justice. Of course, we contend in our brief that the President did not interfere, but in fact sought to solve the problem and sought to bring these matters to the grand jury. But when it is all said and done, the administration of criminal justice has proceeded in accordance with our understanding of how it should.

So, if you ask me for confirmation on it, I say let's take a look at the pudding, and the eating is the proof of it.

Q. How did the President know on March 22 that one of the defendants would be sentenced to 35 years when the sentence did not come down until the next day?

MR. ST. CLAIR. Sir, that seems to me to not be hard to understand. First of all, the President is a busy man.

During the previous months, starting as early as February, there had been rather constant speculation that Mr. Liddy would receive the maximum, at least a provisional sentence. It seems to me that if the President had waited until March 23, or thereafter, to have this conversation he would have referred to the actual sentence that Mr. Liddy got, namely, I think 6 years and 8 months minimum.

So that 35 years obviously reflects the President's belief that a preliminary sentence had been given to Mr. Liddy, as in fact it had been given to others.

Q. Mr. St. Clair, Ron Ziegler, in commenting on the proposed articles of impeachment, called the tactics of the committee and the committee counsel, specifically John Doar, a violent breach of justice. Now, either this could be rhetoric or it could be a prelude to a legal or political countermove by the White House or by Mr. Garrison, the minority counsel, or by someone somewhere in the impeachment process.

Would you comment on which?

MR. ST. CLAIR. First of all, Mr. Ziegler is obviously referring to what I thought was the rather abrupt change in attitude of Mr. Doar and Mr. Jenner and the staff. It had always been my understanding they had been employed by the committee to act as an impartial adviser to the committee developing such facts, both pro and con, as existed. For reasons best known to Mr. Doar and Mr. Jenner however, very recently, I think just a few days ago they have abandoned that role of impartiality admittedly and have now assumed the role of prosecutor.

I think, under these circumstances as a prosecutor or advising the committee, one raises a question of what kind of advice is this committee going to get.

Q. May I follow that up, sir?

MR. ST. CLAIR. If your brethren don't mind.

Q. The President once said he would abide by a definitive ruling of the Supreme Court. You now indicate that is in abeyance, or you won't affirm that here. You said before the Supreme Court that the President was indeed subject to the laws of the land but through the impeachment process. Now you question that process. Are you in fact saying that unless you have an automatic win situation you do not intend to play the game, or you will only play it by your rules?

MR. ST. CLAIR. The answer to your question, if I understand it, is clearly no. We are going to play the game. We have always played the game. One reason I am here is because I felt it inappropriate to answer questions during the executive session of the committee. Beyond that, I am not too sure I understand what you are saying. I think the impeachment process is the only way that a President can be dealt with, and that is essentially a process involving the Congress of the United States and not the courts.

Q. Mr. St. Clair, what did the President mean on March 21, 1973, in discussing the payment of hush money to E. Howard Hunt when he told John Dean, "For Christ sake, get it"?

MR. ST. CLAIR. Well, I will answer that directly by saying that obviously refers to the immediately preceding sentence that has to do with the words, "He ought to be sent a signal." Mr. Dean has testified to the signal being something other than money. I would say this, however: This and all other tapes have to be read in their totality. You can take any phrase, any sentence, or even any paragraph out of the total context and distort the ultimate meaning. And as I have suggested before, a reading of the full text of this and other tapes gives a comprehensive picture that does not support, in my view, a charge of impeachment of the President of the United States.

Q. Mr. St. Clair, isn't the signal a signal to pay hush money?

MR. ST. CLAIR. No, Mr. Dean testified it was something other than money.

Q. What, other than money?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I don't really know what he had in mind, to be honest with you. I do know this: That the President made it quite clear and explicitly stated that he could not pay blackmail, that if you did so, you were bound to lose, "It would look like a coverup and that we cannot do."

Q. Mr. St. Clair, in all your defense arguments, it seems you have focused a great deal of attention on the narrow issue of whether or not the President paid hush money. Two questions, sir: Why have you focused on such a narrow issue, and do you think you have been successful in your efforts to keep it to this narrow issue?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I think, essentially, the answer to the last question is yes. I think essentially the Congress will hone in on and review the matter on this narrow issue, and I think the American people will.

I think it should be done this way for the simple reason that is really what this is all about. If it hadn't been for the allegations relating to the payment of money to Mr. Hunt for his attorney's fees, I doubt very much if we would all be here today.

Q. Rabbi Korff, in his conversation with the President, told us he once told him, last December I think it was, if he had been the President he would have made a bonfire and burned the tapes. The President replied, according to Rabbi Korff, "Where were you 8 months ago." Can you assure the country that the tapes that have been subpoenaed by the Special Prosecutor are in fact intact and have not been destroyed?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I think I can assure you they haven't been burned or otherwise destroyed. This should not be construed as a representation that every tape ever referred to existed in the first place. Our experience has taught us sometimes conversations take place and under circumstances they were not recorded.

For example, the afternoon of Sunday, April 15 of last year. It is quite clear the tape ran out and conversation thereafter was not recorded. So they weren't destroyed, they just never existed.

Q. Wouldn't it be better to have these issues resolved, since there are so many great differences, not in a news conference, or in the corridors of the House of Representatives, or even possibly a partisan debate on the floor of the House, but in the carefully constructed confines of a Senate trial? Wouldn't that be best for your client and the country?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I don't think so. I think the responsibility of the House of Representatives is to not bring that burden on the American people unless the evidence is clear. If there is substantial doubt or no evidence, as I suggest is the case, the House of Representatives ought not to simply pass the matter on to the Senate. They ought to assume that responsibility.

The Constitution assumes they will do so. They have an alternative of voting to impeach or not to impeach. There is no provision, if there is a finding of probable cause, to impeach. They have to decide whether or not to impeach, and I think they ultimately will assume that responsibility.

Q. Mr. St. Clair, following up a previous question on narrowing the issues, you have stated, I think, consistently that Watergate is the issue. Would you not concede that other matters such as ITT, and the milk fund, and wiretaps, and the Internal Revenue Service might be relevant to impeachment?

MR. ST. CLAIR. They might be, but very frankly, I doubt if we would be here today if that were the only issues or allegations that were made. I am sure you all understand my view that the evidence doesn't even come close to supporting any charges of misconduct regarding any of these issues. And ultimately, I expect that the House of Representatives will agree.

Q. Do you also support the "kangaroo court" since you seem to be upholding what we have been hearing all week, the attack on Doar and Rodino?

MR. ST. CLAIR. Let me say this, if I may: An impeachment process is a unique proceeding. It is not a trial in a courtroom. It is a unique proceeding. It has, as I have indicated before, not only legal issues, but also political issues. Now, whatever adjectives you want to apply in the political field, I am not really competent. I am employed to deal with the legal issues, and you are free to apply them or not, as you see fit, of course.

Specifically, I am sure Mr. Ziegler was pointing out the fact that the heretofore impartial staff employed by the whole committee for the purpose of assisting the committee has suddenly now assumed a prosecutorial role and has presumed upon the committee to advise it how it should vote and here you have the adviser to the committee advising the ultimate decision.

I hope and trust that the committee will realize its responsibility to decide this and not its staff. But it does present a rather unusual situation.

Q. Mr. St. Clair, what is the difference between the role that Mr. Doar assumed and the role that you or any other lawyer or counselor assumes? He was instructed by the majority of the committee to prepare this testimony, and he did so as counselor to that committee.

MR. ST. CLAIR. And he prepared a very large mass of materials basically, I think, in a format of being impartial, but within the last few days, he admittedly has abandoned any views of impartiality and has stated explicitly that he feels that the committee must vote to impeach the President. I just suggest that is not his function.

Q. He did that under their orders.

MR. ST. CLAIR. I have not heard anyone say they instructed him to advise the entire committee how they should vote, and I think it is inappropriate.

Q. How do you view the roll of Mr. Garrison now in connection with that?

MR. ST. CLAIR. Mr. Garrison has been pushed into a very difficult position, essentially, at the last minute. Mr. Jenner has been discharged from his functions and has joined the majority staff, as I understand it, where I felt he has always been to begin with, and Mr. Garrison is left to do the very best he can. And I believe he will do the best he can. But you have to recognize that this sudden shift in the posture of the majority staff leads one to wonder whether or not it is a proper way for them to proceed.

Q. What do you plan to do about it? You have called Mr. Doar's action inappropriate. Mr. Ziegler called it a violent breach of justice. Do you plan any countermoves, or will you accept, even on this basis, an ultimate decision by the committee to issue articles of impeachment?

MR. ST. CLAIR. First of all, I have written to Mr. Doar requesting that if he is going to participate in the public hearings I think it only fair that I be allowed to on behalf of the President. I don't know what answer I will get to that request. I hope it is in the affirmative.

Obviously, I have no control over the House committee. I have no way of enforcing my views regarding it, but I am quite prepared to let the American people judge this.

Q. If the Supreme Court decides that President Nixon should give up the tapes requested by Mr. Jaworski, would it be legally possible to have the President plead the fifth amendment and withhold the tapes?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I don't know whether it would be legally possible or not, but I can assure you he will not plead the fifth amendment.

Q. The legal definition of an issue is a question that can be answered yes or no. With respect to the case before it, is there any decision of the Supreme Court that is not definitive?

MR. ST. CLAIR. The word "definitive" is not a word I have used, and no matter how the question is put, I feel it quite inappropriate to put the Supreme Court under any pressure from me regarding their decision, and I am just not going to discuss, on any basis, what their decision is or might be.

Q. I want to know if you have heard the tapes, and how many of them?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I have not listened to them all. I wouldn't have time to do so. In fact, I am a rather poor listener. I have spotchecked, from time to time, to see——

Q. What about March 21 when you suggested them bringing it in.

MR. ST. CLAIR. March 22?

Q. Yes.

MR. ST. CLAIR. The President authorized that and under the circumstances that I reported to him. He is the only one, incidentally, that can authorize the release of any Presidential conversation. I, as his lawyer, cannot, and even if I wanted to, and he said do whatever you want, I wouldn't do it. He is the only one. There is only one person who can release a Presidential conversation and that is the President himself.

Q. Mr. St. Clair, the March 22 transcript that you have given the committee was a very small portion of a long meeting. The committee does not have the tape, the White House refuses to give them the tape. They have no way to independently check the accuracy——

MR. ST. CLAIR. Yes, they do. They have been invited to come up just as on the other tapes. The chairman and ranking minority member have been invited to come up.

Q. Not the entire committee?

MR. ST. CLAIR. Nor does the entire committee ever do this. The ranking minority member and the chairman are the ones who have made decisions with respect to what portions of the tapes they have are going to be published, and they have done so. We are simply making it available to them on that same basis.

Q. The committee has access to the tapes and all the members of the committee have heard a number of tapes; is that correct?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I don't know, frankly, whether all the members have. I would doubt it very much.

Q. Well, you know they have heard certain tapes.

MR. ST. CLAIR. No I don't, because they do not confide in me.

Q. Mr. St. Clair, the question has to do with the so-called Huston Plan, a plan which outlined a rather wide program of secret surveillance which the President was told in advance was illegal. The President, so we are told, issued, or had issued in his name, a memoranda approving this plan. The memoranda were later withdrawn. The question is: Do you have any proof that the President actually rescinded his orders that the plan go into effect?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I think the evidence is quite clear on that point, Mr. Rather. No one contends that the plan ever was effectuated, and the evidence is quite clear on the advice of the Attorney General it was withdrawn.

Q. That the plan was withdrawn, not just the memos?

MR. ST. CLAIR. The plan. It was never effectuated, and I think the evidence is quite clear on it.

Q. I am sorry, sir, but to follow up, I thought the evidence indicated that the plan was in fact in effect for 5 days?

MR. ST. CLAIR. Well, legally, it may have been on paper, but there is no evidence whatsoever that any aspect of it was put into effect, and upon the advice of the Attorney General, it was withdrawn, and I think properly so.

Q. Mr. St. Clair, you have been not reluctant at all in the past to define what is an impeachable offense.

MR. ST. CLAIR. I am still not reluctant.

Q. On the matter of the Supreme Court, is it in your judgment an impeachable offense for a President not to abide by a ruling of the Supreme Court?

MR. ST. CLAIR. Well, I hate to keep trying not to answer this question. I will say this: An impeachable offense in my view—and we have filed an extensive brief on this subject—must constitute a major or serious crime committed by the President.

I don't think the American people would accept anything else as the basis for removing the President. Beyond that I think it inappropriate to discuss the Supreme Court ruling which is expected in any day, and I don't want to be the kind of a lawyer that second guesses judges before they decide.

Q. Can you tell us, Mr. St. Clair, at least whether the President has made a decision as to whether he would comply with an adverse ruling?

MR. ST. CLAIR. No, and I don't see how he can until he gets the decision, reads the opinion, and consults his counsel.

Q. Then he will decide whether or not he is going to obey the law of the Court? Is that what you are saying?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I think I have said all I am going to say on the subject.

Q. To go back to the March 22 meeting, the White House has said this is conclusive proof that the President would not pay and did not approve blackmail. You can read that testimony to say that the President quibbled only over the word blackmail but authorized the payment of money under other words.

MR. ST. CLAIR. There is all the difference in the world between payment of blackmail on the one hand to keep somebody quiet and to pay it for humanitarian reasons. A fair reading of that is a payment for humanitarian reasons would be proper. It doesn't mean that it was paid for that purpose, but it is very clear that he did not know of nor approve of any payment of blackmail for the purpose of keeping anyone quiet, and that is the allegation.

Q. Mr. St. Clair, to follow that last question, sir, is it not possible from the reading of that tape that the President was merely searching for a euphemism for blackmail?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I don't think so. You have to remember these are unstructured conversations in the presence of Mr. Haldeman only. I doubt very much if they were playing games. It is quite clear he used the word "blackmail" in the sense, we all understand it.

Q. Mr. St. Clair, during your argument before the Supreme Court, you stated, I believe toward the end of the argument, that the very least you asked for the Court was to stay its hand, in your phrase, until the impeachment proceeding was completed. Is that still your hope, the least of your hopes and expectations?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I still hold to that view, yes.

Q. Mr. St. Clair, to follow up the questions on the discussion about money, in the March 22 meeting the President said when people are in jail there is every right for people to raise money for them. These are gentlemen who refused to disclose how the Watergate burglary had come about. They were convicted by the court to be tried. Why would the President be discussing such a matter in the Oval Office?

MR. ST. CLAIR. It is my view that that conversation clearly indicates a hypothetical basis upon which he would believe, and I think most people would agree, payments could be lawful. But he was making it very clear that that is not what Mr. Hunt was suggesting. Mr. Hunt was suggesting that he would do certain things unless he was paid; the President called that blackmail, and he said in no uncertain words: "That is going too far."

Q. On the same point, Mr. St. Clair, if I understand you, you have said that when the President told Dean, "get it," it did not refer to money, and you said it referred to a signal, but you don't understand what the signal was for. Are you saying you don't know what the President meant when he told Dean, "get it"?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I think that is a fair statement, yes. And I think you have to read these tapes in their entirety. If you take a section out of here, a section out of there, you are going to get an incomplete and perhaps an inaccurate picture.

Q. Have you asked the President what he meant when he said that?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I don't recall that I have in fact.

Q. Mr. St. Clair, that March 22 portion is only two and one-half pages long, and it, too, was taken out of context of a longer conversation. Have you heard that full conversation yourself? Is the whole thing in context?

MR. ST. CLAIR. Well, the portion of this conversation that relates to the payment of blackmail is offered only for that purpose. It is obviously a small part of a lot longer tape.

Q. But it, too, is still ambiguous because the word "blackmail" as suggested can also be taken in different ways. It could be a euphemism if you didn't know the full context of the conversation.

MR. ST. CLAIR. I don't think any fair reading of that word would indicate it was used as a euphemism.

Q. Considering the differences in the transcripts between what the President offered and what the committee ended up with, is there a justification that the people might feel that the President hasn't come forward with all of the evidence that pertains to the case?

MR. ST. CLAIR. If you read the 1,240-odd pages of transcript and you are familiar with the facts, it seems to me hard to come to a conclusion that anything of significance that contributed to this end result has been left out. It is a comprehensive story that in my view makes it quite clear that the President fully acquitted himself in his obligation to carry out the law.

Q. In this question of blackmail and hush money for Hunt, we are talking about money that was contributed to a political campaign for the President. Are there circumstances in which you feel it is appropriate to use campaign contributions to pay money for burglars and their families?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I think the answer is no.

Q. In view of your answer just a minute ago, does this mean you have no more evidence that you could present in support of the President, and if that is the case, do you think now the overriding consideration, as Mr. Garrison said today, should be not so much whether the President appeared guilty of complicity in a crime, but whether his impeachment would be in the public interest?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I think that I don't agree with Mr. Garrison. I think that the evidence does not demonstrate complicity in any crime on the part of the President, and if viewed objectively and fairly you can come out in my judgment with only that conclusion.

As I say, Mr. Garrison, of course, is entitled to his point of view. I don't happen to agree.

Q. Mr. St. Clair, one of the elements is that at times the President was aware that the tape machine was operating. Are you fully personally satisfied that the tape was not being used by the President at any time during these transcripts to establish a defense?

MR. ST. CLAIR. I think that is ultimately clear from the context of the conversations. I frankly don't think he was aware it was running. Obviously, let's face it, if he thought it were, I am sure the conversations might have been far less ambiguous.

Q. Could you tell us why you haven't asked the President what he meant when he said, "For Christ sake, get it"?

MR. ST. CLAIR. Frankly, it had not occurred to me. I don't look at these tapes in terms of what this word means or that word means. I look at them in their totality and in their juxtaposition with other events as I understand them. I can understand how people can say, "What does this word mean and what does that word mean," but I think that is not the proper way to look at them.

Maybe I should have asked him, but I just didn't. I know that the testimony is by Mr. Dean that that did not involve the payment of money.

Q. I was going to say, sir, isn't that a pretty explicit and direct order? The language is pretty blunt.

MR. ST. CLAIR. What was the end result? That seems to me where you have to come out. How did the matter end up? Clearly no one authorized the payment, no one in fact paid it. Mr. Haldeman didn't. He had nothing to do with the chain of events that resulted in the payment.

Mr. Dean didn't make the payment. It is quite clear now that Mr. Dean was the one who initiated the chain events that resulted in the payment before he met with the President.

So as I stated in my brief, if the meeting with the President had never taken place on the morning of March the 21st, it is quite clear this payment of Hunt's attorney's fees would have been made in any event.

So, therefore, it is very difficult for me to see how anyone can accuse the President of authorizing and directing the payment of blackmail to Mr. Hunt.

MR. CORMIER. Thank you, Mr. St. Clair.

NOTE: Mr. St. Clair's news conference was held at 4:31 p.m. at the Surf and Sand Hotel, Laguna Beach, Calif. It was broadcast live on radio and television.

As printed above, this item follows the text of the White House press release.

Council of Economic Advisers

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Alan Greenspan To Be a Member and of His Designation as Chairman of the Council. July 23, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Alan Greenspan, of New York, N.Y., to be a member of the Council of Economic Advisers. The President also announced that Mr. Greenspan will be designated Chairman of the CEA upon his confirmation and appointment as a member. As both member and Chairman he will succeed Herbert Stein, who has resigned.

Since 1959, Mr. Greenspan has been president and member of the board of directors of Townsend-Greenspan & Co., Inc., economic consultants. He is also a consultant to the Council of Economic Advisers, the Department of the Treasury, and the Federal Reserve Board, and a member of the GNP Review Committee of the Office of Management and Budget. Mr. Greenspan is a member of Time magazine's board of economists, senior adviser to the Brookings Institution panel on economic activity, director of the National Economists Club, vice chairman of the Conference of Business Economists, and past president (1970) and fellow of the National Association of Business Economists.

He was born on March 6, 1926, in New York, N.Y. Mr. Greenspan received his B.S. degree, summa cum laude, and his M.A. degree from New York University, and has done advanced graduate work at NYU and Columbia University. In addition to his current activities, he has also been a member of the Commission on an All-Volunteer Armed Force (1969-70), the Commission on Financial Structure and Regulation (1970-71), the Task Force on Economic Growth (1969), the Economic Advisory Board of the Secretary of Commerce (1971-72), and the Securities and Exchange Commission's Central Market System Committee (1972).

Mr. Greenspan joined Townsend-Greenspan & Co., Inc., in 1953 as a consulting economist after serving from 1948 to 1953 as an industrial economist with the National Industrial Conference Board. He currently holds directorships with the following: General Cable Corp., Sun Chemical Corp., Trans-World Financial Co., Dreyfus Fund, Dreyfus Special Income Fund, Dreyfus Liquid Assets, Inc., Standard & Poor's/Inter-Capital Income Securities, Inc., the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace, and the Bowery Savings Bank.

NOTE: On July 23, 1974, Mr. Greenspan participated in a meeting with the President at the Western White House of economists and business, financial, and labor leaders.

The announcement was released at San Clemente, Calif.

Emergency Assistance for the Virgin Islands

Announcement of Emergency Declaration and Authorization of Federal Assistance Following Impact of Drought. July 23, 1974

The President today declared an emergency for the territory of the Virgin Islands because of the impact of a drought on livestock. The President's action will permit the use of Federal funds in relief and recovery efforts in designated areas of the territory.

Dry conditions, which have existed in the Virgin Islands for the past 2 years, have reached a critical stage this year with a severe lack of rainfall. The major impact of the drought has been on livestock, as the pastures in the territory have been dying out because of the lack of moisture. The President's declaration of an emergency will provide a Federally-funded program of survival livestock feeding in order to maintain the herds in the territory.

Federal relief and recovery activities in the Virgin Islands will be coordinated by the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, Department of Housing and Urban Development, under the direction of Administrator Thomas P. Dunne. Mr. Dunne will designate the specific areas within the territory eligible for Federal assistance.

Mr. Thomas R. Casey, Regional Director for Federal Disaster Assistance, HUD Region 2, will be designated as the Federal Coordinating Officer to work with the territory in providing Federal disaster assistance under the Disaster Relief Act of 1974, Public Law 93-288.

NOTE: The announcement was released at San Clemente, Calif.

Disaster Assistance for New York

Announcement of Disaster Declaration and Authorization of Federal Assistance Following Storms and Flooding. July 24, 1974

The President today declared a major disaster for the State of New York as a result of severe storms and flooding, beginning about July 3, which caused damage to public and private property. The President's action will permit the use of Federal funds in relief and recovery efforts in designated areas of the State.

Federal assistance from the President's Disaster Relief Fund will consist primarily of the repair or restoration of damaged streets, roads, bridges, and public facilities and utilities. Low-interest-rate disaster loans for homeowners and businesses will be made available by the Small Business Administration under the authorities of Public Law 93-24, and emergency loan assistance will be made available by the Farmers Home Administration.

Federal relief activities in New York will be coordinated by the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, Department of Housing and Urban Development, under the direction of Administrator Thomas P. Dunne. Mr. Dunne will designate the specific areas within the State eligible for Federal assistance, based upon Federal and State damage assessments.

Mr. Thomas R. Casey, Regional Director for Federal Disaster Assistance, HUD Region 2, will be designated as the Federal Coordinating Officer to work with the State in providing Federal disaster assistance under the Disaster Relief Act of 1974, Public Law 93-288.

NOTE: The announcement was released at San Clemente, Calif.

Supreme Court Decision

Remarks of Special Counsel to the President James D. St. Clair, Together With a Statement by the President Announcing Full Compliance With the Court Decision Requiring Production of Presidential Tape Recordings. July 24, 1974

I have reviewed the decision of the Supreme Court with the President. He has given me this statement, which he has asked me to read to you. I quote:

"My challenge in the courts to the subpoena of the Special Prosecutor was based on the belief it was unconstitutional and on my strong desire to protect the principle of Presidential confidentiality in a system of separation of powers.

"While I am of course disappointed in the result, I respect and accept the Court's decision, and I have instructed Mr. St. Clair to take whatever measures are necessary to comply with that decision in all respects.

"For the future, it will be essential that the special circumstances of this case not be permitted to cloud the rights of Presidents to maintain the basic confidentiality without which this office cannot function. I was gratified, therefore, to note that the Court reaffirmed both the validity and the importance of the principle of executive privilege—the principle I had sought to maintain. By complying fully with the Court's ruling in this case, I hope and trust that I will contribute to strengthening rather than weakening this principle for the future—so that this will prove to be not the precedent that destroyed the principle, but the action that preserved it."

As we all know, the President has always been a firm believer in the rule of law. He intends his decision to comply fully with the Court's ruling as an action in furtherance of that belief.

In accordance with his instructions, the time-consuming process of reviewing the tapes subject to the subpoena and the preparation of the index and analysis required by Judge Sirica's order will begin forthwith.

NOTE: Mr. St. Clair spoke at approximately 4 p.m. at the Surf and Sand Hotel, Laguna Beach, Calif. His remarks were broadcast live on radio and television; they were not issued in the form of a White House press release.

Federal Regional Councils

Announcement of Appointment of Chairmen of the 10 Councils. July 25, 1974

The President today announced the appointment of the chairmen of the 10 Federal Regional Councils for fiscal year 1975.

DAVID W. HAYS, Regional Representative of the Secretary of Transportation, Region I, Boston.

S. WILLIAM GREEN,* Regional Administrator, Housing and Urban Development, Region II, New York.

DANIEL J. SNYDER III, Regional Administrator, Environmental Protection Agency, Region III, Philadelphia.

JACK E. RAVEN,* Regional Administrator, Environmental Protection Agency, Region IV, Atlanta.

GOV. NORMAN A. ERBE,* Regional Representative of the Secretary of Transportation, Region V, Chicago.

ED FOREMAN, Regional Representative of the Secretary of Transportation, Region VI, Dallas.

ELMER E. SMITH,* Regional Administrator, Housing and Urban Development, Region VII, Kansas City.

SAMUEL MARTINEZ, Regional Director, Department of Labor, Region VIII, Denver.

WEBSTER OTIS, Special Assistant to the Secretary, Department of the Interior, Region IX, San Francisco.

BERNARD KELLY,* Regional Director, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Region X, Seattle.

Federal Regional Councils are located in the 10 regional headquarter cities and are composed of the regional heads of the nine major Federal grantmaking agencies: Department of Agriculture; Department of Health, Education, and Welfare; Department of Housing and Urban Development; Department of the Interior; Department of Labor; Department of Transportation; Environmental Protection Agency; Law Enforcement Assistance Administration; and Office of Economic Opportunity. A chairman is designated by the President each year from among the regional heads sitting on each Federal Regional Council.

*Reappointed.

The three primary missions of Federal Regional Councils are: improving intergovernmental relations, coordinating interagency programs, and delivering unique services in response to special problem situations.

During the next year Federal Regional Councils will be paying particular attention to coordinating Federal planning assistance and enhancing the capability of State and local governments to plan and manage Federal programs.

NOTE: The announcement was released at San Clemente, Calif.

Department of State

Announcement of Appointment of Joseph Z. Taylor To Be Assistant Inspector General, Foreign Assistance. July 25, 1974

The President today announced the appointment of Joseph Z. Taylor, of Alexandria, Va., to be an Assistant Inspector General, Foreign Assistance. He succeeds Paul J. Bridston, who has resigned.

Mr. Taylor has been with the Central Intelligence Agency since 1966. From 1963 to 1964, he was Special Assistant to the Administrator of the Agency for International Development for Internal Defense, and from 1965 to 1966, he was Deputy Director, then Director of AID's Office of Vietnam Affairs.

He was born on June 10, 1927, in East Greenwich, R.I. Mr. Taylor received his B.S. from the U.S. Naval Academy and his M.A. from American University. From 1949 to 1962, he served as an officer in the U.S. Marine Corps.

Mr. Taylor is married and has three sons and two daughters.

NOTE: The announcement was released at San Clemente, Calif.

President's Commission on White House Fellowships

Announcement of Appointment of Three Members of the Commission and of the Resignation of One Member. July 25, 1974

The President today announced the appointment of three persons as members of the President's Commission on White House Fellowships. They are:

D. C. BURNHAM, of Pittsburgh, Pa., chairman, Westinghouse Electric Corp.

KENNETH R. COLE, JR., Assistant to the President and Director of the Domestic Council.

LEVI A. JACKSON, of Detroit, Mich., urban affairs manager, Ford Motor Co.

The President also announced the acceptance, with deep appreciation, of the resignation of Robert V. Hansberger as a member of the Commission. He held the position from November 17, 1969.

The Commission was established in 1964 for the purpose of annually recommending to the President a group of outstanding young persons from which he might select White House Fellows. Those selected are appointed to serve for a period of 12 months beginning on September 1 of the year in which they are selected. They serve on the White House Staff, Office of the Vice President, or in the offices of Members of the Cabinet.

NOTE: The announcement was released at San Clemente, Calif.

INFLATION

The President's Address to the Nation at a Conference on the Economy in Los Angeles, California. July 25, 1974

Mr. Smith, all of the very distinguished guests on the podium and in this audience, and all of the millions listening on television and on radio:

I want to discuss today the major problem confronting America—inflation.

And I want to discuss where we are in the fight against inflation, how we got here, and what we are going to do about it.

Let me begin by touching briefly on the nature and causes of the inflation we have been experiencing.

Basically, we and the other industrialized nations have had a generation of inflation because governments all over the world, for a long period of time, have permitted and encouraged the demand for goods and services to outrun the capacity to meet that demand with rising production.

Governments have repeatedly increased their own spending more than taxation. They have added to demand without making a balancing cut in private spending. They have created new money to finance more borrowing and investment than people were willing to finance out of their savings. Now, all this has added to the upward pressure on prices.

The great worldwide surge of inflation in the past year and a half was caused by three exceptional circumstances coming at once.

One was a decline in the world grain production as a result of bad weather in many areas of the world. Another was the oil embargo, together with the action of the oil exporting countries in suddenly quadrupling oil prices. And the third was a simultaneous economic boom in the industrialized nations, which increased demand for goods far beyond the capacity to produce them in those nations.

Now fortunately, although other inflationary pressures continue, food production now has increased. The oil embargo has ended. World oil prices have leveled off. The worldwide economic boom has slackened.

And so, these particular inflationary forces are no longer propelling the inflationary spiral upward to the same extent that they were. We must recognize, however, that the higher price levels that have been reached by oil and other raw materials will continue to exert strong upward pressures for a time as they work their way through the economy.

We are also now feeling the effect of last year's surge of prices in the form of an understandably strong drive for large wage increases, as workers try to catch up with earlier cost of living increases.

Confronted with an unacceptable level of inflation on the one hand and with a temporary slackening of economic activity on the other, many voices have lately been raised in America demanding some swift, spectacular action. Some ask for reimposing wage and price controls. Others recommend that we wring out the economy with higher taxes or sharply restrictive monetary policies, even at the cost of a severe recession. And then, on the other hand, there are those who urge that we should lower taxes in order to pump up the economy more rapidly. And still others suggest that we should simply give up—that we should accept a rampant inflation as a mysterious and incurable disease and concentrate on learning to live with it.

Well, we are not going to do any of these things. Let me tell you why not, and let me tell you what we will do instead.

If experience teaches anything, it is that economic policies aimed exclusively at short-term relief too often bring long-term grief.

We must learn to think less in terms of programs and more in terms of policies: policies of respect for the basic laws and forces of the market place and of recognition that in those policies lie the keys to our economic future.

And so, let me tell you first what we are not going to do.

We are not going to resort to the discredited patent medicine of wage and price controls. To return to controls now for temporary relief would only create new distortions, and thus intensify our long-term difficulties, and lead in the end to even more inflation when the controls came off.

We are not going to respond to the short-term slack in the economy by priming the pumps of inflation with new deficit spending or with a new easing of credit or with tax cuts that would only make inflation worse. These actions would be like pouring gasoline on a raging fire.

And neither will we administer the shock treatment of a sudden drastic "wringing out" of inflation, the cost of which in terms of increased unemployment for millions of Americans would be unacceptable.

Now, let me tell you what we are going to do.

Our aim is to control inflation while continuing to produce more, so that people can live better. The key to this lies in keeping our eye squarely on the long-term—and keeping it there even as we actively manage our short-term difficulties. It lies in choosing a sensible, realistic course and sticking to it, whatever the pressures. And that is exactly what we shall do.

We will continue to monitor every sector of this economy. And I can assure you that we will take what actions are necessary to prevent undue hardship in any sector of the economy. But we will not react either to general or to specific needs with gimmicks or emotionalism, and we will continue steadily on our basic anti-inflationary course.

A policy to check inflation is fundamentally a policy to curb the growth of demand relative to the growth of supply. In the short run, attention must focus on holding down the increase in demand, because with few exceptions, increasing supply takes a considerable amount of time.

There are exceptions, however, where changes in Government policy can result in rapid expansions of supply. Examples on which we have already acted include the turning back into production of tens of millions of acres of farmland which had previously been kept idle, and the sale of excess Government stockpiles of certain raw materials.

In the longer run, we can focus more on increasing the growth of output—on producing more rather than on demanding less. So our strategy must have two elements—mainly restraining demand in the short run and expanding supply in the long run.

Let's turn now to the Federal Government. The most obvious thing the Federal Government can do to restrain demand is to hold down its own spending. For the current fiscal year, expenditures under the budget I submitted in February would be $305 billion. A variety of forces, the most important being pending congressional legislation in excess of the budget, threaten to raise this to $312 billion—over $7 billion over the budget I submitted in January. Undoubtedly, more spending proposals will be pressed in Congress in the months ahead.

I will not accept this inflation of the Federal budget. On the contrary, I am determined to cut below the $305 billion. I submitted in January toward a goal of $300 billion. I intend to veto congressional actions that would raise that spending above the budget. And beyond this, I have directed the heads of all Federal departments and agencies—without exception—to trim already-programmed Federal spending toward the goal of $300 billion.

I have also ordered a reduction of 40,000 in the number of Federal employees provided for in the budget for the current year. This alone will save $300 million.

For the 1976 fiscal year—in which we are now preparing the budget, a year which begins in just 11 months—I shall submit a budget that will not only be in balance, but that will actually reduce the rate of growth of Federal spending so that the increase from 1975 to 1976 will be less than the increase from 1974 to 1975 rather than more. And when necessary, in proposing this budget, I shall propose repeal of existing legislation that makes spending mandatory.

Now, 2 weeks ago, I signed the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974. For the first time in our Nation's history, this law provides a mechanism for the Congress to consider the whole budget comprehensively, not just its parts. It will be essential that this law be used effectively with the clear, continuing objective of reducing or eliminating expenditures that would help some of the people, but cause higher prices for all of the people.

We have to understand one fact. The President alone cannot cut the cost of Government. This new law provides a means by which the Congress and the President can work together to accomplish that goal.

And I am confident that a majority of the Members of the Congress will support the efforts of the President to balance the Federal budget so that millions of Americans will have a chance to balance their family budgets.

The other principal weapon in the Government's arsenal to control inflation is monetary policy—that is, the control over the expansion of money and credit.

It is the function of the Federal Reserve system to maintain an adequate supply of money and credit but to prevent that supply from rising too fast. The Federal Reserve is doing so. Holding down money and credit in the face of a rapid inflation causes high interest rates, which nobody likes. But allowing more rapid monetary expansion would soon cause even more rapid inflation and even higher interest rates. And therefore, the course of the Federal Reserve, the course it is on, is the necessary route to less inflation and lower interest rates.

Like any other part of the anti-inflation program, monetary restraint can be overdone. It has not been overdone up to this time, and it will not be overdone. We shall provide the expansion of money and credit necessary to support moderate growth of the economy at reasonable prices. Chairman Burns, of the Federal Reserve, has assured me of the intention of the Federal Reserve to avoid extremes of restriction in the effort to conduct an effective anti-inflationary monetary policy—an effort which every American should endorse. There will not be a credit crunch in which the money for essential economic activity becomes unavailable.

And so, as far as the Federal Government is concerned, we will cut the growth of Federal spending. We will hold down the growth of money and credit to check private spending. And I call on State and local governments, and on businesses and consumers, to hold down their own spending and increase their own savings as their contribution in the fight against higher prices.

I recognize that some Americans cannot cut their spending without real hardship. And I recognize that some expenditures by business cannot be cut without cutting production now or in the future and thereby increasing unemployment. But most families could reduce or defer some expenditures—building their savings instead—without hardship. And every business has some fat in it, just as every Federal agency has. And State and local governments, whose spending has been rising rapidly, should follow the lead of the Federal Government in cutting unnecessary spending.

Now, there are cynics who will say that such an appeal to the public spirit of the American people is futile. Well, I don't believe that. We saw how the American people saved during World War II. And just last winter, we saw how the American people conserved gasoline and fuel oil and avoided, as a result, gas rationing and all the consequences that would have flowed. In my recent meetings to discuss the economy and in my mail, I have had abundant evidence of the willingness of the American people not only to cooperate but to join actively in the battle against inflation.

Less spending means less pressure on prices today. More saving means more investment in new housing and new production, and therefore, lower prices tomorrow. And the consumer—and that is everybody—wins both ways.

I referred earlier to the significance of a \$12 billion difference in the Federal budget. A cut of only $1\frac{1}{2}$ percent in personal consumption expenditures—that would mean like putting away 15 cents for every \$10 spent—would make a similar difference in the fight against inflation.

How rapidly we succeed in cutting inflation will also depend on business and labor. If they continue pushing prices and wages rapidly forward, this will continue the inflationary pressures. But sales will suffer, because consumers will resist paying higher prices, and employment will also suffer, and no one in the end will be better off.

And, therefore, in their own interest as well as in the Nation's, it is essential that business and labor act responsibly in their price and wage demands. As I have said, we shall not return to price and wage controls. But I intend to use every influence of the Presidency and of the Federal Government to bring about helpful voluntary restraint on the part of both business and labor in this critical area.

In the short run, as I have said, we must focus on measures to restrain demand. But to achieve prosperity without inflation in the long run, we must focus above all on producing more so that we can have more goods and services without higher prices.

To assure a vigorous growth of supplies in the longer run, a number of critical measures are necessary.

A good example is agriculture, where today less than 5 percent of our population feed all of America and help feed much of the rest of the world as well. We must keep our agricultural programs focused on a policy of abundance as they now are, rather than on a policy of scarcity.

We have seen vividly the importance of energy supplies and energy prices in the U.S. economy over these past few months. We must now take all necessary steps to assure ourselves of reliable supplies of energy at the lowest possible cost. That is the essence of Project Independence on which we are now moving steadily forward. Let us take whatever steps are necessary to make sure that the United States will never again be hostage to a cut-off of vital energy supplies by any foreign country. And here is another area where the President alone cannot do the job. We need the cooperation of the Congress on many pieces of legislation in this area which await action.

We need to assure adequate long-term supplies of capital for investment, another area we have discussed at great length in recent weeks.

In May, I directed the Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers to undertake a special study of long-range capital needs to provide for the continued growth of our economy and how to ensure that these needs may be met.

Too often today the creative energies of our economic system are stifled by burdensome overregulation based on policies designed for an earlier era. For example, Government regulations often require trucks to run empty. This wastes fuel, and it raises the cost to the consumer of everything these trucks carry. That is just one example. Many others could be cited. And consequently, I have directed a sweeping review of these policies with the objective of recommending these changes needed to bring the regulatory agencies and regulatory policies in line with the needs of a new era when increasing productivity must be a primary means of achieving our primary economic goals.

And where regulatory agencies, because of obsolete rules, have the effect of restricting production rather than encouraging it, those rules need to be changed. And they will be changed.

Some of the most important regulations from this standpoint are not Federal, but State or local, such as obsolete building codes. Therefore, this review will encompass the reforms needed at all levels. At the same time, I again urge the Congress to enact the regulatory reforms that I have already proposed—with respect to transportation and financial institutions, for example—in order to make our economic system more productive and less inflationary.

And now we come to a very sensitive political point. It is time for us to reevaluate the trade-off between increasing supplies, increasing production, and certain other objectives that are worthwhile, such as improving the environment and increasing safety. Those goals are important, but we too often recently have had a tendency to push particular social goals so far and so fast that other important economic goals are unduly sacrificed. And consequently these policies must be reevaluated and adjusted to the new needs.

Congress should enact the trade reform bill so that negotiations to reduce trade barriers can begin. This sometimes sounds like an esoteric subject of interest only to those who are in international trade. But competition from abroad can be a powerful force toward increasing productivity in the United States, creating more jobs, making more supplies available for American consumers, and in holding down prices.

Finally, and most important, we must restore the idea in America that the way to have more is to produce more. This is true of a nation, it is true of individuals. Too many countries are in extreme difficulty because their people have come to believe that the way to get more is to have the Government spend more, even though no more is produced. That has often been true in this country.

It is often said that we have worldwide inflation because people demand more. That is just a half-truth. We have worldwide inflation because people's demand for more is not matched by a willingness and ability on their part to produce more. The demand too often is translated into a supply of votes, not a supply of work, saving, initiative, and innovation.

In America—and may it always be this way—the power of Government is the power of the people. And, therefore, the most important responsibility of each American in fighting inflation is your responsibility—those of you in this room, and the millions listening on television and radio. I can assure you that your Government will take firm measures, measures that will be unpopular with many special interest groups. The voice of the people in support of sound anti-inflation policies needs to be heard in Washington above the voices of the special interests.

In fact, we need in this country the one lobby we don't have—an anti-inflation lobby. This should not be a lobby with plush Washington offices and high paid officers. And I am not reflecting on any of the people who may be lobbyists here. This lobby should have an office in every home in America and every citizen should be an officer in it. When every Government official—whether in the executive branch, in the Congress, or in State and local governments—knows that this anti-inflation lobby will reward anti-inflationary action and punish inflationary action, the fight against inflation will be won.

We have looked, as we should, at many of the troubles in the American economy today, but we must also recognize that despite its troubles the American economy today is the envy of the rest of the world. One needs only to travel, as I have in recent months and over the years, to other nations, particularly industrial nations, to realize the truth of that statement.

Painful as our own inflation is, it is less than that of France, of Italy, of Great Britain, of Japan, and less than that of most of the industrial nations of the world.

In fact, time and again I have found in recent months the leaders of other countries marveling at the great economic strength of America and wishing that they could exchange their economic difficulties for ours.

And consequently, as we look at the troubles in our economy today, we must not overlook its strengths. We have the strongest economy in the world by far, and we can win any economic battle that we determine to win. We are out to win the battle against inflation, and with our strong economy we have the resources to do it.

As we look at the strengths of that economy, we have more jobs in America today than ever before, and those jobs pay higher wages, real wages, than in any other country in the world, even in the area of food costs, which we all know is one that really strikes home to whoever keeps that family budget. A smaller percentage of the wage earner's income goes to food in the United States than in any country in the world.

Young Americans today are finding work rather than facing the draft, and we can be thankful for that. And if our unemployment, which is holding lower than we had earlier predicted, if it is higher than we want—and it is—let us be thankful that those who may be unemployed are not facing the draft and not serving in any war overseas.

In fact, we can be thankful that our problems today are the problems of peace rather than the problems of war.

We will win the fight against inflation, but we are going to win it not by a single set of dramatic actions, but by the cumulative effect of actions that in themselves are often undramatic, actions that may not make headlines in the morning newspapers, but that will be the right actions to take.

In economic policy, impatience is the great enemy of sound policy. If you look at the history of inflation in America, more than anything else it can be laid at the doorstep of impatience: impatience to spend money we have not yet earned, or to spend taxes we have not yet collected; impatience to satisfy all of our social wants at once, without regard to the fact that we cannot afford everything at once; impatience with the short-term dislocations that often are part of long-term adjustments needed to keep the economy growing in a healthy rather than an unhealthy way.

The key to fighting inflation, therefore, is steadiness. The steadiness that accepts the need for hard decisions, for occasional unpleasant statistics and even a measure of sacrifice in the short run in order to ensure stable growth without inflation for the long run, the steadiness that stands fixed against the clamor to take dramatic action just to create an appearance of action, and the kind of steadiness that rejects demagogery, that rejects gimmickry, and that gives the enormous creative forces of the marketplace in America a chance to work. That is our strength, the free marketplace in America, and we must keep it free.

And so I say to you that we are on the right road toward our goal, a goal of full prosperity without war and without inflation. We are going to stay on that road.

We will be steadfast in holding down Federal spending, in slowing the growth of the Federal budget.

We will have moderate but firm restraint on the growth of the money supply.

We will work creatively with other nations to deal with inflation in its worldwide dimensions.

We will take new measures to encourage productivity, and this is perhaps the most important long-term objective we can set for ourselves—to encourage productivity and to increase supplies of scarce resources. And in particular, we are going to press vigorously forward in increasing supplies of energy and food—the biggest components of the recent inflationary surge.

We shall stand firm against efforts to turn us aside from the steadiness of course that is necessary.

We intend to devote the full energies of the Federal Government to the fight against inflation. And I ask for your support, for the full support of the American people in this great cause.

In 1976, America will celebrate its 200th anniversary as a Nation.

Let our goal for that anniversary be an America at peace with every nation in the world, a peace that we helped to bring about, and here at home, let our goal be an economy of prosperity without war and without inflation.

That is a great goal. It will require the united efforts, the dedication of Government, of business, of labor, and of individual Americans all over this country.

What you do, each and every one of you, will matter.

As you play your part in this great crusade, you can be confident that your Federal Government will play its part. And together, we can achieve the goal that all of us want: the goal of full prosperity without war and without inflation, for ourselves, for our children, and for America's future.

NOTE: The President spoke at 4:32 p.m. in the Los Angeles Room at the Century Plaza Hotel, Los Angeles, Calif. The conference on the economy was sponsored by the California Chamber of Commerce, the California Manufacturers Association, the Los Angeles Area Chamber of Commerce, and the Merchants and Manufacturers Association. In his opening remarks, the President referred to William French Smith, president of the California Chamber of Commerce. The address was broadcast live on radio and television.

Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974

Statement by the President Upon Signing the Bill Into Law While Expressing Certain Reservations About Its Provisions. July 26, 1974

I am signing today S. 3679, the Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974.

Through a carefully controlled program of loan guarantees, this bill will provide emergency assistance to livestock producers who have been caught in a recent cost-price squeeze. When production costs soared above sales levels in recent months, many producers—especially in the beef industry—began operating at a loss, and some still face the threat of bankruptcy. Without some form of assistance as provided in this bill, there might ultimately be a reduction in the number of producers, which would in turn lead to reduced supplies and higher prices for the consumers.

I am keenly aware, however, that this bill also presents some dangers. The assistance provided by this bill should not be used to bail out short-term speculators who are normally not engaged in livestock production, nor should it be used to refinance debt unrelated to recent market conditions or to offset potential losses by banking institutions which are in a position to absorb some loss as a normal business risk. Instead, it should be used only in those cases where it can make the critical difference between a producer's ability to sustain continued meat production and a forced reduction in his production that in the long run would hurt the general consumer as well as the producer.

Accordingly, I am asking the Secretary of Agriculture to administer this act with deliberation and selectivity to ensure that it is used only by the bona fide producer of livestock who is critically affected by short-term changes in market conditions and whose continued production would be severely jeopardized in the absence of such assistance.

NOTE: As enacted, the bill (S. 3679) is Public Law 93-357, approved July 25, 1974.

The statement was released at San Clemente, Calif.

Department of the Interior

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Jack W. Carlson To Be Assistant Secretary for Energy and Minerals. July 26, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Jack W. Carlson of Potomac, Md., to be an Assistant Secretary of the Interior for Energy and Minerals. He will succeed Stephen Alan Wakefield, who has resigned. Mr. Carlson has served as Assistant to the Director, Office of Management and Budget, since 1972.

Mr. Carlson joined the President's Council of Economic Advisers in 1966 serving as Senior Staff Economist, and in 1968 he became Assistant Director of the Bureau of the Budget, where he served until appointment to his current position.

A native of Salt Lake City, Utah, Mr. Carlson was born November 20, 1933. He received his B.S. and M.B.A. (business administration) degrees from the University of Utah in 1957 and M.P.A. (public administration) and Ph. D. (economics) degrees from Harvard University in 1963. He was a fellow of the School of Public Administration at Harvard University in 1968.

Mr. Carlson was a member of the United States Air Force from 1957 to 1966, serving as an Assistant to the Secretaries of the Air Force and Defense (1964-1968) and as professor of economics or management at several universities at various times.

He is married to the former Renee Pyott, and they have seven children.

NOTE: The announcement was released at San Clemente, Calif.

Department of the Interior

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Lynn Adams Greenwalt To Be Director of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service. July 26, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Lynn Adams Greenwalt, of Rockville, Md., to be Director of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Department of the Interior. This is a new position created by Public Law 93-271 of April 22, 1974. Since 1971, Mr. Greenwalt has served as Director of the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife at the Department of the Interior.

Mr. Greenwalt was born March 15, 1931 in Reno, Nev. He received his B.S. degree (1953) from the University of Oklahoma and an M.S. degree (1955) from the University of Arizona. He was a member of the United States Army from 1955 to 1957. During this period, he also served as a fellow of the Arizona Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit.

Mr. Greenwalt joined the Department of the Interior Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife in 1957 and has served in the following capacities: Refuge Manager (1957-62), Regional Refuge Planner (1962-63), Assistant Regional Supervisor (1963-68), Refuge Manager (1968-70), Supervisory U.S. Game Management Agent (1970-71), and Chief, Division of Wildlife Refuge from 1971 until appointment to his current position in October 1973.

Mr. Greenwalt is married to the former Judith A. Cunningham, and they have three children.

NOTE: The announcement was released at San Clemente, Calif.

Federal Energy Administration

Announcement of Intention To Nominate William W. Geimer To Be Director of Intergovernmental and Regional Relations. July 26, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate William W. Geimer, of Chicago, Ill., to be Director of Intergovernmental and Regional Relations in the new Federal Energy Administration.

Mr. Geimer served from October 1971 to December 1973 as Assistant to the Director of the Cost of Living Council and has served since January 1974 as an Executive Assistant at the Federal Energy Office. During 1969, he was Special Assistant to the Director of the Office of Minority Business Enterprise in the Department of Commerce. In 1970, he was Special Assistant to the Chairman of the White House Conference on Children and Youth. During 1970-71, he was with the Office of Economic Opportunity as Deputy Director of VISTA and Chairman of the Office of Program Development's Planning Committee.

He was born August 18, 1937, in Chicago, Ill. Mr. Geimer was graduated from Marquette University in 1959 and Northwestern University in 1963. He is a member of the American Bar Association and the Illinois Bar Association.

From 1963 to 1967, Mr. Geimer served as an attorney with the firm of Brown, Jackson, Boettcher & Dienner in Chicago and was an executive attorney with the National Association of Community Counsel in Chicago from 1967 to 1969.

Mr. Geimer is married to the former Maureen Daly. They have four children and reside in Bethesda, Md.

NOTE: The announcement was released at San Clemente, Calif.

Foreign Claims Settlement Commission

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Wilfred J. Smith To Be a Member of the Commission.

July 26, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Wilfred J. Smith, of Alexandria, Va., to be a member of the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission of the United States for a term of 3 years. He will succeed Kieran O'Doherty whose term has expired.

Prior to his retirement in 1972, Mr. Smith served as Deputy AID Mission Director in Nepal. He was a consultant for the Rand Corporation and a short-term consultant for AID in Vietnam in 1965. He served as research director in Thailand (1966-1968) and program manager in Iran (1968-1969) for the Philco-Ford Corp. He also served as a Senior Research Analyst for the Department of Defense from 1965 to 1966.

Mr. Smith was born in China on March 21, 1909. He received A.B., A.M., and Ph. D. degrees from the University of Michigan. He served in the United States Air Force from 1942 to 1964, retiring as a colonel. He has written and published a number of materials and received several military decorations.

Mr. Smith is married and has two children.

The Foreign Claims Settlement Commission was established by Reorganization Plan 1 of 1954 for the purpose of determining claims of United States nationals against foreign governments for losses and injuries sustained by them. The commission consists of three members, appointed by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate for staggered terms of 3 years. J. Raymond Bell is Chairman of the commission.

NOTE: The announcement was released at San Clemente, Calif.

HOUSE JUDICIARY COMMITTEE IMPEACHMENT INQUIRY

Brief Submitted to the Committee by the Office of the Special Counsel to the President. Dated July 19, 1974. Released July 20, 1974

EDITOR'S NOTE: The brief, as submitted to the House Judiciary Committee, has been reproduced in facsimile below. Corrections announced by the White House Press Office have been incorporated in this reproduction.

The page numbers on the table of contents refer to pages in the original brief.

INTRODUCTION

This Brief is submitted in response to the areas of inquiry reviewed in depth by the Committee on the Judiciary. The Brief neither reflects our belief as to the significance of the areas highlighted nor concedes the relevancy of any areas not addressed. It is offered to provide the Committee on the Judiciary with the most complete record possible under the available time frame. Should the Committee desire any additional submissions, the Special Counsel to the President would welcome the opportunity to respond to any particular request.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. WATERGATE	Page
A. No Evidence Has Been Presented To Show The President Had Prior Knowledge Of The Plans To Burglarize The Democratic National Committee.	1
B. There Is No Evidence That The President Had Knowledge Prior To March 21, 1973, Of An Alleged Plot To Obstruct Justice With Respect To The Break-In At The Democratic National Committee.	12
C. The Evidence Establishes That The President Did Not Authorize The Payment Of Howard Hunt's Attorney Fees	28
D. The Evidence Establishes That The President Carried Out His Constitutional Responsibility To See That The Laws Were Enforced.	53
II. NATIONAL SECURITY MATTERS
A. There Has Been No Showing That Any Of The Seventeen Wiretaps Were Illegal.	81
B. The Special Investigations Unit Was Created By The President In Response To A Threat To The National Security And Was Never Authorize To Commit Illegal Acts.	89
III. ITT
A. The President Did Not Cause A Settlement Of The ITT Antitrust Cases In Consideration Of Any Commitment Which ITT Made Toward The Financing Of The 1972 Republican National Convention By The San Diego Business Community.	103

- B. Neither The Testimony Of Richard G. Kleindienst
Nor John N. Mitchell Before The Senate Judiciary
Committee Constitutes A Basis For Concluding
That The President Was Under Some Legal Duty
To Respond To That Testimony. 109

IV. DAIRY

- A. The President Did Not Impose The Import Quotas
Sought By The Dairy Industry Nor Were His Actions
Influenced By Campaign Contributions Or Pledges
Of Contributions. 116
- B. The Milk Price Support Level For 1971-72 Was Increased Due To Economic Factors And Congressional Pressure, Not In Return For A Pledge Of Campaign Contributions. 121

V. IRS

- A. There Has Been No Evidence Presented That The President Misused The Internal Revenue Service. 141

VI. CONCLUSION. 151

I. WATERGATE

A. No Evidence Has Been Presented To Show The President Had Prior Knowledge Of The Plans to Burglarize The Democratic National Committee

On May 22, 1973, the President in a national radio and television address said:

The burglary and bugging of the Democratic National Committee headquarters came as a complete surprise to me. I had no inkling that any such illegal activities had been planned by persons associated with my campaign. . . (9 Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents 696, May 22, 1973, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 15a, p. 133).^{1/}

The Special Staff of the House Committee on the Judiciary has not produced a single shred of evidence showing that the President's statement is untrue. In fact, all of the evidence corroborates the President's statement.

In his March 21, 1973, meeting with the President, John Dean told the President there was no White House involvement in the planning of the burglary:

D. Uh, I honestly believe that no one over here (at the White House) knew that (there were plans to break-in the DNC). (Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m., p. 87).^{2/}

^{1/} Presidential Presentation refers to the "Statement of Information Submitted on Behalf of the President," Hearings Before the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives, May-June, 1974.

^{2/} The citations to Judiciary Transcripts, included in this brief are from "Transcripts Of Eight Recorded Presidential Conversations," Hearings Before the Committee on the Judiciary, House of Representatives, pursuant to H. Res. 803, Serial No. 34, May-June, 1974.

- 2 -

After Dean had for the first time told the President some of the details of the Watergate burglary and the cover-up thereof, Dean again told the President that this was new information of which the President was unaware:

D. . . . you're not involved in it . . .

P. That is true

D. I know, sir, it is. Well I can just tell from our conversations that, you know, these are things that you have no knowledge of. (Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m., p. 100).

Both Haldeman and Ehrlichman testified before the Senate Select Committee that they did not believe the President had prior knowledge of the break-in plans. (Haldeman 7 SSC 2883, Ehrlichman 6 SSC 2769, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tabs 5a-5b, pp. 54-55).^{3/}

In a conversation with the President on March 21, 1973, Ehrlichman further elaborated that the White House had no advance knowledge of the break-in:

E. The, the only thing that we can say is for Ziegler to say, 'Look, we've investigated backwards and forwards in the White House, and we're satisfied on the basis of the report we have that nobody in the White House has been involved in a burglary; nobody had notice of it, knowledge of it, participated in the planning, or aided or abetted it in any way.'

^{3/} Citations to SSC refer to the printed transcripts of the Hearings before the Senate Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities.

- 3 -

P. Well, that's what you could say.

E. And it happens to be true. (Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, p.m., p. 145).

Mitchell is the only close advisor alleged to have advance knowledge of the burglary, but Mitchell stated he never discussed this subject with the President. (Mitchell 4 SSC 1628, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 6a, p. 58). Mitchell believed the President did not know of either the burglary plans or the cover-up because, as Mitchell said:

I know the . . . [President] . . . , I know his reactions to things, and I have a very strong feeling that during the period of time in which I was in association with him and did talk to him . . . , I just do not believe that he had that information or had that knowledge; otherwise, I think the type of conversations we had would have brought it out. (Mitchell 4 SSC 1628, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 6a, p. 58).

Finally, Richard Moore, a close associate of the President confirmed the fact that the President had no prior knowledge. Moore testified before the Senate Select Committee:

As I sat through the meeting of March 20 with the President and Mr. Dean in the Oval Office, I came to the conclusion in my own mind that the President could not be aware of the things that Dean was worried about or had been hinting at to me. . . . It seemed crystal clear to me that he knew of nothing that was inconsistent with the previously stated conclusion that the White House was uninvolved in the Watergate Affair, before or after the event. (Moore 5 SSC 1944, 1945, see also 2067, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 6b, p. 59).

- 4 -

The Special Staff has failed to produce any evidence to demonstrate that the President had foreknowledge of the burglary plans.

The evidence clearly establishes that after the second meeting in Mitchell's office on February 4, 1972, the modified Liddy plan ($250,000) was turned down and Dean concluded that the plan was at an end. (Dean 3 SSC 931, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 7a, p. 64). Dean later met with Haldeman and described the meetings in which the Liddy plans were considered. Dean advised Haldeman that the White House should have nothing to do with any such activity. Haldeman agreed. (Dean 3 SSC 930, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 7b, p. 65).

Subsequently, Magruder reported by telephone to Strachan that a "sophisticated political intelligence gathering system" had been approved, as one of approximately thirty items under consideration. Magruder did not elaborate and Strachan dutifully repeated this information, practically verbatim, in a three line paragraph in his Political Matters Memo #18 directed to Haldeman. Attached to this Memo under Tab H were reports identified by the code name "Sedan Chair" as examples of the type of information being developed. These reports did not disclose the character of the source of the information. (Strachan 6 SSC 2441, 2452, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 8a, p. 68).

- 5 -

There is no reason to believe that Haldeman knew the "intelligence gathering" system referred to in Strachan's memo was, in fact, illegal. Magruder testified that the original concept of intelligence gathering was "simply one of gathering . . . information through sources in the opposition's committee." (Magruder 2 SSC 810, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 8b, p. 70). Sedan Chair was such an activity. Magruder and Reisner testified that Sedan Chair involved a disgruntled campaign worker from the Humphrey Pennsylvania organization who passed information to CRP. (Magruder 2 SSC 848, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 8b, p. 70) (Reisner 2 SSC 499, 500, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 8c, p. 72). Ehrlichman and Porter described a similar operation using a Muskie campaign courier to photograph documents he was delivering. Porter deemed this activity surreptitious but not illegal. (Ehrlichman 7 SSC 2768) (Porter 2 SSC 670-671, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 8d, p. 74).

- 6 -

Dean in discussing this matter with the President on the morning of March 21, 1973, stated that: ". . . Bob (Haldeman) was assuming, that they (CRP) had something that was proper over there, some intelligence gathering operation that Liddy was operating." (Emphasis added) (Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m., p. 84). In referring to a Sedan Chair-type operation, Dean told the President that there is "nothing illegal about that." (Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m., p. 85).

The instruction from Haldeman to Strachan to transfer the intelligence "capabilities" from Muskie to McGovern, does not establish that Haldeman knew the activities were illegal. The evidence presented by the Special Staff only shows that Haldeman may have known of the lawful intelligence gathering activities. (Strachan 6 SSC 2476). Strachan suspected that it involved such things as the Muskie driver. (Strachan 6 SSC 2470).

There is no evidence to show that Haldeman ever discussed intelligence gathering with the President. The Senate Select Committee testimony discloses that the Political Matters Memo #18 was prepared by Strachan on March 31, 1972, and submitted to Haldeman. It was returned to Strachan with a check mark opposite the paragraph relating to intelligence gathering. According to Strachan, this mark indicated that Haldeman had seen the matter. (Strachan 6 SSC 2452, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 10a, p. 82). Four days later Strachan prepared a talking paper to Haldeman to use in a meeting that he was having that day with Mitchell -- not with the President. (Strachan 6 SSC 2452, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 10a, p. 82). After Haldeman met with Mitchell, the talking paper was returned and filed with Memo #18. According to Strachan, the subject of intelligence gathering was never raised again by Haldeman, and Strachan only assumed Haldeman discussed it with Mitchell. (Strachan 6 SSC 2454, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 10a, p. 82). Strachan never testified that Haldeman discussed intelligence gathering with the President. In fact, Strachan testified that any memo discussed with the President bore the letter "P" in the upper right hand corner with a check mark through the "P." Strachan is quite certain that none of his Political Matters Memos had this marking. (Strachan 6 SSC 2488, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 10a, p. 82).

- 7 -

Haldeman testified that Strachan did not know what transpired at the April 4, 1972 meeting and that Strachan's suggestion that intelligence gathering was discussed is "far-fetched." Haldeman indicated that he and Mitchell did not discuss intelligence gathering activities with the President, but only reviewed matters relating to the ITT-Kleindienst hearings and assignments of regional campaign responsibilities. The notes Haldeman took during this meeting show that no other matters were discussed. (Haldeman 7 SSC 2881, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 11a, p. 86). The transcript of the April 4, 1972 meeting of the President with Haldeman and Mitchell fully confirms Haldeman's testimony that no reference was made to any intelligence gathering system. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 11b, p. 87). Mitchell confirmed this in his recent testimony before the House Judiciary Committee. (Mitchell HJC 3372), ^{4/}

- 8 -

If there remains any doubt that the President had no advance knowledge of the Watergate burglary, his recorded and spontaneous statements of shock and surprise upon first learning of the break-in would seem conclusive. On February 28, 1973, at a meeting with Dean, the President reacted to the burglary saying:

P. Good G-- almighty. I mean, of course, I'm not dumb, and I will never forget when I heard about this G-- damned thing [unintelligible]
J---- C-----, what in the hell is this? What's the matter with these people? Are they crazy? I thought they were nuts. (Judiciary Transcript, February 28, 1973, a.m., p. 45).

^{4/} Citations to HJC are taken from the Report of Proceedings of the Committee on the Judiciary during its Impeachment Inquiry.

- 9 -

The President first learned of potential White House involvement in the planning and execution of the break-in on March 13, 1973, when Dean told him Strachan knew about the break-in plans in advance. The President expressed his surprise at this revelation and to make sure he heard correctly, asked again and again.

P. Did Strachan?

D. Yes.

P. He knew?

D. Yes.

P. About the Watergate?

D. Yes.

* * * (continued later)

P. But he knew? He knew about Watergate?
Strachan did?

D. Uh huh.

P. I'll be damned. ...
(Judiciary Transcript, March 13, 1973, p.m., p. 71).

On March 13, the President again characterized the break-in saying, "What a stupid thing. Pointless." (Judiciary Transcript, March 13, 1973, p.m., p. 72).

- 10 -

On March 21, 1973, when the President finally learned substantially all of the details of the White House involvement from Dean, the President said:

- P. Why (unintelligible) I wonder? I am just trying to think as to why then. We'd just finished the Moscow trip. I mean, we were --
- D. That's right.
- P. The Democrats had just nominated McG-, McGovern. I mean, for C-----sakes, I mean, what the hell were we-I mean I can see doing it earlier but I mean, now let me say. I can see the pressure but I don't see why all the pressure would have been around then. (Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m., p. 86).

Finally in the conversation of the President, Haldeman and Ehrlichman on March 27, 1973, the following exchange again demonstrates the President's lack of knowledge:

- H. O'Brien raised the question whether Dean actually had no knowledge of what was going on in the intelligence area between the time of the meetings in Mitchell's office, when he said don't do anything, and the time of the Watergate discovery. And I put that very question to Dean, and he said, "Absolutely nothing."
- P. I would -- the reason I would totally agree-- that I would believe Dean there (unintelligible) he would be lying to us about that. But I would believe for another reason -- that he thought it was a stupid damn idea.
- E. There just isn't a scintilla of hint that Dean knew about this. Dean was pretty good all through that period of time in sharing things, and he was tracking with a number of us on --

- 11 -

P. Well, you know the thing the reason that (unintelligible) thought -- and this incidentally covers Colson -- and I don't know whether --. I know that most everybody except Bob, and perhaps you, think Colson knew all about it. But I was talking to Colson, remember exclusively about -- and maybe that was the point -- exclusively about issues. . .

* * *

P. Right. That was what it is. But in all those talks he had plenty of opportunity. He was always coming to me with ideas, but Colson in that entire period, John, didn't mention it. I think he would have said, 'Look we've gotten some information,' but he never said they were. Haldeman, in this whole period, Haldeman I am sure -- Bob and you, he talked to both of you about the campaign. Never a word. I mean maybe all of you knew but didn't tell me, but I can't believe that Colson -- well -- (White House Transcript, March 27, 1973, 11:00 a.m. - 1:30 p.m., pp. 328-330).^{5/}

Thus, a full and fair analysis of all the available evidence conclusively demonstrates that the President had absolutely no prior knowledge of the Liddy plans.

5/ The White House transcripts are taken from the Submission of Recorded Presidential Conversations to the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives by President Richard Nixon, dated April 30, 1974.

- 12 -

B. There Is No Evidence That The President
Had Knowledge Prior To March 21, 1973,
Of An Alleged Plot To Obstruct Justice
With Respect To The Break-In At The Democratic National Committee

An objective analysis of the evidence before this Committee will reaffirm the fact that the President had no prior knowledge of an alleged plot to obstruct justice by such means as the attempted use of the CIA to thwart the FBI's Watergate investigation, the destruction of evidence, the subornation of perjury, and the payment of "hush money."

The allegation that John Dean informed the President of an illegal cover-up on September 15, 1972, is based exclusively on the testimony of Dean. In his testimony before the Senate Select Committee Dean stated that he was certain after the September 15 meeting that the President was fully aware of the cover-up. (Dean 4 SSC 1435, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 3a, p. 46). However, in answering questions of Senator Baker, he modified this by stating it "is an inference of mine." (Dean 4 SSC 1475, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 3a, p. 47). Later he admitted he had no personal knowledge that the President knew on September 15th about a cover-up of Watergate. (Dean 4 SSC 1482, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 3a, p. 48).

The tape of the conversation between the President and Dean on September 15, 1972, does not in any way support Dean's testimony that the President was "fully aware of the cover-up." The tape of September 15, 1972, does indeed contain a passage in which the President does congratulate Dean for doing a good job:

- 13 -

- P. Well, the whole thing is a can of worms. As you know, a lot of this stuff went on. And, uh, and, uh, and the people who worked (unintelligible) awfully embarrassing. And, uh, and, the, uh, but the, but the way you, you've handled it, it seems to me, has been very skillful, because you-putting your fingers in the dikes every time that leaks have sprung here and sprung there. . . . (Judiciary Transcripts, September 15, 1972, p.m., p. 7).

This was said in the context not of a criminal plot to obstruct justice as Dean alleges, but rather in the context of the politics of the matter, such as civil suits, counter-suits, Democratic efforts to exploit Watergate as a political issue and the like. The reference to "putting your finger in the leaks" was clearly related to the handling of the political and public relations aspect of the matter. At no point was the word "contained" used as Dean insisted had been the case in his testimony. (Dean 4 SSC 1476-1477).

This is an example of what the President meant when he said that the tapes contain ambiguities that someone with a motive to discredit the President could take out of context and distort to suit his own purposes.

If Dean did in fact believe that the President was aware of efforts illegally to conceal the break-in prior to March 21, 1973, it is strange that Dean on that date felt compelled to disclose to the President for the first time what he later testified the President already knew. After some preliminary remarks concerning the Gray confirmation hearings, Dean stated the real purpose for the meeting:

- D. Uh, the reason, I thought we ought to talk this morning is because in, in our conversations, uh, uh, I have, I have the impression that you don't know everything I know.

P. That's right.

- D. and it makes it very difficult for you to make judgments that, uh, that only you can make

- 14 -

P. That's right.

D. on some of these things and I thought that - (Emphasis added) (Judiciary Transcript,
March 21, 1973, a.m., p. 80).

He then proceeded to detail for the President what he believed the President should be made aware of, first in the "overall."

Dean stated, "We have a cancer-within-close to the Presidency, that's growing," and "people are going to start perjuring themselves. . . ." (Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m. p. 81). He described the genesis of the DNC break-in; the employment of Liddy; the formulation of a series of plans by Liddy which Dean disavowed, as did Mr. Haldeman; the belief that the CRP had a lawful intelligence gathering operation and the receipt of information from this source; and the arrest at the DNC on June 17, 1972. He then informed the President of a call to Liddy shortly thereafter inquiring ". . . whether anybody in the White House was involved in this" and the response "No, they weren't." (Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m., p. 86).

Dean next laid out for the President what happened after June 17. He informed the President "I was under pretty clear instructions (laughs) not to really investigate this . . . I worked on a theory of containment - to try to hold it right where it was," and he admitted that he was "totally aware" of what the FBI and grand jury were doing. (Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m., p. 88). Throughout these disclosures the President asked Dean a number of questions such as:

- 15 -

- P. Tell me this: did Mitchell go along?
(White House Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m., p. 175). ^{6/}
* * *
- P. That could be - Colson know [sic] what they were talking about?
* * *
- P. Did Colson - had he talked to anybody here?
- D. No. I think this was an independent -
- P. Did he talk to Haldeman?
* * *
- D. . . . Strachan. Some of it was given to Haldeman. uh, there is no doubt about it. Uh-
- P. Did he know what it was coming from?
(Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m., pp. 84-85).

Altogether, the President asked Dean more than 150 questions in the course of this meeting.

Dean then described to the President the commencement of what he alleges was a cover-up involving himself and others. Implicit in these revelations, of course, is that the President was not involved but rather he was learning of these allegations for the first time. In fact, later in the conversations, Dean said:

^{6/} The Judiciary Transcript at p. 82 notes that this line is unintelligible.

- 16 -

D. I know, sir, it is. Well I can just tell from our conversations that, you know, these are things that you have no knowledge of. (Emphasis added)
(Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m., p. 100).

This evidence demonstrates that the President was not aware of any plot to obstruct justice with respect to the break-in at the Democratic National Committee. This fact is further illustrated by an analysis of each of the categories through which obstruction of justice by some persons has been alleged to have occurred: the interjection of CIA into the investigation; destruction of evidence; perjury and subornation of perjury; and payments to the "Watergate seven" defendants.

(a) The Interjection of CIA into the Investigation

The evidence of the President's role with respect to CIA and the investigation is clear, uncontradicted and totally exculpatory.

The theory that the CIA might have been involved, somehow, in the break-in of the Democratic National Committee originated not in any political circle, but within the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The theory was ostensibly based on some intrinsic evidence, although the previously deteriorated relationship, and, indeed, the antagonistic competition between the CIA and the FBI could have well enhanced the acceptability of the theory within the FBI. The testimony of L. Patrick Gray establishes that the origin of the CIA involvement theory was in the FBI and that Gray communicated the theory to Dean on the - afternoon of June 22, 1972. Gray testified:

- 17 -

I met again with Mr. Dean at 6:30 p.m. the same day to again discuss the scheduling of interviews of White House staff personnel and to arrange the scheduling of these interviews directly through the Washington field office rather than through FBI headquarters. At this meeting I also discussed with him our very early theories of the case; namely, that the episode was either a CIA covert operation of some sort simply because some of the people involved had been CIA people in the past, or a CIA money chain, or a political money chain, or a pure political operation, or a Cuban right wing operation, or a combination of any of these. I also told Mr. Dean that we were not zeroing in on any one theory at this time, or excluding any, but that we just could not see any clear reason for this burglary and attempted intercept of communications operation. (Gray 9 SSC 3451, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 13a, p. 122).

Dean's testimony confirms that Gray informed him on June 22, 1972, that one of the FBI theories of the case was that it was a CIA operation, and that Dean reported this information to Haldeman and Ehrlichman on June 23. Dean testified:

It was during my meeting with Mr. Gray on June 22 that we also talked about his theories of the case as it was beginning to unfold. I remember well that he drew a diagram for me showing his theories. At that time Mr. Gray had the following theories: It was a setup job by a double agent; it was a CIA operation because of the number of former CIA people involved; or it was someone in the reelection committee who was responsible. Gray also had some other theories which he discussed, but I do not recall them now, but I do remember that those I have mentioned were his primary theories.

* * *

On June 23 I reported my conversation with Gray of the preceding evening to Ehrlichman and Haldeman. (Dean

- 18 -

3 SSC 943, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I,
Tab 13a, p. 123).

Haldeman's testimony confirms that Dean reported to him the FBI's concern about CIA involvement, and that he in turn reported it to the President, who ordered Haldeman and Ehrlichman to meet with the CIA officials. Haldeman testified:

There was a concern at the White House that activities which had been in no way related to Watergate or to the 1972 political campaign, and which were in the area of national security, would be compromised in the process of the Watergate investigation and the attendant publicity and political furor. The recent public disclosure of the FBI wiretaps on press and NSC personnel, the details of the Plumbers operations, and so on, fully justifies that concern.

As a result of this concern and the FBI's request through Pat Gray to John Dean for guidance regarding some aspects of the Watergate investigation, because of the possibility of CIA involvement, the President directed John Ehrlichman and me to meet with the Director and Deputy Director of the CIA on June 23. We did so and ascertained from them that there had not been any CIA involvement in the Watergate affair and that there was no concern on the part of Director Helms as to the fact that some of the Watergate participants had been involved in the Bay of Pigs operations of the CIA. We discussed the White House concern regarding possible disclosure of non-Watergate-related covert CIA operations or other nonrelated national security activities that had been undertaken previously by some of the Watergate participants, and we requested Deputy Director Walters to meet with Director Gray of the FBI to express these concerns and to coordinate with the FBI, so that the FBI's area of investigation of the Watergate participants not be expanded into unrelated matters which could lead to disclosures of earlier national security or CIA activities. (Haldeman 7 SSC 2884, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 14a, p. 126).

- 19 -

The President's statement of May 22, 1973, completes the evidence of this transaction, and verifies the circumstances which led to the meeting of Haldeman and Ehrlichman with the CIA officials on June 23, 1972. The President stated:

Within a few days, however, I was advised that there was a possibility of CIA involvement in some way.

It did seem to me possible that, because of the involvement of former CIA personnel, and because of some of their apparent associations, the investigation could lead to the uncovering of covert CIA operations totally unrelated to the Watergate break-in.

In addition, by this time, the name of Mr. Hunt had surfaced in connection with Watergate, and I was alerted to the fact that he had previously been a member of the Special Investigations Unit in the White House. Therefore, I was also concerned that the Watergate investigation might well lead to an inquiry into the activities of the Special Investigations Unit itself.

In this area, I felt it was important to avoid disclosure of the details of the national security matters with which the group was concerned. I knew that once the existence of the group became known, it would lead inexorably to a discussion of these matters, some of which remain, even today, highly sensitive.

- 20 -

I wanted justice done with regard to Watergate; but in the scale of national priorities with which I had to deal -- and not at that time having any idea of the extent of political abuse which Watergate reflected -- I also had to be deeply concerned with ensuring that neither the covert operations of the CIA nor the operations of the Special Investigations Unit should be compromised. Therefore, I instructed Mr. Haldeman and Mr. Ehrlichman to ensure that the investigation of the break-in not expose either an unrelated covert operation of the CIA or the activities of the White House investigations unit -- and to see that this was personally coordinated between General Walters, the Deputy Director of the CIA, and Mr. Gray of the FBI. It was certainly not my intent, nor my wish, that the investigation of the Watergate break-in or of related acts be impeded in any way.
(9 Weekly Compilations of Presidential Documents 693) (May 22, 1973, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 15a, p. 133).

From the evidence, it is thus clear that the President, stimulated by the FBI's theory of possible CIA involvement, which had been relayed to him through Dean and Haldeman, on the morning of June 23, 1972, directed Haldeman that Haldeman and Ehrlichman meet with CIA officials to ensure that the FBI investigation not expose an unrelated covert operation of the CIA.

There is absolutely no evidence of any other action by the President with respect to the FBI's investigation as it related to the CIA.

It is relevant to note that the uncertainty regarding the possible uncovering of CIA activities was recognized in a memorandum dated June 28, 1972, from Helms to Walters that stated that it was still the CIA's position:

- 21 -

that they [FBI] confine themselves to the personalities already arrested or directly under suspicion and that they desist from expanding this investigation into other areas which may well, eventually, run afoul of our operations. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. II, Vol. 3, Tab 41.1, p. 472).

Moreover, it was not until July 6, 1972, that the CIA categorically informed the FBI that it had no objections to an unlimited Watergate investigation. The President, also on July 6, 1972, clearly indicated to Gray that he did not want a cover-up, for he told Gray, "Pat, you just continue to conduct your aggressive and thorough investigation." (Gray 9 SSC 3462, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 15b, p. 135).

It is also clear that Dean's subsequent attempts to involve the CIA in a "cover-up" were independent of and subsequent to the President's instructions to Haldeman on the morning of June 23, 1972.

Dean testified that he met with John Mitchell, Robert Mardian and Fred LaRue either on Friday afternoon, June 23 or on Saturday morning, June 24. (Dean SSC 944). Dean testified that at this meeting he told the others about the FBI theory of CIA involvement, and that it was suggested that CIA "could take care of this entire matter." (Dean 3 SSC 945-46). It was the conversation on the afternoon of June 23, 1972 or the morning of June 24 that led to Dean's approach to CIA Deputy Director Walters on Monday, June 26, 1972. (Dean 3 SSC 946).

- 22 -

It is clear from all the evidence that even the idea that the CIA "could take care of this entire matter" originated subsequent to the President's instructions to Haldeman, and subsequent to the meeting of Haldeman and Ehrlichman with CIA officials on June 23, 1972. There is not the slightest hint in the evidence that the President was aware that subsequent to his legal and entirely appropriate precautionary action on the morning of June 23, 1972, Dean, at the instigation of others undertook to directly involve CIA in a "cover-up."

(b) Destruction of Evidence

The President was unaware that political evidence had been destroyed and it should be noted that neither Dean nor any of the other participants had ever alleged that the President was aware of this; moreover, it is pure speculation to suggest the contrary. It is evident, for example, that the President was not aware that Gray had destroyed documents found in Hunt's safe until April of 1973. On April 17, Petersen explained to the President what had occurred:

HP. Yes sir - I'll tell you what happened. He said he met with Ehrlichman - in Ehrlichman's office - Dean was there and they told him they had some stuff in Hunt's office that was utterly unrelated to the Watergate Case. They gave him two manilla envelopes that were sealed. He took them. He says, they said get rid of them. Dean doesn't say that. Dean says I didn't want to get rid of them so I gave them to Gray. But in any event, Gray took them back, and I said Pat where are they,

- 23 -

and he said I burned them. And I said -

P. He burned them? (Emphasis added) (White
House Transcript, April 17, 1973, p. 1098, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 16a, p. 138).

Nor was the President aware until Petersen informed him on April 16, 1972, that two notebooks were missing from Hunt's office, and both, even then, were unaware that Dean had destroyed this evidence.

HP. By the way Mr. President, I think that.

P. (Inaudible) evidence -- not evidence?
(Inaudible) explain that the evidence was not evidence -- is that right?
The stuff out of his safe?

HP. Well -- that's.

P. What would you get after him on this-- destruction of evidence?

HP. Well you see the point of it is -- there are two other items that -- according to the defense -- Hunt's defense -- that were missing. Both of which were notebooks.

P. Hunt's notebooks?

HP. And we can't find those notebooks. Dean says, Fielding says, and Kehrli says, they have no recollection of those notebooks.

P. Yeah.

HP. Hunt says they were there, and --

P. So --

- 24 -

HP. So only to the extent that the notebooks are missing which Hunt says they're germane.

P. (Inaudible) does he tell us very much, huh?

HP. No sir. (White House Transcript, April 16, 1973, p.m., p. 910).

Dean did not disclose this fact even in his Senate testimony.

It was not until November 5, 1973, when he appeared before the court and admitted for the first time destroying this evidence. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk II, Vol. 3, Tab 45.6, p. 512).^{7/}

There is no information which would even tend to show that the President knew of the destruction of evidence until many months after the fact.

(c) Knowledge of Perjury

The President was also unaware prior to March 21, 1973, that Magruder and Porter perjured themselves by stating to a grand jury that Liddy was authorized to spend up to $250,000 to gather intelligence information for use in attempting to prevent disruptions at the Republican convention and at political speeches. This was apparent from the President's conversation with Dean on March 21, 1973.

D. Yeah. Magruder is totally knowledgeable on the whole thing.

P. Yeah.

^{7/} Special Staff Presentation refers to the "Statement of Information" of the Committee on the Judiciary, House of Representatives, May-June, 1974.

- 25 -

D. All right, now, we've gone through the trial. We've -- I don't know if Mitchell has perjured himself in the Grand Jury or not. I've never --

P. Who?

D. Mitchell. I don't know how much knowledge he actually had. I know that Magruder has perjured himself in the Grand Jury. I know that Porter has perjured himself, uh, in the Grand Jury.

P. Porter? [unintelligible]

D. He is one of Magruder's deputies. (Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m., pp. 86-87).

All the evidence shows conclusively that the President was not even aware until March 21, 1973 of the fact that Magruder and Porter had committed perjury.

Indeed, the President's warning to Ehrlichman and to Haldeman to avoid perjury belies any allegation that the President would countenance it.

P. You better damned well remember being -- The main thing is this, John, and when you meet with the lawyers -- and you, Bob, and I hope Strachan has been told -- believe me -- don't try to hedge anything before the damned Grand Jury. I'm not talking about morality, but I'm talking about the vulnerabilities. (White House Transcript, April 17, 1973, p.m., p. 1022).

(d) Payment of Hush Money

At no point in the exhaustive presentation of information by the Special Staff is there any indication that the President was aware of any hush money paid the Watergate defendants prior to March 21, 1973. It was not until Dean meets with the President on that morning that the President was informed for the first time of allegations of the payment of hush money. At that time Dean disclosed these events to the President for the first time. He told the President:

- 26 -

D. Uh, Liddy said, said that, you know, if they all got counsel instantly and said that, you know, 'Well, we'll ride this this thing out.' All right, then they started making demands. 'We've got to have attorneys' fees. Uh, we don't have any money ourselves, and if -- you are asking us to take this through the election.' All right, so arrangements were made through Mitchell, uh, initiating it, in discussions that -- I was present -- that these guys had to be taken care of. Their attorneys' fees had to be done. Kalmbach was brought in. Uh, Kalmbach raised some cash. Uh, they were obv--, uh, you know, (Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m., pp. 89-90).

Dean then advised the President that in his opinion these payments constituted an obstruction of justice by saying:

- D. the most troublesome post-thing, uh, because (1) Bob is involved in that; John is involved in that; I am involved in that; Mitchell is involved in that. And that's an obstruction of justice.
- P. In other words the fact that, uh, that you're, you're, you're taking care of witnesses.
- D. That's right. Uh,
- P. How was Bob involved?

- 27 -

- D. well, th--, they ran out of money over there. Bob had three hundred and fifty thousand dollars in a safe over here that was really set aside for polling purposes. Uh, and there was no other source of money, so they came over here and said. 'You all have got to give us some money.'
- P. Right.
- D. I had to go to Bob and say, 'Bob, you know, you've got to have some -- they need some money over there.' He said 'What for?' And so I had to tell him what it was for 'cause he wasn't about to just send money over there willy-nilly. And, uh, John was involved in those discussions, and we decided, you know, that, you know, that there was no price too high to pay to let this thing blow up in front of the election. (Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m., p. 90).

Mitchell, Ehrlichman and Haldeman all dispute Dean's allegations of obstructing justice, but there is no information that even remotely connects knowledge of the payments to the President prior to March 21, 1973.

- 28 -

C. The Evidence Establishes That The President
Did Not Authorize The Payment of Howard
Hunt's Attorney Fees

On March 1, 1974, a federal grand jury returned an indictment against seven individuals charging all defendants with one count of conspiracy in violation of Title 18 U.S.C. Sec. 371 and charging some of the defendants with additional charges of perjury, making false declarations to a grand jury or court, making false statements to agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and obstruction of justice.

It has recently been disclosed that the grand jury voted to name the President as one of the unindicted co-conspirators referred to in the conspiracy count (count one) of the indictment of March 1, 1974. It is apparent from an analysis of the indictment that the grand jury vote with respect to the President was related to the implications of a series of overt acts numbered 40 through 44 alleged in the indictment as follows:

40. On or about March 21, 1973, from approximately 11:15 a.m. to approximately noon, HARRY R. HALDEMAN and John W. Dean, III, attended a meeting at the White House in the District of Columbia, at which time there was a discussion about the fact that E. Howard Hunt, Jr. had asked for approximately $120,000.

41. On or about March 21, 1973, at approximately 12:30 p.m. HARRY R. HALDEMAN had a telephone conversation with JOHN N. MITCHELL.

42. On or about the early afternoon of March 21, 1973, JOHN N. MITCHELL had a telephone conversation with Fred C. LaRue during which MITCHELL authorized LaRue to make a payment of approximately $75,000 and for the benefit of E. Howard Hunt, Jr.

- 29 -

43. On or about the evening of March 21, 1973, in the District of Columbia, Fred C. LaRue arranged for the delivery of approximately $75,000 in cash to William O. Bittman.

44. On or about March 22, 1973, JOHN D. EHRLICHMAN, HARRY R. HALDEMAN, and John W. Dean, III, met with JOHN N. MITCHELL at the White House in the District of Columbia, at which time MITCHELL assured EHRLICHMAN that E. Howard Hunt, Jr. was not a 'problem' any longer.

It is clearly the intended implication of these allegations that the President, at the meeting with Dean, subsequently joined by Haldeman, at 11:45 a.m. on March 21, 1973, authorized a payment of money to E. Howard Hunt, Jr. (alleged overt act No. 40) and that thereafter H. R. Haldeman communicated that authorization by telephone to John N. Mitchell (alleged overt act No. 41), who in turn communicated the authorization to Fred C. LaRue (alleged overt act No. 42); and that Fred C. LaRue, acting upon the authorization, arranged for the delivery to William O. Bittman, attorney for E. Howard Hunt, Jr. of approximately $75,000 in cash (alleged overt act No. 43).

The implication of the indictment was further buttressed by the dramatically staged circumstances involved in the return of the indictment into court, during the course of which the Assistant Special Prosecutor, in open court attended by representatives of virtually all the major media, handed up a sealed envelope to the Judge together with a briefcase stated to contain grand jury materials and with a statement that the grand jury requested that the material be submitted to the House Committee on the Judiciary.

- 30 -

Coincidentally therewith, stories appeared in the media clearly recognizing the implications of the indictment and stating that the material handed up to the Judge in open court charged the President with commission of a crime.

The evidence before the Grand Jury, which was transmitted by the Grand Jury to the Committee, not only fails to support, but indeed, contradicts the allegation by the Grand Jury that the President was a co-conspirator with respect to count one of the indictment. It is contradictory also to the implication of the alleged overt acts 40 through 44 of the indictment.

The clear implication of alleged overt act No. 40 is that the President, during his meeting with Dean and Haldeman authorized the payment of money to Hunt. The evidence is to the contrary.

Among the alternatives considered during the meeting were the payment of money generally and the payment of the amount demanded by Hunt, specifically. The mechanics of these alternatives, such as how the money could be raised and delivered, were explored.

Throughout the earlier, broadly exploratory part of the conversation, the President repeatedly expressed one view and then the opposite on the question of meeting Hunt's reported demand, throwing each in turn out for examination and discussion.

- 31 -

At one point in the conversation the President discards the suggestion entirely by saying:

P. That in the end, we are going to be bled to death, and it's all going to come out anyway, then you get the worst of both worlds. We are going to lose, and people are going to --

H. And look [unintelligible].

P. And we're going to look like we covered up. So that we can't do.
(Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m., p. 114).

The inherent wisdom of this observation is such that an ultimately contrary decision would not be possible.

At another point, he inquired as to whether or not the money should be paid:

P. that's why your, for your immediate thing you've got no choice with Hunt but the hundred and twenty or whatever it is. Right?

D. That's right.

P. Would you agree that that's a buy time thing, you better damn well get that done, but fast?

D. I think he ought to be given some signal, anyway, to, to --

P. Yes

D. Yeah -- You know.

- 32 -

P. Well for C----- sakes, get it in a, in a way that, uh -- Who's, who's going to talk to him? Colson? He's the one who's supposed to know him.
(Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m., p. 121).

This obviously refers to Dean's suggestion that Hunt should be given some "signal" not money.

However, this was not the President's final word on the matter.

Later, we find the President saying to Dean:

P. But, but my point is, do you ever have any choice on Hunt? That's the point.

D. [Sighs]

P. No matter what we do here now, John,

D. Well, if we --

P. Hunt eventually, if he isn't going to get commuted and so forth, he's going to blow the whistle. (Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m., p. 125).

Further on, the entire conversation takes a major turn. This turn becomes highly significant in light of the fact that the urgency of Hunt's immediate demand stemmed solely from the fact that his sentencing and imprisonment was two days away, and he reportedly was insisting on getting his financial affairs in order before he went to prison -- so that meeting his immediate demand was at first seen as the only way to buy the time needed even to consider alternative courses; and of the further fact that the President saw Hunt's principal threat in terms not of Watergate disclosures, but rather of disclosure of the national security matters Hunt had been involved in as a member of the Plumbers.

- 33 -

As the conversation continues, Dean introduces a theme that the President immediately seizes on, and that increasingly comes to dominate the discussion: The possibility of calling a new grand jury. (Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m., p. 119).

Initially, the discussion centers on the advantages of a new grand jury as a preferable alternative to having the White House staff appear before the Ervin Committee, and as a means by which the President could seize the initiative in launching the new investigation.

As the discussion develops, however, two other crucial advantages emerge -- advantages which make the payment to Hunt unnecessary.

First, the President concludes that national security matters -- his primary concern in connection with Hunt -- would not have to be disclosed in a grand jury setting in contrast to a public hearing:

- P. Including Ehrlichman's use of Hunt on the other deal? [the Ellsberg situation].
- D. That's right.
- P. You'd throw that out?
- D. Uh, well, Hunt will go to jail for that too -- he's got to understand that.
- P. That's the point too. I don't think that -- I wouldn't throw that out. I think I would limit it to -- I don't think you need to go into every G-- damned thing Hunt has done.
- D. No.
- P. He's done some things in the national security area. Yes. True. (Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m. pp. 125-126).

- 34 -

The other, and very important, factor that emerged was that institution of a new grand jury proceeding could be used to delay sentencing -- and thus to take the heat out of the Hunt demand, in effect mooted it, and making the immediate payment unnecessary as a means of buying time:

P. You see, the point is, the reason that time is of the essence, we can't play around with this, is that they're going to sentence on Friday. We're going to have to move the G-- damned thing pretty fast. See what I mean?

D. That's right.

P. So we've got to act, we really haven't time to [unintelligible].

D. The other, the other thing is that the Attorney General could call Sirica, and say that 'The government has some major developments that it's considering. Would you hold sentencing for two weeks?' If we set ourselves on a course of action.

P. Yep, yep.

D. Say, that 'The sentencing may be in the wrong perspective right now. I don't know for certain, but I just think there are some things that, uh, I am not at liberty to discuss with you, that I want to ask that the, the Court withhold two weeks sentencing.'

H. So then the story is out: 'Sirica Delays Sentencing Watergate For --'

D. I think, I think that could be handled in a way between Sirica and Kleindienst that it would not get out.

P. No.

- 35 -

D. Sirica tells me, I mean Kleindienst apparently does have good rapport with Sirica. He's never talked to him since this case has developed,

H. or P. Why not?

D. but, uh --

P. That's helpful. Kleindienst could say that he's, uh he's working on something and would like, like, like to have a week. I wouldn't take two weeks. I would take a week.

(Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m., pp. 127-128).

Clearly, this was seized on by the President as a preferable alternative to paying the hush money, a payment he saw the dangers of and saw as ultimately futile: and this is demonstrated conclusively in his final instructions as the meeting ended -- instructions not to pay the money, but rather to move on the grand jury idea, to convene the meeting among Haldeman, Mitchell, Ehrlichman and Dean, and in that meeting to consider the various means of proceeding:

P. Why doesn't the President -- could, could the President call him in as Special Counsel to the White -- to the, to the White House for the purpose of conducting an investigation, represent -- uh, you see, in other words -- rather than having Dean in on it.

D. I have thought of that. I have thought of that.

P. I have him as Special Counsel to represent to the Grand Jury and the rest.

D. That is one possibility.

P. Yeah.

H. On the basis that Dean has now become a principal, rather

- 36 -

- P. That's right.
- H. than a Special Counsel.
- D. Uh huh.
- P. That's right.
- D. Uh huh.
- P. And that he's a --
- D. And I, and I could recommend that to you.
- P. He could recommend it, you could recommend it, and Petersen would come over and be the, uh - And I'd say, 'Now --'
- H. Petersen's planning to leave, anyway.
- P. And I'd say, 'Now, '
- D. Is he?
- P. 'I want you to get -- we want you to (1) -- '
We'd say to Petersen, 'We want you to get to the bottom of the G-- damned thing. Call another Grand Jury or anything else.' Correct? Well, now you've got to follow up to see whether Kleindienst can get Sirica to put off -- Right? If that is, if we -- Second, you've got to get Mitchell down here. And you and Ehrlichman and Mitchell and let's -- and -- by tomorrow. (Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m., pp. 128-129).

Not once, from the time it first was suggested that the new Grand Jury proceedings could permit delay of sentencing and thereby make consideration of Hunt's demand no longer urgent, was there any suggestion that Hunt's demand be met.

- 37 -

The conclusion of the meeting is clear in its recognition that the blackmail and the cover-up cannot continue:

- H. John's point is exactly right, that the erosion here now is going to you, and that is the thing that we've got to turn off, at whatever the cost. We've got to figure out where to turn it off at the lowest cost we can, but at whatever costs it takes.
- D. That's what, that's what we have to do.
- P. Well, the erosion is inevitably going to come here, apart from anything, you know, people saying that uh, well, the Watergate isn't a major concern. It isn't. But it would, but it will be. It's bound to be.
- D. We cannot let you be tarnished by that situation.
- P. Well, I [unintelligible] also because I -- Although Ron Ziegler has to go out -- They blame the [unintelligible] the White House [unintelligible].
- D. That's right.
- P. We don't, uh, uh, I say that the White House can't do it. Right?
- H. Yeah.
- D. Yes, sir.
(Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, a.m., p. 130).

Neither of the other participants in the meeting came away with any impression that the President has authorized payments to Hunt. Haldeman concluded that the President rejected payment to Hunt. (White House Transcript, April 17, 1973, p.m., p. 1034), Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 21b, p. 162). Significantly, at no point in his testimony either before the Senate Select Committee or before the grand jury did even John Dean accuse the President of having authorized any payment to Hunt. Dean testified: "The money matter was left very much hanging at that meeting. Nothing was resolved." (Dean 4 SSC 1423, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 21b, p. 163). Although Dean's testimony changed slightly before the Judiciary Committee, the transcript of the meeting on the morning of March 22 with Haldeman and the President confirms that the payment of blackmail was out of the question.

- 38 -

P. Damn it -- when people are in jail there is every right for people to raise money for them. (inaudible) and that's all there is to it. I don't think we ought to (inaudible) -- there's got to be funds -- I'm not being -- I don't mean to be blackmailed by Hunt -- that goes too far, but for taking care of these people that are in jail -- my God they did this for -- we are sorry for them -- we do it out of compassion, yet I don't (inaudible) about that -- people have contributed (inaudible) report on that damn thing -- there's no report required (inaudible) what happens. Do you agree? What else (inaudible)

H. That's why I -- it seems to me that there is no real problem on obstruction of justice as far as Dean is concerned, and, I think, it doesn't seem to me we are obstructing justice.

P. Yeah.

H. People have pled guilty.

P. Yeah.

- 39 -

- H. When a guy goes and pleads guilty are you obstructing justice? (inaudible) His argument is that when you read the law that uh
- P. Yeah -- but Dean didn't do it. Dean I don't think - I don't think Dean had anything to do with the obstruction. He didn't deliver the money -- that's the point. I think what really set him off was when Hunt's lawyer saw him at this party, and said Hunt needs a hundred and twenty thousand dollars -- well that was -- kind of very (inaudible) -- that was a shot across the bow. You understand that that would look like a straight damn blackmail if Dean had gotten the money (inaudible). You see what I mean?
(Emphasis added). (Excerpt of Meeting: The President and H. R. Haldeman, EOB Office, March 22, 1973. (9:11 - 10:35 a.m.), delivered for the Record of the Judiciary Committee Hearing, July 18, 1974).

These statements, made by the President after the delivery of the $75,000 to Hunt's attorney, make it crystal clear that not only did the President not authorize the payment to Hunt but also that he did not know that the money had already been delivered. Moreover, if Haldeman had some role in the delivery of the money to Hunt he certainly did not tell the President.

The conversations of the President with Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Dean in the afternoon of March 21, 1973, is further evidence that the President had not authorized any payment to Hunt earlier in the day. During this conversation the President asks Dean for advice as to what should be done about Hunt's demand:

- 40 -

P. So then now -- so the point we have to, the bridge you have to cut, uh, cross there is, uh, which you've got to cross, I understand, quite soon, is whether, uh, we, uh, what you do about, uh, his present demand. Now, what, what, uh, what [unintelligible] about that?

D. Well, apparently Mitchell and, and, uh, uh,

Unidentified . LaRue.

D. LaRue are now aware of it, so they know what he is feeling.

P. True. [Unintelligible] do something.

D. I, I have, I have not talked with either. I think they are in a position to do something, though.

P. It's a long road, isn't it? I mean, the way you look back on that, as John has pointed out here is that that's a, that's a, that's a long road.

D. It sure is.
(Judiciary Transcript, March 21, 1973, p.m., p. 133).

It is inconceivable that the President would be asking for such advice if he had authorized the payment several hours earlier.

Any implication, therefore, of the allegation contained in count 40 of the indictment that the President authorized any action with respect to payments for Hunt are in conflict with the evidence.

Count 41 of the indictment alleges that H. R. Haldeman had a telephone conversation with John Mitchell about 12:30 p.m. on March 21, 1973. By the sequencing of this allegation, an implication is created that the question of a payment to Hunt was the subject of this conversation.

- 41 -

There is no evidence of any description that the subject of a payment to Hunt was discussed by Haldeman and Mitchell and there is substantial evidence that it was not. It is true that shortly after the meeting of the President with Haldeman and Dean, Haldeman did call Mitchell. However, this was not to request Mitchell to authorize the payment of Hunt's legal fees, as implied in the indictment, but rather to invite Mitchell to attend a meeting with him, Ehrlichman and Dean the next morning as the President had requested be done. Dean confirms that this was the purpose of the call. (Dean 3 SSC 1000, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 23c, p. 176).

The Grand Jury minutes disclose repeatedly unsuccessful efforts on the part of the Assistant Special Prosecutor to establish that Haldeman had talked to Mitchell on that phone call about this payment, as indicated by Haldeman's testimony:

- Q. Now following that meeting did there come a time when you had a conversation with John Mitchell who was then in New York City on the telephone?
- A. Yes, I am sure there did. Let's see -- March 21st. Yes.
- Q. Can you give us the best of your recollection of the time of the telephone conversation and the substance of it?

- 42 -

A. I don't have -- I should qualify my previous answer. I am sure that there was a telephone conversation because one of the results of one of the outcomes of the March 21st meeting with Mr. Dean and the President was a request by the President that Mr. Dean, Mr. Ehrlichman, Mr. Mitchell and I meet that day or the following day to discuss some of these questions and then to report back to the President.

I feel sure that I called Mr. Mitchell to request his coming down for such a meeting.

Q. What do you recall of the conversation between yourself and Mr. Mitchell?

A. That's about all I recall. I am really assuming that there was such a call. I think I called him. It is possible that someone else called him. My general recollection now would be that I had called him and said that the President wanted us to meet and asked him to come down.

Q. It is not the case that you discussed with more particularity the problems about which the President suggested you meet in your conversation with Mr. Mitchell?

A. Not that I recall, no.

Q. Is it your testimony that you do not recall saying to Mr. Mitchell in substance that the President requested that you meet as to how to deal with Mr. Hunt's demand for substantial cash payments?

A. Not that I recall, no.

Q. Is it your testimony that you do not recall saying to Mr. Mitchell in substance that the President's requested that you meet as to how to deal with Mr. Hunt's demand for substantial cash payments?

A. Yes. I have no recollection of that being discussed.

- 43 -

Q. It is your testimony that -- is it your testimony that in the telephone conversation with Mr. Mitchell you did not allude in any way to the subject matter about which you would be meeting the following day?

A. My recollection is that the subject matter about which we would be meeting was the general subject of how to deal with the overall - what has now become called the Watergate situation, as it stood at that time.

I don't recall the point that you raised as being the specific subject for the meeting.

Q. I'm sorry but your answer is not responsive to my question, most respectfully. I asked whether you did not recall alluding to the subject matter in your telephone conversation with Mr. Mitchell.

A. I don't recall alluding to the subject matter. My recollection would be that if I discussed the subject matter it would be in the context that I have just described. The purpose of the meeting was, as I recall it, to review the Watergate situation.

Q. Is it not a fact, Mr. Haldeman, that in your telephone conversation with Mr. Mitchell you stated to him in substance, or you asked him in substance, whether he was going to take care of Mr. Hunt's problem?

A. I don't recall any such discussion, no.

Q. When you say you do not recall any such discussion, that would be something you would recall, would it not, if you had such a discussion?

A. I would think so but I don't see that as having been the major point of discussion either at the time of the phone call to set up the meeting or at the meeting which took place on the 22nd.

- 44 -

Q. You're talking now again about Mr. Hunt's specific request, is that correct?

A. Yes.
(Special Staff Presentation, Bk. III,
Vol. 5, Tab 68.2, pp. 1121-23).

During the course of the hearings Congressman Wiggins inquired of Special Counsel John Doar as to whether there was any evidence that Haldeman did discuss this payment with Mitchell during that telephone call, and Mr. Doar responded that there was no such evidence. In regard to this point, testimony before the Judiciary Committee indicated:

St. Clair. . . . During the course of that conversation did Mr. Haldeman in any form of words discuss the payment or prospective payment of monies to Mr. Hunt or his attorney for legal fees?

Mitchell. No. sir. (Mitchell HJC 3373).

Count 42 of the indictment alleges that in the early afternoon of March 21, 1973, John Mitchell had a telephone conversation with Fred C. LaRue to make a payment of approximately $75,000 to and for the benefit of E. Howard Hunt.

Again the sequencing of the allegations raises the implication that Mitchell called LaRue to pass on an authorization he received from Haldeman. Any such implication is in stark conflict with the evidence.

- 45 -

First, the undisputed evidence is that Mitchell did not call LaRue, but that LaRue called Mitchell.

Mitchell's testimony before the Judiciary Committee about this conversation was:

Mitchell. It is my testimony, Mr. St. Clair, that I had received a telephone call from Mr. LaRue, which to the best of my strong recollection was before I talked to Mr. Haldeman and whether it was on the 21st or prior to that time I am not certain.

* * *

St. Clair. As I understand it, you have examined your telephone records and are satisfied that you did not place a call to Mr. LaRue on March 21, is that correct?

Mitchell. There is no record on the basis of the toll charges furnished by the telephone company which shows any call from my office to Mr. LaRue on March 21.

St. Clair. There are records that would show calls placed from your office to Mr. LaRue on other occasions, are there not?

Mitchell. Many.

* * *

St. Clair. Is it your best memory that the call or that the discussion you had with Mr. LaRue on the 21st, or as you say perhaps earlier, was initiated by Mr. LaRue and not by you?

- 46 -

Mitchell. Yes, sir.
(Mitchell HJC 3373-74; See also 4 SSC
1630-31, Presidential Presentation,
Bk. I, Tab 24c, p. 183).

LaRue's testimony before the House Judiciary Committee was consistent with Mitchell's:

LaRue. My best memory is that I placed the call in the morning. Whether I was successful or what time I was successful in getting Mr.
Mitchell on the phone I just do not recall.

St. Clair. Didn't you tell us that it was your best memory that you got him on the phone when you placed the call but you could not be certain about it? Or words to that effect?

LaRue. I do not recall, Mr. St. Clair, when I actually talked to Mr. Mitchell. My best recollection is, as I state, that I placed that call to him in the morning.

St. Clair. And you received the authority that you were seeking from Mr. Mitchell as a result of that call?

LaRue. Yes sir.

St. Clair. Then following that, you placed a call to Mr. Bittman, did you not?

LaRue. Correct.
(LaRue HJC 2914-5; See also Special Staff
Presentation, Bk. III, Vol. 5, Tab 71, pp.
1194-95).

The evidence relating to the telephone call from LaRue to Mitchell on the morning of March 21, 1973, belies any implication of any initiative by Mitchell with respect to payments to Hunt. (LaRue HJC 2888, Mitchell HJC 3300, 3295, 3373).

- 47 -

Not only are the implications of the sequencing of the allegations of Counts 40-44 of the indictment unsupported by the evidence but, in addition, the evidence before the grand jury and the Judiciary Committee demonstrates the chain of events which actually did take place.

Prior to LaRue's call to Mitchell, and probably on the early morning of March 21, Dean called LaRue. Both Dean and LaRue confirm the time and substance of this conversation. Dean testified before the Judiciary Committee:

Dean. When Mr. LaRue arrived in my office, he asked me what I was going to do about these demands and I told him that I didn't plan to do anything, that I was not in the money business.

He said, what do you think I should do?

And I said, I think you ought to get hold of John Mitchell.

St. Clair. And what did he then say?

Dean. He said fine and left the office.
(Dean HJC 3601; See also Special Staff Presentation, Bk. III, Vol. 5, Tab 71.7, p. 1235).

LaRue testified:

LaRue. Mr. Dean told me that there was a need for money, or that Mr. Hunt had a need for a rather large sum of money. As I recall, the figure was $60,000 for family support and $75,000 for his attorneys' fees. Mr. Dean told me that he was getting out of the money operation, that he did not want to have anything else to do with it and that he was just passing this information along to me for whatever use of it I wanted to to Mr. Bittman or through Mr. Bittman.

- 48 -

(LaRue HJC 2890-91; See also Special Staff Presentation, Bk. III, Vol. 5, Tab 71.1, pp. 1193-94).

From the evidence, it is clear that the initiative for the discussion of payments to Hunt between Mitchell and LaRue came from LaRue, because Dean had told LaRue, in Dean's words, "I was out of that business," or, in LaRue's words, "that he was not going to have any further involvement, contact, in the deliveries of monies to the Watergate defendants. . . ." (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. III, Vol. 5, Tab 71.7, p. 1235 and Tab 71.1, p. 1194).

The sequence of events which is supported by the evidence, therefore, is that Dean informed LaRue that he and the White House would have nothing to do with paying Hunt, and LaRue, acting on his own initiative, called Mitchell and sought Mitchell's advice. LaRue's testimony also demonstrates that it was LaRue, on his own, who was making decisions on the subject. LaRue decided to limit the payment to Hunt to $75,000 for attorneys fees and to ignore the amount demanded for maintenance. LaRue testified, "I think this was a decision I made myself." (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. III, Vol. 5, Tab 71.1, p. 1195, LaRue HJC 2893). LaRue asked Mitchell's advice and Mitchell answered, "If I were you, I would continue and make the payment." (Mitchell HJC 3300).

- 49 -

Thus, LaRue, after soliciting and obtaining Mitchell's advice, himself made the decision to make the payment to Hunt, just as he had made the decision to ignore the demand for an additional amount for maintenance.

This entire sequence -- up to and including the authorization of the payment by Mitchell -- took place independently of Haldeman's call to Mitchell; therefore, there is no way in which the Haldeman call could have been part of the chain authorization. As further evidence, the entire discussion among the President, Haldeman and Dean centered on the $120,000 figure, not the $75,000 -- and it was the $75,000, the amount discussed earlier between LaRue and Mitchell, that was paid, not the $120,000. Quite clearly, therefore, there is no basis whatever for implicating the President in the chain of events that led to the payment.

We see, therefore, that the indictment in U.S. v. Mitchell, et. al. was artfully contrived in order to suggest a pattern, or chain, of events that is belied by the evidence -- in order, that is, to fashion an apparent chain beginning at the morning meeting among the President, Haldeman and Dean on the morning of March 21, 1973, running from the President to Haldeman, from Haldeman to Mitchell, and from Mitchell to LaRue, and culminating in the payment of $75,000 by LaRue that night, and thus providing a basis for a grand jury vote that the President was a co-conspirator in the crime alleged by the indictment. The fact, as we have seen from the evidence which the prosecutor had, is that the chain of events leading to the payment was quite separate: that it was initiated separately from Dean and Haldeman's meeting with the President, that it proceeded on an entirely separate track, that in fact it did not in any way involve the President and in fact was concealed from the President. Dean himself stated as much when he admitted to the President on April 16, 1973:

- 50 -

D. I, I have tried, uh, all along to make sure that anything I passed to you myself didn't cause you any personal problems.
(Judiciary Transcript, April 16, 1973, a.m., p. 195).

Moreover, although Dean had set in motion the chain of events that led to the delivery of the $75,000 to Hunt's lawyer, he at no time on March 21, 1973, informed the President that he had directed LaRue to Mitchell for approval of the payment to Hunt. If on March 21 Dean was as interested in ending the cover-up as he would have the Committee believe he might have informed the President that perhaps LaRue was implementing the delivery of the money while the President was in the process of deciding not to make the payment.

The indictment, therefore, is not only unsupported but is actually contradicted by the evidence. Like a composite photograph, the individual parts of this portion of the indictment may be literally correct; but the artful language and distorted juxtaposition of the parts resulted in a total impression that is grossly distorted insofar as the imputed involvement of the President in the Watergate cover-up is concerned.

- 51 -

It has been alleged that on the afternoon of March 22, 1973, during a conversation with Ehrlichman, Haldeman, Mitchell and Dean, the President indicated a desire to continue a cover-up. Nothing could be farther from the truth. During this conversation the President and his aides were discussing whether or not executive privilege should be asserted at the Senate Select Committee hearings. Even a cursory reading of the transcript of this conversation reveals that the President was being advised that a broad assertion of executive privilege in the Senate would give the appearance of a cover-up and that this should be avoided. The only rational interpretation of this conversation is that the President was attempting to decide how to avoid charges that he was affecting a cover-up and not urging that a cover-up be implemented. In fact, at one point in the conversation, after raising the possibility of a "stonewall" position at the Senate Select Committee, the President tells Mitchell that it was his preference that it not be done that way. (Judiciary Transcript, March 22, 1973, pp. 147, 164, 183).

- 52 -

Ultimately the President did waive executive privilege and all of his aides were permitted to testify freely before the Senate Select Committee and the Grand Jury.

- 53 -

D. The Evidence Establishes That The President
Carried Out His Constitutional Responsibility To See That The Laws Were Enforced

Dean disclosed for the first time on March 21, 1973, that he had been engaged in conduct that might have amounted to obstruction of justice and allegations that other high officials and former officials were also involved. These matters were thoroughly probed by the President in his talk with Dean, with the President often taking the role of devil's advocate; sometimes merely thinking out loud.

Having received this information of possible obstruction of justice having taken place following the break-in at the DNC the President promptly undertook an investigation into the facts. The record discloses that the President started his investigation the night of his meeting with Dean on March 21st, as confirmed by Dean in his conversation with the President on April 16, 1973:

P. And it was that time that I started my investigation.

D. That's right. . .

* * *

P. . . . That is when I became interested. I was -- I became frankly interested in the case and I said, 'Now G -- damn it I want to find out the score' And I set in motion Ehrlichman, Mitchell and -- not Mitchell but a few others. (Judiciary Transcript, April 16, 1973, a.m., p. 197).

- 54 -

At the meeting with Mitchell and the others on the afternoon of March 22nd, the President instructed Dean to prepare a written report of his earlier oral disclosures:

H. I think you (Dean) ought to hole up -- now that you -- for the weekend and do that.

P. Sure.

H. Let's put an end to your business and get it done.

P. I think you need a -- that's right. Why don't you do this? Why don't you go up to Camp David. And, uh --

D. I might do that; I might do that. A place to get away from the phone.

P. Completely away from the phone and so forth. Just go up there . . . once you have written it, you will have to continue to defend [unintelligible] action. (Judiciary Transcript, March 22, 1973, p.m., pp. 157-58). (Emphasis supplied).

Later during this same conversation the President said:

P. . . . I feel that at the very minimum we've got to have the statement and, uh, let's look at it, whatever the hell it is. If, uh, it opens up doors, it opens up doors, you know. (Judiciary Transcript, March 22, 1973, p.m., p. 179).

The recording of this conversation in which the President instructed Dean to go to Camp David to write a report should be compared with Dean's testimony in which he stated:

He (the President) never at any time asked me to write a report, and it wasn't until after I had arrived at Camp David that I received a call from Haldeman asking me to write the report up. (Dean 4 SSC 1385, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 26a, p. 194). (Emphasis supplied).

- 55 -

Dean in fact did go to Camp David and apparently did some work on such a report but he never completed the task. The President then assigned Ehrlichman to investigate these allegations.

By as early as March 27, just six days after Dean's disclosures, the President met with Ehrlichman and Haldeman to discuss the evidence thus far developed and how it would be best to proceed.

Again the President stated his resolve that White House officials should appear before the grand jury:

P. . . .Actually if called, we are not going to refuse for anybody called before the Grand Jury to go, are we, John? (White House Transcript, March 27, 1973, p. 315).

The President then reviewed with Haldeman and Ehrlichman the evidence developed to that time. They stated that they had not yet talked to Mitchell and indicated this would have to be done. They reviewed what they had been advised was Magruder's current position as to what had happened and compared that with what Dean had told them. They reported that Hunt was before the grand jury that same day. It is interesting to note that neither the President, Haldeman nor Ehrlichman say anything that indicate surprise in Hunt's testifying before the grand jury. If in fact he had been paid to keep quiet, it might have been expected that someone would have expressed at least disappointment that he was testifying before the grand jury less than a week later.

- 56 -

They confirmed to the President, as Dean had, that no one at the White House had prior knowledge of the Watergate break-in.

Ehrlichman said, "There just isn't a scintilla of a hint that Dean knew about this." (White House Transcript, March 27, 1973, a.m., p. 329). The President asked about the possibility of Colson having prior knowledge and Ehrlichman said, "...his response...was one of total surprise. ...He was totally non-plussed, as the rest of us." (White House Transcript, March 27, 1973, p. 331). Ehrlichman then reviewed with the President the earlier concern that they had for national security leaks and the steps taken to find out about how they occurred.

It was decided to ask Mitchell to come to Washington to receive a report of the facts developed so far and a call was placed to him for that purpose. (White House Transcript, March 27, 1973, p.m., pp.360-361). It was also decided that Ehrlichman should also call the Attorney General and review the information on hand with him. It was during this meeting that the possibility of having a commission or a special prosecutor appointed in order to avoid the appearance of the Administration investigating itself and a call was placed to former Attorney General Rogers to ask him to meet with the President to discuss the situation. (White House Transcript, March 27, 1973, pp. 352, 354-56, 363).

- 57 -

The next day Ehrlichman, pursuant to the President's direction given the previous day, called Attorney General Kleindienst and among other things advised him that he was to report directly to the President^{8/} if any evidence turns up of any wrongdoing on the part of anyone in the White House or about Mitchell. (White House Transcript, March 28, 1973, p. 383). Kleindienst raised the question of a possibility of a conflict of interest and suggests that thought be given to appointing a special prosecutor. (White House Transcript, March 28, 1973, p. 385).

On March 30, 1973, consideration was given to the content of a press briefing with respect to White House officials appearing before the grand jury. As a result thereof, Mr. Ziegler stated at the Press briefing that day:

With regard to the grand jury, the President reiterates his instructions that any member

^{8/}Petersen was also told to report directly to the President on the discovery of any wrongdoing in the White House. (Petersen HJC 4053). This direct reporting procedure utilized with Kleindienst and Petersen was in keeping with the President's effort to personally investigate the Watergate affair without disclosing this information to those White House personnel potentially involved in the cover-up.

- 58 -

of the White House staff who is called by the grand jury will appear before the grand jury to answer questions regarding that individual's alleged knowledge or possible involvement in the Watergate matter.

Even prior to the completion of Ehrlichman's investigation, the President was taking steps to get the additional facts before the grand jury. On April 8, 1973, on the airplane returning to Washington from California, the President met with Haldeman and Ehrlichman and directed they meet with Dean that day and urge him to go to the grand jury -- "I am not going to wait, he is going to go." (Ehrlichman 7 SSC 2757). Haldeman and Ehrlichman met with Dean that afternoon from 5 to 7. At 7:33 p.m. Ehrlichman reported the results of that meeting to the President by telephone:

P. Oh, John, Hi.

E. I just wanted to post you on the Dean meeting. It went fine. He is going to wait until after he'd had a chance to talk with Mitchell and to pass the word to Magruder through his lawyers that he is going to appear at the Grand Jury. His feeling is that Liddy has pulled the plug on Magruder, and that (unintelligible) he thinks he knows it now. And he says that there's no love lost there, and that that was Liddy's motive in communicating informally. (White House Transcript, April 8, 1973, p.m., p. 401, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 28b, p. 201).

- 59 -

Indeed, Dean did, in fact, communicate his intentions to Mitchell and Magruder not to support Magruder's previous testimony to the Grand Jury. (Dean 3 SSC 1006, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 29a, p. 204). This no doubt was the push, initially stimulated by the President, which got Magruder to go to the U.S. Attorneys on the following Saturday, April 14, and change his testimony and Magruder and Dean's testimony were critical:

St. Clair. Now, Sir, to go back, what was it that to your knowledge, well, 'broke the case?' Was it Mr. Magruder's coming in and offering to change his testimony?

Petersen. Well, I think it was a combination of factors. It was one, Mr. Magruder coming in, and Mr. Dean coming in, and while the negotiations with Mr. Dean stumbled for a period of time, not only while we had the case, but after it was turned over to the Special Prosecutors, nevertheless, that was a fact of shattering import, coupled with Mr. Magruder's statement. And Mr. Magruder at or about the time he came in went about making his apologies, I am informed, to his erstwhile companions, and that was a factor which added to the momentum, tended to bring in Mr. LaRue. And Mr. LaRue indicated that in effect the jig was up. He was quite prepared to plead. All of these things developed, you know, in a matter of days in a very rapid fashion. (Petersen HJC 3921-22).

On the morning of April 14, 1973, the President met again with Haldeman and Ehrlichman to discuss the Watergate matter. This was an in-depth discussion lasting more than two and one-half hours.

- 60 -

The obvious purpose was to review the results of three week's investigation on the part of Ehrlichman and Haldeman and determine what course of action they would recommend.

Several conclusions were reached at that meeting by the President. From Ehrlichman's report on what Ehrlichman called "hearsay" facts, the President concluded, with regard to Mitchell:

P. I'm not convinced he's guilty but I am convinced that he ought to go before a Grand Jury. (White House Transcript, April 14, 1973, a.m. p. 445, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 30a, p. 208).

There was a discussion as to who would be the appropriate person to talk to Mitchell and tell him that continued silence did not well serve the President. Ultimately, it was decided that Haldeman should call Mitchell to come to Washington and that Ehrlichman should talk to him.

With respect to Magruder, the President said:

P. We've come full circle on the Mitchell thing. The Mitchell thing must come first. That is something today. We've got to make this move today. If it fails, just to get back our position I think you ought to talk to Magruder.

H. I agree.

P. And you tell Magruder, now Jeb, this evidence is coming in you ought to go to the Grand Jury. Purge yourself if you've perjured and tell this whole story.

H. I think we have to.

P. Then, well, Bob, you don't agree with that?

- 61 -

H. No, I do. (White House Transcript, April 14, 1973, a.m., pp. 477-478, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 30b, p. 209).

The President instructed Ehrlichman to see Magruder, also, and tell him that he did not serve the President by remaining silent.

The President's decision to urge Mitchell and Magruder to go to the grand jury was based on his recognition of his duty to act on the body of information Ehrlichman had reported to him:

E. Here's your situation. Look again at the big picture. You now are possessed of a body of fact.

P. That's right.

E. And you've got to -- you can't just sit here.

P. That's right.

E. You've got to act on it. You've got to make some decisions and the Dean thing is one of the decisions that you have to make . . .
(White House Transcript, April 14, 1973, a.m., pp. 488-489).

At another point in the discussion, the same point was reiterated:

E. Well, you see, that isn't, that kind of knowledge that we had was not action knowledge, like the kind of knowledge that I put together last night. I hadn't known really what had been bothering me this week.

P. Yeah.

E. But what's been bothering me is --

P. That with knowledge, we're still not doing anything.

E. Right.

- 62 -

- P. That's exactly right. The law and order. That's the way I am. You know it's a pain for me to do it -- the Mitchell thing is damn painful. (White House Transcript, April 14, 1973, a.m., p. 499).

A decision was reached to speak to both Mitchell and Magruder before turning such information as they had developed over to the Department of Justice in order to afford them "an opportunity to come forward." The President told Ehrlichman that when he met with Mitchell to advise him that "the President has said let the chips fall where they may. He will not furnish cover for anybody." (White House Transcript, April 14, 1973, a.m., p. 507, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 30c, p. 210).

The President summed up the situation by stating:

- P. No, seriously, as I have told both of you, the boil had to be pricked. In a very different sense -- that's what December 18th was about. We have to prick the boil and take the heat. Now that's what we are doing here. We're going to prick this boil and take the heat. I -- am I overstating?
- E. No, I think that's right. The idea is, this will prick the boil. It may not. The history of this thing has to be though that you did not tuck this under the rug yesterday or today, and hope it would go away. (White House Transcripts, April 14, 1973, a.m., p. 509).

The decision was also made by the President that Ehrlichman should provide the information which he had collected to the Attorney General. Ehrlichman called the Attorney General, but did not reach him.

- 63 -

Mitchell came to Washington that afternoon and met with Ehrlichman. Immediately following that meeting, Ehrlichman reported to the President, stating Mitchell protested his innocence, stating:

You know, these characters pulled this thing off without my knowledge. . . I never saw Liddy for months at a time. . . I didn't know what they were up to and nobody was more surprised than I was. . . (White House Transcript, April 14, 1973, p. m., p. 525).

Ehrlichman said he explained to Mitchell that the President did not want anyone to stand mute on his account; that everyone had a right to stand mute for his own reasons but that the "interests of the Presidency . . . were not served by a person standing mute, for that reason alone." (White House Transcript, April 14, 1973, p. m., p. 525).

Ehrlichman said that he advised Mitchell that the information that had been collected would be turned over to the Attorney General and that Mitchell agreed this would be appropriate. (White House Transcript, April 14, 1973, p. m., p. 532).

Even later on April 14, Ehrlichman finally was able to reach Magruder and met with Magruder and his lawyers for the purpose of informing him that he should not remain silent out of any misplaced loyalty to the President. Ehrlichman found, however, that Magruder had just come from a meeting with the U.S. Attorneys where he had told the full story as he knew it. (White House Transcript, April 14, 1973, p.m., p. 630; see also, Magruder 2 SSC 808, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 29b, p. 205). Magruder told Ehrlichman what he had told the U.S. Attorney, which Ehrlichman duly reported to the President. (White House Transcript, April 14, 1973, p.m., p. 582).

- 64 -

During this meeting with the President, Ehrlichman's earlier call to the Attorney General was completed, and Ehrlichman spoke to the Attorney General from the President's office. Ehrlichman told the Attorney General that he had been conducting an investigation for about the past three weeks for the President as a substitute for Dean. (White House Transcript, April 14, 1973, p.m., p. 629). He also told him that he had reported his findings to the President the day before and that he had advised people not to be reticent on the President's behalf about coming forward. He informed the Attorney General that he had talked to Mitchell and had tried to reach Magruder, but that he had not been able to meet with Magruder until after Magruder had conferred with the U.S. Attorneys. He offered to make all of his information available if it would be in any way useful.

- 65 -

(White House Transcript, April 14, 1973, p.m., p. 635).

Following the telephone call, Ehrlichman said that the Attorney General wanted him to meet with Henry Petersen the next day regarding the information he had obtained. During the course of the conversation relating to Magruder changing his testimony the President stated:

P. It's the right thing. We all have to do the right thing. Damn it! We just cannot have this kind of business, John. Just cannot be.
(White House Transcript, April 14, 1973, p.m., p. 607).

Late on the evening of April 14th, after the White House Correspondents' dinner the President spoke by telephone first with Haldeman and then with Ehrlichman. The President told each that he now thought all persons involved should testify in public before the Ervin Committee. (White House Transcript, April 14, 1973, p.m., p. 646, 648).

On the morning of Sunday, April 15th, the President talked with Ehrlichman and told him that he had received a call from the Attorney General who had advised him that he had been up most of the night with the U.S. Attorney, and with Assistant Attorney General Petersen. (White House Transcript, April 15, 1973, a.m., p. 669). The Attorney General had requested to see the President, personally, the

- 66 -

President told Ehrlichman, and the President had agreed to see him after church. The President and Ehrlichman again reviewed the available evidence developed during Ehrlichman's investigation and the status of relations with the media.

In the early afternoon of April 15, the President met with Attorney General Kleindienst. (White House Transcript, April 15, 1973, p. m., p. 696 et seq.). Kleindienst confirmed to the President that the U.S. Attorneys had broken the case and knew largely the whole story as a result of Magruder's discussions with them and from disclosure made by Dean's attorneys, who were also talking to the U.S. Attorney. The Attorney General anticipated indictments of Mitchell, Dean and Magruder and others, possibly including Haldeman and Ehrlichman. Kleindienst indicated that he felt that he could not have anything to do with these cases especially because of his association with Mitchell, Mardian and LaRue. The President expressed reservations about having a special prosecutor:

P. First, it's a reflection -- it's sort of an admitting mea culpa for our whole system of justice. I don't want to do that.
(White House Transcript, April 15, 1973, p. m., p. 712).

The President then suggested that Kleindienst step aside and that the Deputy Attorney General, Dean Sneed, be placed in charge of the matter. The President expressed confidence in Silbert doing a thorough job.

- 67 -

Kleindienst pointed out that even if he were to withdraw, his deputy is still the President's appointee and that he would be "in a tough situation. . . ." (White House Transcript, April 15, 1973, p. m., p. 715). Kleindienst recommended that a Special Prosecutor be appointed and a number of names were suggested. The President's reaction to the idea of a Special Prosecutor was negative:

P. . . . I want to get some other judgments because I -- I'm open on this. I lean against it and I think it's too much of a reflection on our system of justice and everything else. (White House Transcript, April 15, 1973, p. m. p. 742, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 31a, p. 212).

Following a further review of the evidence, Kleindienst raised the question about what the President should do in the event charges are made against White House officials. The President resisted the suggestion that they be asked to step aside on the basis of charges alone:

P. . . . the question really is basically whether an individual, you know, can be totally, totally -- I mean, the point is, if a guy isn't guilty, you shouldn't let him go.

K. That's right, you shouldn't.

P. It's like me -- wait now -- let's stand up for people if there -- even though they are under attack. (White House Transcript, April 15, 1973, p. m., p. 724).

- 68 -

Further discussion on this subject included the suggestion that Assistant Attorney General Henry Petersen might be placed in charge rather than the Deputy Attorney General. Kleindienst pointed out, "He's the first career Assistant Attorney General I think in the history of the Department."

Shortly after this, the tape at the President's office in the Executive Office Building ran out. It is clear, however, from a recorded telephone conversation between the President and Kleindienst that he and Henry Petersen met later in the afternoon with the President. This was verified by Petersen's testimony before the Senate Committee. It was during this meeting that the President assigned the responsibility for the on-going investigation to Petersen and instructed Petersen to do what had to be done to get at the truth. (Petersen HJC 3862). It should be noted that at this meeting Petersen recommended that the President not name a Special Prosecutor, because that would be tantamount to a confession that the Department of Justice was unable to competently perform this assignment. (Petersen HJC 3860).

At his meeting with the President, Assistant Attorney General Petersen presented to the President a summary of the allegations which related to Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Strachan, and that the summary indicated no case of criminal conduct by Haldeman and Ehrlichman at that time. (Petersen 9 SSC 3632, Exhibit 147, 9 SSC 3875-76, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 31b, p. 213).

- 69 -

The President, on the afternoon of April 15, 1973, had every reason to believe that the Department of Justice was moving rapidly to complete the case. He continued to attempt to assist. He had four telephone conversations with Petersen after their meeting. In the afternoon, having been told that Liddy would not talk unless authorized by "higher authority," who all assumed was Mitchell, the President directed Petersen to pass the word to Liddy through his counsel that the President wanted him to cooperate. Subsequently, the President told Petersen that Dean doubted Liddy would accept the word of Petersen, so Petersen was directed to tell Liddy's counsel that the President personally would confirm his urging of Liddy to cooperate. The President stated:

- P. I just want him (Liddy) to be sure to understand that as far as the President is concerned everybody in this case is to talk and to tell the truth. You are to tell everybody, and you don't even have to call me on that with anybody. You just say those are your orders. (White House Transcript, April 15, 1973, p.m., p. 769, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 31c, p. 216 ; see also Petersen 9 SSC 3650).

The President continued to seek additional facts and details about the whole matter. However, while the President wanted Petersen to report directly to him about the unfolding developments in this case the President did not want Petersen to inform him about the grand jury proceedings even though Petersen believed the President was entitled to this information, because the President believed this would be improper. Petersen stated:

- 70 -

Doar. Did you have any discussion with the President during that ten day period with respect to the use of grand jury material?

Petersen. In the course of the conversation, the President indicated that he wanted to be advised of the scope of matter of these things, but that he did not want grand jury information. Implicit in that, I think, was perhaps at least a thought in his mind that he was not entitled to grand jury information. I don't believe that is the law. I think the President as Chief Executive is entitled to grand jury information, at least to the extent that the prosecutor feels it appropriate to make that information available in the course of, in furtherance of his duties. Which is almost the language of Rule 6(e). (Petersen HJC 3887-88).

On April 16, 1973, the President learned from Petersen that LaRue had admitted his role in the cover-up and indicated that he was talking freely with the prosecutors about the involvement of others. (White House Transcript, April 16, 1973, pp. 966-67).

On April 17, the President instructed Haldeman to make sure that Kalmbach was informed that LaRue was talking freely. (White House Transcript, April 17, 1973, p. 983). The President's purpose was not to suggest that Kalmbach lie to the prosecutors but rather that Kalmbach be made aware that others are cooperating with the prosecutors and that Kalmbach should also tell the truth. It was similar action by the President that resulted in Dean and Magruder cooperating with the prosecutors and the subsequent breaking of the case.

- 71 -

Thus, any suggestion that the President was using Petersen as an information source in order to perpetuate a cover-up is ridiculous in light of the fact that the President told Petersen not to provide him with what would be the most important information if continuing the cover-up was the President's purpose. Moreover, Petersen never gave the President any grand jury information. (Petersen HJC 3889). Petersen could not reveal the details of the further disclosures by Dean's attorneys, so the President sought Petersen's advice about getting further information from Dean:

P. Right. Let me ask you this -- why don't I get him in now if I can find him and have a talk with him?

HP. I don't see any objection to that, Mr. President.

P. Is that all right with you?

HP. Yes, sir.

P. All right -- I am going to get him over because I am not going to screw around with this thing. As I told you.

HP. All right.

P. But I want to be sure you understand, that you know we are going to get to the bottom of this thing.

HP. I think the thing that --

P. What do you want me to say to him? Ask him to tell me the whole truth? (White House Transcript, April 15, 1973, p.m., p. 765).

After talking with Dean and reviewing Dean's further information, the President raised the question about when Dean and perhaps Haldeman and Ehrlichman should resign and Petersen responded, "We would like to wait, Mr. President." (White House Transcript, April 15, 1973, p.m., p. 774).

- 72 -

On the morning of April 16, the President began a long series of meetings on the entire subject of Watergate resignations. Being uncertain of when the case would become public, the President decided he wanted resignations or requests for leave in hand from those against whom there were allegations. He had Ehrlichman draft such letters, and discussed them with Haldeman and Ehrlichman.

The President then met with Dean and discussed with him the manner in which his possible resignation would be handled. Dean resisted the idea of his resigning without Haldeman and Ehrlichman resigning as well. The President reviewed with Dean the disclosures Dean made to the President on March 21st, and on the evening of April 15th.

The President had some more advice for John Dean on this occasion:

- P. Fine. Thank God, John. Don't ever do it, John. I want you to tell the truth. That's the thing that you're going to -- I have told everybody around here, said 'G-- damn it, tell the truth.' Cause all they do, John, is compound it.
- D. That's right.
- P. That son-of-a-bitch Hiss would be free today if he hadn't lied about his espionage. He could have just said he -- he didn't even have to. He could've just said, 'I -- look, I knew, Chambers. And, yes, as a young man I was involved with some Communist activities but I broke it off many years ago.' And Chambers would have dropped it.
- D. Well --

- 73 -

- P. But, the son-of-a-bitch lied, and he goes to jail for the lie rather than the crime.
- D. Uh --
- P. So believe me, don't ever lie with these bastards.
(Judiciary Transcript, April 16, 1973, a.m., p. 200).

As to the President's action, he told Dean:

- P. No, I don't want that, understand? When I say, 'Don't lie,' don't lie about me either.
- D. No, I won't sir. You're -- I, I'm not going --
(Judiciary Transcript, April 16, 1973, a.m., p. 204).

The President met with Haldeman at noon on April 16th to discuss at length how and when Haldeman should make a public disclosure of his actions in the Segretti and Watergate matters. Haldeman reported that Mr. Garment recommended that he and Ehrlichman resign. (White House Transcript, April 16, 1973, p.m., p. 829). Garment had been assigned by the President on April 9 to work on the matter. The President stated that he would discuss that problem with William Rogers that afternoon and asked Haldeman to get with Ehrlichman and fill in Rogers on the facts. (White House Transcript, April 16, 1973, p.m., p. 834).

The President met in the early afternoon alone with Henry Petersen for nearly two hours in the Executive Office Building. They discussed the effect the Senate Committee hearings would have on the trials in the event indictments are returned. (White House Transcript, April 16, 1973, p.m., p. 846).

The President then asked Petersen what he should do about Dean's resignation:

- 74 -

HP. Yes. As Prosecutor I would do something different. But from your point of view I don't think you can sit on it. I think we have the information under control but that's a dangerous thing to say in this City.

P. Ah

HP. And if this information comes out I think you should have his resignation and it should be effective. . . (White House Transcript, April 16, 1973, p. m., p. 852).

Petersen, however, urged the President not to announce the resignation if the information did not get out, as that would be "counter-productive" in their negotiations with Dean's counsel. Petersen reviewed the status of the evidence at length with the President with a view toward making a press release before an indictment or information was filed in open court.

During the course of the conversation Petersen informed the President that they were considering giving Dean immunity. As for Haldeman and Ehrlichman, Petersen recommended that they resign. The status of the situation was reviewed as follows:

P. Okay. All right come to the Haldeman/Ehrlichman thing. You see you said yesterday they should resign. Let me tell you they should resign in my view if they get splashed with this. Now the point is, is the timing. I think that's it. I want to get your advice on it, I think it would be really hanging the guy before something comes in if I say look, you guys resign because I understand that Mr. Dean in the one instance, and Magruder in another instance, made some charges against you. And I got their oral resignations last night and they volunteered it. They said, look, we want to go any time. So I just want your advice on it. I don't know what to do, frankly. (Inaudible) so I guess there's nothing in a hurry about that is there? I mean I -- Dean's resignation. I have talked to him about it this morning and told him to write it out.

- 75 -

HP. (Inaudible)

P. It's under way -- I asked for it. How about Haldeman and Ehrlichman? I just wonder if you have them walk the plank before Magruder splashes and what have you or what not. I mean I have information, true, as to what Magruder's going to do. (Inaudible) nothing like this (inaudible).

HP. Or for that matter, Mr. President.

P. Yeah.

HP. Its confidence in the Office of the Presidency.

P. Right. You wouldn't want -- do you think they ought to resign right now?

HP. Mr. President, I am sorry to say it. I think that mindful of the need for confidence in your office -- yes.

P. (Inaudible) basis?

HP. That has nothing to do -- that has nothing to do with guilt or innocence. (White House Transcript, April 16, 1973, p. m., p. 915-17).

At the end of the meeting with Petersen, the President had every reason to believe that a public disclosure of the entire case in court would be made within forty-eight hours and perhaps sooner. The remaining questions for Presidential decision were: (1) What action he should take on the resignation, suspension or leave of Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Dean and whether it should be before or after they were formally charged; (2) what position he should take on immunity for Dean; and (3) what statement they should issue prior to the public disclosure in court.

- 76 -

On the afternoon of April 17, the President discussed the problem of granting immunity to White House officials with Henry Petersen. Petersen pointed out that he was opposed to immunity but he pointed out that they might need Dean's testimony in order to get Haldeman and Ehrlichman. The President agreed that under those circumstances he might have to move on Haldeman and Ehrlichman, provided Dean's testimony was corroborated. The President told Petersen:

P. That's the point. Well, I feel it strongly--I mean--just understand--I am not trying to protect anybody--I want the damn facts if you can get the facts from Dean and I don't care whether--

HP. Mr. President, if I thought you were trying to protect somebody, I would have walked out. (White House Transcript, April 17, 1973, p.m., p. 1086).

As for Dean, the President told Petersen:

P. . . . No I am not going to condemn Dean until he has a chance to present himself. No he is in exactly the same position they are in. (White House Transcript, April 17, 1973, p.m., p. 1090).

- 77 -

The President remained convinced, however, that a grant of immunity to a senior aide would appear as a cover-up:

P. What you say -- Look we are having you here as a witness and we want you to talk.

HP. That is described as immunity by estoppel.

P. I see, I see -- that's fair enough.

HP. That is really the prosecutor's bargain.

P. That is much better basically than immunity -- let me say I am not, I guess my point on Dean is a matter of principle -- it is a question of the fact that I am not trying to do Dean in -- I would like to see him save himself but I think find a way to do it without -- if you go the immunity route I think we are going to catch holy hell for it.

HP. Scares hell out of me. (White House Transcript, April 17, 1973, p.m., p. 1092).

The President went over the draft of his proposed statement with Petersen. Petersen further counseled the President that no discussion of the facts of the case could be made without prejudicing the case and the rights of the defendants.

Later on the afternoon of April 17, the President announced to the public: (i) that he had new facts and had begun his own investigation on March 21; (ii) that White House staff members who were indicted would be suspended, and if they were convicted, they would be discharged; and (iii) that all members of the White House staff would appear and testify before the Senate Committee.

- 78 -

The President further stated that:

I have expressed to the appropriate authorities my view that no individual holding, in the past or present, a position of major importance in the Administration should be given immunity from prosecution. (13 Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents 387, April 17, 1973).

In addition he stated that all White House staff employees were expected fully to cooperate in this matter.

After making his public statement, the President met with Secretary of State Rogers, and they were joined later by Haldeman and Ehrlichman. (White House Transcript, April 17, 1973, p. 1137 et seq.). Secretary Rogers reiterated his advice that the President could not permit any senior official to be given immunity. (White House Transcript, April 17, 1973, p. m., p. 1141).

The President had concluded that he should treat Dean, Haldeman and Ehrlichman in the same manner. Petersen had advised the President that action on Dean would prejudice the negotiations of the U.S. Attorneys with Dean's lawyers, and that Dean's testimony might be needed for the case.

On the evening of April 19, the President met with Messrs. Wilson and Strickler, counsel retained by Haldeman and Ehrlichman upon recommendation of Secretary Rogers. Wilson and Strickler made strong arguments that Haldeman and Ehrlichman had no criminal liability and should not be discharged.

- 79 -

The President continued to struggle with the question of administrative action against his aides. On April 27, Petersen reported to the President that Dean's lawyer was threatening that unless Dean got immunity, "We will bring the President in -- not this case but in other things." (White House Transcript, April 27, 1973, p. 1261). On the question of immunity in the face of these threats, the President told Petersen:

P. All right. We have got the immunity problem resolved. Do it, Dean if you need to, but boy I am telling you -- there ain't going to be any blackmail. (White House Transcript, April 27, 1973, p. 1276, Presidential Presentation, Bk. I, Tab 33a, p. 224).

Later in that same meeting the President was advised by Petersen that the negotiations with Dean's attorneys had bogged down, and action by the President against Dean, Haldeman and Ehrlichman would now be helpful to the U.S. Attorney. (White House Transcript, April 27, 1973, p.m., pp. 1287-1293).

Three days later, on April 30, the President gave a nationwide address. He announced that he accepted the resignation of Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Attorney General Kleindienst and Dean. The President then announced the nomination of Elliot Richardson as the new Attorney General.

- 80 -

In summary, after the March 21 disclosure the President conducted a personal investigation and, based on the results of this investigation and in coordination with the Department of Justice, took Presidential action and removed several key White House staff members from office. The President's action was a function of his constitutionally-directed power to see that the laws are "faithfully executed" and was well within the wide discretion afforded him under the executive power doctrine. The investigation the President conducted was proper and fulfilled his constitutional duty in every respect. As a consequence every White House official against whom charges were made was removed from office.

- 81 -

II. NATIONAL SECURITY MATTERSA. There Has Been No Showing That Any Of The Seventeen Wiretaps Were Illegal

There was clear legal authority for the legality of warrantless national security wiretaps at the time the seventeen wiretaps were conducted. United States v. Clay, 430 F.2d 165 (5th Cir. 1970), reversed on other grounds, 403 U.S. 698 (1971); United States v. Brown, 317 F.Supp. 531 (E.D. La. 1970), affirmed, 484 F.2d 418 (5th Cir. 1973). The Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in the Clay decision held:

No one would seriously doubt in this time of serious international insecurity and peril that there is an imperative necessity for obtaining foreign intelligence information, and we do not believe such gathering is forbidden by the Constitution or by statutory provision. (430 F.2d at 172).

Foreign policy wiretapping has not been affected by the Supreme Court's decision to overrule warrantless domestic security wiretaps. United States v. United States District Court, 407 U.S. 297, 308 (1972) (also known as the Keith case). In the Keith decision, the Supreme Court carefully limited its opinion to domestic security wiretapping, expressing no opinion on national security wiretaps. In his concurring opinion in Giordano v. United States, 394 U.S. 310, 314 (1969), Justice Stewart notes that foreign policy wiretapping is still an open question. Although the constitutionality of foreign policy wiretaps has not been finally resolved by the Supreme Court, former Attorney General

- 82 -

Elliot Richardson has stated that the Department of Justice is justified in relying on lower court decisions permitting warrantless national security wiretaps. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. IV, Tab 27a).

The seventeen wiretaps were legal then and still meet the current legal standards. The Third Circuit Court of Appeals in United States v. Butenko, 494 F.2d 593 (3rd Cir. 1974), has held that warrantless foreign policy wiretapping does not violate the Fourth Amendment provided that the reasons for instituting the wiretap are reasonable. Unlike other Fourth Amendment cases, reasonableness is not judged by a probable cause standard. Instead, the interception of conversations is permissible when conducted solely for the purpose of gathering foreign intelligence information -- particularly when wiretapping is used as a tool for impeding the flow of sensitive information from the government. Butenko, supra, at 601.

The evidence of the circumstances surrounding these seventeen wiretaps demonstrates clearly that they involved national security. The government was faced with massive leaks of sensitive foreign policy information when the President was just beginning to establish policies or future relations with other nations. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. IV, Tab 19b).

- 83 -

These leaks began in the Spring of 1969, when the President was exploring solutions to the Vietnam War. Following a National Security Council meeting on March 28, 1969, the President directed that several studies be conducted on alternative solutions to the Vietnam War, and one alternative to be studied was a unilateral troop withdrawal. The study directive was issued on April 1, 1969, and on April 6, 1969, the New York Times printed a front page article indicating that the United States was considering unilateral withdrawal from Vietnam. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. IV, Tab 19a). Similarly in early June 1969, shortly after the decision had been reached to begin the initial withdrawal of troops from Vietnam, The Evening Star and The New York Times reported this decision indicating that it would be made public following the President's meeting with South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. IV, Tabs 20a and 20b).

These leaks were particularly damaging to the diplomatic efforts being made to end the Vietnam War. In this connection, Henry Kissinger stated:

Each of the above disclosures was extremely damaging with respect to this Government's relationship and credibility with its allies. Although the initial troop withdrawal increment was small, the decision was extremely important in that it reflected a fundamental change in United States policy. For the South Vietnamese government to hear publicly of our apparent willingness to consider unilateral withdrawals, without first discussing such an approach with them, raised a serious question as to our reliability and credibility as an ally. Similarly, though in a reverse context, these disclosures likewise impaired our ability to carry on private discussions with the North Vietnamese, because of their concern that negotiations could not, in fact, be conducted in absolute secrecy. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. IV, Tab 20c).

- 84 -

Some of the most damaging leaks occurred with regard to the SALT negotiations. On January 20, 1969, when the President first took office, he immediately directed that an overall study be undertaken regarding the United States strategic force posture for the internal use of the government and for use in the SALT negotiations. A fundamental requirement of this study was to determine what programs should be adopted to ensure credibility of our country's deterrent capability. The study included an analysis of five possible strategic options from an emphasis of offensive capabilities to heavy reliance on anti-ballistic missile systems. The costs for the various approaches were included. Notwithstanding the need for secrecy of this study, the May 1, 1969, edition of the New York Times, reported the five strategic options under study with close estimates of the costs for each option. These options were published before they were considered by the National Security Council. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. IV, Tab 22a).

- 85 -

In addition to the above study, the United States Intelligence Board (USIB) had been engaged in an analysis of the Soviet Union's testing of missiles, and in early June of 1969 issued a report setting forth their estimate of the Soviet Union's strategic strength and possible first strike capability. On June 18, 1969, the New York Times published this same official assessment of the first strike capabilities of the Soviet Union. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. IV, Tab 23a).

The damaging nature of these disclosures was summed up by Henry Kissinger stating:

Each of these disclosures was of the most extreme gravity. As presentations of the government's thinking on these key issues, they provided the Soviet Union with extensive insight as to our approach to the SALT negotiations and severely compromised our assessments of the Soviet Union's missile testing and our apparent inability to accurately assess their exact capabilities. . . .

[The disclosure of the assessment of the Soviet's first strike capability]. . . would provide a useful signal to the Soviet Union as to the . . . efficacy of our intelligence system. It would also prematurely reveal the intelligence basis on which we were developing our position for the impending strategic arms talks. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. IV, Tab 23b).

Finally, the June 3, 1969, edition of the New York Times, reported that the President had determined to remove nuclear weapons from Okinawa in the upcoming negotiations with Japan over the reversion of the island. The article stated that the President's decision had not yet been communicated to Japan. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. IV, Tab 24a). This disclosure had significant impact on the negotiations the United States was undertaking with Japan as noted by Henry Kissinger:

- 86 -

The consequences of this disclosure, attributed to well-placed informants, in terms of compromising negotiating tactics, prejudicing the Government's interest, and complicating our relations with Japan were obvious, and clearly preempted any opportunity we might have had for obtaining a more favorable outcome during our negotiations with the Japanese. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. IV, Tab 24b).

Thus, it can be seen that the leaks which occurred in 1969 were extremely damaging to the national security of the United States. The reasonableness and legality of the wiretaps should be determined by an examination of the circumstances surrounding the institution of the taps rather than the results. In light of the consequences of the leaks, these wiretaps were clearly justified. The reasonableness and legality of the taps is buttressed by the fact that the wiretaps did produce useful information about NSC personnel which were providing national security information to outsiders.

In June, 1973, the FBI completed a background report on the seventeen wiretaps, and reported that the intercepted conversations were "replete with details, gossip and loose talk about . . . matters handled by the staff of NSC." (Presidential Presentation, Bk. IV, Tab 26a). Specifically, the FBI reported that several of the NSC staff members had extensive contacts with members of the press. In particular, two former employees, X^{9/} and L, discussed many aspects of the internal workings of the NSC with Y, a newsman. X held extensive discussions on southeast Asian policies with Y and others. Various FBI documents suggest that Y may have aided foreign governments in gathering intelligence information in the past. X, Y and L were three of the subjects of these wiretaps. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. IV, Tab 26a).

- 87 -

The records of the FBI indicate that the information obtained was put to good use to prevent further leaks. The FBI reported that the wiretaps had been helpful in "evaluating key persons on the White House staff, and in making a determination as to whether each could be trusted with highly classified information." (Presidential Presentation, Bk. IV, Tab 26a). The FBI documents also reflect that X's employment with the government was terminated as a result of the information gathered through this wiretap. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. IV, Tab 26k).

^{9/} Names have been deleted to protect the rights of the individuals.

- 88 -

Based on the damage being caused by these leaks of national security information, the government was completely justified in using these wiretaps to help stem the flow of critical information out of the government to the front pages of the nation's newspapers. The Department of Justice met all of the legal requirements in undertaking these wiretaps. Certainly, the President committed no illegal act in instituting these wiretaps and, indeed, he would have failed in his constitutional responsibilities if he did not attempt to prevent further disclosure of national security information.

- 89 -

B. The Special Investigations Unit Was Created
By The President In Response To A Threat To The National Security And Was Never Authorized To Commit Illegal Acts

10/

The record before this Committee establishes beyond any doubt that President Nixon ordered the formation of the Special Investigations Unit, because of a threat to the national security and that, with one notable exception, the Unit performed a legitimate and critical service to the Nation. Moreover, the record also conclusively establishes that the President never explicitly or implicitly authorized anyone associated with this Unit to commit illegal acts and that he never ordered the entry at Dr. Lewis Fielding's office.

The Special Investigations Unit was created by President Nixon to combat the serious danger of unauthorized disclosures of classified information affecting the national security that had reached a critical point on June 13, 1971, with the New York Times publication of the Pentagon Papers. The President naturally was greatly concerned about the implications of this disclosure and he noted that:

There was every reason to believe this was a security leak of unprecedented proportions.

It created a situation in which the ability of the Government to carry on foreign relations even in the best of circumstances could have been severely compromised. Other governments no longer knew whether they could deal with the United States in confidence. Against the background of the delicate negotiations the United States was then involved in on a number 10/ The case of United States v. Ehrlichman, Cr. 74-116 (D.D.C. 1974), is of course relevant and when appropriate we shall also refer to that case.

- 90 -

of fronts -- with regard to Vietnam, US - Soviet relations, and others -- in which the utmost degree of confidentiality was vital, it posed a threat so grave as to require extraordinary actions. (President Nixon's statement, May 22, 1973, 9 Presidential Documents 695, Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VII, Vol. 2, Tab 31. 1).

This threat was acutely compounded by the involvement of Daniel Ellsberg, a former staff member of the National Security Council, and the prospect that Ellsberg might divulge additional information, and the realization that the Soviet Embassy had received a copy of the Pentagon Papers on June 17, 1971 and might be the recipient of additional classified information. As David Young stated in describing this period of uncertainty:

. . . it was in the wake of the Pentagon Papers disclosure, considerable concern as to how serious a problem the leak was becoming, whether or not it was the Pentagon Papers themselves were a part of it, more extensive and wider effort to put out classified material. (David Young testimony, United States v. Ehrlichman, Cr. 74-116 (D.D.C. 1974) at p. 958).

The President therefore appropriately considered the disclosure of the Pentagon Papers and the implications of that disclosure as a matter of paramount importance and he accordingly reacted in a number of ways.

- 91 -

The President's immediate reaction to this threat was to turn to the court in an attempt to prevent further disclosures of this material that had been taken from the most sensitive files of the Department of State and Defense and the CIA, and to have the FBI investigate this breach of national security. (Special Staff Presentation, Vol. VII, Bk. 2, Tab 31.2-31.5; see also Colson HJC 4453). The President also ordered a security clearance review by each department and agency of the government having authority and responsibility for the classification of information affecting the national defense and security. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. IV, Tab 3a). Colson was also assigned the responsibility of working with Congress in an effort to have a Congressional hearing on the problem of security leaks. (Colson HJC 4449). Moreover, the President devoted a great deal of his time discussing with Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Kissinger, and Colson the deleterious effect the publication of the Pentagon Papers had upon the national security and the effective conduct of our foreign policy. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VII, Vol. 2, Tabs 33.1 - 33.2). As Colson observed this danger and the President's concern was very real:

I was in several meetings with the President in the period following the publication in the Press of the 'Pentagon Papers' in the New York Times, the Washington Post and other papers. . . . During that period . . . the President repeatedly emphasized the tremendous gravity of the leaks and his concern that Ellsberg and/or Ellsberg's associates might continue the pattern. I can remember the President saying on a number of occasions that if the leaks were to continue, there could be no 'credible U.S. foreign policy' and that the damage to the Government and to the national security at a very sensitive time would be severe. He referred to many of the sensitive matters that were then either being negotiated or considered by the Administration, e.g., SALT, Soviet detente, the Paris peace negotiations and his plans for ending the war in Vietnam. (He had earlier made me aware of his desire to visit the Peoples Republic of China.) (Charles Colson Affidavit, United States v. Ehrlichman, April 29, 1974, pp. 1-2, Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VII, Vol. 2, Tab 33.2; see also Colson testimony HJC 4064 and the memorandum from Colson to Ray Price, July 3, 1971, Presidential Presentation, Vol. VI, Tab 6a).

- 92 -

The President was also concerned that Ellsberg's action would be distorted and would endanger the success of the Vietnamese peace negotiations. Colson stated:

Colson. I don't think those were the President's words so much as they were mine. I think he was concerned that he would become a martyr. He was concerned that he would be a rallying point. He had gotten a lot of national publicity at that point for his role in the Pentagon Papers release -- tremendous national publicity. I think Dr. Kissinger, the President, myself, John Ehrlichman -- we were all very concerned that --

St. Clair. Why did this concern you? I'm sorry I cut you off. I'm sorry.

- 93 -

Colson. Well, mid-1971, you have to remember that we had a tremendous outburst of domestic turmoil following the Cambodian operation in 1970. In the spring of 1971, the war was winding down, the casualties were down, the Laotian operation kind of brought public attitudes back a little bit, excited the public again a little bit more. But in the summer of 1971, when all of this was going on, there had been kind of a quieting of attitudes and a calming of feelings over the war as it was gradually deescalating and Dr. Ellsberg's actions threatened to turn it into a red hot issue again at a very time when Dr. Kissinger was engaged in the most sensitive negotiations in Paris trying to end the war. It just was a very -- it was a time when we were trying very hard to keep public support for our policies, because that was crucial to, in our view at that time, to the North Vietnamese accepting the peace proposals that we were advancing through Dr. Kissinger in Paris. (Colson HJC 4398-4399).

The President was also concerned that others might follow Ellsberg's example of making unauthorized disclosures of classified information. (Colson HJC 4401).

While the President wanted to negate these possibilities, the President, however, never asked Colson to disseminate any information that was not true. (Colson HJC 4000-4001).

In light of this danger to the national security which served to highlight the continuing problems of security leaks the President's decision, however, to take additional action to prevent further leaks was clearly necessary and his failure to act would have been a dereliction of duty. The creation of the Special Investigations Unit was therefore the result of the President's assessment of the significance of the problem confronting the nation and the determination the most efficacious means to eradicate this problem was to begin an extraordinary national security operation and there is not one iota of evidence in the record to indicate this was anything but a proper and legitimate decision by the President. The President observed:

- 94 -

Therefore during the week following the Pentagon Papers publication, I approved the creation of a Special Investigations Unit within the White House--which later came to be known as the 'plumbers.' This was a small group at the White House whose principal purpose was to stop security leaks and to investigate other sensitive security matters. (President Nixon's statement, May 22, 1973, 9 Presidential Documents 695, Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VII, Vol. 2, Tab 31.1).

It is important to emphasize that the Unit was created to function within the government to stop security leaks in an entirely legal manner and that it was not established as a field operative investigative force.

As Krogh stated:

. . . on or about July 15, 1971, affiant was given oral instructions by Mr. John D. Ehrlichman, Assistant to the President of the United States for Domestic Affairs, to begin a special National Security project to co-ordinate a government effort to determine the causes, sources, and ramifications of the unauthorized disclosure of classified documents known as the Pentagon Papers; . . . (Egil Krogh affidavit, United States v. Krogh, May 4, 1973, p. 1; Presidential Presentation, Bk. IV, Tab 7a; see also John Ehrlichman affidavit, United States v. Ehrlichman, April 26, 1974, p. 6; Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VII, Vol 3, Tab 47.2 and David Young testimony, United States v. Ehrlichman, Cr. 74-116(D.D.C. 1974) at p. 1107).

- 95 -

Further, the Unit did, in fact, operate in this manner. For example on July 21, 1971, Young attended a meeting at CIA headquarters to discuss the Pentagon Papers and on July 26, 1971, he attended a meeting at the State Department to discuss this same subject. (Presidential Presentation Bk. IV, Tab 10a and 12a). It must also be remembered that in addition to the Pentagon Papers disclosure and the disclosure on July 23, 1971, by the New York Times of details of our country's negotiating position in the Strategic Arms Limitations (SALT) talks the Unit was also responsible for a number of other projects related to national security. There is nothing in the record that indicates that in these areas the Unit did not operate within the governmental system and in a legal manner. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VII, Vol. 3, Tab 52.1 and Vol. 4, Tab 60.1).

The record also strongly suggests that the Unit would have continued to function in this fashion and never have become a field operative investigative force involved in the entry of Dr. Fielding's office if Ehrlichman, Krogh, and Young were satisfied with the FBI's investigation of the Ellsberg case. Krogh has described this situation in the following manner:

Q. Did you or Mr. Young discuss this matter of an entry in Dr. Fielding's office to examine these files with anyone else after the discussion with Mr. Young, or between Mr. Young and you and Mr. Hunt and Mr. Liddy?

- 96 -

- A. Yes, I recall meeting, I recall a meeting that we had with Mr. Ehrlichman. I don't remember the precise date but August the 5th is the most reasonable date to me because it happened right about that period of time -- we had scheduled a meeting with him on that date and we reported to him, as best I can recall, that the FBI had been unsuccessful in interviewing Dr. Fielding and that if we were to be able to examine these files then we would have to conduct an operation of our own.

I cannot give you the precise words on that but we were trying to convey to him that we felt that the unit would have to become operational -- in other words, prior to that time the unit's principal or even exclusive responsibility was working through other departments and agencies.

That was the reason for meetings that had been established with the Secretary of Defense, the Attorney General, the director of the CIA -- we had work with the security offices who had been assigned by these departments.

I suppose we were more a coordinating body as well as a body trying to encourage them to make more vigorous investigations.

This was the first time that the unit was going to become operational in the sense that our own employees would be directly involved and, to go beyond that, as I say, that initial franchise, we felt we needed authority to do.

(Egil Krogh, United States v. Ehrlichman, Cr. 74-116 (D. D. C. 1974) at p. 1278-79. See also, United States v. Krogh, May 4, 1973, p. 2, Presidential Presentation, Vol. IV, Tab 7a).

- 97 -

Ehrlichman indicated he informed the President of Krogh's concern:

Mr. Krogh complained of the FBI's failure to cooperate fully in the Ellsberg investigation. I discussed the problem with the Attorney General. He advised me of a continuing problem with Mr. Hoover. I recall specifically Mr. Krogh complaining that the FBI had not even designated the Ellsberg case as a primary or priority case.

I advised Krogh of my talk with the Attorney General and he recommended that some of the Unit's people be sent out to quickly complete the California investigation of Ellsberg.

I told the President of these conversations, sometime between July 26 and August 5, as nearly as I can now reconstruct it.

He responded that Krogh should, of course, do whatever he considered necessary to get to the bottom of the matter -- to learn what Ellsberg's motives and potential further harmful action might be.

I told Krogh, in substance, that he should do whatever he considered necessary. (John Ehrlichman affidavit, United States v. Ehrlichman, April 26, 1974, pp. 7-8; Presidential Presentation, Vol. IV, Tab 2c. See also Ehrlichman 6 SSC 2625 and Petersen JHC 3880).

However what is critically important to note with respect to this shift in the Unit's modus operandi that culminated in the entry of Dr. Fielding's office on September 3, 1971, is that there is not one scintilla of evidence in the record that indicates that the President was aware of the entry let alone that the President authorized this entry.

- 98 -

The President has indicated that while he can understand how this action could have occurred he did not and would not have approved such an operation. President Nixon said:

Because of the extreme gravity of the situation, and not then knowing what additional national secrets Mr. Ellsberg might disclose, I did impress upon Mr. Krogh the vital importance to the national security of his assignment. I did not authorize and had no knowledge of any illegal means to be used to achieve this goal.

However, because of the emphasis I put on the crucial importance of protecting the national security, I can understand how highly motivated individuals could have felt justified in engaging in specific activities that I would have disapproved had they been brought to my attention.

Consequently, as President, I must and do assume responsibility for such actions despite the fact that I, at no time approved or had knowledge of them. (President Nixon's statement, May 22, 1973, 9 Presidential Documents 695, Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VII, Vol. 2, Tab 31.1. See also President Nixon's statement, Aug 15, 1973, Presidential Presentation, Bk. IV, Tab 11b).

Only John Dean has ever suggested the President did authorize the entry into Fielding's office and Egil Krogh clearly refuted Dean's implications when he stated:

It was in this context that the Fielding incident, the break-in into the offices of Dr. Ellsberg's psychiatrist, took place. Doubtless, this explains why John Dean has reported that I told him that instructions for the break-in had come directly from the Oval office. In fact, the July 24 meeting was the only direct contact I had with the President on the work of the unit. I have just listened to a tape of that meeting, and Dr. Ellsberg's name did not appear to be mentioned. I had been led to believe by the White House Statement of May 22, 1973, that the President had given me instructions regarding Dr. Ellsberg in the July 24, 1971, meeting. It must be that those instructions were relayed to me by Mr. Ehrlichman. In any event, I received no specific instruction or authority whatsoever regarding the break-in from the President, directly or indirectly. (Egil Krogh statement, January 3, 1974, Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VII, Vol. IV, Tab 79.5).

- 99 -

David Young never even discussed the Pentagon Papers or the Ellsberg break-in with the President:

- Q. Did you have any discussions with the President of the United States about this?
- A. I had no discussions with the President about the Pentagon Papers investigation or this matter here, the Ellsberg-Fielding matter. I had discussions with the President with regard to another leak investigation. (David Young testimony, United States v. Ehrlichman, Cr. 74-116 (D.D.C. 1974) at pp. 1120-21).

Moreover in testimony before this Committee, Colson has indicated not only did he not have any evidence that the President authorized the Fielding entry, but that Ehrlichman told Colson that he had not discussed in advance the Fielding entry with the President. (Colson HJC 4458, 4445). It should be noted that Ehrlichman informed Colson of this fact in preparation for Ehrlichman's recent trial before Judge Gesell and at a time when Ehrlichman's defense on the grounds of national security would have been greatly enhanced by Ehrlichman's stating that the President authorized or was aware in advance of the Fielding entry. In fact, as the President has reiterated on many occasions it was not until March 17, 1973, that the President first learned of the break-in at Dr. Fielding's office. (See Presidential Nixon statement, August 15, 1973, 9 Presidential Document 993, Presidential Presentation, Bk. IV, Tab 11b; President Nixon's letter to Judge Gesell, April 29, 1974; President Nixon's answer to interrogatories, July 1974).

- 100 -

The transcript of the President's conversation with Dean on March 17, 1973, clearly proves that this was the first time he was aware of the Unit's involvement in the Ellsberg break-in.

D. . . . The other potential problem is Ehrlichman's and this is --

P. In connection with Hunt?

- 101 -

- D. In connection with Hunt and Liddy both.
- P. They worked for him?
- D. They--these fellows had to be some idiots as we've learned after the fact. They went out and went into Dr. Ellsberg's doctor's office and they had, they were geared up with all this CIA equipment--cameras and the like. Well they turned the stuff back in to the CIA some point in time and left film in the camera. CIA has not put this together, and they don't know what it all means right now. But it wouldn't take a very sharp investigator very long because you've got pictures in the CIA files that they had to turn over to (unintelligible).
- P. What in the world--what in the name of God was Ehrlichman having something (unintelligible) in the Ellsberg (unintelligible)?
- D. They were trying to--this was a part of an operation that--in connection with the Pentagon Papers. They were--the whole thing--they wanted to get Ellsberg's psychiatric records for some reason. I don't know.
- P. This is the first I ever heard of this. I, I (unintelligible) care about Ellsberg was not our problem.
- D. That's right. (White House Transcripts, March 17, 1973 1:25 - 2:10 p.m., pp. 157-158).

- 102 -

Moreover, after being made aware of this fact, the President authorized Attorney General Kleindienst to report the break-in to Judge Byrne, despite the fact there was no legal obligation to report the break-in. (President Nixon's statement August 15, 1973, 9 Presidential Documents 993, Presidential Presentation, Bk. IV, Tab 11b, Petersen HJC 3927-28).

- 103 -

III. ITTA. The President Did Not Cause A Settlement Of The ITT Antitrust Cases In Consideration Of Any Commitment Which ITT Made Toward The Financing Of The 1972 Republican National Convention By The San Diego Business Community

Two events, separated by over four years, define the beginning and the end of the International Telegraph and Telephone Company (ITT) controversy. In late December, 1968, Richard W. McLaren received from Richard G. Kleindienst and John N. Mitchell a commitment that he would not be interfered with politically, with respect to a vigorous enforcement of antitrust laws, i. e. all cases would be decided on the merits, if he accepted the position of Assistant Attorney General, Anti-trust Division, Department of Justice. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. II, Tab 1). On March 2, 1972, Judge McLaren, after describing that commitment, in response to a question from Senator Eastland told the Senate Select Committee that the commitment had been kept. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. II, Vol. II, Tab 1a, p. 117). The second event, noted in the introductory pages of Volume 1, Book V of the Special Staff's presentation material, was the disclosure of Leon Jaworski, the Special Prosecutor, that:

except as noted below, that part of the investigation relating to allegations of Federal criminal offenses by ITT executives in connection with the settlement of the antitrust cases announced on July 30, 1971, has failed to disclose the commission of any such violations and although the investigation is not being closed at this time, it is fair to say that there is no present expectation of a disclosure of such offenses. (May 30, 1974, letter from Leon Jaworski to the Honorable J. J. Pickle, House of Representatives).

- 104 -

McLaren, as Assistant Attorney General, Antitrust Division, was in charge of all aspects of the government's three antitrust merger suits against ITT, including all aspects of the settlement negotiations and procedures. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. II, Tab 8b). Because of former Attorney General Mitchell's early self-disqualification from involvement in the cases based on what he apparently perceived to be a potential conflict-of-interest situation, Deputy Attorney General Kleindienst had assumed the administrative responsibilities normally attendant upon the Attorney General in these cases. Although earlier settlement talk had occurred between ITT and Justice Department lawyers (Presidential Presentation, Bk. II, Tab 7a), it was on June 17, 1971, that the first concrete settlement offer was made to ITT by McLaren. On that date, McLaren, following an April 29, 1971, ITT economic presentation and an independent financial analysis by Richard Ramsden, recommended to Kleindienst that a settlement proposal be made to ITT which would allow that company to retain the Hartford Fire Insurance Company. Kleindienst approved the settlement proposal, relying upon the expertise of McLaren.

- 105 -

(Presidential Presentation, Bk. II, Tab 6b). Between June 17, 1971 and July 31, 1971, the date of the final settlement, the details of the settlement were worked out by staff attorneys at the Department of Justice and ITT attorneys. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. V, Vol. 2, Tab 27.2). According to ITT, settlement was reached on July 30, 1971, when the Justice Department agreed that ITT need only divest itself of the Fire Protection Division of Grinnell, a factor which ITT regarded as decisive in the settlement negotiations. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. II, Tab 8a). McLaren agreed because he felt the partial divestiture would be a pro-competitive step in the fire protection industry. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. II, Tab 8b; McLaren 2 KCH 113)^{11/} McLaren and Solicitor General Griswold thought the settlement to be very favorable. (Griswold 2 KCH 374, 377; McLaren 2 KCH 114). It should be noted that the latter, when authorizing appeal, thought the case (Grinnell) to be very hard. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. II, Tab 4e). His chief assistant, Daniel M. Friedman, Deputy Solicitor General, in recommending the appeal because of no practical alternative, characterized the case as extremely difficult and the chances of winning as minimal. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. II, Tab 4b).

^{11/}KCH refers to the printed record of the Kleindienst Confirmation Hearings.

- 106 -

At the time of final settlement, neither McLaren nor Kleindienst was aware of any financial commitment by ITT to the San Diego Convention and Tourist Bureau in connection with the hosting of the 1972 Republican National Convention. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. II, Tab 8f, 8g; McLaren 2 KCH 116, Kleindienst 2 KCH 100). Both McLaren and Kleindienst testified that John N. Mitchell did not talk with them about the ITT cases. (McLaren-Kleindienst 2 KCH 124-125). Mitchell confirmed their testimony on this point. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. II, Tab 8e). In fact, Kleindienst did not talk with McLaren from June 17 until July 30 when McLaren called Kleindienst to tell him a settlement had been worked out by ITT and Antitrust Division lawyers and would be announced the following day. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. II, Tab 8c, Kleindienst 2 KCH 142). There is not a scintilla of evidence to rebut McLaren's statement that the "Republican convention site and ITT's contribution had absolutely 100 percent nothing to do with the settlement I made." (Presidential Presentation, Bk. II, Tab 8g).

There is no evidence, moreover, linking any action of the President to any ITT financial commitment. The only Presidential involvement in the ITT cases occurred on April 19 and 21, 1971, when he directed the appeal be dropped, but then reversed his position.

- 107 -

Both actions were based upon broad policy considerations, rather than on the merits of the cases. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. V, Vol. 1, Tabs 14, 18). Although Peter M. Flanigan, then Executive Director of the Council of Economic Policy, became a focal point of attention during the Kleindienst hearings, his role in the settlement picture was limited to locating at McLaren's request, Richard Ramsden, who made, at McLaren's request, a financial analysis which projected certain economic consequences if a forced divestiture of the Hartford Fire Insurance Company by ITT occurred. Both McLaren and Flanigan described Flanigan's role as that of a conduit only. (McLaren 2 KCH 270; Flanigan 3 KCH 1586)

On May 12, 1971, Harold S. Geneen, President of ITT, discussed with Congressman Bob Wilson (R-Calif.) during the time of the annual ITT shareholders' meeting the feasibility of attracting the 1972 Republican National Convention to San Diego. Because the Sheraton Corporation, an ITT subsidiary, was opening a new hotel in San Diego, Geneen was interested in the convention as a business promotional venture. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. V, Vol. 2, Tab 24.1). Included in those discussions was talk of an ITT financial participation if the convention actually materialized in San Diego. The City of San Diego, after retracting its earlier decision not to submit a bid, on June 29, 1971, resolved, in essence, to submit a bid of $1,500,000 to the Republican National Committee, $900,000 of which was to include contribution of cash and services from non-city sources. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. V, Vol. 2, Tab 28.1). (This occurred 12 days after McLaren, with Kleindienst's approval, notified ITT of the Justice Department's settlement proposal). Subsequently, on July 21, 1971, the Sheraton Corporation forwarded a telegram to the San Diego Convention and Tourist Bureau setting forth its financial commitment of, essentially, $200,000. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. V, Vol. 2, Tab 28.9).

- 108 -

Because of the solidarity of evidence supporting the bona fide nature of the final settlement of the ITT antitrust litigation and the absence of any Presidential intervention in the final disposition of the cases and the absence of any evidence of any Presidential intervention as a quid pro quo for value, no assertions of Presidential misconduct should be sustained.

- 109 -

B. Neither The Testimony of Richard G. Kleindienst
Nor John N. Mitchell Before the Senate Judiciary
Committee Constitutes A Basis For Concluding
That the President Was Under Some Legal Duty
To Respond To That Testimony

From the time of the printing of The Washington Post on February 29 1972, until near July 17, 1972, the White House was concerned with the realization that the President and his Administration were the focus of an intense scrutiny as to activities surrounding the settlement of the ITT antitrust cases. Charles Colson, in testimony on June 14, 1973, before the Special Subcommittee on Investigations of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce testified to the White House interest in the matter as follows:

Pickle. Was Mr. Dean working on the case at the same time?

Colson. Several of us were, yes, sir.

Pickle. Several of you, it was a major project at the time, was it?

Colson. It was a major controversy at the time. (p. 204 subcommittee hearings).

Shortly thereafter, he continued:

Colson. We were trying at that point in time to determine whether or not that was in fact an authentic memorandum. If you will recall the circumstances at that time the entire thrust of the case that was being built against Mr. Kleindienst, the entire thrust of the case in controversy in the Senate Judiciary Committee turned on the language of that memorandum. The question of whether or not that was in fact an authentic memorandum. The question of whether the facts presented in that memorandum were facts or were not facts were very central to the question of whether Mr. Kleindienst would be confirmed. Those were very serious accusations ostensibly made in Mrs. Beard's memorandum. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. II, Tab 13a).

- 110 -

The preoccupation of top aides such as Ehrlichman, Colson^{12/} and Dean, along with the White House press aides, with the settlement aspect of the ITT episode is explainable by reference to the language of the first paragraph of Jack Anderson's February 29, 1972, article:

We now have evidence that the settlement of the Nixon's administration's biggest antitrust case was privately arranged between Attorney General John Mitchell and the top lobbyist for the company involved. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. V, Vol. 2, Tab 34.1).

^{12/}See also Colson HJC 4338-4339.

- 111 -

In order to place the actions of the White House staff and the President in the first half of 1972 in proper perspective, it must be recognized that in the days immediately following the disclosure of the Dita Beard memorandum, Peter M. Flanigan, a top White House aide, then Executive Director of the Council on Economic Policy, received much attention from the Senate Judiciary Committee, the news media, and the White House staff because of his tangential participation, as described, in one phase of the activity which eventually culminated in the settlement of the ITT cases. At that time, the news media's curiosity was pitched to a possible Kleindienst-Flanigan testimonial contradiction in reference to Kleindienst's White House contacts as illustrated by the following two excerpts from newspaper articles contained in Book V, Volume 3, Tab 52 of the Committee's staff's presentation materials:

The questioning of Kleindienst today, limited to a maximum of 6 1/2 hours by the committee's 5 p.m. deadline for a report to the floor, is expected to focus on the disclosure by White House aide Peter M. Flanigan in a letter Monday in which he said he had several conversations with Kleindienst last year about a settlement of antitrust cases against the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp.

- 112 -

Flanigan, who gave limited testimony before the committee last week, said in the letter that he passed along ITT's complaints about a proposed settlement to the then deputy attorney general and also informed him when an outside consultant had completed his financial analysis of ITT's arguments.

Kleindienst, testifying last month, said he did not recall discussing the ITT matter at the White House, but suggested there might have been 'casual reference' to it in other conversations there.

(The Washington Post, April 27, 1972).

Again:

Kleindienst testified that he had 'no recollection' of being told by Flanigan last April that ITT was displeased with the Justice Department's original antitrust settlement offer and the next month that the White House aide had received a financial analysis concerning the cases which had been recruited through Flanigan from a New York investment banker.

Flanigan, who answered a limited number of questions put by the committee last week, told of those conversations with Kleindienst in a letter he sent to Eastland on Monday.

In light of Flanigan's letter, Kleindienst conceded, it was 'extremely probable' that he did have the contacts described.

(The Washington Post, April 28, 1972).

The testimony of Charles W. Colson before the House Committee on the Judiciary on July 15 and 16, 1974, is also instructive. He testified that he, not only as a member of the special task force, but as its overseer (Colson HJC 4366-4367), had followed the course of the Kleindienst hearings to assess its political impact, rather than for exact content. (Colson HJC 4339-4340, 4369). Although he generally kept the President informed of the political give and take or "punch and counter-punch" that occurred, Colson did not recall telling the President what Kleindienst and Mitchell were actually testifying to though Flanigan's testimony was covered. (Colson HJC 4340). Colson testified he met with the President and Haldeman, probably, on March 24, 1972, at which time the President inquired of Haldeman what he, the President, might previously have said to Kleindienst about the case or antitrust policy. When Haldeman told him any exchange was limited to policy matters, the President said, "I thank God I didn't discuss the case." (Colson HJC 4341-42). The transcript of a June 4, 1972, meeting with Mitchell, the President and Haldeman although replete with references to the ITT matter, is devoid of any remarks relating to Mitchell's or Kleindienst's testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee. (Presidential Presentation, Bk. II, Tab 12a).

- 113 -

The essential point to be grasped by references to the settlement and newspaper excerpts and the Colson testimony is that any input to the President, whether by White House aides or outside sources, was permeated by the controversies of those times. Along with that, it would be well to remember that no evidence has been produced to warrant a reasonable assumption that more than a handful of advisors knew of the President's call to Kleindienst or of his conference with Mitchell two days thereafter.^{13/} Because of the foregoing, the flow of condensed news to the President would not have, except by happenstance, been geared at Kleindienst's statements in which he stated he could not recollect why the Department of Justice sought an appeal extension in the pending case of U.S. v. ITT (Grinnell) (Kleindienst 2 KCH 204). That event, unrelated to the settlement, was cast as insignificant by those concerned with the heat of the day; purely legal history, having occurred three months before the settlement and then forgotten for all practical purposes.

- 114 -

^{13/} Colson, for example, did not know of the April 19, 1971, telephone call, until near the end of March, 1972. (Colson HJC 4343). Although it would have been thought highly improbable at one time, Ehrlichman and Colson were unaware of the White House tape recording system, although Haldeman knew of its existence.

- 115 -

Mr. Kleindienst, in an October 31, 1973, statement, reprinted in full at Tab 51.2 of Volume 3, Book V of the Special Staff's presentation materials, stated that his testimony before the Senate Judiciary Committee was focused, solely, on the negotiations and settlement of the ITT antitrust litigation and Flanigan issues. Mitchell's testimony certainly could be construed as consistent with his conversation with the President of April 21, 1971, in which he voiced political and general policy considerations to the President without discussing the merits of the cases. The Washington Post of March 10, 1972, while bannering the headline "No Nixon Role in ITT Case, Mitchell Says" (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. V, Vol. 3, Tab 52.2), explicitly made it clear in paragraphs 1 and 6 of that story, that the former Attorney General's remarks related to his denial of any Presidential intervention in the settlement of the case.

Finally, and not without weight, is the fact that Kleindienst, on May 17, 1974, pled guilty, with the concurrence of the Special Prosecutor, not to perjury, but to a misdemeanor--namely--one count of "refusing or failing fully to respond to questions propounded to him by the Senate Committee on the Judiciary on March 2, 3, 7, and 8, and and April 27, 1972."^{14/}

^{14/} Mr. Mitchell has not been formally accused of any perjury associated with testimony during the Kleindienst confirmation hearings. He was acquitted, recently of an unrelated perjury charge in New York City.

- 116 -

IV. DAIRYA. The President Did Not Impose The Import Quotas Sought
By The Dairy Industry Nor Were His Actions Influenced By Campaign Contributions Or Pledges Of Contributions

The dairy industry, like many components of the farm economy is the beneficiary of government price support programs legislated by the Congress. With decisions frequently being made within the executive branch on the administration of critical dairy programs and with dairy legislation constantly under review in the Congress, the dairy farmers have organized into an influential political force in recent years. There are now three major dairy cooperatives in the United States: The Associated Milk Producers, Inc., (AMPI), Mid-America Dairies (Mid-Am) and Dairymen, Inc. (DI).

These dairy organizations not only represent in Washington the interests of their members, they also exert influence through the ballot box and through political contributions. Their activities are not unlike the fund raising and contributing activities of special interest groups such as the Committee on Political Education (COPE) of the AFL-CIO.

The President's first contact with members of the dairy organizations was in 1970 when officials of AMPI invited him to speak at their annual convention. Although the President declined the invitation, in a gesture of courtesy, he invited members of the organization to meet with him in Washington and to arrange a meeting of a larger delegation of dairy leaders at a later date. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tabs 1a, 1b, 1c). Harold Nelson, general manager of AMPI, and his special assistant

- 117 -

David Parr accepted the invitation and paid a courtesy call on the President on September 9, 1970. This meeting was part of a Presidential "Open Hour," lasted less than ten minutes and was devoted to introductions, photographs, and a distribution of Presidential souvenirs.

There is absolutely no evidence which indicates or even suggests that campaign contributions were discussed at any time during this brief exchange. The President did not see a memorandum referring to a campaign pledge by the organization Nelson and Parr represented. Charles Colson did not discuss that or any other contribution or pledge from the dairymen with the President nor was it discussed in the meeting. (Colson HJC 4386, 4387). Neither is there any evidence that the memorandum or any pledge by the dairymen was discussed or mentioned to the President by anyone.

At Secretary of Agriculture Hardin's request, the President on May 13, 1970, directed the Tariff Commission to investigate and report on the necessity for import controls on four new dairy products which had been developed to evade import controls previously established on recognized articles of commerce. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tabs 4a, 5a). After an investigation had been conducted, the Tariff Commission, a body of impartial experts, issued a report in which it unanimously agreed that imports of the four products were interfering with the dairy program. Therefore the Commission recommended zero quotas for three of the items and an annual quota of 100,000 pounds for the fourth. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tab 4b). On October 19, 1970, Secretary Hardin recommended that the Tariff Commission's recommendations be implemented. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tab 5a). Secretary Hardin on November 30, 1970, in a memorandum to Bryce N. Harlow, Assistant to the President, again pushed for a zero quota on one of the items. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tab 5c).

- 118 -

Subsequently, on December 16, 1970, Patrick J. Hillings of the law firm of Reeves and Harrison, Washington, D.C., gave Roger Johnson, Special Assistant to the President, a letter addressed to the President requesting that the Tariff Commission's recommendations be adopted. The letter referred to contributions to Republican candidates in the 1970 Congressional election and to plans to contribute $2,000,000 to the re-election campaign. Mr. Johnson referred the matter to H. R. Haldeman, White House Chief of Staff. John Brown, the Staff Secretary, referred it to "J.C.," who was to check with "E + Colson" regarding whether the letter should be sent to the President. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tab 6a; Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 1, Tab 12.1).

Charles Colson then obtained the letter and kept it in his safe. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tabs 6b, 6c; Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 3, Tab 32.3). This statement is fully supported by the testimony of Charles Colson who testified that the letter bounced around Bob Haldeman's staff system for a few days and then came to him, with a cover message from Larry Higby, an assistant to Mr. Haldeman, saying "What shall we do with the attached?" (Colson HJC 4322). When Colson received the letter it had not gone to the President. (Colson HJC 4322). Colson testified that upon reading it he "hit the roof," called in Hillings, "chewed him out" and told him to withdraw the letter or it would be turned over to the Department of Justice. Hillings agreed to withdraw it. Colson kept the original and gave it to John Dean, Counsel to the President, when documents were being assembled for the Nader v. Butz suit. (Colson HJC 4322-4324). This suit was filed on January 24, 1972.

- 119 -

This testimony of Mr. Colson is fully corroborated by both Hillings and Chotiner. Hillings in fact stated that he had neither expected nor intended that the President see the letter in the first place. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tabs 6b, 6c, Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 3, Tab 32.3).

There are no notations or markings on the letter or any evidence that the President ever saw it. Neither is there any evidence that its contents were ever discussed with the President.

- 120 -

After reviewing the recommendations of the Tariff Commission, the Secretary of Agriculture and the Task Force on Agriculture Trade of the Counsel of Economic Advisors, the President, on December 31, 1970, by Proclamation Number 4026 ultimately established quotas totalling in excess of 25,000,000 pounds for three of the products and in excess of 400,000 gallons for the fourth. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tab 7a, Colson HJC 4379, 4380). Despite a report that any modification of the Tariff Commission's recommendation would be viewed by the dairy people as a "slap in the face," (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tab 7b) the President rejected the zero quota system recommended by the Commission and sought by the dairy organizations. Instead the President took an action which in his view would halt the evasion of existing import quotas without imposing a zero quota restraint on foreign dairy products.

- 121 -

B. The Milk Price Support Level For 1971-72, Was Increased
Due To Economic Factors And Congressional Pressure,
Not In Return For A Pledge Of Campaign Contributions

Each year the Secretary of Agriculture announces the price at which the Government will support milk prices for the following year. In 1970, Secretary Hardin had announced that for the marketing year running from April 1, 1970, through March 31, 1971, the Government would support manufacturing milk at $4.66 per 100 pounds, 85 percent of parity. This figure represented an increase of 2 percent of the parity rate over the year before (1969-1970). As the 1971-72 marketing season approached, inflation had caused the parity level to drop. The question within the Government was whether to continue supporting the milk price at $4.66 per 100 pounds or to raise the price in order to maintain parity at the previous year's level.

During late 1970 and early 1971 the dairy industry actively sought Congressional support and action in its effort to obtain an increase in the milk price support level. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tab 8a, Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 2, Tab 19.2). In February and March of 1971 approximately 100 Senators and Congressmen wrote the Secretary of Agriculture to urge that the support price be increased. Most of these Congressmen recommended that the price support be raised to 90 percent of parity. Some requested that the price support be raised to at least 85 percent of parity. (Letters and telegrams to the Secretary of Agriculture transmitted by the White House to the House Judiciary Committee and noted at Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 2, Tab 19).

- 122 -

Some of the letters openly referred to the fact that spokesmen for the dairy cooperatives had written or called upon the Congressmen to ask for support and a number of letters were apparently drafted by these various lobbying groups.

At the same time, many Congressmen took to the floor of the House and Senate to express their concern over the low price support. On March 1, Congressman Robert W. Kastenmeier (D. Wisc.) rose to tell his colleagues: "We need your assistance in persuading the Administration to raise dairy price supports to 90 percent of parity. . ." 117 Cong. Rec. 4310 (1971). His sentiments were echoed by Congressman Les Aspin (D. Wisc.) 117 Cong. Rec. 4311 (1971), and Congressman Vernon Thompson (R. Wisc.) 117 Cong. Rec. 4280 (1971).

Again on March 8, Congressman William Steiger (R. Wisc.) entered into the Congressional Record a letter he had sent to Secretary Hardin calling for 90 percent parity, 117 Cong. Rec. 5400 (1971), and on March 9, Senator Vance Hartke (D. Ind.) called for the 90 percent level and Senator Hubert Humphrey (D. Minn.) called for at least 85 percent support and hopefully "substantially higher." 117 Cong. Rec. 5518, 5537 (1971). Congressman Robert McClory (R. Ill.) likewise called for a price increase. 117 Cong. Rec. 5678 (1971).

- 123 -

On March 10, Congressman Ed Jones (D. Tenn) argued that even 90 percent would not be a "decent return, but it would help." Congressman Jones urged the Department of Agriculture not to "sit idly by and watch our dairy industry decline into oblivion. Unless dairy price supports are set at a level high enough to guarantee 90 percent of parity, that is exactly what we are inviting." 117 Cong. Rec. 5956-57 (1971). Senator Mondale also called for the 90 percent level on that date. 117 Cong. Rec. 5793 (1971).

On March 17, Congressman David Obey (D. Wisc.) called for an increase to 90 percent. 117 Cong. Rec. 6910 (1971), and on March 19, Senator Harold Hughes (D. Iowa) called for the passage of a bill to set parity at least 85 percent. 117 Cong. Rec. 7223 (1971). The sole opposition voiced to an increase in price was by Congressman Paul Findley (R. Ill.). 117 Cong. Rec. 6870 (1971).

While their colleagues were marshalling support in open floor speeches, senior Democratic leaders in the Congress were expressing their concerns privately to representatives of the Administration. On February 10, the Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, Wilbur Mills, (D. Ark.) arranged a meeting in the office of Speaker Carl Albert, (D. Okla.) to discuss the dairy issue. Representatives of the dairy industry had apparently asked for the meeting to plead their case. In attendance were Congressmen Mills and Albert, Congressman John Byrnes, (R. Wisc.); William Galbraith, head of Congressional liaison for the Department of Agriculture; Clark MacGregor, then Counsel to the President for Congressional Relations; and Harold Nelson and David Parr from AMPI. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 2, Tab 19).

- 124 -

Congressional leaders continued to make their views known in several private conversations thereafter. Congressman Mills urged Clark MacGregor on at least six occasions in late February and early March to urge the President to raise the support price, a fact which MacGregor relayed to John Ehrlichman, Assistant to the President for Domestic Affairs, and George Shultz, Director of the Office of Management and Budget. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tab 9a, Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 2, Tab 19.6). Congressman Mills and Speaker Albert also telephoned George Shultz with the same request. Mr. Shultz sent a memorandum to John Ehrlichman at the White House indicating the substance of the Mills request for a rise in the support level. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tab 9b, Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 2, Tabs 19, 19.1, 19.3, 19.4).

- 125 -

On March 12, 1971, Secretary Hardin announced that the support level would not be raised for the 1971-72 marketing year. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 2, Tab 21.2). Intense lobbying began. On March 16, 1971, Richard T. Burress, Deputy Assistant to the President reported to John Ehrlichman that the decision had been hit by partisan attacks, that legislation mandating an increase would have the support of the Speaker and Congressman Mills, and that Congressman Page Belcher, (R. Okla.), was mounting opposition which the White House should support. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tab 10a).

Despite administration efforts, however, the milk producers' Congressional lobbying efforts made progress. In the House, 28 separate bills with 29 Republican and 96 Democratic sponsors were introduced between March 16th and March 25th to set the support price at a minimum of 85 percent and a maximum of 90 percent of parity. In the Senate, Democratic Senator Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin, introduced legislation on March 16, 1971, that would have required support levels at a minimum of 85 percent of parity. Of the bill's 28 sponsors, 1 was a Republican and 28 were Democrats. Three days later, Senator Hubert Humphrey sponsored his own bill seeking a higher parity. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tab 11a).

- 126 -

On March 19, 1971, John Whitaker reported to John Ehrlichman that contrary to a previous vote count, Secretary Hardin was convinced there is a 90 percent chance that an 85 percent of parity support bill will be passed by the Congress and that the President should allow himself to be won over to an increase to 85 percent of parity. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tab 12a, Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 2, Tab 24.3).

As the President was subsequently advised, John Ehrlichman, George Shultz, Don Rice, Henry Cashen and John Whitaker met on March 19th with Secretary Hardin and Under Secretary Phil Campbell regarding the entire problem. Their recommendation to the President concerning the scheduled March 23 meeting with dairy leaders was to listen to their arguments and then wait to see if the Democrats could move the bill. Their recommendation was conveyed to the President in a briefing memorandum from John Whitaker concerning the March 23 meeting with dairy leaders. This memo recapitulated the March 12 price support announcement, the status of pending legislation, and briefly noted that the dairy lobby--like organized labor--had decided to spend political money. This memo discussed in much more detail the pressure which was coming from the Congress for higher supports; that the Congress was acting at Speaker Albert's instigation; and that a bill for higher supports would probably be passed, thus presenting the President with a very difficult veto situation. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 2, Tab 27.1).

- 127 -

On March 23, 1971, the morning of the dairy meeting, the President called Secretary of the Treasury Connally. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tab 13b, Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 2, Tab 28.2). This is confirmed by Secretary Connally's log (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tab 13a; Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 2, Tab. 28.3), and thus a memorandum for the record to the effect that Connally called the President (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 2, Tab 28.4) is incorrect. The primary subject of their brief conversation was an unrelated legislative matter. During the latter part of their conversation, the discussion touched on the fact that the President would be meeting later that morning with a group of dairymen and the potential effect of a support level increase on consumer prices. (Tape recording of the President's statement during telephone conversation between the President and Secretary John Connally, March 23, 1971). While the Secretary's side of the conversation was not recorded, it was later reported in a memorandum for the record that Secretary Connally had suggested that the President announce in the meeting that the level would be raised to 85 percent of parity.

- 128 -

(Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 2, Tab 28.4).

Any suggestion that Secretary Connally contacted the President by telephone on March 20 or March 23, 1971, to convey offers of campaign contributions from the milk producers is clearly erroneous, for the logs of both the President and the Secretary show that it was the President who contacted Secretary Connally to discuss various issues and not the reverse. Moreover, the taped conversation confirms the fact that the President did not discuss campaign contributions with the Secretary.

Similarly it has been erroneously suggested by some that Secretary Connally subsequent to March 23, 1971, sought campaign contributions from the dairy producers as a condition precedent to the higher price support. Such an assertion is entirely incorrect and is wholly refuted by the fact that the Secretary advised the President prior to the March 23 meeting to announce the increased price support at that time. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 2, Tab 28.4).

On the morning of March 23, 1971, the President met with 18 dairy representatives in the Cabinet Room of the White House. The meeting was also attended by numerous government officials, including OMB Director, George Shultz; Associate Director of OMB, Donald Rice; Assistant to the President, John Ehrlichman; and Deputy Assistants to the President, Henry Cashen and John Whitaker. Representing the Department of Agriculture were Secretary Hardin; Under Secretary Phil Campbell; Assistant Secretaries Clarence Palmby and Richard Lyng; and Deputy Secretary William Galbraith. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 2, Tab 29.2).

- 129 -

Contrary to various allegations, the meeting had been planned and scheduled some months in advance. The President originally invited the dairy leaders over 6 months earlier, during a courtesy telephone call on September 4, 1970, and a courtesy meeting on September 9, 1971. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tab 14a, 14b). Specific arrangements began in mid-January 1971. The Department of Agriculture obtained a list of the officers and representatives of the major dairy industry groups which was forwarded to the White House by Secretary Hardin on January 26, 1971, with his recommendation that a meeting be scheduled. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tab 14a). On February 25, 1971, Secretary Hardin was informed that the President had approved the meeting and that it had been set for 10:30 a.m. March 23, 1971. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tab 14c). Thus this meeting was planned and a specific time, date and guest list established at least one month prior to the meeting date, and wholly independent of either of the 1971 price support announcements.

- 130 -

The President opened the meeting by thanking the dairy leaders for their non-partisan support of Administration policies. In this meeting the general problems of the dairy industry were discussed, and in particular the immediate need for higher price supports. No conclusions were reached about the support price, and campaign contributions were not mentioned. (Tape recording of meeting among the President and dairy representatives, March 23, 1971).

With increased pressure from Capitol Hill and following the discussion with the dairymen, the President, met during the afternoon of March 23rd, with seven senior administration officials to explore the situation; Secretary John Connally; Secretary Clifford Hardin, Under Secretary of Agriculture, Phil Campbell; George Shultz, Director of the Office of Management and Budget; John Ehrlichman, Assistant to the President for Domestic Affairs; John Whitaker, Deputy Assistant to the President for Domestic Affairs; and Donald Rice, Associate Director of the Office of Management and Budget.

The meeting opened with Secretary Connally, at the President's request, outlining the situation. He pointed out first that politically the President was going to have to be strong in rural America and that the farmers had many problems and that this was one of the few which the President could do anything about; second, that the major dairy groups represented some 100,000 dairymen who were being tapped, labor union style, to amass an enormous amount of money which they were going to use in various Congressional and Senatorial races all over the country to the President's political detriment. Secretary Connally also advised the President twice that he believed a support level increase to be economically sound.

- 131 -

The discussion then centered on the pending legislation which would require a support level increase. The President stated that he believed such a bill would pass. Secretary Hardin expressed the view that a bill forcing an increase was almost certain to pass and told the President that 150 names were on the bill and that Speaker Carl Albert supported it. Secretary Connally stated that Wilbur Mills also supported it and that it would pass the House beyond any question. Secretary Connally said the move would gain liberal support as it would embarrass the President.

A veto was then discussed and ruled out with Secretary Hardin emphasizing that the President would have no alternative but to sign the bill. In addition Secretary Connally stated that on Capitol Hill, the dairymen were arguing that a veto would cost the Republicans the states of Missouri, Wisconsin, South Dakota, Ohio, Kentucky and Iowa in the 1972 election.

- 132 -

The President then concluded that Congress would pass a bill for higher support levels and that he could not veto it. However, to limit the extent of the price increase and deter any future request by the dairy industry, the President accepted a proposal by Secretary Connally that a promise be sought from the dairymen that they would not seek any further increase in 1972.

Following this decision, it was suggested that the Administration take credit for the increase and at the same time obtain in return the support of Speaker Albert and Congressman Wilbur Mills on other pending legislation. The problem of keeping the decision quiet until Congressmen Albert and Mills could be approached but still obtain the promise from the dairymen not to request an increase in 1972, was then discussed and settled.

At the end of the meeting John Ehrlichman mentioned contacting Charles Colson and Bob Dole and the President outlined who was to contact Speaker Albert and Congressman Mills and that he understood Phil Campbell would contact the dairymen about not seeking an increase in 1972. Six facts thus become clear: (1) the announcement of the decision was to be timed in order that a compromise might be worked out with Speaker Albert and Congressman Mills, not an attempt to obtain campaign contributions, (2) the President's understanding of the plan was that Phil Campbell, not Charles Colson, was to contact the dairymen about obtaining a pledge not to seek an increase in 1972, not a pledge of campaign contributions, (3) only a vague and passing reference was made regarding Charles Colson which did not include any statement of why Colson would be contacted or what, if anything, his role would be, (4) the President's chief advisers including agricultural expert, Secretary of Agriculture Hardin, recommended and fully concurred in the decision, (5) based on unanimous advice, the President firmly concluded that the mandatory bill would pass and that for political reasons he could not veto it, and (6) contributions to the President's campaign were not mentioned at all. Thus it is clear, that the President did not raise the milk price support level in 1971 as a result of any suggestion or promise of campaign contributions from the dairy industry.

- 133 -

Moreover, subsequent events clearly demonstrate that the support level was not raised due to a promise of campaign donations. Phil Campbell testified in Executive Session before the Senate Select Committee that he did in fact call Harold Nelson after the meeting and asked him whether the dairymen would refrain from asking for further increases if the Administration raised the support level. Mr. Nelson agreed. Campbell did not tell him of the meeting with the President or discuss any other matter with Mr. Nelson. Nor did he suggest that Nelson not boycott a Republican fund raising dinner. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tab 21a, Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 3, Tab 32.5).

- 134 -

Similarly following the meeting of March 23, 1971, the President had no contact with John Ehrlichman at any time prior to a meeting between Ehrlichman and Charles Colson later that day. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 3, Tab 32.2, Colson HJC 4333, 4334). Nor did the President meet or speak with Charles Colson during that time. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 3, Tab 30.3, 32.3). The President's telephone conversation with Charles Colson on that date was prior to the afternoon meeting. In any event, Colson testified that the President never discussed with him a two million dollar commitment from the dairymen or any campaign contributions relative to the 1972 campaign. (Colson HJC 4382, 4387).

Charles Colson testified that he didn't know whether or not Ehrlichman told him in their meeting on the afternoon of March 23rd that the support level decision was going to be reversed. In any event, Colson did testify that he did not mention that fact to Chotiner in a subsequent meeting that day. Colson further testified that he undoubtedly told Chotiner, as he had previously, that the dairymen should live up to their commitments regardless of Administration policies. (Colson HJC 4332-34, 4383). Colson's conversation with Chotiner dealt with dinner tickets, not with campaign contributions or pledges. (Colson HJC 4381, 4382). In addition, Colson testified that at no time in his discussions with representatives of AMPI, which also includes Chotiner, did he ever indicate that there was a quid pro quo. (Colson HJC 4384, 4385). In fact, Colson stated that the actions of AMPI's representatives had a negative rather than favorable effect. (Colson HJC 4377). Colson's actions were consistent with an earlier instruction from Haldeman telling Colson to be sure the dairymen didn't expect anything in return. (Colson HJC 4317).

- 135 -

In this regard, it is interesting to note that the memoranda regarding the Senate staff interviews with Murray Chotiner curiously do not mention whether Mr. Chotiner was asked the seemingly obvious question of whether Colson, Ehrlichman or anyone had told him that campaign pledges and/or contributions were to be obtained from the dairymen as a quid pro quo for a support increase. Rather Chotiner is reported to have said that at an earlier point Colson told David Parr that there could not be a quid pro quo. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 3, Tabs 32.3 and 34.3). Colson's testimony corroborates this. (Colson HJC 4316).

Herbert Kalmbach testified that at a meeting on the night of March 24, 1971, Harold Nelson of AMPI reaffirmed a campaign pledge. (Kalmbach HJC 4763). Kalmbach testified that he was unaware of a pending announcement regarding price supports and thus gave Chotiner and Nelson no information regarding price supports and made no promises or predictions of any kind respecting price supports in the meeting. Nothing was said as to whether anything was to happen if the decision was not changed. (Kalmbach HJC 4907-4910). This is consistent with Mr. Kalmbach's testimony before the Senate Select Committee that he had no understanding with Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Nelson, Chotiner, or anyone that the reaffirmation was being made in any way as a condition of the announcement of the price increase.

- 136 -

(SSC, Draft of Final Report, Part 2, pp. 470, 471).

On this same point, Mr. Chotiner has stated in sworn testimony that he did not know of the decision to increase support levels until it was publicly announced, that he did not discuss campaign contributions in seeking a support level increase on behalf of the dairymen and that he did not talk to the dairymen in the context of contributions in return for favorable action. (Presidential Presentation, Vol III, Tab 22a, Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol 3, Tab 34.3). The Senate Select Committee and other testimony of Harold Nelson, the third participant in the March 24 meeting, also contradicts any misinterpretation of Kalmbach's testimony suggesting that the reaffirmation was to have or did have any effect on the decision to increase the support level. (Presidential Presentation, Vol. III, Tab 23c; Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 3, Tab 34.2). This misconception is also contradicted by the sworn testimony of David Parr and Marion Harrison (Presidential Presentation, Vol.III, Tabs 23d, 23e). Indeed, while Mr. Kalmbach testified that he reported the reaffirmation to Mr. Ehrlichman at noon the next day, there is no evidence that this fact was communicated to the Department of Agriculture before its announcement of the increase.

It is noteworthy that the Senate Select Committee has offered an explanation for the dairymen's fund raising activities between March 23rd and 25th, 1971. Based on the testimony of Harold Nelson of AMPI, the Senate Select Committee posits that Nelson had learned of the pending announcement of a support level increase and that Nelson hoped to induce commitments from other dairy leaders by telling them that the increase was only possible rather than definite. (SSC, Draft of Final Report, Part 2, p. 456). In any event, neither the President nor any member of his Administration or his reelection effort sought or accepted a campaign contribution or pledge in return for any Presidential action favorable or unfavorable.

- 137 -

Finally, there are a few considerations that should be mentioned to complete the record. First, Secretary of Agriculture, Clifford M. Hardin, changed his decision regarding the milk price support level as a result of economic factors and traditional political considerations. In a sworn deposition Secretary Hardin pointed out that some of the purposes of the support program are, among others, to assure adequate supplies of milk and dairy products; encourage development of efficient production units and stabilize the economy of dairy farmers at a level which will provide a fair return for their labor and investment when compared with the things that farmers buy. He also stated that increased costs and other economic factors raised by dairymen, the political pressure which precluded a veto of a bill which would set parity at a minimum of 85 percent and possibly as high as 90 percent, the potential threat of production controls which would decrease the milk supply, and the need for an increased supply of cheese were additional factors that caused him to reevaluate and then change his earlier decision, and that the change was based entirely on a reconsideration of the evidence on the basis of the statutory criteria. (Presidential Presentation, Vol III, Tab 24a, Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 3, Tab 35.3).

- 138 -

In this regard, the Commodity Credit Corporation Docket MCP 98a, Amendment 1, which implements the Secretary's decision, states that the change was based on a reevaluation of the dairy situation, giving full recognition to increasing labor, waste disposal, and other costs on dairy farms and to increasing demand for cheese. On April 15, 1971, the General Counsel of the Department of Agriculture approved for legal sufficiency the dockets authorization and advised the Board of Directors of the Commodity Credit Corporation that the determination of the support level necessary to meet the statutory criteria was solely within the discretion of the Secretary. On May 12, 1971, the amendment raising the support level to 85 percent of parity was approved by the Board of Directors. (Presidential Presentation, Vol.III, Tab 24b).

Second, when Mr. Kalmbach was asked by the dairymen in 1972 to intercede on their behalf regarding anti-trust suits by the Justice Department, he, as Associate Finance Chairman, refused, abrogated their outstanding commitment and advised them that their funds were not wanted. (Kalmbach HJC 4777, 4911). Mr. Kalmbach advised Mr. Ehrlichman of this fact and Mr. Ehrlichman indicated he felt it was a good judgment. (Kalmbach HJC 4911). Those anti-trust suits are still proceeding in the courts.

Third, any suggestion that contributions by the dairy industry in early 1971 represented "early money" for the 1972 Presidential campaign is totally without merit. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 2, Tab 16). The fact is that the President's campaign received no contributions from the dairymen throughout the first half of 1971, the entire period contemporaneous with the milk price support decisions. It is true that contributions during that period were made to committees associated with the Republican National Committee but not to the President's campaign. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VI, Vol. 2, Tab 26, Vol. 3, Tab 33; SSC Draft of Final Report, Part 2, pp. 244, 245, 423, 457, 458). This fact is reaffirmed by the conclusion of the Senate Select Committee that there is no evidence of any transfer of funds from any RNC Committee to the President's re-election organizations in 1971. Specifically with regard to contributions by one of the dairy trusts, ADEPT, the Senate Committee concluded that there is no evidence that any portion of the money benefitted the President's re-election campaign. (SSC Draft of Final Report, Part 2, pp. 422, 527).

- 139 -

In the mass of information presented to this Committee there is not a scintilla of evidence to demonstrate that any action was taken by the President because of any campaign contributions or pledges of contributions made by the dairymen to the President's re-election campaign. Nor is there any testimony by anyone that Administration or re-election officials sought or accepted contributions or pledges in return for any official act. To the contrary, when a dairymen's representative implied such an overture, one Administration official went so far as to consider referral of the suggestion to the Department of Justice. The President's only action having favorable consequences for the dairymen was set forth in the tape of the afternoon meeting of March 23, 1971. That tape proves (1) that contributions or pledges to the President's re-election campaign were not discussed nor were they a condition of any Presidential action, (2) that the President did not direct or approve the contacting of Charles Colson or any other person for the purpose of seeking or obtaining any contributions or pledges and (3) that the President was advised and specifically concluded, as he has stated, that Congress would pass a mandatory increase and that for political reasons he could not veto it. To consider the President's decision in raising price supports improper because campaign contributions were subsequently made by various entities affected by the decision would require the President and all other elected officials who may ever run for re-election to either forego contributions or abstain from making decisions that are the Constitutional and statutory responsibilities of their office.

- 140 -

- 141 -

V. IRSA. There Has Been No Evidence Presented
That The President Misused The Internal Revenue Service

All of the materials dealing with the alleged misuse of the Internal Revenue Service by this Administration emphasize the one fundamental point that the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) was not, in fact, misused. The various materials, testimony, and reports of the House Committee on the Judiciary, Senate Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities, and the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation demonstrate and affirm this fact. The evidence consists of memos that claim that someone at the White House asked someone at the IRS to do something that might harass some individual or organization. Nevertheless, the overriding fact remains that these suggestions were not carried out.

On December 20, 1973, the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation's staff issued a report, Investigation Into Certain Charges Of The Use Of The Internal Revenue Service For Political Purposes, 93rd Congress, 1st Sess. (December 20, 1973) (hereinafter cited JCR followed by a page number). That committee investigation was based on charges made by Mr. John Dean during the public hearings of the Senate Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities in late June of 1973. According to the Joint Committee's report:

- 142 -

He [Mr. Dean] made several allegations that individuals in the White House attempted to use the Internal Revenue Service for partisan political purposes. Dean alleged that he was asked to stimulate audits on several "political opponents" of the White House and to "do something" about audits that were being performed on friends of President Nixon who felt that they were being harassed by the IRS. In addition, Dean revealed the existence of a special group within the Internal Revenue Service to collect information about extremist individuals and organizations. Since Dean's testimony, there have been several newspaper articles making similar accusations about the IRS. (JCR 1) (emphasis added).

There are two key points to be emphasized in Mr. Dean's basic allegations. First, it is claimed that several individuals in the White House attempted to misuse the IRS for partisan political purposes. It is clear that such an alleged misuse could only succeed if it were supported by the power and authority of the President. On looking at all the evidence available, it is clear that the President took no action to accomplish this objective.

One of the President's most basic functions in relation to the IRS is the appointment of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and his superior, the Secretary of the Treasury. During his time in office President Nixon appointed three highly "principled"^{15/} Commissioners of the highest integrity and capability. No one, in all the hearings, allegations, or even newspaper leaks has ever suggested anything to the contrary. The Commissioners were all men of stature and independence. Under these presidential appointments the record of the IRS for fair non-partisan enforcement of the tax laws was exemplary. The records of the Administration's four Secretaries of the Treasury in relation to their responsibilities is equally commendable. Thus, the record reveals a President who has appointed independent Commissioners of Internal Revenue and who has in no way prevented them from resisting any improper political pressure. Concerning the allegation of IRS misuse, the ultimate fact is that the President's appointees did, in fact, resist any improper suggestions for the use or misuse of the agency.

- 143 -

The staff report of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, in going beyond the evidence of "memos" and allegations, tells an important story. When Dean turned over his "enemies" list to Commissioner Johnnie Walters of the IRS on September 11, 1972

^{15/} A characterization in an article critical of the White House relationship with the IRS. Bob Kuttner, "The Taxing Trials of I.R.S.," The New York Times Magazine, January 6, 1974 at p. 64.

- 144 -

(JCR 3), four days before Dean's meeting with the President on September 15, 1972, Dean asserted "it [the request] doesn't come from the President." (Dean HJC 3697). Most importantly, Dean's request did not result in any political harassment of the individuals on the list. As the report put it:

The staff's investigation paid particular attention to the cases of those individuals mentioned in the press as victims of politically motivated audits. The Joint Committee staff has difficulty in discussing these cases specifically because of the problem this would present in violating the individuals' rights of confidentiality. However, in none of these cases has the staff found any evidence that the taxpayer was unfairly treated by the Internal Revenue Service because of political views or activities. If the staff were freed from restraint as to disclosure of information, it believes the information it has would indicate that these taxpayers were treated in the same manner as taxpayers generally. (JRC 12) (emphasis added).

This conclusion is further supported by the House Judiciary Committee's materials. Commissioner Walters stated in his Affidavit of May 6, 1974, with respect to the list furnished him by Dean:

At no time did I furnish any name or names from the list to anyone, nor did I request any IRS employee or official to take any action with respect to the list.

I removed the list from the safe when I left IRS and thereafter personally kept it in the sealed envelope and locked in my present office. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VIII, Tab. 22.1, pp. 240-241).

- 145 -

The absurdity of the charges of Presidential misuse of the IRS against "enemies" is further highlighted by an illustration revealed in the Joint Committee's report when in discussing the audit of Robert W. Greene, a reporter for Newsday, it stated:

In this case, Dean stated that John Caulfield had initiated an audit with an informant's letter. According to statements made by Greene, however, his return was not audited by the Internal Revenue Service but rather by New York State under the Federal/State exchange program. The staff has talked with Mr. Greene, the New York revenue agent who audited Greene's State return, and other people in the New York State Department of Taxation and, as a result, believes that his audit by New York State was unrelated to his being classified as a White House enemy. (JRC 12).

The second key point to be emphasized in Dean's original charges concerns the alleged desire of the White House to "do something about audits that were being performed on friends of President Nixon who felt that they were being harassed by the IRS." (JCR 1) On the face of the statement, there is nothing improper for either the President or any other citizen to be concerned about any other citizen's charge of harassment by a government agency. The President, in fact, has a mandate to prevent such harassment. However, even if we were to assume that this concern, supposedly expressed to Mr. Dean, through

- 146 -

Mr. Haldeman, Mr. Higby, or the President, in some manner,^{16/} somehow acquires a sinister implication, the actions do not support that implication. The Joint Committee staff report found:

Statements have also been made that on occasion names on the sensitive case list have been seen by those on the White House staff and that requests have been made not to harass or otherwise bear down too hard on cases involving "friends." It is clear from information available that in 2 or 3 of the cases such requests were made by White House personnel. In one case, to demonstrate that there was no harassment, a special study was made by the Internal Revenue Service to show that the returns of others in the same industry were given at least as much attention as was the return of the taxpayer in question. In another case, it is clear that there was a communication from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to a District Director and to the agent working on the return regarding a "friend's" return. On the other hand, in the case of one "friend" an indictment has been obtained, and in another case the audit is continuing. In another situation, the Government did not prosecute a case involving a prominent "friend." Questions may be raised as to whether this was the appropriate action.

^{16/} There appears to be a major discrepancy in Dean's testimony concerning the time sequence on this matter. The Caulfield memo to Dean on Billy Graham was dated September 30, 1971. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VIII, Tab 11.1, p. 147). Yet Dean claims the presidential request occurred during the September 15, 1972, presidential meeting, one year later. (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VIII, Tab 11.3, pp. 153-154).

- 147 -

In reviewing the returns, the staff finds it difficult to "second-guess" the agents who were actually performing the audits. The Staff believes that in three cases there are substantial questions about decisions made by governmental agencies about friends of the White House, but the staff does not have evidence that there was any pressure involved. With the approval of the committee, the staff has requested the IRS to reexamine these cases and to present analyses showing why it believes further action should, or should not, be taken.

While the staff is not as yet satisfied as to some of the cases involving "friends," the staff also believes that a number of "enemies" either were not audited when the staff believes they should have been or were audited too leniently. (JCR 13) (emphasis added).

Thus, there are absolutely no facts to substantiate any charge that the President in any way misused or directed the misuse of the IRS to either harm his "enemies" or to benefit his "friends."

What becomes quite obvious when reviewing the House Judiciary Committee's exhibits is the fact that John Dean was the key actor and, instigator of any apparent efforts to improperly utilize the IRS that did occur in the Nixon Administration. In terms of actually achieving any improper influence, Dean's efforts (mainly carried out through the assistance of Mr. John Caulfield) seem to have achieved nothing.

The thrust of the alleged abuses involved minimal efforts of a very preliminary nature: a suggestion memo (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VIII, Tabs 5, 18, and 19), a preliminary investigation

- 148 -

(Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VIII, Tabs 6, 10, and 15), or a proposed action (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VIII, Tabs 3, 7, 8, 9, 13 and 16). The only improperly motivated efforts that did occur involved memos from one party to another party urging that something happen. However, a review of all the facts reveals that nothing ever did happen.

In his testimony before the House Judiciary Committee Dean noted that "He [the President] made some rather specific comments to me, which in turn resulted in me going back to [Commissioner] Walters again." (Dean JHC 3523). This testimony implies that the President was attempting to have McGovern campaign supporters on the "enemies" list audited by the IRS, and was attempting to direct Dean to do this. Yet in response to a question by Congressman Railsback: "[a]nd the extent of the President's knowledge about the requested audits?" (Dean HJC 3694) Dean stated:

Mr. Dean. Well, I can't tell you what prompted the discussion of the audit. I can only recall that that launches the President into a -- into an extended discussion about the situation and about the Internal Revenue Service and not using it effectively and from there we immediately went to the fact that we were not using the entire apparatus of the government effectively and the changes that would be made after the election. (Dean HJC 3694).

- 149 -

Thus, Dean could not say what actually prompted the President's discussion of the IRS matter and Dean also never testified as to content of the President's comments. Dean admits, however, that in the September 11, 1972 meeting with Commissioner Walters he asserted "it [the request] doesn't come from the President," (Dean HJC 3696) and in fact he has also admitted that at the time of the September 11, 1972 meeting he had no personal knowledge of the President's involvement in this matter. (Dean HJC 3696-3697). Yet after all this he implies that the President made some specific comments to him on September 15, 1972, resulting in Mr. Dean renewing his request to Commissioner Walters.

The fact of the matter is that when Dean returned to Commissioner Walters on September 25, he, according to Commissioner Walters, "inquired as to what progress I had made with respect to the list. I told him that no progress had been made." (Special Staff Presentation, Bk. VIII, Tab 26.1, p. 354). Thus, Dean pursued this topic where he had left it on September 11, 1972, before any alleged comments by the President on September 15, 1972. There is no evidence that this request was somehow a newly motivated one resulting from the meeting with the President. Quite the contrary, it was obviously a continuation of Dean's admitted efforts, prior to the Presidential conversation of September 15, 1972. When Congressman Railsback inquired as to what happened then and what did the President do as a result of the Dean "failure," Mr. Dean's response was:

- 150 -

Mr. Dean. Well, I have got to be very candid. I was happy it had been turned off. I didn't like it, and I didn't do anything more. I got continual -- one of Mr. Ehrlichman's staff assistants, Mr. Hullin, continued to call me and ask me about it. And I think, I gather from a conversation I had with Mr. Walters that he had also called Mr. Walters and Mr. Walters was a little annoyed about it, but they kept resisting and resisting, so I don't know if the President got back in it or not or I don't know of any audits that were accomplished. (Dean HJC 3696) (emphasis added).

Thus, Dean's claims of presidential direction in Dean's efforts to misuse the IRS are contradicted by the sequence of events that point to no presidential involvement, or interest in this matter. In any event, whatever it was the President said, the crucial fact is that nothing ever happened.

In conclusion, what the record clearly shows is that while some personnel at the White House may indeed have had improper intentions about what the IRS should do, and may in fact, have communicated such intentions to their colleagues at the White House or to some individuals at the IRS, no abuse of the IRS ever occurred resulting from presidential action. No action by the IRS resulted. No involvement of the President has ever been shown to be likely, let alone probable.

- 151 -

VI. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons and in light of the complete absence of any conclusive evidence demonstrating Presidential wrongdoing sufficient to justify the grave action of impeachment, the Committee must conclude that a recommendation of impeachment is not justified.

Respectfully submitted,

Office of Special Counsel
To the President

NOTE: Copies of the brief were made available by the White House Press Office at San Clemente, Calif., and Washington, D.C.

Digest of Other White House Announcements

Following is a listing of items of general interest which were announced to the press during the period covered by this issue but which are not carried elsewhere in the issue. Appointments requiring Senate approval are not included since they appear in the list of nominations submitted to the Senate, below.

July 21

The President went by helicopter to Bel Air, Calif., to attend a dinner in his honor at the home of Roy L. Ash, Director of the Office of Management and Budget. He then returned to San Clemente.

July 23

The President met at the Western White House with a group of economists and business, financial, and labor leaders.

July 24

The President sent a personal message to Greek Prime Minister Konstantinos Karamanlis congratulating him on the assumption of his new responsibilities and expressing the full support of the United States Government in the effort to reestablish peace on Cyprus and within the Alliance. The President also stated that he is looking forward to close and friendly relations with the new leader of Greek democracy.

July 25

The President announced the designation of Secretary of the Interior Rogers C. B. Morton to be his Personal Representative, with the rank of Special Ambassador, at ceremonies marking the 1100th anniversary of the settlement of Iceland to be held in Thingvellir and Reykjavik from July 27 to 30.

The President announced the designation of a delegation to represent him at inaugural ceremonies for Alfonso López Michelsen as President of Colombia in Bogota on August 6 and 7. The members of the delegation are: Viron P. Vaky, U.S. Ambassador to Colombia, as his Personal Representative, with the rank of Special Ambassador; Vernon D. McAninch, U.S. Consul General in Bogota; and Donald A. Johnston, U.S. Counselor of Embassy for Political Affairs-designate.

The President today accepted, with deep gratitude for her contributions to the Nation's foreign policy, the resignation of Eileen R. Donovan as Ambassador to Barbados and as U.S. Special Representative to the States of Antigua, Dominica, Grenada, St. Christopher-Nevis-Anguilla, St. Lucia, and St. Vincent.

The President today accepted, with special gratitude for his contributions to the Nation's foreign policy, the resignation of Fred L. Hadsel as Ambassador to Ghana.

The President today accepted, with deep gratitude for his contributions to the conduct of the Nation's foreign policy, the resignation of Richard W. Murphy as Ambassador to Mauritania.

July 26

The President met at the Western White House with Hans-Dietrich Genscher, Foreign Minister of the Federal Republic of Germany.

The President met at the Western White House with Herbert G. Klein, former Director of Communications for the Executive Branch.

Director Roy L. Ash of the Office of Management and Budget met with the President at the Western White House to discuss proposals for the fiscal 1976 budget.

ACTS APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT

Approved July 23, 1974

H.R. 11385..... Public Law 93-353
Health Services Research, Health Statistics, and Medical Libraries Act of 1974.

S. 2830..... Public Law 93-354
National Diabetes Mellitus Research and Education Act.

S. 2893..... Public Law 93-352
An act to amend the Public Health Service
Act to improve the national cancer program and to authorize appropriations for such program for the next three fiscal years.

Approved July 25, 1974

H.R. 7824..... Public Law 93-355
Legal Services Corporation Act of 1974.

H.R. 11143..... Public Law 93-358
An act to provide for fiscal year 1975 and succeeding fiscal years for the Committee for Purchase of Products and Services of the Blind and Other Severely Handicapped, and for other purposes.

S. 724..... Private Law 93-84
An act for the relief of Marcos Rojas Rodriguez.

S. 1803..... Public Law 93-359
An act to authorize the waiver of claims of the United States arising out of erroneous payments of pay and allowances to certain officers and employees of the legislative branch.

ACTS APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT—Continued

Approved July 25, 1974—Continued

S. 3311..... Public Law 93-356
An act to provide for the use of simplified procedures in the procurement of property and services by the Government where the amount involved does not exceed $10,000.

S. 3679..... Public Law 93-357
Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974.

CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES

The following releases of the Office of the White House Press Secretary, distributed during the period covered by this issue, are not included in the issue.

Released July 20, 1974

News conference: on the House Judiciary
Committee proceedings—by Dean Burch,
Counsellor to the President

Released July 23, 1974

News conference: on the President's meeting with economists and business, financial and labor leaders—by Kenneth Rush,
Counsellor to the President for Economic Policy, and Alan Greenspan, Chairmandesignate, Council of Economic Advisers

News conference: on Representative Lawrence J. Hogan's decision concerning impeachment—by Dean Burch, Counsellor to the President

CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES—Continued

Released July 25, 1974

Advance text: address to the Nation on the fight against inflation

Released July 26, 1974

News conference: following their meeting with the President—by Hans-Dietrich
Genscher, Foreign Minister, Federal Republic of Germany, and Dr. Henry A.
Kissinger, Secretary of State

News conference: following his meeting with the President—by Roy L. Ash, Director,
Office of Management and Budget

NOMINATIONS SUBMITTED TO THE SENATE

The following list does not include promotions of members of the Uniformed Services, nominations to the Service Academies, or nominations of Foreign Service officers.

Submitted July 22, 1974

JAMES E. Dow, of Virginia, to be Deputy Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration, vice Kenneth M. Smith, resigned.

Submitted July 24, 1974

ALAN GREENSPAN, of New York, to be a member of the Council of Economic Advisers, vice Herbert Stein.

Editor's Note

Note Concerning the Closing Time of This Issue

The President was in San Clemente, Calif., at the cutoff time of this issue. Releases issued there but not received in time for inclusion in the issue will be printed next week.

CUMULATIVE INDEX TO PRIOR ISSUES

Third Quarter, 1974

[See Index of Contents for Documents in this Issue]

ABM. See Anti-ballistic missile systems
Acts approved. See last page of text in each issue

Addresses and Remarks of the President

Belgium
Arrival in Brussels.....	728
Departure from Washington.....	718, 727
Luncheon in Brussels.....	732
Congressional Budget and Impound- ment Control Act of 1974, signing ceremony.....	799
French gift for the American Revolu- tion Bicentennial, exchange of re- marks with French Ambassador Jacques Kocziusko-Morizet.....	796
National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency.....	813
People's Republic of China, martial arts and acrobatic troupe visit to the White House.....	801
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Address to the Soviet people.....	744
Departure from Washington.....	718, 727
Minak.....	742
Moscow.....	735, 748
Report to the Nation, Loring Air Force Base, Maine.....	766
United States Space Week, 1974.....	815
Agriculture, Department of, Secretary..	796, 803
Albrecht, Richard R.....	804
Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration.....	806, 818
American Revolution Bicentennial, French gift.....	796, 797, 804
Annenberg, Walter H.....	817
Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocols to treaty on the limitation of.....	750, 756

Appointments and Nominations

Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, Adminis- trator.....	806, 818
Council on International Economic Policy, Executive Director.....	788, 804
Federal Aviation Administration, Deputy Administrator.....	817
Federal Energy Administration Assistant Administrator.....	789, 804
General Counsel.....	789, 804
Foreign Claims Settlement Commis- sion Chairman.....	793
Member.....	804
National Commission for the Observ- ance of World Population Year, 1974, members.....	798
Office of Economic Opportunity, Di- rector.....	807
Securities and Exchange Commis- sion, member.....	806, 818
Treasury Department Deputy Secretary.....	804
General Counsel.....	804
U.S. attorney, Texas.....	804
U.S. circuit judge, 2d circuit.....	804
U.S. district judge, Georgia.....	804
U.S. marshals California.....	804
Louisiana.....	803, 818
White House Staff Deputy Assistant.....	796
Special Assistant.....	816
Arends, Repr. Leslie C.....	802
Argentina, President Juan Domingo Peron, death.....	771
Armed Forces, United States, Europe..	729, 731

Arms control and disarmament.....	750, 751, 753, 755, 756, 763, 764, 769
Armstrong, Anne L.....	802, 815
Army, Department of the, Assistant Secretary.....	802
Arnett, Alvin J.....	817
Ash, Roy L.....	802, 804, 817
Atlantic Relations, Declaration on.....	728, 729, 731
Baker, Repr. LaMar.....	802
Baudouin I, King.....	728, 732, 790
Belgium King Baudouin I.....	728, 732, 790
President's visit Arrival in Brussels.....	728
Declaration of Atlantic Relations.....	729, 731
Departure from Washington.....	718, 727
Luncheon in Brussels.....	732
Prime Minister Leo Tindermans.....	790
Bell, J. Raymond.....	793, 804
Berg, Eugene E.....	802
Bicentennial, American Revolution.....	796, 797, 804

Bill Signings

Congressional Budget and Impound- ment Control Act of 1974, remarks and statement.....	799, 800
Birknes, John A.....	804
Brandy imports.....	807
Brennan, Peter J.....	802
Brezhnev, L. I.....	735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
Budget, federal spending.....	799, 800
Budget, Office of Management and. See Management and Budget, Office of Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, Congressional.....	799, 800, 804
Burch, Dean.....	791, 802
Burns, Arthur F.....	802
Business and industry, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	741, 759, 791
Butz, Earl L.....	803
Cabinet, meeting with the President..	802
California, U.S. marshal.....	804
Captive Nations Week, 1974.....	801
Carlos, Prince Juan.....	814
Cary, Frank.....	794
Checklist of unpublished releases. See last page of text in each issue
China, People's Republic of, Wushu Troupe, visit to the White House.....	801
Civil defense medical and food stock- piles.....	798
Claims Settlement Commission, For- eign.....	793, 804
Coffee Agreement, International.....	796
Commerce, Department of, Secretary..	788
Commercial Commission, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.....	741
Congress House of Representatives, Judiciary Committee.....	791, 818
Meetings with the President Bipartisan leadership.....	802
Republican leaders.....	802
Sequoia meetings.....	802
Senate, Foreign Relations Commit- tee.....	807

Congress, Communications to

Government executive development, message.....	808
Hazardous Materials Transportation Control Act of 1970, annual report transmittal.....	802
International Coffee Agreement, an- nual report transmittal.....	796

Congress, Communications to—Continued
National security investigations and wiretaps, letter to Chairman of Senate Foreign Relations Commit- tee.....	807
Congressional Budget and Impound- ment Control Act of 1974....	799, 800, 804
Connor, Robert E.....	798, 805
Construction, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	739, 761, 791
Construction, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Com- mittee on Cooperation in Housing and Other.....	739, 761
Cooperation in Europe, Conference on Security and.....	757
Cortina, Pedro Mauri.....	814
Council. See other part of title
Courts, United States U.S. attorney, Texas.....	804
U.S. circuit judge, 2d circuit.....	804
U.S. district judge, Georgia.....	804
U.S. marshals California.....	804
Louisiana.....	803, 818
Massachusetts.....	804
Cultural exchanges, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	762
Curtis, Sen. Carl T.....	802
Cyprus.....	817
Dean, Dizzy.....	813
DeBaca, Fernando E. C.....	816
Defense, Department of, Secretary....	799
Dent, Frederick B.....	788
Digest of other White House announce- ments. See last pages of text in each issue
Disaster assistance States receiving Minnesota.....	805
Ohio.....	798
Disaster relief functions.....	799
District of Columbia, National Guard, Commanding General.....	802
Domestic Council.....	802
Dow, James E.....	817
Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Admin- istration, Alcohol.....	806, 818
DuPont, Dr. Robert L., Jr.....	806, 818
Eberle, William D.....	788, 804
Economic Advisers, Council of, Chair- man.....	802, 815, 817, 818
Economic cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	741, 759, 791
Economic Opportunity, Office of, Di- rector.....	807, 817
Economic Policy, Council on Interna- tional, Executive Director.....	788, 804
Economy, national Federal spending.....	799, 800
Inflation.....	800, 802
Emergency Board No. 185, railway labor dispute.....	789
Energy Conservation.....	788
U.S.S.R., cooperation with.....	737, 761, 791
Energy, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in the Field of....	737, 761
Energy Administration, Federal.....	788, 789
Environment U.S.S.R., cooperation with.....	753, 762
U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint statement.....	753
Environmental warfare.....	753, 765
Europe U.S. forces.....	729, 731
U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint communiqué.....	757
European Economic Community, brandy imports.....	807

Exchange Commission, Securities and 806, 818

Executive Orders

Civil defense medical and food stockpiles (EO 11794) 798
 Disaster relief functions (EO 11795) 799
 Secretary of Agriculture (EO 11793) 796

Fabiola, Queen 790

Federal Aviation Administration, Deputy Administrator 817

Federal employees. See Government employees

Federal Energy Administration
 Administrator 788
 Assistant Administrator 789, 804
 General Counsel 789, 804

Federal Reserve System, Board of Governors 802

Federal spending. See Budget; Economy, national

Food, civil defense stockpiles 798

Ford, Vice President Gerald R. 766, 802, 817, 818

Foreign Claims Settlement Commission 793, 804

France
 Bicentennial gift 796, 797, 804
 President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing 797
 Fulbright, Sen. J. William 807

Gallegos, Bert A. 807

Gardner, Stephen S. 804

Geneva Peace Conference on the Middle East 758

Georgia, U.S. district judge 804

Germany, Federal Republic of, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt 790

Gesell, Gerhard A. 802

Giscard d'Estaing, Valéry 796, 797

Goodearle, Roy 803

Government departments and agencies, energy conservation 788

Government employees, executive development 808, 818

Griffin, Sen. Robert P. 802

Gurfeln, Murray I. 804

Hadden, A. Roby 804

Hartman, Arthur A. 791

Hazardous materials transportation 802

Health, cooperation with U.S.S.R. 740, 761, 791

Health, Education, and Welfare, Department of Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, Administrator 806, 818
 Secretary 802, 804

Health Cooperation, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee for 740, 761

Heart research, cooperation with U.S.S.R. 740, 761, 791

Hodgson, James D. 802

Housing, cooperation with U.S.S.R. 739, 761, 791

Housing and Other Construction, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in 739, 761

Housing and Urban Development, Department of, Secretary 799

Imports, brandy 807

Impoundment Control Act of 1974, Congressional Budget and 799, 800, 790

Independence Day, 1974 790

Industry. See Business and Industry.

Interior, Department of the
 Associate Director of Oil and Gas Division 802
 Secretary 802
 Under Secretary 802

International Coffee Agreement 796

International Economic Policy, Council on 788, 804

Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor 790

Japan, U.S. Ambassador to 802

Joint Statements

Union of Soviet Socialist Republics... 753

Jones, Sidney L. 795

Judiciary Committee, House 791, 818

Keene, Joseph W. 803, 818

Key Biscayne, Fla. 790, 802

King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr. 771

Kissinger, Dr. Henry A. 763, 791, 807, 814, 817

Korff, Baruch 813, 817, 818

Kosciusko-Morizet, Jacques 796

Kosygin, A. N. 740, 790

Labor, Department of, Secretary 802

Labor, railway dispute 789

Letters, Messages, Telegrams

See also Congress, Communications to

Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman Herbert Stein, exchange of letters on resignation 815

French gift for the American Revolution Bicentennial, exchange of letters with French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing 797

Loomis, Philip A., Jr. 806, 818

Loring Air Force Base, Maine 766, 790

Louisiana, U.S. marshal 803, 818

Luns, Joseph 728

Management and Budget, Office of, Director 802, 804, 817

Massachusetts, U.S. marshal 804

Mead, Dana 802

Medical stockpiles for civil defense 798

Meetings with Foreign Leaders

Belgium
 King Baudouin I. 728, 732, 790
 Prime Minister Leo Tindermans 790

Germany, Federal Republic of, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt 790

Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor 790

Union of Soviet Socialist Republics
 Chairman N. V. Podgorny 790
 General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev 735, 748, 790
 Premier A. N. Kosygin 790

United Kingdom, Prime Minister Harold Wilson 790

Mental Health Administration, Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and 806, 818

Middle East
 North Atlantic Council meeting, remarks 731
 U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint communique 758

Minnesota, disaster assistance 805

Missile systems, protocol to treaty on the limitation of anti-ballistic 750, 756

Montgomery, Robert E., Jr. 789, 804

Morton, Rogers C.B. 802

Mount Vernon, French sound and light spectacle for American Revolution Bicentennial 796, 797, 804

National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services 802

National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency 813, 818

National Commission for the Observance of World Population Year, 1974 798

News Conferences Other Than Presidential

President's visit to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Secretary of State Kissinger 763

Nominations submitted to the Senate. See last page of text in each issue

North Atlantic Treaty Organization
 Brussels meeting with North Atlantic Council 728, 731, 732, 769
 Declaration on Atlantic Relations 729, 731

Secretary General Joseph Luns 728

Nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of underground 751

Office. See other part of title

Ohio, disaster assistance 798

O'Neill, John Ellis 802

People's Republic of China. See China, People's Republic of

Peron, Juan Domingo 771

Podgorny, N. V. 739, 741, 790

Population control 793

Population Year, 1974, National Commission on the Observance of World 798

Post, Marjorie Meriweather 802

Presidency, National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the 813, 818

President's travel
 Domestic, Palm Beach, Fla. 802
 Foreign
 Belgium 718, 727-735
 Union of Soviet Socialist Republics 718, 735-771

Proclamations

Captive Nations Week, 1974 (Proc. 4302) 801

Imports of brandy (Proc. 4304) 807

United Nations Day, 1974 (Proc. 4300) 794

United States Space Week, 1974 (Proc. 4303) 805

White Cane Safety Day, 1974 (Proc. 4301) 794

World Population Year, 1974 (Proc. 4299) 793

Railway labor-management dispute 789

Reports to the President

Emergency Board No. 185, railway labor dispute 789

Research, medical 740, 761, 791

Resignations and Retirements

Army Department, Assistant Secretary 802

Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman 815

District of Columbia, National Guard, Commanding General 802

National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services, member 802

Office of Economic Opportunity, Director 817

Rhodes, Repr. John J. 802

Rush, Kenneth 802, 804, 817

St. Clair, James D. 787, 802, 804

SALT. See Strategic arms limitations

San Clemente, Calif. 803

Sant, Roger West 789, 804

Sawhill, John C. 788

Schmidt, Helmut 790

Science and technology, cooperation with U.S.S.R. 737, 740, 741, 761, 791

Scott, Sen. Hugh 802

Securities and Exchange Commission 806, 818

Security and Cooperation in Europe, Conference on 757

Sequoia meetings, with certain Members of Congress 802

Simon, William E. 802

Sisco, Joseph J. 817

Southward, Maj. Gen. Charles L. 802

Spaatz, Gen. Carl A. 807

Space program, cooperation with U.S.S.R. 762

Space Week, 1974, United States 805, 815

Spain
 Foreign Minister Pedro Mauri Corina 814
 Joint declaration of principles with U.S. 814
 Prince Juan Carlos 814

State, Department of
 Assistant Secretary 791
 Secretary 763, 791, 802, 807, 814, 817
 Under Secretary 817

Statements by the President

Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, signing ceremony	800
Deaths
Dean, Dizzy	813
King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr.	771
Peron, Juan Domingo	771
Spaatz, Gen. Carl A.	807
Warren, Earl	795
Energy conservation	788
Independence Day, 1974	790
Joint declaration of principles between the United States and Spain	814

Statements Other Than Presidential

Brussels meeting with the North Atlantic Council, Press Secretary Ziegler	731
Stein, Herbert	802, 815, 817, 818
Strategic arms limitations	750, 753, 755, 756, 763, 764, 769
Supplementary Centers and Services, National Advisory Council on	802
Supreme Court of the United States	772, 802
Surganov, F. A.	742
Technology. See Science and technology
Texas, U.S. attorney	804
Tindermans, Leo	790
Trade, coffee	796
Transportation, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	762
Transportation, Department of, Federal Aviation Administration	817
Treasury, Department of the
Deputy Secretary	804
General Counsel	804
Secretary	802

Treaties and other international agreements

Agreements with U.S.S.R.
Economic, industrial, and technical cooperation	741
Energy	737
Heart research	740
Housing and construction	739
Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol to treaty on the limitation of	750
Declaration on Atlantic Relations	729
Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of	751
Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of	751
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics
Agreements with U.S.
Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol on the limitation of	750, 756
Construction	739, 761, 791
Economic, industrial, and technical	741, 759, 791
Energy	737, 761, 791
Heart research	740, 761, 791
Housing	739, 761, 791
Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of	751
Chairman N. V. Podgorny	739, 741, 790
General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev	735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
Joint statements	753
North Atlantic Council meeting, remarks	731
Premier A. N. Kosygin	740, 790
President's visit
Address to the Soviet people	744
Departure from Washington	718, 727
Dinners in Moscow	735, 748
Luncheon in Minsk	742
News conference by Secretary of State Kissinger	763

United Kingdom
Prime Minister Harold Wilson	790
U.S. Ambassador to	817
United Nations Day, 1974	794
United States Courts. See Courts, United States
United States Space Week, 1974	805, 815
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Commercial Commission	741
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in the Field of Energy	737, 761
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in Housing and Other Construction	739, 761
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee for Health Cooperation	740, 761
Van Court, Arthur F.	804
Warren, Earl	795
Watergate investigation
Court documents	772
House Judiciary Committee	791, 818
National security investigations	807
Supreme Court review	772, 802
Weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of underground nuclear	751
Weinberger, Caspar W.	802, 804
Whitaker, John C.	802
White Cane Safety Day, 1974	794
White House Staff
Counsellor for Economic Policy	802, 804, 817
Counsellors	791, 802
Deputy Assistant	795
Special Assistant	816
Wiretaps	807
World Population Year, 1974	793, 798
Wushu Troupe	801
Zamyatin, L. M.	791
Ziegler, Ronald L.	731, 791, 818

Weekly Compilation of
PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Monday, August 5, 1974

Volume 10 • Number 31

Pages 997-1005

The University
of Michigan
Reference

AUG 19 1974

Index of Contents

ACTS APPROVED.....	1005	CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES.....	1005
ADDRESSES AND REMARKS (See Awards and Citations)		CONGRESS, COMMUNICATIONS TO
ANNOUNCEMENTS		Cost of Living Task Force, message proposing establishment	1002
White House Fellows, opening of 11th annual program	1002	International maritime traffic convention, message to the Senate transmitting amendment.....	998
APPOINTMENTS AND NOMINATIONS		National Heart and Lung Advisory Council, message transmitting report.....	998
Administrative Conference of the United States, Chairman (Robert Armstrong Anthony)	1003	Urban transportation policies and activities, message transmitting report.....	1001
Justice Department		World weather program, message transmitting report	1001
Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, Administrator (Richard W. Velde)	999	DIGEST OF OTHER WHITE HOUSE ANNOUNCEMENTS..	1003
Office of Legal Counsel, Assistant Attorney General (Antonin M. Scalia)	998	EXECUTIVE ORDERS
Nominations submitted to the Senate.....	1005	Regulation of exports (EO 11796)	999
State Department, Assistant Secretary for East Asian and Pacific Affairs (Philip C. Habib)	1002	Report on Federal facilities in rural areas (EO 11797)	1000
U.S. Ambassador to the Syrian Arab Republic (Richard W. Murphy)	999	PROCLAMATIONS
U.S. Court of Military Appeals, Associate Judge (William Holmes Cook)	1003	National Forest Products Week, 1974 (Proc. 4305)	1000
AWARDS AND CITATIONS		WHITE HOUSE STATEMENTS
Presidential Medal of Freedom (Dr. Charles LeRoy Lowman)	997	Agreement on Cyprus.....	999

[A Cumulative Index to Prior Issues appears at the end of this issue.]

WEEKLY COMPILATION OF Presidential Documents

Published every Monday by the Office of the Federal Register, National Archives and Records Service, General Services Administration, Washington, D.C. 20408, the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents contains statements, messages and other Presidential materials released by the White House during the preceding week.

The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents is published pursuant to the authority contained in the Federal Register Act (49 Stat. 500, as amended; 44 U.S.C. Ch. 15), under regulations prescribed by the Administrative Committee of the Federal Register, approved by the President (37 F.R. 23607; 1 CFR Part 10).

Distribution is made only by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents will be furnished by mail to subscribers for $15.00 per year, payable to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The charge for a single copy is 50 cents.

There are no restrictions on the republication of material appearing in the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents.

Administration of Richard Nixon

PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Week Ending Saturday, August 3, 1974

Presidential Medal of Freedom for Dr. Charles LeRoy Lowman

The President's Remarks Upon Presenting the Medal to Dr. Lowman in a Ceremony at the Western White House, With Dr. Lowman's Response. July 27, 1974

THE PRESIDENT. Ladies and gentlemen, we are gathered here today for the purpose of presenting the Medal of Freedom to Dr. Charles Lowman. I shall read a citation in just a moment, but it is very difficult on such an occasion like this not to mention the distinguished career of this very distinguished Californian and distinguished American without going into a little more length than the citation itself.

First, he is 94 years of age and in magnificent health, as you can see. Second, in his 94 years, he has been eminently successful as a doctor, but he has devoted most of his time in that 94 years helping other people, free of charge. He is particularly known for his work in orthopedics and, in that field, especially known for his work with young people.

There are thousands and thousands of children, for example, today in California and in other parts of this Nation who are walking who otherwise would be crippled except for Dr. Lowman. There are thousands and thousands of adults who are standing straighter, feeling better, who do not suffer from the various ailments involved in this kind of medicine because of Dr. Lowman's hard work and also his real genius.

He is, as we know, a distinguished man in his field. He will be remembered by his colleagues for what he has written, for what he has said, for what he has done, for his great technical skill. But he will be remembered by those he has helped and, I think, by his fellow Americans by the millions, because he has a great heart. He is a very fine human being, generous with his time, concerned about those less fortunate than he is, and it is this kind of man who deserves the Medal of Freedom, the highest recognition that our Government can give to an individual who is not in the Armed Forces of the United States.

I will now read the citation, and we will present the Medal of Freedom.

[At this point, the President read the citation, the text of which follows:

THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
AWARDS THIS PRESIDENTIAL MEDAL OF FREEDOM
TO
CHARLES LEROY LOWMAN, M.D.

A pioneer in medicine, a physician of surpassing skill, and a great humanitarian, Dr. Charles LeRoy Lowman has devoted his life to the service of his fellow man. His good works have enriched the lives of thousands of patients, but none more so than the generations of handicapped children who have been treated at the hospital that he founded in Los Angeles early in this century. The world will long be indebted to this distinguished and noble American.]

DR. LOWMAN. Mr. President, I can't thank you enough. This is probably the crowning achievement of my life, and we shall always remember it. I can't help but feel that in honoring me, you are realizing the background at the Orthopedic Hospital, and all the hundreds who have been my helpers are the ones who are responsible for much of the results of what we have attained today.

We started in with about $500 and 509 patients, and we moved into an old stable at the Orthopedic Hospital, and we stayed in that stable and held a clinic up until 1929. And we registered, to start with, 509 patients, and I checked the other day and there are pretty close to 207,000 in the Orthopedic Hospital, to say nothing of all the private cases that I have had.

Of course, at my age, I am getting many cases that are 40 and 50 years of followups, which you have to live quite a while to get the types of people I have had.

The most important thing that I call the payoff is the fact that these people, who many of them are adults, that I took care of when they were babies and made them walk again, club-footed children, and then when I realize what they are accomplishing—they are not on the welfare rolls and they are holding down good jobs and having families and one thing and another, and that is what I call the payoff.

No amount of money can ever give you the satisfaction that that does.

I want to thank you again very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 11:27 a.m. at the Western White House, San Clemente, Calif.

National Heart and Lung Advisory Council

The President's Message to the Congress Transmitting the Council's First Annual Report.
July 29, 1974

To the Congress of the United States:

I herewith transmit the First Annual Report of the National Heart and Lung Advisory Council, prepared in accordance with the requirement of Public Law 92-423, the "National Heart, Blood Vessel, Lung, and Blood Act of 1972."

It should be noted that funds for the Heart and Lung Institute have been increased greatly in recent years: from $195 million in 1971 to $286 million in 1974, to $309 million proposed for 1975. In short, the Administration's actions on the heart and lung program clearly identify it as an area of very high priority.

While there are recommendations in the Council's report that are at variance with the Administration's views, the Council's Report merits serious consideration and will be closely studied and evaluated. I am forwarding the report so that the Congress may also have it available for its deliberations.

RICHARD NIXON

The White House,
July 29, 1974.

NOTE: The report entitled "National Heart, Blood Vessel, Lung, and Blood Program—First Annual Report of the National Heart and Lung Advisory Council" was published by the the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

International Maritime Traffic Convention

The President's Message to the Senate Transmitting for Advice and Consent to Acceptance an Amended Text to Article VII of the Convention. July 29, 1974

To the Senate of the United States:

I am transmitting herewith, for the advice and consent of the Senate to its acceptance, a copy of an amended text to Article VII of the Convention on Facilitation of International Maritime Traffic, 1965. The amended text was adopted at a brief special conference in London in November 1973 and has been referred to the Contracting Governments for their acceptance. The report of the Department of State concerning the amended text is also transmitted for the information of the Senate.

The purpose of the amended text is to provide a "tacit amendment" procedure for approving changes in the Annex to the Convention. That Annex sets forth the implementing standards and recommended practices for simplifying and making as uniform as possible the documentary and other formalities required of ships on arriving at or clearing ports. These formalities relate to customs, immigration, public health and other requirements imposed on vessels engaged in international voyages.

I recommended that the Senate advise and consent to acceptance of the amended text, which is intended to expedite the making of desirable changes in the agreed formalities.

RICHARD NIXON

The White House,
July 29, 1974.

Department of Justice

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Antonin M. Scalia To Be Assistant Attorney General, Office of Legal Counsel. July 30, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Antonin M. Scalia, of Alexandria, Va., to be Assistant Attorney General, Office of Legal Counsel. He succeeds Robert G. Dixon, Jr. Since 1972, Mr. Scalia has been Chairman of the Administrative Conference of the United States.

Mr. Scalia was born on March 11, 1936, in Trenton, N.J. He attended Georgetown University from 1953 to 1957 when he received his B.A. degree summa cum laude. He attended Harvard University Law School from 1957 to 1960 when he received his LL.B. degree magna cum laude. He was admitted to the Ohio State Bar in 1962 and to the Virginia State Bar in 1970.

From 1961 to 1967, Mr. Scalia practiced law with the firm of Jones, Day, Cockley and Reavis in Cleveland, Ohio. Since 1967, he has been a professor at the University of Virginia Law School in Charlottesville. From 1971 to 1972, he was General Counsel of the Office of Telecommunications Policy in Washington, D.C., before assuming his present position as Chairman of the Administrative Conference of the United States.

Mr. Scalia and his wife Maureen have seven children. They reside in Alexandria, Va.

United States Ambassador to the Syrian Arab Republic

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Richard W. Murphy. July 30, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Richard W. Murphy, of Virginia, to be Ambassador to the Syrian Arab Republic. The United States resumed diplomatic relations with the Syrian Arab Republic on June 16, 1974.

Ambassador Murphy, a career Foreign Service officer, has served since 1971 as Ambassador to Mauritania after serving from 1970 to 1971 as Country Director, Office of Arab Peninsula Affairs. From 1966 to 1968, he was a Political Officer in Amman, and from 1968 to 1970 he was Personnel Placement Officer and Assistant Executive Director for Personnel in the Bureau of Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs.

He was born on July 29, 1929, in Boston, Mass. Ambassador Murphy received his B.A. degree in 1951 from Harvard University and A.B. in 1953 from Cambridge University and, from 1956 to 1958, attended Johns Hopkins University and the Foreign Service Institute for Arabic language and area training. After serving in the U.S. Army from 1953 to 1955, he was appointed Consular and Administrative Officer in Salisbury. From 1960 to 1963, he was an Economic Officer in Aleppo, and from 1963 to 1966 he was a Political Officer in Jidda. He received the Department of State's Superior Honor Award in 1968 and is fluent in Arabic and French.

Ambassador Murphy is married to the former Anne Cook, and they have three children, Katherine, Elizabeth, and Richard.

Agreement on Cyprus

White House Statement Following the Signing of an Agreement Providing for a Cease-Fire and Negotiations. July 30, 1974

The United States welcomes the announcement in Geneva of the agreement reached by the Foreign Ministers of the United Kingdom, Greece, and Turkey. We consider this an important step towards the restoration of peace and stability in Cyprus.

We commend the intensive and patient efforts of the three governments concerned which brought about this achievement. In particular, we wish to pay tribute to the skill and persistence of Mr. Callaghan, the Minister of State of Great Britain, who, as leader of the conference, deserves great credit for its success and to the Foreign Ministers of Greece and Turkey.

NOTE: The statement was made available by the White House Press Office. It was not issued in the form of a White House press release.

Law Enforcement Assistance Administration

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Richard W. Velde To Be Administrator. July 31, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Richard W. Velde, of Arlington, Va., to be Administrator of Law Enforcement Assistance. He will succeed Donald E. Santarelli. Since August 1973, Mr. Velde has served as Deputy Administrator for Policy Development of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

He was born on December 12, 1931, in Moline, Ill. Mr. Velde received his B.S. degree from Bradley University, and M.A. and J.D. degrees from George Washington University. He served as an officer in the U.S. Air Force from 1953 to 1958.

From 1958 to 1960, he was legislative assistant to Congressman Robert Michel of Illinois. In 1961, he entered the private practice of law in Washington, D.C. In 1965, Mr. Velde became minority counsel to the Senate Subcommittee on Juvenile Delinquency before his appointment as an Associate Administrator of Law Enforcement Assistance in 1969.

Mr. Velde is married and has two sons.

Regulation of Exports

Executive Order 11796. Dated July 30, 1974. Released July 31, 1974

CONTINUING THE REGULATION OF EXPORTS

By virtue of the authority vested in the President by the Constitution and statutes of the United States, including section 5(b) of the act of October 6, 1917, as amended (12 U.S.C. 95a), and in view of the continued existence of the national emergencies declared by Proclamation No. 2914 of December 16, 1950, and Proclamation No. 4074 of August 15, 1971, and the importance of continuing (a) to exercise the necessary vigilance over exports from the standpoint of their significance to the national security of the United States; (b) to further significantly the foreign policy of the United States and to aid in fulfilling its international responsibilities; and (c) to protect the domestic economy from the excessive drain of scarce materials and reduce the serious inflationary impact of abnormal foreign demand, it is hereby ordered:

SECTION 1. Notwithstanding the expiration of the Export Administration Act of 1969, as amended, the provisions for administration of that act contained in Executive Order 11533 of June 4, 1970 as continued in effect by Executive Order 11683 of August 29, 1972, shall continue in full force and effect and shall authorize the exercise and administration of export controls, under the authority vested in me as President of the United States by section 5(b) of the act of October 6, 1917, as amended (12 U.S.C. 95a).

SEC. 2. Except to the extent another basis is provided in the second sentence of section 3 of this order, all rules and regulations issued by the Secretary of Commerce, published in title 15, chapter III, subchapter B of the Code of Federal Regulations, parts 368 to 399 inclusive, and all orders, regulations, licenses and other forms of administrative action issued or taken pursuant thereto, shall until amended or revoked by the Secretary of Commerce, remain in full force and effect, the same as if issued or taken pursuant to this order, except that the maximum fine which may be imposed under part 387.1(a)(1) shall not exceed $10,000 and that the civil penalty provided for under part 387.1(b)(3) will not be applicable to any violation of the regulations under this order.

SEC. 3. The delegations of authority in this order shall not affect the authority of any agency or official pursuant to any other delegation of Presidential authority, presently in effect or hereafter made, under section 5(b) of the act of October 6, 1917, as amended. Those regulations issued under the Export Control Act of 1949, as amended, to implement foreign policy set forth in Executive Orders Nos. 11322 of January 5, 1967 and 11419 of July 29, 1968, shall until amended or revoked by the Secretary of Commerce continue to apply as regulations issued under such orders.

RICHARD NIXON

The White House,
July 30, 1974.

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 12:47 p.m.,
July 31, 1974]

Report on Federal Facilities in Rural Areas

Executive Order 11797. July 31, 1974

DELEGATING TO THE SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE THE FUNCTION OF SUBMITTING AN ANNUAL REPORT TO THE CONGRESS CONCERNING THE LOCATION OF NEW FEDERAL FACILITIES IN RURAL AREAS

By virtue of the authority vested in me by section 901(b) of the Agricultural Act of 1970 (84 Stat. 1383) (as amended by section 601 of the Rural Development Act of 1972 (86 Stat. 674; Public Law 92-419)) and by section 301 of title 3 of the United States Code, the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to exercise the authority vested in the President by section 901(b) of the Agricultural Act of 1970, as amended, in all matters relating to reporting criteria and the preparation and submission of annual reports to the Congress concerning the location of new Federal facilities in rural areas, without approval, ratification, or other action by the President. Departments and agencies shall cooperate with the Secretary of Agriculture in the preparation of the annual reports required by section 901(b), as amended.

RICHARD NIXON

The White House,
July 31, 1974.

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 12:48 p.m.,
July 31, 1974]

National Forest Products Week, 1974

Proclamation 4305. July 31, 1974

*By the President of the United States of America
a Proclamation*

During the decades ahead, as our population continues to grow and we continue to maintain our high standard of living, demands for wood products will increase dramatically.

We can meet those demands. In contrast to the specter of shrinking energy and mineral resources, supplies of timber can be increased. It takes millions of years for the earth to create just one drop of oil or an ounce of metal ore. But foresters can plant seedlings today that will grow into harvestable trees in 10 to 40 years.

Timber is one of the few renewable resources, with the added advantages of being disposable, recyclable, inexpensive, durable, and plentiful. Under intensive management, our forests can produce more than twice the volume of timber being grown today.

Improving our knowledge of the growth, harvesting, and use of wood will require the continued cooperation of Federal and State forestry programs, the forest products industry, private forest landowners, and all who care about the conservation and prudent use of our forest resources. I am confident that as a result of this cooperative effort, wood and forest products will remain readily available at reasonable cost to the American public.

In order to give further recognition and emphasis to the importance of forest resources and forest products to the Nation, the Congress has by a joint resolution of September 13, 1960 (74 Stat. 898) designated the seven-day period beginning on the third Sunday of October in each year as National Forest Products Week, and has requested the President to issue an annual proclamation calling for the observance of that week.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, RICHARD NIXON, President of the United States of America, do hereby call upon the people of the United States to observe the week beginning October 20, 1974, as National Forest Products Week, with activities and ceremonies designed to direct public attention toward and demonstrate our gratitude for the forest resources with which we have been so abundantly blessed and for their contributions to our material, emotional, and spiritual well-being.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this thirty-first day of July, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninety-ninth.

RICHARD NIXON

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 12:48 p.m., July 31, 1974]

computer use will also in time produce long-term gains in both immediate and extended range prediction of global weather conditions and in the assessment of the impact of man's activities upon climate and weather.

During June through September this year a major international experiment will be conducted in the tropical Atlantic. This experiment is expected to provide new information on the origin of tropical storms and hurricanes, and the effects of these storms on global circulation.

In accordance with Senate Concurrent Resolution 67 of the 90th Congress, I am pleased to transmit this annual report describing the current and planned activities of Federal agencies participating in the World Weather Program.

RICHARD NIXON

The White House,
August 1, 1974.

NOTE: The report is entitled "World Weather Program, Plan for Fiscal Year 1975" (Government Printing Office, 57 pp.).

World Weather Program

The President's Message to the Congress Transmitting the 1975 Plan for United States Participation in the Program. August 1, 1974

To the Congress of The United States:

A well-known maxim says, "Everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it."

The maxim is no longer valid. We are confident that the knowledge of weather we are gaining through studies and experiments carried out under the World Weather Program will give man the understanding, tools and techniques necessary to cope with his atmosphere.

We are continuing to make substantial progress in furthering the goals of this program. These goals are:

—To extend the time, range and scope of weather predictions;

—To assess the impact of atmospheric pollution on environmental quality;

—To study the feasibility and the consequences of weather modification;

—To encourage international cooperation in meeting the meteorological needs of all nations.

The United States will soon begin continuous viewing of storms over much of the earth's surface through the use of two geostationary satellites. These satellites will also relay information from remote observing stations, thereby strengthening our ability to warn of potential natural disasters.

In cooperation with other nations, we expect soon to make five such satellites operational.

Immediate gains in weather predicting are also being made through increased computer power. This increased

Urban Transportation Policies and Activities

The President's Message to the Congress Transmitting the Annual Report of the Departments of Transportation and of Housing and Urban Development. August 1, 1974

To the Congress of the United States:

The promotion of desirable community development and flexibility in urban transportation policies are principal goals of this Administration.

It is clear that in order to promote the orderly development of urban areas according to local priorities, our efforts should be focused on measures which better integrate and coordinate all modes of transportation in urban areas with other physical and social programs. Moreover, State and local governments should be given greater participation in major decisions in the use of Federal programs affecting community development.

I am pleased to submit to the Congress this report which summarizes the many ways in which the executive branch of the Federal Government is working to effect significant improvements toward that end.

The report was prepared jointly by the Departments of Transportation and of Housing and Urban Development as required by section 4(g) of the Department of Transportation Act of 1966. In particular, it documents the cooperative efforts on legislative proposals, policies and activities that are being taken by this Administration to assure that urban transportation systems most effectively serve both national transportation needs and the development policies of individual urban areas.

I commend this report to the attention of the Congress.

RICHARD NIXON

The White House,
August 1, 1974.

NOTE: The report is entitled "Report to the Congress of the United States on Urban Transportation Policies and Activities" (40 pp.).

White House Fellows

Announcement of Opening of 11th Annual Program. August 1, 1974

The President today announced the start of the 11th nationwide search for outstanding men and women to serve as 1975-76 White House Fellows.

Established in 1964, the White House Fellowships program is designed to give rising leaders one year of first-hand, high-level experience with the workings of the Federal Government and to increase their sense of participation in national affairs. The program is open to U.S. citizens from all fields who are no less than 23 and no more than 35 years of age. Employees of the executive branch of the Federal Government are not eligible, with the exception of career military personnel.

Members of the ninth group of White House Fellows are completing their year-long assignments. A 10th group, the 1974-1975 White House Fellows, will begin their duties next month.

In addition to their job assignments with Cabinet Members and White House Staff members, the Fellows participate in an education program that includes formal discussions with top government officials, scholars and journalists, and leaders from other segments of private life. The 169 young men and women who have, to date, been selected as White House Fellows have included lawyers, scientists, engineers, corporate business executives, and independent entrepreneurs, scholars, and academic administrators, writers, and journalists, medical doctors, social workers, architects, and local public officials.

Leadership, intellectual and professional ability, and a commitment to community and nation are the broad criteria employed in the selection process.

Applications for next year's program will be accepted until December 2, 1974. Application forms and additional information can be obtained from the President's Commission on White House Fellowships, Washington, D.C. 20415.

Cost of Living Task Force

The President's Message to the Congress Transmitting Proposed Legislation To Establish the Task Force. August 2, 1974

To the Congress of the United States:

Earlier this year, before the expiration of the legislation authorizing the Cost of Living Council, I proposed to the Congress that a residual group within the Executive Office of the President be authorized to monitor wages and prices, as an on-going part of our fight against inflation. The Congress did not act on this proposal.

In my economic address on May 25 of this year, I called for the establishment of a Cost of Living Task Force to monitor wages and prices. Again, no Congressional authorization was forthcoming. While I continue to oppose mandatory wage and price controls, it is essential that wages and prices be carefully watched, that labor and management be constantly aware of public concern in this area, and that Government have the information it needs to persuade labor and management to do their duty in the effort to reduce inflation. We have carried out this monitoring function as best we can with our existing resources, under the leadership of my Counsellor for Economic Policy, Kenneth Rush. The need for a properly authorized group continues, however, and it now appears that many Members of the Congress are prepared to reconsider their earlier opposition to my proposal for such a group. A senate spokesman for the majority party of the Congress is now advocating such a proposal.

Therefore, I am today transmitting a legislative proposal to establish a Cost of Living Task Force. I invite all those who have come to see the need for this proposal to join as bipartisan co-sponsors in this vital step in our fight against inflation.

RICHARD NIXON

The White House,
August 2, 1974.

Department of State

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Philip C. Habib To Be Assistant Secretary for East Asian and Pacific Affairs. August 2, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Philip C. Habib, of California, to be Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific Affairs. He succeeds Robert S. Ingersoll who is now Deputy Secretary of State.

Ambassador Habib, a career Foreign Service officer, has served since 1971 as Ambassador to Korea after serving from 1969 to 1971 as Senior Adviser, with the personal rank of Ambassador, to the United States delegation at the Paris meetings on Vietnam. In 1967 he was a Political Officer, Bureau of East Asian and Pacific Affairs, and from 1967 to 1969 he was Deputy Assistant Secretary, Bureau of East Asian and Pacific Affairs.

He was born on February 25, 1920, in Brooklyn, N.Y. Ambassador Habib received his B.S. in 1942 from the University of Idaho. In 1945 he attended the University of Paris and in 1952 received a Ph. D. from the University of California. After serving in the U.S. Army from 1942 to 1946, he became a teaching assistant at the University of California in 1947. While serving as a career Foreign Service officer, he was an Assistant Agricultural Attaché, an Economic Analyst, and in 1960 to 1961, he served as the Officer-in-Charge for Under-Developed Areas in the Office of the Under Secretary's Special Assistant for Communist Economic Affairs.

Ambassador Habib is married to the former Marjorie W. Slightam and they have two children, Phyllis and Susan.

Administrative Conference of the United States

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Robert Armstrong Anthony To Be Chairman of the Conference. August 2, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Robert Armstrong Anthony, of Ithaca, N.Y., to be Chairman of the Administrative Conference of the United States. He succeeds Antonin Scalia who has been nominated to be Assistant Attorney General, Office of Legal Counsel.

He was born on December 28, 1931, in Washington, D.C. Mr. Anthony received his B.A. from Yale University in 1953 and B.A. Juris from Oxford in 1955. In 1957 he was awarded his J.D. from Stanford University and was admitted to the practice of law in California in that same year. He was admitted to the New York Bar in 1971 and the District of Columbia Bar in 1972. He was a Rhodes Scholar from 1953 to 1955 and editor of the Stanford Law Review from 1956 to 1957.

Mr. Anthony currently is professor of law at Cornell University School Law in Ithaca, N.Y. In 1958 he entered the private practice of law in the firm of Pillsbury, Madison, and Sutro in San Francisco. In 1962 he became associated with the firm of Kelso, Cotton and Ernst, also of San Francisco, before becoming an associate professor of law at Cornell University in 1969. In January of 1972, he took a leave of absence from Cornell to serve as Chief Counsel to the Office of Foreign Direct Investments. In February of 1973, he was appointed Director of the Office of Foreign Direct Investments of the Department of Commerce, serving until August 1973.

United States Court of Military Appeals

Announcement of Intention To Nominate William Holmes Cook To Be an Associate Judge. August 2, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate William Holmes Cook, of Carbondale, Ill., to be an Associate Judge of the United States Court of Military Appeals for the remainder of the term expiring May 1, 1976. He succeeds William H. Darden who resigned effective December 29, 1973.

Mr. Cook is currently serving as counsel for the Committee on Armed Services of the House of Representatives. From 1948 to 1950, he was engaged in the private practice of law with Judge John T. Kincaid. In 1954 he took a leave of absence to serve as a staff member of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency. In 1957 he was named Assistant to the Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission after having served as an attorney with the Commission from 1954. In 1959 he became Assistant Counsel to the Bureau of Naval Weapons. He was then appointed Associate Counsel for Property and Special Matters of the Bureau of Naval Weapons, before assuming his present position as counsel for the House Armed Services Committee in 1963.

He was born on June 2, 1920, in Carbondale, Ill. He received his B.A. from Southern Illinois University in Carbondale and received his J.D. from Washington University in St. Louis, Mo. In 1947 he was admitted to the Illinois Bar and to practice before the Supreme Court in 1956.

Digest of Other White House Announcements

Following is a listing of items of general interest which were announced to the press during the period covered by this issue but which are not carried elsewhere in the issue. Appointments requiring Senate approval are not included since they appear in the list of nominations submitted to the Senate, below.

July 27

Secretary of Housing and Urban Development James T. Lynn met with the President at the Western White House to discuss the housing situation.

July 28

The President returned to Washington from his home in San Clemente, Calif.

July 30

Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon met with the President at the White House to report on his recent trip to the Middle East and Europe.

July 31

The President transmitted to the Congress the annual report of the Commodity Credit Corporation for fiscal year 1973.

August 2

The President today accepted with regret the resignation of Anthony T. Augelli as a United States District Judge for the District of New Jersey, effective August 31, 1974.

The President today acknowledged the retirement from active service of Luther Bohanon as a United States District Judge for the Western, Northern, and Eastern Districts of Oklahoma, effective today.

The President today accepted with deep regret the resignation of John W. Weber as Assistant Administrator for Operations, Regulations, and Compliance, Federal Energy Administration, effective September 15, 1974.

ACTS APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT

Approved July 26, 1974

- H.R. 8543----- Private Law 93-85
An act for the relief of Viorica Anna Ghitescu, Alexander Ghitescu, and Serban George Ghitescu.
- S. 3203----- Public Law 93-360
An act to amend the National Labor Relations Act to extend its coverage and protection to employees of nonprofit hospitals, and for other purposes.

Approved July 30, 1974

- H.R. 7207----- Private Law 93-86
An act for the relief of Emmett A. and Agnes J. Rathbun.
- H.R. 9440----- Public Law 93-363
An act to provide for access to all duly licensed clinical psychologists and optometrists without prior referral in the Federal employee health benefits program.
- H.R. 11295----- Public Law 93-362
An act to amend the Anadromous Fish Conservation Act in order to extend the authorization for appropriations to carry out such Act, and for other purposes.
- H.R. 15461----- Public Law 93-361
An act to secure to the Congress additional time in which to consider the proposed amendments to the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure which the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court transmitted to the Congress on April 22, 1974.

Approved August 2, 1974

- H.R. 377----- Public Law 93-364
An act to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to sell certain rights in the State of Florida.
- H.R. 3544----- Private Law 93-87
An act for the relief of Robert J. Beas.

NOMINATIONS SUBMITTED TO THE SENATE

The following list does not include promotions of members of the Uniformed Services, nominations to the Service Academies, or nominations of Foreign Service officers.

Submitted July 29, 1974

- JACK W. CARLSON, of Maryland, to be an Assistant Secretary of the Interior, vice Stephen Alan Wakefield, resigned.
- LYNN ADAMS GREENWALT, of Maryland, to be Director of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service (new position).
- WILLIAM W. GEIMER, of Illinois, to be Director, Intergovernmental and Regional Relations, Federal Energy Administration (new position).

- BERT A. GALLEGOS, of Colorado, to be Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, vice Alvin J. Arnett, resigned.
- WILFRED J. SMITH, of Virginia, to be a member of the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission of the United States for a term of 3 years from October 22, 1973, vice Kieran O'Doherty, term expired.

Submitted July 30, 1974

- RICHARD W. MURPHY, of Virginia, a Foreign Service officer of Class one, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to the Syrian Arab Republic.
- ANTONIN SCALIA, of Virginia, to be an Assistant Attorney General, vice Robert G. Dixon, Jr., resigning.

Submitted July 31, 1974

- RICHARD W. VELDE, of Virginia, to be Administrator of Law Enforcement Assistance, vice Donald E. Santarelli, resigned.

NOMINATIONS SUBMITTED TO THE SENATE—Continued

Submitted August 2, 1974

- PHILIP C. HABIB, of California, a Foreign Service officer of the Class of Career Minister, to be an Assistant Secretary of State.
- WILLIAM HOLMES COOK, of Illinois, to be a Judge of the United States Court of Military Appeals for the remainder of the term expiring May 1, 1976, vice William H. Darden, resigned.
- ROBERT ARMSTRONG ANTHONY, of New York, to be Chairman of the Administrative Conference of the United States for a term of 5 years, vice Antonin Scalia.

CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES

The following releases of the Office of the White House Press Secretary, distributed during the period covered by this issue, are not included in the issue.

Released July 27, 1974

- Fact sheet: Presidential Medal of Freedom Citation: Presidential Medal of Freedom for Dr. Charles LeRoy Lowman
- Biographical data: Dr. Charles LeRoy Lowman
- News conference: following his meeting with the President—by James T. Lynn, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development

Released July 30, 1974

- News conference: following his meeting with the President—by William E. Simon, Secretary of the Treasury

Released August 2, 1974

- Fact sheet: Cost of Living Task Force

CUMULATIVE INDEX TO PRIOR ISSUES

Third Quarter, 1974

[See Index of Contents for Documents in this Issue]

ABM. See Anti-ballistic missile systems
Acts approved. See last page of text in each issue

Addresses and Remarks of the President

Ash, Roy L., dinner honoring the President	819
Belgium
Arrival in Brussels	728
Departure from Washington	718, 727
Luncheon in Brussels	732
Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, signing ceremony	799
Economy, national, address to Nation	830
French gift for the American Revolution Bicentennial, exchange of remarks with French Ambassador Jacques Kosciuszko-Morizet	796
National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency	813
People's Republic of China, martial arts and acrobatic troupe visit to the White House	801
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics
Address to the Soviet people	744
Departure from Washington	718, 727
Minak	742
Moscow	735, 748
Report to the Nation, Loring Air Force Base, Maine	766
United States Space Week, 1974	815
Agriculture, Department of, Secretary	796,
	799, 803
Albrecht, Richard R.	804
Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration	806, 818
American Revolution Bicentennial, French gift	796, 797, 804
Annenberg, Walter H.	817
Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocols to treaty on the limitation of	750, 756
Antigua, U.S. Special Representative	994

Appointments and Nominations

Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, Administrator	806, 818
Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman	828, 995
Council on International Economic Policy, Executive Director	788, 804
Federal Aviation Administration, Deputy Administrator	817, 995
Federal Energy Administration
Assistant Administrator	789, 804
General Counsel	789, 804
Office of Intergovernmental and Regional Relations, Director	839
Federal Regional Councils, Chairmen	829
Foreign Claims Settlement Commission
Chairman	793
Members	804, 839
Interior Department
Assistant Secretary	838
United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Director	838
National Commission for the Observance of World Population Year, 1974, members	798
Office of Economic Opportunity, Director	807
President's Commission on White House Fellowships, members	830
Securities and Exchange Commission, member	806, 818
State Department, Assistant Inspector General, Foreign Assistance	830

Appointments and Nominations—Continued

Treasury Department
Deputy Secretary	804
General Counsel	804
U.S. attorney, Texas	804
U.S. circuit judge, 2d circuit	804
U.S. district judge, Georgia	804
U.S. marshals
California	804
Louisiana	803, 818
White House Staff
Deputy Assistant	795
Special Assistant	816
Arends, Repr. Lealie C.	802
Argentina, President Juan Domingo Peron, death	771
Armed Forces, United States, Europe	729, 731
Arms control and disarmament	750,
	751, 753, 755, 756, 763, 764, 769
Armstrong, Anne L.	802, 815
Army, Department of the, Assistant Secretary	802
Arnett, Alvin J.	817
Ash, Roy L.	802, 804, 817, 819, 994
Atlantic Relations, Declaration on	728,
	729, 731
Baker, Repr. LaMar	802
Barbados, U.S. Ambassador to	994
Baudouin I, King	728, 732, 790
Belgium
King Baudouin I.	728, 732, 790
President's visit
Arrival in Brussels	728
Declaration of Atlantic Relations	729,
	731
Departure from Washington	718, 727
Luncheon in Brussels	732
Prime Minister Leo Tindermans	790
Bell, J. Raymond	793, 804
Berg, Eugene E.	802
Bicentennial, American Revolution	796,
	797, 804

Bill Signings

Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, remarks and statement	799, 800
Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974, statement	838
Birknes, John A.	804
Brandy imports	807
Brennan, Peter J.	802
Breshnev, L. I.	735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
Budget, federal spending	799, 800, 821, 832
Budget, Office of Management and See Management and Budget, Office of Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, Congressional	799, 800, 804
Burch, Dean	791, 802, 995
Burnham, D.C.	830
Burns, Arthur F.	802
Business and industry, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	741, 759, 791
Butz, Earl L.	803
Cabinet, meeting with the President	802
California, U.S. marshal	804
Captive Nations Week, 1974	801
Carlos, Prince Juan	814
Carlson, Jack W.	838
Cary, Frank	794
Casey, Thomas R.	828, 829
Checklist of unpublished releases. See last page of text in each issue
China, People's Republic of, Wushu Troupe, visit to the White House	801
Civil defense medical and food stockpiles	798

Claims Settlement Commission, Foreign	793, 804, 839
Coffee Agreement, International	796
Cole, Kenneth R., Jr.	830
Colombia
President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen, inauguration	994
U.S. Ambassador to	994
Commerce, Department of, Secretary	788
Commercial Commission, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics	741
Congress
House of Representatives, Judiciary Committee	791, 818, 822, 840, 995
Meetings with the President
Bipartisan leadership	802
Republican leaders	802
Sequoia meetings	802
Senate, Foreign Relations Committee	807

Congress, Communications to

Government executive development, message	808
Hazardous Materials Transportation Control Act of 1970, annual report transmittal	802
International Coffee Agreement, annual report transmittal	796
National security investigations and wiretaps, letter to Chairman of Senate Foreign Relations Committee	807
Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974	799, 800, 804
Connor, Robert E.	798, 806
Construction, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	739,
	761, 791
Construction, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in Housing and Other	739, 761
Cooperation in Europe, Conference on Security and	757
Cortina, Pedro Mauri	814
Council. See other part of title
Courts, United States
U.S. attorney, Texas	804
U.S. circuit judge, 2d circuit	804
U.S. district judge, Georgia	804
U.S. marshals
California	804
Louisiana	803, 818
Massachusetts	804
Cultural exchanges, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	762
Curtis, Sen. Carl T.	802
Cyprus	817, 819
Dean, Dixey	813
DeBaca, Fernando E. C.	816
Defense, Department of, Secretary	798
Dent, Frederick B.	788
Digest of other White House announcements. See last pages of text in each issue
Disaster assistance, States receiving
Minnesota	806
New York	829
Ohio	798
Disaster relief functions	799
District of Columbia, National Guard, Commanding General	802
Doar, John M.	824, 825
Domestic Council	802
Dominica, U.S. Special Representative	994
Donovan, Eileen R.	994
Dow, James E.	817, 996

Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, Alcohol.....	806, 818	Government employees, executive development.....	808, 818	Karamanlis, Konstantinos.....	994
DuPont, Dr. Robert L., Jr.....	806, 818	Greece.....		Keene, Joseph W.....	803, 818
Eberle, William D.....	788, 804	Cyprus conflict.....	817, 820	Kelly, Bernard.....	829
Economic Advisers, Council of, Chairman.....	802, 815, 817, 818, 828, 995	Prime Minister Konstantinos Karamanlis.....	994	Key Biscayne, Fla.....	790, 802
Economic cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	741, 759, 791	Green, S. William.....	829	King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr.....	771
Economic Opportunity, Office of, Director.....	807, 817	Greenspan, Alan.....	828, 995	Kissinger, Dr. Henry A.....	703, 791, 807, 814, 817
Economic Policy, Council on International, Executive Director.....	788, 804	Greenwalt, Lynn Adams.....	838	Klein, Herbert G.....	994
Economy, national.....		Grenada, U.S. Special Representative.....	994	Kleindienst, Richard G.....	842, 951
Address to Nation.....	830	Griffin, Sen. Robert P.....	802	Korff, Baruch.....	813, 817, 818
Federal spending.....	799, 800, 821, 832	Gurfein, Murray I.....	804	Kosciusko-Morizet, Jacques.....	796
Inflation.....	800, 802, 821, 830	Hadden, A. Roby.....	804	Kosygin, A. N.....	740, 790
Emergency Board No. 185, railway labor dispute.....	789	Hadsel, Fred L.....	994	Labor, Department of, Secretary.....	802
Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974.....	838	Hartman, Arthur A.....	791	Labor, railway dispute.....	789
Energy.....		Hays, David W.....	829
Conservation.....	788	Hazardous materials transportation.....	802	Letters, Messages, Telegrams
U.S.S.R., cooperation with.....	737, 761, 791	Health, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	740, 761, 791	See also Congress, Communications to
Energy, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in the Field of.....	737, 761	Health, Education, and Welfare, Department of		Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman Herbert Stein, exchange of letters on resignation.....	815
Energy Administration, Federal.....	788, 789, 839	Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, Administrator.....	806, 818	French gift for the American Revolution Bicentennial, exchange of letters with French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing.....	797
Environment.....		Secretary.....	802, 804	Livestock Credit Act of 1974, Emergency.....	838
U.S.S.R., cooperation with.....	753, 762	Health Cooperation, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee for.....	740, 761	Loomis, Philip A., Jr.....	806, 818
U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint statement.....	753	Heart research, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	740, 761, 791	Loring Air Force Base, Maine.....	766, 790
Environmental warfare.....	753, 765	Hodgson, James D.....	802	Louisiana, U.S. marshal.....	803, 818
Erbe, Norman A.....	829	Hogan, Repr. Lawrence J.....	995	Luns, Joseph.....	728
Europe.....		Housing, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	739, 761, 791	Management and Budget, Office of, Director.....	802, 804, 817, 819, 994
U.S. forces.....	729, 731	Housing and Other Construction, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in.....	739, 761	Martinez, Samuel.....	829
U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint communique.....	757	Housing and Urban Development, Department of, Secretary.....	799	Massachusetts, U.S. marshal.....	804
European Economic Community, brandy imports.....	807	Hunt, E. Howard.....	841, 870	Mauritania, U.S. Ambassador to.....	994
Executive Orders		Iceland, Special Ambassador to 1100th anniversary.....	994	McAninch, Vernon D.....	994
Civil defense medical and food stockpiles (EO 11794).....	798	Impeachment inquiry.....		Mead, Dana.....	802
Disaster relief functions (EO 11795).....	799	Brief submitted to the House Judiciary Committee.....	840	Medical stockpiles for civil defense.....	798
Secretary of Agriculture (EO 11793).....	796	Impeachable offense.....	826
Fabiola, Queen.....	790	Internal Revenue Service.....	842, 983	Meetings with Foreign Leaders
Federal Aviation Administration, Deputy Administrator.....	817, 995	International Telephone and Telegraph.....	841, 945	Belgium.....
Federal employees. See Government employees		Milk support price.....	842, 958, 963	King Baudouin I.....	728, 732, 790
Federal Energy Administration.....		News conference by Special Counsel St. Clair.....	822	Prime Minister Leo Tindermans.....	790
Administrator.....	788	Presidential tapes and documents.....	822-828	Germany, Federal Republic of, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.....	790
Assistant Administrator.....	789, 804	Wiretaps.....	807, 841, 923	Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor.....	790
General Counsel.....	789, 804	Imports, brandy.....	807	Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Chairman N. V. Podgorny.....	790
Office of Intergovernmental and Regional Relations, Director.....	839	Impoundment Control Act of 1974, Congressional Budget and.....	799, 800, 804	General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev.....	785, 790, 794, 799
Federal Regional Councils, Chairmen.....	829	Independence Day, 1974.....	790	Premier A. N. Kosygin.....	790
Federal Reserve System.....		Industry. See Business and Industry.		United Kingdom, Prime Minister Harold Wilson.....	790
Board of Governors.....	802	Interior, Department of the Assistant Secretary.....	838	Mental Health Administration, Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and.....	806, 818
Monetary restraint.....	833	Office of Oil and Gas, Associate Director.....	802	Middle East.....
Federal spending. See Budget; Economy, national		Secretary.....	802, 994	North Atlantic Council meeting, remarks.....	731
Food, civil defense stockpiles.....	798	Under Secretary.....	802	U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint communique.....	758
Ford, Vice President Gerald R.....	766, 802, 817, 818	United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Director.....	838	Milk, support price.....	842, 958, 963
Foreign Claims Settlement Commission.....	793, 804, 839	Internal Revenue Service, impeachment inquiry.....	842, 983	Minnesota, disaster assistance.....	806
Foreman, Ed.....	829	International Coffee Agreement.....	796	Missile systems, protocol to treaty on the limitation of anti-ballistic.....	750, 786
France.....		International Economic Policy, Council on.....	788, 804	Mitchell, John N.....	842, 951
Bicentennial gift.....	796, 797, 804	International Telephone and Telegraph.....	841, 945	Montgomery, Robert E., Jr.....	789, 804
President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing.....	797	Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor.....	790	Morton, Rogers C.B.....	802, 994
Fulbright, Sen. J. William.....	807	ITT. See International Telephone and Telegraph		Mount Vernon, French sound and light spectacle for American Revolution Bicentennial.....	796, 797, 804
Gallegos, Bert A.....	807	Jackson, Levi A.....	830	Murphy, Richard W.....	994
Gardner, Stephen S.....	804	Japan, U.S. Ambassador to.....	802	National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services.....	802
Gelmer, William W.....	839	Jenner, Albert E., Jr.....	824	National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency.....	813, 818
Geneva Peace Conference on the Middle East.....	758	Johnston, Donald A.....	994	National Commission for the Observance of World Population Year, 1974.....	798
Genscher, Hans-Dietrich.....	994			New York, disaster assistance.....	829
Georgia, U.S. district judge.....	804	Joint Statements
Germany, Federal Republic of Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.....	790	Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.....	753	News Conferences Other Than Presidential
Vice-Chancellor and Minister of Foreign Affairs Hans-Dietrich Genscher.....	994	Jones, Sidney L.....	795	House Judiciary Committee impeachment inquiry, Special Counsel St. Clair.....	822
Gezell, Gerhard A.....	802	Judiciary Committee, House.....	791, 818, 822, 840, 995	President's visit to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Secretary of State Kissinger.....	763
Ghana, U.S. Ambassador to.....	994			Nominations submitted to the Senate. See last page of text in each issue
Giscard d'Estaing, Valéry.....	796, 797
Goodearie, Roy.....	803
Government departments and agencies, energy conservation.....	788

North Atlantic Treaty Organization
Brussels meeting with North Atlantic Council	728, 731, 732, 769
Cyprus conflict	820
Declaration on Atlantic Relations	729, 731
Secretary General Joseph Luns	728
Nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of underground	751
Office. See other part of title
Ohio, disaster assistance	798
O'Neill, John Ellis	802
Otis, Webster	829
People's Republic of China. See China, People's Republic of
Peron, Juan Domingo	771
Podgorny, N. V.	739, 741, 790
Population control	793
Population Year, 1974, National Commission on the Observance of World	798
Post, Marjorie Meriweather	802
Presidency, National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the	813, 818
Presidential tapes and documents	822-828
President's Commission on White House Fellowships	830
President's travel
Domestic
Bel Air, Calif.	819, 904
Los Angeles, Calif.	830
Palm Beach, Fla.	802
Foreign
Belgium	718, 727-735
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics	718, 735-771
Proclamations
Captive Nations Week, 1974 (Proc. 4302)	801
Imports of brandy (Proc. 4304)	807
United Nations Day, 1974 (Proc. 4300)	794
United States Space Week, 1974 (Proc. 4303)	805
White Cane Safety Day, 1974 (Proc. 4301)	794
World Population Year, 1974 (Proc. 4299)	793
Railway labor-management dispute	739
Raven, Jack E.	829
Reports to the President
Emergency Board No. 185, railway labor dispute	789
Research, medical	740, 761, 791
Resignations and Retirements
Ambassadors
Barbados	904
Ghana	904
Mauritania	904
Army Department, Assistant Secretary	802
Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman	815
District of Columbia, National Guard, Commanding General	802
National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services, member	802
Office of Economic Opportunity, Director	817
Rhodes, Repr. John J.	802
Rush, Kenneth	802, 804, 817, 905
St. Christopher-Nevis-Anguilla, U.S. Special Representative	904
St. Clair, James D.	787, 802, 804, 822, 829
St. Lucia, U.S. Special Representative	904
St. Vincent, U.S. Special Representative	904
SALT. See Strategic arms limitation
San Clemente, Calif.	803, 904
Sant, Roger West	789, 804
Sawhill, John C.	788
Schmidt, Helmut	790
Science and technology, cooperation with U.S.S.R.
Scott, Sen. Hugh	737, 740, 741, 761, 791
Securities and Exchange Commission	806, 818
Security and Cooperation in Europe, Conference on	787
Sequoia meetings, with certain Members of Congress	802
Simon, William E.	802
Sisco, Joseph J.	817
Smith, Elmer E.	829
Smith, Wilfred J.	839
Snyder, Daniel J., III	829
Southward, Maj. Gen. Charles L.	802
Spaatz, Gen. Carl A.	807
Space program, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	762
Space Week, 1974, United States	805, 815
Spain
Foreign Minister Pedro Mauri Cortina	814
Joint declaration of principles with U.S.	814
Prince Juan Carlos	814
State, Department of
Assistant Inspector General, Foreign Assistance	830
Assistant Secretary	791
Secretary	763, 791, 802, 807, 814, 817
Under Secretary	817
Statements by the President
Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, signing ceremony	800
Deaths
Dean, Dixey	818
King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr.	771
Peron, Juan Domingo	771
Spaatz, Gen. Carl A.	807
Warren, Earl	795
Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974	828
Energy conservation	788
Independence Day, 1974	790
Joint declaration of principles between the United States and Spain	814
Supreme Court decision on Presidential tapes and documents	829
Statements Other Than Presidential
Brussels meeting with the North Atlantic Council, Press Secretary Ziegler	731
Stein, Herbert	802, 815, 817, 818
Strategic arms limitations	780, 783, 785, 786, 763, 764, 789
Supplementary Centers and Services, National Advisory Council on	802
Supreme Court of the United States	772, 802, 822-829
Surganov, F. A.	742
Taylor, Joseph Z.	830
Technology. See Science and technology
Texas, U.S. attorney	804
Tindermans, Leo	790
Trade, coffee	796
Transportation, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	762
Transportation, Department of, Federal Aviation Administration	817, 905
Treasury, Department of the
Deputy Secretary	804
General Counsel	804
Secretary	802
Treaties and other international agreements
Agreements with U.S.S.R.
Economic, industrial, and technical cooperation	741
Energy	787
Heart research	740
Housing and construction	739
Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol to treaty on the limitation of	750
Treaties and other international agreements—Continued
Declaration on Atlantic Relations	729
Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of	751
Turkey, Cyprus conflict	817, 829
Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of	751
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics
Agreements with U.S.
Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol on the limitation of	750, 756
Construction	739, 761, 791
Economic, industrial, and technical	741, 759, 791
Energy	737, 761, 791
Heart research	740, 761, 791
Housing	739, 761, 791
Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of	751
Chairman N. V. Podgorny	739, 741, 790
General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev	735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
Joint statements	753
North Atlantic Council meeting, remarks	731
Premier A. N. Kosygin	740, 790
President's visit
Address to the Soviet people	744
Departure from Washington	718, 727
Dinners in Moscow	735, 748
Luncheon in Minsk	742
News conference by Secretary of State Kissinger	763
United Kingdom
Prime Minister Harold Wilson	790
U.S. Ambassador to	817
United Nations Day, 1974	794
United States Courts. See Courts, United States
United States Space Week, 1974	805, 815
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Commercial Commission	741
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in the Field of Energy	737, 761
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in Housing and Other Construction	789, 761
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee for Health Cooperation	740, 761
Vaky, Viron P.	904
Van Court, Arthur F.	804
Virgin Islands, drought, emergency assistance	826
Warren, Earl	795
Watergate investigation
Court documents	772
House Judiciary Committee	791, 818, 840, 906
Impeachable offense	836
National security investigations	807
Payments to defendants	834, 836, 827, 841, 870
Presidential tapes and documents	822-828
Supreme Court review	772, 802, 822-829
Weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of underground nuclear	751
Weinberger, Casper W.	802, 804
Whitaker, John C.	802
White Cane Safety Day, 1974	794
White House Fellowships, President's Commission on	830
White House Staff
Communications Director	904
Counsellor for Economic Policy	802, 804, 817, 905
Counsellors	791, 802, 905
Deputy Assistant	795
Special Assistant	816
Wiretaps	807, 841, 923
World Population Year, 1974	793, 798
Wushu Troupe	801
Zamyatin, L. M.	791
Ziegler, Ronald L.	731, 791, 818, 824, 825

Weekly Compilation of
PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Monday, August 12, 1974

Volume 10 • Number 32

Pages 1007-1028

The University
of Michigan
Reference

AUG 19 1974

Index of Contents

ADMINISTRATION OF RICHARD NIXON

ACTS APPROVED.....	1022	MEMORANDUMS TO FEDERAL AGENCIES
ADDRESSES AND REMARKS		Combined Federal Campaign.....	1012
Resignation of the President, address to the American people.....	1014	NEWS CONFERENCES
Vice President's remarks following President's address	1018	Senators Goldwater and Scott and Representative Rhodes, following meeting with the President..	1010
White House departure, remarks to Cabinet and White House Staff.....	1019	PROCLAMATIONS
APPOINTMENTS AND NOMINATIONS		National Student Government Day, 1974 (Proc. 4307)	1010
Corporation for Public Broadcasting, Board of Directors (5 members).....	1010	United States Customs 185th Anniversary Year (Proc. 4306).....	1008
Nominations submitted to the Senate.....	1022	STATEMENTS BY THE PRESIDENT
BILL SIGNINGS		(See also Bill Signings)
Department of Defense Appropriation Authorization Act, 1975, statement.....	1007	Transcripts of Presidential conversations, release..	1008
CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES.....	1022	STATEMENTS OTHER THAN PRESIDENTIAL
CONGRESS, COMMUNICATIONS TO		Enriched uranium supplies, statement by the Deputy Press Secretary.....	1009
(See also Veto Messages)		Meeting with the Vice President, remarks by the Deputy Press Secretary.....	1012
Telegraph and telephone regulations, message to the Senate transmitting.....	1007	Plans for President's address to the Nation, remarks by the Press Secretary.....	1012
Trade Agreements Program, 1973, message transmitting annual report.....	1012	Press Secretary's remarks to reporters following President's address.....	1018
DIGEST OF OTHER WHITE HOUSE ANNOUNCEMENTS..	1021	VETO MESSAGES
LETTERS, MEMORANDUMS, ETC.		Agriculture, EPA, and related agencies appropriations bill, message to the House of Representatives	1014
Resignation of the President, letter to the Secretary of State.....	1021

ADMINISTRATION OF GERALD R. FORD

ACTS APPROVED.....	1028	CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES.....	1028
ADDRESSES AND REMARKS		DIGEST OF OTHER WHITE HOUSE ANNOUNCEMENTS..	1028
Introduction of Press Secretary terHorst.....	1025	LETTERS, MEMORANDUMS, ETC.
Swearing in as 38th President.....	1023	Presidential transition, memorandums for White House staff, Vice Presidential staff, and heads of departments and agencies.....	1027
APPOINTMENTS AND NOMINATIONS		STATEMENTS OTHER THAN PRESIDENTIAL
Counsellors to the President		President's initial appointments and meetings, remarks of the Press Secretary.....	1026
Robert T. Hartman.....	1026
John O. Marsh, Jr.....	1027
Press Secretary to the President (J. F. terHorst) ...	1025
Transition team (4 members).....	1026

[A Cumulative Index to Prior Issues appears at the end of this issue.]

WEEKLY COMPILATION OF Presidential Documents

Published every Monday by the Office of the Federal Register, National Archives and Records Service, General Services Administration, Washington, D.C. 20408, the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents contains statements, messages and other Presidential materials released by the White House during the preceding week.

The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents is published pursuant to the authority contained in the Federal Register Act (49 Stat. 500, as amended; 44 U.S.C. Ch. 15), under regulations prescribed by the Administrative Committee of the Federal Register, approved by the President (37 F.R. 23607; 1 CFR Part 10).

Distribution is made only by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents will be furnished by mail to subscribers for $15.00 per year, payable to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The charge for a single copy is 50 cents.

There are no restrictions on the republication of material appearing in the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents.

Administration of Richard Nixon

PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Week Ending Saturday, August 10, 1974

Department of Defense Appropriation Authorization Act, 1975

Statement by the President Upon Signing the Bill Into Law While Expressing Reservations About Certain of Its Provisions. August 5, 1974

I am today signing H.R. 14592, the Department of Defense procurement authorization bill for fiscal year 1975.

As I have pointed out on several occasions, a strong America is essential to maintaining world peace. Our military forces deter potential aggressors and, together with those of our allies, serve to assure the continued security of the free world. Without that strength, our adversaries would have no incentive to negotiate the mutual reduction of arms through which it may be possible to limit the rate of growth of military expenditures in the years ahead.

I am pleased that in this bill the Congress has expressed support for our objectives by authorizing $22.2 billion for military procurement purposes during fiscal year 1975. Funds for research and development and the acquisition of major new weapons systems will help us to maintain our strong military posture, and a military end strength of 2,149,000 will contribute positively to continued force readiness.

There are, however, several unfortunate features in this bill. A number of provisions authorize spending for unneeded equipment and could thus inflate defense spending unnecessarily at a time when we all should recognize the need to avoid waste. I shall monitor this spending closely, and in particular I intend to review the provision that any newly constructed major combatant ship be equipped with nuclear power unless the President advises otherwise. I shall recommend nuclear propulsion for ships only when the added cost of such propulsion is fully justified in the national interests.

Section 709 of this measure authorizes the Congress by concurrent resolution to disapprove a Presidential decision permitting the export of certain goods and technology to specific countries. In my view, this feature provides for an unconstitutional exercise of legislative power. It is regrettable that the Congress has seen fit to add to a bill of such importance to our national security a rider adversely affecting the constitutional separation of powers. However, the compelling subject matter of this bill gives me no practical choice but to sign it notwithstanding my serious reservations.

NOTE: As enacted, the bill (H.R. 14592) is Public Law 93-365, approved August 5, 1974.

Telegraph and Telephone Regulations

The President's Message to the Senate Transmitting the Regulations for Advice and Consent to Ratification. August 5, 1974

To the Senate of the United States:

With a view to receiving the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, I transmit herewith the Telegraph Regulations and the Telephone Regulations along with the appendices thereto and a Final Protocol to those Regulations, done at Geneva, April 11, 1973. Also transmitted for the information of the Senate is the report of the Department of State with respect to the Regulations.

These Regulations are simplified, completely revised versions of the 1958 Regulations and will make it easier for the international business system guided by the Regulations to keep apace with rapidly advancing telecommunications.

I recommend that the Senate give early and favorable consideration to both the Telegraph Regulations and the Telephone Regulations and give its advice and consent to their ratification with the declarations proposed in the report of the Department of State.

RICHARD NIXON

The White House,
August 5, 1974.

United States Customs 185th Anniversary Year

Proclamation 4306. August 5, 1974

*By the President of the United States of America
a Proclamation*

July 31, 1974, marked the one hundred eighty-fifth anniversary of the signing by President George Washington of legislation establishing a United States Customs Service.

The first customs officers began to collect the revenue and enforce the Tariff Act of July 4, 1789, on August 1, 1789. Since then, the customhouse and the customs officer have stood as symbols of national pride and sovereignty at ports of entry along the land and sea borders of our country.

Customs and related duties collected by the Department of the Treasury provided the principal revenues for the young Republic and assured its financial stability, from 1789 until the 20th century.

As the 200th birthday of our Nation approaches, it is especially appropriate that we recognize and salute the historic contributions made to the growth of our Republic by the United States Customs Service.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, RICHARD NIXON, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate the year 1974 as United States Customs 185th Anniversary Year; and I call upon the United States Customs Service, under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, to plan and participate in appropriate observances recognizing the revenue collection and law enforcement contributions of the Customs Service to the general welfare and economic stability of the Nation.

I also call upon appropriate community organizations to cooperate with the Customs Service in recognizing 185 years of mutually beneficial relationships.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this fifth day of August, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninety-ninth.

RICHARD NIXON

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 12:44 p.m.,
August 5, 1974]

Release of Additional Transcripts of Presidential Conversations

Statement by the President. August 5, 1974

I have today instructed my attorneys to make available to the House Judiciary Committee, and I am making public, the transcripts of three conversations with H. R. Haldeman on June 23, 1972. I have also turned over the tapes of these conversations to Judge Sirica, as part of the process of my compliance with the Supreme Court ruling.

On April 29, in announcing my decision to make public the original set of White House transcripts, I stated that "as far as what the President personally knew and did with regard to Watergate and the coverup is concerned, these materials—together with those already made available—will tell it all."

Shortly after that, in May, I made a preliminary review of some of the 64 taped conversations subpoenaed by the Special Prosecutor.

Among the conversations I listened to at that time were two of those of June 23. Although I recognized that these presented potential problems, I did not inform my staff or my Counsel of it, or those arguing my case, nor did I amend my submission to the Judiciary Committee in order to include and reflect it. At the time, I did not realize the extent of the implications which these conversations might now appear to have. As a result, those arguing my case, as well as those passing judgment on the case, did so with information that was incomplete and in some respects erroneous. This was a serious act of omission for which I take full responsibility and which I deeply regret.

Since the Supreme Court's decision 12 days ago, I have ordered my Counsel to analyze the 64 tapes, and I have listened to a number of them myself. This process has made it clear that portions of the tapes of these June 23 conversations are at variance with certain of my previous statements. Therefore, I have ordered the transcripts made available immediately to the Judiciary Committee so that they can be reflected in the Committee's report and included in the record to be considered by the House and Senate.

In a formal written statement on May 22 of last year, I said that shortly after the Watergate break-in I became concerned about the possibility that the FBI investigation might lead to the exposure either of unrelated covert activities of the CIA or of sensitive national security matters that the so-called "plumbers" unit at the White House had been working on, because of the CIA and plumbers connections of some of those involved. I said that I therefore gave instructions that the FBI should be alerted to coordinate with the CIA and to ensure that the investigation not expose these sensitive national security matters.

That statement was based on my recollection at the time—some 11 months later—plus documentary materials and relevant public testimony of those involved.

The June 23 tapes clearly show, however, that at the time I gave those instructions I also discussed the political aspects of the situation, and that I was aware of the advantages this course of action would have with respect to limiting possible public exposure of involvement by persons connected with the re-election committee.

My review of the additional tapes has, so far, shown no other major inconsistencies with what I have previously submitted. While I have no way at this stage of being certain that there will not be others, I have no reason to believe that there will be. In any case, the tapes in their entirety are now in the process of being furnished to Judge Sirica. He has begun what may be a rather lengthy process of reviewing the tapes, passing on specific claims of executive privilege on portions of them, and forwarding to the Special Prosecutor those tapes or those portions that are relevant to the Watergate investigation.

It is highly unlikely that this review will be completed in time for the House debate. It appears at this stage, however, that a House vote of impeachment is, as a practical matter, virtually a foregone conclusion, and that the issue will therefore go to trial in the Senate. In order to ensure that no other significant relevant materials are withheld, I shall voluntarily furnish to the Senate everything from these tapes that Judge Sirica rules should go to the Special Prosecutor.

I recognize that this additional material I am now furnishing may further damage my case, especially because attention will be drawn separately to it rather than to the evidence in its entirety. In considering its implications, therefore, I urge that two points be borne in mind.

The first of these points is to remember what actually happened as a result of the instructions I gave on June 23. Acting Director Gray of the FBI did coordinate with Director Helms and Deputy Director Walters of the CIA. The CIA did undertake an extensive check to see whether any of its covert activities would be compromised by a full FBI investigation of Watergate. Deputy Director Walters then reported back to Mr. Gray that they would not be compromised. On July 6, when I called Mr. Gray, and when he expressed concern about improper attempts to limit his investigation, as the record shows, I told him to press ahead vigorously with his investigation—which he did.

The second point I would urge is that the evidence be looked at in its entirety and the events be looked at in perspective. Whatever mistakes I made in the handling of Watergate, the basic truth remains that when all the facts were brought to my attention I insisted on a full investigation and prosecution of those guilty. I am firmly convinced that the record, in its entirety, does not justify the extreme step of impeachment and removal of a President. I trust that as the constitutional process goes forward, this perspective will prevail.

NOTE: Copies of the transcripts of the three conversations were made available with the statement by the White House Press Office.

Enriched Uranium Supplies

*Statement by Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren.
August 6, 1974*

The President today is reaffirming that the United States will remain a major supplier of uranium enriching services. Since 1969, the Atomic Energy Commission has contracted to provide such services to 72 U.S. utilities and utilities in 18 foreign countries.

The President wishes to lay to rest uncertainties which have recently arisen concerning the assurance of an adequate supply of enriched uranium.

The Atomic Energy Commission is now signing accumulated pending contracts to enrich fuel for nuclear power reactors in the United States and in 17 different foreign countries. Some of the contracts will, on an interim basis, be of a conditional nature since supply under those contracts from the existing three U.S. enriching plants is dependent on AEC approval of the use of plutonium as fuel for nuclear powerplants. However, the President assures holders of conditional contracts that the United States will, in any event, fulfill the fuel requirements in those contracts from U.S. supply sources.

United States enrichment capacity must be increased to meet its own growing needs for nuclear power. As a matter of U.S. policy, the President stresses his intention that such new capacity be available to meet the contractual needs of future domestic and foreign customers. The President believes it essential that the additional capacity to meet such needs be provided by private industry. He notes that private companies are prepared to provide this additional capacity and that a government monopoly is clearly no longer appropriate. Early and responsible actions on the part of the utility industry, potential suppliers, and the financial community are needed to make private enrichment a reality. The Government is prepared to assist in this effort.

The President affirms that assured and timely availability of enriching services is of paramount importance to those countries, including the United States, that are selecting nuclear power as a major source of energy for the coming decades. Nondiscriminatory access to such services, reliability in supply, and continuing leadership in technology will be essential features of U.S. policy in the future as they have in the past.

NOTE: The statement was made available by the White House Press Office. It was not issued in the form of a White House press release.

Corporation for Public Broadcasting

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Five Members of the Board of Directors. August 7, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate five persons to be members of the Board of Directors of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting for the terms indicated.

For the remainder of the term expiring March 26, 1978:

AMOS B. HOSTETTER, JR., of Boston, Mass., co-founder, executive vice president, treasurer, and director of Continental Cablevision, Inc., Boston. Mr. Hostetter succeeds Theodore W. Braun, who has resigned.

For the term expiring March 26, 1980:

JOSEPH COORS, of Golden, Colo., chairman and chief executive officer, Coors Porcelain Co. and Coors Container Co., executive vice president, Adolph Coors Co., and director, Television News, Inc. Mr. Coors will succeed Albert L. Cole, whose term has expired.

LUCIUS PERRY GREGG, JR., of Evanston, Ill., president, First Chicago University Finance Co., and vice president, The First National Bank of Chicago. Mr. Gregg will succeed James R. Killian, Jr., whose term has expired.

LILLIE E. HERNDON, of Columbia, S.C., president, National Congress of Parents and Teachers. Mrs. Herndon will succeed Frank Pace, Jr., whose term has expired.

JOHN WHITNEY PETTIT, of Potomac, Md., attorney with the firm of Hamel, Park, McCabe and Saunders, Washington, D.C. Mr. Pettit will succeed Robert S. Benjamin, whose term has expired.

The Board of Directors of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting consists of 15 members appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. The Board elects its own Chairman annually.

National Student Government Day, 1974

Proclamation 4307. August 7, 1974

*By the President of the United States of America
a Proclamation*

One of the foundation blocks in the American democracy is the civic responsibility which every American accepts as part of his heritage and his obligation to his country.

This responsibility—this understanding, appreciation, and involvement in our Government—begins in our Nation's educational institutions. Within these institutions our student government associations play a central role. The learning experience that students obtain as officers, members, and as voters in student government associations is vital to a clear understanding of our democratic system.

The successful functioning of student government associations reaffirms the essential truth of our democracy: that all people should have a voice in making those decisions that affect their lives. Student government provides this voice for our Nation's students in educational institutions.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, RICHARD NIXON, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim October 29, 1974, as National Student Government Day. I invite the Governors of the States and of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and other officials at the local level to issue similar proclamations.

I also urge all educational institutions to join in appropriate activities to highlight the importance of student government and to encourage wide participation in its activities. I further urge all students in our country to acquaint themselves fully with their own student government associations and to play a constructive role in contributing to their success.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this seventh day of August, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninety-ninth.

RICHARD NIXON

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 12:46 p.m., August 7, 1974]

Meeting With Republican Congressional Leaders

News Conference of Senator Barry Goldwater, Representative John J. Rhodes, and Senator Hugh Scott Following Their Meeting With the President. August 7, 1974

SENATOR GOLDWATER. Congressman Rhodes and Senator Scott and I have just concluded a visit with the President. He invited us down this afternoon to disclose to him what we feel the actual conditions in the House and the Senate are relative to his situation.

We had a good, thorough discussion, and I think I speak for my two colleagues when I say that we were extremely impressed with the uppermost thought in his mind, which is that whatever decision he makes, it will be in the best interest of our country.

There has been no decision made. We made no suggestions. We were merely there to offer what we see as the condition on both floors.

Congressman John.

CONGRESSMAN RHODES. Actually, I have nothing to add except to say that the President did seem to be in good spirits and good health, and as four old friends, we talked over a situation which, of course, is very painful for all of us.

SENATOR SCOTT. The President made the point very strongly that any decision he makes will be in the national interest, that he had asked us for our evaluation of the situation in the two Houses of Congress, again from the standpoint of the national interest, and the discussion lasted about 35 or 40 minutes.

Q. How do you evaluate that situation?

SENATOR SCOTT. How do we evaluate the situation? Well, we have told him that the situation is very gloomy on Capitol Hill and that it is a very distressing situation, and we gave him further evaluations which I think ought to remain between ourselves.

Q. Did any of you recommend that he resign?

SENATOR GOLDWATER. No, that subject didn't even come up.

Q. Senator Goldwater, what about a report today that you had been telling the Members on the Hill that the President was about to resign and to stick by their televisions?

SENATOR GOLDWATER. Well, I am not allowed to swear, but it is the biggest lie I ever heard in my life. This is the first time I have been at the White House in over 2 weeks, and the last time was to visit with Dean Burch.

The last time I saw the President was flying out to Arizona with him back in early May, and furthermore, NBC stated that I came up here last night and found all the gates bolted and was not allowed in. That also is a g.d. lie. I went home and cooked my dinner, had five or six drinks, and went to bed. [Laughter]

Q. Senator Scott, is it your assessment that if the President does not resign, he will be impeached, convicted, and removed?

SENATOR SCOTT. I have made no assessment in discussions with the President, and we have had general discussions in our leadership, and there have been various points of view, and I am not free to discuss them further.

Q. Did you gentlemen request this meeting?

SENATOR GOLDWATER. No, the President invited us. I said that at the outset.

Q. Senator, did you discuss possible immunity for the President if he resigned?

SENATOR GOLDWATER. No, that subject was not touched on.

Q. Senator Goldwater, do you think the President will be convicted if he is impeached?

SENATOR GOLDWATER. If he is impeached by the House?

Q. Yes, will he be convicted by the Senate?

SENATOR GOLDWATER. I have no way of knowing, and we have no way of making nose counts. I myself have not made up my mind, and I think I can speak for most of the Senators that they haven't made up their minds as to the three articles or the 15 points contained therein.

Q. Did the President say when he would make his decision and announce it?

SENATOR GOLDWATER. No, that wasn't even discussed.

Q. Any indication that it would not—

SENATOR GOLDWATER. No, not at all.

Q. Did he say he intended to stay?

CONGRESSMAN RHODES. The President said nothing like that. The discussion was quite general in tone, and as I mentioned before, we were four old friends talking over a very painful situation. There was no time element involved. There was no idea given as to what any final decision might be.

Q. Gentlemen, when you say that the situation was gloomy, that you reported that it was gloomy, what specifically did you mean?

CONGRESSMAN RHODES. Of course, I think everybody knows what I meant. It is well known that the situation on the floor of the House has deteriorated to the extent that impeachment is really a foregone conclusion.

Q. The gentleman in the center.

SENATOR GOLDWATER. Well, he is the leader of the Senate.

SENATOR SCOTT. Well, it is obvious that while there has been no nose count, there has been some erosion of support in the Senate. I would assume the President is aware of that, and certainly we are aware of it, but we have not discussed or taken any counts ourselves as far as I know.

Q. Did he talk about the end of the constitutional process? We have been told at the White House for several days that the President wanted to follow the constitutional process. That has some end point to it.

SENATOR SCOTT. No, that wasn't discussed in that form. The President stressed that his decisions are made and will be made entirely in the national interest.

Q. This "gloomy forecast," what was his mood to the "gloomy forecast"?

SENATOR SCOTT. The President is in entire control of himself. He is serene and he was most amiable, and I assume that he simply accepted our evaluation since he had solicited our views.

Q. Would the House forgo impeachment and the Senate forgo a trial if he offered to resign?

CONGRESSMAN RHODES. Actually, I don't know what would be done by the House or Senate, of course, but the thought strikes me that if there were a resignation—and I don't know whether there will be or not—that the matter would be completely mooted, that there would be no useful purpose to be served if any proceedings were to continue in either body.

Q. And did you not tell the President that?

CONGRESSMAN RHODES. The President did not ask, and I did not tell him that.

REPORTER. Thank you very much, gentlemen.

NOTE: The news conference began at 5:42 p.m. on the North Lawn at the White House.

Meeting With the Vice President

Remarks of Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren Announcing the Meeting. August 8, 1974

We will be posting some routine information, bill actions, and appointments and nominations, and messages to the Congress in the form of nominations and bill actions, in a few moments.

I wanted to come out now and give you a brief announcement and then let you know that we will get together later on, maybe in an hour or so, when we have further information for you.

The President will be meeting at 11 with Vice President Ford in his Oval Office at the White House. The President asked the Vice President to come over this morning for a private meeting, and that is all the information I have at this moment.

NOTE: Mr. Warren spoke at 10:55 a.m. in the Briefing Room at the White House.

Plans for Presidential Address to the Nation

Remarks of Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler Announcing Plans for the Address. August 8, 1974

I am aware of the intense interest of the American people and of you in this room concerning developments today and over the last few days. This has, of course, been a difficult time.

The President of the United States will meet various members of the bipartisan leadership of Congress here at the White House early this evening.

Tonight, at 9 o'clock, eastern daylight time, the President of the United States will address the Nation on radio and television from his Oval Office.

NOTE: Mr. Ziegler spoke at 12:20 p.m. in the Briefing Room at the White House. His remarks were broadcast live on radio and television.

For the President's address to the Nation, see p. 1014 of this issue.

Combined Federal Campaign

The President's Memorandum for the Heads of Departments and Agencies. August 8, 1974

I am pleased to announce that Honorable William P. Clements, Jr., Deputy Secretary of Defense, has agreed to serve as chairman of the Combined Federal Campaign for the National Capital Area this fall.

This campaign, which begins in September, will combine into a single drive the solicitation efforts of the United Way of Metropolitan Washington, the National Health Agencies, and the International Service Agencies. In this one drive we will be seeking to do our share to meet the needs of more than 150 local, national, and international health, welfare, and social service agencies.

These organizations deserve our wholehearted support. Working individually we can do little, but working together through voluntary organizations we can help the young, the old, the ill, the disadvantaged, and all persons who need assistance. There is no substitute for the help that can be brought to our neighbors and friends by the committed voluntary agencies supported by the Combined Federal Campaign. Truly they are a beacon of hope for those in need.

Through the Combined Federal Campaign, Federal personnel are offered a unique opportunity to help persons in our community, in our Nation, and in overseas lands by one gift once a year, a pledge made particularly easy by the availability of payroll deductions.

I request that you serve personally as chairman of the combined campaign in your organization and appoint one of your top assistants as your vice chairman. Please advise Deputy Secretary Clements of the person you designate as vice chairman.

I know that you will give your wholehearted support to this endeavor, and I hope you will commend the campaign with its payroll deduction feature to Federal employees and military personnel in your organization.

RICHARD NIXON

Trade Agreements Program, 1973

The President's Message to the Congress Transmitting the 18th Annual Report on the Program. August 8, 1974

To the Congress of the United States:

In accordance with section 402(a) of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962 (TEA), I transmit herewith the Eighteenth Annual Report of the President on the Trade Agreements Program. This report covers developments in the year ending December 31, 1973.

Last year was a particularly important one for United States and world trade, as this report demonstrates in detail. Unquestionably the highlight occurred last September in Tokyo, when the ministers of 105 sovereign nations joined to declare their support for a new round of multilateral trade negotiations, the seventh since the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) was signed in 1947. This round represents a major initiative of the United States, along with initiatives in the international monetary field, begun in the fall of 1971. The charter for these negotiations, as embodied in the Declaration of Tokyo, is the most ambitious yet.

The purpose of these talks is no less than to modernize a world trading system which, though it has well served the world's peoples and brought about the many benefits of a four-fold expansion of trade, is no longer capable of responding to the needs and realities of a rapidly changing and increasingly interdependent world economy.

First, these talks are aimed not only at the continuing need to facilitate trade by lowering tariffs, but at reducing today's most pervasive and restrictive export inhibitors, so-called non-tariff trade barriers (NTBs). Unless these can be effectively dealt with, no major exporting nation—especially the United States—can hope to remain competitive in today's and tomorrow's world markets. And loss of competitiveness abroad can threaten the viability of firms and lead to loss of markets at home.

Second, the inflationary pressure of increased costs has become a major international problem which must be dealt with multilaterally if we are to adequately deal with inflation domestically.

Third, the need to maintain access to vital raw materials, energy, and food requires negotiated assurances for such access to supplies as well as to markets.

Fourth, economic issues should be managed and negotiated in parallel with political and security issues, in order to make progress on all three fronts.

Finally, we must encourage sovereign governments to work within an acceptable international framework to deal with such problems as import safeguards and export subsidies. At the same time we must have the authority to defend our legitimate national interests and manage domestic concerns in the context of an up-to-date, responsive and responsible international system.

None of these objectives can be accomplished without the appropriate legislative authorization. This authority—carefully balanced with provisions for the most effective Congressional and public participation in our trade policy-making and negotiating since GATT was formed—is represented in the Trade Reform Act, which I submitted to the Congress in April of 1973. This legislation, which passed the House by a margin of nearly two-to-one last December and is now pending in the Senate, is still urgently needed.

Time is now of the essence with regard to the trade bill. Our trading partners have demonstrated their willingness to use and improve multilateral channels for trade negotiation. Just this spring, the European Community negotiated a fair and equitable accord compensating us for tariff changes resulting from the enlargement of the European Common Market. Through the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), ministers of member countries have joined with the U.S. in renouncing trade restrictive measures as balance-of-payments correctives, at least until the basic problems caused by oil price increases can be addressed through improvements in the monetary system. Developing countries, particularly our partners in Latin America, have indicated their willingness to work with us toward trade expansion and reform. As I have noted before, our new approaches to the socialist countries, especially to the USSR and the People's Republic of China, hinge in large measure upon our ability to open up peaceful avenues of trade with them. Again, I have expressed my willingness to work with the Congress to find an acceptable formulation for this authority. In Geneva, the GATT Trade Negotiations Committee has announced a program of work for the fall to further prepare for the actual bargaining.

In short, the rest of the world is waiting for us at the trade negotiating table. The alternative is an indefinite period in which nations, including ours, will be forced to deal with increasingly complex and interdependent trade problems on an ad hoc basis. Experience has shown that this could lead to a proliferation of those problems and disputes over the best ways to resolve them. The adverse fallout from the resulting uncertainties and temptations of shortsighted unilateral actions could also seriously jeopardize gains we have made in the diplomatic and security fields.

For all these reasons, I take this occasion once again to urge prompt and final action on the Trade Reform Act. It is essential that we move ahead to revitalize the global trading system through multilateral negotiations.

RICHARD NIXON

The White House,
August 8, 1974.

NOTE: The 47-page report is entitled "Eighteenth Annual Report of the President of the United States on the Trade Agreements Program—1973."

Agriculture, EPA, and Related Agencies Appropriations Bill

The President's Veto Message to the House of Representatives. August 8, 1974

To the House of Representatives:

The pressing need to control inflation compels me today to return to the Congress without my approval H.R. 15472, an appropriations bill for the Department of Agriculture, the Environmental Protection Agency and certain related agencies and programs.

Two weeks ago, I vowed to the American people that any appropriations bill substantially above my budget for fiscal year 1975 would be vetoed because it would otherwise contribute to inflationary forces in the economy. This legislation exceeds my budgetary recommendations by such a large amount—some $540 million—that it presents a clear and distinct threat to our fight against inflation and cannot be accepted.

Under this legislation, outlays for fiscal year 1975 would exceed our recommendations by $150 million in fiscal year 1975, $300 million in fiscal year 1976, and by additional amounts in fiscal year 1977. Water and sewer grants for the Department of Agriculture would be authorized at a level of about $345 million, a level more than eight times higher than any level in the past. Funding for agricultural conservation programs would be more than doubled, completely reversing recent efforts of this Administration to reform these programs. Furthermore, this bill would increase certain loan programs operated by the Department of Agriculture by $400 million more than we recommended, an increase which would further strain already over-stressed credit markets and would add to inflationary pressures.

I also oppose a provision in this bill transferring from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to EPA a $175 million program to clean up the Great Lakes. The feasibility of this cleanup program has not yet been proven. Further study is essential if we are to avoid ineffective Federal spending for these purposes.

My original budget recommendations to the Congress laid out program priorities as we see them in the executive branch. While differences have frequently existed between the Congress and the executive branch on priorities for particular programs, I firmly believe that our current fiscal situation demands national unanimity on the issues of a larger concern: namely, that we agree to enact appropriation bills which do not fuel the fires of inflation through excessive spending.

I would welcome Congressional reconsideration of this bill and the program priorities contained therein so that a more acceptable bill can be enacted. In keeping Federal spending under control, we do not intend, of course, to single out only farm or environmental programs. Indeed, I would hope that in considering all future appropriation measures, the Congress will assiduously avoid enacting measures which pose inflationary problems similar to the bill I am returning today.

RICHARD NIXON

The White House,
August 8, 1974.

ADDRESS TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

The President's Address Announcing His Intention To Resign. August 8, 1974

Good evening.

This is the 37th time I have spoken to you from this office, where so many decisions have been made that shaped the history of this Nation. Each time I have done so to discuss with you some matter that I believe affected the national interest.

In all the decisions I have made in my public life, I have always tried to do what was best for the Nation. Throughout the long and difficult period of Watergate, I have felt it was my duty to persevere, to make every possible effort to complete the term of office to which you elected me.

In the past few days, however, it has become evident to me that I no longer have a strong enough political base in the Congress to justify continuing that effort. As long as there was such a base, I felt strongly that it was necessary to see the constitutional process through to its conclusion, that to do otherwise would be unfaithful to the spirit of that deliberately difficult process and a dangerously destabilizing precedent for the future.

But with the disappearance of that base, I now believe that the constitutional purpose has been served, and there is no longer a need for the process to be prolonged.

I would have preferred to carry through to the finish whatever the personal agony it would have involved, and my family unanimously urged me to do so. But the interest of the Nation must always come before any personal considerations.

From the discussions I have had with Congressional and other leaders, I have concluded that because of the Watergate matter I might not have the support of the Congress that I would consider necessary to back the very difficult decisions and carry out the duties of this office in the way the interests of the Nation would require.

I have never been a quitter. To leave office before my term is completed is abhorrent to every instinct in my body. But as President, I must put the interest of America first. America needs a full-time President and a full-time Congress, particularly at this time with problems we face at home and abroad.

To continue to fight through the months ahead for my personal vindication would almost totally absorb the time and attention of both the President and the Congress in a period when our entire focus should be on the great issues of peace abroad and prosperity without inflation at home.

Therefore, I shall resign the Presidency effective at noon tomorrow. Vice President Ford will be sworn in as President at that hour in this office.

As I recall the high hopes for America with which we began this second term, I feel a great sadness that I will not be here in this office working on your behalf to achieve those hopes in the next 2½ years. But in turning over direction of the Government to Vice President Ford, I know, as I told the Nation when I nominated him for that office 10 months ago, that the leadership of America will be in good hands.

In passing this office to the Vice President, I also do so with the profound sense of the weight of responsibility that will fall on his shoulders tomorrow and, therefore, of the understanding, the patience, the cooperation he will need from all Americans.

As he assumes that responsibility, he will deserve the help and the support of all of us. As we look to the future, the first essential is to begin healing the wounds of this Nation, to put the bitterness and divisions of the recent past behind us, and to rediscover those shared ideals that lie at the heart of our strength and unity as a great and as a free people.

By taking this action, I hope that I will have hastened the start of that process of healing which is so desperately needed in America.

I regret deeply any injuries that may have been done in the course of the events that led to this decision. I would say only that if some of my judgments were wrong, and some were wrong, they were made in what I believed at the time to be the best interest of the Nation.

To those who have stood with me during these past difficult months, to my family, my friends, to many others who joined in supporting my cause because they believed it was right, I will be eternally grateful for your support.

And to those who have not felt able to give me your support, let me say I leave with no bitterness toward those who have opposed me, because all of us, in the final analysis, have been concerned with the good of the country, however our judgments might differ.

So, let us all now join together in affirming that common commitment and in helping our new President succeed for the benefit of all Americans.

I shall leave this office with regret at not completing my term, but with gratitude for the privilege of serving as your President for the past 5½ years. These years have been a momentous time in the history of our Nation and the world. They have been a time of achievement in which we can all be proud, achievements that represent the shared efforts of the Administration, the Congress, and the people.

But the challenges ahead are equally great, and they, too, will require the support and the efforts of the Congress and the people working in cooperation with the new Administration.

We have ended America's longest war, but in the work of securing a lasting peace in the world, the goals ahead are even more far-reaching and more difficult. We must complete a structure of peace so that it will be said of this generation, our generation of Americans, by the people of all nations, not only that we ended one war but that we prevented future wars.

We have unlocked the doors that for a quarter of a century stood between the United States and the People's Republic of China.

We must now ensure that the one quarter of the world's people who live in the People's Republic of China will be and remain not our enemies but our friends.

In the Middle East, 100 million people in the Arab countries, many of whom have considered us their enemy for nearly 20 years, now look on us as their friends. We must continue to build on that friendship so that peace can settle at last over the Middle East and so that the cradle of civilization will not become its grave.

Together with the Soviet Union we have made the crucial breakthroughs that have begun the process of limiting nuclear arms. But we must set as our goal not just limiting but reducing and finally destroying these terrible weapons so that they cannot destroy civilization and so that the threat of nuclear war will no longer hang over the world and the people.

We have opened the new relation with the Soviet Union. We must continue to develop and expand that new relationship so that the two strongest nations of the world will live together in cooperation rather than confrontation.

Around the world, in Asia, in Africa, in Latin America, in the Middle East, there are millions of people who live in terrible poverty, even starvation. We must keep as our goal turning away from production for war and expanding production for peace so that people everywhere on this earth can at last look forward in their children's time, if not in our own time, to having the necessities for a decent life.

Here in America, we are fortunate that most of our people have not only the blessings of liberty but also the means to live full and good and, by the world's standards, even abundant lives. We must press on, however, toward a goal of not only more and better jobs but of full opportunity for every American and of what we are striving so hard right now to achieve, prosperity without inflation.

For more than a quarter of a century in public life I have shared in the turbulent history of this era. I have fought for what I believed in. I have tried to the best of my ability to discharge those duties and meet those responsibilities that were entrusted to me.

Sometimes I have succeeded and sometimes I have failed, but always I have taken heart from what Theodore Roosevelt once said about the man in the arena, "whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood, who strives valiantly, who errs and comes short again and again because there is not effort without error and shortcoming, but who does actually strive to do the deed, who knows the great enthusiasms, the great devotions, who spends himself in a worthy cause, who at the best knows in the end the triumphs of high achievements and who at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly."

I pledge to you tonight that as long as I have a breath of life in my body, I shall continue in that spirit. I shall continue to work for the great causes to which I have been dedicated throughout my years as a Congressman, a Senator, a Vice President, and President, the cause of peace not just for America but among all nations, prosperity, justice, and opportunity for all of our people.

There is one cause above all to which I have been devoted and to which I shall always be devoted for as long as I live.

When I first took the oath of office as President 5½ years ago, I made this sacred commitment, to "consecrate my office, my energies, and all the wisdom I can summon to the cause of peace among nations."

I have done my very best in all the days since to be true to that pledge. As a result of these efforts, I am confident that the world is a safer place today, not only for the people of America but for the people of all nations, and that all of our children have a better chance than before of living in peace rather than dying in war.

This, more than anything, is what I hoped to achieve when I sought the Presidency. This, more than anything, is what I hope will be my legacy to you, to our country, as I leave the Presidency.

To have served in this office is to have felt a very personal sense of kinship with each and every American. In leaving it, I do so with this prayer: May God's grace be with you in all the days ahead.

NOTE: The President spoke at 9:01 p.m. in the Oval Office at the White House. The address was broadcast live on radio and television.

The Vice President's Remarks to Reporters

Remarks of Vice President Ford Following the President's Address to the Nation. August 8, 1974

I think that this is one of the most difficult and very saddest periods and one of the very saddest incidents that I have ever witnessed.

Let me say that I think the President of the United States has made one of the greatest personal sacrifices for the country and one of the finest personal decisions on behalf of all of us as Americans by his decision to resign as President of the United States.

It has been my opportunity to watch over a period of nearly 25 years a foreign policy in the last 5 years that has been most successful in the achievement of peace for all of us here, and hopefully the rest of the world. It has been a policy that I think can continue—peace in the months and years ahead.

Let me say without any hesitation or reservation that the policy that has achieved peace and built the blocks for future peace will be continued, as far as I am concerned, as President of the United States.

We have been fortunate in the last 5 years to have a very great man in Henry Kissinger who has helped to build the blocks of peace under President Nixon.

I think those policies should be continued, and those policies of peace will be continued. I have asked Henry Kissinger, as Secretary of State, to stay on and to be the Secretary of State under the new Administration.

I have known Henry Kissinger for a great many years. I knew him before he came with the Nixon Administration. I want him to be my Secretary of State, and I am glad to announce that he will be the Secretary of State, which means that he and I will be working together in the pursuit of peace in the future as we have achieved it in the past.

We have many other problems. We have problems at home which must be resolved. They can be resolved and will be resolved by the cooperation of the Congress with the President and those who work with him.

I have been very fortunate in my lifetime in public office to have a good many adversaries in the political arena, in the Congress, but I don't think I have a single enemy in the Congress, and the net result is that I think tomorrow I can start out working with Democrats and with Republicans in the House as well as in the Senate to work on the problems, serious ones which we have at home, in the spirit of cooperation which I believe will be exhibited with the Congress and the new President, and the problems overseas and the problems at home will be beneficial not only to 211 million fine Americans but to the world as a whole.

I pledge to you tonight, as I will pledge tomorrow and in the future, my best efforts and cooperation, leadership, and dedication that is good for America and good for the world.

Thank you very much.

NOTE: The Vice President spoke at his home in Alexandria, Va.

The Press Secretary's Remarks to Reporters

Remarks of Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler Following the President's Address to the Nation. August 8, 1974

MR. ZIEGLER. I don't have a great deal of additional information at this time to provide you, but I did think that it would be important tonight to tell you about tomorrow's schedule and also to give you a brief recap regarding the President's activities today.

Tomorrow morning President Nixon will bid farewell to members of the Cabinet and the White House Staff. That will take place in the East Room at 9:30 a.m. Joining President Nixon and Mrs. Nixon at that time to say farewell to the Cabinet and the staff will be Julie and David and Tricia and Ed Cox.

So, following President Nixon's remarks to the staff and the Cabinet, the President and the family will depart the south grounds by helicopter for Andrews Air Force Base, and they will fly from there to their home in San Clemente. The President and Mrs. Nixon will depart the south grounds at about 10 o'clock in the morning. There will be press coverage, if you would like, of the remarks to the Cabinet and staff tomorrow and of the departure.

The President's letter notifying the Secretary of State of his resignation effective at noon tomorrow, as the President announced tonight, will be delivered to Dr. Kissinger's office here at the White House by noon tomorrow.

As I said earlier today, this has been a difficult day, and these have been difficult times.

I would offer only a personal observation, that the strength of the President during this period and the strength, I believe, and the courage that he showed tonight has sustained the members of the staff who have served the President over the last 5½ years and over the last years and months.

All, I know, have respect for the President and the cause which he has represented through the period of his Presidency.

For those who have asked what the President's activities have been today, we have tried to announce those throughout the day, but to recap those for you at this time, he was up early this morning. He spent time alone in the Residence in the Lincoln Sitting Room before coming to the Oval Office this morning where he met with Al Haig to discuss the business that remained at hand.

The President, as you know, also met with Vice President Ford for over an hour this morning. That meeting began at 11 o'clock and lasted for over an hour.

This afternoon, the President met with members of his personal staff and then spent most of the afternoon working on the address which he delivered to the American people tonight.

Shortly before 7:00 this evening, the President, as you know, left the Executive Office Building and wanted to walk to the Residence privately, and he did that. After spending some time in the Residence, he met with the leadership of the Congress. The first meeting was held at 7:30 and then the final meeting with the Members of Congress was held at 8 o'clock tonight. Both meetings were in the Cabinet Room.

Mr. Warren has provided to the press the names of those leaders who attended the meeting.

Following the speech tonight, the President left the Oval Office and walked, together with Secretary of State Kissinger, to the Residence. Tricia and Ed and Julie and David and Mrs. Nixon watched the President's address tonight on television in the Residence.

I believe that is the general rundown on the President's schedule today. I really don't think at this time that I can answer probably the many questions that you might have, but Mr. Warren will be available and we will provide answers to your questions, of course, regarding the additional items on the President's schedule as they may develop tomorrow, and will provide any additional information to you as the evening and morning unfold.

But I just would like to take a minute myself to say goodbye. I hope, over the next few weeks, to have a chance to see each of you personally, but this is the last time we will be meeting in these circumstances. We have met, of course, in this setting many times, here and around the world. I have been proud to be President Nixon's Press Secretary over the past 5½ years.

I have tried to be professional, as all of you are professional, and I hope I have never underestimated the difficulty of your jobs or the energy and intelligence you bring to them.

We have been through many difficult times together, and we have been through many historic times together. I know that I will remember the good ones and I hope you will, too.

I would like to just conclude by saying that whatever our differences have been, I believe that there are no simple answers to the complex questions that this period poses, but above all, I think I take away from this job a deep sense of respect for the diversity and strength of our country's freedom of expression and for our free press.

Mr. Warren will be providing to you later this evening any additional announcements that we have, and at 12 noon tomorrow, a new man will take this place. And I might say that it has been an honor to be here.

Thank you very much.

NOTE: Mr. Ziegler spoke at 11:02 p.m. in the Briefing Room at the White House.

Remarks to Members of the Cabinet and the White House Staff

The President's Remarks Prior to His Departure From the White House. August 9, 1974

Members of the Cabinet, Members of the White House Staff, all of our friends here:

I think the record should show that this is one of those spontaneous things that we always arrange whenever the President comes in to speak, and it will be so reported in the press, and we don't mind because they have to call it as they see it.

But on our part, believe me, it is spontaneous.

You are here to say goodbye to us, and we don't have a good word for it in English. The best is au revoir. We will see you again.

I just met with the members of the White House staff, you know, those who serve here in the White House day in and day out, and I asked them to do what I ask all of you to do to the extent that you can and, of course, are requested to do so: to serve our next President as you have served me and previous Presidents—because many of you have been here for many years—with devotion and dedication, because this office, great as it is, can only be as great as the men and women who work for and with the President.

This house, for example, I was thinking of it as we walked down this hall, and I was comparing it to some of the great houses of the world that I have been in. This isn't the biggest house. Many, and most, in even smaller countries are much bigger. This isn't the finest house. Many in Europe, particularly, and in China, Asia, have paintings of great, great value, things that we just don't have here, and probably will never have until we are 1,000 years old or older.

But this is the best house. It is the best house because it has something far more important than numbers of people who serve, far more important than numbers of rooms or how big it is, far more important than numbers of magnificent pieces of art.

This house has a great heart, and that heart comes from those who serve. I was rather sorry they didn't come down. We said goodbye to them upstairs. But they are really great. And I recall after so many times I have made speeches, and some of them pretty tough, yet, I always come back, or after a hard day—and my days usually have run rather long—I would always get a lift from them because I might be a little down, but they always smiled.

And so it is with you. I look around here, and I see so many on this staff that, you know, I should have been by your offices and shaken hands, and I would love to have talked to you and found out how to run the world—everybody wants to tell the President what to do, and boy he needs to be told many times—but I just haven't had the time. But I want you to know that each and every one of you, I know, is indispensable to this Government.

I am proud of this Cabinet. I am proud of all the members who have served in our Cabinet. I am proud of our sub-Cabinet. I am proud of our White House Staff. As I pointed out last night, sure we have done some things wrong in this Administration, and the top man always takes the responsibility, and I have never ducked it. But I want to say one thing: We can be proud of it—5½ years. No man or no woman came into this Administration and left it with more of this world's goods than when he came in. No man or no woman ever profited at the public expense or the public till. That tells something about you.

Mistakes, yes. But for personal gain, never. You did what you believed in. Sometimes right, sometimes wrong. And I only wish that I were a wealthy man—at the present time I have got to find a way to pay my taxes—[laughter]—and if I were, I would like to recompense you for the sacrifices that all of you have made to serve in Government.

But you are getting something in Government—and I want you to tell this to your children, and I hope the Nation's children will hear it, too—something in Government service that is far more important than money. It is a cause bigger than yourself. It is the cause of making this the greatest nation in the world, the leader of the world, because without our leadership the world will know nothing but war, possibly starvation, or worse, in the years ahead. With our leadership it will know peace, it will know plenty.

We have been generous, and we will be more generous in the future as we are able to. But most important, we must be strong here, strong in our hearts, strong in our souls, strong in our belief, and strong in our willingness to sacrifice, as you have been willing to sacrifice, in a pecuniary way, to serve in Government.

There is something else I would like for you to tell your young people. You know, people often come in and say, "What will I tell my kids?" They look at government and say it is sort of a rugged life, and they see the mistakes that are made. They get the impression that everybody is here for the purpose of feathering his nest. That is why I made this earlier point—not in this Administration, not one single man or woman.

And I say to them, "There are many fine careers. This country needs good farmers, good businessmen, good plumbers, good carpenters."

I remembered my old man. I think that they would have called him sort of a little man, common man. He didn't consider himself that way. You know what he was? He was a streetcar motorman first, and then he was a farmer, and then he had a lemon ranch. It was the poorest lemon ranch in California, I can assure you. He sold it before they found oil on it. [Laughter]

And then he was a grocer. But he was a great man because he did his job, and every job counts up to the hilt, regardless of what happens.

Nobody will ever write a book, probably, about my mother. Well, I guess all of you would say this about your mother—my mother was a saint. And I think of her, two boys dying of tuberculosis, nursing four others in order that she could take care of my older brother for 3 years in Arizona, and seeing each of them die, and when they died, it was like one of her own.

Yes, she will have no books written about her. But she was a saint.

Now, however, we look to the future. I had a little quote in the speech last night from T.R. As you know, I kind of like to read books. I am not educated, but I do read books—[laughter]—and the T.R. quote was a pretty good one.

Here is another one I found as I was reading, my last night in the White House, and this quote is about a young man. He was a young lawyer in New York. He had married a beautiful girl, and they had a lovely daughter, and then suddenly she died, and this is what he wrote. This was in his diary.

He said: "She was beautiful in face and form and lovelier still in spirit. As a flower she grew and as a fair young flower she died. Her life had been always in the sunshine. There had never come to her a single great sorrow. None ever knew her who did not love and revere her for her bright and sunny temper and her saintly unselfishness. Fair, pure and joyous as a maiden, loving, tender and happy as a young wife. When she had just become a mother, when her life seemed to be just begun and when the years seemed so bright before her, then by a strange and terrible fate death came to her. And when my heart's dearest died, the light went from my life forever."

That was T.R. in his twenties. He thought the light had gone from his life forever—but he went on. And he not only became President but, as an ex-President, he served his country always in the arena, tempestuous, strong, sometimes wrong, sometimes right, but he was a man.

And as I leave, let me say, that is an example I think all of us should remember. We think sometimes when things happen that don't go the right way; we think that when you don't pass the bar exam the first time—I happened to, but I was just lucky; I mean my writing was so poor the bar examiner said, “We have just got to let the guy through.” [Laughter] We think that when someone dear to us dies, we think that when we lose an election, we think that when we suffer a defeat, that all is ended. We think, as T.R. said, that the light had left his life forever.

Not true. It is only a beginning always. The young must know it; the old must know it. It must always sustain us because the greatness comes not when things go always good for you, but the greatness comes when you are really tested, when you take some knocks, some disappointments, when sadness comes, because only if you have been in the deepest valley can you ever know how magnificent it is to be on the highest mountain.

And so I say to you on this occasion, as we leave, we leave proud of the people who have stood by us and worked for us and served this country.

We want you to be proud of what you have done. We want you to continue to serve in Government, if that is your wish. Always give your best, never get discouraged, never be petty; always remember others may hate you, but those who hate you don't win unless you hate them, and then you destroy yourself.

And so, we leave with high hopes, in good spirit and with deep humility, and with very much gratefulness in our hearts. I can only say to each and every one of you, we come from many faiths, we pray perhaps to different gods, but really the same God in a sense, but I want to say for each and every one of you, not only will we always remember you, not only will we always be grateful to you but always you will be in our hearts and you will be in our prayers.

Thank you very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 9:36 a.m. in the East Room at the White House. His remarks were broadcast live on radio and television.

Following his remarks, the President and Mrs. Nixon departed for their home in San Clemente, Calif.

Resignation of President Nixon

The President's Letter to the Secretary of State. August 9, 1974

Dear Mr. Secretary:

I hereby resign the Office of President of the United States.

Sincerely,

RICHARD NIXON

[The Honorable Henry A. Kissinger, The Secretary of State, Washington, D.C. 20520]

NOTE: The White House announced that the letter was delivered by Alexander M. Haig, Jr., to the Secretary of State in his White House office at 11:35 a.m. on Friday, August 9, 1974.

The text of the letter was made available by the White House Press Office.

Digest of Other White House Announcements

August 6

The President met with the Cabinet at the White House. Following the meeting, he met with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Rabbi Baruch Korff, Chairman of the National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency, met with the President at the White House.

August 7

The President announced that he has redesignated Joseph O. Parker as Vice Chairman of the United States Tariff Commission for the period expiring June 16, 1975.

The President transmitted to the Congress the fourth annual report on Government services to rural America.

The White House released copies of the report entitled “Federal Strategy for Drug Abuse and Drug Traffic Prevention—1974” prepared by the Strategy Council on Drug Abuse.

August 8

The President announced the designation of Robert A. Hurwitch, U.S. Ambassador to the Dominican Republic, as his Personal Representative, with the rank of Special Ambassador, to attend inaugural ceremonies for Joaquin Balaguer as President of the Dominican Republic in Santo Domingo August 14–18.

The President today accepted, with deep regret, the resignation of William O. Doub as a member of the Atomic Energy Commission, effective August 17, 1974.

The President today accepted, with deep gratitude for his dedicated service to the Nation, the resignation of Robert T. Monagan as Assistant Secretary of Transportation for Congressional and Intergovernmental Affairs, effective September 1, 1974.

The President today accepted, with a special sense of regret, the resignation of Raymond L. Bisplinghoff as Deputy Director of the National Science Foundation, effective September 30, 1974.

The President announced the appointment of William G. Saletic, of Seattle, Wash., as a member on the part of the United States of the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission.

The President transmitted to the Congress the annual report of the National Advisory Council on Adult Education for fiscal year 1974.

Prior to his address to the American people, the President met with one group of bipartisan Congressional leaders in his office in the Old Executive Office Building and with a second group of the leaders in the Cabinet Room at the White House.

NOMINATIONS SUBMITTED TO THE SENATE

The following list does not include promotions of members of the Uniformed Services, nominations to the Service Academies, or nominations of Foreign Service officers.

Submitted August 5, 1974

HENRY F. TRIONE, of California, to be a member of the Board of Directors of the National Corporation for Housing Partnerships for the term expiring October 27, 1977 (reappointment).

Submitted August 7, 1974

The following-named persons to be members of the Board of Directors of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting for the terms indicated:

For the remainder of the term expiring March 26, 1978:

AMOS B. HOSTETTER, JR., of Massachusetts, vice Theodore W. Braun, resigned.

For a term expiring March 26, 1980:

JOSEPH COORS, of Colorado, vice Albert L. Cole, term expired.

LUCIUS PERRY GREGG, JR., of Illinois, vice James R. Killian, Jr., term expired.

LILLIE E. HERNDON, of South Carolina, vice Frank Pace, Jr., term expired.

JOHN WHITNEY PETTIT, of Maryland, vice Robert S. Benjamin, term expired.

NOMINATIONS SUBMITTED TO THE SENATE—Continued

Submitted August 8, 1974

THOMAS J. MESKILL, of Connecticut, to be United States Circuit Judge for the Second Circuit, vice J. Joseph Smith, retired.

DONALD D. ALSOP, of Minnesota, to be United States District Judge for the District of Minnesota, vice Philip Neville, deceased.

ROBERT W. WARREN, of Wisconsin, to be United States District Judge for the Eastern District of Wisconsin, vice Robert E. Tehan, retired.

Withdrawn August 8, 1974

WILLIAM H. ERICKSON, of Colorado, to be a Judge of the United States Court of Military Appeals for the remainder of the term expiring May 1, 1986, vice Robert M. Duncan, which was sent to the Senate on June 21, 1974.

CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES

NOTE: All releases received by the Office of the Federal Register during the period covered by this issue have been included in the issue.

ACTS APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT

Approved August 5, 1974

H.R. 14592----- Public Law 93-365
Department of Defense Appropriation Authorization Act, 1975.

S. 39----- Public Law 93-366
An act to amend the Federal Aviation Act of 1958 to implement the Convention for the Suppression of Unlawful Seizure of Aircraft; to provide a more effective program to prevent aircraft piracy; and for other purposes.

Approved August 7, 1974

H.R. 8217----- Public Law 93-368
An act to exempt from duty certain equipment and repairs for vessels operated by or for any agency of the United States where the entries were made in connection with vessels arriving before January 5, 1971, and for other purposes.

S.J. Res. 228----- Public Law 93-367
Joint resolution to extend the expiration date of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

Administration of Gerald R. Ford

PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Week Ending Saturday, August 10, 1974

SWEARING IN OF THE PRESIDENT

Oath of Office Taken by the President at a Ceremony in the East Room at the White House. August 9, 1974

I, Gerald R. Ford, do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the Office of President of the United States, and will to the best of my ability, preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States, so help me God.

NOTE: In a ceremony in the East Room at the White House, Warren E. Burger, Chief Justice of the United States, administered the oath of office to President Ford at noon on Friday, August 9, 1974. The ceremony was broadcast live on radio and television.

SWEARING IN OF THE PRESIDENT

The President's Remarks Following His Swearing In as the 38th President of the United States. August 9, 1974

Mr. Chief Justice, my dear friends, my fellow Americans:

The oath that I have taken is the same oath that was taken by George Washington and by every President under the Constitution. But I assume the Presidency under extraordinary circumstances, never before experienced by Americans. This is an hour of history that troubles our minds and hurts our hearts.

Therefore, I feel it is my first duty to make an unprecedented compact with my countrymen. Not an inaugural address, not a fireside chat, not a campaign speech—just a little straight talk among friends. And I intend it to be the first of many.

I am acutely aware that you have not elected me as your President by your ballots, and so I ask you to confirm me as your President with your prayers. And I hope that such prayers will also be the first of many.

If you have not chosen me by secret ballot, neither have I gained office by any secret promises. I have not campaigned either for the Presidency or the Vice Presidency. I have not subscribed to any partisan platform. I am indebted to no man, and only to one woman—my dear wife—as I begin this very difficult job.

I have not sought this enormous responsibility, but I will not shirk it. Those who nominated and confirmed me as Vice President were my friends and are my friends. They were of both parties, elected by all the people and acting under the Constitution in their name. It is only fitting then that I should pledge to them and to you that I will be the President of all the people.

Thomas Jefferson said the people are the only sure reliance for the preservation of our liberty. And down the years, Abraham Lincoln renewed this American article of faith asking, "Is there any better way or equal hope in the world?"

I intend, on Monday next, to request of the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President pro tempore of the Senate the privilege of appearing before the Congress to share with my former colleagues and with you, the American people, my views on the priority business of the Nation and to solicit your views and their views. And may I say to the Speaker and the others, if I could meet with you right after these remarks, I would appreciate it.

Even though this is late in an election year, there is no way we can go forward except together and no way anybody can win except by serving the people's urgent needs. We cannot stand still or slip backwards. We must go forward now together.

To the peoples and the governments of all friendly nations, and I hope that could encompass the whole world, I pledge an uninterrupted and sincere search for peace. America will remain strong and united, but its strength will remain dedicated to the safety and sanity of the entire family of man, as well as to our own precious freedom.

I believe that truth is the glue that holds government together, not only our Government, but civilization itself. That bond, though strained, is unbroken at home and abroad.

In all my public and private acts as your President, I expect to follow my instincts of openness and candor with full confidence that honesty is always the best policy in the end.

My fellow Americans, our long national nightmare is over.

Our Constitution works; our great Republic is a Government of laws and not of men. Here the people rule. But there is a higher power, by whatever name we honor Him, who ordains not only righteousness but love, not only justice but mercy.

As we bind up the internal wounds of Watergate, more painful and more poisonous than those of foreign wars, let us restore the golden rule to our political process, and let brotherly love purge our hearts of suspicion and of hate.

In the beginning, I asked you to pray for me. Before closing, I ask again your prayers, for Richard Nixon and for his family. May our former President, who brought peace to millions, find it for himself. May God bless and comfort his wonderful wife and daughters, whose love and loyalty will forever be a shining legacy to all who bear the lonely burdens of the White House.

I can only guess at those burdens, although I have witnessed at close hand the tragedies that befell three Presidents and the lesser trials of others.

With all the strength and all the good sense I have gained from life, with all the confidence my family, my friends, and my dedicated staff impart to me, and with the good will of countless Americans I have encountered in recent visits to 40 States, I now solemnly reaffirm my promise I made to you last December 6: to uphold the Constitution, to do what is right as God gives me to see the right, and to do the very best I can for America.

God helping me, I will not let you down.

Thank you.

NOTE: The President spoke at 12:05 p.m. in the East Room at the White House. His remarks were broadcast live on radio and television.

Press Secretary to the President

The President's Remarks Announcing the Appointment of J. F. terHorst. August 9, 1974

Good morning:

Number one, it is a nice opportunity this morning to get reacquainted with many of you who suffered with me when I was over here with Ev Dirksen and subsequently with Hugh Scott, so let me say that I look forward to meeting the new faces, and it is a pleasure to see those that I have known before.

I have two profound announcements to make.

We will have one of yours as my Press Secretary, Jerry terHorst. We will, of course, have Paul Miltich and Bill Roberts with Jerry. We haven't worked out all the titles and responsibilities, but that will be our team, and I hope and trust that they can work with you as well as Paul and Bill have worked with the people that I have been working with.

The second one is—the second very profound announcement—I understand that where many of you are standing there is a swimming pool. And you know my great interest in aquatic activity. [Laughter]

I haven't made a firm decision yet. I don't know whether we should solicit your recommendations or whether we should just confine it to the National Security Council or some other very important body. [Laughter]

Let me say again, I do look forward to working with you. We will have, I trust, the kind of rapport and friendship which we had in the past. And I don't ask you to treat me any better than I would expect in reverse.

We will have an open, we will have a candid Administration. I can't change my nature after 61 years.

So, all I can say is thank you for your kindnesses in the past, your reporting, good and bad, mistakes and maybe a few pluses, and I say again, good luck to you, and thanks for the opportunity of seeing you this morning.

I should tell you that Jerry terHorst was, along with several others, responsible for my first political success. He and another very fine reporter from Grand Rapids connived to help me get a little extra space in the Grand Rapids Press, and I am just delighted to have Jerry with us here on this occasion.

NOTE: The President spoke at 1:04 p.m. in the Briefing Room at the White House. His remarks were broadcast live on radio and television.

For a release on the appointment of Mr. terHorst, see the following item.

Press Secretary to the President

Announcement of Appointment of J. F. terHorst August 9, 1974

The President today announced the appointment of J. F. terHorst, of Alexandria, Va., as Press Secretary to the President.

Mr. terHorst has been the Washington bureau chief for the Detroit News since 1961. In 1946, he became a reporter for the Grand Rapids Press. He joined the staff of the Detroit News in 1953, where he was the city and state political writer until 1957. In 1958, he became a Washington correspondent and became the bureau chief in 1961.

Mr. terHorst was born in Grand Rapids, Mich., on July 11, 1922. He received his A.B. from the University of Michigan and served as an officer in the U.S. Marine Corps from 1943 to 1946.

Mr. terHorst resides in Alexandria, Va., and is married to the former Louise Roth. They have four children: Karen, Margaret, Peter, and Martha.

The President's Initial Appointments and Meetings

Remarks of J. F. terHorst, Press Secretary to the President, Announcing the Appointments of a Transition Team and a Counsellor to the President, Together With Details on the President's Schedule. August 9, 1974

The President has asked a group of prominent citizens and Government officials to assist him in bringing about an orderly transition in the Government. He has precisely asked four individuals—Donald Rumsfeld, Rogers C. B. Morton, John O. Marsh, Jr., and William W. Scranton—to be members of this transition team, and he has sought and asked and is getting their advice on the best ways to build an effective White House organization.

The transition staff will provide liaison with members of Mr. Ford's Vice Presidential Staff, the existing White House Staff, and the Cabinet and heads of agencies. We have biographical material on these four men.

The President also asked me to announce the appointment of Robert T. Hartmann, who was chief of the Vice Presidential Staff. He will become a Counsellor to the President.

After the swearing-in ceremony in the East Room and brief appearance here in the Briefing Room, President Ford met with the senior White House Staff for about 20 minutes, a group brought together at President Ford's request and brought together by General Haig. The meeting took place in the Roosevelt Room.

At the meeting, the President told the members of the senior White House Staff that he would not request their pro forma resignations and that he hoped that many of them would stay on to assist in this transitional period. General Haig, responding for the group, assured him that they would be willing to do that, and told President Ford that the same loyalty which they had given to President Nixon would now be President Ford's as far as the senior White House Staff is concerned, as General Haig put it, "in our hour of common cause."

Later this afternoon, as you probably know, the President met with a group of economic advisers in the Cabinet Room. Attending the meeting were Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board; the Secretary of the Treasury, William Simon; Counsellor Kenneth Rush; Herbert Stein, Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers; and his successor-designate, Alan Greenspan; Budget Director Ash; and also sitting in on that meeting were Robert Hartmann, William Seidman, and Governor Scranton.

As you know, starting later this afternoon, the President has commenced a series of meetings with Ambassadors of various countries, and that will continue until early this evening.

He also met with a group of NATO Ambassadors and with a group of Latin American Ambassadors and the Vietnamese Ambassador. We will post a complete schedule of these meetings and the full list of the names of those who were there.

I might say in connection with the Ambassadorial meetings that the President, along with Secretary Kissinger, underlined the continuity of bipartisan American foreign policy as conducted in the national interest, and as reflected in President Ford's comments last evening, that he can say with no hesitation or reservation that the policy that has achieved peace and built blocks for the future will be continued.

In his talks with the NATO Ambassadors, the President and Secretary of State also underlined the fact that NATO is the central element in our foreign policy and that the evolution begun with the NATO Declaration of Principles, which President Nixon signed in Brussels on his recent trip, will continue.

NOTE: Mr. terHorst made the remarks at his news conference at the White House on Friday, August 9, 1974. They were not issued in the form of a White House press release.

For a release on the appointment of Robert T. Hartmann as Counsellor to the President, see the following item.

Counsellor to the President

Announcement of Appointment of Robert T. Hartmann. August 9, 1974

The President today announced the appointment of Robert T. Hartmann, Chief of his Vice Presidential Staff, as Counsellor to the President.

Mr. Hartmann was Minority Sergeant at Arms of the House of Representatives in the 91st, 92d, and 93d Congresses and Legislative Assistant to then Minority Leader Gerald R. Ford before Mr. Ford became Vice President on December 6, 1973. Mr. Hartmann was formerly the chief of the Washington bureau of the Los Angeles Times from 1954 to 1964.

Mr. Hartmann is a native of Rapid City, S. Dak. He spent most of his lifetime in California and received his B.A. from Stanford University in 1938. He served in the Pacific during World War II and is a retired captain from the United States Naval Reserve.

He is married to the former Roberta Sankey. They reside in Westgate, Md., and have two children.

NOTE: On Saturday, August 10, 1974, the President participated in a swearing-in ceremony for Mr. Hartmann at the White House. The oath of office was administered by John J. Ratchford, Executive Clerk at the White House.

Presidential Transition

Memorandums for White House Staff, Vice Presidential Staff, and Heads of Departments and Agencies. Dated August 9, 1974. Released August 10, 1974

MEMORANDUM FOR THE WHITE HOUSE STAFF
FROM: The Vice President

I know this has been a difficult and confusing time for each of you. You must have feelings of sorrow, as I do, but you also should be proud—proud of the President you served and of your efforts for him and the country.

Many of you will want to go on to other pursuits now that your service to him has ended. I understand and respect that, but I also need your help. I ask each of you to stay on long enough to assure a steady and informed transition of the Presidency.

I have asked some friends whose counsel I respect to help me with the transition. They will form a bridge for me to my Vice Presidential staff office and to the officials of the Executive Branch until a permanent organization is established. I ask your help and cooperation for them as well as myself.

President Nixon fought long and with all his might to serve the American people well, ending his Presidency with a selfless and courageous act. You can still serve him and the Nation by helping me to carry on the essential functions of the Presidency. I will meet with the senior officials of the White House in the Roosevelt Room soon after I take the oath of office to discuss transition arrangements and responsibilities.

MEMORANDUM FOR MEMBERS OF THE VICE PRESIDENTIAL STAFF

On a number of occasions in the past, I have told you that I was only the "front man" in our efforts. Behind the scenes, each of you worked, sometimes day and night, and often all weekend, to facilitate our joint efforts. Some have been with me longer than others, but all of you have combined in a short time to perform at a singular level of excellence.

As I assume the new responsibilities of the Presidency, I want you to know how mindful I am of your past labors—and how grateful and indebted I am to you. You have contributed indispensably to the successful operation of the Office of the Vice President and to my ability to assume my new responsibilities. Our staff has been close to one another, much as a family, and I hope all of you understand the depth of my appreciation and affection. Although I am moving to another office, my loyalty and esteem for you remain unchanged.

I have asked some old friends to come in and help us during this difficult period, which we all hoped would not come. I hope you will render all possible cooperation to those who will be here to facilitate the transition, as well as to those of Mr. Nixon's staff for whom this time is even more difficult than it is for us.

With heartfelt thanks,

GERALD R. FORD

MEMORANDUM FOR THE HEADS OF DEPARTMENTS AND AGENCIES

Just as President Nixon kept up the business of government so long as he was President, I know each of you has worked diligently to carry out the responsibilities you hold. I am sure you have a feeling of sorrow, as I do, but you can also take pride in the many constructive accomplishments made by the Nixon Administration.

Some of you may now want to pass your responsibilities on to others. But I need your help. I ask each of you to continue to carry on the mission of your agency and to give me the advice I need as I take on my new responsibilities.

I have asked some friends whose counsel I respect to help me with the transition. They will form a bridge for me to my Vice Presidential staff office and to the officials of the Executive Branch until a permanent organization is established. I ask your help and cooperation for them as well as myself.

President Nixon fought long and with all his might to serve the American people well, ending his Presidency with a selfless and courageous act. You can still serve him and the Nation by helping me to carry on the essential functions of the Presidency. I will hold a Cabinet meeting Saturday morning at 10:00 a.m. I will meet with heads of other government agencies and with the sub-cabinet as soon as my schedule permits.

GERALD R. FORD

Counsellor to the President

Announcement of Appointment of John O. Marsh, Jr. August 10, 1974

The President today announced the appointment of John O. Marsh, Jr., as Counsellor to the President. He has been Assistant to the Vice President for Defense Affairs since January 1974.

From 1973 to 1974, he was Assistant Secretary of Defense for Legislative Affairs. Mr. Marsh, 47, was elected to four successive terms in the U.S. House of Representatives as a Virginia Democrat. He served as a member of the Appropriations, Veterans Affairs, and Interior and Insular Affairs Committees. Mr. Marsh, a graduate of Washington and Lee Law School, has practiced law from 1952 until his election to Congress in 1962 and resumed the practice of law in Washington after retiring voluntarily from the House in 1970 to practice law.

Mr. Marsh was named "Outstanding Young Man in Virginia" by the Virginia Junior Chamber of Commerce in 1959. He also received the Distinguished Service Medal of the American Legion's Department of Virginia. A graduate of the Infantry Officer Candidate School, Mr. Marsh is presently a lieutenant colonel in the Virginia National Guard.

Mr. Marsh is married to the former Glenn Ann Patterson of Kenbridge, Va. They live in Arlington, Va.

Digest of Other White House Announcements

Following is a listing of items of general interest which were announced to the press during the period covered by this issue but which are not carried elsewhere in the issue. Appointments requiring Senate approval are not included since they appear in the list of nominations submitted to the Senate, below.

August 9

Following his swearing in as the 38th President of the United States, President Ford held a series of meetings at the White House. The President met with:

- members of the bipartisan Congressional leadership;
- senior members of the White House Staff;
- a group of economic advisers, including Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the Federal Reserve Board, Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon, Kenneth Rush, Counsellor to the President for Economic Policy, Chairman Herbert Stein and Chairman-designate Alan Greenspan of the Council of Economic Advisers, and Director Roy L. Ash of the Office of Management and Budget; Robert T. Hartmann, William Seidman, and William W. Scranton also participated in the meeting;

- Ambassadors from the NATO nations of Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, Federal Republic of Germany, Greece, Iceland, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Turkey, and the United Kingdom;
- Japanese Ambassador Takeshi Yasukawa;
- Soviet Chargé Yuly M. Vorontsov;
- Ambassadors from the Middle Eastern nations of Algeria, Egypt, Jordan, Kuwait, Lebanon, Libya, Morocco, Oman, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, Sudan, Syria, Tunisia, United Arab Emirates, and Yemen;
- Huang Chen, Chief of the Liaison Office of the People's Republic of China;
- Ambassadors of the Latin American nations of Argentina, the Bahamas, Barbados, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, El Salvador, Guatemala, Guyana, Haiti, Honduras, Jamaica, Mexico, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Trinidad and Tobago, Uruguay, and Venezuela;
- Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz;
- South Vietnamese Ambassador Tran Kim Phuong.

August 10

The President held separate meetings at the White House with the Cabinet and the National Security Council.

The President has sent messages to many heads of government around the world, assuring them of the continuity of American foreign policy and America's desire for continued good and strong relations.

CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES

The following releases of the Office of the White House Press Secretary, distributed during the period covered by this issue, are not included in the issue.

Released August 9, 1974

Biographical data on the transition team:

- Donald Rumsfeld, Rogers C. B. Morton,
- John O. Marsh, Jr., William W. Scranton.

NOMINATIONS SUBMITTED TO THE SENATE

NOTE: No nominations were submitted to the Senate by President Ford during the period covered by this issue.

ACTS APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT

Approved August 10, 1974

- H.R. 10309..... Public Law 93-370
An act to amend the Act of June 13, 1933 (Public Law 73-40), concerning safety standards for boilers and pressure vessels, and for other purposes.
- H.R. 13264..... Public Law 93-369
An act to amend the provisions of the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, 1930, relating to practices in the marketing of perishable agricultural commodities.

CUMULATIVE INDEX TO PRIOR ISSUES

Third Quarter, 1974

[See Index of Contents for Documents in this Issue]

ABM. See Anti-ballistic missile systems
Acts approved. See last page of text in each issue

Addresses and Remarks of the President

Ash, Roy L., dinner honoring the President	819
Belgium
Arrival in Brussels	728
Departure from Washington	718, 727
Luncheon in Brussels	732
Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, signing ceremony	799
Economy, national, address to Nation	830
French gift for the American Revolution Bicentennial, exchange of remarks with French Ambassador Jacques Kosciuszko-Morizet	796
Lowman, Dr. Charles LeRoy, Medal of Freedom presentation	997
National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency	813
People's Republic of China, martial arts and acrobatic troupe visit to the White House	801
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics
Address to the Soviet people	744
Departure from Washington	718, 727
Minsk	742
Moscow	735, 748
Report to the Nation, Loring Air Force Base, Maine	766
United States Space Week, 1974	815
Administrative Conference of the United States, Chairman	1003, 1005
Agriculture, Department of, Secretary	796, 799, 803, 1000
Albrecht, Richard R.	804
Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration	806, 818
American Revolution Bicentennial, French gift	796, 797, 804
Annenberg, Walter H.	817
Anthony, Robert Armstrong	1003, 1005
Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocols to treaty on the limitation of	750, 756
Antigua, U.S. Special Representative	994

Appointments and Nominations

Administrative Conference of the United States, Chairman	1003, 1005
Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, Administrator	806, 818
Ambassadors, United States, Syria	999, 1005
Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman	828, 995
Council on International Economic Policy, Executive Director	788, 804
Federal Aviation Administration, Deputy Administrator	817, 995
Federal Energy Administration
Assistant Administrator	789, 804
General Counsel	789, 804
Office of Intergovernmental and Regional Relations, Director	839, 1005
Federal Regional Councils, Chairmen	829
Foreign Claims Settlement Commission
Chairman	793
Members	804, 839, 1005
Interior Department
Assistant Secretary	838, 1005
United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Director	838, 1005
Justice Department, Assistant Attorney General	998, 1005

Appointments and Nominations—Continued

Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, Administrator	999, 1005
National Commission for the Observation of World Population Year, 1974, members	798
Office of Economic Opportunity, Director	807, 1005
President's Commission on White House Fellowships, members	830
Securities and Exchange Commission, member	806, 818
State Department
Assistant Inspector General, Foreign Assistance	830
Assistant Secretary	1002, 1005
Treasury Department
Deputy Secretary	804
General Counsel	804
U.S. attorney, Texas	804
U.S. circuit judge, 2d circuit	804
U.S. Court of Military Appeals, associate judge	1003, 1005
U.S. district judge, Georgia	804
U.S. marshals
California	804
Louisiana	803, 818
White House Staff
Deputy Assistant	795
Special Assistant	816
Arends, Repr. Leslie C.	802
Argentina, President Juan Domingo Peron, death	771
Armed Forces, United States	729, 731
Arms control and disarmament	750, 751, 753, 755, 756, 763, 764, 769
Armstrong, Anne L.	802, 815
Army, Department of the, Assistant Secretary	802
Arnett, Alvin J.	817
Ash, Roy L.	802, 804, 817, 819, 994
Atlantic Relations, Declaration on	728, 729, 731
Augelli, Anthony T.	1004

Awards and Citations

Presidential Medal of Freedom	997, 1005
Baker, Repr. LaMar	802
Barbados, U.S. Ambassador to	994
Baudouin I, King	728, 732, 790
Belgium
King Baudouin I	728, 732, 790
President's visit
Arrival in Brussels	728
Declaration of Atlantic Relations	729, 731
Departure from Washington	718, 727
Luncheon in Brussels	732
Prime Minister Leo Tindermans	790
Bell, J. Raymond	793, 804
Berg, Eugene E.	802
Bicentennial, American Revolution	796, 797, 804

Bill Signings

Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, remarks and statement	799, 800
Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974, statement	838
Birknes, John A.	804
Bohanon, Luther	1004
Brandy imports	807
Brennan, Peter J.	802
Brezhnev, L. I.	735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
Budget, federal spending	799, 800, 821, 832
Budget, Office of Management and. See Management and Budget, Office of

Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, Congressional	799, 800, 804
Burch, Dean	791, 802, 995
Burnham, D.C.	830
Burns, Arthur F.	802
Business and industry, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	741, 759, 791
Butz, Earl L.	803
Cabinet, meeting with the President	802
California, U.S. marshal	804
Callaghan, James	999
Captive Nations Week, 1974	801
Carlos, Prince Juan	814
Carlson, Jack W.	838, 1005
Cary, Frank	794
Casey, Thomas R.	828, 829
Checklist of unpublished releases. See last page of text in each issue
China, People's Republic of, Wushu troupe, visit to the White House	801
Civil defense medical and food stockpiles	798
Claims Settlement Commission, Foreign	793, 804, 839, 1005
Coffee Agreement, International	796
Cole, Kenneth R., Jr.	830
Colombia
President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen, inauguration	994
U.S. Ambassador to	994
Commerce, Department of, Secretary	788, 1000
Commercial Commission, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics	741
Commodity Credit Corporation	1004
Congress
House of Representatives, Judiciary Committee	791, 818, 822, 840, 995
Meetings with the President
Bipartisan leadership	802
Republican leaders	802
Sequoia meetings	802
Senate, Foreign Relations Committee	807
Congress, Communications to
Commodity Credit Corporation, annual report transmittal	1004
Cost of Living Task Force, message	1002
Government executive development, message	808
Hazardous Materials Transportation Control Act of 1970, annual report transmittal	802
International Coffee Agreement, annual report transmittal	796
International Maritime Traffic Convention, amended text transmittal	998
National Heart and Lung Advisory Council, annual report transmittal	998
National security investigations and wiretaps, letter to Chairman of Senate Foreign Relations Committee	807
Urban transportation policies and activities, annual report transmittal	1001
World Weather Program, annual report transmittal	1001
Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974	799, 800, 804
Connor, Robert E.	798, 805
Conservation, forest products and resources	1000
Construction, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	739, 781, 791

Construction, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in Housing and Other.....	739, 761
Cook, William Holmes.....	1003, 1005
Cooperation in Europe, Conference on Security and.....	757
Cortina, Pedro Mauri.....	814
Cost of Living Task Force, proposed.....	1002, 1005
Council. See other part of title
Courts, United States
U.S. attorney, Texas.....	804
U.S. circuit judge, 2d circuit.....	804
U.S. Court of Military Appeals, associate judge.....	1003, 1005
U.S. district judge
Georgia.....	804
New Jersey.....	1004
Oklahoma.....	1004
U.S. marshals
California.....	804
Louisiana.....	803, 818
Massachusetts.....	804
Credit Corporation, Commodity.....	1004
Cultural exchanges, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	762
Curtis, Sen. Carl T.....	802
Cyprus.....	817, 819, 999
Dean, Dizzy.....	813
DeBaca, Fernando E. C.....	816
Defense, Department of, Secretary.....	799
Dent, Frederick B.....	788
Digest of other White House announcements. See last pages of text in each issue
Disaster assistance, States receiving
Minnesota.....	805
New York.....	829
Ohio.....	798
Disaster relief functions.....	799
District of Columbia, National Guard, Commanding General.....	802
Doar, John M.....	824, 825
Domestic Council.....	802
Dominica, U.S. Special Representative.....	994
Donovan, Eileen R.....	994
Dow, James E.....	817, 995
Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, Alcohol.....	806, 818
DuPont, Dr. Robert L., Jr.....	806, 818
Eberle, William D.....	788, 804
Economic Advisers, Council of, Chairman.....	802, 815, 817, 818, 828, 995
Economic cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	741, 759, 791
Economic Opportunity, Office of, Director.....	807, 817, 1005
Economic Policy, Council on International, Executive Director.....	788, 804
Economy, national
Address to Nation.....	830
Cost of Living Task Force, proposed.....	1002
Federal spending.....	799, 800, 821, 832
Inflation.....	800, 802, 821, 830
Emergency Board No. 185, railway labor dispute.....	789
Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974.....	838
Energy
Conservation.....	788
U.S.S.R., cooperation with.....	737, 761, 791
Energy, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in the Field of.....	737, 761
Energy Administration, Federal.....	788, 789, 839, 1004
Environment
U.S.S.R., cooperation with.....	753, 762
U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint statement.....	753
World Weather Program.....	1001
Environmental warfare.....	753, 765
Erbe, Norman A.....	829
Europe
U.S. forces.....	729, 731
U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint communique.....	757
European Economic Community, brandy imports.....	807
Executive Orders
Civil defense medical and food stockpiles (EO 11794).....	798
Disaster relief functions (EO 11795).....	799
Exports, regulation of (EO 11796).....	999
Federal facilities in rural areas, report (EO 11797).....	1000
Secretary of Agriculture (EO 11793).....	796
Exports, regulation.....	999
Fabiola, Queen.....	790
Federal Aviation Administration, Deputy Administrator.....	817, 995
Federal employees. See Government employees
Federal Energy Administration
Administrator.....	788
Assistant Administrator.....	789, 804, 1004
General Counsel.....	789, 804
Office of Intergovernmental and Regional Relations, Director.....	839, 1005
Federal Regional Councils, Chairmen.....	829
Federal Reserve System
Board of Governors.....	802
Monetary restraint.....	833
Federal spending. See Budget; Economy, national
Food, civil defense stockpiles.....	798
Ford, Vice President Gerald R.....	766, 802, 817, 818
Foreign Claims Settlement Commission.....	793, 804, 839, 1005
Foreman, Ed.....	829
Forest Products Week, 1974, National.....	1000
France
Bicentennial gift.....	796, 797, 804
President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing.....	797
Fulbright, Sen. J. William.....	807
Gallejos, Bert A.....	807, 1005
Gardner, Stephen S.....	804
Geimer, William W.....	839, 1005
Geneva Peace Conference on the Middle East.....	758
Genscher, Hans-Dietrich.....	994
Georgia, U.S. district judge.....	804
Germany, Federal Republic of
Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.....	790
Vice-Chancellor and Minister of Foreign Affairs Hans-Dietrich Genscher.....	994
Gesell, Gerhard A.....	802
Ghana, U.S. Ambassador to.....	994
Giscard d'Estaing, Valéry.....	790, 797
Goodearle, Roy.....	803
Government departments and agencies, energy conservation.....	788
Government employees, executive development.....	808, 818
Greece
Cyprus conflict.....	817, 820
Prime Minister Konstantinos Karamanlis.....	994
Green, S. William.....	829
Greenspan, Alan.....	828, 995
Greenwalt, Lynn Adams.....	838, 1005
Grenada, U.S. Special Representative.....	994
Griffin, Sen. Robert P.....	802
Gurfelin, Murray I.....	804
Habib, Philip C.....	1002, 1005
Hadden, A. Roby.....	804
Hadsel, Fred L.....	994
Hartman, Arthur A.....	791
Hays, David W.....	829
Hazardous materials transportation.....	802
Health, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	740, 761, 791
Health, Education, and Welfare, Department of
Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, Administrator.....	806, 818
Secretary.....	802, 804
Health Cooperation, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee for.....	740, 761
Heart and Lung Advisory Council, National.....	998
Heart research, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	740, 761, 791
Hodgson, James D.....	802
Hogan, Repr. Lawrence J.....	995
Housing, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	739, 761, 791
Housing and Other Construction, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in.....	739, 761
Housing and Urban Development, Department of, Secretary.....	799, 1003, 1005
Hunt, E. Howard.....	841, 870
Iceland, Special Ambassador to 1100th anniversary.....	994
Impeachment inquiry
Brief submitted to the House Judiciary Committee.....	840
Impeachable offense.....	836
Internal Revenue Service.....	842, 983
International Telephone and Telegraph.....	841, 945
Milk support price.....	842, 958, 963
News conference by Special Counsel St. Clair.....	822
Presidential tapes and documents.....	822-828
Wiretaps.....	807, 841, 923
Imports, brandy.....	807
Impoundment Control Act of 1974, Congressional Budget and.....	799, 800, 804
Independence Day, 1974.....	790
Industry. See Business and industry.
Interior, Department of the
Assistant Secretary.....	838, 1005
Office of Oil and Gas, Associate Director.....	802
Secretary.....	802, 994
Under Secretary.....	802
United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Director.....	838, 1005
Internal Revenue Service, impeachment inquiry.....	842, 983
International Coffee Agreement.....	796
International Economic Policy, Council on.....	788, 804
International Maritime Traffic Convention.....	998
International Telephone and Telegraph.....	841, 945
Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor.....	790
ITT. See International Telephone and Telegraph
Jackson, Levi A.....	830
Japan, U.S. Ambassador to.....	802
Jenner, Albert E., Jr.....	824
Johnston, Donald A.....	994
Joint Statements
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.....	753
Jones, Sidney L.....	795
Judiciary Committee, House.....	791, 818, 822, 840, 995
Justice, Department of
Assistant Attorney General.....	998, 1005
Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. See Law Enforcement Assistance Administration
Karamanlis, Konstantinos.....	994
Keene, Joseph W.....	803, 818
Kelly, Bernard.....	829
Key Biscayne, Fla.....	790, 802
King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr.....	771
Kissinger, Dr. Henry A.....	763, 791, 807, 814, 817
Klein, Herbert G.....	994
Kleindienst, Richard G.....	842, 951
Korff, Baruch.....	813, 817, 818
Kosciusko-Morizet, Jacques.....	796
Kosygin, A. N.....	740, 790
Labor, Department of, Secretary.....	802
Labor, railway dispute.....	789
Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, Administrator.....	999, 1005

Letters, Messages, Telegrams

See also Congress, Communications to
Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman Herbert Stein, exchange of letters on resignation	815
French gift for the American Revolution Bicentennial, exchange of letters with French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing	787
Livestock Credit Act of 1974, Emergency	838
Loomis, Philip A., Jr.	806, 818
Loring Air Force Base, Maine	766, 790
Louisiana, U.S. marshal	803, 818
Lowman, Dr. Charles LeRoy	997, 1005
Lung Advisory Council, National Heart and	998
Luns, Joseph	728
Lynn, James T.	1003, 1005
Management and Budget, Office of, Director	802, 804, 817, 819, 994
Maritime Traffic Convention, International	998
Martinez, Samuel	829
Massachusetts, U.S. marshal	804
Mauritania, U.S. Ambassador to	994
McAninch, Vernon D.	994
Mead, Dana	802
Medals. See Awards and Citations
Medical stockpiles for civil defense	798

Meetings with Foreign Leaders

Belgium
King Baudouin I.	728, 732, 790
Prime Minister Leo Tindermans	790
Germany, Federal Republic of, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt	790
Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor	790
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics
Chairman N. V. Podgorny	790
General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev	735, 748, 790
Premier A. N. Kosygin	790
United Kingdom, Prime Minister Harold Wilson	790
Mental Health Administration, Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and	806, 818
Middle East
North Atlantic Council meeting, remarks	731
U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint communique	758
Milk, support price	842, 958, 963
Minnesota, disaster assistance	805
Missile systems, protocol to treaty on the limitation of anti-ballistic	750, 756
Mitchell, John N.	842, 951
Montgomery, Robert E., Jr.	789, 804
Morton, Rogers C.B.	802, 994
Mount Vernon, French sound and light spectacle for American Revolution Bicentennial	796, 797, 804
Murphy, Richard W.	994, 999, 1005
National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services	802
National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency	813, 818
National Commission for the Observance of World Population Year, 1974	798
National Forest Products Week, 1974	1000
National Heart and Lung Advisory Council	998
Natural resources, forests	1000
New Jersey, U.S. district judge	1004
New York, disaster assistance	829

News Conferences Other Than Presidential

House Judiciary Committee impeachment inquiry, Special Counsel St. Clair	822
President's visit to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Secretary of State Kissinger	763
Nominations submitted to the Senate. See last page of text in each issue

North Atlantic Treaty Organization
Brussels meeting with North Atlantic Council	728, 731, 732, 769
Cyprus conflict	820
Declaration on Atlantic Relations	729, 731
Secretary General Joseph Luns	728
Nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of underground	751
Office. See other part of title
Ohio, disaster assistance	798
Oklahoma, U.S. district judge	1004
O'Neill, John Ellis	802
Otis, Webster	829
People's Republic of China. See China, People's Republic of
Peron, Juan Domingo	771
Podgorny, N. V.	739, 741, 790
Population control	793
Population Year, 1974, National Commission on the Observance of World	798
Post, Marjorie Meriweather	802
Presidency, National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the	813, 818
Presidential Medal of Freedom, Dr. Charles LeRoy Lowman	997, 1005
Presidential tapes and documents	822-828
President's Commission on White House Fellowships	830, 1002
President's travel
Domestic
Bel Air, Calif.	819, 994
Los Angeles, Calif.	830
Palm Beach, Fla.	802
Foreign
Belgium	718, 727-735
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics	718, 735-771

Proclamations

Captive Nations Week, 1974 (Proc. 4302)	801
Imports of brandy (Proc. 4304)	807
National Forest Products Week, 1974 (Proc. 4305)	1000
United Nations Day, 1974 (Proc. 4300)	794
United States Space Week, 1974 (Proc. 4303)	805
White Cane Safety Day, 1974 (Proc. 4301)	794
World Population Year, 1974 (Proc. 4299)	793
Railway labor-management dispute	789
Raven, Jack E.	829

Reports to the President

Emergency Board No. 185, railway labor dispute	789
Research, medical	740, 761, 791

Resignations and Retirements

Ambassadors
Barbados	994
Ghana	994
Mauritania	994
Army Department, Assistant Secretary	802
Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman	815
District of Columbia, National Guard, Commanding General	802
Federal Energy Administration, Assistant Administrator	1004
National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services, member	802
Office of Economic Opportunity, Director	817
U.S. district judge
New Jersey	1004
Oklahoma	1004

Rhodes, Repr. John J.	802
Rural areas, Federal facilities	1000
Rush, Kenneth	802, 804, 817, 995, 1002
St. Christopher-Nevis-Anguilla, U.S. Special Representative	994
St. Clair, James D.	787, 802, 804, 822, 829
St. Lucia, U.S. Special Representative	994
St. Vincent, U.S. Special Representative	994
SALT. See Strategic arms limitation
San Clemente, Calif.	803, 994, 1004
Sant, Roger West	789, 804
Sawhill, John C.	788
Scalia, Antonin M.	998, 1005
Schmidt, Helmut	790
Science and technology, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	737, 740, 741, 761, 791
Scott, Sen. Hugh	802
Securities and Exchange Commission	806, 818
Security and Cooperation in Europe, Conference on	757
Sequoia meetings, with certain Members of Congress	802
Simon, William E.	802, 1004, 1005
Sisco, Joseph J.	817
Smith, Elmer E.	829
Smith, Wilfred J.	839, 1005
Snyder, Daniel J., III	829
Southward, Maj. Gen. Charles L.	802
Spaatz, Gen. Carl A.	807
Space program, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	762
Space Week, 1974, United States	805, 815
Spain
Foreign Minister Pedro Mauri Cor-tina	814
Joint declaration of principles with U.S.	814
Prince Juan Carlos	814
State, Department of
Assistant Inspector General, Foreign Assistance	830
Assistant Secretaries	791, 1002, 1005
Secretary	763, 791, 802, 807, 814, 817
Under Secretary	817
Statements by the President
Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, signing ceremony	800
Deaths
Dean, Dizzy	813
King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr.	771
Peron, Juan Domingo	771
Spaatz, Gen. Carl A.	807
Warren, Earl	795
Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974	838
Energy conservation	788
Independence Day, 1974	790
Joint declaration of principles between the United States and Spain	814
Supreme Court decision on Presidential tapes and documents	829
Statements Other Than Presidential
Brussels meeting with the North Atlantic Council, Press Secretary Ziegler	731
Stein, Herbert	802, 815, 817, 818
Strategic arms limitation	750, 753, 755, 756, 763, 764, 769
Supplementary Centers and Services, National Advisory Council on	802
Supreme Court of the United States	772, 802, 822-829
Surganov, F. A.	742
Syria, U.S. Ambassador to	999, 1005
Taylor, Joseph Z.	830
Technology. See Science and technology
Texas, U.S. attorney	804
Tindermans, Leo	790

Digitized by Google

Weekly Compilation of
PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Monday, August 19, 1974

Volume 10 • Number 33

Pages 1029-1042

AUG 27 1974

The University
of Michigan
Ref

Index of Contents

ACTS APPROVED----- 1042 ADDRESSES AND REMARKS (See also Meetings With Foreign Leaders) Joint session of Congress----- 1029 APPOINTMENTS AND NOMINATIONS Ambassadors, U.S. Greece (Jack B. Kubisch)----- 1036 Republic of Korea (Richard L. Sneider)----- 1036 Nominations submitted to the Senate----- 1042 White House Staff Assistant Press Secretaries (James R. Holland and Paul A. Miltich)----- 1038, 1039 Counsel to the President (Philip M. Buchen)--- 1037 Deputy Press Secretary (John W. Hushen)----- 1038 CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES---- 1042 CONGRESS, COMMUNICATIONS TO (See also Veto Messages) Special international exhibitions, message transmitting report----- 1036 U.S.-United Kingdom agreement on uses of atomic energy for mutual defense purposes, message--- 1038	DIGEST OF OTHER WHITE HOUSE ANNOUNCEMENTS.. 1040 EXECUTIVE ORDERS Administration of export controls (EO 11798)----- 1037 LETTERS, MEMORANDUMS, ETC. American National Red Cross, letter to Chairman.. 1039 MEETINGS WITH FOREIGN LEADERS Dinner honoring King Hussein of Jordan, exchange of toasts----- 1039 STATEMENTS BY THE PRESIDENT General Motors price increase----- 1029 Independence for Guinea-Bissau----- 1029 VETO MESSAGES Animal health research bill, message to the House of Representatives----- 1037 Deputy U.S. marshals bill, message to the House of Representatives----- 1035
---	---

[A Cumulative Index to Prior Issues appears at the end of this issue.]

WEEKLY COMPILATION OF Presidential Documents

Published every Monday by the Office of the Federal Register, National Archives and Records Service, General Services Administration, Washington, D.C. 20408, the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents contains statements, messages and other Presidential materials released by the White House during the preceding week.

The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents is published pursuant to the authority contained in the Federal Register Act (49 Stat. 500, as amended; 44 U.S.C. Ch. 15), under regulations prescribed by the Administrative Committee of the Federal Register, approved by the President (37 F.R. 23607; 1 CFR Part 10).

Distribution is made only by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents will be furnished by mail to subscribers for $15.00 per year, payable to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The charge for a single copy is 50 cents.

There are no restrictions on the republication of material appearing in the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents.

Administration of Gerald R. Ford

PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Week Ending Saturday, August 17, 1974

Independence for Guinea-Bissau

Statement by the President on Portuguese Recognition of the Independence of Its Former Territory. August 12, 1974

The Government and the people of the United States welcome the agreement in principle reached on August 9 between the Portuguese Government and representatives of Guinea-Bissau. We extend our congratulations to the leaders of both governments. We look forward to a productive and friendly relationship with Guinea-Bissau.

I have instructed our representatives at the United Nations to support the application of Guinea-Bissau for membership in the United Nations.

NOTE: Press Secretary J. F. terHorst read the statement at his news conference at the White House on Monday, August 12, 1974. It was not issued in the form of a White House press release.

General Motors Price Increase

Statement by the President. August 12, 1974

I was very disappointed, and I hope that the General Motors action will not be viewed as a signal by other auto companies or other industries. In this critical period, the President of the United States cannot call on others to sacrifice if one or more parts of the economy decide to go it alone. It is essential at this time, particularly, that all segments of the economy, industry, and labor, exercise restraint in their wage and price actions.

NOTE: Press Secretary J. F. terHorst read the statement at his news conference at the White House on Monday, August 12, 1974. It was not issued in the form of a White House press release.

ADDRESS TO THE CONGRESS

The President's Address Delivered Before a Joint Session of the Congress. August 12, 1974

Mr. Speaker, Mr. President, distinguished guests and my very dear friends:

My fellow Americans, we have a lot of work to do. My former colleagues, you and I have a lot of work to do. Let's get on with it.

Needless to say, I am deeply grateful for the wonderfully warm welcome. I can never express my gratitude adequately.

I am not here to make an inaugural address. The Nation needs action, not words. Nor will this be a formal report of the State of the Union. God willing, I will have at least three more chances to do that.

It is good to be back in the People's House. But this cannot be a real homecoming. Under the Constitution, I now belong to the executive branch. The Supreme Court has even ruled that I am the executive branch, head, heart, and hand.

With due respect to the learned Justices—and I greatly respect the judiciary—part of my heart will always be here on Capitol Hill. I know well the co-equal role of the Congress in our constitutional process. I love the House of Representatives. I revere the traditions of the Senate despite my too-short internship in that great body. As President, within the limits of basic principles, my motto toward the Congress is communication, conciliation, compromise, and cooperation.

This Congress, unless it has changed, I am confident, will be my working partner as well as my most constructive critic. I am not asking for conformity. I am dedicated to the two-party system, and you know which party I belong to.

I do not want a honeymoon with you. I want a good marriage.

I want progress, and I want problem-solving which requires my best efforts and also your best efforts.

I have no need to learn how Congress speaks for the people. As President, I intend to listen.

But I also intend to listen to the people themselves—all the people—as I promised last Friday. I want to be sure that we are all tuned in to the real voice of America.

My Administration starts off by seeking unity in diversity. My office door has always been open, and that is how it is going to be at the White House. Yes, Congressmen will be welcomed—if you don't overdo it. [Laughter]

The first seven words of the Constitution and the most important are these: We, the people of the United States. We, the people, ordained and established the Constitution and reserved to themselves all powers not granted to Federal and State government. I respect and will always be conscious of that fundamental rule of freedom.

Only 8 months ago, when I last stood here, I told you I was a Ford, not a Lincoln. Tonight I say I am still a Ford, but I am not a Model T.

I do have some old-fashioned ideas, however. I believe in the very basic decency and fairness of America. I believe in the integrity and patriotism of the Congress. And while I am aware of the House rule that no one ever speaks to the galleries, I believe in the first amendment and the absolute necessity of a free press.

But I also believe that over two centuries since the First Continental Congress was convened, the direction of our Nation's movement has been forward. I am here to confess that in my first campaign for President—of my senior class in South High School in Grand Rapids, Michigan—I headed the Progressive Party ticket, and lost. Maybe that is why I became a Republican. [Laughter]

Now I ask you to join with me in getting this country revved up and moving.

My instinctive judgment is that the state of the Union is excellent. But the state of our economy is not so good. Everywhere I have been as Vice President, some 118,000 miles in 40 States and some 55 press conferences, the unanimous concern of Americans is inflation.

For once all the polls seem to agree. They also suggest that the people blame Government far more than either management or labor for the high cost of everything they have to buy.

You who come from 50 States, three territories, and the District of Columbia, know this better than I do. That is why you have created, since I left, your new Budget Reform Committee. I welcome it, and I will work with its members to bring the Federal budget into balance in fiscal year 1976.

The fact is that for the past 25 years that I had the honor of serving in this body, the Federal budget has been balanced in only six.

Mr. Speaker, I am a little late getting around to it, but confession is good for the soul. I have sometimes voted to spend more taxpayers' money for worthy Federal projects in Grand Rapids, Michigan, while I vigorously opposed wasteful spending boondoggles in Oklahoma. [Laughter]

Be that as it may, Mr. Speaker, you and I have always stood together against unwarranted cuts in national defense. This is no time to change that nonpartisan policy.

Just as escalating Federal spending has been a prime cause of higher prices over many years, it may take some time to stop inflation. But we must begin right now.

For a start, before your Labor Day recess, Congress should reactivate the Cost of Living Council through passage of a clean bill, without reimposing controls, that will let us monitor wages and prices to expose abuses.

Whether we like it or not, the American wage earner and the American housewife are a lot better economists than most economists care to admit. They know that a government big enough to give you everything you want is a government big enough to take from you everything you have.

If we want to restore confidence in ourselves as working politicians, the first thing we all have to do is to learn to say, "No."

The first specific request by the Ford Administration is not to Congress but to the voters in the upcoming November elections. It is this, very simple: Support your candidates, Congressmen and Senators, Democrats or Republicans, conservatives or liberals, who consistently vote for tough decisions to cut the cost of government, restrain Federal spending, and bring inflation under control.

I applaud the initiatives Congress has already taken. The only fault I find with the Joint Economic Committee's study on inflation, authorized last week, is that we need its expert findings in 6 weeks instead of 6 months.

A month ago, the distinguished majority leader of the United States Senate asked the White House to convene an economic conference of Members of Congress, the President's economic consultants, and some of the best economic brains from labor, industry, and agriculture.

Later, this was perfected by resolution to assemble a domestic summit meeting to devise a bipartisan action for stability and growth in the American economy. Neither I nor my staff have much time right now for letterwriting. So, I will respond. I accept the suggestion, and I will personally preside.

Furthermore, I propose that this summit meeting be held at an early date, in full view of the American public. They are as anxious as we are to get the right answers.

My first priority is to work with you to bring inflation under control. Inflation is domestic enemy number one. To restore economic confidence, the Government in Washington must provide some leadership. It does no good to blame the public for spending too much when the Government is spending too much.

I began to put my Administration's own economic house in order starting last Friday.

I instructed my Cabinet officers and Counsellors and my White House Staff to make fiscal restraint their first order of business, and to save every taxpayer's dollar the safety and genuine welfare of our great Nation will permit. Some economic activities will be affected more by monetary and fiscal restraint than other activities. Good government clearly requires that we tend to the economic problems facing our country in a spirit of equity to all of our citizens in all segments of our society.

Tonight, obviously, is no time to threaten you with vetoes. But I do have the last recourse, and I am a veteran of many a veto fight right here in this great chamber. Can't we do a better job by reasonable compromise? I hope we can.

Minutes after I took the Presidential oath, the joint leadership of Congress told me at the White House they would go more than half way to meet me. This was confirmed in your unanimous concurrent resolution of cooperation, for which I am deeply grateful. If, for my part, I go more than half way to meet the Congress, maybe we can find a much larger area of national agreement.

I bring no legislative shopping list here this evening. I will deal with specifics in future messages and talks with you, but here are a few examples of how seriously I feel about what we must do together.

Last week, the Congress passed the elementary and secondary education bill, and I found it on my desk. Any reservations I might have about some of its provisions—and I do have—fade in comparison to the urgent needs of America for quality education. I will sign it in a few days.

I must be frank. In implementing its provisions, I will oppose excessive funding during this inflationary crisis.

As Vice President, I studied various proposals for better health care financing. I saw them coming closer together and urged my friends in the Congress and in the Administration to sit down and sweat out a sound compromise. The Comprehensive Health Insurance Plan goes a long ways toward providing early relief to people who are sick.

Why don't we write—and I ask this with the greatest spirit of cooperation—why don't we write a good health bill on the statute books in 1974, before this Congress adjourns.

The economy of our country is critically dependent on how we interact with the economies of other countries. It is little comfort that our inflation is only a part of a worldwide problem or that American families need less of their paychecks for groceries than most of our foreign friends.

As one of the building blocks of peace, we have taken the lead in working toward a more open and a more equitable world economic system. A new round of international trade negotiations started last September among 105 nations in Tokyo. The others are waiting for the United States Congress to grant the necessary authority to the executive branch to proceed.

With modifications, the trade reform bill passed by the House last year would do a good job. I understand good progress has been made in the Senate Committee on Finance. But I am optimistic, as always, that the Senate will pass an acceptable bill quickly as a key part of our joint prosperity campaign.

I am determined to expedite other international economic plans. We will be working together with other nations to find better ways to prevent shortages of food and fuel. We must not let last winter's energy crisis happen again. I will push Project Independence for our own good and the good of others. In that, too, I will need your help.

Successful foreign policy is an extension of the hopes of the whole American people for a world of peace and orderly reform and orderly freedom. So, I would say a few words to our distinguished guests from the governments of other nations where, as at home, it is my determination to deal openly with allies and adversaries.

Over the past 5½ years in Congress and as Vice President, I have fully supported the outstanding foreign policy of President Nixon. This policy I intend to continue.

Throughout my public service, starting with wartime naval duty under the command of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, I have upheld all our Presidents when they spoke for my country to the world. I believe the Constitution commands this. I know that in this crucial area of international policy I can count on your firm support.

Now, let there be no doubt or any misunderstanding anywhere, and I emphasize anywhere: There are no opportunities to exploit, should anyone so desire. There will be no change of course, no relaxation of vigilance, no abandonment of the helm of our Ship of State as the watch changes.

We stand by our commitments and we will live up to our responsibilities in our formal alliances, in our friendships, and in our improving relations with potential adversaries.

On this, Americans are united and strong. Under my term of leadership, I hope we will become more united. I am certain America will remain strong.

A strong defense is the surest way to peace. Strength makes détente attainable. Weakness invites war as my generation—my generation—knows from four very bitter experiences.

Just as America's will for peace is second to none, so will America's strength be second to none.

We cannot rely on the forbearance of others to protect this Nation. The power and diversity of the Armed Forces, active guard, and reserve, the resolve of our fellow citizens, the flexibility in our command to navigate international waters that remain troubled are all essential to our security.

I shall continue to insist on civilian control of our superb military establishment. The Constitution plainly requires the President to be Commander in Chief, and I will be.

Our job will not be easy. In promising continuity, I cannot promise simplicity. The problems and challenges of the world remain complex and difficult. But we have set out on a path of reason, of fairness, and we will continue on it.

As guideposts on that path, I offer the following:

—To our allies of a generation in the Atlantic community and Japan, I pledge continuity in the loyal collaboration on our many mutual endeavors.

—To our friends and allies in this hemisphere, I pledge continuity in the deepening dialog to define renewed relationships of equality and justice.

—To our allies and friends in Asia, I pledge a continuity in our support for their security, independence, and economic development. In Indochina, we are determined to see the observance of the Paris agreement on Vietnam and the cease-fire and negotiated settlement in Laos. We hope to see an early compromise settlement in Cambodia.

—To the Soviet Union, I pledge continuity in our commitment to the course of the past 3 years. To our two peoples, and to all mankind, we owe a continued effort to live and, where possible, to work together in peace; for in a thermonuclear age there can be no alternative to a positive and peaceful relationship between our nations.

—To the People's Republic of China, whose legendary hospitality I enjoyed, I pledge continuity in our commitment to the principles of the Shanghai communique. The new relationship built on those principles has demonstrated that it serves serious and objective mutual interests and has become an enduring feature of the world scene.

—To the nations in the Middle East, I pledge continuity in our vigorous efforts to advance the progress which has brought hopes of peace to that region after 25 years as a hotbed of war. We shall carry out our promise to promote continuing negotiations among all parties for a complete, just, and lasting settlement.

—To all nations, I pledge continuity in seeking a common global goal: a stable international structure of trade and finance which reflects the interdependence of all peoples.

—To the entire international community—to the United Nations, to the world's nonaligned nations, and to all others—I pledge continuity in our dedication to the humane goals which throughout our history have been so much of America's contribution to mankind.

So long as the peoples of the world have confidence in our purposes and faith in our word, the age-old vision of peace on earth will grow brighter.

I pledge myself unreservedly to that goal. I say to you in words that cannot be improved upon: Let us never negotiate out of fear, but let us never fear to negotiate.

As Vice President, at the request of the President, I addressed myself to the individual rights of Americans in the area of privacy. There will be no illegal tappings (tapings), eavesdropping, buggings, or break-ins by my Administration. There will be hot pursuit of tough laws to prevent illegal invasion of privacy in both government and private activities.

On the higher plane of public morality, there is no need for me to preach tonight. We have thousands of far better preachers and millions of sacred scriptures to guide us on the path of personal right-living and exemplary official conduct. If we can make effective and earlier use of moral and ethical wisdom of the centuries in today's complex society, we will prevent more crime and more corruption than all the policemen and prosecutors governments can ever deter. If I might say so, this is a job that must begin at home, not in Washington.

I once told you that I am not a saint, and I hope never to see the day that I cannot admit having made a mistake. So I will close with another confession.

Frequently, along the tortuous road of recent months from this chamber to the President's House, I protested that I was my own man. Now I realize that I was wrong.

I am your man, for it was your carefully weighed confirmation that changed my occupation.

The truth is I am the people's man, for you acted in their name, and I accepted and began my new and solemn trust with a promise to serve all the people and do the best that I can for America.

When I say all the people, I mean exactly that.

To the limits of my strength and ability, I will be the President of black, brown, red, and white Americans, of old and young, of women's liberationists and male chauvinists—[laughter]—and all the rest of us in between, of the poor and the rich, of native sons and new refugees, of those who work at lathes or at desks or in mines or in the fields, of Christians, Jews, Moslems, Buddhists, and atheists if there really are any atheists after what we have all been through.

Fellow Americans, one final word:

I want to be a good President.

I need your help.

We all need God's sure guidance.

With it, nothing can stop the United States of America.

Thank you very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 9:06 p.m. in the House Chamber at the Capitol, after being introduced by Carl Albert, Speaker of the House of Representatives. The address was broadcast live on radio and television.

Bill Concerning Deputy U.S. Marshals

The President's Message to the House of Representatives Returning H.R. 5094 Without His Approval. Dated August 12, 1974. Released August 13, 1974

To the House of Representatives:

I am today returning to the Congress without my approval H.R. 5094, a measure that would require the reclassification and upgrading of deputy United States marshals.

A bill substantially similar to this legislation was passed by the Congress and then pocket vetoed by President Nixon in October, 1972. Since that time various departments of the executive branch have consistently argued that such legislation would be unwise and discriminatory.

That opposition has been based upon the view that by singling out deputy United States marshals for significant salary increases, the Government would be creating serious pay inequities with other Federal law enforcement personnel, thus violating fundamental principles of fairness. In addition, H.R. 5094 would severely disrupt existing grade and pay relationships among the deputy marshals themselves. In some cases, under this legislation, junior marshals would be paid $1,150 a year more than their senior colleagues. Some deputies doing identical work would be placed in different pay grades, while deputies performing different jobs would be placed in the same pay grade.

I fully appreciate the fine service performed by our deputy U.S. marshals, and I am aware that the Congress was prompted by a desire to ensure that their pay matched the increasing responsibilities they have assumed in recent years. But I also believe that this legislation would run directly counter to the principle of equal pay for equal work that underlies our civil service system. Our policy has been and must continue to be one of fundamental fairness to all Federal employees. For that reason, I am returning this legislation without my approval.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
August 12, 1974.

United States Ambassador to Greece

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Jack B. Kubisch. August 13, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Jack B. Kubisch, a Career Minister in the Foreign Service, now serving as Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs, to be Ambassador to Greece. He will succeed Henry J. Tasca, who has resigned.

Mr. Kubisch was born on November 5, 1921, in Hannibal, Mo. He attended Central College, Fayette, Mo., and received his B.A. degree in 1942 from the University of Missouri. He attended the Harvard Graduate School of Business during 1946-47, following service as an officer in the U.S. Navy from 1942 to 1945. He is fluent in French, Portuguese, and Spanish.

Following his first tour in Rio, Mr. Kubisch was Assistant Economic Commissioner, Economic Cooperation Administration, Paris, from 1949 to 1950. From 1950 to 1953, he was director of international operations for Bendix Home Appliances, South Bend, Ind., and from 1953 to 1961 he was president and chairman of the board of Great Northern Distributors in South Bend. He returned to Government service in 1961 as Deputy Director of the U.S. AID Mission in Ceylon.

In 1962-63 he was Director, U.S. AID Mission, Rio de Janeiro, and in 1963-64 he was Minister for Economic Affairs and U.S. AID Mission Director, Rio de Janeiro. In 1964 he was appointed FSO-1, and from 1965 to 1969 he was Country Director of Brazilian Affairs. From 1969 to 1971, he was Deputy Chief of Mission, Mexico City, and from 1971 to 1973 he was Deputy Chief of Mission, Paris. He was promoted to Career Minister in 1973, and from 1973 to the present he has been serving as Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs.

He is married to the former Constance Rippe and they have four children.

United States Ambassador to the Republic of Korea

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Richard L. Sneider. August 13, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Richard L. Sneider, a career Foreign Service officer, now serving as Deputy Assistant Secretary, Bureau of East Asian and Pacific Affairs, to be Ambassador to Korea. He will succeed Philip C. Habib who is now Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian and Pacific Affairs.

Born June 29, 1922, in New York, N.Y., he attended Brown University receiving an A.B. degree in 1943 and an M.I.A. in 1948 from Columbia. He served with the United States Army as a first lieutenant from 1943 to 1946.

In 1941 he was a research intern with the Civil Service Commission. In 1947 he was a Junior Political Analyst, Council on Foreign Relations. In 1948-51 he was an analyst, then Intelligence Research Specialist, Office of Intelligence, Department of State. From 1951 to 1952, he was Far East Coordinator, Psychological Intelligence Program, Office of Intelligence Research. In 1952-54 he was a Foreign Affairs officer, United Nations Affairs; 1954-58 he was assigned as Politico-Military Officer, Tokyo; 1958-61 he was Officer in Charge of Japanese Affairs, Bureau of Far Eastern Affairs, Department; 1962-65 he was Political Counselor, Karachi. He was promoted in 1963 to FSO-2. From 1965 to 1969, he served as Public Affairs Adviser, then Country Director for Japan in the Department. He was promoted to FSO-1 in 1968. In 1969 he was a Political Officer, National Security Council, and from 1969 to 1970 he was Special Assistant to Ambassador for Okinawan Affairs, Tokyo; 1970-72 he was Deputy Chief of Mission, Tokyo, and from 1972 to the present he was Deputy Assistant Secretary, Bureau of East Asian and Pacific Affairs.

He received the Superior Honor Award in 1970. He is married to the former Ruth Leah Tartalsky, and they have three children, Daniel, Dena, and David.

Special International Exhibitions

The President's Message to the Congress Transmitting the 11th Annual Report on the Program. August 13, 1974

To the Congress of the United States:

As required by law, I transmit to the Congress the Eleventh Annual Report on Special International Exhibitions conducted during fiscal year 1973 under the authority of the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961 (Public Law 87-256).

This report covers exhibitions presented abroad by the U.S. Information Agency at international fairs and under East-West Cultural Exchange agreements, as well as exhibitions and labor missions presented abroad by the Department of Labor.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
August 13, 1974.

NOTE: The report entitled "Special International Exhibitions—FY 73 Eleventh Annual Report, United States Information Agency" was based on material prepared by the Department of Labor and the United States Information Agency.

Administration of Export Controls

Executive Order 11798. August 14, 1974

REVOKING EXECUTIVE ORDER NO. 11796 OF JULY 30, 1974, AND CONTINUING IN EFFECT EXECUTIVE ORDER NO. 11533 OF JUNE 4, 1970, RELATING TO THE ADMINISTRATION OF EXPORT CONTROLS

By virtue of the authority vested in the President by the Constitution and statutes of the United States, including the statutes referred to herein, it is hereby ordered:

SECTION 1. Executive Order No. 11796 of July 30, 1974, issued under the authority of the act of October 6, 1917, as amended (12 U.S.C. 95a), is hereby revoked, except that this revocation shall not affect any violation of any rules, regulations, orders, licenses, and other forms of administrative action under said order which occurred during the period said order was in effect.

SEC. 2. Pursuant to Public Law 93-372 of August 14, 1974, effective as of the close of July 30, 1974, Executive Order No. 11533 of June 4, 1970, and all delegations, redelegations, rules, regulations, orders, licenses, and other forms of administrative action under said order which were in effect on July 30, 1974, and which have not been revoked administratively or legislatively, are continued and shall be in full force and effect until amended, modified, or terminated by proper authority.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
August 14, 1974.

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 9:55 a.m.,
August 15, 1974]

Veto of Animal Health Research Bill

The President's Message to the House of Representatives Returning H.R. 11873 Without His Approval. Dated August 14, 1974. Released August 15, 1974

To the House of Representatives:

I am returning today without my approval H.R. 11873, an act authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to encourage and assist States in carrying out programs of animal health research.

I believe, as do proponents of this bill, that veterinary research has helped to make American livestock the healthiest and most productive in the world. We must continue to maintain high standards of research.

But I also believe that this bill adds little to the existing programs of the Department of Agriculture and other agencies.

We are presently spending over $40 million on programs involving animal health research, and nearly every land grant college and colleges of veterinary medicine in the United States is participating in these programs.

This bill, however, would establish a new categorical grant program that would authorize an expenditure of an additional $47 million annually and would be duplicative of many programs that already exist. The overlapping would be especially true of programs in fish and shellfish research and predator control.

Because this bill would add further to the Federal taxpayers' burdens without significantly meeting national needs and would only add to inflationary pressures within the economy, I feel that I must withhold my approval.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
August 14, 1974.

Counsel to the President

Announcement of Appointment of Philip W. Buchen. August 15, 1974

The President today announced the appointment of Philip W. Buchen, of Grand Rapids, Mich., as Counsel to the President.

Prior to his appointment, Mr. Buchen, 58, was a senior partner in the law firm of Law, Buchen, Weathers, Richardson and Dutcher, and served as Executive Director of the Domestic Council Committee on the Right of Privacy. He is a former law partner of the President. Mr. Buchen was a member of the United States delegation to the INTELSAT Conference which negotiated the definitive arrangements for the International Telecommunications Satellite Organization between 1969 and 1972.

Since 1969, he has served on the Board of Directors of the COMSAT Corporation. He has resigned that position effective today. Mr. Buchen received a B.A. degree from the University of Michigan in 1939 and a J.D. degree from the University of Michigan Law School in 1941. He is a member of the Michigan State Bar.

Mr. Buchen is married to the former Beatrice Loomis. They have a son, Roderick, and a daughter, Mrs. Victoria Aler.

U.S.-United Kingdom Agreement on Uses of Atomic Energy for Mutual Defense Purposes

The President's Message to the Congress Transmitting an Authoritative Copy of an Amendment to the Agreement. August 15, 1974

To the Congress of the United States:

Pursuant to the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 as amended, I am submitting to the Congress an authoritative copy of an amendment to the Agreement between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland for Cooperation on the Uses of Atomic Energy for Mutual Defense Purposes of July 3, 1958, as amended. The Amendment was signed at Washington on July 22, 1974.

The Agreement as previously amended includes a provision (Paragraph A of Article III bis) under which the Government of the United States agrees to transfer to the Government of the United Kingdom for its atomic weapons program prior to December 31, 1974 in such quantities and on such terms and conditions as may be agreed non-nuclear parts of atomic weapons and atomic weapons systems as well as source, by-product and special nuclear material. A second provision of the existing Agreement (Paragraph C of Article III bis) stipulated that the Government of the United Kingdom agrees to transfer to the Government of the United States for military purposes such source, by-product and special nuclear material, and equipment of such types in such quantities, at such times prior to December 31, 1974 and on such terms and conditions as may be agreed.

Under the Amendment submitted herewith the period during which the provisions of Paragraph A and C of Article III bis of the Agreement for Cooperation remain in force would be extended for five years so that transfers could be made any time prior to December 31, 1979. The continued authorization of the two Governments to cooperate with each other in these respects would contribute to our mutual defense, particularly in the North Atlantic Treaty area.

The Amendment also would delete references in the preamble and Article XI (H) of the Agreement to the UK Atomic Energy Authority, since that Authority no longer has any direct responsibility in the field of nuclear defense.

I am also transmitting a copy of the Secretary of State's letter to me accompanying authoritative copies of the signed Amendment, a copy of a joint letter from the Chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission and the Secretary of Defense recommending approval of this Amendment, and a copy of my memorandum in reply thereto, setting forth my approval.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
August 15, 1974.

Deputy Press Secretary to the President

Announcement of Appointment of John W. Hushen. August 16, 1974

The President today announced the appointment of John W. Hushen, of Detroit, Mich., as Deputy Press Secretary to the President. Since June 1970, Mr. Hushen has been Director of Public Information of the Department of Justice and Special Assistant to the Attorney General.

From 1966 to 1970, he was press secretary to Senator Robert P. Griffin after serving as his campaign press secretary during 1966. From 1959 to 1966, he was a reporter with the Detroit News. During high school and college, he was a copy boy with the Detroit Free Press and a reporter with the Flint Journal.

He was born on July 28, 1935, in Detroit, Mich. After attending Detroit public schools and the Capitol Page School in Washington, D.C., he attended Wayne State University, where he was editor of the Daily Collegian. He received his B.A. degree in journalism in 1958.

Mr. Hushen and his wife Margaret have three children and reside in Bethesda, Md.

Assistant Press Secretary to the President

Announcement of Appointment of Paul A. Miltich. August 16, 1974

The President today announced the appointment of Paul A. Miltich, of Silver Spring, Md., to be Assistant Press Secretary to the President.

Mr. Miltich was Press Secretary to Vice President Ford from December 1973. In June 1946, he became a member of the staff of the Saginaw News in Saginaw, Mich. In October of 1958, he was named Washington correspondent for the Booth Newspapers. In March of 1966, he was named Press Secretary to House Minority Leader Gerald R. Ford after having served as a member of the Standing Committee of Correspondents.

He was born on October 30, 1919, in Virginia, Minn. He received his B.A. degree from the University of Minn.

nesota in 1941 with highest distinction. He taught English at the Breck School for Boys in St. Paul, Minn., before entering the Army in 1942. Mr. Miltich taught school in 1946 in Saginaw, Mich., and served as deputy commissioner of Saginaw County schools before joining the Saginaw News.

Mr. Miltich is married to the former Sylvia S. Schumann, and they have two children.

Assistant Press Secretary to the President

Announcement of Appointment of James R. Holland. August 16, 1974

The President today announced the appointment of James R. Holland, of Chevy Chase, Md., to be Assistant Press Secretary to the President.

Since February 1974, Mr. Holland has been Deputy Communications Director to the President. In 1971, he was named Assistant Postmaster General for Communications and Public Affairs after having served as Special Assistant to the Postmaster General from January 1970. In 1973, he was named Deputy Assistant Secretary for Public Affairs in the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, before becoming Deputy Communications Director to the President.

He was born on August 3, 1939, in Soperton, Ga. He received his A.B. in journalism from the University of Georgia in 1954. From June 1954 to May 1958, he was a reporter for the International News Service in New York City, Birmingham, and Atlanta. In June 1958, he became a reporter for United Press International in New York City before joining the J. Walter Thompson Company as a writer and account representative in New York in 1959. Mr. Holland was a second vice president, advertising and public relations, of the John Hancock Life Insurance Co., in Boston after having served as general director of public relations. He was with the firm from 1961 to 1970.

Mr. Holland is married to the former Paula Shepard of Garden City, N.Y., and they have three children.

American National Red Cross

The President's Letter to Chairman Frank Stanton Accepting the Honorary Chairmanship of the Red Cross. August 16, 1974

Dear Mr. Chairman:

I have your letter of August 9, and it is with great pleasure that I accept the invitation you have extended on behalf of the Board of Governors to be the Honorary Chairman of the American National Red Cross.

Through the years, the American Red Cross has maintained an outstanding record of voluntary humanitarian services, fulfilling with high dedication and skill the obligations of its Congressional Charter. In the time ahead, I look forward to the opportunity of working with you, the Board of Governors and the Red Cross volunteer leadership across the Nation as we continue to meet the emergency and humanitarian needs of all our people.

With personal best wishes,

Sincerely,

GERALD R. FORD

[The Honorable Frank Stanton, Chairman, The American National Red Cross, Washington, D.C. 20006]

NOTE: The letter was made available by the White House Press Office. It was not issued in the form of a White House press release.

Dinner Honoring King Hussein of Jordan

Exchange of Toasts Between the President and King Hussein at the Dinner at the White House. August 16, 1974

THE PRESIDENT. Your Majesties, Mr. Prime Minister and Mrs. Zaid Rifai, honorable guests:

May I, Your Majesty, on behalf of all of us here and on behalf of all of us in America, wish you a very, very warm welcome on this occasion.

And may I say on a very personal note that it is a great honor and privilege for me to have you as the first chief of state to visit our country during the new Administration.

During the fine tenure of your being head of your country, we have had, as I recollect, some five national administrations in the United States, some Democrat and some Republican, but during this period of time there have been some changes. Those changes I will make a comment or two about subsequently, but we, regardless of the Administration in the United States, have never changed our view concerning yourself and your country, and we are proud of our long friendship and association.

Those changes that have taken place—and there are some changes in recent months—have been encouraging because they seem to have opened the door to progress for peace. They seem to have given us all hope that there will be greater improvement as we move ahead. Those changes, I think, in many respects can be attributed to you because of your courage, the great risks that you have taken during your lifetime and your superb understanding of the problems of the Middle East and your desire to work for peace for all peoples.

There has been progress in this process of change. More recently we can see it in the two disengagements that have taken place in the last few months, in the continuing consultation in the diplomatic area, and, speaking of the diplomatic, may I say that for myself and our country, I pledge, on behalf of the American people, full support for the continuing diplomatic initiatives which are so essential for the goals that we seek.

Those goals, those hopes, of course, are the peace on a just, on a permanent basis that have for so many years, many centuries, eluded all of those in that area and the world at large, but it seems to me that as we look ahead, with the foundation that has been built, that with your continuing leadership, your continuing effort, with your continuing courage, and with the cooperation of ourselves and many others, we can achieve what has been the hope and aspirations of people throughout the world, as well as in the Middle East.

And if I might, in closing, may I congratulate you on your leadership, your dedication, your wisdom, and your cooperation. You have set an example for all of us to follow and to use as a guidepost for people not only in the Middle East but elsewhere.

So, may I ask that all join with me in a tribute to His Majesty and to the Kingdom of Jordan.

To you and to your country.

KING HUSSEIN. Mr. President, Mrs. Ford, my good friends:

It is a source of pride to me, sir, that over the years, the many years that have passed, I have been a firm believer in the great mutual benefits of relations that have happily developed, not only between my country and the United States but recently in the period of change that you so kindly refer to between many countries in our part of the world and the United States of America.

To me, it has been an honor to have visited this great Nation's Capital many a time, to have found friendship, understanding, sympathy, not only for myself but for my country and for a common cause to which I am proud to say we have always been dedicated, the cause of an honorable, just peace.

On this visit, sir, I am most proud to convey to you and to Mrs. Ford the feelings of not only my wife and those who have accompanied me from Jordan but my government and the people of Jordan, their wishes to you, sir, for every future success. I am sure these are the feelings of all in the United States and the very many throughout the world.

I am proud indeed, sir, to have had the privilege of knowing you before this visit and most proud, sir, that you consider me a friend. I am so touched, sir, by the kind words, but more so the sincerity that I know you possess, sir, which endears you to all your people, all the people of the United States, and so many who have had the privilege of knowing you and who will have this privilege.

It is really a source of pride to us to have had this very close cooperation between our nations, to have seen in the recent past some basic steps taken for the establishment of a just and durable peace in our part of the world, largely through the efforts of our friends in the United States, the patience, the patient effort, the perseverance, the determination that has resulted in the first few steps materializing.

We know, sir, that you are dedicated to the cause of peace with justice. We are not only comforted but confident that the United States will contribute her full share for the achievement of this worthy objective under your wise leadership.

We will be ever proud to play our role, if enabled, to the fullest possible extent that we some day feel that will present the generations after us with a better life, with a better future, with a better world than possibly that in which we have had to live.

I would like to thank you and Mrs. Ford once again for your very, very great kindness and wish you every success. May God be with you, and I am sure, sir, that the hopes of so many in the United States and in the world as a whole under your great leadership will be fully justified.

Ladies and gentlemen, my good friends, I would very much indeed like you to join me in drinking a toast to the President of the United States and Mrs. Ford for every continued success.

To the President.

NOTE: The President spoke at 9:51 p.m. in the State Dining Room at the White House.

Digest of Other White House Announcements

Following is a listing of items of general interest which were announced to the press during the period covered by this issue but which are not carried elsewhere in the issue. Appointments requiring Senate approval are not included since they appear in the list of nominations submitted to the Senate, below.

August 11

The President held a series of meetings at the White House to discuss the selection of a Vice Presidential nominee. The President met with:

- Melvin R. Laird;
- Bryce N. Harlow;
- Representative Elford A. Cederberg of Michigan;
- Representative Barber B. Conable, Jr., of New York;

- Chairman George H. Bush of the Republican National Committee;
- Representative Leslie C. Arends of Illinois;
- Senator Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania;
- Senator Robert P. Griffin of Michigan;
- Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona;
- Representative John J. Rhodes of Arizona; and
- Senator John Tower of Texas.

The White House announced that David Hume Kennerly has been named Personal Photographer to the President.

August 12

The President today accepted with deepest regret the resignation of Frederic V. Malek as Deputy Director of the Office of Management and Budget, effective on a date to be determined.

August 13

Attorney General William B. Saxbe met with the President at the White House to discuss a Justice Department study on the right of privacy.

George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, met with the President.

The President met with a group of Federal, State, and local officials who are responsible for the implementation of programs under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973.

The President met with Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, Deputy Secretary William P. Clements, Jr., and the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger also participated in the meeting.

In the East Room, the President addressed a group of Presidential appointees currently holding sub-Cabinet positions in the departments and agencies, the Executive Office of the President, and the White House Staff.

August 14

The President talked by telephone with British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan and later with British Prime Minister Harold E. Wilson. They discussed the situation in Cyprus.

Senator Russell B. Long, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, met with the President at the White House to discuss legislation pending in the committee, including health insurance and the trade bill.

Soviet Ambassador A. F. Dobrynin met with the President. The Ambassador conveyed a personal message to the President from General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev.

The White House announced that James D. St. Clair is leaving his position as Special Counsel to the President, effective today.

The White House announced that the President has accepted the invitation of the Government of Japan to visit Japan before the end of the year, at the earliest opportunity available to both sides.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy met with the President at the White House. Following the meeting, the President hosted a working luncheon with the Foreign Minister.

Members of the Executive Committee of the National Governors' Conference met with the President.

Fifteen mayors, representing the National League of Cities and the United States Conference of Mayors, met with the President.

The President signed S. 2665 into law in an Oval Office ceremony attended by Senators Peter H. Dominick and James A. McClure and Representative Philip M. Crane. The bill authorizes appropriations for the U.S. contribution to the International Development Association.

Representative John W. Wydler of New York met with the President.

August 15

Senators Henry M. Jackson, Jacob K. Javits, and Abraham A. Ribicoff breakfasted with the President at the White House. They discussed the trade bill pending in the Congress and an amendment to the bill providing for free emigration from Communist countries.

Representatives of the National Association of County Officials met with the President.

The President participated in a swearing-in ceremony at the White House for John O. Marsh, Jr., as Counsellor to the President.

The White House announced the appointment of Nancy Howe as Personal Secretary to the First Lady.

The President met with a group of economic advisers. Participating in the meeting were: Counsellor to the President Kenneth Rush, Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon, Director Roy L. Ash of the Office of Management and Budget, Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the Federal Reserve Board, and Chairman Herbert Stein of the Council of Economic Advisers.

Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare Caspar W. Weinberger met with the President.

August 16

Frank E. Fitzsimmons, general president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, met with the President at the White House.

King Hussein of Jordan met with the President.

Director Roy L. Ash and other officials of the Office of Management and Budget met with the President to discuss the budget.

Senator Strom Thurmond met with the President to discuss defense matters.

ACTS APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT

Approved August 13, 1974

H.R. 14012----- Public Law 93-371
Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1975.

Approved August 14, 1974

H.J. Res. 1104----- Public Law 93-372
Joint resolution to extend by sixty-two days the expiration date of the Export Administration Act of 1969.

H.R. 15074----- Public Law 93-376
District of Columbia Campaign Finance Reform and Conflict of Interest Act.

S. 2665----- Public Law 93-373
An act to provide for increased participation by the United States in the International Development Association and to permit United States citizens to purchase, hold, sell, or otherwise deal with gold in the United States or abroad.

S. 3477----- Public Law 93-375
An act to amend the Act of August 9, 1955, relating to school fare subsidy for transportation of schoolchildren within the District of Columbia.

S.J. Res. 229----- Public Law 93-374
Joint resolution to amend the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945.

CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES

The following releases of the Office of the White House Press Secretary, distributed during the period covered by this issue, are not included in the issue.

Released August 12, 1974

Advance text: address to a joint session of Congress

Released August 14, 1974

News conference: following a meeting with the President—by Calvin Rampton, Governor of Utah and Chairman, Executive Committee, National Governors' Conference, and Daniel J. Evans, Governor of Washington

News conference: on their meeting with the President—by Mayors Tom Bradley of Los Angeles, California, E. J. Garn of Salt Lake City, Utah, Ben Boo of Duluth, Minnesota, and Joseph Alioto of San Francisco, California

Released August 15, 1974

News conference: following a meeting with the President—by Senators Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut, Henry M. Jackson of Washington, and Jacob K. Javits of New York

News conference: following their meeting with the President—by Stanley M. Smoot, Commissioner, Davis County, Utah, Ralph G. Caso, County Executive, Nassau County, N.Y., and Alfred B. Del Bello, County Executive, Westchester County, N.Y.

News conference: following his swearing in as Counsellor to the President—by John O. Marsh, Jr.

NOMINATIONS SUBMITTED TO THE SENATE

The following list does not include promotions of members of the Uniformed Services, nominations to the Service Academies, or nominations of Foreign Service officers.

Submitted August 13, 1974

JACK B. KUBISCH, of Michigan, a Foreign Service officer of the Class of Career Minister, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to Greece, vice Henry J. Tasca, resigning.

RICHARD L. SNEIDER, of New York, a Foreign Service officer of Class one, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to the Republic of Korea.

CUMULATIVE INDEX TO PRIOR ISSUES

Third Quarter, 1974

[See Index of Contents for Documents in this Issue]

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon

ABM. See Anti-ballistic missile systems
Acts approved. See last page of text in each issue

Addresses and Remarks of the President

Ash, Roy L., dinner honoring the President	819
Belgium
Arrival in Brussels	728
Departure from Washington	718, 727
Luncheon in Brussels	732
Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, signing ceremony	799
Economy, national, address to Nation	830
Farewell remarks to Cabinet and White House Staff	1019
French gift for the American Revolution Bicentennial, exchange of remarks with French Ambassador Jacques Koscziusko-Morizet	796
Lowman, Dr. Charles LeRoy, Medal of Freedom presentation	997
National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency	813
People's Republic of China, martial arts and acrobatic troupe visit to the White House	801
Resignation, address to Nation	1014
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics
Address to the Soviet people	744
Departure from Washington	718, 727
Minsk	742
Moscow	735, 748
Report to the Nation, Loring Air Force Base, Maine	766
United States Space Week, 1974	815
Vice President Gerald R. Ford, remarks following President's resignation announcement	1018
Administrative Conference of the United States, Chairman	1003, 1005
Adult Education, National Advisory Council on	1021
Agriculture, Department of
Appropriations, veto	1014
Secretary	796, 799, 803, 1000
Albrecht, Richard R.	804
Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration	806, 818
Alsop, Donald D.	1022
American Revolution Bicentennial, French gift	796, 797, 804
Annenberg, Walter H.	817
Anthony, Robert Armstrong	1003, 1005
Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocols to treaty on the limitation of	750, 766
Antigua, U.S. Special Representative	994

Appointments and Nominations

Administrative Conference of the United States, Chairman	1003, 1005
Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, Administrator	806, 818
Ambassadors, United States, Syria	999, 1005
Corporation for Public Broadcasting, Board of Directors, members	1010, 1022
Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman	828, 995
Council on International Economic Policy, Executive Director	788, 804
Federal Aviation Administration, Deputy Administrator	817, 995

Appointments and Nominations—Con.

Federal Energy Administration
Assistant Administrator	789, 804
General Counsel	789, 804
Office of Intergovernmental and Regional Relations, Director	839, 1005
Federal Regional Councils, Chairmen	829
Foreign Claims Settlement Commission
Chairman	793
Members	804, 839, 1005
Interior Department
Assistant Secretary	838, 1005
United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Director	838, 1005
International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission	1021
Justice Department, Assistant Attorney General	998, 1005
Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, Administrator	999, 1005
National Commission for the Observance of World Population Year, 1974, members	798
National Corporation for Housing Partnerships, Board of Directors, member	1022
Office of Economic Opportunity, Director	807, 1005
President's Commission on White House Fellowships, members	830
Securities and Exchange Commission, member	806, 818
State Department
Assistant Inspector General, Foreign Assistance	830
Assistant Secretary	1002, 1005
Treasury Department
Deputy Secretary	804
General Counsel	804
U.S. attorney, Texas	804
U.S. circuit judge, 2d circuit	804, 1022
U.S. Court of Military Appeals
Associate judge	1003, 1005
Chief judge, withdrawal of prior nomination	1022
U.S. district judges
Georgia	804
Minnesota	1022
U.S. marshals
California	804
Louisiana	803, 818
White House Staff
Deputy Assistant	795
Special Assistant	816
Appropriations bill, veto	1014
Arends, Repr. Leslie C.	802
Argentina, President Juan Domingo Peron, death	771
Armed Forces, United States	729, 731
Arms control and disarmament	750, 751, 753, 755, 756, 763, 784, 769
Armstrong, Anne L.	802, 815
Army, Department of the, Assistant Secretary	802
Arnett, Alvin J.	817
Ash, Roy L.	802, 804, 817, 819, 994
Atlantic Relations, Declaration on	728, 729, 731
Atomic Energy Commission	1009, 1021
Augelli, Anthony T.	1004

Awards and Citations

Presidential Medal of Freedom	997, 1005
Baker, Repr. LaMar	802
Balaguer, Joaquin	1021
Barbados, U.S. Ambassador to	994

Baudouin I, King	728, 732, 790
Belgium
King Baudouin I	728, 732, 790
President's visit
Arrival in Brussels	728
Declaration of Atlantic Relations	729, 731
Departure from Washington	718, 727
Luncheon in Brussels	732
Prime Minister Leo Tindermans	790
Bell, J. Raymond	793, 804
Berg, Eugene E.	802
Bicentennial, American Revolution	796, 797, 804

Bill Signings

Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, remarks and statement	799, 800
Department of Defense Appropriations Authorization Act, 1975, statement	1007
Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974, statement	838
Birknes, John A.	804
Bisplinghoff, Raymond L.	1021
Bohanon, Luther	1004
Brandy imports	807
Brennan, Peter J.	802
Brezhnev, L. I.	735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
Broadcasting, Corporation for Public	1010, 1022
Budget, federal spending	799, 800, 821, 832, 1014
Budget, Office of Management and Budget, Office of Management and Budget, Office of
Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, Congressional	799, 800, 804
Burch, Dean	791, 802, 995
Burnham, D.C.	830
Burns, Arthur F.	802
Business and industry, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	741, 759, 791
Butz, Earl L.	803
Cabinet
Meetings with the President	802, 1021
President's farewell remarks	1019
California, U.S. marshal	804
Callaghan, James	999
Captive Nations Week, 1974	801
Carlos, Prince Juan	814
Carlson, Jack W.	838, 1005
Cary, Frank	794
Casey, Thomas R.	828, 829
Central Intelligence Agency	1008
Checklist of unpublished releases. See last page of text in each issue
China, People's Republic of, Wushu Troupe, visit to the White House	801
Civil defense medical and food stockpiles	798
Claims Settlement Commission, Foreign	793, 804, 839, 1005
Clements, William P., Jr.	1012
Coffee Agreement, International	796
Cole, Kenneth R., Jr.	830
Colombia
President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen, inauguration	994
U.S. Ambassador to	994
Combined Federal Campaign	1012
Commerce, Department of, Secretary	788, 1000
Commercial Commission, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics	741

Commodity Credit Corporation.....	1004	Defense, Department of		Federal employees. See Government employees
Congress		Appropriation authorization.....	1007	Federal Energy Administration
House of Representatives, Judiciary Committee ..	791, 818, 822, 840, 995, 1008	Deputy Secretary.....	1012	Administrator.....	788
Meetings with the President		Secretary.....	799	Assistant Administrator.....	789, 804, 1004
Bipartisan leadership.....	802, 1012, 1021	Defense Appropriation Authorization Act.....	1007	General Counsel.....	789, 804
Republican leaders.....	802, 1010	Defense spending. See under Economy, national		Office of Intergovernmental and Regional Relations, Director.....	839, 1005
Sequoia meetings.....	802	Dent, Frederick B.....	788	Federal Regional Councils, Chairmen.....	839
Senate, Foreign Relations Committee.....	807	Digest of other White House announcements. See last pages of text in each issue		Federal Reserve System
Congress, Communications to		Disaster assistance, States receiving		Board of Governors.....	802
Commodity Credit Corporation, annual report transmittal.....	1004	Minnesota.....	805	Monetary restraint.....	833
Cost of Living Task Force, message.....	1002	New York.....	829	Federal spending. See Budget; Economy, national Government executive development, message.....	808	Ohio.....	798	Fisheries Commission, International
Government services to rural areas, annual report transmittal.....	1021	Disaster relief functions.....	799	Pacific Salmon.....	1021
Hazardous Materials Transportation Control Act of 1970, annual report transmittal.....	802	District of Columbia, National Guard, Commanding General.....	802	Food, civil defense stockpiles.....	798
International Coffee Agreement, annual report transmittal.....	796	Doar, John M.....	824, 825	Ford, Vice President Gerald R.....	786, 802, 817, 818, 1012, 1015, 1018
International Maritime Traffic Convention, amended text transmittal.....	998	Domestic Council.....	802	Foreign Claims Settlement Commission.....	793, 804, 839, 1005
National Advisory Council on Adult Education, annual report transmittal.....	1021	Dominica, U.S. Special Representative.....	994	Foreman, Ed.....	829
National Heart and Lung Advisory Council, annual report transmittal.....	998	Dominican Republic		Forest Products Week, 1974, National.....	1000
National security investigations and wiretaps, letter to Chairman of Senate Foreign Relations Committee.....	807	President Joaquin Balaguer, inauguration.....	1021	France
Telegraph and telephone regulations, transmittal to Senate.....	1007	U.S. Ambassador to.....	1021	Bicentennial gift.....	796, 797, 804
Trade agreements program, annual report transmittal.....	1012	Donovan, Eileen R.....	994	President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing.....	797
Urban transportation policies and activities, annual report transmittal.....	1001	Doub, William O.....	1021	Fulbright, Sen. J. William.....	807
World Weather Program, annual report transmittal.....	1001	Dow, James E.....	817, 995	Gallegos, Bert A.....	807, 1005
Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974.....	799, 800, 804	Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, Alcohol.....	806, 818	Gardner, Stephen S.....	804
Connor, Robert E.....	798, 805	Drug Abuse, Strategy Council on.....	1021	GATT. See General Agreements on Tariffs and Trade
Conservation, forest products and resources.....	1000	DuPont, Dr. Robert L., Jr.....	806, 818	Geimer, William W.....	839, 1005
Construction, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	739, 761, 791	Eberle, William D.....	788, 804	General Agreements on Tariffs and Trade.....	1013
Construction, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in Housing and Other.....	739, 761	Economic Advisers, Council of, Chairman.....	802, 815, 817, 818, 828, 995	Geneva Peace Conference on the Middle East.....	758
Cook, William Holmes.....	1003, 1005	Economic cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	741, 759, 791	Genschner, Hans-Dietrich.....	994
Cooperation in Europe, Conference on Security and.....	757	Economic Opportunity, Office of, Director.....	807, 817, 1005	Georgia, U.S. district judge.....	804
Coors, Joseph.....	1010, 1022	Economic Policy, Council on International, Executive Director.....	788, 804	Germany, Federal Republic of
Corporation for Public Broadcasting.....	1010, 1022	Economy, national		Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.....	790
Cortina, Pedro Mauri.....	814	Address to Nation.....	830	Vice-Chancellor and Minister of Foreign Affairs Hans-Dietrich Genschner.....	994
Cost of Living Task Force, proposed.....	1002, 1005	Cost of Living Task Force, proposed.....	1002	Gesell, Gerhard A.....	802
Council. See other part of title		Defense spending.....	1007	Ghana, U.S. Ambassador to.....	994
Courts, United States		Federal spending.....	799, 800, 821, 832, 1014	Giscard d'Estaing, Valéry.....	796, 797
U.S. attorney, Texas.....	804	Inflation.....	800, 802, 821, 830, 1014	Goldwater, Sen. Barry.....	1010
U.S. circuit judge, 2d circuit.....	804, 1022	Emergency Board No. 185, railway labor dispute.....	789	Goodearle, Roy.....	803
U.S. Court of Military Appeals		Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974.....	838	Government departments and agencies, energy conservation.....	788
Associate judge.....	1003, 1005	Energy		Government employees, executive development.....	808, 818
Chief judge.....	1022	Conservation.....	788	Gray, L. Patrick III.....	1009
U.S. district judges		Uranium supplies.....	1009	Greece
Georgia.....	804	U.S.S.R., cooperation with.....	737, 761, 791	Cyprus conflict.....	817, 820
Minnesota.....	1022	Energy, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in the Field of.....	737, 761	Prime Minister Konstantinos Karamanlis.....	994
New Jersey.....	1004	Energy Administration, Federal.....	788, 789, 839, 1004	Green, S. William.....	829
Oklahoma.....	1004	Environment		Greenspan, Alan.....	828, 995
U.S. marshals		U.S.S.R., cooperation with.....	753, 762	Greenwalt, Lynn Adams.....	838, 1005
California.....	804	U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint statement.....	753	Gregg, Lucius Perry, Jr.....	1010, 1022
Louisiana.....	803, 818	World Weather Program.....	1001	Grenada, U.S. Special Representative.....	994
Massachusetts.....	804	Environmental Protection Agency, appropriations veto.....	1014	Griffin, Sen. Robert P.....	802
Credit Corporation, Commodity		Environmental warfare.....	753, 765	Gurfeln, Murray I.....	804
Cultural exchanges, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	762	Erbe, Norman A.....	829	Habib, Philip C.....	1002, 1005
Curtis, Sen. Carl T.....	802	Erickson, William D.....	1022	Hadden, A. Roby.....	804
Customs Service, United States.....	1008	Europe		Hadsel, Fred L.....	994
Cyprus.....	817, 819, 999	U.S. forces.....	729, 731	Haldeman, H. R.....	1008
Dean, Dixey.....	813	U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint communique.....	757	Hartman, Arthur A.....	791
DeBaca, Fernando E. C.....	816	European Economic Community, brandy imports.....	807	Hays, David W.....	820
		Executive Orders		Hazardous materials transportation.....	802
		Civil defense medical and food stockpiles (EO 11794).....	798	Health, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	740, 761, 791
		Disaster relief functions (EO 11795).....	799	Health, Education, and Welfare, Department of
		Exports, regulation of (EO 11796).....	999	Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, Administrator.....	806, 818
		Federal facilities in rural areas, report (EO 11797).....	1000	Secretary.....	802, 804
		Secretary of Agriculture (EO 11793).....	796	Health Cooperation, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee for.....	740, 761
		Exports, regulation.....	999	Heart and Lung Advisory Council, National.....	998
		Fabiola, Queen.....	790	Heart research, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	740, 761, 791
		Federal Aviation Administration, Deputy Administrator.....	817, 995	Helms, Richard.....	1009
		Federal Bureau of Investigation.....	1008	Herndon, Lillie E.....	1010, 1022
				Hodgson, James D.....	802
				Hogan, Repr. Lawrence J.....	998

Hostetter, Amos B., Jr.	1010, 1022
Housing, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	739, 761, 791
Housing and Other Construction, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in	739, 761
Housing Partnerships, National Corporation for	1022
Housing and Urban Development, Department of, Secretary	799, 1003, 1005
Hunt, E. Howard	841, 870
Hurwitch, Robert A.	1021
Iceland, Special Ambassador to 1100th anniversary	994
Immunity from prosecution	1011
Impeachment inquiry
Brief submitted to the House Judiciary Committee	840
Impeachable offense	826
Internal Revenue Service	842, 983
International Telephone and Telegraph	841, 945
Milk support price	842, 958, 963
News conference by Special Counsel St. Clair	822
Presidential tapes and documents	822-828, 1008
Wiretaps	807, 841, 923
Imports, brandy	807
Impoundment Control Act of 1974, Congressional Budget and	799, 800, 804
Independence Day, 1974	790
Industry. See Business and Industry.
Interior, Department of the
Assistant Secretary	838, 1005
Office of Oil and Gas, Associate Director	802
Secretary	802, 994
Under Secretary	802
United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Director	838, 1005
Internal Revenue Service, impeachment inquiry	842, 983
International Coffee Agreement	796
International Economic Policy, Council on	788, 804
International Maritime Traffic Convention	998
International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission	1021
International Telephone and Telegraph	841, 945
Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor	790
ITT. See International Telephone and Telegraph
Jackson, Levi A.	830
Japan, U.S. Ambassador to	802
Jenner, Albert E., Jr.	824
Johnston, Donald A.	994
Joint Statements
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics	753
Jones, Sidney L.	795
Judiciary Committee, House	791, 818, 822, 840, 995, 1008
Justice, Department of
Assistant Attorney General	998, 1005
Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. See Law Enforcement Assistance Administration
Special Prosecutor	1008
Karamanlis, Konstantinos	994
Keene, Joseph W.	803, 818
Kelly, Bernard	829
Key Biscayne, Fla.	790, 802
King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr.	771
Kissinger, Dr. Henry A.	763, 791, 807, 814, 817, 1018, 1021
Klein, Herbert G.	994
Kleindienst, Richard G.	842, 951
Korff, Baruch	813, 817, 818, 1021
Kosciusko-Morizet, Jacques	796
Kosygin, A. N.	740, 790
Labor, Department of, Secretary	802
Labor, railway dispute	789
Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, Administrator	999, 1005

Letters, Messages, Telegrams

See also Congress, Communications to
Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman Herbert Stein, exchange of letters on resignation	815
French gift for the American Revolution Bicentennial, exchange of letters with French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing	797
Resignation, letter to the Secretary of State	1021
Livestock Credit Act of 1974, Emergency	838
Loomis, Philip A., Jr.	806, 818
Loring Air Force Base, Maine	766, 790
Louisiana, U.S. marshal	803, 818
Lowman, Dr. Charles LeRoy	997, 1005
Lung Advisory Council, National Heart and	998
Luns, Joseph	728
Lynn, James T.	1003, 1005
Management and Budget, Office of, Director	802, 804, 817, 819, 994
Maritime Traffic Convention, International	998
Martinez, Samuel	829
Massachusetts, U.S. marshal	804
Mauritania, U.S. Ambassador to	994
McAninch, Vernon D.	994
Mead, Dana	802
Medals. See Awards and Citations
Medical stockpiles for civil defense	798

Meetings with Foreign Leaders

Belgium
King Baudouin I	728, 732, 790
Prime Minister Leo Tindermans	790
Germany, Federal Republic of, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt	790
Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor	790
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics
Chairman N. V. Podgorny	790
General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev	735, 748, 790
Premier A. N. Kosygin	790
United Kingdom, Prime Minister Harold Wilson	790

Memorandums to Federal Agencies

Combined Federal Campaign	1012
Mental Health Administration, Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and	806, 818
Meskill, Thomas J.	1022
Middle East
North Atlantic Council meeting, remarks	731
U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint communique	758
Military Appeals, U.S. Court of	1003, 1005, 1022
Milk, support price	842, 958, 963
Minnesota
Disaster assistance	805
U.S. district judge	1022
Missile systems, protocol to treaty on the limitation of anti-ballistic	750, 756
Mitchell, John N.	842, 951
Monagan, Robert T.	1021
Montgomery, Robert E., Jr.	789, 804
Morton, Rogers C.B.	802, 994
Mount Vernon, French sound and light spectacle for American Revolution Bicentennial	796, 797, 804
Murphy, Richard W.	994, 999, 1005
National Advisory Council on Adult Education	1021
National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services	802
National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency	813, 818, 1021
National Commission for the Observance of World Population Year, 1974	798
National Corporation for Housing Partnerships	1022
National Forest Products Week, 1974	1000
National Heart and Lung Advisory Council	998
National Science Foundation	1021

National Student Government Day, 1974	1010
Natural resources, forests	1000
New Jersey, U.S. district judge	1004
New York, disaster assistance	829
News Conferences Other Than Presidential
Congressional support assessment, Republican Congressional leadership	1010
House Judiciary Committee impeachment inquiry, Special Counsel St. Clair	822
President's visit to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Secretary of State Kissinger	763
Nominations submitted to the Senate. See last page of text in each issue
North Atlantic Treaty Organization
Brussels meeting with North Atlantic Council	728, 731, 732, 769
Cyprus conflict	820
Declaration on Atlantic Relations	729, 731
Secretary General Joseph Luns	728
Nuclear powerplants	1009
Nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of underground	751
Office. See other part of title
Ohio, disaster assistance	798
Oklahoma, U.S. district judge	1004
O'Neill, John Ellis	802
Otis, Webster	829
Parker, Joseph O.	1021
People's Republic of China. See China, People's Republic of
Peron, Juan Domingo	771
Pettit, John Whitney	1010, 1022
Podgorny, N. V.	739, 741, 790
Population control	793
Population Year, 1974, National Commission on the Observance of World	798
Post, Marjorie Meriweather	802
Presidency, National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the	813, 818, 1021
Presidential Medal of Freedom, Dr. Charles LeRoy Lowman	997, 1005
Presidential tapes and documents	822-828, 1008
President's Commission on White House Fellowships	830, 1002
President's travel
Domestic
Bel Air, Calif.	819, 994
Los Angeles, Calif.	830
Palm Beach, Fla.	802
Foreign
Belgium	718, 727-735
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics	718, 735-771
Proclamations
Captive Nations Week, 1974 (Proc. 4302)	801
Imports of brandy (Proc. 4304)	807
National Forest Products Week, 1974 (Proc. 4305)	1000
National Student Government Day, 1974 (Proc. 4307)	1010
United Nations Day, 1974 (Proc. 4300)	794
United States Customs 185th Anniversary Year (Proc. 4306)	1008
United States Space Week, 1974 (Proc. 4303)	805
White Cane Safety Day, 1974 (Proc. 4301)	794
World Population Year, 1974 (Proc. 4299)	793
Railway labor-management dispute	789
Raven, Jack E.	829
Reports to the President
Emergency Board No. 185, railway labor dispute	789

Research, medical.....	740, 761, 791
Resignation, President's
Address to Nation.....	1014
Letter to Secretary of State.....	1021
Possibility of.....	1010
Press Secretary Ziegler, remarks to reporters.....	1018
Resignations and Retirements
Ambassadors
Barbados.....	994
Ghana.....	994
Mauritania.....	994
Army Department, Assistant Secretary.....	802
Atomic Energy Commission, member.....	1021
Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman.....	815
District of Columbia, National Guard, Commanding General.....	802
Federal Energy Administration, Assistant Administrator.....	1004
National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services, member.....	802
National Science Foundation, Board member.....	1021
Office of Economic Opportunity, Director.....	817
Transportation Department, Assistant Secretary.....	1021
U.S. district judge
New Jersey.....	1004
Oklahoma.....	1004
Rhodes, Repr. John J.....	802, 1010
Rural areas
Federal facilities.....	1000
Government services, report transmittal.....	1021
Rush, Kenneth.....	802, 804, 817, 995, 1002
St. Christopher-Nevis-Anguilla, U.S. Special Representative.....	994
St. Clair, James D.....	787, 802, 804, 822, 829, 1008
St. Lucia, U.S. Special Representative.....	994
St. Vincent, U.S. Special Representative.....	994
Saletic, William G.....	1021
SALT. See Strategic arms limitation
San Clemente, Calif.....	803, 994, 1004
Sant, Roger West.....	789, 804
Sawhill, John C.....	788
Scalia, Antonin M.....	998, 1005
Schmidt, Helmut.....	790
Science and technology, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	737, 740, 741, 761, 791
Scott, Sen. Hugh.....	802, 1010
Securities and Exchange Commission.....	806, 818
Security and Cooperation in Europe, Conference on.....	757
Sequoia meetings, with certain Members of Congress.....	802
Simon, William E.....	802, 1004, 1005
Sirica, John J.....	1008
Sisco, Joseph J.....	817
Smith, Elmer E.....	829
Smith, Wilfred J.....	839, 1005
Snyder, Daniel J., III.....	829
Southward, Maj. Gen. Charles L.....	802
Spaatz, Gen. Carl A.....	807
Space program, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	762
Space Week, 1974, United States.....	805, 815
Spain
Foreign Minister Pedro Mauri Cortina.....	814
Joint declaration of principles with U.S.....	814
Prince Juan Carlos.....	814
State, Department of
Assistant Inspector General, Foreign Assistance.....	830
Assistant Secretaries.....	791, 1002, 1005
Secretary.....	763, 791, 802, 807, 814, 817, 1018, 1021
Under Secretary.....	817

Statements by the President

Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, signing ceremony.....	800
Deaths
Dean, Dizzy.....	813
King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr.....	771
Peron, Juan Domingo.....	771
Spaatz, Gen. Carl A.....	807
Warren, Earl.....	795
Department of Defense Appropriation Authorization Act, 1975, bill signing.....	1007
Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974.....	838
Energy conservation.....	788
Independence Day, 1974.....	790
Joint declaration of principles between the United States and Spain.....	814
Supreme Court decision on Presidential tapes and documents.....	829
Tapes of Presidential conversations, release.....	1008

Statements Other Than Presidential

Brussels meeting with the North Atlantic Council, Press Secretary Ziegler.....	731
Uranium supplies, Deputy Press Secretary Warren.....	1009
Stein, Herbert.....	802, 815, 817, 818
Strategic arms limitation.....	750, 753, 755, 756, 763, 764, 769
Strategy Council on Drug Abuse.....	1021
Student Government Day, 1974, National.....	1010
Supplementary Centers and Services, National Advisory Council on.....	802
Supreme Court of the United States.....	772, 802, 822-829, 1008
Surganov, F. A.....	742
Syria, U.S. Ambassador to.....	999, 1005
Tariff Commission, United States.....	1021
Taylor, Joseph Z.....	830
Technology. See Science and technology
Telegraph and telephone regulations.....	1007
Texas, U.S. attorney.....	804
Tindermans, Leo.....	790
Trade
Coffee.....	796
Multilateral negotiations.....	1013
Regulation of exports.....	999
Trade Reform Act, proposed.....	1013
Transportation
Cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	762
Urban.....	1001
Transportation, Department of
Assistant Secretary.....	1021
Federal Aviation Administration.....	817, 995
Treasury, Department of the
Deputy Secretary.....	804
General Counsel.....	804
Secretary.....	802, 1004, 1005
United States Customs Service.....	1008
Treaties and other international agreements
Agreements with U.S.S.R.
Economic, industrial, and technical cooperation.....	741
Energy.....	737
Heart research.....	740
Housing and construction.....	739
Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol to treaty on the limitation of.....	750
Declaration on Atlantic Relations.....	729
International Maritime Traffic Convention.....	998
Telegraph and telephone regulations.....	1007
Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of.....	751
Trione, Henry F.....	1022
Turkey, Cyprus conflict.....	817, 820
Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of.....	751

Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Agreements with U.S.

Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol on the limitation of.....	750, 756
Construction.....	739, 761, 791
Economic, industrial, and technical.....	741, 759, 791
Energy.....	737, 761, 791
Heart research.....	740, 761, 791
Housing.....	739, 761, 791
Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of.....	751
Chairman N. V. Podgorny.....	739, 741, 790
General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev.....	735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
Joint statements.....	753
North Atlantic Council meeting, remarks.....	731
Premier A. N. Kosygin.....	740, 790
President's visit
Address to the Soviet people.....	744
Departure from Washington.....	718, 727
Dinners in Moscow.....	735, 748
Luncheon in Minsk.....	742
News conference by Secretary of State Kissinger.....	763
United Kingdom
Minister of State.....	999
Prime Minister Harold Wilson.....	790
U.S. Ambassador to.....	817
United Nations Day, 1974.....	794
United States Courts. See Courts, United States
United States Customs 185th Anniversary Year.....	1008
United States Space Week, 1974.....	805, 815
United States Tariff Commission.....	1021
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Commercial Commission.....	741
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in the Field of Energy.....	737, 761
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in Housing and Other Construction.....	739, 761
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee for Health Cooperation.....	740, 761
Uranium supplies, enriched.....	1009
Urban transportation.....	1001
Vaky, Viron P.....	994
Van Court, Arthur F.....	804
Velde, Richard W.....	999, 1005
Veto Messages and Memorandums of Disapproval
Appropriations bill.....	1014
Vice President. See Ford, Vice President Gerald R.
Virgin Islands, drought, emergency assistance.....	828
Walters, Vernon A.....	1009
Warren, Earl.....	795
Warren, Gerald L.....	1009, 1012
Watergate investigation
Central Intelligence Agency.....	1008
Court documents.....	772
Federal Bureau of Investigation.....	1008
House Judiciary Committee.....	791, 818, 840, 995, 1008
Impeachable offense.....	826
National security investigations.....	807
Payments to defendants.....	824, 826, 827, 841, 870
Presidential tapes and documents.....	822-829, 828, 1008
Supreme Court review.....	772, 802, 822-829
Weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of underground nuclear.....	751
Weather Program, World.....	1001
Weber, John W.....	1004
Weinberger, Caspar W.....	802, 804
Whitaker, John C.....	802
White Cane Safety Day, 1974.....	794
White House Fellows.....	1002

White House Fellowships, President's Commission on.....	830, 1002
White House Staff
Communications Director.....	994
Counsellor for Economic Policy.....	802, 804, 817, 995
Counsellors	791, 802, 995, 1002
Deputy Assistant.....	795
Deputy Press Secretary.....	1009, 1012
President's farewell remarks.....	1019
Press Secretary.....	731, 791, 818, 824, 825, 1012, 1018
Special Assistant.....	816
White House Statements
Cyprus cease-fire agreement.....	999
Wiretaps	807, 841, 923
World Population Year, 1974.....	793, 798
World Weather Program.....	1001
Wushu Troupe.....	801
Zamyatin, L. M.....	791
Ziegler, Ronald L.....	731, 791, 818, 824, 825, 1012, 1018

Index to Documents of the Administration of Gerald R. Ford

Addresses and Remarks of the President

Appointment of Press Secretary terHorst	1025
Swearing-in ceremony	1023

Appointments and Nominations

White House Staff
Counsellors	1026, 1027
Press Secretary	1025
Ash, Roy L.	1026, 1028
Burger, Warren E.	1023
Burns, Arthur F.	1026, 1028
Cabinet, meeting with the President	1028
Congress, meetings with the President, bipartisan leadership	1028
Economic Advisers, Council of
Chairman	1026, 1028
Chairman-designate	1026, 1028
Federal Reserve System, Board of Governors, Chairman	1026, 1028
Greenspan, Alan	1026, 1028
Hartmann, Robert T.	1026, 1028

Inauguration ceremony. See under

Swearing-In Ceremonies
Interior, Department of the, Secretary	1026, 1028
Kissinger, Dr. Henry A.	1026
Management and Budget, Office of, Director	1026, 1028
Marsh, John O., Jr.	1026-1028

Memorandums to Federal Agencies

Presidential transition	1027
Morton, Rogers C. B.	1026, 1028
National Security Council, meeting with the President	1028

News Conferences Other Than Presidential

Appointment of transition team and President's schedule, Press Secretary terHorst	1026
Nixon, Richard M.	1024
Rumsfeld, Donald	1026, 1028
Rush, Kenneth	1026, 1028

Scranton, William W.	1026, 1028
Security Council, National	1028
Seldman, William	1026, 1028
Simon, William E.	1026, 1028
State, Department of, Secretary	1026
Stein, Herbert	1026, 1028
Supreme Court of the United States, Chief Justice	1023

Swearing-In Ceremonies

President of the United States	1023
terHorst, J. F.	1025, 1026
Treasury, Department of the, Secretary	1026, 1028
Vice Presidential Staff, memorandum on Presidential transition	1027
White House Staff
Counsellor for Economic Policy	1026, 1028
Counsellors	1026, 1027
Presidential transition, memorandum	1027
Press Secretary	1025

Weekly Compilation of
PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Monday, August 26, 1974

Volume 10 • Number 34

Pages 1043-1064

Index of Contents

ACTS APPROVED----- 1064 ADDRESSES AND REMARKS (See also Bill Signings) Chicago, Illinois, remarks upon arrival----- 1045 Reception honoring Senate Majority Leader----- 1053 Tribute to slain Ambassador to Cyprus----- 1054 United States House of Representatives----- 1058 United States Senate----- 1057 Veterans of Foreign Wars, address to 75th convention ----- 1045 Vice President of the United States, selection of nominee ----- 1050, 1051 APPOINTMENTS AND NOMINATIONS Ambassadors, U.S. Cyprus (William R. Crawford, Jr.)----- 1055 Ghana (Shirley Temple Black)----- 1052 Nominations submitted----- 1064 Veterans Administration, Administrator of Veterans Affairs (Richard L. Roudebush)----- 1050 Vice President (Nelson A. Rockefeller)----- 1050 White House Staff, Liaison with Vice President-designate (Richard T. Burrell)----- 1053 BILL SIGNINGS Education Amendments of 1974, remarks and statement ----- 1055, 1056 Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974, statement----- 1043 Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, remarks and statement----- 1059, 1060	CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES----- 1064 CONGRESS, COMMUNICATIONS TO Deployment of U.S. forces in NATO Europe, message submitting report----- 1052 Freedom of Information Act amendments, letter to chairmen of conference committee----- 1061 U.S.-Australian extradition treaty, message to the Senate transmitting----- 1059 DIGEST OF OTHER WHITE HOUSE ANNOUNCEMENTS----- 1062 EXECUTIVE ORDERS Aviation career incentive pay (EO 11800)----- 1043 Display of the flag in memory of slain Ambassador to Cyprus (EO 11801)----- 1055 Promotion of Navy and Marine Corps officers (EO 11799)----- 1044 MEETINGS WITH FOREIGN LEADERS King Hussein of Jordan, joint statement----- 1044 PROCLAMATIONS Columbus Day, 1974 (Proc. 4308)----- 1053 Women's Equality Day, 1974 (Proc. 4309)----- 1059 STATEMENTS BY THE PRESIDENT (See also Bill Signings) General Motors price increase----- 1055 Wage and Price Monitoring Agency----- 1052 STATEMENTS OTHER THAN PRESIDENTIAL Death of the U.S. Ambassador to Cyprus, statement by Press Secretary----- 1045
---	---

[A Cumulative Index to Prior Issues appears at the end of this issue.]

WEEKLY COMPILATION OF Presidential Documents

Published every Monday by the Office of the Federal Register, National Archives and Records Service, General Services Administration, Washington, D.C. 20408, the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents contains statements, messages and other Presidential materials released by the White House during the preceding week.

The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents is published pursuant to the authority contained in the Federal Register Act (49 Stat. 500, as amended; 44 U.S.C. Ch. 15), under regulations prescribed by the Administrative Committee of the Federal Register, approved by the President (37 F.R. 23607; 1 CFR Part 10).

Distribution is made only by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents will be furnished by mail to subscribers for $15.00 per year, payable to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The charge for a single copy is 50 cents.

There are no restrictions on the republication of material appearing in the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents.

Administration of Gerald R. Ford

PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Week Ending Saturday, August 24, 1974

Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974

Statement by the President Upon Signing the Bill Into Law While Expressing Reservations About Certain of Its Provisions. August 17, 1974

I am signing today S. 2296, the Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974.

One of the essential lessons of the recent energy crisis is that if we are to prevent shortages of natural resources in the future, we must plan for the future today. Our resources, however abundant, are not inexhaustible. They must be conserved and replenished.

The Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act provides us the means for planning national programs now which will assure future generations of adequate supplies of forest and related resources.

The great naturalist, John Muir, once said of our Nation's forests: "The forests of America, however slighted by man, must have been a great delight to God; for they were the best He ever planted." This act proves that Americans intend never again to slight our forests.

I would be less than candid if I did not admit that certain provisions of this act disturb me, especially those provisions relating to Presidential discretion in formulating annual budget requests for our national forestry programs. But the benefits of this legislation far outweigh any potential drawbacks, and I am confident that the Congress and the executive branch, working together, can and will manage, develop, and improve our priceless natural legacy of forests and rangelands.

NOTE: As enacted, the bill (S. 2296) is Public Law 93-378, approved August 17, 1974.

Aviation Career Incentive Pay

Executive Order 11800. August 17, 1974

DELEGATING CERTAIN AUTHORITY VESTED IN THE PRESIDENT BY THE AVIATION CAREER INCENTIVE ACT OF 1974

By virtue of the authority vested in me by section 301 of title 3 of the United States Code, and as President of the United States and Commander in Chief of the Armed Forces of the United States, it is hereby ordered as follows:

SECTION 1. The Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of Transportation with respect to the Coast Guard when it is not operating as a service in the Navy, the Secretary of Commerce and the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, with respect to members of the uniformed service under their respective jurisdictions, are hereby designated and empowered to exercise, without approval, ratification, or other action by the President, the functions vested in the President by section 301a of title 37 of the United States Code, as added by section 2(3) of the Aviation Career Incentive Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-294; 88 Stat. 177) with respect to entitlement of regular and reserve officers of the uniformed services, including flight surgeons and other medical officers, to aviation career incentive pay for the frequent and regular performance of operational or proficiency flying duty.

SEC. 2. This order is effective as of June 1, 1974.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
August 17, 1974.

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 12:40 p.m., August 19, 1974]

Promotion of Navy and Marine Corps Officers

Executive Order 11799. August 17, 1974

AMENDING EXECUTIVE ORDER NO. 11554 AS IT RELATES TO THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A MAXIMUM PERCENTAGE OF NAVY AND MARINE CORPS OFFICERS WHO MAY BE RECOMMENDED FOR PROMOTION FROM BELOW THE APPROPRIATE PROMOTION ZONE

By virtue of the authority vested in me by section 5711 (b) of title 10 of the United States Code, Executive Order No. 11554 of August 29, 1970, as amended, is amended to read as follows:

"The operation of so much of the provisions of section 5707(c) of title 10 of the United States Code as restrict, to a percentage of five percent of the total number of officers that a board is authorized to recommend for promotion, the number of Navy and Marine Corps officers below the appropriate promotion zone who may be recommended as best fitted for promotion to the grade concerned, is hereby suspended until June 30, 1976."

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
August 17, 1974.

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 12:40 p.m.,
August 19, 1974]

Visit of King Hussein of Jordan

U.S.-Jordanian Joint Statement Issued at the Conclusion of His Majesty's Visit. August 18, 1974

His Majesty King Hussein I of Jordan paid a visit to Washington August 15-18, at the invitation of the President. The President and His Majesty conferred at the White House and the President hosted a dinner in honor of His Majesty and Queen Alia. The President expressed his pleasure that His Majesty was the first Head of State to visit Washington in the new administration. His Majesty also conferred with the Secretaries of State and Defense and met with members of Congress. His Majesty was accompanied by the Prime Minister of Jordan, Mr. Zaid Rifai.

The talks were held in the atmosphere of friendship and understanding traditional in relations between the United States and Jordan. The President and His Majesty pledged that the two countries will continue to work closely together for the achievement of a just and lasting peace in the Middle East. The President stressed the continuity of United States' policy in this regard as in all other aspects of American foreign policy and affirmed his commitment that the United States would continue its determined efforts to help bring a peace settlement in the Middle East. The discussions between His Majesty and the President and Secretary of State were a constructive contribution to the consultations now underway looking toward the next stage in negotiations for a just and durable peace in the Middle East. It was agreed that these consultations will continue with a view to addressing at an appropriately early date the issues of particular concern to Jordan, including a Jordanian-Israeli disengagement agreement.

The President and His Majesty reaffirmed the close ties of friendship between the United States and Jordan and pledged to continue their efforts to strengthen the bonds which join the two countries in mutually beneficial cooperation. Specifically, His Majesty and the President recalled that the joint U.S.-Jordanian statement issued June 18 at the end of President Nixon's visit to Amman announced that Jordan and the United States agreed to establish a Joint Commission to oversee and review at a high level the various areas of cooperation between the two countries. In fulfilling this agreement, the U.S. and Jordan have pledged to make every effort to expedite the development of an effective structure of cooperation and have agreed on the following concrete steps:

The United States and Jordan have established a general Jordan-United States Joint Commission under the chairmanship of the Jordanian Prime Minister and the U.S. Secretary of State. The first meetings of this Commission were held during the Prime Minister's visit to Washington August 5-8 and August 16-17 during which promising areas of mutual interest were identified.

The Commission will sponsor a meeting on economic development, trade and investment before the end of the year to review plans for Jordan's economic development and identify additional areas in which the United States can be of assistance. Work will begin immediately in Amman and Washington to prepare for this meeting. The Commission will also explore possibilities for increased American private participation in Jordan's economic development and ways of increasing trade between the two countries. Mr. Daniel Parker will head the American Delegation to the economic meeting, which will also include representation from various government agencies. The Jordanian Economic Delegation will be headed by Dr. Khalil Salem, President of the National Planning Council.

The Commission will arrange meetings on military assistance and supply problems at a mutually acceptable date to review implementation of continuing U.S. assistance to the Jordanian Armed Forces and to advance planning for future assistance. Jordan's Chief of Staff, Major General Zaid bin Shaker, and the Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs, Ambassador Robert Ellsworth, will head the respective delegations.

It was further agreed that Jordan and the United States will give attention to the means by which educational, cultural, and scientific cooperation between the two countries can be enhanced.

Finally, the President and His Majesty agreed that they would remain in close contact with each other with a view to giving their full support to the efforts being made to achieve peace in the Middle East and to the further strengthening of the ties between their two countries.

His Majesty expressed the hope that the President would be able to visit Jordan at some future date. The President said he would be happy to do so.

Death of the U.S. Ambassador to Cyprus

Statement by the White House Press Secretary on the Slaying of Ambassador Rodger P. Davies in Nicosia During Anti-American Demonstrations. August 19, 1974

The President was shocked and deeply saddened by the death of Ambassador Davies in Nicosia today. This tragic incident emphasizes the urgent need for an end to the violence on Cyprus and an immediate return to negotiations for a peaceful settlement.

NOTE: The White House later announced that the President had sent messages of condolence to Ambassador Davies' son and daughter and to his mother.

The statement was made available by the White House Press Office. It was not issued in the form of a White House press release.

For remarks at a ceremony honoring Ambassador Davies, see p. 1054 of this issue.

Chicago, Illinois

The President's Remarks Upon Arrival To Address the Veterans of Foreign Wars Convention. August 19, 1974

This is a wonderful, wonderful day in Chicago, and Betty and I are deeply grateful for all of you coming out to visit us on our first trip out of Washington since a week or 10 days ago. Thank you so, so very much.

Now, let me just add a word, if I might. I have said it several times, but all of you can contribute so much. We have got a lot of work to do, that includes me, as well as you, and our fellow Americans. We are going to do that work, and we are going to accomplish what has to be done, both at home and abroad.

There is, I think, a great opportunity for America, for what we can do at home and what we can do abroad. It will take a little belt tightening and sacrificing, but with the spirit that I know exists in America, and you exemplify it here this morning by your warm welcome, I am sure we can do the job, with God's help.

Thank you so very, very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 9:30 a.m. at O'Hare Field, Chicago, Ill.

VETERANS OF FOREIGN WARS

The President's Address to the 75th Convention of the VFW in Chicago, Illinois. August 19, 1974

Commander Ray Soden, Governor Walker, my former members or former colleagues of the United States Congress, my fellow members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars:

Let me express my deepest gratitude for your extremely warm welcome, and may I say to Mayor Daley and to all the wonderful people of Chicago who have done an unbelievable job in welcoming Betty and myself to Chicago, we are most grateful.

I have a sneaking suspicion that Mayor Daley and the people of Chicago knew that Betty was born in Chicago. Needless to say, I deeply appreciate your medal and the citation on my first trip out of Washington as your President. I hope that in the months ahead I can justify your faith in making the citation and the award available to me.

It is good to be back in Chicago, among people from all parts of our great Nation, to take part in this 75th annual convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

As a proud member of Old Kent Post VFW 830, let me talk today about some of the work facing veterans—and all Americans—the issues of world peace and national unity.

Speaking of national unity, let me quickly point out that I am also a proud member of the American Legion and the AMVETS.

In a more somber note, this morning we all heard the tragic news of the killing of our American Ambassador to Cyprus. He, too, gave his life in foreign wars. Let us offer our prayers and our condolences to his loved ones for his supreme sacrifice on behalf of all Americans.

As President and as a veteran, I want good relations with all veterans. We all proudly wore the same Nation's uniform and patriotically saluted the same flag. During my Administration, the door of my office will be open to veterans just as it was all my 25 years as a Member of the Congress.

NOMINATION OF ADMINISTRATOR OF VETERANS AFFAIRS

Today, I am happy to announce my intention to send the Senate the nomination of my personal friend and former Congressional colleague Dick Roudebush of Indiana—it seems to me you know what I am going to say—[laughter]—But I will finish the sentence—to be Administrator of the Veterans Administration.

As past National Commander of the VFW, Roudy has served well as Deputy Administrator of the VA. He is a man who gets things done and, I am confident, will do a first-class job.

It seems to me that we should recognize the veteran is a human being, not just a "C" number to be processed by a computer system. We all know that the Government knew our name when we were called into service. This Administration is going to see to it that we still know your name and your problems. A veteran is a person, not just a digit in a computer system which more often than not goofs up.

I propose the VA take the best of our technology and the very best of our human capabilities and combine them. As President, I want no arrogance or indifference to any individual, veteran or not. Our Government's machinery exists to serve people, not to frustrate or humiliate them.

I don't like redtape. As a matter of fact, I don't like any kind of tapes.

Our great veterans hospitals, which will not lose their identity, must be the very best that medical skill and dedication can create. VA hospitals have made many great medical breakthroughs in the past. One of America's great challenges today is the older veteran. The VA medical and nursing care system for older people must become a showcase for the entire Nation. We can work together to achieve that end and humanize the VA.

But to achieve such progress, I intend to improve the management of the VA. We must get the most for our tax dollars. While supporting the new Administrator in maximum efforts to make the best use of funds available, I want Roudy to take a constructive new look at the VA's structure and the services that it renders to our veterans.

I think it is about time that we should stop thinking of veterans in terms of different wars. Some may march at a different pace than others.

But we all march to the same drummer in the service of our Nation. I salute the men of many campaigns—of World War I, World War II, Korea, and Vietnam.

As Minority Leader of the House and recently as Vice President, I stated my strong conviction that unconditional, blanket amnesty for anyone who illegally evaded or fled military service is wrong. It is wrong.

Yet, in my first words as President of all the people, I acknowledged a Power, higher than the people, Who commands not only righteousness but love, not only justice but mercy.

Unlike my last two predecessors, I did not enter this office facing the terrible decisions of a foreign war, but like President Truman and President Lincoln before him, I found on my desk, where the buck stops, the urgent problem of how to bind up the Nation's wounds. And I intend to do that.

As a lawyer, I believe our American system of justice is fundamentally sound. As President, I will work within it.

As a former naval reservist, I believe our system of military justice is fundamentally sound. As Commander in Chief, I will work within it.

As a former Congressman who championed it, I believe the concept of an all-volunteer armed force is fundamentally sound and will work much better than peacetime conscription.

Accordingly, in my first week at the White House, I requested the Attorney General of the United States and the Secretary of Defense to report to me personally, before September 1, on the status of some 50,000 of our countrymen convicted, charged or under investigation, or still sought for violations of [the] Selective Service [Act] or the Uniform Code of Military Justice—offenses loosely described as desertion and draft-dodging.

These two Cabinet officers are to consult with other Government officials concerned and communicate me their unvarnished views and those of the full spectrum of American opinion on this controversial question, consolidating the known facts and legal precedents.

I will then decide how best to deal with the different kinds of cases—and there are differences. Decisions of my Administration will make any future penalties fit the seriousness of the individual's mistake.

Only a fraction of such cases I find in a quick review relate directly to Vietnam, from which the last American combatant was withdrawn over a year ago by President Nixon.

But all, in a sense, are casualties, still abroad or absent without leave from the real America.

I want them to come home if they want to work their way back.

One of the last of my official duties as Vice President, perhaps the hardest of all, was to present posthumously 14 Congressional Medals of Honor to the parents, widows, and children of fallen Vietnam heroes.

As I studied their records of supreme sacrifice, I kept thinking how young they were.

The few citizens of our country who, in my judgment, committed the supreme folly of shirking their duty at the expense of others, were also very young.

All of us who served in one war or another know very well that all wars are the glory and the agony of the young. In my judgment, these young Americans should have a second chance to contribute their fair share to the rebuilding of peace among ourselves and with all nations.

So I am throwing the weight of my Presidency into the scales of justice on the side of leniency. I foresee their earned re-entry—earned re-entry into a new atmosphere of hope, hard work, and mutual trust.

I will act promptly, fairly, and very firmly in the same spirit that guided Abraham Lincoln and Harry Truman. As I reject amnesty, so I reject revenge.

As men and women whose patriotism has been tested and proved—and yours has—I want your help and understanding. I ask all Americans who ever asked for goodness and mercy in their lives, who ever sought forgiveness for their trespasses, to join in rehabilitating all the casualties of the tragic conflict of the past.

Naturally, I am glad to see the VFW at this convention install a veteran of the Korean war, John Stang, as your new national commander-in-chief. And I compliment you and congratulate you as well as John.

We have struggled for years in America to overcome discrimination against younger Americans, against older Americans, against Americans of various creeds, religions, races and, yes, against women. I will not tolerate any discrimination against veterans, especially those who served honorably in the war in Vietnam.

I am deeply concerned about employment opportunities for the Vietnam-era veterans. We have had some success in placing veterans in the age span of 20 to 34, but the facts and figures show us that there are some tough problems in this category.

As of last month, the rate of unemployment for veterans between 20 and 24 was nearly 10 percent, much too high. The rate of unemployment for these young veterans who are members of minority groups was 19 percent. And far, far too many disabled veterans are still without jobs.

I can assure you, without hesitation or reservation, that this Administration puts a very high priority on aiding the men who bore the brunt of battle. If we can send men thousands and thousands of miles from home to fight in the rice paddies, certainly we can send them back to school and better jobs at home.

I am consequently considering the veterans education bill in this light. But your Government, of necessity, has to be constrained by other considerations as well. We are all soldiers in a war against brutal inflation. The veterans education bill more than likely will come before me very shortly for action. It comes when I am working hard, along with others from the Congress, labor, management, and otherwise, on a nonpartisan battle against excessive Government spending.

America today is fighting for its economic life. The facts are that uncontrolled inflation could destroy the fabric and the foundation of America, and I will not hesitate to veto any legislation to try and control inflationary excesses. I am open to conciliation and compromise on the total amount authorized so that we can protect [veteran] trainees and all other Americans against the rising cost of living.

I commend not only the past service of veterans but also the continuing involvement of many of you in the National Guard and Reserve forces. With current manpower reductions in the active duty Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marines, the Commander in Chief must, of necessity, place continuing reliance on the readiness of our National Guard and Reserves. And I intend to put muscle into this program.

Peace—it depends upon the strength and readiness of our defenses. And I will support every sensible measure to enhance the morale and the combat readiness of our Armed Forces.

The United States, our allies, and our friends around the world must maintain strength and resolve. Potential adversaries obviously watch the state of our readiness and the strength of our will. I will offer them no temptations.

America is not the policeman of the world, but we continue to be the backbone of a free world collective security setup.

Just as America will maintain its nuclear deterrent strength, we will never fall behind in negotiations to control—and hopefully reduce—this threat to mankind. A great nation is not only strong but wise, not only principled but purposeful. A fundamental purpose of our Nation must be to achieve peace through strength and meaningful negotiations.

Our good will must never be construed as a lack of will. And I know that I can count on you and the families of each and every one of you. Peace and security require preparedness and dedication.

You have experienced war firsthand. I want to make certain and positive that Washington never sends another tragic telegram. The list of mourners is already far too long. So is the list of those who wait and wonder—the families of those missing in action. I will never forget them.

Together we are going forward to tackle future problems, including the scourge of inflation which is today our Nation's public enemy number one. Our task is not easy. But I have faith in America. Through our system of democracy and free enterprise, the United States has achieved remarkable, unbelievable progress. We have shared our plenty with all mankind.

This is the same Nation that transcended inflations and recessions, slumps and booms, to move forward to even higher levels of prosperity and productivity. This is the same Nation that emerged from the smoke of Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941, to change its own destiny and the history of the world—and for the better.

During the first few months that I was Vice President, I traveled some 118,000 miles and visited 40 of our great States. What I saw and what I heard gave me renewed inspiration. It made me proud, proud of my country. It sustains me now.

Our great Republic is nearly 200 years old, but in many, many ways we are just getting started. Most Americans have faith in the American system. Let us now work for America, in which all Americans can take an even greater pride. I am proud of America. You are proud of America. We should be proud to be Americans.

Thank you very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 11:38 a.m. at the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago, Ill.

Prior to the President's address, Ray R. Soden, Commander-in-Chief of the VFW, presented the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States Citizenship Award to the President.

For a release on the nomination of Richard L. Roudebush as Administrator of Veterans Affairs, see the following item.

Administrator of Veterans Affairs

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Richard L. Roudebush. August 19, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Richard L. Roudebush, of Noblesville, Ind., to be Administrator of Veterans Affairs. He will succeed Donald E. Johnson, who has resigned.

Mr. Roudebush has been with the Veterans Administration since January 1971 and has been Deputy Administrator since January 1974. From June 1971 to January 1974, he was Assistant Deputy Administrator after serving as a consultant to the VA's Jobs for Veterans program. From 1961 to 1971, he was a Member of Congress from Indiana.

He was born on January 18, 1918, in Noblesville, Ind. Mr. Roudebush received his B.S. degree from Butler University in 1941 and served in the U.S. Army during World War II. From 1944 to 1950, he was with the Indianapolis Regional Office of the Veterans Administration, and from 1950 to 1961 he owned his own livestock sales firm in Indianapolis.

NOTE: The announcement was released at Chicago, Ill. For the President's remarks announcing the nomination of Mr. Roudebush, see the preceding item.

VICE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

The President's Remarks Announcing His Intention To Nominate Nelson A. Rockefeller To Be Vice President, With Mr. Rockefeller's Response. August 20, 1974

THE PRESIDENT. Mr. Speaker, members of the leadership of the House and Senate, members of the Cabinet:

After a great deal of soul searching, after considering the advice of Members of the Congress, Republicans as well as the Democratic leadership, after consulting with many, many people within the Republican Party and without, I have made a decision which I would now like to announce to the American people.

This was a difficult decision, but the man that I am selecting as nominee for Vice President is a person whose long record of accomplishment in the Government and outside is well-known. He comes from a family that has long been associated with the building of a better America. It is a family that has contributed significantly to many accomplishments, both at home and abroad, for the American people.

His achievements in Government are well, well-known. He served in the Department of State under former President Franklin Delano Roosevelt. He served under the Presidency of Harry Truman. He served in the Department of HEW under President Eisenhower.

He has served as Governor of the great Empire State, the State of New York, for 15 years, the longest period of time in the history of the State of New York. He is known across the land as a person dedicated to the free enterprise system, a person who is recognized abroad for his talents, for his dedication to making this a peaceful world.

It was a tough call for a tough job. The number of people who were considered by me in the process were all men and women of great quality. They came from those suggested to me who serve in the Congress, the Senate and the House of Representatives.

The names included individuals who had served their respective States with great credit. The names included individuals who were in Government, but not in Washington. The names included individuals who were not connected with Government.

But after a long and very thoughtful process, I have made the choice, and that choice is Nelson Rockefeller of New York State. It is my honor and privilege to introduce to you a good partner for me and I think a good partner for our country and the world.

So I now announce officially that I will send the name of Nelson Rockefeller to the Congress of the United States for confirmation.

VICE PRESIDENT-DESIGNATE ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, Mr. Speaker and leaders of the Congress, Mr. Secretary of State and members of the Cabinet, and friends:

Mr. President, your nomination of me to be Vice President of the United States under the 25th amendment of the Constitution makes me very humble. If I am confirmed, it will be my great honor to serve you and through you to serve all of the people of this great country.

As you pointed out in your moving message to the Congress, these are very serious times. They are times, as you pointed out, that require the closest cooperation between the Congress of the United States and the executive branch of Government. They also require the dedication of every American to our common national interest.

You, Mr. President, through your dedication and your openness have already reawakened faith and hope, and under your leadership we as a people and we as a nation have the will, the determination, and the capability to overcome the hard realities of our times. I am optimistic about the long-term future.

Thank you, sir.

NOTE: The President spoke at 10:04 a.m. in the Oval Office at the White House. The remarks were broadcast live on radio and television.

Vice President of the United States

Remarks of the President and Nelson A. Rockefeller at a News Conference by Mr. Rockefeller on His Nomination as Vice President. August 20, 1974

THE PRESIDENT. Good morning.

I think all of you have probably heard by now that my nominee for Vice President is Governor Nelson Rockefeller. I told him I was going to bring him over to all of my friends to have some discussion, and so if you would like, I just want to reiterate the fact that I stated, that after I looked at all of the choices, and they were difficult; after I looked at all of the people—there were many—but the one that in good judgment under all of the circumstances was Nelson Rockefeller.

I think he will make a great teammate. I think he will be good for the country, I think he will be good for the world, and I am looking forward to working with him.

So, Nelson.

VICE PRESIDENT-DESIGNATE ROCKEFELLER. Thank you.

Well, needless to say, ladies and gentlemen, I am deeply honored, and, should I be confirmed by the Congress, I will look forward to the privilege and honor of serving the President of the United States and, as I said in the other room, through him all of the people of this great country.

I am fully cognizant of the fact that the responsibilities of the Vice President are to preside over the Senate of the United States and to otherwise simply carry out any assignment that he or she may receive from the President.

I will look forward to that opportunity of serving him in any way that can be useful to him, and I think and feel very strongly that already his own dedication and openness has reawakened hope and faith and that under his leadership we, as a people, and we, as a nation, have the capacity, the will, and the ability to face the tough realities and overcome them that exist in our country and in the world today. And I am optimistic about the long-term future.

NOTE: The President spoke at 10:20 a.m. in the Briefing Room at the White House. The White House press release also included the question-and-answer session following Mr. Rockefeller's opening statement. The news conference was broadcast live on radio and television.

Wage and Price Monitoring Agency

Statement by the President Following Congressional Action on Legislation To Establish the Agency.
August 20, 1974

This morning I had a very fine meeting with the bipartisan leadership of the Congress. I thanked them for their prompt action on legislation currently before the Congress to provide a wage and price monitoring agency. At the same time, I advised them as emphatically as I could, I do not expect to ask for any legislation for either standby or mandatory wage and price controls. Recent experience makes it clear that, under current conditions, compulsory wage and price controls would be most undesirable. It was the unanimous opinion of the leaders present that, as a practical matter, this Congress would not approve such legislation. Since both business and labor also have indicated their opposition, it is clear that there will be no Federal mandatory wage and price controls. I, therefore, ask labor and business leaders in this country to act on that basis. They can do so with the assurance that I will do my best to see that the new price and wage monitoring agency works effectively to combat inflation.

United States Ambassador to Ghana

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Shirley Temple Black. August 20, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Mrs. Shirley Temple Black, of Woodside, Calif., to be Ambassador to Ghana. She will succeed Fred L. Madse, who has held the position since September 1971.

She was born on April 23, 1928, in Santa Monica, Calif. Mrs. Black was graduated from Westlake School in 1945, and was a fellow, College of Notre Dame, Belmont, Calif. She was an actress, playing leading roles in more than 40 motion pictures and 50 one-hour television shows. She served as a member, board of directors, Bay Area Educational Television Association, San Francisco.

Mrs. Black has served as a member, United States Citizens' Space Task Force, Office of the Vice President, Washington, D.C. She was a candidate, Republican nomination, United States Congress, and she served as U.S. Representative, 24th Session of the United Nations General Assembly, 1969. She was Deputy Chairman, U.S. Delegation, Preparatory Committee on the United Nations Conference on the Human Environment, Stockholm, Sweden, 1970-72, and served as a delegate, USSR-USA Joint Commission, Moscow, Cooperative Treaty on the Environment, 1972. Mrs. Black was Special Assistant to the Chairman of the Council on Environmental Quality, Executive Office of the President, 1972-74.

Her memberships include: co-founder and member of the executive committee, International Federation of Multiple Sclerosis Societies; member, board of directors: Del Monte Corp., Walt Disney Productions, World Affairs Council of Northern California, and National Wildlife Federation; member: United States Commission for UNESCO, Sierra Club, Audubon Society, Wilderness Society, Planning and Conservation League (California), California Tomorrow, Inc., Commonwealth Club of California, and League of Women Voters; member, board of trustees, Institute for Study of Economic Systems, Washington, D.C.

She is married to Charles A. Black, and they have three children.

U.S. Forces in NATO Europe

The President's Message to the Congress Submitting a Third Quarterly Report on the Effect of the Deployment of U.S. Forces on the Balance of Payments.
August 20, 1974

To the Congress of the United States:

In accordance with Section 812(d) of the Department of Defense Appropriation Authorization Act, 1974 (Public Law 93-155), I am pleased to submit a report to Congress on our progress toward offsetting the balance of payments deficit resulting from the deployment of U.S. forces in NATO Europe.

President Nixon reported to the Congress on May 16, 1974 that the offset agreement concluded in April 1974 with the Federal Republic of Germany had a dollar value of approximately $2.22 billion over fiscal years 1974 and 1975. Of that amount, the fiscal year 1974 portion will total approximately $1.1 billion and will be directly applicable toward meeting the requirements of Section 812.

Since President Nixon's last report, the NATO Economic Directorate has concluded a study showing the payments for military-related items from the United States by allies other than the Federal Republic of Germany should amount to approximately $1 billion. When that amount is added to the fiscal year 1974 portion of the offset agreement with Germany, it becomes clear that the United States should be able to offset the $2.1 billion military foreign exchange expenditures resulting from the deployment of our forces in NATO Europe during fiscal year 1974. Accordingly, I can report to the Congress that the requirements of Section 812 should be met.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
August 20, 1974.

Columbus Day, 1974

Proclamation 4308. August 20, 1974

*By the President of the United States of America
a Proclamation*

On Columbus Day, 1974, we again celebrate the historic achievement of the Italian sea captain whose courage and determination led him across uncharted oceans to a New World.

Sailing in the service of the Spanish crown, the voyage of Christopher Columbus marked one of history's most challenging and rewarding explorations. He opened this continent to the migration of settlers who created an enduring nation. The United States of America still carries forth his spirit of exploration as part of its national heritage.

Americans of the twentieth century strive to follow the vision and unshakeable faith of Christopher Columbus by seeking to discover a "New World" of peace and cooperation among all men.

In tribute to the achievement of Columbus, the Congress of the United States, by joint resolution approved April 30, 1934 (48 Stat. 657), as modified by the act of June 28, 1968 (82 Stat. 250), requested the President to proclaim the second Monday in October of each year as Columbus Day.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, GERALD R. FORD, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Monday, October 14, 1974, as Columbus Day; and I invite the people of this Nation to observe that day in schools, churches, and other suitable places with appropriate ceremonies in honor of the great explorer.

I also direct that the flag of the United States be displayed on all public buildings on the appointed day in memory of Christopher Columbus.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this twentieth day of August, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninety-ninth.

GERALD R. FORD

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 3:33 p.m.,
August 20, 1974]

White House Liaison With the Vice President-Designate

*Announcement of Appointment of Richard T. Burress.
August 20, 1974*

The President today named Richard T. Burress, of Maryland, as White House liaison with the Vice President-designate. Mr. Burress served on the staff of Vice President Ford since April 1, 1974.

He was born December 22, 1922, at Omaha, Nebr. He is a graduate of the University of Nebraska (A.B., 1944), the University of Iowa Law School (J.D., 1948), and New York University Law School (LL.M., 1953). He is a member of the Iowa, California, and District of Columbia Bar and served in the U.S. Marine Corps, 1943-46.

Mr. Burress was a Special Agent, Federal Bureau of Investigation, from 1948 to 1953. He was Deputy Assistant General Counsel, National Labor Relations Board, 1953-58, and attorney for Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, 1958-61. He was Minority Counsel for the Education and Labor Committee, U.S. House of Representatives, from 1961 to 1963. He engaged in private law practice from 1963 to 1965. He returned to Capitol Hill from 1965 to 1969, serving as director of the Republican Policy Committee, counsel for the Republican Leadership, and Minority Sergeant at Arms in the House of Representatives.

Mr. Burress was Deputy Counsel and Deputy Assistant to the President, 1969-71, Chairman of the Renegotiation Board, 1971-73, and associate director and senior fellow, Hoover Institution, before joining the Vice President's staff in 1974.

He and Mrs. Burress have two children and reside in Mohican Hills, Md.

Reception Honoring Senator Mike Mansfield

The President's Remarks at the Reception for the Senate Majority Leader. August 20, 1974

Let me say that it is great to be back up on Capitol Hill and to see Senator Mansfield and the Democratic and Republican leadership in this end of the Capitol and also great to see the Speaker and the others from the other end of the Capitol.

But I am here primarily, in fact, exclusively, to pay tribute to a person that I have known all of my almost 26 years in Washington, 25 of them being in the Congress—Mike Mansfield.

When I came in January of 1949, Mike had been here 4 or 6 years, and I quickly developed a great respect and admiration for him as a Member of the House. And when he went to the Senate, that admiration and respect increased.

Anybody that can be a leader, particularly in the majority, for 13 years, I think, deserves the greatest congratulations and compliments. I think it proves a couple of things: that bullies don't always prevail. You have to have some of that very fine quality of working with people without twisting their arm. I think it proves that people who can negotiate survive better than those who take a flat adamant attitude.

But I think you can sum it up better than any way by going along in opposition to a statement that Leo Du-rocher is alleged to have said, that good guys always finish last. Mike Mansfield is a good guy and he has finished first for a long, long time.

NOTE: The President spoke at 4:50 p.m. in Room S-207 at the Capitol.

Senator Mansfield was being honored for having served longer than any other Senator as Majority Leader. He was elected to the position on January 3, 1961.

Ceremony Honoring Slain Ambassador to Cyprus

Remarks of the President and the Secretary of State at a Ceremony in Memory of Ambassador Rodger P. Davies. August 21, 1974

SECRETARY KISSINGER. Mr. President, Excellencies, ladies and gentlemen:

A professional Foreign Service officer has come home. He returns not to joy, but to sadness, not to parades, but to solemn ceremony.

Rodger Davies embodied the qualities and spirit which mark an American. He chose an unusual profession, a profession which required that to serve his country he leave his home but never forget it. Wherever he went, the heritage of America was in his heart. He remembered the dignity of the individual where individuals had lost their dignity.

He remembered the rights to liberty and justice where these rights were under attack. He remembered peace where there was war. In that sense, Rodger Davies never left home.

In the diplomatic entrance at the Department of State, the American Foreign Service Association maintains plaques which list the names of those members of the Foreign Service who gave their lives under heroic or tragic circumstances in the service of their country. It is not a short list, and now tragically another name will be added.

I am today awarding to Ambassador Davies the highest award of the Department of State, the Secretary's Award. The citation reads as follows:

"For inspiring leadership, outstanding courage, and dedication to duty for which he gave his life, Nicosia, August 19, 1974."

Awards and names on plaques are little comfort to those who loved and admired Rodger Davies. To his children, Dana and John, I would only repeat my remarks of Monday that Ambassador Davies was beloved, admired, and respected by his colleagues. He was a professional in the fullest and best sense of the word.

Dana and John, your father leaves behind a legacy of which any man should be proud. Even more important, he leaves a multitude of friends whose lives were enriched by knowing him.

Ladies and gentlemen, it is now my honor to introduce a man who in less than 2 weeks has given hope to America and inspired confidence in the world, the President of the United States.

THE PRESIDENT. Secretary Kissinger, Dana and John, and members of the family, distinguished guests:

This is a very sad occasion for all Americans, as we gather here to pay tribute to a great patriot, one of our most admired and one of our most respected diplomats. Rodger Davies leaves behind many friends and many, many accomplishments in the career that he selected.

He possessed the full measure of many of those attributes which are so invaluable as a person and in the career that he sought. He had judgment, he had dignity, he had wisdom, and he had humor, and all of these are necessary ingredients for the job that he chose for his full life.

As the Secretary has mentioned, Rodger Davies was a professional in the fullest sense. His services to our country embodied the best of time, of effort, and competence. He loved and worked for peace, and he lost his life in the search for peace for all America and all the world.

On Monday of this past week I had the opportunity to make some remarks to a group who had served their country in uniform, and I had the sad occasion to announce to that group the loss of life by Rodger Davies. And I said to them and I repeat here today, some serve in uniform, some serve in other capacities. The loss of life in either case means as much to America.

And, therefore, it is appropriate on this occasion that we pay a very special tribute to a great Ambassador, highly respected by his friends, a person who gave his full life to the career that he sought. So I say it is an honor for me on this occasion to present on behalf of all Americans, the flag to Dana, the Ambassador's flag, to which your father, as my personal representative in the service of his country, brought such great distinction.

NOTE: The remarks began at 11:36 a.m. at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., where the President and the Secretary had met the plane bearing Ambassador Davies' children, Dana, age 20, and John, 16, and the body of the slain Ambassador. Also participating in the ceremony were members of the diplomatic corps and officials and employees of the Department of State.

For a statement by the White House Press Secretary on the death of Ambassador Davies, see p. 1045 of this issue.

Display of the Flag in Memory of Slain Ambassador to Cyprus

Executive Order 11801. August 21, 1974

THE HONORABLE RODGER P. DAVIES

As a special mark of respect to the memory of the Honorable Rodger P. Davies, Ambassador of the United States of America to the Republic of Cyprus, killed while in the performance of his duty, it is hereby ordered, pursuant to the provisions of Section 4 of Proclamation 3044 of March 1, 1954, as amended, that on the day of interment the flag of the United States shall be flown at half-staff on all buildings, grounds, and naval vessels of the Federal Government in the District of Columbia and throughout the United States and its Territories and possessions. I also direct that the flag shall be flown at half-staff on the same day at all United States embassies, consular offices, and other facilities abroad, including all military facilities and naval vessels and stations.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
August 21, 1974.

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 12:42 p.m.,
August 21, 1974]

United States Ambassador to Cyprus

Announcement of Intention To Nominate William R. Crawford, Jr. August 21, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate William R. Crawford, Jr., a career Foreign Service officer now serving as Ambassador to the Yemen Arab Republic, to be Ambassador to the Republic of Cyprus. He will succeed Rodger P. Davies, a Foreign Service Career Minister who died August 19, 1974.

Born April 22, 1928, in Philadelphia, Mr. Crawford received an A.B. in 1948 from Harvard University and an M.A. in 1950 from the University of Pennsylvania. He was with the United States Navy from 1948 to 1949 as an ensign. He was appointed an FSO-6 in 1951 and assigned as Political and Petroleum Reporting Officer in Jidda. In 1954, he served as a Consular Officer in Venice. During 1955-57, he studied Arabic language and area studies in Beirut and the Foreign Service Institute. From 1957 to 1959, he was a Principal Officer in Aden.

During 1959-64, he was assigned to the Department where he served as Desk Officer for Arabian Peninsula, Desk Officer for Lebanon-Israel Affairs, Officer in Charge of Lebanon-Israel Affairs, Bureau of Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs. He was promoted to FSO-3 in 1963. In 1964-67, he was Political Counselor, Rabat, and during 1967-68 he attended the Woodrow Wilson Seminar, Princeton University. He was promoted to FSO-2 in 1968 and assigned as Deputy Chief of Mission, Nicosia. In 1972, he became Ambassador to the Yemen Arab Republic, and in 1974 he was promoted to FSO-1. He received the Meritorious Service Award in 1959 and the William A. Jump Award in 1963. He is fluent in French and Arabic.

He is married to the former Virginia Lowry, and they have a daughter, Susan.

General Motors Price Increase

Statement by the President Following GM Announcement of a Reduction in the Price Increase. August 21, 1974

I am encouraged by General Motors' announcement today that it is reducing the amount of the price increases previously announced for its 1975 model cars and trucks. The consumer will save money, and the economy will benefit. I am confident that this action will be but one of many examples of restraint by management and labor as we all join in the fight against inflation.

NOTE: Press Secretary J. F. terHorst read the statement at his news conference at the White House on Wednesday, August 21, 1974. It was not issued in the form of a White House press release.

Education Amendments of 1974

The President's Remarks at the Bill Signing Ceremony at the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. August 21, 1974

Secretary Carlucci, distinguished administrators and employees of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, my former colleagues in the House and the Senate, fellow Americans:

It is really a great privilege and pleasure for me to be here. I know all of us wish that Secretary Weinberger were here, but he is off on a very important responsibility, and I am sure he is here in spirit, if not in person.

I suspect this is the first Federal aid to education bill that has ever been signed by a left-handed President. I attach no significance to that, but it was difficult with a person with a short name to use so many pens. [Laughter]

President Eisenhower once said, in discussing education, and I quote, "The Federal role should be merely to facilitate, never to control education."

Now, striking the right balance between helping on the one hand and dominating on the other is never an easy task. And those of you who participated in the preparation of the submission in the first instance to the Congress, and those of you who have labored so hard in both the House and the Senate to find a balance in 1974, in my judgment all deserve a great deal of commendation and congratulation.

I don't think any one faction or any one party dictated the contents of that very substantial and very important piece of legislation. I know from some personal experience on the periphery, when I was in the House and subsequently as Vice President, how much hard work, how many long hours, how many compromises were made between, in the first instance, the legislative and the executive branches and between various points of view, legitimate, well-motivated differences philosophically.

I don't believe anyone who labored so long and so hard would say this is a perfect piece of legislation, but I think it is a good law; it justified the final action by the Congress; and it fully justified my signature representing approval by the executive branch.

It does provide, in my opinion, for a more effective distribution of Federal funds to help elementary and secondary schools so that our Federal tax dollars can be more appropriately and efficiently and economically utilized to improve education throughout our 50 States.

The legislation also provides for better Federal administration of the various programs under the more or less direct control of Federal officials, and this better management of Federal programs will help States and localities so they will have a better and more effective input into the management of these Federal programs.

I think it is fair to say that this legislation places reasonable and equitable restrictions upon the problem of bus-ing, and in conjunction with the Supreme Court decision will hopefully relieve that problem and make the solution far more equitable and just.

It is my judgment that H.R. 69 represents the kind of an approach that in this day and age we must follow if we are to do the right thing in education, in housing, and in a multitude of other highly essential programs for the benefit of our country as a whole.

This legislation itself does represent the way to solve disagreements, but if we approach other problems as we have approached this one, with candor on the one hand, co-operation on another, compromise on a third, I think we can march together, the executive, the legislative, Democrats, Republicans, liberals, and conservatives in working together to make our country what we all want it to be, a better America.

Thank you very kindly.

NOTE: The President spoke at 2:15 p.m. in the auditorium at the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. As enacted, the bill (H.R. 69) is Public Law 93-380, approved August 21, 1974.

Education Amendments of 1974

Statement by the President Upon Signing the Bill Into Law While Expressing Reservations About Certain of Its Provisions. August 21, 1974

I take special pleasure today in signing H.R. 69, an omnibus education bill.

As the first major legislation to become law during my Administration, this bill symbolizes one of my greatest hopes for the future—the hope that a new spirit of cooperation and compromise will prevail between the legislative and executive branches. Enactment of this bill was possible only because the two branches settled their policy differences in that spirit. If it continues, I am confident that we can make equally effective progress on other pressing issues.

While I would have preferred different provisions in some sections of this bill, the overall effect of H.R. 69 should be a significant step forward in our quest for more effective distribution of Federal education funds and for better administration of Federal education programs.

Federal funding will be improved through a new formula for distributing Federal assistance for training educationally deprived children. Under the old formula, assistance was directed to States and localities which needed help several years ago, but may no longer need it. Under the new formula, it will be directed to those areas where help is definitely needed today. This change should make the distribution of funds more effective and more equitable.

The Congress has also acted wisely to improve the administration of Federal programs by consolidating a number of categorical programs supporting libraries, educational innovation, and other services. For the first time, State and local education officials will have an important degree of authority over Federal funds in these areas. I hope that this consolidation will become the trend of the future.

Another positive feature of this bill is that it provides for advanced funding of certain education programs. This provision should help to end much of the uncertainty that local school boards have had over the continuity and prospective funding levels of Federal education programs. In the near future, I will send to the Congress a supplementary appropriations request to carry out this advance funding provision.

I am also pleased that H.R. 69 provides new safeguards to protect the privacy of student records. Under these provisions, personal records will be protected from scrutiny by unauthorized individuals, and, if schools are asked by the Government or third parties to provide personal data in a way that would invade the student's privacy, the school may refuse the request. On the other hand, records will be made available upon request to parents and mature students. These provisions address the real problem of providing adequate safeguards for individual records while also maintaining our ability to insist on accountability for Federal funds and enforcement of equal education opportunity.

Much of the controversy over H.R. 69 has centered on its busing provisions. In general, I am opposed to the forced busing of schoolchildren because it does not lead to better education and it infringes upon traditional freedoms in America.

As enacted, H.R. 69 contains an ordered and reasoned approach to dealing with the remaining problems of segregation in our schools, but I regret that it lacks an effective provision for automatically re-evaluating existing court orders. This omission means that a different standard will be applied to those districts which are already being compelled to carry out extensive busing plans and those districts which will now work out desegregation plans under the more rational standards set forth in this bill. Double standards are unfair, and this one is no exception. I believe that all school districts, North and South, East and West, should be able to adopt reasonable and just plans for desegregation which will not result in children being bused from their neighborhoods.

Another troublesome feature of this bill would inject the Congress into the process of administering education laws. For instance, some administrative and regulatory decisions of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare would be subjected to various forms of Congressional review and possible veto. As a veteran of the Congress, I fully appreciate the frustrations that can result in dealing with the executive branch, but I am equally convinced that attempting to stretch the constitutional role of the Congress is not the best remedy. The Congress can and should hold the executive branch to account for its performance, but for the Congress to attempt to administer Federal programs is questionable on practical as well as constitutional grounds. I have asked the Attorney General for advice on these provisions.

Closely related to this issue is my concern about substantially increased Federal funding for education, especially at a time when excessive Federal spending is already fanning the flames of inflation. I hope the Congress will exercise restraint in appropriating funds under the authorizing legislation included in H.R. 69 and will carefully avoid increasing the budget.

In conclusion, I would re-emphasize that this bill shows us the way for further legislative and executive branch cooperation in the future. I congratulate all of those who participated in this endeavor. Today, and for generations to come, America will benefit from this law which expresses our national commitment to quality education for all of our children.

NOTE: As enacted, the bill (H.R. 69) is Public Law 93-380, approved August 21, 1974.

United States Senate

The President's Remarks in the Senate Chamber at the Capitol. August 21, 1974

THE PRESIDENT. Mr. President, Senator Mansfield, Senator Scott, Members of the United States Senate:

I wanted to stop by today just to say hello to those with whom I had an opportunity to get better acquainted and to officially inaugurate Pennsylvania Avenue as a two-way street.

It is wonderful to be back in a chamber where so much of America's history for almost 200 years has been written, and, I say without any hesitation, one of the greatest experiences of my life was the privilege of presiding here, though for a relatively short period of time.

Although my tenure was quite short, I think it was long enough to convince me that the U.S. Senate is one of the greatest legislative bodies in the history of mankind.

I think in the days and months ahead all of us must draw upon the great traditions of the Senate. Our job, both in the legislative as well as in the executive branch, is to restore the people's faith in the history and tradition of our American Government. No single man and no single woman can possibly do this all alone. It is a job for all of us working together to achieve.

As Governor Rockefeller said yesterday, we must deal with some very hard and somewhat harsh realities. We are not always going to be on the same side. It would not be America if we were. I do not think that really matters. It only matters if we end up by being on the best side for America from one State to another.

I would be very, very remiss if I did not express my appreciation for the Senate and the House going more than halfway on several measures of major importance in the last week or so.

I speak here specifically of the Cost of Living Council proposal, some actions taken on appropriation matters, the action on housing, the action on pension legislation, and the legislation affecting education.

I think what has taken place and transpired in these various proposals is indicative that we can march toward the center in achieving some good results for our country as a whole.

Now, I do not intend to talk specifically about any prospective legislation. I think I would probably be out of order, and I certainly shall respect the rules or traditions of the Senate in that regard.

As we go ahead, we must look not only at our problems at home, but also at our problems abroad.

I believe we have a good team in the executive branch of the Government, and I can assure you that that team will be working with this team, the House and the Senate, in the months ahead.

Thank you very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at approximately 2:40 p.m. in the Senate Chamber at the Capitol. As printed above, this item follows the text of the President's remarks printed in the Congressional Record.

United States House of Representatives

The President's Remarks in the House Chamber at the Capitol. August 21, 1974

THE PRESIDENT. Mr. Speaker and my former colleagues of the House of Representatives:

You do not know how much it means to me to come back and see all of you and to be so warmly welcomed. It makes one's political life a great, great experience to know that, after all of the disagreements we have had and all of the problems we have worked on, there are friends such as you. It is a thing that in my opinion makes politics worthwhile. I am proud of politics, and I am most grateful for my friends.

Mr. Speaker, I was glad to see that the rules of the House of Representatives have been changed. I was expecting, knowing that the House was considering a bill from the Committee on Banking and Currency, that I would have to go to my old friend, the chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency, and get a couple of minutes.

But let me say after 10 days of the honeymoon, Mr. Speaker—and I recall the old adage, “out of sight, out of mind”—I just wanted to drop by my old home to say “hello.”

Mr. Speaker, as most of you know, my wife, Betty, and I packed up our belongings and moved across the Potomac earlier this week. We were reminded of what Harry Truman said when he moved out of the White House in 1953: “If I had known how much packing I would have to do, I would have run again.”

I did better than Harry did. I went to Chicago.

It is a beautiful house down there, as all of you know, not only beautiful in appearance inside and out, but it has great, great traditions.

But, Mr. Speaker, let me say that our—and when I say “our” I mean my wife, Betty, and the family, and myself—our affections for the White House will never surpass our love for the House of Representatives and for the fine men and women who work here.

You have all been extremely generous in your support, extremely generous in your good will, and you have been extremely generous in your advice. But it has all been good, and I hope you keep the flow going.

I said on the other side of the Capitol, in the other body, a few moments ago, that I was making a few remarks as an inauguration of Pennsylvania Avenue as a two-way street.

I have asked your help in the past when I was in the House, and I am going to ask it now. This is a standard procedure for Presidents, but I am not making, I hope and trust, a pro forma gesture when I ask your help in the remaining days of the Congress. You know and I know that I do not believe in gestures. I never have and I never will. So when I ask your help, I mean it.

I want to reiterate, the help I have sought in the last 10 days has been responded to in a beautiful way, and, Mr. Speaker, your leadership in this has made it much, much easier for me, and for that I am deeply grateful.

Together we have got a big job ahead, and I emphasize “we” on the basis of togetherness, for if we do work together as we have in recent days, we can get the job done.

I want to express my appreciation for the response that has come already in the Cost of Living Council monitoring legislation; the action taken in reference to some of our spending problems; the action taken in housing, in education, and in pension reform. These are all landmark pieces of legislation. This is a good achievement for the Congress, and this is legislation that I am proud of and privileged to sign as President of the United States.

I will be coming back when you return from your much-deserved recess, and I will be coming back to ask your help in the future. I think we can continue to work together, and if we do, it will be the best for the country, and the best for you, and certainly the best for me.

I have noted in my contacts throughout the country that the public wants us to work together, and we can prove that such togetherness will be beneficial.

Let me conclude by simply saying that I think we have a good team in the executive branch, and it can work as a team with a good team on Capitol Hill, the House and the Senate. With that kind of partnership, a good team in the legislative and a good team in the executive, America cannot help but move ahead for the betterment of all.

Thank you very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at approximately 3:10 p.m. in the House Chamber at the Capitol. As printed above, this item follows the text of the President's remarks printed in the Congressional Record.

Women's Equality Day, 1974

Proclamation 4309. August 22, 1974

*By the President of the United States of America
a Proclamation*

On August 26th, 1920, American women finally gained the right to vote when the Nineteenth Amendment was certified as part of our Constitution.

Today, fifty-four years later, the women of America are actively participating in and contributing to all aspects of our economic, social and political life. Many obstacles on the road to equal opportunity have been removed as legislative and executive actions have helped to reduce sex discrimination in education, training and employment. Special efforts have been made in the Federal Government, so that women now contribute more fully than ever before to the formulation and execution of public policy.

But although we as a Nation have come a great distance since 1920, we still have a great distance to go. In 1970, on the floor of the House, I said that the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution was an idea whose time had come. Today I want to reaffirm my personal commitment to that amendment. The time for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment has come just as surely as did the time for the 19th Amendment.

As 1975 approaches, widely proclaimed as International Women's Year, Americans must deal with those inequities that still linger as barriers to the full participation of women in our Nation's life. We must also strengthen and support laws that prohibit discrimination based on sex.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, GERALD R. FORD, President of the United States of America, do hereby call upon all Americans to observe August 26, 1974, as Women's Equality Day, with appropriate ceremonies and activities. I further urge Americans to consider the essential role of women in our society and their contribution to our economic, social and political well-being. As a Republic dedicated to liberty and justice for all, this Nation cannot deny equal status to women.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this twenty-second day of August, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninety-ninth.

GERALD R. FORD

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 9:43 a.m., August 23, 1974]

NOTE: The President signed the proclamation in an Oval Office ceremony attended by women Members of Congress.

U.S.-Australian Extradition Treaty

The President's Message to the Senate Transmitting the Treaty for Advice and Consent to Ratification.
August 22, 1974

To the Senate of the United States:

With a view to receiving the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, I transmit herewith the Treaty on Extradition between the United States of America and Australia, signed at Washington on May 14, 1974. I transmit also, for the information of the Senate, the report of the Department of State with respect to the Treaty.

The Treaty will, upon entry into force, terminate, as between the United States and Australia, the Treaty on Extradition between the United States and Great Britain of December 22, 1931, as made applicable to Australia. This new Treaty represents a substantial modernization with respect to the procedural aspects of extradition.

The Treaty includes in the list of extraditable offenses several which are of prime international concern, such as aircraft hijacking, narcotics offenses, and conspiracy to commit listed offenses.

The Treaty will make a significant contribution to the international effort to control narcotics traffic. I recommend that the Senate give early and favorable consideration to the Treaty and give its advice and consent to ratification.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
August 22, 1974.

Housing and Community Development Act of 1974

The President's Remarks at the Bill Signing Ceremony at the White House. August 22, 1974

Secretary Lynn, my former colleagues in the House and Senate, distinguished guests:

It is a great privilege to be here on this landmark day in the field of housing legislation. It is landmark in that it has a new impact on community development and housing legislation generally. I think it was Chairman Sparkman who said that this new legislation is the most significant community development legislation since the 1949 act. He had added, however, that this legislation is the most significant in the field of housing legislation since the 1934 act.

There seems to be almost universal agreement that very significant progress has been made. I think we can say without any reservation that the move from the narrow programs of the past in community development to programs that are very broad gauged, a consolidation of programs such as model cities and urban development, will give a real impetus to local decisionmaking, local action, and local responsibility, and I am confident that the mayors, the Governors, the other local officials will assume that decisionmaking, that action, and that responsibility.

In the field of housing, there are some innovative efforts. There are some extensions of existing programs. The housing industry needs a shot in the arm, and this bill, I think, can be extremely helpful in this area.

I would be very remiss if I did not pay tribute to the long and, I think, skillful efforts of those both in the executive branch and those in the Congressional field for what has been accomplished.

I know how hard Jim Lynn has worked, how hard Jim Mitchell has worked, but I think those in the Congress, particularly those who were on the conference, deserve a very special tribute.

I know at times it seemed like an impossible obstacle to overcome the vast differences between the House and the Senate versions, but by patience, by understanding, by the kind of give-and-take and compromise we—not just myself and a few—but we, the American people, are the beneficiaries.

I think that Chairman Patman, Bill Widnall, Chairman Sparkman, Senator Tower deserve very special commendation. We are very grateful for what they did, but if I might be a little provincial or parochial, it seems to me that the Middle West, from which some of us come, deserves a little pat on the back.

Congressman Lud Ashley did a fine job. My former colleague from Michigan, Garry Brown, did a superb job, and then in addition, Jim Lynn and Jim Mitchell.

So, when we add it all up, that document right there will, I think, write new pages of history in community development and housing production. I said a moment ago, we are all the beneficiaries of the dedication, the service, the patience, the understanding of this group of men and many others.

I thank them on behalf of all of you and many, many millions of others throughout our country. Congratulations.

I should add a postscript. I have shaken hands, I think, in the last 24 hours with virtually every Member of the House and Senate, not once, but several times. We are going to have a reception, and I won't feel offended in the least if the Members of the Congress avoid me and go to the State Dining Room, and we will have a reception when this breaks up.

Real nice to see you all.

NOTE: The President spoke at 2:15 p.m. in the East Room at the White House. As enacted, the bill (S. 3066) is Public Law 93-383, approved August 22, 1974.

Housing and Community Development Act of 1974

Statement by the President Upon Signing the Bill Into Law. August 22, 1974

It is with great pleasure today that I am signing into law S. 3066, the "Housing and Community Development Act of 1974."

This bill is of far-reaching and perhaps historic significance, for it not only helps to boost the long-range prospects for the housing market but also marks a complete and welcome reversal in the way that America tries to solve the problems of our urban communities. In urging passage of this bill on the Senate floor, Chairman Sparkman said that "it is probably . . . the most important legislation on community development since the passage of the Housing Act of 1949."

This bill climaxes years of efforts to replace the rigid programs of the past with a more flexible approach by sweeping away seven categorical grant programs such as urban renewal and model cities and replacing them with a single "block grant" program for community development. This new approach will put Federal funds to work on behalf of our cities and towns far more effectively than before by:

- providing communities with greater certainty about the level of Federal funding they can expect;
- distributing Federal funds to communities according to what they need rather than who they know;
- replacing Federal judgments on local development with the judgments of the people who live and work there; and,
- allowing local officials to concentrate on comprehensive programs for community betterment instead of grant applications for individual projects.

In a very real sense, this bill will help to return power from the banks of the Potomac to people in their own communities. Decisions will be made at the local level. Action will come at the local level. And responsibility for results will be placed squarely where it belongs—at the local level.

I pledge that this Administration will administer the program in exactly this way. We will resist temptations to restore the red tape and excessive Federal regulation which this act removes. At the same time, of course, we will not abdicate the Federal Government's responsibility to oversee the way the taxpayers' money is used. In particular, we will carefully monitor the use of funds to assure that recipients fully comply with civil rights laws prohibiting discrimination.

This act will also provide significant assistance to the mortgage market and those who depend on it—home buyers, homebuilders, and mortgage lenders. The act makes FHA mortgage insurance available to a greater number of families by reducing required downpayments, expanding the limits on mortgages eligible for Federal insurance, and enabling FHA on an experimental basis to tailor plans for loan repayment to the unique circumstances of individual home buyers. Other sections of the act broaden the lending and investment powers of federally regulated financial institutions, making more credit available for mortgage loans, and thereby providing some needed help for the housing sector.

By prohibiting discrimination on the basis of sex in making mortgage loans, this measure will also enable millions of hardworking women and married couples to obtain the mortgage credit to which their economic position clearly entitles them. I fully support these efforts to eliminate discrimination based on race or sex.

Finally, S. 3066 authorizes a more flexible approach to assisting low- and moderate-income families obtain adequate housing. This new lower income housing assistance program should also help increase the supply of housing in areas where vacancies are unreasonably low.

No one expects this bill to bring substantial immediate relief to the housing market, but over the long haul it should provide the foundations for better housing for all Americans.

This act is important not only for what it does but for how it came about. Like any omnibus bill, S. 3066 has minuses as well as pluses. But it is the product of significant cooperation and compromise by the legislative and executive branches of this Government, and, as such, it is an important example of how the Congress and I intend to approach the Nation's problems in the future.

NOTE: As enacted, the bill (S. 3066) is Public Law 93-383, approved August 22, 1974.

Freedom of Information Act Amendments

*The President's Letter to the Chairmen of the Conference Committee Considering the Amendments.
Dated August 20, 1974. Released August 23, 1974*

Dear Ted: (Dear Bill:)

I appreciate the time you have given me to study the amendments to the Freedom of Information Act (H.R. 12471) presently before you, so that I could provide you my personal views on this bill.

I share your concerns for improving the Freedom of Information Act and agree that now, after eight years in existence, the time is ripe to reassess this profound and worthwhile legislation. Certainly, no other recent legislation more closely encompasses my objectives for open Government than the philosophy underlying the Freedom of Information Act.

Although many of the provisions that are now before you in Conference will be expensive in their implementation, I believe that most would more effectively assure to the public an open Executive branch. I have always felt that administrative burdens are not by themselves sufficient obstacles to prevent progress in Government, and I will therefore not comment on those aspects of the bill.

There are, however, more significant costs to Government that would be exacted by this bill—not in dollar terms, but relating more fundamentally to the way Government, and the Executive branch in particular, has and must function. In evaluating the costs, I must take care to avoid seriously impairing the Government we all seek to make more open. I am concerned with some of the provisions which are before you as well as some which I understand you may not have considered. I want to share my concerns with you so that we may accommodate our reservations in achieving a common objective.

A provision which appears in the Senate version of the bill but not in the House version requires a court, whenever its decision grants withheld documents to a complainant, to identify the employee responsible for the withholding and to determine whether the withholding was "without (a) reasonable basis in law" if the complainant so requests. If such a finding is made, the court is required to direct the agency to suspend that employee without pay or to take disciplinary or corrective action against him. Although I have doubts about the appropriateness of diverting the direction of litigation from the disclosure of information to career-affecting disciplinary hearings about employee conduct, I am most concerned with the inhibiting effect upon the vigorous and effective conduct of official duties that this potential personal liability will have upon employees responsible for the exercise of these judgments. Neither the best interests of Government nor the public would be served by subjecting an employee to this kind of personal liability for the performance of his official duties. Any potential harm to successful complainants is more appropriately rectified by the award of attorney fees to him. Furthermore, placing in the judiciary the requirement to initially determine the appropriateness of an employee's conduct and to initiate discipline is both unprecedented and unwise. Judgments concerning employee discipline must, in the interests of both fairness and effective personnel management, be made initially by his supervisors and judicial involvement should then follow in the traditional form of review.

There are provisions in both bills which would place the burden of proof upon an agency to satisfy a court that a document classified because it concerns military or intelligence (including intelligence sources and methods) secrets and diplomatic relations is, in fact, properly classified, following an in camera inspection of the document by the court. If the court is not convinced that the agency has adequately carried the burden, the document will be disclosed. I simply cannot accept a provision that would risk exposure of our military or intelligence secrets and diplomatic relations because of a judicially perceived failure to satisfy a burden of proof. My great respect for the courts does not prevent me from observing that they do not ordinarily have the background and expertise to gauge the ramifications that a release of a document may have upon our national security. The Constitution commits this responsibility and authority to the President. I understand that the purpose of this provision is to provide a means whereby improperly classified information may be detected and released to the public. This is an objective I can support as long as the means selected do not jeopardize our national security interests. I could accept a provision with an express presumption that the classification was proper and with in camera judicial review only after a review of the evidence did not indicate that the matter had been reasonably classified in the interests of our national security. Following this review, the court could then disclose the document if it finds the classification to have been arbitrary, capricious, or without a reasonable basis. It must also be clear that this procedure does not usurp my Constitutional responsibilities as Commander-in-Chief. I recognize that this provision is technically not before you in Conference, but the differing provisions of the bills afford, I believe, grounds to accommodate our mutual interests and concerns.

The Senate but not the House version amends the exemption concerning investigatory files compiled for law enforcement purposes. I am concerned with any provision which would reduce our ability to effectively deal with crime. This amendment could have that effect if the sources of information or the information itself are disclosed. These sources and the information by which they may be identified must be protected in order not to severely hamper our efforts to combat crime. I am, however, equally concerned that an individual's right to privacy would not be appropriately protected by requiring the disclosure of information contained in an investigatory file about him unless the invasion of individual privacy is clearly unwarranted. Although I intend to take action shortly to address more comprehensively my concerns with encroachments upon individual privacy, I believe now is the time to preclude the Freedom of Information Act from disclosing information harmful to the privacy of individuals. I urge that you strike the words "clearly unwarranted" from this provision.

Finally, while I sympathize with an individual who is effectively precluded from exercising his right under the Freedom of Information Act because of the substantial costs of litigation, I hope that the amendments will make it clear that corporate interests will not be subsidized in their attempts to increase their competitive position by using this Act. I also believe that the time limits for agency action are unnecessarily restrictive in that they fail to recognize several valid examples of where providing flexibility in several specific instances would permit more carefully considered decisions in special cases without compromising the principle of timely implementation of the Act.

Again, I appreciate your cooperation in affording me this time and I am hopeful that the negotiations between our respective staffs which have continued in the interim will be successful.

I have stated publicly and I reiterate here that I intend to go more than halfway to accommodate Congressional concerns. I have followed that commitment in this letter, and I have attempted where I cannot agree with certain provisions to explain my reasons and to offer a constructive alternative. Your acceptance of my suggestions will enable us to move forward with this progressive effort to make Government still more responsive to the People.

Sincerely,

GERALD R. FORD

NOTE: This is the text of identical letters addressed to Senator Edward M. Kennedy and Representative William S. Moorhead.

The text of the letter was made available by the White House Press Office. It was not issued in the form of a White House press release.

Digest of Other White House Announcements

Following is a listing of items of general interest which were announced to the press during the period covered by this issue but which are not carried elsewhere in the issue. Appointments requiring Senate approval are not included since they appear in the list of nominations submitted to the Senate, below.

August 19

The President left Washington for a trip to Chicago, Ill., where he addressed the annual convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Following his remarks, the President returned to Washington.

The following Ambassadors presented their credentials to the President in ceremonies at the White House: Cecil B. Williams of Barbados, Rodolfo Silva Vargas of Costa Rica, Samuel Ernest Quarum of Ghana, Miguel Angel Burelli Rivas of Venezuela, Jaime Alba Delibes of Spain, and Sabah Kabbani of Syria.

The President met with senior staff members of the Domestic Council, including Director Kenneth R. Cole, Jr., and Deputy Director James H. Cavanaugh.

The President and Mrs. Ford hosted a reception for members of the Vice Presidential Protective Division, United States Secret Service.

The White House announced the appointment of Ollie Atkins as Director of the White House Photographic Department.

August 20

The President met with the bipartisan Congressional leadership at the White House to discuss the economy and to tell them of his choice of Nelson A. Rockefeller for the Vice Presidential nomination.

Prior to announcing the nomination of Governor Rockefeller, the President met briefly with members of the Cabinet to announce his decision on the nomination. The President also telephoned former President Nixon and Republican National Chairman George H. Bush to inform them of the decision.

In the first of a series of open door Congressional meetings, the President met with:

- Representative James G. O'Hara, of Michigan, who was accompanying Pamela Perfil, Michigan's Peach Queen, of Roseville, Mich.;
- Representative George E. Brown, Jr., of California;
- Representative James H. (Jimmy) Quillen, of Tennessee;
- Senator Bob Dole, of Kansas;
- Senator Clifford P. Hansen, of Wyoming, who was accompanying Karen Morris, American Junior Miss, of Cheyenne, Wyo.;
- Representative Edwin B. Forsythe, of New Jersey, who presented an in-depth study he and his staff had done on the causes of inflation;
- Senators Warren G. Magnuson, of Washington, and Norris Cotton, of New Hampshire, who discussed the pending Labor-HEW appropriations bill.

The President today accepted with deep regret the resignation of Henry M. Ramirez as Chairman of the Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for Spanish-Speaking People.

The President today accepted the resignation of John J. Chester as Special Counsel to the President, effective August 31, 1974.

The White House announced the following steps in preparation for the upcoming economic "summit" meeting to be held in early fall:

- The President has asked L. William Seidman to serve as executive director of the economic summit program.
- The President has designated four Administration officials to serve on a steering committee with four Members of Congress to prepare for the economic summit. Appointed to the steering committee were: Counsellor to the President Kenneth Rush, Director Roy L. Ash of the Office of Management and Budget, Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon, and Chairman-designate Alan Greenspan of the Council of Economic Advisers.

—The President met with a group of economic advisers. Participating in the meeting were: Counsellor Rush, Secretary Simon, Director Ash, Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the Federal Reserve Board, and Chairman Herbert Stein of the Council of Economic Advisers.

—David Packard, chairman of the Business Council, met with the President to discuss plans for the economic summit.

August 21

The Black Caucus of the House of Representatives met with the President at the White House.

The President met separately with Ambassadors from three South Asian nations. The President reaffirmed the continuity of American foreign policy with regard to South Asia and assured them of his desire for continued good relations with the three nations. Participating in the meetings were: Sahabzada Yaqub Khan of Pakistan, Ardeshir Zahedi of Iran, and Triloki Nath Kaul of India.

Representative Wilbur D. Mills, Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, met with the President to discuss pending legislation.

Air Force Lt. Gen. Daniel James, Jr., met with the President prior to assuming his new post as Vice Commander of the Military Airlift Command. The President also wished to discuss General James' views on black Americans serving in the Armed Forces.

The President met with Republican Senatorial candidates for a photograph session.

August 22

The President underwent a physical examination at the White House. Rear Adm. William M. Lukash, Physician to the President, later reported that the President is in excellent health.

Senators Frank Church and Charles McC. Mathias, Jr., met with the President to discuss a report on national emergency powers.

The President met with Republican candidates for the House of Representatives for a photograph session.

The President today acknowledged the retirement of Pat Mehaffy as Chief Judge of the United States Court of Appeals, Eighth Circuit, effective today.

The President today accepted the resignation of John T. Connor as a member of the Board of Directors of the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation, effective today.

The White House announced that the President had today received a personal letter from Premier Chou En-lai of the People's Republic of China.

Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers International Union, met with the President.

Senator Bill Brock, chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee, Representative Robert H. Michel, chairman of the House Republican Campaign Committee, and George H. Bush, Republican National Chairman met with the President to discuss plans for the 1974 Congressional campaigns.

The President and Mrs. Ford hosted a dinner for Vice President-designate Rockefeller and several Members of Congress.

August 23

In the Rose Garden, the President greeted a group of 4-H Club members from Michigan and Colorado who were visiting the White House.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield met with the President to discuss legislative matters, including prospects for the remainder of the 93d Congress.

Syrian Foreign Minister Abd al-Halim Khaddam met with the President to review the status of Middle East peace negotiations and to discuss relations between the two countries.

The President announced that Paul A. Theis is joining the White House Staff as Executive Editor and Administrator of the President's speechwriting staff.

The White House announced that Mrs. Ford has asked Helen McCain Smith and Lucy Alexander Winchester to remain on the First Lady's staff as Press Secretary and Social Security, respectively.

The Farm Family of the Year, Mr. and Mrs. Julian V. Fowler, of Fairbanks, Alaska, called on the President. They were selected in the annual Farm Family of the Year competition sponsored by the Farmers Home Administration. Under Secretary of Agriculture J. Phil Campbell accompanied the Fowlers.

Representatives of several senior citizens organizations met with the President.

The President and Mrs. Ford hosted a reception for members of the staff which served him as Vice President.

ACTS APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT

Approved August 17, 1974

H.R. 2537----- Private Law 93-88
An act for the relief of Lidia Myslinska Bokosky.

H.R. 4590----- Private Law 93-89
An act for the relief of Melissa Catambay Gutierrez and Milagros Catambay Gutierrez.

H.R. 5667----- Private Law 93-90
An act for the relief of Linda Julie Dickson (nee Waters).

S. 2296----- Public Law 93-378
Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974.

S. 3669----- Public Law 93-377
An act to amend the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended, and the Atomic Weapons Rewards Act of 1955, and for other purposes.

Approved August 20, 1974

H.R. 7682----- Private Law 93-91
An act to confer United States citizenship posthumously upon Lance Corporal Federico Silva.

Approved August 21, 1974

H.R. 69----- Public Law 93-380
Education Amendments of 1974.

H.R. 12832----- Public Law 93-379
The District of Columbia Law Revision Commission Act.

H.R. 15544----- Public Law 93-381
Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government Appropriation Act, 1975.

ACTS APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT—Continued

Approved August 22, 1974

H. J. Res. 1105----- Public Law 93-382
Joint resolution designating August 26, 1974, as "Women's Equality Day".

S. 3066----- Public Law 93-383
Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

NOMINATIONS SUBMITTED TO THE HOUSE AND SENATE

Submitted August 20, 1974

NELSON A. ROCKEFELLER, of New York, to be Vice President of the United States.

NOMINATIONS SUBMITTED TO THE SENATE

The following list does not include promotions of members of the Uniformed Services, nominations to the Service Academies, or nominations of Foreign Service officers.

Submitted August 20, 1974

RICHARD L. ROCKEBUSH, of Indiana, to be Administrator of Veterans Affairs, vice Donald E. Johnson.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE BLACK, of California, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to the Republic of Ghana.

Submitted August 21, 1974

WILLIAM R. CRAWFORD, JR., of Pennsylvania, a Foreign Service officer of Class one, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to the Republic of Cyprus.

CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES

The following releases of the Office of the White House Press Secretary, distributed during the period covered by this issue, are not included in the issue.

Released August 19, 1974

Advance text: address to the annual convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars (2 releases)

Released August 20, 1974

News conference: on the selection of a Vice Presidential nominee—by Robert T. Hartmann, Counsellor to the President

Released August 21, 1974

Fact sheet: Education Amendments of 1974
News conference: following Black Caucus meeting with the President—by Representatives Charles B. Rangel of New York, Ronald V. Dellums of California, and Charles C. Diggs of Michigan

Released August 22, 1974

Fact sheet: Housing and Community Development Act of 1974

News conference: on the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974—by James T. Lynn, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development

Released August 23, 1974

News conference: following the President's meeting with representatives of senior citizens organizations—by Mary Mullen, president, National Retired Teachers Association, Jack Ossosky, Executive Director, National Council on the Aging, and James H. Cavanaugh, Deputy Director, Domestic Council

CUMULATIVE INDEX TO PRIOR ISSUES

Third Quarter, 1974

[See Index of Contents for Documents in this Issue]

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon

ABM. See Anti-ballistic missile systems
 Acts approved. See last page of text in each issue

Addresses and Remarks of the President

Ash, Roy L., dinner honoring the President 819
 Belgium, visit 718, 727, 728, 732
 Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, signing ceremony 799
 Economy, national, address to Nation 830
 Farewell remarks to Cabinet and White House Staff 1019
 French gift for the American Revolution Bicentennial, exchange of remarks with French Ambassador Jacques Kosciuszko-Morizet 796
 Loring Air Force Base, Maine, report to Nation on Soviet visit 766
 Lowman, Dr. Charles LeRoy, Medal of Freedom presentation 997
 National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency 813
 People's Republic of China, martial arts and acrobatic troupe visit to the White House 801
 Resignation, address to Nation 1014
 Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, visit 718, 727, 735, 742, 744, 748, 766
 United States Space Week, 1974 815
 Vice President Gerald R. Ford, remarks following President's resignation announcement 1018
 Administrative Conference of the United States, Chairman 1003, 1005
 Adult Education, National Advisory Council on 1021
 Agriculture, Department of Appropriations, veto 1014
 Secretary 796, 799, 803, 1000
 Albrecht, Richard R. 804
 Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration 806, 818
 Alsop, Donald D. 1022
 American Revolution Bicentennial, French gift 796, 797, 804
 Annenberg, Walter H. 817
 Anthony, Robert Armstrong 1003, 1005
 Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocols to treaty on the limitation of 750, 756
 Antigua, U.S. Special Representative 994

Appointments and Nominations

Administrative Conference of the United States, Chairman 1003, 1005
 Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, Administrator 806, 818
 Ambassador, U.S., to Syria 999, 1005
 Corporation for Public Broadcasting, Board of Directors, members 1010, 1022
 Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman 828, 995
 Council on International Economic Policy, Executive Director 788, 804
 Federal Aviation Administration, Deputy Administrator 817, 995
 Federal Energy Administration, Assistant Administrator 789, 804
 General Counsel 789, 804
 Office of Intergovernmental and Regional Relations, Director 839, 1005

Appointments and Nominations—Continued

Federal Regional Councils, Chairmen 829
 Foreign Claims Settlement Commission
 Chairman 793
 Members 804, 839, 1005
 Interior Department
 Assistant Secretary 838, 1005
 United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Director 838, 1005
 International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission 1021
 Justice Department, Assistant Attorney General 998, 1005
 Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, Administrator 999, 1005
 National Commission for the Observation of World Population Year, 1974, members 798
 National Corporation for Housing Partnerships, Board of Directors, member 1022
 Office of Economic Opportunity, Director 807, 1005
 President's Commission on White House Fellowships, members 830
 Securities and Exchange Commission, member 806, 818
 State Department
 Assistant Inspector General, Foreign Assistance 830
 Assistant Secretary 1002, 1005
 Treasury Department
 Deputy Secretary 804
 General Counsel 804
 U.S. attorney, Texas 804
 U.S. circuit judge, 2d circuit 804, 1022
 U.S. Court of Military Appeals
 Associate judge 1003, 1005
 Chief judge, withdrawal of prior nomination 1022
 U.S. district judges
 Georgia 804
 Minnesota 1022
 U.S. marshals
 California 804
 Louisiana 803, 818
 White House Staff
 Deputy Assistant 795
 Special Assistant 816
 Appropriations bill, veto 1014
 Arends, Repr. Leslie C. 802
 Argentina, President Juan Domingo Peron, death 771
 Armed Forces, United States 729, 731
 Arms control and disarmament 750, 751, 753, 755, 756, 763, 764, 769
 Armstrong, Anne L. 802, 815
 Army, Department of the, Assistant Secretary 802
 Arnett, Alvin J. 817
 Ash, Roy L. 802, 804, 817, 819, 994
 Atlantic Relations, Declaration on 728, 729, 731
 Atomic Energy Commission 1009, 1021
 Augelli, Anthony T. 1004

Awards and Citations

Presidential Medal of Freedom 997, 1005
 Baker, Repr. LaMar 802
 Balaguer, Joaquin 1021
 Barbados, U.S. Ambassador to 994
 Baudouin I, King 728, 732, 790

Belgium
 King Baudouin I 728, 732, 790
 President's visit
 Arrival in Brussels 728
 Declaration of Atlantic Relations 729, 731
 Departure from Washington 718, 727
 Luncheon in Brussels 732
 Prime Minister Leo Tindermans 790
 Bell, J. Raymond 793, 804
 Berg, Eugene E. 802
 Bicentennial, American Revolution 796, 797, 804

Bill Signings

Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, remarks and statement 799, 800
 Department of Defense Appropriations Authorization Act, 1975, statement 1007
 Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974, statement 838
 Birknes, John A. 804
 Bisplinghoff, Raymond L. 1021
 Bohanon, Luther 1004
 Brandy imports 807
 Brennan, Peter J. 802
 Brezhnev, L. I. 735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
 Broadcasting, Corporation for Public 1010, 1022
 Budget, federal spending 799, 800, 821, 832, 1014
 Budget, Office of Management and See Management and Budget, Office of Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, Congressional 799, 800, 804
 Burch, Dean 791, 802, 995
 Burnham, D.C. 830
 Burns, Arthur F. 802
 Business and industry, cooperation with U.S.S.R. 741, 759, 791
 Butz, Earl L. 803
 Cabinet
 Meetings with the President 802, 1021
 President's farewell remarks 1019
 California, U.S. marshal 804
 Callaghan, James 999
 Captive Nations Week, 1974 801
 Carlos, Prince Juan 814
 Carlson, Jack W. 838, 1005
 Cary, Frank 794
 Casey, Thomas R. 828, 829
 Central Intelligence Agency 1008
 Checklist of unpublished releases. See last page of text in each issue
 China, People's Republic of, Wushu Troupe, visit to the White House 801
 Civil defense medical and food stockpiles 798
 Claims Settlement Commission, Foreign 793, 804, 839, 1005
 Clements, William P., Jr. 1012
 Coffee Agreement, International 796
 Cole, Kenneth R., Jr. 830
 Colombia
 President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen, inauguration 994
 U.S. Ambassador to 994
 Combined Federal Campaign 1012
 Commerce, Department of, Secretary 788, 1000

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon—Continued

Commercial Commission, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics	741	Credit Corporation, Commodity Cultural exchanges, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	1004	Executive Orders
Commodity Credit Corporation.....	1004	Curtis, Sen. Carl T.	802	Civil defense medical and food stockpiles (EO 11794)	798
Congress		Customs Service, United States.....	1008	Disaster relief functions (EO 11795) ..	799
House of Representatives, Judiciary Committee .. 791, 818, 822, 840, 995, 1008		Cyprus	817, 819, 999	Exports, regulation of (EO 11796) ..	999
Meetings with the President		Dean, Dizzy	813	Federal facilities in rural areas, report (EO 11797)	1000
Bipartisan leadership	802, 1012, 1021	DeBaca, Fernando E. C.	816	Secretary of Agriculture (EO 11793) ..	796
Republican leaders	802, 1010	Defense, Department of		Exports, regulation	999
Sequoia meetings	802	Appropriation authorization	1007	Fabiola, Queen	790
Senate, Foreign Relations Committee	807	Deputy Secretary	1012	Federal Aviation Administration, Deputy Administrator	817, 995
Congress, Communications to		Secretary	799	Federal Bureau of Investigation	1008
See also Veto Messages and Memorandums of Disapproval		Defense Appropriation Authorization Act	1007	Federal employees. See Government employees
Commodity Credit Corporation, annual report transmittal	1004	Defense spending. See under Economy, national		Federal Energy Administration
Cost of Living Task Force, message	1002	Dent, Frederick B.	788	Administrator	788
Government executive development, message	808	Digest of other White House announcements. See last pages of text in each issue		Assistant Administrator	789, 804, 1004
Government services to rural areas, annual report transmittal	1021	Disarmament. See Arms control and disarmament		General Counsel	789, 804
Hazardous Materials Transportation Control Act of 1970, annual report transmittal	802	Disaster assistance, States receiving		Office of Intergovernmental and Regional Relations, Director	839, 1005
International Coffee Agreement, annual report transmittal	796	Minnesota	805	Federal Regional Councils, Chairmen ..	829
International Maritime Traffic Convention, amended text transmittal ..	998	New York	829	Federal Reserve System
National Advisory Council on Adult Education, annual report transmittal ..	1021	Ohio	798	Board of Governors	802
National Heart and Lung Advisory Council, annual report transmittal ..	998	Disaster relief functions	799	Monetary restraint	833
National security investigations and wiretaps, letter to Chairman of Senate Foreign Relations Committee ..	807	District of Columbia, National Guard, Commanding General	802	Federal spending. See Budget; Economy, national
Telegraph and telephone regulations, transmittal to Senate	1007	Doar, John M.	824, 825	Fisheries Commission, International ..
Trade agreements program, annual report transmittal	1012	Domestic Council	802	Pacific Salmon	1021
Urban transportation policies and activities, annual report transmittal ..	1001	Dominica, U.S. Special Representative ..	994	Food, civil defense stockpiles	798
World Weather Program, annual report transmittal	1001	Dominican Republic		Ford, Vice President Gerald R.	786, 802, 817, 818, 1012, 1015, 1018
Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974	799, 800, 804	President Joaquin Balaguer, inauguration	1021	Foreign Claims Settlement Commission	793, 804, 839, 1005
Connor, Robert E.	798, 805	U.S. Ambassador to	1021	Foreman, Ed.	829
Conservation, forest products and resources	1000	Donovan, Eileen R.	994	Forest Products Week, 1974, National ..	1000
Construction, cooperation with U.S.S.R. ..	739, 761, 791	Doub, William O.	1021	France
Construction, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in Housing and Other	739, 761	Dow, James E.	817, 995	Bicentennial gift	796, 797, 804
Cook, William Holmes	1003, 1005	Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, Alcohol	806, 818	President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing ..	797
Cooperation in Europe, Conference on Security and	757	Drug Abuse, Strategy Council on	1021	Fulbright, Sen. J. William	807
Coors, Joseph	1010, 1022	DuPont, Dr. Robert L., Jr.	806, 818	Gallegos, Bert A.	807, 1005
Corporation for Public Broadcasting ..	1010, 1022	Eberle, William D.	788, 804	Gardner, Stephen S.	804
Cortina, Pedro Mauri	814	Economic Advisers, Council of, Chairman	802, 815, 817, 818, 828, 995	GATT. See General Agreements on Tariffs and Trade
Cost of Living Task Force, proposed ..	1002, 1005	Economic cooperation with U.S.S.R.	741, 759, 791	Geimer, William W.	839, 1005
Council. See other part of title		Economic Opportunity, Office of, Director	807, 817, 1005	General Agreements on Tariffs and Trade	1013
Courts, United States		Economic Policy, Council on International, Executive Director	788, 804	Geneva Peace Conference on the Middle East	758
U.S. attorney, Texas	804	Economy, national		Genscher, Hans-Dietrich	994
U.S. circuit judge, 2d circuit	804, 1022	Address to Nation	830	Georgia, U.S. district judge	804
U.S. Court of Military Appeals		Cost of Living Task Force, proposed ..	1002	Germany, Federal Republic of
Associate judge	1003, 1005	Defense spending	1007	Chancellor Helmut Schmidt	790
Chief judge	1022	Federal spending	799, 800, 821, 832, 1014	Vice-Chancellor and Minister of Foreign Affairs Hans-Dietrich Genscher	994
U.S. district judges		Inflation	800, 802, 821, 830, 1014	Gesell, Gerhard A.	802
Georgia	804	Emergency Board No. 185, railway labor dispute	789	Ghana, U.S. Ambassador to	994
Minnesota	1022	Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974	838	Giscard d'Estaing, Valéry	796, 797
New Jersey	1004	Energy		Goldwater, Sen. Barry	1010
Oklahoma	1004	Conservation	788	Goodearle, Roy	803
U.S. marshals		Uranium supplies	1009	Government departments and agencies, energy conservation	788
California	804	U.S.S.R., cooperation with	737, 761, 791	Government employees, executive development	808, 818
Louisiana	803, 818	Energy, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in the Field of ..	737, 761	Gray, L. Patrick III.	1009
Massachusetts	804	Energy Administration, Federal	788, 789, 839, 1004	Greece
		Environment		Cyprus conflict	817, 820
		U.S.S.R., cooperation with	753, 762	Prime Minister Konstantinos Karamanlis	994
		U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint statement	753	Green, S. William	829
		World Weather Program	1001	Greenspan, Alan	828, 995
		Environmental Protection Agency, appropriations veto	1014	Greenwalt, Lynn Adams	838, 1005
		Environmental warfare	753, 765	Gregg, Lucius Perry, Jr.	1010, 1022
		Erbe, Norman A.	829	Grenada, U.S. Special Representative ..	994
		Erickson, William D.	1022	Griffin, Sen. Robert P.	802
		Europe		Gurfein, Murray I.	804
		U.S. forces	729, 731	Habib, Philip C.	1002, 1005
		U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint communique	757	Hadden, A. Roby	804
		European Economic Community,		Hadsel, Fred L.	994
		brandy imports	807	Haldeman, H. R.	1008

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon—Continued

Hartman, Arthur A.....	791	Joint Statements		Memorandums to Federal Agencies
Hays, David W.....	829	Union of Soviet Socialist Republics..	753	Combined Federal Campaign.....	1012
Hazardous materials transportation..	802	Jones, Sidney L.....	795	Mental Health Administration, Alcohol,
Health, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	740,	Judiciary Committee, House.....	791,	Drug Abuse, and.....	806, 818
761, 791		818, 822, 840, 995, 1008		Meskill, Thomas J.....	1022
Health, Education, and Welfare, De-		Justice, Department of		Middle East
partment of		Assistant Attorney General.....	998, 1005	North Atlantic Council meeting,
Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental		Law Enforcement Assistance Admin-		remarks.....	731
Health Administration. See Alcho-		stration. See Law Enforcement As-		U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint communique.....	758
hool, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health		sistance Administration		Military Appeals, U.S. Court of.....	1003,
Administration		Special Prosecutor.....	1008	1005, 1022
Secretary.....	802, 804	Karamanlis, Konstantinos.....	994	Milk, support price.....	842, 958, 963
Health Cooperation, United States-		Keene, Joseph W.....	803, 818	Minnesota
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics		Kelly, Bernard.....	829	Disaster assistance.....	805
Joint Committee for.....	740, 761	Key Biscayne, Fla.....	790, 802	U.S. district judge.....	1022
Heart and Lung Advisory Council,		King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr.....	771	Missile systems, protocol to treaty on
National.....	998	Kissinger, Dr. Henry A.....	763,	the limitation of anti-ballistic.....	750, 756
Heart research, cooperation with		791, 807, 814, 817, 1018, 1021		Mitchell, John N.....	842, 951
U.S.S.R.....	740, 761, 791	Klein, Herbert G.....	994	Monagan, Robert T.....	1021
Helms, Richard.....	1009	Kleindienst, Richard G.....	842, 951	Montgomery, Robert E., Jr.....	789, 804
Herdon, Lillie E.....	1010, 1022	Korff, Baruch.....	813, 817, 818, 1021	Morton, Rogers C.B.....	802, 994
Hodgson, James D.....	802	Kosciusko-Morizet, Jacques.....	796	Mount Vernon, French sound and light
Hogan, Repr. Lawrence J.....	995	Kosygin, A. N.....	740, 790	spectacle for American Revolution
Hostetter, Amos B., Jr.....	1010, 1022	Labor, Department of, Secretary.....	802	Bicentennial.....	796, 797, 804
Housing, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	739,	Labor, railway dispute.....	789	Murphy, Richard W.....	994, 999, 1005
761, 791		Law Enforcement Assistance Adminis-		National Advisory Council on Adult
Housing and Other Construction,		tration, Administrator.....	999, 1005	Education.....	1021
United States-Union of Soviet So-		Letters, Messages, Telegrams		National Advisory Council on Supple-
cialist Republics Joint Committee on		See also Congress, Communications		mentary Centers and Services.....	802
Cooperation in.....	739, 761	to		National Citizens' Committee for Fair-
Housing Partnerships, National Corpo-		Council of Economic Advisers, Chair-		ness to the Presidency.....	813, 818, 1021
ration for.....	1022	man Herbert Stein, exchange of		National Commission for the Observ-
Housing and Urban Development, De-		letters on resignation.....	815	ance of World Population Year, 1974..	798
partment of, Secretary.....	799, 1003, 1005	French gift for the American Revolu-		National Corporation for Housing Part-
Hunt, E. Howard.....	841, 870	tion Bicentennial, exchange of		nerships.....	1022
Hurwitch, Robert A.....	1021	letters with French President		National Forest Products Week, 1974..	1000
Iceland, Special Ambassador to 1100th		Valéry Giscard d'Estaing.....	797	National Heart and Lung Advisory anniversary.....	994	Resignation, letter to the Secretary of		Council.....	998
Immunity from prosecution.....	1011	State.....	1021	National Science Foundation.....	1021
Impeachment inquiry		Livestock Credit Act of 1974, Emer-		National Student Government Day,
See also Watergate investigation		gency.....	838	1974.....	1010
Brief submitted to the House Judi-		Loomis, Philip A., Jr.....	806, 818	Natural resources, forests.....	1000
ciary Committee.....	840	Loring Air Force Base, Maine.....	766, 790	New Jersey, U.S. district judge.....	1004
Impeachable offense.....	826	Louisiana, U.S. marshal.....	803, 818	New York, disaster assistance.....	829
Internal Revenue Service.....	842, 983	Lowman, Dr. Charles LeRoy.....	997, 1005	News Conferences Other Than Presidential
International Telephone and Tele-		Lung Advisory Council, National Heart		Congressional support assessment,
graph.....	841, 945	and.....	998	Republican Congressional leader-
Milk support price.....	842, 958, 963	Luns, Joseph.....	728	ship.....	1010
News conference by Special Counsel		Lynn, James T.....	1003, 1005	House Judiciary Committee impeach-
St. Clair.....	822	Management and Budget, Office of,		ment inquiry, Special Counsel St.
Presidential tapes and documents....	822-	Director.....	802, 804, 817, 819, 994	Clair.....	822
828, 1008		Maritime Traffic Convention, Interna-		President's visit to the Union of
Wiretaps.....	807, 841, 923	tional.....	998	Soviet Socialist Republics, Secre-
Imports, brandy.....	807	Martinez, Samuel.....	829	tary of State Kissinger.....	763
Impoundment Control Act of 1974,		Massachusetts, U.S. marshal.....	804	Nominations submitted to the Senate.
Congressional Budget and.....	799, 800, 804	Mauritania, U.S. Ambassador to.....	994	See last page of text in each issue
Independence Day, 1974.....	790	McAninch, Vernon D.....	994	North Atlantic Treaty Organization
Industry. See Business and industry.		Mead, Dana.....	802	Brussels meeting with North Atlantic
Interior, Department of the		Medals. See Awards and Citations		Council.....	728, 731, 732, 769
Assistant Secretary.....	838, 1005	Medical stockpiles for civil defense...	798	Cyprus conflict.....	820
Office of Oil and Gas, Associate Di-		Meetings with Foreign Leaders		Declaration on Atlantic Relations...	729,
rector.....	803	Belgium		731
Secretary.....	802, 994	King Baudouin I.....	728, 732, 790	Secretary General Joseph Luns.....	728
Under Secretary.....	802	Prime Minister Leo Tindermans...	790	Nuclear powerplants.....	1009
United States Fish and Wildlife Ser-		Germany, Federal Republic of, Chan-		Nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the vice, Director.....	838, 1005	cellor Helmut Schmidt.....	790	limitation of underground.....	751
Internal Revenue Service, impeachment		Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor..	790	Office. See other part of title
inquiry.....	842, 983	Union of Soviet Socialist Republics		Ohio, disaster assistance.....	798
International Coffee Agreement.....	796	Chairman N. V. Podgorny.....	790	Oklahoma, U.S. district judge.....	1004
International Economic Policy, Council		General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev...	735,	O'Neill, John Ellis.....	802
on.....	788, 804	748, 790		Otis, Webster.....	829
International Maritime Traffic Conven-		Premier A. N. Kosygin.....	790	Parker, Joseph O.....	1021
tion.....	998	United Kingdom, Prime Minister		People's Republic of China. See China,
International Pacific Salmon Fisheries		Harold Wilson.....	790	People's Republic of
Commission.....	1021			Peron, Juan Domingo.....	771
International Telephone and Tele-				Pettit, John Whitney.....	1010, 1022
graph.....	841, 945			Podgorny, N. V.....	739, 741, 790
Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor..	790			Population control.....	793
ITT. See International Telephone and Telegraph
Jackson, Levi A.....	830
Japan, U.S. Ambassador to.....	802
Jenner, Albert E., Jr.....	824
Johnston, Donald A.....	994

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon—Continued

Population Year, 1974, National Commission on the Observance of World..	798	Rush, Kenneth.....	802, 804, 817, 995, 1002	Strategic arms limitation.....	750, 753, 755, 756, 763, 764, 769
Post, Marjorie Meriweather.....	802	St. Christopher-Nevis-Anguilla, U.S. Special Representative.....	994	Strategy Council on Drug Abuse.....	1021
Presidency, National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the.....	813, 818, 1021	St. Clair, James D.....	787, 802, 804, 822, 829, 1008	Student Government Day, 1974, National.....	1010
Presidential Medal of Freedom, Dr. Charles LeRoy Lowman.....	997, 1005	St. Lucia, U.S. Special Representative.....	994	Supplementary Centers and Services, National Advisory Council on.....	802
Presidential tapes and documents.....	822-828, 1008	St. Vincent, U.S. Special Representative.....	994	Supreme Court of the United States.....	772, 802, 822-829, 1008
President's Commission on White House Fellowships.....	830, 1002	Saletic, William G.....	1021	Surganov, F. A.....	742
President's travel.....		SALT. See Strategic arms limitation		Syria, U.S. Ambassador to.....	999, 1005
Domestic.....		San Clemente, Calif.....	803, 994, 1004	Tariff Commission, United States.....	1021
Bel Air, Calif.....	819, 994	Sant, Roger West.....	789, 804	Taylor, Joseph Z.....	830
Los Angeles, Calif.....	830	Sawhill, John C.....	788	Technology. See Science and technology
Palm Beach, Fla.....	802	Scala, Antonin M.....	998, 1005	Telegraph and telephone regulations.....	1007
Foreign.....		Schmidt, Helmut.....	790	Texas, U.S. attorney.....	804
Belgium.....	718, 727-735	Science and technology, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	737, 740, 741, 761, 791	Tindermans, Leo.....	790
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.....	718, 735-771	Scott, Sen. Hugh.....	802, 1010	Trade.....
Proclamations		Securities and Exchange Commission.....	806, 818	Coffee.....	796
Captive Nations Week, 1974 (Proc. 4302).....	801	Security and Cooperation in Europe, Conference on.....	757	Multilateral negotiations.....	1013
Imports of brandy (Proc. 4304).....	807	Sequoia meetings, with certain Members of Congress.....	802	Regulation of exports.....	999
National Forest, Products Week, 1974 (Proc. 4305).....	1000	Simon, William E.....	802, 1004, 1005	Trade Reform Act, proposed.....	1013
National Student Government Day, 1974 (Proc. 4307).....	1010	Sirica, John J.....	1008	Transportation.....
United Nations Day, 1974 (Proc. 4300).....	794	Sisco, Joseph J.....	817	Cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	762
United States Customs 185th Anniversary Year (Proc. 4306).....	1008	Smith, Elmer E.....	829	Urban.....	1001
United States Space Week, 1974 (Proc. 4303).....	805	Smith, Wilfred J.....	839, 1005	Transportation, Department of.....
White Cane Safety Day, 1974 (Proc. 4301).....	794	Snyder, Daniel J., III.....	829	Assistant Secretary.....	1021
World Population Year, 1974 (Proc. 4299).....	793	Southward, Maj. Gen. Charles L.....	802	Federal Aviation Administration.....	817, 995
Railway labor-management dispute.....	789	Spaatz, Gen. Carl A.....	807	Treasury, Department of the.....
Raven, Jack E.....	829	Space program, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	762	Deputy Secretary.....	804
Reports to the President		Space Week, 1974, United States.....	805, 815	General Counsel.....	804
Emergency Board No. 185, railway labor dispute.....	789	Spain.....		Secretary.....	802, 1004, 1005
Research, medical.....	740, 761, 791	Foreign Minister Pedro Mauri Cortina.....	814	United States Customs Service.....	1008
Resignation, President's.....		Joint declaration of principles with U.S.....	814	Treaties and other international agreements.....
Address to Nation.....	1014	Prince Juan Carlos.....	814	Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol to treaty on the limitation of.....	750
Letter to Secretary of State.....	1021	State, Department of.....		Declaration on Atlantic Relations.....	729
Possibility of.....	1010	Assistant Inspector General, Foreign Assistance.....	830	Economic, industrial, and technical cooperation agreement with U.S.S.R.....	741
Press Secretary Ziegler, remarks to reporters.....	1018	Assistant Secretaries.....	791, 1002, 1005	Energy agreement with U.S.S.R.....	737
Resignations and Retirements		Secretary.....	783, 791, 802, 807, 814, 817, 1018, 1021	Heart research agreement with U.S.S.R.....	740
Ambassadors.....		Under Secretary.....	817	Housing and construction agreement with U.S.S.R.....	739
Barbados.....	994	Statements by the President		International Maritime Traffic Convention.....	998
Ghana.....	994	Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, signing ceremony.....	800	Telegraph and telephone regulations.....	1007
Mauritania.....	994	Deaths.....		Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of.....	751
Army Department, Assistant Secretary.....	802	Dean, Dizzy.....	813	Trione, Henry F.....	1022
Atomic Energy Commission, member.....	1021	King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr.....	771	Turkey, Cyprus conflict.....	817, 820
Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman.....	815	Peron, Juan Domingo.....	771	Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of.....	751
District of Columbia, National Guard, Commanding General.....	802	Spaatz, Gen. Carl A.....	807	Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.....
Federal Energy Administration, Assistant Administrator.....	1004	Warren, Earl.....	795	Agreements with U.S.....
National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services, member.....	802	Department of Defense Appropriation Authorization Act, 1975, bill signing.....	1007	Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol on the limitation of.....	750, 756
National Science Foundation, Board member.....	1021	Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974.....	838	Construction.....	739, 761, 791
Office of Economic Opportunity, Director.....	817	Energy conservation.....	788	Economic, industrial, and technical.....	741, 759, 791
Transportation Department, Assistant Secretary.....	1021	Independence Day, 1974.....	790	Energy.....	737, 761, 791
U.S. district judge.....		Joint declaration of principles between the United States and Spain.....	814	Heart research.....	740, 761, 791
New Jersey.....	1004	Supreme Court decision on Presidential tapes and documents.....	829	Housing.....	739, 761, 791
Oklahoma.....	1004	Tapes of Presidential conversations, release.....	1008	Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of.....	751
Rhodes, Repr. John J.....	802, 1010	Statements Other Than Presidential		Chairman N. V. Podgorny.....	739, 741, 790
Rural areas.....		Brussels meeting with the North Atlantic Council, Press Secretary.....	731	General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev.....	735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
Federal facilities.....	1000	Ziegler.....		Joint statements.....	753
Government services, report transmittal.....	1021	Uranium supplies, Deputy Press Secretary Warren.....	1009	North Atlantic Council meeting, remarks.....	731
		Stein, Herbert.....	802, 815, 817, 818	Premier A. N. Kosygin.....	740, 790

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon—Continued

United Kingdom		Veto Messages and Memorandums of Disapproval		Weinberger, Caspar W.....	802, 804
Foreign Minister James Callaghan....	999			Whitaker, John C.....	802
Prime Minister Harold Wilson.....	790			White Cane Safety Day, 1974.....	794
U.S. Ambassador to.....	817	Appropriations bill.....	1014	White House Fellows.....	1002
United Nations Day, 1974.....	794	Vice President. See Ford, Vice President		White House Fellowships, President's
United States Courts. See Courts,		Gerald R.		Commission on.....	830, 1002
United States		Virgin Islands, drought, emergency as-		White House Staff
United States Customs 185th Anniver-		sistance.....	828	Communications Director.....	994
sary Year.....	1008	Walters, Vernon A.....	1009	Counsellor for Economic Policy.....	802,
United States Space Week, 1974.....	805, 815	Warren, Earl.....	795	804, 817, 995, 1002
United States Tariff Commission.....	1021	Warren, Gerald L.....	1009, 1012	Counsellors.....	791, 802, 995
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist		Watergate investigation		Deputy Assistant.....	795
Republics Commercial Commission..	741	See also Impeachment inquiry		Deputy Press Secretary.....	1009, 1012
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist		Central Intelligence Agency.....	1008	President's farewell remarks.....	1019
Republics Joint Committee on Coop-		Court documents.....	772	Press Secretary.....	731, eration in the Field of Energy....	737, 761	Federal Bureau of Investigation.....	1008	791, 818, 824, 825, 1012, 1018
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist		House Judiciary Committee.....	791,	Special Assistant.....	816
Republics Joint Committee on Coop-		818, 840, 995, 1008
eration in Housing and Other Con-		Impeachable offense.....	826	White House Statements
struction.....	739, 761	National security investigations.....	807	Cyprus cease-fire agreement.....	999
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist		Payments to defendants.....	824,	Wiretaps.....	807, 841, 923
Republics Joint Committee for		826, 827, 841, 870		World Population Year, 1974.....	793, 798
Health Cooperation.....	740, 761	Presidential tapes and documents... 822-		World Weather Program.....	1001
Uranium supplies, enriched.....	1009	828, 1008		Wushu Troupe.....	801
Urban transportation.....	1001	Supreme Court review... 772, 802, 822-829		Zamyatin, L. M.....	791
Vaky, Viron P.....	994	Weapons tests, treaty on the limitation		Ziegler, Ronald L.....	731,
Van Court, Arthur F.....	804	of underground nuclear.....	751	791, 818, 824, 825, 1012, 1018
Velde, Richard W.....	999, 1005	Weather Program, World.....	1001
		Weber, John W.....	1004

Index to Documents of the Administration of Gerald R. Ford

Acts approved. See last page of text in each issue

Addresses and Remarks of the President

Appointment of Press Secretary terHorst 1025
Congress, address to Joint Session on assuming office 1029
Meeting with foreign leaders, Jordan, King Hussein I. 1039, 1041
Swearing-in ceremony 1023

AFL-CIO 1041
Alioto, Joseph 1042
American National Red Cross 1039
Animal health research bill 1037

Appointments and Nominations

Ambassadors, United States
Greece 1036, 1042
Korea, Republic of 1036, 1042
White House Staff
Assistant Press Secretaries 1038, 1039
Counsel 1037
Counsellors 1026, 1027
Deputy Press Secretary 1038
Press Secretary 1025

Arends, Repr. Leslie C. 1041
Ash, Roy L. 1026, 1028, 1041
Atomic energy, agreement with United Kingdom 1038

Boo, Ben 1042
Bradley, Tom 1042
Buchen, Philip W. 1037
Budget, Federal spending 1031
Burger, Warren E. 1023
Burns, Arthur F. 1026, 1028, 1041
Bush, George H. 1041

Cabinet, meeting with the President 1028
Callaghan, James 1041
Cederberg, Repr. Elford A. 1040
Checklist of unpublished releases. See last page of text in each issue

Cities, National League of 1041
Clements, William P., Jr. 1041
Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973 1041
Comprehensive Health Insurance Plan, proposed 1032
Conable, Repr. Barber B. 1040

Congress, Communications to

See also Letters, Messages, Telegrams; Veto Messages and Memorandums of Disapproval
Atomic energy agreement with United Kingdom, amendments 1038
Special International Exhibits, annual report transmittal 1036

Congress, meetings with the President, bipartisan leadership 1028
Cost of Living Council 1031
County Officials, National Association of 1041

Courts, United States, deputy U.S. marshals pay raise bill, veto message 1035
Crane, Repr. Philip M. 1041
Cyprus conflict 1041
Defense, Department of
Deputy Secretary 1041
Joint Chiefs of Staff 1041
Secretary 1041

Digest of other White House announcements. See last pages of text in each issue

Dobrynin, A. F. 1041
Dominick, Sen. Peter H. 1041
Economic Advisers, Council of
Chairman 1026, 1028, 1041
Chairman-designate 1026, 1028

Economy, national
Address to Joint Session of Congress 1029
Federal spending 1031
Inflation 1030-1032
Summit conference 1031

Education amendments bill, elementary and secondary 1032
Egypt, Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy 1041
Elementary and secondary education amendments bill 1032

Employment and Training Act of 1973, Comprehensive 1041
Energy crisis 1033
Evans, Gov. Daniel J. 1042

Executive Orders

Exports, regulation of (EO 11798) 1037
Exhibitions, international 1036
Exports, regulation 1037

Fahmy, Ismail 1041
Federal Reserve System, Board of Governors, Chairman 1026, 1028, 1041
Fitzsimmons, Frank E. 1041
Ford, Mrs. Gerald R. 1041

Garn, E. J. 1042
General Motors Corporation 1029
Goldwater, Sen. Barry 1041
Government employees, deputy U.S. marshals, pay raise 1035

Governors' Conference, National 1041, 1042
Greece, U.S. Ambassador to 1036, 1042
Greenspan, Alan 1026, 1028
Griffin, Sen. Robert P. 1041
Guinea-Bissau 1029

Harlow, Bryce N. 1040
Hartmann, Robert T. 1026, 1028
Health, insurance 1032
Health, Education, and Welfare, Department of, Secretary 1041

Health Insurance Plan, Comprehensive, proposed 1032
Holland, James R. 1039
Howe, Nancy 1041
Hushen, John W. 1038
Hussein I, King 1039, 1041

Inauguration ceremony. See Swearing-In Ceremonies
Insurance, health 1032

Interior, Department of the, Secretary 1026, 1028
International Brotherhood of Teamsters 1041
Jackson, Sen. Henry M. 1041, 1042

Japan, President's proposed visit 1041
Javits, Sen. Jacob K. 1041, 1042
Joint Chiefs of Staff 1041
Jordan, King Hussein I. 1039, 1041
Justice, Department of, Attorney General 1041

Kennerly, David Hume 1041
Kissinger, Dr. Henry A. 1026, 1041
Korea, Republic of, U.S. Ambassador to 1036, 1042
Kubisch, Jack B. 1036, 1042

Laird, Melvin R. 1040

Letters, Messages, Telegrams

American National Red Cross, letter accepting honorary Chairmanship 1039
Long, Sen. Russell B. 1041

Malek, Frederic V. 1041
Management and Budget, Office of
Deputy Director 1041
Director 1026, 1028, 1041
Marsh, John O., Jr. 1026-1028, 1041, 1042

Mayors, United States Conference of 1041
McClure, Sen. James A. 1041
Meany, George 1041

Meetings with Foreign Leaders

Jordan, King Hussein I. 1039

Memorandums to Federal Agencies

Presidential transition 1027
Miltich, Paul A. 1038
Morton, Rogers C. B. 1026, 1028

National Association of County Officials 1041
National Governors' Conference 1041, 1042
National League of Cities 1041
National Security Council, meeting with the President 1028

News Conferences Other Than Presidential

Appointment of transition team and President's schedule, Press Secretary terHorst 1026
Nixon, Richard M. 1024

Nominations submitted to the Senate.

See last page of text in each issue

Portugal, Guinea-Bissau, independence 1029
Rampton, Gov. Calvin 1042
Red Cross, American National 1039
Research, animal health 1037

Resignations and Retirements

Office of Management and Budget,
Deputy Director 1041
Rhodes, Repr. John J. 1041
Ribicoff, Sen. Abraham A. 1041, 1042
Rumsfeld, Donald 1026, 1028

Rush, Kenneth 1026, 1028, 1041
St. Clair, James D. 1041
Saxbe, William B. 1041
Schlesinger, James R. 1041
Scott, Sen. Hugh 1041

Scranton, William W. 1026, 1028
Security Council, National 1028
Seidman, William 1026, 1028
Simon, William E. 1026, 1028, 1041
Sneider, Richard L. 1036, 1042

Special International Exhibits 1036
State, Department of, Secretary 1026, 1041

Statements by the President

General Motors price increase 1029
Portuguese recognition of independence of Guinea-Bissau 1029

Stein, Herbert 1026, 1028, 1041
Supreme Court of the United States, Chief Justice 1023

Swearing-In Ceremonies

President of the United States 1023

Teamsters, International Brotherhood of 1041
terHorst, J. F. 1025, 1026
Thurmond, Sen. Strom 1041
Tower, Sen. John 1041

Trade
Exports, regulation 1037
Negotiations 1032
Trade reform bill 1033

Training Act of 1973, Comprehensive Employment and 1041
Treasury, Department of the, Secretary 1026, 1028, 1041

Treaties and other international agreements
Atomic energy agreement with United Kingdom, amendments 1038

Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Ambassador to U.S. 1041
United Kingdom
Atomic energy agreement with United States, amendments 1038

Foreign Secretary James Callaghan 1041
Prime Minister Harold Wilson 1041

United Nations, Guinea-Bissau, membership 1029
United States Conference of Mayors 1041

Veterinary research 1037

Veto Messages and Memorandums of Disapproval

Animal health research bill, message to House of Representatives 1037
Deputy U.S. marshals bill, message to House of Representatives 1035

Vice Presidential Staff, memorandum on Presidential transition 1027

Weinberger, Caspar W. 1041
White House Staff

Assistant Press Secretaries 1038, 1039
Counsel 1037
Counsellor for Economic Policy 1026, 1028, 1041

Counsellors 1026, 1027, 1041, 1042
Deputy Press Secretary 1038
Presidential transition, memorandum 1027

Press Secretary 1025
Wilson, Harold 1041
Wyder, Repr. John W. 1041

Weekly Compilation of
PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

The University
of Michigan
Reference

Monday, September 2, 1974

SEP 27 1974

Volume 10 • Number 35

Pages 1065-1082

Index of Contents

ACTS APPROVED.....	1082	BILL SIGNINGS
ADDRESSES AND REMARKS		Council on Wage and Price Stability Act, remarks and statement.....	1065
Farewell party for Dr. Herbert Stein.....	1067	Public works and AEC appropriation bill, statement.....	1074
Little League World Series, remarks to championship teams.....	1067	Small Business Amendments of 1974, statement.....	1066
Michigan Republican State Convention, recorded remarks.....	1066	CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES.....	1082
Ohio State University, summer commencement....	1075	DIGEST OF OTHER WHITE HOUSE ANNOUNCEMENTS..	1080
ANNOUNCEMENTS		NEWS CONFERENCES
Emergency assistance for Puerto Rico.....	1073	Wednesday, August 28 (No. 1).....	1069
APPOINTMENTS AND NOMINATIONS		STATEMENTS BY THE PRESIDENT
Council on Wage and Price Stability (Chairman and 7 members).....	1074	(See also Bill Signings)
Nominations submitted to the Senate.....	1082	Council on Wage and Price Stability, appointment of Chairman and 7 members.....	1074
		Death of Charles A. Lindbergh.....	1068

[A Cumulative Index to Prior Issues appears at the end of this issue.]

WEEKLY COMPILATION OF Presidential Documents

Published every Monday by the Office of the Federal Register, National Archives and Records Service, General Services Administration, Washington, D.C. 20408, the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents contains statements, messages and other Presidential materials released by the White House during the preceding week.

The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents is published pursuant to the authority contained in the Federal Register Act (49 Stat. 500, as amended; 44 U.S.C. Ch. 15), under regulations prescribed by the Administrative Committee of the Federal Register, approved by the President (37 F.R. 23607; 1 CFR Part 10).

Distribution is made only by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents will be furnished by mail to subscribers for $15.00 per year, payable to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The charge for a single copy is 50 cents.

There are no restrictions on the republication of material appearing in the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents.

Administration of Gerald R. Ford

PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Week Ending Saturday, August 31, 1974

Council on Wage and Price Stability

The President's Remarks Upon Signing a Bill To Establish the Council. August 24, 1974

Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, for coming, along with Mr. Rhodes and Mr. Arends and members of the White House Staff and the Cabinet and others.

I appreciate your coming down here on a Saturday morning for this signing which I think probably best indicates the cooperation that exists before the Congress and the White House.

I was just noticing that less than 2 weeks ago, Mr. Speaker, I asked for the help of the Congress in one important piece of legislation, namely, the one I am about to sign, and within that short span of time the House and Senate responded—responded, I think, in a very constructive way.

Not that this particular piece of legislation is going to be an instant answer or an immediate panacea, but it is important. It was so indicated by the Republican Administration and concurred in by the Democratic leadership and the Democratic Congress. I think it is indicative of the recognition that we have to work together not only in this instance but in others, in meeting the problem of inflation which plagues us, which is our public enemy number one.

Now we have got some other things that have to be done. I have said very emphatically, and I think it has been generally agreed to, that this legislation is not the forerunner of any wage and price controls. This is a monitoring piece of legislation to give guidance in very broad terms to management and labor so they don't take advantage of a free economy in this critical situation.

I am not going to ask for wage and price controls, and we generally agreed last week that the Congress in 1974 would not respond to any wage and price control recommendation.

We are going to do some other things, and I think all of this ought to be encouraging to the American people and to our friends around the world. We are going to hold the line on spending. The target, of course, is a figure in this fiscal year of under $300 billion. We can do it. We are going to do it. And that ought to be reassuring, I think, to the American people.

There will be some other things that will undoubtedly come out of the economic summit which is being put together by cooperation with the Congress and with the White House.

This battle has to be won, and it will be won, and the cooperation that I have gotten from not only the Congress but from some in industry, and I hope from those in labor, should absolutely reassure the American people that inflation can be licked here as well as abroad.

So with those remarks I would like to sign this bill which I appreciate and I think the American people will be glad to have on the statute book.

Thank you very much. I appreciate everybody being here, and now we are going back to work without any further ado.

Thank you very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 11:07 a.m. in the Cabinet Room at the White House. As enacted, the Council on Wage and Price Stability Act (S. 3919) is Public Law 93-387, approved August 24, 1974. •

For a statement by the President announcing the appointment of the Chairman and members of the Council, see p. 1074 of this issue.

Council on Wage and Price Stability Act

Statement by the President Upon Signing the Bill Into Law. August 24, 1974

One of my first acts as President was to ask the Congress to reactivate a wage and price monitoring agency before its Labor Day recess. Today—less than 2 weeks later—I am gratified to sign the legislation authorizing me to create such a council, and I hereby announce its creation without further delay.

It is certainly encouraging to me, as it must be to all Americans, to know that the Government can act so swiftly on the inflation front. Prompt and aggressive action against inflation is precisely what America needs, and that is the kind of leadership that must be provided by the Federal Government.

This new Council on Wage and Price Stability will provide us with one means of identifying and exposing some of the causes of inflation. It will bring into sharper focus the critical developments of industrial performance, wage and productivity performance, and the effect on inflation of actions taken by the Federal Government.

I must reemphasize that the Council should not be a steppingstone back to mandatory wage and price controls. We have learned from experience that in today's economy, controls lead to disruptions and new troubles.

It would also be unrealistic to expect this Council to bring any immediate relief from inflation. Establishment of the Council is but one step along a difficult road that all of us must travel in the months ahead. We in the Federal Government must hold to a firm, responsible policy of fiscal and monetary restraint. Industry and labor will have their work cut out for them in exercising every responsible restraint in price and wage increases. We face an uphill road, and we will make it through only if we all pull together.

I will announce shortly the membership of the Council so that it can convene promptly and develop an agenda for action in the immediate future.

Once again, I commend the Members of Congress for their quick and responsible action in helping to establish this Council.

NOTE: As enacted, the bill (S. 3919) is Public Law 93-387, approved August 24, 1974.

For a statement by the President announcing the appointment of the Chairman and members of the Council, see p. 1074 of this issue.

Small Business Amendments of 1974

Statement by the President Upon Signing the Bill Into Law, While Expressing Reservations About Certain of Its Provisions. August 24, 1974

Late yesterday I signed into law S. 3331, the "Small Business Amendments of 1974."

Most of the provisions of this bill are essential to the ongoing programs of the Small Business Administration or are desirable amendments to existing law.

This legislation, for instance, raises ceilings on the SBA's loan programs. It increases the agency's flexibility to establish interest rates on guaranteed loans purchased from financial institutions. It expands the authority to carry out lease guarantee and surety bond guarantee programs. And it authorizes disaster loans with terms of up to 30 years for small business concerns affected adversely by energy shortages.

Each of these provisions was either requested or supported by the executive branch. Their enactment is welcome evidence that the executive branch and the Congress can work together to meet the needs of small business. In the Congress, I have long supported small business as the backbone of our American enterprise system. As President, I intend to encourage small business in every way I can.

There is one provision in this bill which disturbs me. That provision would require SBA to make direct loans under its regular business loan program in an aggregate amount of at least $400 million during fiscal year 1975. The 1975 budget, however, provides only $40 million for this direct loan program. Thus, in the absence of reprogramming, the effect of S. 3331, if fully funded, would be to increase Federal budget outlays by $360 million this year.

At a time when both the Congress and the Administration are committed to fighting inflation by reducing Federal spending, outlays of this magnitude would be excessive. Therefore, I do not intend to request additional appropriations to carry out the $400 million authorization for fiscal year 1975. The present 1975 budget request of $40 million, combined with the continuing success of SBA's loan guarantee program, should ensure an adequate level of assistance for small businessmen.

In sum, the bill is generally responsive to the needs of small businesses. I commend the Congress for enacting it.

NOTE: As enacted, the bill (S. 3331) is Public Law 93-386, approved August 23, 1974.

Michigan Republican State Convention

The President's Recorded Remarks to the Convention in Detroit, Michigan. August 24, 1974

Governor Milliken, Members of Congress, State candidates, and delegates to the State Convention:

Greetings from Betty and me from the White House. You know I would have liked to greet you in person as I have done so many times in the past at our State conventions. However, the very sudden change in circumstances has made that impossible at this time.

But I want you to know that I am thinking about my many, many good Michigan friends gathered in Detroit. I want you to know, too, that there are many good Michiganders who are helping greatly here in Washington in moving the Ford Administration through the very difficult transition period. It is tough, demanding work, but it is accomplishing our great goal.

The transition is going very smoothly. I can assure you that the Ford Administration is moving and moving strongly to meet the Nation's needs, both at home and abroad.

But a President must have help to get his policies and plans into operation. That is where you are needed and needed very badly. One of the most important of our Republican concepts is to reverse the concentration of power in Washington. With the revenue sharing and such important new programs as the Housing and Community Development Act which I signed into law this week, we are beginning to see a transfer of power back to the people.

You, at State and local levels, are getting the power to decide where and how your tax dollars are to be spent in more and more areas of human need. I think that is a great trend in exactly the right direction. It is a trend that must continue, and with your help in electing candidates who support such programs, the power of the people will continue to grow.

You have a fine Governor. Bill Milliken has done an outstanding job. He has a fine record of performance in office. You have an equally fine group of candidates for Congressional and for State office.

I have a particular interest in our Congressional candidates. Our candidates for the Congress are worthy of your full support. We need them in the House of Representatives in Washington, D.C. Our legislative candidates in Lansing also need your full support. Governor Bill Milliken must have help in the State legislature.

You have a lot going for you during the coming campaign in our State. But there has to be one additional factor, the dedicated efforts of Republican workers. You—the key people in the Republican Party of Michigan—must give the leadership and show the way.

It is time for all of us to get down to hard work. With your very real effort, we together can show those who despair the future just how wrong they are. Join with me in helping to build a better America.

Thank you very much.

NOTE: The remarks were recorded for use at the convention in Detroit, Mich., at 12 noon on Saturday, August 24, 1974.

Little League World Series Teams

The President's Remarks to Members of the Eight Championship Teams. August 26, 1974

Let me welcome all of you on behalf of myself and the American people. We are very grateful to have the teams from the countries that came from abroad. We congratulate all eight teams for participating in the Little League

World Series—and I mean really world series. All of you should be congratulated.

Of course, we will congratulate the team from the Republic of China, which won. I can't help but admire—where is Mr. Lin? Here he is. I watched on television one of those home runs. What was it, five in three ball games? A .727 percent batting average. I wish I had that good a batting average. [Laughter]

But I do want to congratulate everyone of you individually, congratulate you as a team, and congratulate those who were the sponsors and the coaches. I wish to welcome all of you from foreign lands.

It is my impression that competitive athletics, whether it is in little league baseball or whether it is in the Olympics or whether it is in any other sport, contributes very significantly to a better world for all of us, those here in the United States, those who come from foreign lands.

The exchange of relationships, the exchange of ideas, the friendships that you make are of invaluable benefit to everybody in the world. And at your young age, you are making a tremendous contribution to better world understanding by the fact that you have participated in this world championship.

I congratulate you again, and I hope that I will have an opportunity to not only say hello in this way but perhaps we can shake hands as I leave the room.

Good luck, and God bless each and every one of you.

NOTE: The President spoke at 2:07 p.m. in the State Dining Room at the White House. The group included the eight teams which competed in the Little League World Series at Williamsport, Pa. The teams were from Red Bluff, Calif., Tallmadge, Ohio, New Haven, Conn., Jackson, Tenn., Republic of China (Taiwan), Maracaibo, Venezuela, Victoria, B.C., Canada, and a team made up of children of American military and embassy staff in Athens, Greece.

Farewell Party for Dr. Herbert Stein

Remarks of the President and Dr. Stein at a Party Honoring Dr. Stein on His Resignation as Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers. August 26, 1974

THE PRESIDENT. Herb and Mrs. Stein and all of your many, many friends, both professionally and socially and politically and otherwise:

I think all of us are here tonight to say goodbye to a trusted friend and a very valued adviser.

Herb, as most of you know, has been with the Council, I think, since 1969, and both economically and politically Herb has been through periods of both good times and bad. It is obvious to a non-economist like myself that economics is something of an inexact science.

I think an economist has been described as a person who tells you there will definitely not be a hurricane and then shortly thereafter helps you repair and rebuild the roof. [Laughter]

But through fair weather or foul, Herb Stein, in my judgment, from my view, when I was in the House, as Minority Leader, when I was Vice President, and now as President, has been a model helpmate, adviser to public servants. He has advised Presidents to the very best of his outstanding ability, and on occasions when Herb's advice was not necessarily taken, he stayed loyal to a constituent, the only one under the law that he had, the President of the United States. And to me that kind of loyalty is invaluable.

Herb came to the Government, as I recollect, when the economy was going through a very difficult time. Obviously he is leaving when the economy is going through a very difficult time. But I think we shouldn't lose sight of the fact that while Herb was here the economy went through an enormous expansion and remained the most powerful, and most productive, and certainly the richest economy in the world today.

One fact that impressed me during Herb's tenure: since 1968, employment, civilian employment, has increased by some 12 million, the largest increase in any 5-year period in the history of the United States. I think that is a tremendously favorable statistic that we can all be proud of.

Real per capita income, after taxes—and that has an impact on all of us—during that same span of time, has increased 15 percent.

In both cases, the gain in employment, the gain in real per capita income, this is indicative of substantial progress. And I think despite the problems we face, the dark clouds that may be on the horizon, we are going to make the same kind of progress in the battle against inflation, with your help, with the help of the American people.

I think we will miss Herb's sense of the dramatic. And I have seen several instances of it. Who can ever forget that economic conference a few years ago when Herb pulled a rib roast out of his briefcase. He said that 2 years ago Mildred had bought that rib roast, and now anybody could buy it for a lot less money. You know why? Have you ever tasted a rib roast that had been in Herb's briefcase for 2 years? [Laughter]

Although I will not have the benefit of Herb's advice in person, I am looking forward to getting up each morning, making my own breakfast, and then reading his opinions in the Wall Street Journal and other newspapers. I suspect it will be very appropriate. His views are just about as hardboiled as the eggs that I will cook. [Laughter]

But Herb, you brought to Government a wealth of knowledge, experience, and deep insight. I think you leave us with a little more in each category. Your students will be the beneficiaries at the University of Michigan. [Laughter] A few have gone back there. I don't want you to crowd Paul McCracken and the others. But your readers will be the beneficiaries of what you learned down here in the trenches far from that ivory tower. I ask only one thing: Just remember the trenches a bit when you get back up to that ivory tower.

We do, all of us, including myself, wish you the very best of luck. I speak for the White House Staff, your associates in the Council, the Cabinet, the Members of Congress. We will miss your wit, and we will miss your fortitude, and we will miss your loyalty. And we extend to you and to Mildred our very, very best wishes for a happy and successful tenure away from the trenches.

Thank you.

DR. HERBERT STEIN. Well, Mr. President, Mildred and I and all our friends here are tremendously honored by your presence on this occasion, by your willingness to be seen in public with an economist, and particularly with this economist. [Laughter]

You have shown that you are prepared to go the last mile to bring the country together and to establish stability in the American economy. [Laughter]

We, of course, wish you every success. Mildred and I are about to join the 98 percent of the American public whose troubles are all caused by the 2 percent who work in the Government. In fact, one can say that their troubles are all caused by four or five people who meet at 8 or 8:30 in the morning in the White House. [Laughter]

So when things are not as good as they might be, we will know where to look. [Laughter]

But we are sure that they will be as good as they might be. We have every confidence in the program on which you have embarked, on the staff of advisers that you will have working with you and although we know—God knows we know—that there will be ups and downs and trials and tribulations, we have confidence in you and in the American economy to swim through these things which are after all, in the end, only minor ripples—I guess I have said this before; they didn't believe it when I said it before, but I am left with it—[laughter]—minor ripples on the rising tide of economic welfare.

So again, let me thank you very much for coming here to join us and our friends.

NOTE: The President spoke at 7:19 p.m. in the Atrium at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

Death of Charles A. Lindbergh

Statement by the President. August 26, 1974

From the moment that "The Spirit of St. Louis" landed in Paris on May 21, 1927, Charles A. Lindbergh had earned a place in history. For a generation of Americans and for millions of other people around the world, the "Lone Eagle" represented all that was best in our country—honesty, courage, and the will to greatness.

In later years, his life was darkened by tragedy and colored by political controversy. But, in both public and private life, General Lindbergh always remained a brave, sincere patriot. Nearly half a century has passed since his courageous solo flight across the Atlantic, but the courage and daring of his feat will never be forgotten. For years to come, we will also remember the selfless, sincere man himself, Charles A. Lindbergh, one of America's alltime heroes and a great pioneer of the air age that changed the world.

On the occasion of his death, Mrs. Ford and I extend our sincere condolences to Mrs. Lindbergh and the family.

NOTE: Charles A. Lindbergh, 72, died at his home on the island of Maui, Hawaii, on August 26, 1974.

THE PRESIDENT'S NEWS CONFERENCE OF AUGUST 28, 1974

THE PRESIDENT. Good afternoon:

At the outset, I have a very important and a very serious announcement. There was a little confusion about the date of this press conference. My wife, Betty, had scheduled her first press conference for the same day. And obviously, I had scheduled my first press conference for this occasion. So, Betty's was postponed.

We worked this out between us in a calm and orderly way. She will postpone her press conference until next week, and until then, I will be making my own breakfast, my own lunch, and my own dinner. [Laughter]

Helen [Helen Thomas, United Press International].

QUESTIONS

IMMUNITY OR PARDON FOR FORMER PRESIDENT NIXON

Q. Mr. President, aside from the Special Prosecutor's role, do you agree with the bar association that the law applies equally to all men, or do you agree with Governor Rockefeller that former President Nixon should have immunity from prosecution? And specifically, would you use your pardon authority, if necessary?

THE PRESIDENT. Well, let me say at the outset that I made a statement in this room a few moments after the swearing in. And on that occasion I said the following: that I had hoped that our former President, who brought peace to millions, would find it for himself.

Now, the expression made by Governor Rockefeller, I think, coincides with the general view and the point of view of the American people. I subscribe to that point of view, but let me add, in the last 10 days or 2 weeks I have asked for prayers for guidance on this very important point.

In this situation, I am the final authority. There have been no charges made, there has been no action by the courts, there has been no action by any jury. And until any legal process has been undertaken, I think it is unwise and untimely for me to make any commitment.

POLITICAL PHILOSOPHY

Q. Mr. President, you have been in office 19 days now, and already some of your natural, conservative allies are grumbling that you are moving too far to the left. Does this trouble you?

THE PRESIDENT. I don't think I have deviated from my basic philosophy nor have I deviated from what I think is the right action. I have selected an outstanding person to be the Vice President. I have made a decision concerning amnesty, which I think is right and proper—no amnesty, no revenge—and that individuals who have violated either the draft laws or have evaded selective service or deserted can earn their way or work their way back. I don't think these are views that fall in the political spectrum right or left.

I intend to make the same kind of judgments in other matters because I think they are right and I think they are for the good of the country.

PUBLIC SERVICE PROGRAM

Q. Mr. President, may I follow that with one more example, possibly, that is, there is a report that the Administration is considering a $4 billion public works program in case the inflation rate gets higher than it is, say 6 percent. Is that under consideration?

THE PRESIDENT. I think most of you know that we do have a public service employment program on the statute books which is funded right today, not for any major program, but to take care of those areas in our country where there are limited areas of unemployment caused by the energy crisis or any other reason.

There is a recommendation from some of my advisers saying that if the economy gets any more serious, that this ought to be a program—a broader, more expensive public service program. We will approach this problem with compassion and action if there is a need for it.

1976 PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN

Q. Sir, two political questions: Do you definitely plan to run for President in 1976, and if so, would you choose Governor Rockefeller as your running mate or would you leave that choice up to the convention's free choice?

THE PRESIDENT. I will repeat what has been said on my behalf, that I will probably be a candidate in 1976.

I think Governor Rockefeller and myself are a good team, but, of course, the final judgment in this matter will be that of the delegates to the national convention.

POSSIBILITY OF PARDON FOR FORMER PRESIDENT NIXON

Q. May I just follow up on Helen's question. Are you saying, sir, that the option of a pardon for former President Nixon is still an option that you will consider, depending on what the courts will do?

THE PRESIDENT. Of course, I make the final decision. And until it gets to me, I make no commitment one way or another. But I do have the right as President of the United States to make that decision.

Q. And you are not ruling it out?

THE PRESIDENT. I am not ruling it out. It is an option and a proper option for any President.

ACTION BY THE SPECIAL PROSECUTOR

Q. Do you feel the Special Prosecutor can in good conscience pursue cases against former top Nixon aides as long as there is the possibility that the former President may not also be pursued in the courts?

THE PRESIDENT. I think the Special Prosecutor, Mr. Jaworski, has an obligation to take whatever action he sees fit in conformity with his oath of office, and that should include any and all individuals.

PREVENTION OF FURTHER "WATERGATES"

Q. What do you plan to do as President to see to it that we have no further Watergates?

THE PRESIDENT. Well, I indicated that, one, we would have an open Administration. I will be as candid and as forthright as I possibly can. I will expect any individuals in my Administration to be exactly the same. There will be no tightly controlled operation of the White House Staff. I have a policy of seeking advice from a number of top members of my staff. There will be no one person, nor any limited number of individuals, who make decisions. I will make the decisions and take the blame for them or whatever benefit might be the case.

I said in one of my speeches after the swearing in, there would be no illegal wiretaps, there would be none of the other things that to a degree helped to precipitate the Watergate crisis.

CODE OF ETHICS

Q. Do you plan to set up a code of ethics for the executive branch?

THE PRESIDENT. The code of ethics that will be followed will be the example that I set.

CONTROL OF INFLATION

Q. Mr. President, do you have any plans now for immediate steps to control and curtail inflation, even before your summit conference on the economy?

THE PRESIDENT. We have announced that as far as fiscal control is concerned, we will spend less in the Federal Government in the current fiscal year than $300 billion. That is a reduction of $5,500 million at a minimum.

This, I think, will have two effects: Number one, it will be substantively beneficial, it will make our borrowings from the money market less, freeing more money for housing, for the utilities to borrow, and, in addition, I think it will convince people who might have some doubts that we mean business.

But in the meantime, we are collecting other ideas from labor, from management, from agriculture, from a wide variety of the segments of our population to see if they have any better ideas for us to win the battle against inflation.

WAGE AND PRICE CONTROLS

Q. Mr. President, as you know, a number of people have questioned your opposition to a return to wage and price controls. Gardner Ackley, a University of Michigan economist that you have listened to in the past, recently testified before Congress that if we are really frightened about inflation, we ought to think about returning to wage and price controls.

Can you foresee any circumstances under which you would be willing to do that and make them work?

THE PRESIDENT. I foresee no circumstances under which I can see the reimposition of wage and price controls. The situation is precisely this: This past week I had a meeting with the Democratic and Republican leadership, plus my own advisers in the field of our national economy. There was an agreement, number one, that I would not ask for any wage and price control legislation. There was agreement by the leadership on both sides of the aisle that there was no possibility whatsoever that this Congress in 1974 would approve any such legislation. Number three, labor and management almost unanimously agree that wage and price controls at the present time or any foreseeable circumstances were unwise.

Under all of those circumstances, it means wage and price controls are out, period.

DUTIES OF THE VICE PRESIDENT

Q. Can you give us your present thinking on how best you might use Mr. Rockefeller as Vice President once he is confirmed?

THE PRESIDENT. I have a lot of ideas. Until Congress confirms Mr. Rockefeller, we are sort of in a honeymoon period. I really shouldn't make any commitments until we actually get married.

But to be serious, if I might, I think Governor Rockefeller can be extremely important in the new Administration as my teammate in doing effective work in the area of the Domestic Council. We have to prepare legislative proposals that will go to the Congress when the new Congress comes back in January.

I believe that Governor Rockefeller will take over my responsibilities heading the subcommittee of the Domestic Council on privacy. Governor Rockefeller, with his vast experience in foreign policy, can make a significant contribution to some of our decisionmaking in the area of foreign policy. Obviously, in addition, he can be helpful, I think, in the political arena under certain guidelines and some restrictions.

WAGE AND PRICE CONTROLS

Q. Mr. President, you just ruled out wage and price controls, but I just would like to ask you why Mr. Nixon, when he was President, felt he was compelled to go back to them because the situation was getting out of hand? Can you just reinforce what you told Mr. Brokaw [Tom Brokaw, NBC News], why you think the situation is not that much out of hand yet?

THE PRESIDENT. I can only refer you to the circumstances and the decision of President Nixon in August of 1971. That was a decision he made under quite different circumstances. We are in totally different circumstances today. We have gone through a 3-year period, more or less. I think we have learned a few economic lessons that wage and price controls in the current circumstances didn't work, probably created more dislocations and inequities. I see no justification today, regardless of the rightness or wrongness of the decision in 1971, to reimpose wage and price controls today.

ECONOMIC ADVISERS

Q. Mr. President, you are still working with the same team of economic advisers who advised your predecessor. As a matter of putting your own stamp on your own Administration, perhaps spurring confidence, do you plan to change the cast of characters?

THE PRESIDENT. There is one significant change, just within the last 48 hours. Herb Stein, who did a superb job for President Nixon, is going back to the University of Virginia, and Alan Greenspan is taking over, and he has been on board, I think, 2 days.

That is a distinct change. I think Mr. Greenspan will do an excellent job. We are soliciting, through the economic summit, the views of a great many people from the total spectrum of the American society. Their ideas will be vitally important in any new, innovative approaches that we take. So, I think, between now and the 28th of September, when I think the second day of the summit ends, we will have the benefit of a great many wise, experienced individuals in labor, management, agriculture, et cetera, and this will give us, I hope, any new approaches that are wise and beneficial.

OIL PRICES AND PRODUCTION

Q. Some oil governments and some commercial cartels, notably ARAMCO [Arabian-American Oil Company] in Saudi Arabia are restricting oil production in order to keep oil prices artificially high. Now the U.S. can't do anything about Venezuela, but it can conceivably vis-à-vis cartels like ARAMCO. What steps and actions do you plan to take in this regard?

THE PRESIDENT. I think this points up very vividly the need and necessity for us to accelerate every aspect of Project Independence. I think it highlights the need and necessity for us to proceed with more oil and gas drilling, a greater supply domestically. I believe it points up the requirement that we expedite the licensing processes for new nuclear reactors. I think it points up very dramatically the need that we expand our geothermal, our solar research and development in the fields of energy.

In the meantime, it seems to me that the effort that was made several months ago to put together a group of consumer-industrial nations requires that this group meet frequently and act as much as possible in concert, because if we have any economic adverse repercussions because of high oil prices and poor investment policies, it could create serious economic problems throughout the industrial world. So it does require, I believe, the short-term action by consumer nations and the long-term actions under Project Independence.

COMMUNICATIONS WITH THE SPECIAL PROSECUTOR

Q. Mr. President, to further pursue Helen's inquiry, have there been any communications between the Special Prosecutor's office and anyone on your staff regarding President Nixon?

THE PRESIDENT. Not to my knowledge.

ADVICE TO WAGE EARNERS

Q. Mr. President, the beneficial effects of budget cutting on inflation will take some time to dribble down to the wage earner. What advice would you give the wage earner today who is having trouble stretching his dollar over his needs?

THE PRESIDENT. I think every wage earner has to realize we are going through a serious economic problem with inflation in double digits, not as bad as people in many Western European countries, but it will require him or her to follow the example of their Federal Government which is going to tighten its belt and likewise for an interim period of time watch every penny.

INDIAN OCEAN NAVAL BASES

Q. Mr. President, you said last March in an interview, I think in Sea Power magazine, that you came down quite strongly in favor of establishing a U.S. Indian Ocean fleet with the necessary bases to support it. Do you still stand by that and do you favor the development of Diego Garcia?¹

¹ Diego Garcia, an island approximately 1,000 nautical miles south of India, is part of the British Indian Ocean Territory. The U.S. Navy maintains a communications station on the island.

THE PRESIDENT. I favor the limited expansion of our base at Diego Garcia. I don't view this as any challenge to the Soviet Union. The Soviet Union already has three major naval operating bases in the Indian Ocean. This particular proposed construction, I think, is a wise policy, and it ought not to ignite any escalation of the problems in the Middle East.

Yes, Sarah. [Sarah McClendon, McClendon News Service].

VETERANS BENEFITS LEGISLATION

Q. I want to ask you about this new veterans benefits bill which Congress passed in the last hours. I understand this is a bill that you favored and maybe have spurred the Congressmen to pass. It saves $200 million.

Now my question is: Is that a real savings when it gives the disabled man less money than an able man and disrupts completely the veterans going to college in September?

THE PRESIDENT. I had no part in just how that House action was taken. I did discuss, coming back from the VFW meeting in Chicago, with a number of Members of the House and Senate, the problem that I faced with the bill that came out of conference, which would have added $780-some million over and above the budget for this year and a substantial increase for a number of succeeding years.

But that particular compromise was put together and brought to the floor of the House without any participation by me. I think there are some good provisions in that particular House action. It does tend to equalize the benefits for Vietnam veterans with the benefits that were given to World War II and to Korean veterans.

There are some, I think, inequities, and you probably pointed out one. I hope when the Congress reconvenes within a week or so that they will go back to conference, take a good look, and hopefully eliminate any inequities and keep the price down because it is inflationary the way it was and it may be the way it was proposed by the House.

ANTI-INFLATION MEASURES AND THE FEDERAL BUDGET

Q. Mr. President, concerning the Federal budget, will the domestic social programs have to bear the whole brunt of the anti-inflation fight or can some money come out of the defense budget, and if so, how much?

THE PRESIDENT. No budget for any department is sacrosanct, and that includes the defense budget. I insist, however, that sufficient money be made available to the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force so that we are strong militarily for the purpose of deterring war or meeting any challenge by any adversary. But if there is any fat in the defense budget, it ought to be cut out by Congress or eliminated by the Secretary of Defense.

In the meantime, all other departments must be scrutinized carefully so that they don't have any fat and marginal programs are eliminated.

Mrs. Tufty [Esther Van Wagoner Tufty, Tufty News Service].

DOMESTIC PRIORITIES

Q. Mr. President, you have given top priority to inflation. Do you have a list of priorities, and if so, what is number two?

THE PRESIDENT. Well, of course, public enemy number one, and that is the one we have to lick, is inflation. If we take care of inflation and get our economy back on the road to a healthy future, I think most of our other domestic programs or problems will be solved.

We won't have high unemployment. We will have ample job opportunities. We will, I believe, give greater opportunities to minorities to have jobs. If we can lick inflation, and we are going to try, and I think we are going to have a good program, most of our other domestic programs will be solved.

OFFICE OF ECONOMIC OPPORTUNITY

Q. Do you have any plans to revive the Office of Economic Opportunity, and if so, in what areas?

THE PRESIDENT. As I am sure you know, the old poverty program has been significantly changed over the last several years. The Headstart Program has been taken out of OEC [OEO] and turned over to the Department of HEW. The health aspects of the old poverty program are also over in HEW.

The Congress just approved, and Mr. Nixon approved, a Legal Services Corporation, which was another part of the old poverty program. So, we end up really with just the CAP program, Community Action Program.

Now I think most people who have objectively looked at the Community Action Program and the Model Cities Program and maybe some of the other similar programs—there is duplication, there is overlapping.

And under the new housing and urban development bill, local communities are given substantial sums to take a look at the Model Cities Programs and related programs, and they may be able to take up the slack of the ending of the Community Action Programs.

ISRAELI CAPITAL

Q. Mr. President, my question applies to a 1972 statement in which you said that an impediment to a regional peace settlement is an impediment to preserve the fiction that Jerusalem is not the capital of Israel. My question, sir, is, would you, now that you set foreign policy, request that the embassy be shifted from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem along with 17 other national embassies?

THE PRESIDENT. Under the current circumstances and the importance of getting a just and lasting peace in the Middle East, I think that particular proposal ought to stand aside. We must come up with some answers between Israel and the Arab nations in order to achieve a peace that is both fair and durable.

POLICY TOWARD CUBA

Q. Mr. President, do you contemplate any changes in our policy with Cuba?

THE PRESIDENT. The policy that we have toward Cuba today is determined by the sanctions voted by the Organization of American States, and we abide by those actions that were taken by the members of that organization.

Now if Cuba changes its policy toward us and toward its Latin neighbors, we, of course, would exercise the option, depending on what the changes were, to change our policy. But before we made any change, we would certainly act in concert with the other members of the Organization of American States.

POSSIBILITY OF PARDON FOR THE FORMER PRESIDENT

Q. Mr. President, you have emphasized here your option of granting a pardon to the former President.

THE PRESIDENT. I intend to.

Q. You intend to have that option. If an indictment is brought, would you grant a pardon before any trial took place?

THE PRESIDENT. I said at the outset that until the matter reaches me, I am not going to make any comment during the process of whatever charges are made.

ECONOMIC POLICIES

Q. Mr. President, two questions, related: How long will the transition last, in your opinion, and, secondly, how soon would it be proper and fair for Democrats on the campaign trail this fall to hold you accountable for the economic policy and the economic problems the country faces?

THE PRESIDENT. Well, I can't judge what the Democrats are going to say about my policies. They have been very friendly so far and very cooperative. I think it is a fair statement that our problems domestically, our economic problems, are the joint responsibility of Government. As a matter of fact, I think the last poll indicated that most Americans felt that our difficulties were caused by Government action and that, of course, includes the President and the Democratic Congress. So, we are all in this boat together, along with labor and management and everybody else. I don't think making partisan politics out of a serious domestic problem is good politics.

FEDERAL PAY RAISE

Q. Mr. President, in your fight against inflation, what, if anything, do you intend to do about the next Federal pay raise?

THE PRESIDENT. I have made no judgment on that yet, the recommendation has not come to my desk.

SALT TALKS

Q. Mr. President, when do you expect the SALT talks to resume, and is there a disagreement over our position in the Pentagon and State Department and other agencies?

THE PRESIDENT. At the present time, there is an effort being made to bring the Department of Defense, the State Department, and any others together for a resolution of our, the United States, position regarding SALT Two. This decision will be made in a relatively near future. I don't think there are any basic difficulties that cannot be resolved internally within our Government. I believe that Secretary Kissinger is going to be meeting with representatives from the Soviet Union in the near future, I think in October, if my memory is correct, and we, of course, will then proceed on a timetable to try and negotiate SALT Two. I think a properly negotiated, effective strategic arms limitation agreement is in the best interests of ourselves, the Soviet Union, and a stable international situation.

FRANK CORMIER (Associated Press). Thank you, Mr. President.

NOTE: President Ford's first news conference was held at 2:30 p.m. on Wednesday, August 28, 1974, in the East Room at the White House. It was broadcast live on radio and television.

Emergency Assistance for Puerto Rico

Announcement of Emergency Declaration and Authorization of Federal Assistance Because of a Drought. August 29, 1974

The President today declared an emergency for the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico because of the impact of a drought. The President's action will permit the use of Federal funds in relief and recovery efforts in designated areas of the Commonwealth.

Dry conditions, which have existed in Puerto Rico for some time have reached a critical stage this year with a severe lack of rainfall. Pastures in the Commonwealth have been dying out because of the lack of moisture. The President's declaration of an emergency will provide a federally funded program of survival livestock feeding of cattle in order to maintain the herds of the Commonwealth. Federal officials will continue to monitor the situation to determine what other assistance may be made available.

Federal relief and recovery activities in Puerto Rico will be coordinated by the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, Department of Housing and Urban Development, under the direction of Administrator Thomas P.

Dunne. Mr. Dunne will designate the specific areas within the Commonwealth eligible for Federal assistance.

Mr. Thomas R. Casey, Regional Director for Federal Disaster Assistance, HUD Region II, will be designated as the Federal Coordinating Officer to work with the Commonwealth in providing Federal emergency assistance under the Disaster Relief Act of 1974, Public Law 93-288.

Public Works and AEC Appropriation Bill

Statement by the President Upon Signing H.R. 15155 Into Law, While Expressing Reservations About Certain of Its Provisions. August 29, 1974

I have signed H.R. 15155, a public works appropriations bill for fiscal year 1975 providing funds for water and power development, the Atomic Energy Commission, and related agencies and commissions.

The bill raises for one of the first times the question of how well the executive and legislative branches can cooperate in carrying out the new Congressional Budget Act of 1974. Under that act, a President who signs an appropriations bill but wishes to avoid spending all of the funds may either seek a rescission of appropriations or seek a deferral. In either case, the President's action requires the concurrence of the Congress.

This public works bill is troublesome because it would increase the 1975 outlays by $80 million above the budget and would commit us to major outlay increases in future years. I am strongly opposed to those increases because they would intensify our number one problem—inflation.

Nonetheless, I also recognize that this bill is the product of much hard work and deliberation and contains funds for many worthy projects. A veto would commit us to the time-consuming process of reformulating a public works appropriations bill at a time when our energies should be focused on more pressing matters.

After discussions with Congressional leaders, I have therefore decided to sign this bill with the hope and expectation that under the budget act, the Congress will work in cooperation with the executive branch to defer for one full year the expenditure of that amount of appropriated funds which would contribute excessively to inflationary governmental spending.

I am totally committed to close cooperation between the Congress and the Executive, and I know that this spirit will continue to prevail as we work together to halt the inflationary spiral.

NOTE: As enacted, the Public Works for Water and Power Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1975 (H.R. 15155) is Public Law 93-393, approved August 28, 1974.

Council on Wage and Price Stability

Statement by the President Announcing the Appointment of the Chairman and Seven Members. August 29, 1974

Last Saturday, when I signed the legislation creating a Council on Wage and Price Stability, I said that Washington must provide prompt and aggressive action in the fight against inflation.

Today I want to move forward in that fight by appointing the members of the new council and asking them to begin work as quickly as possible. I am asking Mr. Kenneth Rush, my Counsellor for Economic Policy, to serve as Chairman of the Council. I am also asking seven other members of the Administration to serve as members of the group:

WILLIAM SIMON, Secretary of the Treasury
EARL BUTZ, Secretary of Agriculture
FREDERICK DENT, Secretary of Commerce
PETER BRENNAN, Secretary of Labor
ROY ASH, Director of the Office of Management and Budget
VIRGINIA KNAUER, Special Assistant to the President for Consumer Affairs, and ANNE ARMSTRONG, Counsellor to the President

In the near future, I also intend to set up an advisory committee to the Council, drawing upon the best talent we can find in labor and industry.

One of my first acts as President was to ask that this Council be established. It is a tribute to the Congress that the necessary legislation reached my desk in less than 2 weeks. That is the kind of responsible leadership we can and must provide. Let me reemphasize, however, that the new wage and price council is not a forerunner of new wage and price controls. Americans have learned from experience that controls are not the answer to our economic troubles.

In the next few weeks, as we engage in a series of economic summit meetings here in Washington, I hope we can determine just what the best answers are. But one thing is already clear: There will be no instant miracles. This is an uphill struggle. We're all in it together. We must be tough with ourselves, we must be ready for sacrifices, and we must be prepared to stick it out over the long haul.

But I am certain that if we work together and if we summon the same courage and wisdom that built America, then we can lick inflation and put our economic house in order.

NOTE: For the President's remarks and statement upon signing the bill establishing the Council, see page 1065 of this issue.

OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY

The President's Remarks at the University's Summer Commencement Exercises in Columbus, Ohio. August 30, 1974

President Enarson, President Flemming, Governor Gilligan, Senator Metzenbaum, Congressman Sam Devine, Congressman Chalmers Wylie, Mr. Mayor, honored graduates, members of your family, and friends and guests:

It is a very great privilege and an exceedingly high honor to participate in this wonderful graduation ceremony. And at the outset, may I congratulate each and every one of the graduates.

But if I might add, I think, appropriate congratulations to the members of your family—husbands, wives, mothers, fathers, and others who have done so much to make it possible for you to be here on this wonderful occasion.

And I think it is appropriate also that we add a special tribute to the members of the faculty who have likewise contributed to this very wonderful occasion.

So much has happened in the few months since you were so very kind to ask me to participate on this occasion. I was then America's first instant Vice President—and now, America's first instant President. The United States Marine Band is so confused they don't know whether to play "Hail to the Chief" or "You've Come a Long Way, Baby."

Obviously, it is a very great honor for me to be at Ohio State University, sometimes known as the Land of the Free and the Home of Woody Hayes. I met Woody at the airport. We just had our picture taken together, and when the picture appears in today's Dispatch, I am pretty sure what the caption will say: "Woody Hayes—and Friend."

As many of you know, I have had a great interest in football for a good many years. I played center for the University of Michigan, and I still remember my senior year back in 1934. The Wolverines played Ohio in Columbus, and we lost 34 to 0. And to make it even worse, we lost seven out of our eight ball games. But what really hurt was that my teammates, after the end of the season, voted me the most valuable player. I didn't know whether to smile or sue. [Laughter]

But I want you to know that I have a great feeling of kinship with this graduating class. I understand that you have all taken your final examinations this week. As your new President, I feel like I am just beginning mine. They are tough, both at home and abroad, but we will make it. Instead of dwelling on how my team lost here in Columbus in 1934, I would prefer to advance the clock to 1974 and talk about winning against the odds that confront today's graduates and all America.

The first of these problems is summed up by the editor of your campus newspaper. She reports that the one dominant question in the minds of this year's graduates is very simple: How can I get a job that makes sense as well as money?

Your professors tell you that education unlocks creative genius and imagination and that you must develop your human potential. And students have accepted this. But then Catch 22 enters the picture. You spend 4 years in school, graduate, go into the job market, and are told that the rules have changed, there is no longer a demand for your specialty—another educational discipline is now required.

And so one or two more years of study inevitably follows, and you again return to the job market. Yes, what you now offer is salable except that competition is very tough. To succeed you must acquire further credentials so you go back to the university and ultimately emerge with a master's or even a Ph.D.

And you know what happens next? You go out and look for a job and now they say you are overqualified.

In one form or another, this is a Three Shell Game. Our society has been playing tricks with our greatest natural energy source—that is you. And this has got to stop.

Although this Administration will not make promises it cannot keep, I do want to pledge one thing to you here and now. I will do everything in my power to bring education and employers together in a new climate of credibility—an atmosphere in which universities turn out scholars and employers turn them on.

Ever since President Abraham Lincoln initiated the concept of land grant colleges, set up to bring educators closer to the people and students closer to the land, the Federal Government has been interested in the practical application of education.

Take the example of Project Independence. Frankly, I am not satisfied with the progress we are making toward energy independence by 1980. However, this is a problem that I can appropriately discuss at a Labor Day weekend commencement. It concerns both the academic community and our great labor organizations.

I am not speaking of gasoline for a Labor Day trip to the lake or the seashore. I am speaking of fuel and raw materials for our factories which are threatened by shortages and high costs. Skills and intellect must harmonize so that the wheels of industry not only hum but sing.

I propose a great new partnership of labor and educators. Why can't the universities of America open their doors wide to working men and women, not only as students but as teachers. Practical problem-solvers can contribute much to education, whether or not they hold degrees. The fact of the matter is that education is being strangled—by degrees.

I want to see labor open its ranks to researchers and problem-solvers of the campuses whose research can give better tools and methods to the workman. I want to see a two-way street speeding the traffic of scientific development, speeding the creation of new jobs, speeding the day of independence in energy, and speeding an era of increased production for America and the world.

What good is training if it is not applied to jobs? What good are factories if they are shut down? What good is business and industry without those who solve their problems, perform their jobs, and spend their paychecks?

Next year, I will ask Congress to extend two laws which are expiring. One provides for higher education, the other for vocational education. Both are essential because we need new jobs and we need new skills, academically as well as vocationally.

Your Government will help you create a vocational environment responsive to our needs, but the Government cannot achieve personal fulfillment for each of you. You, in this case, are the essential ingredient. Your determination, your dedication, your will will make the significant difference.

For you, the time has come to test the theories of the academic world in the laboratory of life. As President, I invite students and graduates and faculties to contribute their energies and their genius to the solution of massive problems facing America. I invite your ideas and your initiatives in fighting inflation, in providing realistic education, in making sure our free enterprise system continues to give freedom as well as enterprise.

Show us how to increase productivity. Show us how to combine new lifestyles with old responsibilities. Show us how universities can work with industry and labor unions to devise a whole new community of learning across this great land. Show us how work-study programs can become a part of the ongoing educational process. Show us how new skills can improve technology while humanizing its use.

A French statesman once observed that war is much too important to be left to generals. Our Nation's future is far too important to be left only to Presidents or other officials of the Federal Government.

I like the phrase of a former great President, Theodore Roosevelt: "The Government is us; we are the Government, you and I." Oh yes, your vote and your voice are essential, as essential as mine, if each American is to take individual responsibility for our collective future.

As you move into that job that makes sense and money to you—and you will find it—you move from a position of strength. With the war over and the draft ended, your duty now to your country is to enlist in the campaigns currently being waged against our urgent domestic threats, especially inflation which is public enemy number one.

Abroad, we are seeking new peaceful relationships, not only with the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China but with all peoples—industrial, underdeveloped nations, every nation, if we possibly can. There will be continuity in our foreign policy and continued realism in our self-defense.

At home the Government must help people in doing things they cannot achieve as individuals. Accordingly, I have asked the Secretaries of Commerce, Labor, and HEW to report to me new ways to bring the world of work and the institutions of education closer together. For your Government as well as you, the time has come for a fusion of the realities of a work-a-day life with the teachings of academic institutions.

As a starter, the Department of Labor will shortly announce a pilot program to improve occupational information for graduates and others in making career choices. There will be grants for State and local initiatives to provide data on occupations available and to help channel the potential employees into positions which are not only personally satisfying but financially rewarding.

The States have always assumed the primary responsibility for public education. That tradition in my judgment is very sound and Ohio State University and my alma mater, the University of Michigan, are excellent examples. But there is now too much confusion about which level of Government is to play which role in post-secondary education.

I am directing the responsible agencies of the Federal Government to make a new evaluation of where we are, where we want to go, and where we can reasonably expect to be 5 years from now.

Discussions will be held with Governors, State legislators, academic leaders, Federal officials, and the consumers of education.

Our goal of quality education is on a collision course with the escalating demands for the public dollar. Everyone must have a clearer understanding and a clearer agreement on who is responsible for the specific aspects of the direction and the financing of a college education.

Oftentimes our Federal Government tries to do too much and unfortunately achieves too little. There are, for example, approximately 380 separate Federal educational programs beyond the high school level, some duplicating others, administered by some 50 separate executive agencies. The result inevitably is a bureaucracy that often provides garbled guidelines instead of taut lifelines to good and available jobs.

But let us look for a moment beyond the campus and beyond Washington.

In 1972, I was fortunate to visit the People's Republic of China. With four times the population of the United States, a nation growing at the rate of two New York Cities every 12 months, that vast nation is making very significant technological progress. From a personal observation as well as by records, you can see the Chinese productivity is gaining momentum, and the majority of the Chinese on the mainland today are young people, highly motivated, extremely well disciplined.

As fellow human beings, we celebrate the rising capacities of the Chinese nation, a people with a firm belief in their own destiny.

However, as Americans, motivated by free competition, we see a distant challenge. And I believe all Americans welcome that challenge.

We must compete internationally not only to maintain the balance of trade in our standard of living but to offer to the world's impoverished, examples and opportunities for a better life. We should do that for humane and for perhaps even self interest.

Let this peaceful competition, however, animate the last quarter of the 20th century. And I am confident that America's youth will make the difference. You are America's greatest untapped source of energy. But energy unused is energy wasted.

It is my judgment that we must make extraordinary efforts to apply our know-how, our capital, our technology, and our human resources to increase productivity at a faster rate. Unfortunately, inflation is creating a national state of public anxiety. Productivity, yours as well as mine, must improve if we are to have less of an inflationary economy. In the long run, it is the only way that we can raise wages without inflationary price increases. It is essential in creating new jobs and increasing real wages. In a growing economy, everyone, labor, management, and the consumer, wins when productivity expands.

At this very moment of America's history, we have the knowledge and the material resources to do almost anything that any one of us, or all of us collectively, can imagine. We can explore the depths of the oceans. We can put a man on the moon. We can reach for the stars.

But great problems confront us here on earth. To face these problems, we need even more than technology, we need more than programs.

We need a belief in ourselves. We need the will, the dedication, the discipline to take action.

Let us take a new look at ourselves as Americans. Let us draw from every resource available. Let us seek a real partnership between the academic community and the rest of our society. Let us aspire to excellence in every aspect of our national life.

Now, may I close with a word between friends? Sometimes deep feelings can get lost in words. I don't want that to happen here today. And so I would like to share with you something that I feel very deeply: The world is not a lonely place. There is light and life and love enough for all of us. And I ask you, and all Americans, to reach out to join hands with me—and together we will seek it out.

Thank you very much.

PRESENTATION OF HONORARY DEGREE

DR. HAROLD ENARSON (President, Ohio State University). Gerald Rudolph Ford, plain spoken man from Michigan, effective leader for your party in the Congress, skilled conciliator of conflict, you have accepted the responsibility and the opportunities, the joys and the burdens of the Presidency.

We honor you for exalting in your person those distinctive virtues of an earlier America—directness in speech and conduct, tolerance and compassion, honesty and integrity in matters large and small.

We honor you above all, in our season of renewed hope, for the first steps in restoring to the people of these United States confidence in leadership, hope in the political process, and the promise that once again all of us can begin to believe.

You have revived that which is most basic to a free society—a belief in the value of belief itself.

In the name of the Ohio State University and by the authority of its Board of Trustees, I hereby confer upon you the degree Doctor of Laws honoris causa and in testimony thereof (interrupted by applause).

[At this point, the ceremony continued with the presentation of six Ohio State University Distinguished Service Awards. Dr. Enarson then resumed speaking.]

Ladies and gentlemen, Mr. President, you have honored each of us in ways which I doubt you can fully imagine by your presence with us here today.

I am sure we all realize the awesome demands on the time of the Nation's busiest man, and I am sure I speak for every graduate and for every person in the audience in thanking you for sharing your thoughts and your time with us.

Mr. President, before you and your associates leave, I remind you that Ohio State can always be counted on for a trick play, and I would remind you, sir, that in addition to being a Wolverine, you are now an Ohio Buckeye, certified.

And I note in the newspapers that you have been offered invitations to the Michigan-Ohio State University game on November 23 by a lot of people, some of whom do not have tickets themselves.

I just want to say, Mr. President, that since the President of the United States is, by definition, the servant of all the people, I would like to present to you two tickets for you to take home to Mrs. Ford, and I will be writing Mrs. Ford separately.

THE PRESIDENT. President Enarson, obviously I am deeply grateful and most indebted to you. I won't tell this audience who I will be rooting for. I don't want to go from the White House to the doghouse so quickly.

Somehow I learned indirectly, and I don't know the source, that I might be the beneficiary of Ohio State's generosity this morning, and this information came to me late, late yesterday afternoon, just as Henry Kissinger and I were breaking up a meeting talking about some foreign policy matter, and I told Secretary Kissinger that I was coming out to Columbus for this game. And I could see a light sort of get in his eye, and I said, "Well, Henry, would you and Nancy like to join us?"

And I'll tell you the answer came very quickly.

I told that to President Enarson this morning and he said he would try to scrounge up a couple of extra tickets. But you know there might be an extra dividend. Having Henry here on November 23 might give a very unique opportunity. If Henry Kissinger can successfully negotiate the long-standing disputes between the Israelis and the Arab nations, he might have an opportunity to do it between Woody Hayes and Bo Schembechler.

Thank you.

NOTE: The President spoke at 10:11 a.m. in St. John Arena at Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.

Digest of Other White House Announcements

Following is a listing of items of general interest which were announced to the press during the period covered by this issue but which are not carried elsewhere in the issue.

August 26

Counsellor Kenneth Rush, Chairman of the Steering Committee of the Summit Conference on Inflation, and L. William Seidman, Executive Director of the Conference, met with the President at the White House.

The President met with the Cabinet at the White House to discuss plans for the Summit Conference on Inflation which will be held September 27 and 28. Following the meeting, the President met with Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger.

The White House announced that the Chinese People's Institute of Foreign Affairs of the People's Republic of China has invited a bipartisan Congressional delegation to visit China for 2 weeks beginning September 2. The delegation will be headed by Senator J. William Fulbright and Representative Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen and will include Senators Hiram L. Fong and Hubert H. Humphrey and Representatives William S. Broomfield, Barbara Jordan, and Clement J. Zablocki.

The White House announced that Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin has accepted the President's invitation to meet in Washington during the first half of September.

Max Fisher, of Detroit, Mich., called on the President to discuss the Summit Conference on Inflation and Mr. Fisher's upcoming visit to Israel.

Former Governor William W. Scranton met with the President at the White House.

August 27

The President participated in a portion of the White House prayer group breakfast.

Vasile Pungan, Counselor to President Ceausescu of Romania, met with President Ford at the White House. Counselor Pungan conveyed a message from President Ceausescu inviting President Ford to visit Romania. President Ford has accepted the invitation in principle.

The President met at the White House with a group of economic advisers to discuss the housing situation and to continue discussion on plans for the Summit Conference on Inflation. Participating in the meeting were: Counsellor to the President Kenneth Rush, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, HUD Secretary James T. Lynn, OMB Director Roy L. Ash, Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the Federal Reserve Board, Chairman-designate Alan Greenspan of the Council of Economic Advisers, and L. William Seidman, Executive Director of the Summit Conference on Inflation.

President Giovanni Leone of Italy has accepted President Ford's invitation to visit the United States beginning September 25.

David L. Hale, of Little Rock, Ark., president of the United States Jaycees, called on the President at the White House.

The White House announced that Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka of Japan will meet with the President at the White House on September 21.

August 28

Edward Gierek, First Secretary of the Polish United Workers Party, has accepted the President's invitation to visit the United States beginning October 8.

The White House announced that Robert W. Miller, Senior Assistant Administrator of the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration, has been named Deputy Executive Director of the Summit Conference on Inflation.

Secretary of the Interior Rogers C. B. Morton met with the President.

Secretary of the Treasury William E. Simon, Secretary of the Interior Rogers C. B. Morton, and Administrator John C. Sawhill of the Federal Energy Administration met with the President to discuss Project Independence.

Former Governor William W. Scranton met with the President.

The President and Mrs. Ford hosted a dinner at the White House for members of the Cabinet. Also attending the dinner were senior White House Staff members and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

August 29

The President and Mrs. Ford greeted a group of top-level women appointees in the Administration who were meeting in the Cabinet Room.

Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz met with the President to discuss the domestic and world food situation and to discuss plans for the World Food Conference to be held in Rome November 5 to 16 under the sponsorship of the United Nations. The President has designated Secretary Butz as Chairman of the U.S. delegation to the conference.

United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock met with President Ford at the White House.

A group of State legislative leaders met with the President to discuss Federal-State relationships.

Saudi Arabian Foreign Minister 'Umar al-Saqqaf met with the President at the White House.

Mexican Foreign Minister Emilio Rabasa met with the President at the White House.

Herbert G. Klein, of Los Angeles, Calif., called on the President.

August 30

The President left Washington for a trip to Columbus, Ohio, to address summer commencement exercises at Ohio State University. Following his remarks, the President went to the Port Columbus Airport where he met with Ohio Republican leaders. He then returned to Washington.

Chairman Dixy Lee Ray of the Atomic Energy Commission met with the President at the White House.

Officers of the American Medical Association met with the President to discuss health insurance legislation and to report to the President on their recent trip to the People's Republic of China.

Leaders of major youth organizations in America met with the President at the White House.

The President met with Harold F. Eberle, Jr., who is retiring as Assistant to the Director for Congressional Relations in the Office of Management and Budget.

CORRECTION:

The entry on August 23, 1974, concerning the First Lady's staff, as reported in the issue of August 26, 1974, should have read: The White House announced that Mrs. Ford has asked Helen McCain Smith and Lucy Alexander Winchester to remain on the First Lady's staff as Press Secretary and Social Secretary, respectively.

CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES

The following releases of the Office of the White House Press Secretary, distributed during the period covered by this issue, are not included in the issue.

Released August 24, 1974

Fact sheet: Council on Wage and Price Stability Act

Released August 26, 1974

News conference: on the Summit Conference on Inflation—by L. William Seidman, Executive Director, Summit Conference on Inflation

Released August 29, 1974

News conference: following his meeting with the President—by Leonard Woodcock, president, United Auto Workers

News conference: following the President's meeting with a group of State legislative leaders—by Charles F. Kurfess, immediate past president, Martin O. Sabo, president-elect, and Tom Jensen, vice president, National Legislative Conference; and James H. Cavanaugh, Deputy Director, Domestic Council

Released August 30, 1974

News conference: following the President's meeting with leaders of major youth organizations—by Kenneth Smith, Distributive Education Clubs of America, and Geraldine Sumter, 4-H Clubs

NOMINATIONS SUBMITTED TO THE SENATE

NOTE: The Congress being in recess, no nominations were submitted to the Senate during the period covered by this issue.

ACTS APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT

Approved August 23, 1974

S. 3331..... Public Law 93-386
Small Business Amendments of 1974.

S. 3782..... Public Law 93-385
An act to amend the Public Health Service Act to extend through fiscal year 1975 the scholarship program for the National Health Service Corps and the loan program for health professions students.

S.J. Res. 66..... Public Law 93-384
Joint resolution to authorize the erection of a monument to the dead of the First Infantry Division, United States Forces in Vietnam.

Approved August 24, 1974

H.R. 7218..... Public Law 93-388
Holding Company System Regulatory Act.

H.R. 11108..... Public Law 93-389
An act to extend for three years the District of Columbia Medical and Dental Manpower Act of 1970.

S. 3919..... Public Law 93-387
Council on Wage and Price Stability Act.

Approved August 27, 1974

S. 2957..... Public Law 93-390
Overseas Private Investment Corporation Amendments Act of 1974.

ACTS APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT—Continued

Approved August 28, 1974

H.R. 15155..... Public Law 93-393
Public Works for Water and Power Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1975.

H.R. 15405..... Public Law 93-391
Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1975.

S. 3190..... Public Law 93-392
An act to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 1975 for carrying out the Board for International Broadcasting Act of 1973.

Approved August 29, 1974

H.R. 10044..... Public Law 93-396
An act to increase the amount authorized to be expended to provide facilities along the border for the enforcement of the customs and immigration laws.

H.R. 14402..... Public Law 93-397
An act to amend section 8202(a) of title 10, United States Code, to extend for two years the period during which the authorized number for the grades of lieutenant colonel and colonel in the Air Force are increased.

H.R. 15791..... Public Law 93-395
An act to amend section 204(g) of the District of Columbia Self-Government and Governmental Reorganization Act, and for other purposes.

H.R. 15936..... Public Law 93-394
An act to amend chapter 5, title 37, United States Code, to provide for continuation pay for physicians of the uniformed services in initial residency.

CUMULATIVE INDEX TO PRIOR ISSUES

Third Quarter, 1974

[See Index of Contents for Documents in this Issue]

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon

ABM. See Anti-ballistic missile systems
Acts approved. See last page of text in each issue

Addresses and Remarks of the President

Ash, Roy L., dinner honoring the President..... 819
 Belgium, visit..... 718, 727, 728, 732
 Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, signing ceremony..... 799
 Economy, national, address to Nation..... 830
 Farewell remarks to Cabinet and White House Staff..... 1019
 French gift for the American Revolution Bicentennial, exchange of remarks with French Ambassador Jacques Koscziusko-Morizet..... 796
 Loring Air Force Base, Maine, report to Nation on Soviet visit..... 768
 Lowman, Dr. Charles LeRoy, Medal of Freedom presentation..... 997
 National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency..... 813
 People's Republic of China, martial arts and acrobatic troupe visit to the White House..... 801
 Resignation, address to Nation..... 1014
 Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, visit..... 718, 727, 735, 742, 744, 748, 766
 United States Space Week, 1974..... 815
 Vice President Gerald R. Ford, remarks following President's resignation announcement..... 1018

Administrative Conference of the United States, Chairman..... 1003, 1005
 Adult Education, National Advisory Council on..... 1021
 Agriculture, Department of
 Appropriations, veto..... 1014
 Secretary..... 796, 799, 803, 1000
 Albrecht, Richard R..... 804
 Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration..... 806, 818
 Alsop, Donald D..... 1022
 American Revolution Bicentennial, French gift..... 796, 797, 804
 Annenberg, Walter H..... 817
 Anthony, Robert Armstrong..... 1003, 1005
 Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocols to treaty on the limitation of..... 750, 756
 Antigua, U.S. Special Representative..... 994

Appointments and Nominations

Administrative Conference of the United States, Chairman..... 1003, 1005
 Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, Administrator..... 806, 818
 Ambassador, U.S., to Syria..... 999, 1005
 Corporation for Public Broadcasting, Board of Directors, members..... 1010, 1022
 Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman..... 828, 995
 Council on International Economic Policy, Executive Director..... 788, 804
 Federal Aviation Administration, Deputy Administrator..... 817, 995
 Federal Energy Administration
 Assistant Administrator..... 789, 804
 General Counsel..... 789, 804
 Office of Intergovernmental and Regional Relations, Director..... 839, 1005

Appointments and Nominations—Continued

Federal Regional Councils, Chairmen..... 829
 Foreign Claims Settlement Commission
 Chairman..... 793
 Members..... 804, 839, 1005
 Interior Department
 Assistant Secretary..... 838, 1005
 United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Director..... 838, 1005
 International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission..... 1021
 Justice Department, Assistant Attorney General..... 998, 1005
 Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, Administrator..... 999, 1005
 National Commission for the Observation of World Population Year, 1974, members..... 798
 National Corporation for Housing Partnerships, Board of Directors, member..... 1022
 Office of Economic Opportunity, Director..... 807, 1005
 President's Commission on White House Fellowships, members..... 830
 Securities and Exchange Commission, member..... 806, 818
 State Department
 Assistant Inspector General, Foreign Assistance..... 830
 Assistant Secretary..... 1002, 1005
 Treasury Department
 Deputy Secretary..... 804
 General Counsel..... 804
 U.S. attorney, Texas..... 804
 U.S. circuit judge, 2d circuit..... 804, 1022
 U.S. Court of Military Appeals
 Associate judge..... 1003, 1005
 Chief judge, withdrawal of prior nomination..... 1022
 U.S. district judges
 Georgia..... 804
 Minnesota..... 1022
 U.S. marshals
 California..... 804
 Louisiana..... 803, 818
 White House Staff
 Deputy Assistant..... 795
 Special Assistant..... 816

Appropriations bill, veto..... 1014
 Arends, Repr. Leslie C..... 802
 Argentina, President Juan Domingo Peron, death..... 771
 Armed Forces, United States..... 729, 731
 Arms control and disarmament..... 750, 751, 753, 755, 756, 763, 764, 769
 Armstrong, Anne L..... 802, 815
 Army, Department of the, Assistant Secretary..... 802
 Arnett, Alvin J..... 817
 Ash, Roy L..... 802, 804, 817, 819, 994
 Atlantic Relations, Declaration on..... 729, 731
 Atomic Energy Commission..... 1009, 1021
 Augelli, Anthony T..... 1004

Awards and Citations

Presidential Medal of Freedom..... 997, 1005
 Baker, Repr. LaMar..... 802
 Balaguer, Joaquin..... 1021
 Barbados, U.S. Ambassador to..... 994
 Baudouin I, King..... 728, 732, 790

Belgium
 King Baudouin I..... 728, 732, 790
 President's visit
 Arrival in Brussels..... 728
 Declaration of Atlantic Relations..... 729, 731
 Departure from Washington..... 718, 727
 Luncheon in Brussels..... 732
 Prime Minister Leo Tindermans..... 790
 Bell, J. Raymond..... 793, 804
 Berg, Eugene E..... 802
 Bicentennial, American Revolution..... 796, 797, 804

Bill Signings

Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, remarks and statement..... 799, 800
 Department of Defense Appropriations Authorization Act, 1975, statement..... 1007
 Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974, statement..... 838
 Birknes, John A..... 804
 Bisplinghoff, Raymond L..... 1021
 Bohanon, Luther..... 1004
 Brandy imports..... 807
 Brennan, Peter J..... 802
 Brezhnev, L. I..... 735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
 Broadcasting, Corporation for Public..... 1010, 1022
 Budget, federal spending..... 799, 800, 821, 832, 1014
 Budget, Office of Management and. See Management and Budget, Office of Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, Congressional..... 799, 800, 804
 Burch, Dean..... 791, 802, 995
 Burnham, D.C..... 830
 Burns, Arthur F..... 802
 Business and industry, cooperation with U.S.S.R..... 741, 759, 791
 Butz, Earl L..... 803

Cabinet
 Meetings with the President..... 802, 1021
 President's farewell remarks..... 1019
 California, U.S. marshal..... 804
 Callaghan, James..... 999
 Captive Nations Week, 1974..... 801
 Carlos, Prince Juan..... 814
 Carlson, Jack W..... 838, 1005
 Cary, Frank..... 794
 Casey, Thomas R..... 828, 829
 Central Intelligence Agency..... 1008
 Checklist of unpublished releases. See last page of text in each issue
 China, People's Republic of, Wushu Troupe, visit to the White House..... 801
 Civil defense medical and food stockpiles..... 798
 Claims Settlement Commission, Foreign..... 793, 804, 839, 1005
 Clements, William P., Jr..... 1012
 Coffee Agreement, International..... 796
 Cole, Kenneth R., Jr..... 830
 Colombia
 President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen, inauguration..... 994
 U.S. Ambassador to..... 994
 Combined Federal Campaign..... 1012
 Commerce, Department of, Secretary..... 788, 1000

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon—Continued

Commercial Commission, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics	741	Credit Corporation, Commodity Cultural exchanges, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	1004	Executive Orders
Commodity Credit Corporation	1004	Curtis, Sen. Carl T.	802	Civil defense medical and food stockpiles (EO 11794)	798
Congress		Customs Service, United States	1008	Disaster relief functions (EO 11795) ..	799
House of Representatives, Judiciary Committee -- 791, 818, 822, 840, 995, 1008		Cyprus	817, 819, 999	Exports, regulation of (EO 11796) ..	999
Meetings with the President		Dean, Dizzy	813	Federal facilities in rural areas, report (EO 11797)	1000
Bipartisan leadership	802, 1012, 1021	DeBaca, Fernando E. C.	816	Secretary of Agriculture (EO 11793) ..	796
Republican leaders	802, 1010	Defense, Department of		Exports, regulation	999
Sequoia meetings	802	Appropriation authorization	1007	Fabiola, Queen	790
Senate, Foreign Relations Committee	807	Deputy Secretary	1012	Federal Aviation Administration, Deputy Administrator	817, 995
Congress, Communications to		Secretary	799	Federal Bureau of Investigation	1006
See also Veto Messages and Memoranda of Disapproval		Defense Appropriation Authorization Act	1007	Federal employees. See Government employees
Commodity Credit Corporation, annual report transmittal	1004	Defense spending. See under Economy, national		Federal Energy Administration
Cost of Living Task Force, message. Government executive development, message	1002	Dent, Frederick B.	788	Administrator	788
Government services to rural areas, annual report transmittal	1021	Digest of other White House announcements. See last pages of text in each issue		Assistant Administrator	789, 804, 1004
Hazardous Materials Transportation Control Act of 1970, annual report transmittal	802	Disarmament. See Arms control and disarmament		General Counsel	789, 804
International Coffee Agreement, annual report transmittal	796	Disaster assistance, States receiving		Office of Intergovernmental and Regional Relations, Director	839, 1005
International Maritime Traffic Convention, amended text transmittal ..	998	Minnesota	805	Federal Regional Councils, Chairmen ..	829
National Advisory Council on Adult Education, annual report transmittal ..	1021	New York	829	Federal Reserve System
National Heart and Lung Advisory Council, annual report transmittal ..	998	Ohio	798	Board of Governors	802
National security investigations and wiretaps, letter to Chairman of Senate Foreign Relations Committee ..	807	Disaster relief functions	799	Monetary restraint	833
Telegraph and telephone regulations, transmittal to Senate	1007	District of Columbia, National Guard, Commanding General	802	Federal spending. See Budget; Economy, national
Trade agreements program, annual report transmittal	1012	Doar, John M.	824, 825	Fisheries Commission, International Pacific Salmon	1021
Urban transportation policies and activities, annual report transmittal ..	1001	Domestic Council	802	Food, civil defense stockpiles	798
World Weather Program, annual report transmittal	1001	Dominica, U.S. Special Representative ..	994	Ford, Vice President Gerald R.	766, 802, 817, 818, 1012, 1015, 1018
Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974	799, 800, 804	Dominican Republic		Foreign Claims Settlement Commission	793, 804, 839, 1005
Connor, Robert E.	798, 805	President Joaquin Balaguer, inauguration	1021	Foreman, Ed.	829
Conservation, forest products and resources	1000	U.S. Ambassador to	1021	Forest Products Week, 1974, National ..	1000
Construction, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	739, 761, 791	Donovan, Eileen R.	994	France
Construction, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in Housing and Other	739, 761	Doub, William O.	1021	Bicentennial gift	796, 797, 804
Cook, William Holmes	1003, 1005	Dow, James E.	817, 995	President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing ..	797
Cooperation in Europe, Conference on Security and	757	Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, Alcohol	806, 818	Fulbright, Sen. J. William	807
Coors, Joseph	1010, 1022	Drug Abuse, Strategy Council on	1021	Gallegos, Bert A.	807, 1006
Corporation for Public Broadcasting ..	1010, 1022	DuPont, Dr. Robert L., Jr.	806, 818	Gardner, Stephen S.	804
Cortina, Pedro Mauri	814	Eberle, William D.	788, 804	GATT. See General Agreements on Tariffs and Trade
Cost of Living Task Force, proposed ..	1002, 1005	Economic Advisers, Council of, Chairman	802, 815, 817, 818, 828, 995	Geimer, William W.	839, 1005
Council. See other part of title		Economic cooperation with U.S.S.R.	741, 759, 791	General Agreements on Tariffs and Trade	1013
Courts, United States		Economic Opportunity, Office of, Director	807, 817, 1005	Geneva Peace Conference on the Middle East	788
U.S. attorney, Texas	804	Economic Policy, Council on International, Executive Director	788, 804	Genscher, Hans-Dietrich	994
U.S. circuit judge, 2d circuit	804, 1022	Economy, national		Georgia, U.S. district judge	804
U.S. Court of Military Appeals		Address to Nation	830	Germany, Federal Republic of
Associate judge	1003, 1005	Cost of Living Task Force, proposed ..	1002	Chancellor Helmut Schmidt	790
Chief judge	1022	Defense spending	1007	Vice-Chancellor and Minister of Foreign Affairs Hans-Dietrich Genscher	994
U.S. district judges		Federal spending	799, 800, 821, 832, 1014	Gesell, Gerhard A.	802
Georgia	804	Inflation	800, 802, 821, 830, 1014	Ghana, U.S. Ambassador to	994
Minnesota	1022	Emergency Board No. 185, railway labor dispute	789	Giscard d'Estaing, Valéry	796, 797
New Jersey	1004	Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974	838	Goldwater, Sen. Barry	1010
Oklahoma	1004	Energy		Goodearle, Roy	803
U.S. marshals		Conservation	788	Government departments and agencies, energy conservation	788
California	804	Uranium supplies	1009	Government employees, executive development	808, 818
Louisiana	803, 818	U.S.S.R., cooperation with	737, 761, 791	Gray, L. Patrick III	1009
Massachusetts	804	Energy, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in the Field of	737, 761	Greece
		Energy Administration, Federal	788, 789, 839, 1004	Cyprus conflict	817, 820
		Environment		Prime Minister Konstantinos Karamanlis	994
		U.S.S.R., cooperation with	753, 762	Green, S. William	829
		U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint statement	753	Greenspan, Alan	828, 995
		World Weather Program	1001	Greenwalt, Lynn Adams	838, 1005
		Environmental Protection Agency, appropriations veto	1014	Gregg, Lucius Perry, Jr.	1010, 1022
		Environmental warfare	753, 765	Grenada, U.S. Special Representative ..	994
		Erbe, Norman A.	829	Griffin, Sen. Robert P.	802
		Erickson, William D.	1022	Gurfeln, Murray I.	804
		Europe		Habib, Philip C.	1002, 1006
		U.S. forces	729, 731	Hadden, A. Roby	804
		U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint communique	757	Hadsel, Fred L.	994
		European Economic Community, brandy imports	807	Haldeman, H. R.	1006

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon—Continued

Hartman, Arthur A.....	791	Joint Statements		Memorandums to Federal Agencies
Hays, David W.....	829	Union of Soviet Socialist Republics...	783	Combined Federal Campaign.....	1012
Hazardous materials transportation...	802	Jones, Sidney L.....	795	Mental Health Administration, Alcohol,
Health, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	740, 791	Judiciary Committee, House.....	791, 818, 822, 840, 995, 1006	Drug Abuse, and.....	806, 818
Health, Education, and Welfare, Department of		Justice, Department of		Meekill, Thomas J.....	1022
Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration. See Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration		Assistant Attorney General.....	996, 1005	Middle East
Secretary.....	802, 804	Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. See Law Enforcement Assistance Administration		North Atlantic Council meeting, remarks.....	781
Health Cooperation, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee for.....	740, 761	Special Prosecutor.....	1006	U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint communique.....	788
Heart and Lung Advisory Council, National.....	996	Karamanlis, Konstantinos.....	994	Military Appeals, U.S. Court of.....	1003, 1005, 1022
Heart research, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	740, 761, 791	Keene, Joseph W.....	803, 818	Milk, support price.....	842, 958, 963
Helms, Richard.....	1009	Kelly, Bernard.....	829	Minnesota
Herdson, Lillie E.....	1010, 1022	Key Biscayne, Fla.....	790, 802	Disaster assistance.....	805
Hodgson, James D.....	802	King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr.....	771	U.S. district judge.....	1022
Hogan, Repr. Lawrence J.....	995	Kissinger, Dr. Henry A.....	763, 791, 807, 814, 817, 1018, 1021	Missile systems, protocol to treaty on the limitation of anti-ballistic....	750, 756
Hosetetter, Amos B., Jr.....	1010, 1022	Klein, Herbert G.....	994	Mitchell, John N.....	842, 961
Housing, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	739, 761, 791	Kleindienst, Richard G.....	842, 951	Monagan, Robert T.....	1021
Housing and Other Construction, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in.....	739, 761	Korff, Baruch.....	813, 817, 818, 1021	Montgomery, Robert E., Jr.....	789, 804
Housing Partnerships, National Corporation for.....	1022	Kosciusko-Morizet, Jacques.....	796	Morton, Rogers C.B.....	802, 994
Housing and Urban Development, Department of, Secretary.....	799, 1006, 1005	Kosygin, A. N.....	740, 790	Mount Vernon, French sound and light spectacle for American Revolution Bicentennial.....	796, 797, 804
Hunt, E. Howard.....	841, 870	Labor, Department of, Secretary.....	802	Murphy, Richard W.....	994, 999, 1005
Hurwitch, Robert A.....	1021	Labor, railway dispute.....	789	National Advisory Council on Adult Education.....	1021
Iceland, Special Ambassador to 1100th anniversary.....	994	Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, Administrator.....	999, 1005	National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services.....	802
Immunity from prosecution.....	1011	Letters, Messages, Telegrams		National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency.....	818, 819, 1021
Impeachment inquiry		See also Congress, Communications to		National Commission for the Observance of World Population Year, 1974.....	798
See also Watergate investigation		Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman Herbert Stein, exchange of letters on resignation.....	815	National Corporation for Housing Partnerships.....	1022
Brief submitted to the House Judiciary Committee.....	840	French gift for the American Revolution Bicentennial, exchange of letters with French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing.....	797	National Forest Products Week, 1974.....	1000
Impeachable offense.....	826	Resignation, letter to the Secretary of State.....	1021	National Heart and Lung Advisory Council.....	996
Internal Revenue Service.....	842, 963	Livestock Credit Act of 1974, Emergency.....	838	National Science Foundation.....	1021
International Telephone and Telegraph.....	841, 945	Loomis, Philip A., Jr.....	806, 818	National Student Government Day, 1974.....	1010
Milk support price.....	842, 958, 963	Loring Air Force Base, Maine.....	766, 790	Natural resources, forests.....	1000
News conference by Special Counsel St. Clair.....	822	Louisiana, U.S. marshal.....	803, 818	New Jersey, U.S. district judge.....	1004
Presidential tapes and documents.....	822-828, 1006	Lowman, Dr. Charles LeRoy.....	997, 1005	New York, disaster assistance.....	829
Wiretaps.....	807, 841, 923	Lung Advisory Council, National Heart and.....	996	News Conferences Other Than Presidential
Imports, brandy.....	807	Luns, Joseph.....	728	Congressional support assessment, Republican Congressional leadership.....	1010
Impoundment Control Act of 1974, Congressional Budget and.....	799, 800, 804	Lynn, James T.....	1006, 1005	House Judiciary Committee impeachment inquiry, Special Counsel St. Clair.....	822
Independence Day, 1974.....	790	Management and Budget, Office of, Director.....	802, 804, 817, 819, 994	President's visit to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Secretary of State Kissinger.....	763
Industry. See Business and Industry.		Maritime Traffic Convention, International.....	996	Nominations submitted to the Senate. See last page of text in each issue
Interior, Department of the		Martinez, Samuel.....	829	North Atlantic Treaty Organization
Assistant Secretary.....	838, 1005	Massachusetts, U.S. marshal.....	804	Brussels meeting with North Atlantic Council.....	728, 731, 732, 769
Office of Oil and Gas, Associate Director.....	803	Mauritania, U.S. Ambassador to.....	994	Cyprus conflict.....	820
Secretary.....	802, 994	McAninch, Vernon D.....	994	Declaration on Atlantic Relations.....	729, 731
Under Secretary.....	802	Mead, Dana.....	802	Secretary General Joseph Luns.....	728
United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Director.....	838, 1005	Medals. See Awards and Citations		Nuclear powerplants.....	1009
Internal Revenue Service, impeachment inquiry.....	842, 963	Medical stockpiles for civil defense.....	798	Nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of underground.....	751
International Coffee Agreement.....	796	Meetings with Foreign Leaders		Office. See other part of title
International Economic Policy, Council on.....	788, 804	Belgium		Ohio, disaster assistance.....	798
International Maritime Traffic Convention.....	996	King Baudouin I.....	728, 732, 790	Oklahoma, U.S. district judge.....	1004
International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission.....	1021	Prime Minister Leo Tindermans.....	790	O'Neill, John Ellis.....	802
International Telephone and Telegraph.....	841, 945	Germany, Federal Republic of, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.....	790	Otis, Webster.....	829
Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor.....	790	Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor.....	790	Parker, Joseph O.....	1021
I.T.T. See International Telephone and Telegraph		Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Chairman N. V. Podgorny.....	790	People's Republic of China. See China, People's Republic of
		General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev.....	735, 748, 790	Peron, Juan Domingo.....	771
Jackson, Levi A.....	830	Premier A. N. Kosygin.....	790	Pettit, John Whitney.....	1010, 1022
Japan, U.S. Ambassador to.....	802	United Kingdom, Prime Minister Harold Wilson.....	790	Podgorny, N. V.....	739, 741, 790
Jenner, Albert E., Jr.....	824			Population control.....	798
Johnston, Donald A.....	994

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon—Continued

- Population Year, 1974, National Commission on the Observance of World... 798
- Post, Marjorie Meriweather... 802
- Presidency, National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the... 818, 818, 1021
- Presidential Medal of Freedom, Dr. Charles LeRoy Lowman... 997, 1005
- Presidential tapes and documents... 822-828, 1008
- President's Commission on White House Fellowships... 830, 1002
- President's travel
- Domestic
- Bel Air, Calif... 819, 994
- Los Angeles, Calif... 830
- Palm Beach, Fla... 802
- Foreign
- Belgium... 718, 727-735
- Union of Soviet Socialist Republics... 718, 735-771
- Proclamations
- Captive Nations Week, 1974 (Proc. 4302)... 801
- Imports of brandy (Proc. 4304)... 807
- National Forest Products Week, 1974 (Proc. 4305)... 1000
- National Student Government Day, 1974 (Proc. 4307)... 1010
- United Nations Day, 1974 (Proc. 4300)... 794
- United States Customs 185th Anniversary Year (Proc. 4306)... 1008
- United States Space Week, 1974 (Proc. 4303)... 805
- White Cane Safety Day, 1974 (Proc. 4301)... 794
- World Population Year, 1974 (Proc. 4299)... 793
- Railway labor-management dispute... 789
- Raven, Jack E... 829
- Reports to the President
- Emergency Board No. 185, railway labor dispute... 789
- Research, medical... 740, 761, 791
- Resignation, President's
- Address to Nation... 1014
- Letter to Secretary of State... 1021
- Possibility of... 1010
- Press Secretary Ziegler, remarks to reporters... 1018
- Resignations and Retirements
- Ambassadors
- Barbados... 994
- Ghana... 994
- Mauritania... 994
- Army Department, Assistant Secretary... 802
- Atomic Energy Commission, member... 1021
- Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman... 815
- District of Columbia, National Guard, Commanding General... 802
- Federal Energy Administration, Assistant Administrator... 1004
- National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services, member... 802
- National Science Foundation, Board member... 1021
- Office of Economic Opportunity, Director... 817
- Transportation Department, Assistant Secretary... 1021
- U.S. district judge
- New Jersey... 1004
- Oklahoma... 1004
- Rhodes, Repr. John J... 802, 1010
- Rural areas
- Federal facilities... 1000
- Government services, report transmittal... 1021
- Rush, Kenneth... 802, 804, 817, 995, 1002
- St. Christopher-Nevis-Anguilla, U.S. Special Representative... 994
- St. Clair, James D... 787
- 802, 804, 823, 829, 1008
- St. Lucia, U.S. Special Representative... 994
- St. Vincent, U.S. Special Representative... 994
- Saletic, William G... 1021
- SALT. See Strategic arms limitation
- San Clemente, Calif... 803, 994, 1004
- Sant, Roger West... 789, 804
- Sawhill, John C... 788
- Scalia, Antonin M... 998, 1005
- Schmidt, Helmut... 790
- Science and technology, cooperation with U.S.S.R... 737, 740, 741, 761, 791
- Scott, Sen. Hugh... 802, 1010
- Securities and Exchange Commission... 806, 818
- Security and Cooperation in Europe, Conference on... 787
- Sequoia meetings, with certain Members of Congress... 802
- Simon, William E... 802, 1004, 1005
- Sirica, John J... 1006
- Sisco, Joseph J... 817
- Smith, Elmer E... 829
- Smith, Wilfred J... 839, 1005
- Snyder, Daniel J., III... 829
- Southward, Maj. Gen. Charles L... 802
- Spaatz, Gen. Carl A... 807
- Space program, cooperation with U.S.S.R... 762
- Space Week, 1974, United States... 805, 815
- Spain
- Foreign Minister Pedro Mauri Cortina... 814
- Joint declaration of principles with U.S... 814
- Prince Juan Carlos... 814
- State, Department of
- Assistant Inspector General, Foreign Assistance... 830
- Assistant Secretaries... 791, 1002, 1005
- Secretary... 763, 791, 802, 807, 814, 817, 1018, 1021
- Under Secretary... 817
- Statements by the President
- Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, signing ceremony... 800
- Deaths
- Dean, Dixey... 813
- King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr... 771
- Peron, Juan Domingo... 771
- Spaatz, Gen. Carl A... 807
- Warren, Earl... 795
- Department of Defense Appropriation Authorization Act, 1975, bill signing... 1007
- Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974... 838
- Energy conservation... 788
- Independence Day, 1974... 790
- Joint declaration of principles between the United States and Spain... 814
- Supreme Court decision on Presidential tapes and documents... 829
- Tapes of Presidential conversations, release... 1008
- Statements Other Than Presidential
- Brussels meeting with the North Atlantic Council, Press Secretary Ziegler... 731
- Uranium supplies, Deputy Press Secretary Warren... 1009
- Stein, Herbert... 802, 815, 817, 818
- Strategic arms limitation... 750, 753, 755, 756, 763, 764, 769
- Strategy Council on Drug Abuse... 1021
- Student Government Day, 1974, National... 1010
- Supplementary Centers and Services, National Advisory Council on... 802
- Supreme Court of the United States... 772, 802, 822-829, 1006
- Surganov, F. A... 742
- Syria, U.S. Ambassador to... 999, 1005
- Tariff Commission, United States... 1021
- Taylor, Joseph Z... 830
- Technology. See Science and technology
- Telegraph and telephone regulations... 1007
- Texas, U.S. attorney... 804
- Tindermans, Leo... 790
- Trade
- Coffee... 798
- Multilateral negotiations... 1018
- Regulation of exports... 999
- Trade Reform Act, proposed... 1013
- Transportation
- Cooperation with U.S.S.R... 762
- Urban... 1001
- Transportation, Department of
- Assistant Secretary... 1021
- Federal Aviation Administration... 817, 995
- Treasury, Department of the
- Deputy Secretary... 804
- General Counsel... 804
- Secretary... 802, 1004, 1006
- United States Customs Service... 1006
- Treaties and other international agreements
- Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol to treaty on the limitation of... 750
- Declaration on Atlantic Relations... 729
- Economic, industrial, and technical cooperation agreement with U.S.S.R... 741
- Energy agreement with U.S.S.R... 737
- Heart research agreement with U.S.S.R... 740
- Housing and construction agreement with U.S.S.R... 739
- International Maritime Traffic Convention... 996
- Telegraph and telephone regulations... 1007
- Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of... 751
- Trione, Henry F... 1022
- Turkey, Cyprus conflict... 817, 829
- Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of... 751
- Union of Soviet Socialist Republics
- Agreements with U.S.
- Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol on the limitation of... 750, 756
- Construction... 739, 761, 791
- Economic, industrial, and technical... 741, 759, 791
- Energy... 737, 761, 791
- Heart research... 740, 761, 791
- Housing... 739, 761, 791
- Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of... 751
- Chairman N. V. Podgorny... 739, 741, 790
- General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev... 735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
- Joint statements... 753
- North Atlantic Council meeting, remarks... 731
- Premier A. N. Kosygin... 740, 790
- President's visit
- Address to the Soviet people... 744
- Departure from Washington... 718, 727
- Dinners in Moscow... 735, 748
- Luncheon in Minsk... 742
- News conference by Secretary of State Kissinger... 763

Index to Documents of the Administration of Gerald R. Ford

Acts approved. See last page of text in each issue

Addresses and Remarks of the President

Appointment of Press Secretary ter-Horst	1025
Chicago, Ill., O'Hare Field	1045
Congress
House of Representatives	1058
Joint Session	1029
Senate	1057
Davies, Rodger P., memorial ceremony honoring	1054
Education Amendments of 1974, bill signing	1055
Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, bill signing	1059
Mansfield, Sen. Mike, reception honoring	1063
Meeting with foreign leaders, Jordan, King Hussein I.	1039, 1041
Swearing-in ceremony	1023
Veterans of Foreign Wars	1045
Vice President of the United States, selection of nominee	1050, 1051
AFL-CIO	1041
Aging, National Council on the	1064
Agriculture, Department of, Under Secretary	1064
Alloto, Joseph	1042
Ambassadors
Foreign presentation of credentials, visits, etc.	1028, 1062, 1063
United States. See Appointments and Nominations; Resignations and Retirements; countries to which assigned
American Junior Miss	1063
American National Red Cross	1039
Amnesty for draft evaders and deserters	1047
Animal health research bill	1037

Appointments and Nominations

Ambassadors, United States
Cyprus	1055, 1064
Ghana	1052, 1064
Greece	1036, 1042
Korea, Republic of	1036, 1042
Veterans Administration, Administrator	1050, 1064
Vice President of the United States	1050, 1051, 1064
White House Staff
Assistant Press Secretaries	1038, 1039
Counsel	1037
Counsellors	1026, 1027
Deputy Press Secretary	1038
Liaison with Vice President-designate	1053
Photographic Department, Director	1063
Press Secretary	1025
Speechwriting staff, Executive Editor and Administrator	1064
Arends, Repr. Leslie C.	1041
Armed Forces, United States
Aviation career incentive pay	1043
Europe	1052
Promotion of naval and marine officers	1044
Ash, Roy L.	1026, 1028, 1041, 1063
Atkins, Ollie	1063
Atomic energy, agreement with United Kingdom	1038
Australia, extradition treaty with U.S.	1059
Aviation Career Incentive Act of 1974	1043
Balance of payments	1052
Barbados, Ambassador to U.S.	1062

Bill Signings

Education Amendments of 1974, remarks and statement	1055, 1056
Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974, statement	1043
Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, remarks and statement	1059, 1060

Black, Shirley Temple	1052, 1064
Boo, Ben	1042
Bradley, Tom	1042
Brock, Sen. Bill	1063
Brown, Repr. George E., Jr.	1063
Buchen, Philip W.	1037
Budget, Federal spending	1031
Budget, Office of Management and Budget, Office of Management and Budget, Office of
Burger, Warren E.	1023
Burns, Arthur F.	1026, 1028, 1041, 1063
Burruss, Richard T.	1053
Bush, George H.	1041, 1063, 1064
Business Council	1063
Busing	1057
Cabinet, meetings with the President	1028, 1063, 1064
Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for Spanish-Speaking People	1063
Callaghan, James	1041
Campbell, J. Phil	1064
Cavanaugh, James H.	1062, 1064
Cederberg, Repr. Elford A.	1040
Checklist of unpublished releases. See last page of text in each issue
Chester, John J.	1063
Chicago, Ill.	1045
China, People's Republic of, Premier Chou En-lai	1063
Chou En-lai	1063
Church, Sen. Frank	1063
Cities, National League of	1041
Clements, William P., Jr.	1041
Cole, Kenneth R.	1062
Columbus Day, 1974	1063
Commerce, Department of, Secretary	1043
Community Development Act of 1974, Housing and	1059, 1060, 1064
Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973	1041
Comprehensive Health Insurance Plan, proposed	1032
Conable, Repr. Barber B.	1040
Congress
House of Representatives, remarks	1058
Joint Session, address on assuming office	1029
Meetings with the President
Bipartisan leadership	1028, 1052, 1063
Courtesy calls by individual Members	1063
House of Representatives
Black Caucus	1063, 1064
Republican campaign committee, chairman	1063
Republican candidates	1063
Senate
Majority Leader	1053, 1064
Republican campaign committee, chairman	1063
Republican candidates	1063
Senate, remarks	1057

Congress, Communications to

See also Letters, Messages, Telegrams; Veto Messages and Memorandums of Disapproval
Atomic energy agreement with United Kingdom, amendments	1038
Freedom of Information Act amendments, letter to chairmen of House-Senate conference committee	1061
North Atlantic Treaty Organization, U.S. forces in Europe, report transmittal	1052
Special International Exhibits, annual report transmittal	1036
U.S.-Australian extradition treaty, transmittal to Senate	1059
Connor, John T.	1063
Conservation, forest and rangeland resources	1043
Cost of Living Council	1031
Costa Rica, Ambassador to U.S.	1062
Cotton, Sen. Norris	1063
Council. See other part of title

County Officials, National Association of	1041
Courts, United States
Deputy U.S. marshals pay raise bill, veto message	1085
U.S. circuit judge, 8th circuit	1063
Crane, Repr. Philip M.	1041
Crawford, William R., Jr.	1055, 1064
Cyprus
Slain U.S. Ambassador Rodger P. Davies	1045, 1064, 1065
U.S. Ambassador to	1055, 1064
Davies, Rodger P.	1045, 1064, 1065
Defense, Department of
See also specific service branch
Assistant Secretary	1044
Deputy Secretary	1041
Joint Chiefs of Staff	1041
Secretary	1041, 1043, 1047
Digest of other White House announcements. See last pages of text in each issue
Dobrynin, A. F.	1041
Dole, Sen. Robert	1063
Domestic Council	1062, 1064
Dominick, Sen. Peter H.	1041
Economic Advisers, Council of
Chairman	1026, 1028, 1041, 1063
Chairman-designate	1026, 1028, 1063
Economy, national
Address to Joint Session of Congress	1029
Federal spending	1031
Inflation	1029, 1030-1032, 1055
Summit conference	1031, 1063
Education Amendments of 1974	1055, 1056, 1064
Education bill, veterans	1048
Egypt, Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy	1041
Ellsworth, Robert	1044
Employment and Training Act of 1973, Comprehensive	1041
Employment and unemployment, veterans	1048
Energy crisis	1033
Europe, U.S. forces	1062
Evans, Gov. Daniel J.	1042
Executive Orders
Aviation career incentive pay (EO 11800)	1043
Display of flag in memory of slain Ambassador to Cyprus (EO 11801)	1055
Exports, regulation of (EO 11798)	1037
Navy officers, promotion (EO 11799)	1044
Exhibitions, international	1036
Exports, regulation	1037
Fahmy, Ismail	1041
Farm Family of the Year	1064
Federal Reserve System, Board of Governors, Chairman	1026, 1028, 1041, 1063
Federal-State-local cooperation	1060
First Lady's Staff
Press Secretary	1064
Social Secretary	1064
Fitzsimmons, Frank E.	1041
Ford, Mrs. Gerald R.	1041
Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974	1043
Forsythe, Repr. Edwin B.	1063
Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. Julian V.	1064
Freedom of Information Act amendments	1061
Garn, E. J.	1042
General Motors Corporation	1029, 1055
Ghana, U.S. Ambassador to	1062, 1064
Goldwater, Sen. Barry	1041
Government employees
Deputy U.S. marshals, pay raise	1085
Personal liability under Freedom of Information Act amendments	1061
Uniformed services, aviation career incentive pay	1043
Governors' Conference, National	1041, 1042
Greece, U.S. Ambassador to	1036, 1042

Index to Documents of the Administration of Gerald R. Ford—Continued

- Greenspan, Alan 1026, 1028
 Griffin, Sen. Robert P. 1041
 Guinea-Bissau 1029
 Hall, Paul 1063
 Hansen, Sen. Clifford P. 1063
 Harlow, Bryce N. 1040
 Hartmann, Robert T. 1026, 1028
 Health, Education, and Welfare, Department of, Secretary 1041, 1043
 Health, insurance 1032
 Health Insurance Plan, Comprehensive, proposed 1032
 Holland, James R. 1039
 Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 1059, 1060, 1064
 Housing and Urban Development, Department of, Secretary 1059, 1060, 1064
 Howe, Nancy 1041
 Hushen, John W. 1038
 Hussein I, King 1039, 1041, 1044
- Inauguration ceremony. See Swearing-In Ceremonies
- Information Act, Freedom of, amendments 1061
 Insurance, health 1032
 Interior, Department of the, Secretary 1026, 1028
 International Brotherhood of Teamsters 1041
 Jackson, Sen. Henry M. 1041, 1042
 James, Lt. Gen. Daniel, Jr. 1063
 Japan, President's proposed visit 1041
 Javits, Sen. Jacob K. 1041, 1042
 Joint Chiefs of Staff 1041
- Joint Statements
- Jordan 1044
- Jordan
 Joint statement 1044
 King Hussein I. 1039, 1041, 1044
 Jordan-United States Joint Commission 1044
 Justice, Department of, Attorney General 1041, 1047
 Kennedy, Sen. Edward M. 1062
 Kennerly, David Hume 1041
 Khaddam, Abd al-Halim 1064
 Kissinger, Dr. Henry A. 1026, 1041, 1064
 Korea, Republic of, U.S. Ambassador to 1036, 1042
 Kubisch, Jack B. 1036, 1042
 Laird, Melvin R. 1040
- Letters, Messages, Telegrams
- American National Red Cross, letter accepting honorary Chairmanship 1039
 Long, Sen. Russell B. 1041
 Lukash, Rear Adm. William M. 1063
 Lynn, James T. 1059, 1060, 1064
 Magnuson, Sen. Warren G. 1063
 Malek, Frederic V. 1041
 Management and Budget, Office of Deputy Director 1041, 1063
 Director 1026, 1028, 1041
 Mansfield, Sen. Mike 1053, 1064
 Marine Corps, promotion of officers 1044
 Marsh, John O., Jr. 1026-1028, 1041, 1042
 Mathias, Sen. Charles McC., Jr. 1063
 Mayors, United States Conference of 1041
 McClure, Sen. James A. 1041
 Meany, George 1041
- Meetings with Foreign Leaders
- Jordan, King Hussein I. 1039, 1041, 1044
 Mehaffy, Pat. 1063
- Memorandums to Federal Agencies
- Presidential transition 1027
 Michel, Repr. Robert H. 1063
 Mills, Repr. Wilbur D. 1063
 Miltich, Paul A. 1038
 Moorhead, Repr. William S. 1062
 Morris, Karen 1063
 Mortgages 1060
 Morton, Rogers C. B. 1026, 1028
 Mullen, Mary 1064
 National Association of County Officials 1041
 National Association of Retired Teachers 1064
 National Council on the Aging 1064
 National Governors' Conference 1041, 1042
 National League of Cities 1041
 National security, disclosure of documents under Freedom of Information Act amendments 1061
 National Security Council, meeting with the President 1028
 Natural resources, forest and rangeland 1043
 Navy, Department of the, promotion of officers 1044
- News Conferences Other Than Presidential
- Appointment of transition team and President's schedule, Press Secretary terHorst 1026
 Vice Presidential nomination, Nelson A. Rockefeller 1051
 Nixon, Richard M. 1024, 1063
 Nominations submitted to the Senate. See last page of text in each issue
 Office. See other part of title
 O'Hara, James G. 1063
 Ossofsky, Jack 1064
 Packard, David 1063
 Parker, Daniel 1044
 Peach Queen 1063
 Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation 1063
 Perfill, Pamela 1063
 Portugal, Guinea-Bissau, independence 1029
 President's health 1063
 President's domestic travel, Chicago, Ill. 1045, 1048, 1062
 Price monitoring agency, wage and 1052
 Privacy, protection of 1057, 1062
- Proclamations
- Columbus Day, 1974 (Proc. 4308) 1053
 Women's Equality Day, 1974 (Proc. 4309) 1059
 Quillen, Repr. James H. 1063
 Ramirez, Henry M. 1063
 Rampton, Gov. Calvin 1042
 Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974, Forest and 1043
 Red Cross, American National 1039
 Republican National Chairman 1063, 1064
 Research, animal health 1037
- Resignations and Retirements
- Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for Spanish-Speaking People, Chairman 1063
 Office of Management and Budget, Deputy Director 1041
 Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation, Board of Directors, member 1063
 U.S. circuit judge, 8th circuit 1063
 White House Staff, Special Counsel 1063
 Rhodes, Repr. John J. 1041
 Ribicoff, Sen. Abraham A. 1041, 1042
 Rockefeller, Nelson A. 1050, 1051, 1063, 1064
 Roudsbush, Richard L. 1046, 1050, 1064
 Rumsfeld, Donald 1026, 1028
 Rush, Kenneth 1026, 1028, 1041, 1063
 St. Clair, James D. 1041
 Saxbe, William B. 1041
 Schlesinger, James R. 1041
 Scott, Sen. Hugh 1041
 Scranton, William W. 1026, 1028
 Seafarers International Union 1063
 Secret Service, United States 1062
 Security Council, National 1028
 Seidman, L. William 1026, 1028, 1063
 Simon, William E. 1026, 1028, 1041, 1063
 Smith, Helen McCain 1064
 Sneider, Richard L. 1036, 1042
 Spain, Ambassador to U.S. 1062
 Spanish-Speaking People, Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for 1063
 Special International Exhibits 1036
 State, Department of, Secretary 1026, 1041, 1064
- Statements by the President
- Cyprus, death of U.S. Ambassador Rodger P. Davies 1045
 Education Amendments of 1974, bill signing 1056
 Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974, bill signing 1043
 General Motors price increase 1029, 1055
 Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, bill signing 1060
 Portuguese recognition of independence of Guinea-Bissau 1029
 Wage and price monitoring agency 1052
 Stein, Herbert 1026, 1028, 1041, 1063
 Supreme Court of the United States, Chief Justice 1023
- Swearing-In Ceremonies
- President of the United States 1023
 Syria
 Ambassador to U.S. 1062
 Foreign Minister Abd al-Halim Khaddam 1064
 Teachers, National Association of Retired 1064
 Teamsters, International Brotherhood of 1041
 terHorst, J. F. 1025, 1026
 Thels, Paul A. 1064
 Thurmond, Sen. Strom 1041
 Tower, Sen. John 1041
 Trade
 Exports, regulation 1037
 Negotiations 1032
 Trade reform bill 1033
 Training Act of 1973, Comprehensive Employment and 1041
 Transportation, Department of, Secretary 1043
 Treasury, Department of the, Secretary 1026, 1028, 1041, 1063
 Treaties and other international agreements
 Atomic energy agreement with United Kingdom, amendments 1038
 Extradition treaty with Australia, transmittal to Senate 1059
 Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Ambassador to U.S. 1041
 United Kingdom
 Atomic energy agreement with United States, amendments 1038
 Foreign Secretary James Callaghan 1041
 Prime Minister Harold Wilson 1041
 United Nations, Guinea-Bissau, membership 1029
 United States Conference of Mayors 1041
 U.S. Joint Commission, Jordan 1044
 United States Secret Service 1062
 Venezuela, Ambassador to U.S. 1062
 Veterans Administration, Administrator 1046, 1050, 1064
 Veterans education bill 1048
 Veterans of Foreign Wars 1045, 1062, 1064
 Veterinary research 1037

Index to Documents of the Administration of Gerald R. Ford—Continued

Veto Messages and Memorandums of Disapproval

Animal health research bill, message to House of Representatives.....	1037	Wage and price monitoring agency....	1052	White House Staff—Continued
Deputy U.S. marshals bill, message to House of Representatives.....	1035	Weinberger, Caspar W.....	1041	Presidential transition, memorandum	1027
Vice President, remarks on selection of nominee	1050, 1051	White House Staff		Press Secretary.....	1025
Vice Presidential Staff, memorandum on Presidential transition.....	1027	Assistant Press Secretaries.....	1038, 1039	Special Counsel.....	1063
		Counsel	1037	Speechwriting staff, Executive Editor and Administrator.....	1064
		Counsellor for Economic Policy.....	1026, 1028, 1041, 1063	Wilson, Harold.....	1041
		Counsellors	1026, 1027, 1041, 1042	Winchester, Lucy Alexander.....	1064
		Deputy Press Secretary.....	1038	Women's Equality Day, 1974.....	1059
		Liaison with Vice President-designate	1053	Wydler, Repr. John W.....	1041
		Photographic Department, Director..	1063

Weekly Compilation of
PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

The University
of Michigan
Reference

Monday, September 9, 1974

SEP 17 1974

Volume 10 • Number 36

Pages 1083-1099

Index of Contents

ACTS APPROVED.....	1099	BILL SIGNINGS
ADDRESSES AND REMARKS		Pension reform bill, remarks and statement.....	1084
Conference on inflation.....	1091, 1093	Youth Conservation Corps bill, statement.....	1086
National Council on the Arts, reception.....	1090	CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES.....	1099
National Hispanic Heritage Week proclamation, signing ceremony.....	1086	CONGRESS, COMMUNICATIONS TO
Reconvening of First Continental Congress.....	1095	Federal pay raise and employment, message.....	1083
United Way campaign.....	1094	Highway and traffic safety programs, message transmitting reports.....	1087
ANNOUNCEMENTS		DIGEST OF OTHER WHITE HOUSE ANNOUNCEMENTS..	1098
Reconvening of Strategic Arms Limitation Talks..	1095	EXECUTIVE ORDERS
APPOINTMENTS AND NOMINATIONS		Display of the flag in memory of General Abrams (EO 11802).....	1088
Ambassadors, U.S.		LETTERS, MEMORANDUMS, ETC.
France (Kenneth Rush).....	1088	Jewish High Holy Days, message.....	1093
German Democratic Republic (John Sherman Cooper)	1089	PROCLAMATIONS
Defense Department, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Reserve Affairs (Will Hill Tankersley).....	1093	National Hispanic Heritage Week, 1974 (Proc. 4310)	1086
Federal Energy Administration, Assistant Adminis- trator for International Affairs (Melvin A. Conant)	1093	STATEMENTS BY THE PRESIDENT
Federal Trade Commission, member (Paul Rand Dixon)	1092	Death of Army Chief of Staff, Gen. Creighton Abrams	1088
National Council on the Arts (8 members)	1085	Labor Day, 1974.....	1084
Nominations submitted to the Senate.....	1099	SWEARING-IN CEREMONIES
State Department, Assistant Secretary for Inter- American Affairs (William D. Rogers).....	1089	Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers....	1090
Strategic Arms Limitation Talks, U.S. delegation..	1095
United States Liaison Office, People's Republic of China, Chief (George Bush)	1089

[A Cumulative Index to Prior Issues appears at the end of this issue.]

WEEKLY COMPILATION OF Presidential Documents

Published every Monday by the Office of the Federal Register, National Archives and Records Service, General Services Administration, Washington, D.C. 20408, the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents contains statements, messages and other Presidential materials released by the White House during the preceding week.

The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents is published pursuant to the authority contained in the Federal Register Act (49 Stat. 500, as amended; 44 U.S.C. Ch. 15), under regulations prescribed by the Administrative Committee of the Federal Register, approved by the President (37 F.R. 23607; 1 CFR Part 10).

Distribution is made only by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents will be furnished by mail to subscribers for $15.00 per year, payable to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The charge for a single copy is 50 cents.

There are no restrictions on the republication of material appearing in the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents.

Administration of Gerald R. Ford

PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Week Ending Friday, September 6, 1974

Federal Pay Raise and Employment

The President's Message to the Congress Proposing a Deferral of the Pay Raise and a Reduction in Civilian Employment. August 31, 1974

To the Congress of the United States:

At a time when inflation is the main concern of every American, the Federal Government has a special obligation to take those actions which begin to stop inflation.

In this spirit and with the knowledge that the action I am taking will help to hold down the cost of living for all Americans, I now recommend a ninety-day deferral in the pending pay adjustment for Federal employees. At the same time, I am also ordering the Director of the Office of Management and Budget to proceed with a reduction of 40,000 Federal civilian positions from those planned for the current fiscal year.

Therefore, as required by law, I am transmitting to the Congress a plan to defer Federal pay raises for ninety days. This is intended to meet both the needs of those who serve the Government and the common interest of the general public, all of whom must bear the burden of increased inflation.

Under this plan, a pay increase for all Federal employees based upon an appropriate comparability adjustment would become effective on the first pay period beginning on or after January 1, 1975. The level of the comparability adjustment will be determined during the next few weeks.

I regret asking for this postponement of a Federal pay increase, but I am convinced of its necessity. Federal employees who I am asking to make a sacrifice are the foundation of sound, effective and efficient Government. I am more conscious than ever of their contributions to our country.

Nevertheless, at this critical time in the economic health of our Nation, I must call on all Americans without exception to make sacrifices in order to hold down wages and prices. Federal employees, as one of the largest groups of workers in the country, have a special role to play in the fight against inflation because we in Government set the example. As we seek a noninflationary budget, it is especially important this year that Federal spending be held to a minimum.

I urge the Congress to support this action, because it is in the best interest of all Americans.

The plan to defer Federal pay raises by ninety days is attached. As required by law, the plan represents an alternative to the October effective date which would otherwise occur.

In addition, the Office of Management and Budget has now determined the specific reductions in civilian positions from those budgeted for the current fiscal year. The agencies will shortly be informed of these reductions by letters from OMB. Wherever possible, these reductions will be accomplished through normal attrition.

It is extremely important that the Federal establishment hold employment to the absolute minimum needed to get the job done. Effective use of human talents is a wise use of the tax dollar.

The pay raise deferral and the reduction in civilian positions together will reduce the 1975 budget by about $1 billion. Thus, the Federal Government is taking an essential first step in holding down the Federal budget and showing the way for restraint by all Americans.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
August 31, 1974.

FEDERAL PAY COMPARABILITY ALTERNATIVE PLAN

In consideration of the economic conditions affecting the general welfare, I hereby transmit to the Congress the following alternative plan, as authorized and required by section 5305(c)(1) of title 5, United States Code:

Such adjustments in the rates of pay of each Federal statutory pay system as may be determined under the procedures set forth in section 3(a) of the Federal Pay Comparability Act of 1970 (5 U.S.C. 5305), shall become effective on the first day of the first applicable pay period that begins on or after January 1, 1975.

Labor Day, 1974

Statement by the President. September 2, 1974

I salute the working men and women of America on the 80th anniversary of labor's special day. Their strength of mind, heart, and hand continues to guide our destiny.

As American society has changed in modern times, the role and needs of labor have also changed. A need for organization arose and was filled.

Today, therefore, we salute not only the 93 million men and women in the labor forces but also the organizations which represent labor so well. The goals of those organizations were eloquently summed up by Samuel Gompers 81 years ago, when he said that labor wants "more school houses and less jails; more books and less arsenals; more learning and less vice; more constant work and less crime; more leisure and less greed; more justice and less revenge; in fact, more of the opportunities to cultivate our better natures. . . ."

The organized efforts of America's working men and women have been instrumental in helping move this Nation a long way towards those goals. Today, the Nation needs their support in a new struggle for productivity—for more purchasing power and less inflation. I am confident that the men and women of the American labor movement know that the struggle against inflation is a joint venture by all segments of the American people and that they will do their part.

On this Labor Day, I say to my fellow Americans who have provided us with so much in the past and from whom we expect even more in the future—thank you.

Pension Reform Bill

The President's Remarks at the Bill Signing Ceremony at the White House. September 2, 1974

Mr. Speaker, my former colleagues in the Congress, Secretary Brennan, Secretary Dent, distinguished leaders in the labor movement, distinguished leaders in business:

It is a great privilege and pleasure for me to have the opportunity of participating in the signing of that massive bill. I think this is really an historic Labor Day—historic in the sense that this legislation will probably give more benefits and rights and success in the area of labor-management than almost anything in the history of this country.

I think it is historic, too, because that tremendous document is indicative of the kind of cooperation between the House and Senate, the House Committee on Ways and Means, and the Senate Committee on Finance, the House Committee on Education and Labor, and the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare.

I think it is indicative of the kind of cooperation that can be achieved between labor and management. I know how hard and how long many people in the labor movement and management have worked to make sure that we came up with the right kind of legislation.

I think it is a good reflection on the relationship between the executive branch on the one hand and the legislative branch on the other. So, when you add it all up, even though this is an extremely complicated piece of legislation, it has been the long labors of many, many people that have produced the kind of result that is good for America and, primarily, for those who will be the ultimate beneficiaries of the legislation.

This legislation will alleviate the fears and the anxiety of people who are on the production lines or in the mines or elsewhere, in that they now know that their investment in private pension funds will be better protected, they have a vested right. They are certain, obviously, of better management of those funds.

It certainly will give to those 30-plus million American workers a greater degree of certainty as they face retirement in the future.

I do want to extend to all of you my congratulations and compliments. I do not think I have had a happier day than the opportunity today to see so many people who have worked so long on legislation of such great significance, and to have it happen on Labor Day is a tribute to the American process, a process which is good for all of us.

Thank you very, very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 11:40 a.m. in the Rose Garden at the White House. As enacted, the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (H.R. 2) is Public Law 93-406, approved September 2, 1974.

Pension Reform Bill

Statement by the President Upon Signing the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974. September 2, 1974

Dramatic growth in recent years has thrust private pension plans into a central role in determining how older Americans live in their retirement years.

From 1960 to 1970, private pension coverage increased from 21.2 million employees to approximately 30 million workers. During this same period, assets of these private plans increased from $52 billion to $138 billion. And they are now increasing at a rate of $12-15 billion a year. It will not be long before such assets become the largest source of capital in our economy.

Yet, this same growth in pension plans has brought with it a host of new problems. Many workers have ultimately lost their benefits—even after relatively long service—because when they left jobs, they thereby gave up rights to hard-earned pension benefits. Others have sustained hardships because their companies folded with insufficient funds in the pension plan to pay promised pensions. In addition, some pension funds have been invested primarily for the benefit of the companies or plan administrators, not for the workers. It is essential to bring some order and humanity into this welter of different and sometimes inequitable retirement plans within private industry.

Today, with great pleasure, I am signing into law a landmark measure that may finally give the American worker solid protection in his pension plan.

Under this law, which is entitled the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, the men and women of our labor force will have much more clearly defined rights to pension funds and greater assurances that retirement dollars will be there when they are needed. Employees will also be given greater tax incentives to provide for their own retirement if a company plan is unavailable.

It is certainly appropriate that this law be signed on Labor Day, since this act marks a brighter future for almost all the men and women of our labor force.

There are seven essential parts to this legislation:

- first, it establishes major standards for employee participation in private retirement plans, standards which encourage earlier participation by workers, and longer periods over which benefits can be earned;
- second, and perhaps most important to those already under private pension plans, the new law establishes equitable standards for the “vesting” of retirement benefits. The standards under this law will assure to the greatest possible extent that a worker who participates in a plan actually receives some benefits from that plan and does not lose them because of punishing forfeiture standards or inadequate pension fund resources;
- third, the act requires that the fiduciaries who control the pension funds act as reasonable and prudent men, discharging their duties solely in the interests of protecting the beneficiaries of the fund;
- fourth, the law will impose a high standard upon the operation of plans by making mandatory full disclosure of all information concerning the operations of the employer’s retirement plan;
- fifth, the tax laws will be revised to provide more nearly equal treatment to different kind of plans. The new law will encourage the self-employed to provide for their retirement by raising the limits on the amount of their income which may be contributed on a deductible basis to a retirement fund. It will also allow the one-half of American employees not covered by private pension plans to enjoy equivalent tax advantages if they set up individual retirement accounts;

—sixth, as a final backstop to private pension plans, a federally sponsored, privately financed Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation will be set up to pay an adequate retirement benefit to those whose private pension funds have foundered and are not adequate for the beneficiaries; and,

—seventh, the act will establish a limited form of portability of pension benefits by allowing workers to transfer some of their pension benefits to other plans or to their individual retirement accounts.

Together these seven points add up to a better deal for American workers than they have ever known before in private pension plans.

I believe this act is a model of what can be done by the Government to improve the lives of Americans within the private sector without harming the dynamics of our free enterprise system.

I also believe that its passage is a model of cooperation and hard work between the executive and the legislative branches.

The act has its genesis in a message to the Congress by President Nixon on December 8, 1971. The legislation was and is extraordinarily complicated. It was worked on relentlessly by four congressional committees: House Ways and Means, House Education and Labor, Senate Labor and Public Welfare, and Senate Finance.

Individual members have devoted enormous effort to this bill. I believe we can all be proud that the Government has now taken action to make workers’ lives more secure.

NOTE: As enacted, the bill (H.R. 2) is Public Law 93-406, approved September 2, 1974.

National Council on the Arts

Announcement of Appointment of Eight Members. September 3, 1974

The President today announced the appointment of eight persons to the National Council on the Arts. These are terms for 6 years.

The new members of the Council are Angus L. Bowmer of Ashland, Oreg., Van Cliburn of Shreveport, La., Jerome Robbins, of New York City, Thomas Schippers of Cincinnati, Ohio, Gunther Schuller of Newton Centre, Mass., George C. Seybolt of Dedham, Mass., Harry M. Weese of Evanston, Ill., and Dolores Wharton of East Lansing, Mich.

The appointees replace Council members Jean Dalrymple, O’Neal Ford, Richard Hunt, Robert Merrill, Gregory Peck, Rudolf Serkin, and Edward Villella. The eighth member with a term ending in 1974, was Duke Ellington, the bandleader and composer, who died on May 24 of this year.

The 26 members of the National Council on the Arts advise the National Endowment for the Arts on making the arts more widely available to millions of Americans, preserving America's cultural organizations, and encouraging the creative development of the Nation's finest talent. These aims are accomplished in part by awarding grants to individuals, to State and regional arts agencies and to other nonprofit, tax-exempt organizations in a variety of cultural fields.

Youth Conservation Corps Bill

Statement by the President Upon Signing S. 1871 Into Law. September 3, 1974

I am signing today S. 1871 which amends the Youth Conservation Corps Act of 1972.

The Youth Conservation Corps program provides summer work-education experiences for young people aged 15 through 18, of all income classes, on Federal lands administered by the Departments of Interior and Agriculture. This year, most of the States and territories established YCC programs on State lands under a pilot grant program.

This act establishes a program to expand the participation of young people in activities on Federal and State lands. It makes the State grant program permanent. It also would permit use of Corps members on projects on Federal lands administered in other Federal agencies.

Though I have some concerns about the cost of this program at a time when inflation is our number one domestic problem, this act is not inconsistent with the 1975 budget, and thus I am pleased to be able to sign it.

NOTE: As enacted, the bill (S. 1871) is Public Law 93-408, approved September 3, 1974.

National Hispanic Heritage Week, 1974

The President's Remarks Upon Signing the Proclamation in a Ceremony at the White House. September 4, 1974

Let me sign this declaration or proclamation, and then I will make sure that you all get a pen, Joe.

In 1968, the Congress passed a resolution which provided for the recognition of Hispanic Americans, that we should have a week once a year where their contribution to the American society would be fully appreciated and totally recognized.

This week begins on September 10 and runs through the 17th, and this proclamation is predicated on that resolution which was approved 6 years ago.

It is a pleasure for me to be in the company of the Members of Congress who are here, and I understand that Congressman Manuel Lujan is flying in from New Mexico but will be a few minutes late, but he will be joining us very shortly.

In the group here are some leaders of the Spanish-speaking Americans who will be here to give me the benefit of their observations and comments and recommendations as to how we can very appropriately and properly recognize the many, many contributions that have been made, from the very beginning of our Nation's history, to the great accomplishments of America.

I think history shows that before Plymouth Rock there were Spanish-speaking individuals who had made settlements in not only Florida but New Mexico and Puerto Rico and possibly California, I am not sure.

I think it illustrates the fact that Spanish-speaking Americans were in the very vanguard of the settlement of the new world, and they have contributed significantly with their deep religious convictions. They have contributed unbelievably to a better America by their dedication to an outstanding family life.

We believe, in this Administration, as others have, that this important growing part of our American population should be recognized for what they can do for all of us and for what they have done for America over the 200 years, nearly, of our Nation's history.

So, it is a pleasure for me to sign this proclamation in the presence of not only Members of Congress who are representative of the Hispanic Americans but the others who are here from private life.

So, without any fanfare, I will undertake this. I have learned how, Ed, to do this with a few letters instead of doing it with one pen.

NOTE: The President spoke at 11:10 a.m. in the Cabinet Room at the White House. Following the signing ceremony, the President met with Spanish-American Members of Congress and Administration officials to discuss the problems and needs of the Nation's Hispanic Americans. In his remarks, the President referred to Senator Joseph M. Montoya of New Mexico and Representative Edward R. Roybal of California.

For the text of the proclamation, see the following item.

National Hispanic Heritage Week, 1974

Proclamation 4310. September 4, 1974

*By the President of the United States of America
a Proclamation*

Our country's Hispanic heritage reaches back more than four centuries. When the Pilgrim Fathers landed at Plymouth Rock, Hispanic civilization was already flourishing in what is now Florida and New Mexico. Since then the Hispanic contribution to America has been a consistent and vital influence in our country's cultural growth.

More than ten million Americans of Hispanic origin today contribute to our national diversity, enriching the quality of American life in the arts, the sciences, sports, religion and the small but important things of everyday living.

Now, THEREFORE, I, GERALD R. FORD, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim the week beginning September 10, 1974, and ending September 16, 1974, as National Hispanic Heritage Week. I call upon all the people of the United States, especially the education community and those organizations concerned with the protection of human rights, to observe that week with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

In celebrating this occasion, I also call upon my fellow Americans to rededicate themselves to the principle of full and equal opportunity for all citizens, and to seize upon the broad spectrum of skills and abilities of those individuals of Hispanic heritage who have so significantly contributed to our Nation's growth and prosperity.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this fourth day of September, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninety-ninth.

GERALD R. FORD

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 2:58 p.m., September 4, 1974]

NOTE: For the President's remarks upon signing the proclamation, see the preceding item.

Highway and Traffic Safety Programs

The President's Message to the Congress Transmitting Annual Reports on the Administration of the Highway Safety Act of 1966 and the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966. September 4, 1974

To the Congress of the United States:

The 1950's and early 1960's were marked by enormous growth in the Nation's highway systems—the number of vehicles which used them and the miles which they traveled nearly doubled. We developed a modern, flexible form of transportation. It was also deadly. Deaths rose from 34,700 in 1950 to top 53,000 in 1966, when the Congress determined that a national effort was needed to contain the runaway slaughter and passed the Highway Safety and National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Acts. The attached reports, which I am transmitting in accordance with the reporting requirements in those acts, describe the various traffic safety programs, with emphasis on activities during 1973.

Without question, the seven-year-old national traffic safety effort has proved beneficial. As will be seen by figure 1 in the motor vehicle safety report, annual deaths among passenger car occupants, which were rising throughout the early 60's, have since leveled off and remained fairly constant in face of a rise through 1972 in traffic deaths. This is in spite of large increases in mileage driven, number of vehicles, drivers, average speed, and alcohol consumption—to name some of the factors which we know contribute to highway accidents. The overall growth in traffic fatalities is attributable to motorcycle, pedestrian, and bicycle accidents. There is little doubt that our motor vehicle safety standards are saving lives and reducing the severity of injuries.

Improvements in the Nation's highways are also making a major contribution to progress in traffic safety. Since 1967 the death rate per 100 million miles traveled has declined steadily on our modernized roadways.

Although total traffic fatalities remain shockingly high, the fatality rate has declined from 5.5 per 100 million vehicle miles to 4.3—a significant decrease of 22 percent since 1967. Had the 1967 fatality rate continued, almost 72,000 Americans would have been killed in highway accidents in 1973, instead of the estimated total of just over 56,000. This estimated saving of 16,000 lives in a single year represents an enormous financial saving to society in terms of wages, medical costs, legal expenses, and property damage, not to mention human suffering. Such savings would not have come about without the combined efforts of Federal, State, and local officials involved in this national emphasis, as well as private citizens who have supported the program.

In 1973, the lowering of speed limits and other effects of the energy shortage situation had a dramatic impact on highway fatality statistics. During the last two months of the year, as States reduced their speed limits and motorists voluntarily limited their driving, the number of fatalities declined by as much as 25 percent below the November/December 1972 totals in some States. As a result, the Nation as a whole ended the year having lost 2,000 fewer lives than had been projected.

The saving in lives during the past year provides an added incentive for the Government and the Nation to persist in the endeavor to make our vehicles, our highways, and our drivers safer. I am confident that well-managed programs and well-managed use of our resources will continue to have a positive effect in improved highway safety.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
September 4, 1974.

NOTE: The reports are entitled:

"Traffic Safety '73, A Report on the Activities of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and the Federal Highway Administration Under the Highway Safety Act of 1966" (Government Printing Office, 48 pp. and appendices).

"Traffic Safety '73, A Report on the Activities of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration Under the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1966" (Government Printing Office, 60 pp. and appendices).

General Creighton Abrams

Statement by the President on the Death of the Chief of Staff of the Army. September 4, 1974

Gen. Creighton Abrams was an American hero in the best tradition. In the heat of battle and in the gray corridors of the Pentagon, he proved that he was that rare combination—a man of action who was also a first-class administrator.

He was also a colorful, courageous leader who won the admiration and respect of enemies as well as allies and subordinates. His 38-year military record spanned three wars, as he rose from first lieutenant in 1936 to Chief of Staff in 1972. He has left us an example of service and a memory of heroism that future generations of Americans, in and out of uniform, will long cherish. We will miss him very much.

Mrs. Ford joins me in extending to his wonderful wife and family our deepest condolences.

NOTE: Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, Jr., 59, died at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, Washington, D.C., on September 4, 1974. He commanded U.S. forces in Vietnam from July 1969 to June 1972, and served as Army Chief of Staff from July 1972 until his death.

On Friday, September 6, 1974, the President attended funeral services for General Abrams at the Memorial Chapel, Ft. Myer, Va.

Display of the Flag in Memory of General Abrams

Executive Order 11802. September 4, 1974

GENERAL CREIGHTON W. ABRAMS, CHIEF OF STAFF,
UNITED STATES ARMY

As a mark of respect to the memory of General Creighton W. Abrams, Chief of Staff, United States Army, it is hereby ordered, pursuant to the provisions of Section 4 of Proclamation 3044 of March 1, 1954, as amended, that until the day of interment the flag of the United States shall be flown at half-staff on all buildings, grounds, and naval vessels of the Federal Government in the District of Columbia and throughout the United States and its Territories and possessions. I also direct that the flag shall be flown at half-staff during this same period at all United States embassies, consular offices, and other facilities abroad, including all military facilities and naval vessels and stations.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
September 4, 1974.

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 2:45 p.m.,
September 4, 1974]

NOTE: For a statement by the President on the death of General Abrams, see the preceding item.

United States Ambassador to France

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Kenneth Rush. September 4, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Kenneth Rush, of Rye, N.Y., to be Ambassador to France. Mr. Rush will succeed John N. Irwin II.

Mr. Rush has served as Counsellor to the President for Economic Policy since May 25, 1974. He was the President's chief economic adviser and coordinator of domestic and international economic policy. In addition, he was a member of the Cabinet and the National Security Council.

Mr. Rush was Deputy Secretary of State from February 2, 1973, to May 25, 1974. He was Deputy Secretary of Defense from February 7, 1972, until he became Deputy Secretary of State. Prior to assuming his Defense Department position, Mr. Rush was Ambassador to the Federal Republic of Germany from July 1969. As Ambassador he was the principal U.S. negotiator of the Quadripartite Agreement on Berlin. He was decorated by the German Government with the Grand Cross of the Order of Merit, and he is also the recipient of the Department of Defense Medal for Distinguished Public Service.

He was born on January 17, 1910, in Walla Walla, Wash. Mr. Rush received his A.B. degree from the University of Tennessee in 1930 and an LL.B. degree from Yale University in 1932. From 1932 to 1936, he was an associate with the law firm of Chadbourne, Stanchfield and Levy, and during 1936–37, he was an assistant professor at Duke University Law School.

Mr. Rush joined Union Carbide Corp. in 1937 and was with the firm until 1969 when he became U.S. Ambassador to the Federal Republic of Germany. While with Union Carbide, Mr. Rush served as vice president from 1949 to 1961, as executive vice president from 1961 to 1966, and as president from 1966 to 1969. He also served as a director (1958–69), as a member of the executive committee (1966–69), and as chairman of the general operating committee (1965–69).

In addition to his affiliation with Union Carbide, Mr. Rush has also been a director of Bankers Trust Co., American Sugar Co., and Bankers Trust New York Corp. Mr. Rush has also been active in civic affairs, has served the University of Tennessee as a member of the development council, and was a member of the executive committee of the Yale Law School Association from 1952 to 1962.

Mr. Rush is married to the former Jane Gilbert Smith. They have four children.

United States Ambassador to the German Democratic Republic

Announcement of Intention To Nominate John Sherman Cooper. September 4, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate John Sherman Cooper, of Somerset, Ky., to be Ambassador to the German Democratic Republic.

Born in Somerset, Ky., August 23, 1901, he was a student at Centre College, 1918–19, received his A.B. from Yale University in 1923, and did postgraduate work at Harvard Law School, 1923–25. He holds the LL.D. from Centre College, Yale University, the University of Kentucky, University of Pittsburgh, Georgetown College, Berea College, Eastern Kentucky State College; the L.H.D. from Lincoln Memorial University; the D.C.L. from Nasson College.

He was a member of the lower house of the Kentucky Legislature, 1928–30; judge, Pulaski County, Ky., 1930–38; circuit judge, 28th Judicial District of Kentucky, 1946. He was elected to the United States Senate from Kentucky in 1946 and served until 1948, elected again in 1952 and served to 1955, and again in 1957 until his retirement. He was a member of the Senate Committees on Foreign Relations, Public Works, Rules and Administration, the Select Committee on Standards and Conduct.

He was appointed consultant to Secretary of State Dean Acheson in 1950, serving as U.S. Ambassador at Large. He was a member of the U.S. Delegation to the United Nations General Assembly, 1949–51. He was U.S. Ambassador to India, Nepal, 1955–56.

He was a member of the law firm of Gardner, Morrison & Rogers in Washington from 1949 to 1951, Congressional adviser to U.S. delegation to the UNESCO Conference in Paris, 1948; member of the President's Commission To Investigate the Assassination of President Kennedy.

He served in the U.S. Army, 1942–45. He assisted in reorganizing the German judicial system following the war. He was awarded the Bronze Star.

He was a trustee at the University of Kentucky, Centre College, and a member of the Yale Council. He also holds membership in the American and Kentucky Bar Associations. He is a member of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Beta Theta Pi.

He is married to the former Lorraine Rowan Shevlin.

United States Liaison Office, People's Republic of China

Announcement of Appointment of George Bush as Chief of the Liaison Office. September 4, 1974

The President today named George Bush, of Houston, Tex., to serve as Chief, United States Liaison Office, the People's Republic of China. He succeeds David K. E. Bruce.

Born in Milton, Mass., June 12, 1924, he was graduated from Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., in 1942; he received his B.A. in economics from Yale University in 1948.

He was co-founder and served as director of Zapata Petroleum Corp. from 1953 to 1959; he was president of Zapata Offshore Co., Houston, Tex., 1956–64, and chairman of the board from 1964 to 1966. He was a member of the 90th and 91st Congresses, representing the Seventh District of Texas. He was a member of the Ways and Means Committee.

He was U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations from 1970 to January 1973, and was named Chairman of the Republican National Committee also in January 1973, the position which he now holds.

He was a pilot in the U.S. Naval Reserve in World War II, winning the Distinguished Flying Cross.

He is married to the former Barbara Pierce and they have five children.

Department of State

Announcement of Intention To Nominate William D. Rogers To Be Assistant Secretary for Inter-American Affairs. September 4, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate William D. Rogers, of Great Falls, Va., as Assistant Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs. Mr. Rogers succeeds Jack B. Kubisch, who was appointed Ambassador to Greece, August 23, 1974.

Born May 12, 1927, at Wilmington, Del., he received his A.B. degree from Princeton University in 1948 and his LL.B. from Yale University in 1951.

He was admitted to the District of Columbia Bar in 1953 and joined the firm of Arnold, Fortas and Porter, Washington, D.C., that year as a partner. He served as special deputy attorney general of Hawaii, 1960–62; Special Counsel, United States Coordinator, Alliance for Progress, 1962–63; Deputy United States Coordinator for Alliance for Progress and also Deputy Assistant Administrator, Agency for International Development, 1963–65. He became a partner in the firm of Arnold and Porter in 1965, the position which he presently holds.

In addition, he was Alternate United States Representative to the Inter-American Economic and Social Council, 1964–65, and president, Center for Inter-American Relations, New York City, 1965–70. He received the Distinguished Honor Award from the Agency for International Development in 1965 and is author of "The Twilight Struggle," published in 1967.

He is a fellow in the Hudson Institute, a member of the American Society of International Law, serving as president, 1972–74, member of the Procedural Aspects of International Law Institute, serving as secretary-treasurer, and member of the Council on Foreign Relations.

He is married to the former Suzanne Rochford, and they have two children. They reside at 2 Jefferson Run Road, Great Falls, Va.

I am delighted to have an opportunity to participate in this swearing in of Alan because, not only his talents are superb and his education and reputation are of the finest but I like his approach. He is recognized as an optimist in the field of economic policy, and I happen to believe that despite some of the problems we face, we have to be optimistic about what we can do about them.

And Alan Greenspan has that reputation. I believe in being an optimist, and I think that attitude is helpful and beneficial as we face some of the difficult problems and the hard decisions ahead.

So, Alan, I congratulate you and wish you well, and it has been a pleasure to get to know you better, to have the benefit of your recommendations, and I think the country is going to be far better off with your counsel and advice as we move ahead in these very difficult times.

NOTE: The President spoke at 5:47 p.m. in the Cabinet Room at the White House. The oath of office was administered by John J. Ratchford, Executive Clerk at the White House.

Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers

The President's Remarks at the Swearing-In Ceremony for Alan Greenspan. September 4, 1974

This is a very, very auspicious occasion. It is my first opportunity to participate in the swearing in of a Chairman of the Council, and, of course, I am pleased and honored to have the opportunity to do it with a man as outstanding as Alan Greenspan.

And it is so nice to have you here and to participate as well. If my recollection is correct, about the time I came to the Congress, our distinguished guest, who is about to be sworn in, was an accomplished clarinetist in and around New York City.

Well, he gave up that occupation at a subsequent date and became a very, very outstanding economist in the private field as well as an adviser to the Federal Government.

But now, as the ninth Chairman, he has a new responsibility to try and stop playing the blues and curing the blues. [Laughter]

I was told the other day that being a clarinetist or a musician in Washington was not necessarily bad. Len Garment was an accomplished musician and has done extremely well here in Washington.

Somebody mentioned to me the other day that they wondered why it took me so long to make a choice for Vice President. Well, I will make this observation and comment. I had a hard time deciding between Nelson Rockefeller and Benny Goodman. [Laughter]

National Council on the Arts

Remarks of the President and Council Chairman Nancy Hanks at a Reception for Council Members at the Kennedy Center. September 4, 1974

MISS HANKS. Good evening:

You know, I can't help but be amused because the President of the United States just asked me if I would introduce him. [Laughter]

He has, as you know, been a wonderful friend of the arts in the Congress. And, as you also know, Mrs. Ford is so much with us and we have talked so much for the last 2 days about your interest, sir, and how much you have helped us, and how much Betty has helped us, and, you know, I am very thrilled to introduce you, sir.

THE PRESIDENT. Well thank you very, very much, Nancy. When I am surrounded by Betty on the one hand, who is an expert in her own right and her own background, and Nancy on the other, I am a completely helpless individual.

I have been delighted to have a part to some extent in promoting the Council of Arts and all of the things that are related thereto. I would be, I think, off on the wrong track if I took any credit for any significant gains. But it has been a very wonderful experience for me to go from one who had little or no appreciation or support for the arts to one who has learned that the arts can be very important, very vital in a community and, I think, in the Nation.

So I am a converted individual. And I don't apologize for it. And converts oftentimes are known as more ardent advocates than those who were brought up in an environment or in a religion.

It has been a great experience for me to see over the last 4 or 5 years the tremendous increase not only in money from the Federal Government but the interest throughout the Nation.

I have traveled a good bit, as some of you may know, and I have seen from community to community, including my own community in Grand Rapids, Michigan—go from a rather placid interest to an interest of broad-based public support.

And the National Council and all those associated with it can take a great deal of credit. I wish to compliment the Congress because the Congress in this span of time has really contributed very significantly. I doubt if there is a program in the Government in the last 5 or 6 years that has grown in dollars percentagewise as rapidly as this program, and I think that is a compliment to the program from its inception to the program under Nancy. I think Roger¹ and you have been the only two heads of the department, or organization, and I think when you can go from Roger to Nancy and have this kind of progress, it is a tribute to both of them.

My home of Grand Rapids, Michigan, is the honored place where one of Alexander Calder's wonderful mobiles—is that the proper—

MRS. FORD. No, that is not a mobile; it is a stabile.

THE PRESIDENT. —stabile, all right—is and will be a hallmark of the arts as far as we are concerned. I point it out to all the visitors who come, including the Secret Service—[laughter]—I tell them that it is nothing they should be worried about—[laughter]—it is stimulating, it is a great attraction as far as the community is concerned, and I am proud of it.

And I have yet to find out with any specificity or any great deal of definitiveness what he was trying to tell us, but nevertheless it is a great attraction and a wonderful addition to our community. And I think it is indicative of what can be done and will be done in the months and years ahead under the leadership of the Council of Arts and the leadership of Nancy, because you have to have a broad-based public, I think, range of activities, ranging from those that I know best to those that others know far better than I.

And the arts are an important and integral part of our better society. And I compliment you all, those on the Council at the present, those who have been there in the past, and those who will be assuming responsibilities in the future.

I think it is a great addition to our society here in the United States, and we can be as proud as any of our old countries in what we have done in America, and we are going to do infinitely better.

Thank you very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 7:55 p.m. in the Atrium at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

Conference on Inflation

The President's Opening Remarks to Economists and Members of Congress at the First of a Series of Meetings Preliminary to the Summit Conference. September 5, 1974

Good morning:

It is a pleasure to be here with the distinguished Members of the Congress, both Democratic and Republican, and the very eminent group of economists and guests.

I look forward to a very beneficial and fruitful meeting this morning. This meeting marks the start of our national Conference on Inflation. I have called this series of working conferences in response to a bipartisan recommendation by the United States Senate and with the cooperation of concerned citizens representing all elements of our American society.

Our purpose is to find ways by which we, the American people, can come to grips with our economic difficulties and surmount them.

This has been called a summit conference. Maybe that title is a bit misleading. Recent summit conferences have been held between leaders of international adversaries with the hope of reducing their differences. Around this table there are no adversaries. We come together as allies to draw upon, or to draw up, I should say, a battle plan against a common enemy, inflation. Inflation is our domestic enemy number one.

Battle strategies are usually devised in secret. At my insistence, this is a typically American open meeting. Some skeptics have warned me that putting 28 of our most distinguished economists and eight Members of Congress, both Democratic and Republican, on public display with live microphones would produce a spectacle something like professional wrestlers playing ice hockey. [Laughter] But I am ready to referee this opening match.

It is not widely known, but I started out in college very much attracted to economics. Later I switched to the law, probably because the legal profession seemed a better path to success in politics.

Having come this far, I can see why no economist would ever dream of wanting to be President.

But if we succeed in the job cut out for us, I can promise you there will be statues of each of you in every city park throughout the United States. Economics will never again be called a dismal science, nor will politicians, if we succeed, dare again to hide behind the old alibi that the people just don't understand economics. The people understand economics very, very well, and they are sick and tired of having politics played with their pocketbooks.

¹ Roger L. Stevens, Chairman of the Kennedy Center, was Chairman of the National Council on the Arts from its establishment in 1965 until March 1969.

This Conference on Inflation is a joint enterprise of the legislative and executive branches of our Government which can become a monument to politics in the very best sense of the word. It unites Republicans and independents and Democrats in an election year against a deadly enemy that doesn't recognize one political party from another.

The President cannot lick inflation. The Congress cannot lick inflation. Business, labor, agriculture, and other segments of America cannot lick inflation. Separately we can only make it worse, but together we can beat it to its knees.

These meetings are not going to be empty exercises in economic rhetoric, neither are they going to reveal any quick miracles. There is no quick fix for what ails our economy. I, for one, refuse to believe that the very best brains in America and the smartest, hardest working workers in the world cannot find a workable way to get the productive machinery of this great country back on the track and going full speed ahead.

Let me say, or set out, if I might, a few ground rules at the outset. We can't waste time stating and restating the problems. The problems are obvious, painful, and perplexing.

What we want are some right answers, not a long list of alternative answers, theoretical and hypothetical, good and bad. We need to have attainable answers sharply defined and carefully sorted out with the pluses and the minuses of each clearly stated.

We are looking for action that is practical, possible, and as rapid in its effect as we can reasonably expect.

I don't have to tell all of you experts that there are many answers, most of which have been tried at some historic time. But before this conference ends, I would like to see and to have set before the American people a consistent and considered package of the most promising answers that you can find, some of which, or all of which, will restore economic stability and sustain economic growth in these United States.

If our country is economically healthy, the whole world will be economically healthier. Inflation is a worldwide epidemic and we will quarantine it in collaboration with our friends abroad.

As you test your answers against the hard rock of economic law, as you discard beguiling, instant cures for reliable remedies, as you try to treat the cause rather than the symptom, I ask you to bear in mind that no solution will work without a lot of willpower and individual sacrifice. America has plenty of both—a capacity for both.

Sacrifice is easy to ask of others. It is harder to demand of ourselves. Burdens never fall equally on everybody's shoulders, but we must seek to share them as widely as the prosperity we hope will follow. The burdens of battle against inflation will be lighter if every American, all 210 million of us, lends a hand.

There will be 10 more specialized meetings over the next few weeks culminating in a final 2-day session on September 27 and 28. When we are done, there will be some things we can agree on.

I hope these areas of agreement will be greater than the areas of disagreement. But it is a fact that our economic system, like our political system, is based on competition in the honest conflict between different interests and different opinions. So there will be some things about which we cannot reach a consensus.

This would be a dull country without dissenters. But fortunately that is not a foreseeable danger in this case. Where we disagree, it will be necessary for the President and the Congress to make some very hard decisions. Our political system is designed to do exactly that, relying in the end on the ultimate good sense of the American people.

That is why these conferences must be open to the public. After all, it is their business we are really talking about.

So, ladies and gentlemen, let's get to work.

At this point I would like to ask our newly sworn-in Chairman, Mr. Alan Greenspan, to give his outlook on the economy.

NOTE: The President spoke at 9:32 a.m. in the East Room at the White House.

For the President's remarks concluding the meeting, see page 1093 of this issue.

Federal Trade Commission

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Paul Rand Dixon for Reappointment as a Member of the Commission. September 5, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Paul Rand Dixon, of Nashville, Tenn., to be a member of the Federal Trade Commission. This is a reappointment for a term of 7 years.

Mr. Dixon has served as a member of the Federal Trade Commission since 1961. He also served as Chairman of the Commission until January 1, 1970. He joined the FTC in July 1938 as a trial attorney and subsequently engaged in antimonopoly practice work. In February 1957, he joined the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly Subcommittee as Counsel and Staff Director, before his appointment to the FTC.

He was born on September 29, 1913, in Nashville, Tenn., and attended public schools in Davidson County, Tenn. He received his A.B. degree from Vanderbilt University in 1936 and his LL.B. degree from the University of Florida in 1938. He is also a member of the American Bar Association and the Florida and Tennessee State Bar Associations. He served in the United States Navy from 1942 to 1945.

He is married to the former Doris Busby of Laurel, Miss., and they have two sons. They reside in Bethesda, Md.

Department of Defense

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Will Hill Tankersley To Be Deputy Assistant Secretary for Reserve Affairs. September 5, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Will Hill Tankersley, of Montgomery, Ala., to be Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Reserve Affairs. He succeeds Dr. Theodore Marrs who resigned effective May 7, 1974, to become Special Assistant to the President.

Since 1958, Mr. Tankersley has been vice president and director of Sterne, Agee & Leach, Inc., a Montgomery, Ala., investment and banking firm.

He was born on February 10, 1928, in Montgomery, Ala. He received his B.S. degree from the United States Military Academy in 1950 and his M.S. degree in economics from Auburn University in 1970. He served in the United States Army from 1950 to 1958 as a colonel.

He is a member of the Alabama Security Dealers Association and the Montgomery Area Chamber of Commerce.

He is married to the former Theda Clark Ball, and they have three children. They reside in Montgomery, Ala.

Federal Energy Administration

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Melvin A. Conant To Be Assistant Administrator for International Affairs. September 5, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Melvin A. Conant, of New York, N.Y., to be an Assistant Administrator for International Affairs of the Federal Energy Administration. He has been senior government relations counsellor of the Exxon Corp. since 1961.

Before joining the Exxon Corp. in 1961, Mr. Conant was a professor of international security affairs for the United States National War College. From 1955 to 1960, he served as associate administrative director for the Council on Foreign Relations in New York.

He was born on March 20, 1924, in New York, N.Y. He received his A.B. from Harvard College in 1949 and his M.A. from Harvard University in 1951. He served in the United States Army from 1942 to 1946. He has lectured at the Royal Naval College in England, and the National Defense College in Canada, and the United States Air Command and Staff College.

He is married to the former Christa Gaul, and they have three children. They reside in Arlington, Va.

Jewish High Holy Days

Message of the President. September 5, 1974

On the occasion of the High Holy Days, it is my pleasure to send special greetings to my fellow Americans of the Jewish Faith. Your inheritance of accumulated wisdom and moral precepts makes you strong guardians of the ideals of righteousness, justice and human dignity. This has given you a special sensitivity to the social needs of each generation. And this has also been the guiding force behind your impressive contributions to the vitality of our American democracy.

These solemn days of worship which you celebrate have a message for all Americans. They exhort us to search our souls, to render an inner accounting, and a self-examination of the standards we profess and the actions we perform. They invite us to a return to righteousness and truth and to a rebirth in the spirit of neighborliness and brotherhood. They remind us that we are in God's hands and that He has given us our lives in trust to use in His service.

At a time which urgently tests our will as a people to put humanity's interest above self-interest, we can be greatly sustained and guided by the traditions of valor and resilience that mark the history of the Jewish people.

GERALD R. FORD

NOTE: The message was made available by the White House Press Office. It was not issued in the form of a White House press release.

Conference on Inflation

The President's Remarks Concluding the Meeting of Economists and Members of Congress. September 5, 1974

Let me reiterate my appreciation for all of you being here.

I must confess that when I first heard of the resolution that was proposed in the Senate, I was somewhat apprehensive about an undertaking of this kind. But in the first few hours of this Administration, I reanalyzed the suggestion in relationship to the economic problems that have been well-displayed here. And it seemed to me, as I tried to say in the opening statement, this isn't a problem that only a President can solve. It is not a problem that only the Congress can solve. And it certainly is not a problem that any one element in our society can solve.

So, in response to the recommendation of a bipartisan effort in the Senate, I determined that it should be undertaken, that it should be in the open so the American people could see firsthand the consensus as well as the divergencies. And this was the first group, and I shared the apprehension that some have expressed, that men of high academic standing and great intellect couldn't sit in a gathering such as this and give a topflight presentation of the problem and some responsible suggestions.

But I think you gentlemen and ladies have set a very high example for those meetings that shall follow. And I happen to believe that with this outstanding gathering, and the things that have been done, those that will follow will likewise be of the same caliber and high quality.

So, I thank you not only for what you have contributed but the performance that I think has been superb.

And with those words, I think we probably ought to conclude the afternoon session and the day's labors and retire for a bit of relaxation and a reception and I cordially invite you all to come to the dining room for such a purpose.

Thank you very, very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 5:30 p.m. in the East Room at the White House.

For the President's remarks opening the meeting, see page 1091 of this issue.

United Way Campaign

The President's Recorded Remarks Urging Participation in the Campaign. September 6, 1974

Tonight I would like to talk with you about the special challenge this year's United Way campaign in your community faces. And I am speaking as one who has worked as a United Way volunteer in my own home town, as one who knows what the United Way campaign can do in your community.

The one annual campaign for your community agencies may still be called the United Fund or the Community Chest. But this year a new symbol for such campaigns has been adopted. We call it the United Way. This one effort each year to raise funds to help people in need is one of vast importance to you and to your community, and to the Nation as well.

The United Way symbolizes the very best in each of us and in each of our communities. It brings together men and women from every part of the community, all working together to help those who need help.

This is the way to handle community problems—a uniquely American way. We care about our less fortunate neighbors. We are willing to work to make our communities better and you in your community know far better than anyone in Washington which of your neighbors needs help and what is needed to make your community better.

That is why the United Way serves so very well, because it is an effort with a special goal and a special campaign, designed for the community involved.

It is impossible for me to discuss each of those community campaigns and problems individually, but tonight I want to talk with you about the urgent need for your support for your community's campaign.

The national goal for the United Way campaign this year is more than $1 billion—the largest goal of any campaign in our history.

But it is a critical goal this year. Last year your United Way pledge, with those of other Americans, helped 34 million families. That is a tremendously impressive total, but we can't help that many families this year with the amount of money we all pledged last year. I think you know the reason why.

The same problem that put the squeeze on your family budget and which is the number one concern of this Administration has hit the United Way, too. Inflation has taken its toll in the voluntary sector as well.

Last year, for example, in a typical community, the United Way could provide professional care for a retarded child for a little more than $6 a day. This year it costs $10 a day to provide the same professional care to the same child.

Last year a typical day care center could care for a child for $24 a week. This year it costs $30.

Last year a hot-meal program for senior citizens cost $1. Now that same meal costs $1.25.

The problem is where inflation causes you to cut back for the same sick and aged, and the dependent young, there is nothing left to cut. They cannot afford to lose the help they are now receiving. Your pledge to United Way in your community provides the most effective, the most economical, and efficient way to provide that help. The volunteer effort of the United Way workers insures that more of your dollars go to serve people. Your pledge to the United Way campaign in your community is an investment in a better community. It is an investment in a better Nation and a better world.

I ask you to join in, to give your fair share to make the United Way work for our fellow human beings this year, just as it has worked so well in the past.

Thank you for thinking of others.

NOTE: The President's remarks were filmed on Tuesday, September 3, 1974, for broadcast on television.

Strategic Arms Limitation Talks

Announcement of Reconvening of the Talks and Designation of the U.S. Delegation. September 6, 1974

The President today announced that the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks with the Soviet Union will reconvene on September 18, 1974, in Geneva. The United States Representative and Chief of the U.S. Delegation is Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson. The other members are:

DR. HAROLD BROWN, former Secretary of the Air Force and presently president of the California Institute of Technology, has served on the SALT Delegation since the beginning of the negotiations;

LT. GEN. EDWARD L. ROWNY, a career military officer, has served in NATO as Deputy Chairman of the Military Committee and as Chairman of the Working Group on Mutual and Balanced Force Reductions;

BORIS KLOSSON is a career Foreign Service officer who served as Deputy Chief of Mission at the American Embassy in Moscow from 1969 to 1972;

RALPH EARLE II is the Representative of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency on SALT;

DR. MICHAEL MAY is associate director at large of the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory of the University of California.

Reconvening of the First Continental Congress

The President's Remarks at a Dinner at the Conclusion of the Two-Day Meeting in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. September 6, 1974

Governor Shapp, let me say at the outset, I am deeply grateful for your overly generous and very kind remarks. I accept the invitation for July 4, 1976.

Mayor Rizzo, distinguished Governors, my beloved and wonderful former colleagues in the United States Senate and House of Representatives, distinguished guests, ladies and gentlemen:

It is a great privilege and a very high honor to have the opportunity of participating in this function tonight.

Philadelphia, the City of Brotherly Love, was the cradle of American liberty. "Love" and "liberty" are two pretty good words with which to start a nation.

I learned in school a good many years ago that the first shots of the American Revolution were fired at Concord and the last at Yorktown. But it was in Philadelphia that 56 patriots from 12 of the original 13 colonies convened two centuries ago to protest the military coercion of Massachusetts and the united economic action against the mother country. I am sure that the history books will show, in addition, that both George Washington and John Adams slept here. [Laughter]

"The . . . Congress," John Adams wrote home to his wife Abigail, "is tedious beyond expression. This assembly is like no other that ever existed. Every man is a great man, an orator, a critic, a statesman; and therefore every man upon every question must show his oratory, his criticism, and his political abilities."

"The consequence of this," Adams concluded wearily, "is that business is drawn and spun out to an immeasurable length."

Speaking as a former Congressman, I can assure you that more than once in the last 25 years—especially after a long, long debate in the House of Representatives—I have found myself saying pretty much the same to my wife, Betty.

Only the names have changed—that and the fact that John Adams never had to fix his own breakfast. [Laughter]

Yes, there was plenty of pessimism in the land in 1774 when that First Continental Congress gathered in the City Tavern over there some place. And the problems they faced were enough to drive the bravest patriots to a tavern.

Individually and collectively, the 13 colonies were divided by class, by tradition, by religion, by ethnic origins, and by economic interests. And as for a central structure of government, they had to make that up as they went along.

On the opening day of the First Continental Congress when the countdown to our independence began, Patrick Henry struck, I think, an appropriate and common chord. In his opening address, he declared, and I quote: "The distinctions between Virginians, Pennsylvanians, New Yorkers and New Englanders are no more. I am [not] a Virginian, but I am an American."

This, I think, is a unique insight into the attitude of the Congress: their determination of all for one and one for all. The punitive acts that were directed at Massachusetts and the closing of Boston Harbor would have diverted trade and commerce to other ports—to New York, to Philadelphia, to Baltimore, and to Norfolk. Yet unselfishly, even in that day, all the colonies knew that any such benefits would only be temporary—the cause of Boston in that day was the cause of all of them.

America has a sense of unity today. The cause of the South is the cause of the North; the cause of the West is the cause of the East. We are today, as our forefathers were, bound together in the great American experiment—the greatest experiment in the history of man governing himself.

Yet the American Revolution remains a lesson as to what a few, a very few, dedicated people can do. Today we number 50 States and span a continent. We reach northward to the Pacific and Alaska, and west to the islands of Hawaii. Our people number more than 211 million.

Two hundred years ago our population in those 13 sparsely populated colonies were 2½ million. Historians estimate that of that number only one-third—one-third out of 2½ million—provided the strength and the fiber and the dedication of the Revolution. We can call them the Patriots. Another third felt very deeply their allegiance to the Crown. Some served in the King's army; some fled to England, Canada, or other British colonies—they were the Loyalists. The other one-third sat on the fence. I guess today we would call them mugwumps. But history fortunately has long forgotten the timid.

Last December, the Congress created a Federal American Revolutionary Bicentennial Administration to coordinate and facilitate Bicentennial activities. The new Administration is now hard at work on a nonpartisan basis, with the Congress and the Bicentennial organizations in each of the 50 States, the territories, the District of Columbia, and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

Already some 1,300 cities, towns, villages, counties, some Indian tribes, embracing more than a third of our total population, have met the qualifications for the official "Bicentennial Communities" designation. Our new director of the Bicentennial, John Warner, tells me that the list is growing phenomenally, month by month. Thousands of programs, thousands of events are crowding the Bicentennial calendar.

It is interesting to note that a growing number of foreign governments are planning to participate in our Bicentennial. I think this is welcome news because there is no nation which is not a great part of our American heritage. The blood of all peoples flows in our veins. Whatever we are or have been able to accomplish, we owe in large measure to our richly diverse heritage from around the world.

If I remember my Bible correctly, I think this quote is appropriate: The beauty of Joseph's coat is its many colors.

But may I offer my own idea on how best to commemorate the Bicentennial. Let us all, during the coming months, study carefully the character, study the qualities of the men who founded this Nation. Let us try to grasp the stuff that was inside of each of them and all of them collectively. And then, let us release, if we can, the same spirit within ourselves. We have the same capacity for unity, discipline, and sacrifice. Let us show the world that the character and quality of the American people has not changed in 200 years.

What we are really doing, as we celebrate our Nation's 200th birthday, is actually laying the cornerstone of America's third century. And every citizen of this great Nation should have his or her name inscribed on that imaginary stone so that all who come after us can say, as we say of the 56 who labored here for us, "They gave of themselves. They cared."

I am especially glad to note that we are launching the celebration of our Bicentennial right here in the great city of Philadelphia where the first of my two predecessors as Presidents labored as members of the First Continental Congress. I am glad that this period of national rededication, which will extend to July 4, 1976, begins on this almost forgotten day, when the colonial delegates wrestled with their common problems of skyrocketing prices, shrinking purchasing power, shortages, hoarding, and financial speculation.

It was interesting to me to find, in reading the document which recorded what was said here, that the men and women of 1774 were inflation fighters before they took up arms against the British redcoats. Actually, they met voluntarily to wage economic warfare for their future freedom and prosperity, even before the Liberty Bell tolled the birth of a new nation.

The spirit of 1774 was a sudden quickening of American unity in the face of common calamity, of confidence, of patriotism, and determination of the people themselves, and of mutual willingness to take risks and to make sacrifices for the good of all.

In my judgment, there are two very important things to remember about our American Revolution. It was not a revolution to tear down what the colonists had, but to preserve the freedoms, to preserve the rights of free Englishmen, and to expand the material prosperity that they already enjoyed for generations on this bountiful continent. It was not a revolution to make life better for themselves, but to make sure that these blessings would continue for their children and their children's children.

The men who gathered here 200 years ago put it in these words, and I quote, "It is a duty," they wrote in this fabulous document, "which we owe to God, our country, ourselves, and posterity . . . to maintain, defend and preserve those civil and religious rights and liberties, for which many of our fathers fought, bled and died, and to hand them down [entire] to future generations."

What beautiful words—words which they made into deeds.

In short, the inflation fighters of 1774 were not much different from the inflation fighters of 1974 who started a series of conferences in Washington yesterday. Then as now there are no easy answers. Then as now they had to depend very heavily on popular understanding and public support. For example, John Rutledge of South Carolina might have given the very same speech at the opening of the White House conference yesterday that he gave precisely in this point 200 years ago. And with your indulgence, let me quote from John Rutledge in Philadelphia 200 years ago:

"We have no legal authority; and obedience to our determinations will only follow the reasonableness, the apparent utility and necessity of the measures we adopt. We have no coercive or legislative authority. Our constituents are bound only in honor to observe our determination."

What are some of these determinations? I have been browsing through this journal of the First Continental Congress, and I must say to my former colleagues in the Congress, it reads a lot easier than the Congressional Record when I was a contributor to that document. But except for the elegant language and the more eloquent age, it deals with the very real problems that are amazingly contemporary. And let me now ask you to listen to this:

"Resolved, that all manufactures of this country be sold at reasonable prices, so that no undue advantage be taken of a future scarcity of goods."

I continue the quote from this document:

"Such as are venders of goods or merchandise will not take advantage of the scarcity of goods, that may be occasioned by this association, but will sell the same at the rates we have been respectively accustomed to for the last 12 months past."

And then follows some good advice, and I quote again:

"And if any vender of goods or merchandise shall sell any such goods on higher terms, . . . no person ought, nor will any of us deal with any such person, or his or her factor or agent."

I hope you noticed the last phrase in that last quote, and I say this to our liberated women: Please note, "His or her factor or agent." [Laughter]

We have heard an awful lot—a lot of talk about our Founding Fathers. Let's not forget our Founding Mothers. Obviously they didn't.

But these resolutions continue, and again I quote:

"That a committee be chosen in every county, city, and town, by those who are qualified to vote for the representatives of the state legislature, whose business it shall be attentively to observe the conduct of all persons touching this association."

It goes on, and again I quote:

"We will, in our several stations, encourage frugality, economy, and industry, and promote agriculture, the arts, and the manufactures of this country . . . and will discountenance and discourage every species of extravagance and dissipation."

These are the conclusions of the First Continental Congress. These were chosen at random, but they convey the sense of urgency and unity which existed here, right here, two centuries ago.

I happen to believe there is the same sense of urgency and unity in America today. I have encountered it in Washington and throughout our country. I know it is the reason for this distinguished gathering here tonight in the shadow of Independence Hall.

You who are Governors, Senators, Representatives, mayors, and other public officials elected by the people have told me individually and collectively that you share this sense of urgency, this sense of unity. So I have come here tonight to ask your help and the help of some 211 million Americans, not only in celebrating what is right about America but in correcting what is wrong about America.

The tyranny of the British Parliament and Crown in 1774 animated our ancestors. The tyranny of double-digit inflation is our common enemy in 1974. I think everybody in this wonderful audience tonight knows as well as I do that inflation is the cruelest kind of taxation without representation.

I have decided that the first priority for us as a Nation, domestically, is an all-out war against inflation. Like the patriots who met here some 200 years ago, we may seem to be moving cautiously and too deliberately. But I hope no one will underestimate the generalship or fighting ability of all Americans today the same way they did in 1774. I warn you, as wise old Ben Franklin did, that if we do not all hang together, we certainly will all hang separately. But we will not hang separately, nor will we fall divided. We are going after—one and all, Democrats, Independents, and Republicans—we are going after what I term public enemy number one, inflation, in 1974, and we will lick it by July 4, 1976.

I think we must recognize, to be honest, that we will have our Valley Forges, our summer soldiers and sunshine patriots. But we are the descendants, we are the heirs, spiritually if not genealogically, of the patriots who assembled here 200 years ago tonight.

I told my wife, Betty, that I knew this speech backwards, and I think that is the way I am doing it. [Laughter]

And we may truly say, as Joseph Warren of Massachusetts wrote in the Suffolk Resolves, delivered to the First Continental Congress by Paul Revere, and again I quote, "on the fortitude, on the wisdom and on the exertions of this important day, is suspended the fate of this new world, and of unborn millions."

We must not let them down.

With your help, we will—we will win our battle against inflation.

What better way can we begin our third century of independence as a Nation of liberty under God and brotherly love for all.

Thank you very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 9:44 p.m. at Independence Mall, Philadelphia, Pa. Governors and legislative leaders from the States formed from the original Thirteen Colonies participated in the ceremonial reconvening of the First Continental Congress. During the 2-day meeting, they discussed and signed resolutions on a number of contemporary national issues.

Digest of Other White House Announcements

Following is a listing of items of general interest which were announced to the press during the period covered by this issue but which are not carried elsewhere in the issue. Appointments requiring Senate approval are not included since they appear in the list of nominations submitted to the Senate, below.

August 31

The President met with Attorney General William B. Saxbe and Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger to receive their recommendations for earned reentry into American society for military deserters and draft evaders of the Vietnam War.

Following the death of Prime Minister Norman E. Kirk of New Zealand, the President sent a message of condolence to Mrs. Kirk and the Prime Minister's family. The White House later announced that the President had designated Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan to serve as Personal Representative of the President at the memorial services in Wellington on Wednesday, September 4, 1974. The U.S. delegation to the memorial services also includes U.S. Ambassador to New Zealand Armistead I. Selden, Jr., former U.S. Ambassador to New Zealand John F. Henning, and Senator Vance Hartke of Indiana.

The President announced the appointment of Senator John Tower and Owen K. Garriott, Deputy Director for Science and Applications, NASA, to serve as members of the U.S. delegation to the Farnborough International Air Show in Farnborough, England, September 2-8, 1974.

September 1

The President telephoned Maj. James V. Sullivan and Maj. Noel F. Widdifield, USAF, shortly after they landed in Farnborough, England, to congratulate them on their recordbreaking flight of under 2 hours from New York to London.

September 2

Arnold R. Miller, president of the United Mine Workers of America, met with the President at the White House.

September 3

The White House announced that the President has invited approximately 700 individuals to participate in the Summit Conference on Inflation. Each of the participants will attend one of 10 preliminary conferences as well as the main conference in Washington on September 27-28.

The President announced the promotion of Brig. Gen. Richard W. Lawson, Military Assistant to the President, to the rank of major general in the United States Air Force.

Paul Ribner, newly elected national commander of the Jewish War Veterans, met with the President.

James W. Wagoner, newly elected national commander of the American Legion, met with the President.

The President directed the Secretaries of Labor and Commerce to certify the workers and former workers of Sbicca of California, Inc., South El Monte, Calif., as eligible to apply for adjustment assistance.

Pursuant to Proclamation 4076, the President has increased by 6 percent the tariff rate quota on stainless steel knives, forks, and spoons valued at under 25 cents each, effective October 1, 1974.

September 4

The President greeted a group of chief executive officers of several insurance companies who were meeting with William J. Baroody, Jr., Special Consultant to the President, in the Roosevelt Room.

The President has sent a letter of condolence to Mrs. Joseph A. Beirne following the death of her husband, past president of the Communications Workers of America, AFL-CIO.

The White House announced that, at the request of the President, Anne L. Armstrong and Dean Burch will remain on the White House Staff as Counsellors to the President.

The White House announced that the President intends to recommend the nomination of Mary Louise Smith of Iowa as Republican National Chairman succeeding George H. Bush when the Republican National Committee meets on September 16 to select a new Chairman. The President also has indicated his pleasure with her intention to appoint Richard D. Obenshain of Virginia as Cochairman. On the previous day, the President met separately with Mrs. Smith and Mr. Obenshain.

September 5

The President participated in a promotion ceremony at the White House for Maj. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, Deputy Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs, who is being promoted to the rank of lieutenant general in the United States Air Force.

Jack M. Streight, Imperial Potentate for the Shrine of North America, met with the President.

September 6

The President met with leaders of several national women's organizations at the White House.

The President transmitted to the Congress the 1973 annual report of the Secretary of the Interior on the administration of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969.

The White House announced the appointment of Philip Warden as Editor of the President's daily news summary.

The President met with the National Security Council.

The President met with E. Douglas Kenna, president, and Donald A. Gaudion, chairman of the board, National Association of Manufacturers; and Arch N. Booth, president, and Charles H. Smith, chairman of the board, U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

NOMINATIONS SUBMITTED TO THE SENATE

The following list does not include promotions of members of the Uniformed Services, nominations to the Service Academies, or nominations of Foreign Service officers.

Submitted September 5, 1974

WILL HILL TANKERSLEY, of Alabama, to be Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Reserve Affairs, vice Theodore C. Marrs, resigned.

MELVIN A. CONANT, of New York, to be an Assistant Administrator of the Federal Energy Administration (new position).

PAUL RAND DIXON, of Tennessee, to be a Federal Trade Commissioner for the term of 7 years from September 26, 1974 (reappointment).

JOHN SHERMAN COOPER, of Kentucky, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to the German Democratic Republic.

KENNETH RUSH, of New York, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to France.

ACTS APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT

Approved August 30, 1974

H.R. 3620----- Public Law 93-402
An act to establish the Great Dismal Swamp National Wildlife Refuge.

H.R. 15205----- Public Law 93-403
Natural Gas Pipeline Safety Act Amendments of 1974.

S. 2510----- Public Law 93-400
Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act.
S.J. Res. 220----- Public Law 93-398
Joint resolution to provide for the reappointment of Doctor William A. M. Burden as citizen regent of the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution.

S.J. Res. 221----- Public Law 93-399
Joint resolution to provide for the reappointment of Doctor Caryl P. Haskins as citizen regent of the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution.

S.J. Res. 222----- Public Law 93-401
Joint resolution to provide for the appointment of Doctor Murray Gell-Mann as citizen regent of the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution.

ACTS APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT—Continued

Approved August 31, 1974

H.R. 15581----- Public Law 93-405
District of Columbia Appropriation Act, 1975.

H.R. 16027----- Public Law 93-404
Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1975.

Approved September 2, 1974

H.R. 2----- Public Law 93-406
Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.

Approved September 3, 1974

H.R. 6485----- Public Law 93-411
An act to amend the tobacco marketing quota provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938.

H.R. 11864----- Public Law 93-409
Solar Heating and Cooling Demonstration Act of 1974.

H.R. 14920----- Public Law 93-410
Geothermal Energy Research, Development, and Demonstration Act of 1974.

H.R. 15842----- Public Law 93-407
An act to increase compensation for District of Columbia policemen, firemen, and teachers; to increase annuities payable to retired teachers in the District of Columbia; to establish an equitable tax on real property in the District of Columbia; to provide for additional revenue for the District of Columbia; and for other purposes.

S. 1871----- Public Law 93-408
An act to amend the Youth Conservation Corps Act of 1972 (Public Law 92-597, 86 Stat. 1319) to expand and make permanent the Youth Conservation Corps, and for other purposes.

S. 3703----- Public Law 93-412
District of Columbia Criminal Justice Act.

Approved September 4, 1974

H.R. 13999----- Public Law 93-413
National Science Foundation Authorization Act, 1975.

H.R. 15572----- Public Law 93-414
Department of Housing and Urban Development; Space, Science, Veterans, and Certain Other Independent Agencies Appropriation Act, 1975.

CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES

The following releases of the Office of the White House Press Secretary, distributed during the period covered by this issue, are not included in the issue.

Released August 31, 1974

Fact sheet: Federal pay raise proposal and Federal civilian employment reductions

Released September 2, 1974

Fact sheet: pension reform bill
News conference: on pension reform bill—by Richard F. Schubert, Under Secretary, Paul J. Fasser, Jr., Assistant Secretary for Labor-Management Relations, William J. Kilberg, Solicitor, Labor Department; Stephen S. Gardner, Deputy Secretary of the Treasury; and Donald C. Alexander, Commissioner, Internal Revenue Service

Released September 4, 1974

Biographical data: Anne L. Armstrong
Biographical data: Dean Burch
Biographical data: Alan Greenspan
News conference: following a meeting with the President—by Senator Joseph M. Montoya, Representative Manuel Lujan and Fernando DeBaca, Special Assistant to the President for Hispanic Affairs

Released September 6, 1974

News conference: on the September 5 meeting of the conference on inflation—by Alan Greenspan, Chairman, Council of Economic Advisers
Biographical data: Philip Warden
News conference: following the President's meeting with leaders of national women's organizations—by Marie Bowden, president, National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., Rhea Mojica Hammer, vice chairwoman, National Women's Political Caucus, and Anne L. Armstrong, Counsellor to the President

Advance text: remarks at the reconvening of the First Continental Congress, Philadelphia, Pa.

CUMULATIVE INDEX TO PRIOR ISSUES

Third Quarter, 1974

[See Index of Contents for Documents in this Issue]

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon

ABM. See Anti-ballistic missile systems
 Acts approved. See last page of text in each issue

Addresses and Remarks of the President

Ash, Roy L., dinner honoring the President	819
Belgium, visit	718, 727, 728, 732
Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, signing ceremony	799
Economy, national, address to Nation	830
Farewell remarks to Cabinet and White House Staff	1019
French gift for the American Revolution Bicentennial, exchange of remarks with French Ambassador Jacques Kosciuszko-Morizet	796
Loring Air Force Base, Maine, report to Nation on Soviet visit	766
Lowman, Dr. Charles LeRoy, Medal of Freedom presentation	997
National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency	813
People's Republic of China, martial arts and acrobatic troupe visit to the White House	801
Resignation, address to Nation	1014
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, visit	718, 727, 735, 742, 744, 748, 766
United States Space Week, 1974	815
Vice President Gerald R. Ford, remarks following President's resignation announcement	1018
Administrative Conference of the United States, Chairman	1003, 1005
Adult Education, National Advisory Council on	1021
Agriculture, Department of Appropriations, veto	1014
Secretary	796, 799, 803, 1000
Albrecht, Richard R.	804
Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration	806, 818
Alsop, Donald D.	1022
American Revolution Bicentennial, French gift	796, 797, 804
Annenberg, Walter H.	817
Anthony, Robert Armstrong	1003, 1005
Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocols to treaty on the limitation of	750, 756
Antigua, U.S. Special Representative	994

Appointments and Nominations

Administrative Conference of the United States, Chairman	1003, 1005
Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, Administrator	806, 818
Ambassador, U.S., to Syria	999, 1005
Corporation for Public Broadcasting, Board of Directors, members	1010, 1022
Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman	828, 995
Council on International Economic Policy, Executive Director	788, 804
Federal Aviation Administration, Deputy Administrator	817, 995
Federal Energy Administration, Assistant Administrator	789, 804
General Counsel	789, 804
Office of Intergovernmental and Regional Relations, Director	839, 1005

Appointments and Nominations—Continued

Federal Regional Councils, Chairmen	829
Foreign Claims Settlement Commission, Chairman	793
Members	804, 839, 1005
Interior Department, Assistant Secretary	838, 1005
United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Director	838, 1005
International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission	1021
Justice Department, Assistant Attorney General	998, 1005
Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, Administrator	999, 1005
National Commission for the Observation of World Population Year, 1974, members	798
National Corporation for Housing Partnerships, Board of Directors, member	1022
Office of Economic Opportunity, Director	807, 1005
President's Commission on White House Fellowships, members	830
Securities and Exchange Commission, member	806, 818
State Department, Assistant Inspector General, Foreign Assistance	830
Assistant Secretary	1002, 1005
Treasury Department, Deputy Secretary	804
General Counsel	804
U.S. attorney, Texas	804
U.S. circuit judge, 2d circuit	804, 1022
U.S. Court of Military Appeals, Associate judge	1003, 1005
Chief judge, withdrawal of prior nomination	1022
U.S. district judges, Georgia	804
Minnesota	1022
U.S. marshals, California	804
Louisiana	803, 818
White House Staff, Deputy Assistant	795
Special Assistant	816
Appropriations bill, veto	1014
Arends, Repr. Leslie C.	802
Argentina, President Juan Domingo Peron, death	771
Armed Forces, United States	729, 731
Arms control and disarmament	750, 751, 753, 755, 756, 763, 764, 769
Armstrong, Anne L.	802, 815
Army, Department of the, Assistant Secretary	802
Arnett, Alvin J.	817
Ash, Roy L.	802, 804, 817, 819, 994
Atlantic Relations, Declaration on	728, 731
Atomic Energy Commission	1009, 1021
Augelli, Anthony T.	1004
Awards and Citations, Presidential Medal of Freedom	997, 1005
Baker, Repr. LaMar	802
Balaguer, Joaquin	1021
Barbados, U.S. Ambassador to	994
Baudouin I, King	728, 732, 790

Belgium, King Baudouin I	728, 732, 790
President's visit, Arrival in Brussels	728
Declaration of Atlantic Relations	729, 731
Departure from Washington	718, 727
Luncheon in Brussels	732
Prime Minister Leo Tindermans	790
Bell, J. Raymond	793, 804
Berg, Eugene E.	802
Bicentennial, American Revolution	796, 797, 804

Bill Signings

Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, remarks and statement	799, 800
Department of Defense Appropriations Authorization Act, 1975, statement	1007
Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974, statement	838
Birknes, John A.	804
Bisplinghoff, Raymond L.	1021
Bohanon, Luther	1004
Brandy imports	807
Brennan, Peter J.	802
Brezhnev, L. I.	735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
Broadcasting, Corporation for Public	1010, 1022
Budget, federal spending	799, 800, 821, 832, 1014
Budget, Office of Management and. See Management and Budget, Office of
Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, Congressional	799, 800, 804
Burch, Dean	791, 802, 995
Burnham, D.C.	830
Burns, Arthur F.	802
Business and industry, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	741, 759, 791
Butz, Earl L.	803
Cabinet, Meetings with the President	802, 1021
President's farewell remarks	1019
California, U.S. marshal	804
Callaghan, James	999
Captive Nations Week, 1974	801
Carlos, Prince Juan	814
Carlson, Jack W.	838, 1005
Cary, Frank	794
Casey, Thomas R.	828, 829
Central Intelligence Agency	1008
Checklist of unpublished releases. See last page of text in each issue
China, People's Republic of, Wushu Troupe, visit to the White House	801
Civil defense medical and food stockpiles	796
Claims Settlement Commission, Foreign	793, 804, 839, 1005
Clements, William P., Jr.	1012
Coffee Agreement, International	796
Cole, Kenneth R., Jr.	830
Colombia, President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen, inauguration	994
U.S. Ambassador to	994
Combined Federal Campaign	1012
Commerce, Department of, Secretary	788, 1000

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon—Continued

- Hartman, Arthur A.----- 791
 Hays, David W.----- 829
 Hazardous materials transportation-- 802
 Health, cooperation with U.S.S.R.----- 740, 761, 791
 Health, Education, and Welfare, Department of Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration. See Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration
 Secretary----- 802, 804
 Health Cooperation, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee for----- 740, 761
 Heart and Lung Advisory Council, National----- 998
 Heart research, cooperation with U.S.S.R.----- 740, 761, 791
 Helms, Richard----- 1009
 Herndon, Lillie E.----- 1010, 1022
 Hodgson, James D.----- 802
 Hogan, Repr. Lawrence J.----- 995
 Hostetter, Amos B., Jr.----- 1010, 1022
 Housing, cooperation with U.S.S.R.----- 739, 761, 791
 Housing and Other Construction, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in----- 739, 761
 Housing Partnerships, National Corporation for----- 1022
 Housing and Urban Development, Department of, Secretary----- 799, 1003, 1005
 Hunt, E. Howard----- 841, 870
 Hurwitch, Robert A.----- 1021
 Iceland, Special Ambassador to 1100th anniversary----- 994
 Immunity from prosecution----- 1011
 Impeachment inquiry
See also Watergate investigation
 Brief submitted to the House Judiciary Committee----- 840
 Impeachable offense----- 826
 Internal Revenue Service----- 842, 983
 International Telephone and Telegraph----- 841, 945
 Milk support price----- 842, 958, 963
 News conference by Special Counsel St. Clair----- 822
 Presidential tapes and documents----- 822-828, 1008
 Wiretaps----- 807, 841, 923
 Imports, brandy----- 807
 Impoundment Control Act of 1974, Congressional Budget and-- 799, 800, 804
 Independence Day, 1974----- 790
 Industry. See Business and industry.
 Interior, Department of the
 Assistant Secretary----- 838, 1005
 Office of Oil and Gas, Associate Director----- 803
 Secretary----- 802, 994
 Under Secretary----- 802
 United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Director----- 838, 1005
 Internal Revenue Service, impeachment inquiry----- 842, 983
 International Coffee Agreement----- 796
 International Economic Policy, Council on----- 788, 804
 International Maritime Traffic Convention----- 998
 International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission----- 1021
 International Telephone and Telegraph----- 841, 945
 Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor-- 790
 I.T.T. See International Telephone and Telegraph
 Jackson, Levi A.----- 830
 Japan, U.S. Ambassador to----- 802
 Jenner, Albert E., Jr.----- 824
 Johnston, Donald A.----- 994
 Joint Statements
 Union of Soviet Socialist Republics-- 753
 Jones, Sidney L.----- 795
 Judiciary Committee, House----- 791, 818, 822, 840, 995, 1008
 Justice, Department of
 Assistant Attorney General----- 998, 1005
 Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. See Law Enforcement Assistance Administration
 Special Prosecutor----- 1008
 Karamanlis, Konstantinos----- 994
 Keene, Joseph W.----- 803, 818
 Kelly, Bernard----- 829
 Key Biscayne, Fla.----- 790, 802
 King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr.----- 771
 Kissinger, Dr. Henry A.----- 763, 791, 807, 814, 817, 1018, 1021
 Klein, Herbert G.----- 994
 Kleindienst, Richard G.----- 842, 951
 Korff, Baruch----- 813, 817, 818, 1021
 Kosciusko-Morizet, Jacques----- 796
 Kosygin, A. N.----- 740, 790
 Labor, Department of, Secretary----- 802
 Labor, railway dispute----- 789
 Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, Administrator----- 999, 1005
 Letters, Messages, Telegrams
See also Congress, Communications to
 Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman Herbert Stein, exchange of letters on resignation----- 815
 French gift for the American Revolution Bicentennial, exchange of letters with French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing----- 797
 Resignation, letter to the Secretary of State----- 1021
 Livestock Credit Act of 1974, Emergency----- 838
 Loomis, Philip A., Jr.----- 806, 818
 Loring Air Force Base, Maine----- 766, 790
 Louisiana, U.S. marshal----- 803, 818
 Lowman, Dr. Charles LeRoy----- 997, 1005
 Lung Advisory Council, National Heart and----- 998
 Luns, Joseph----- 728
 Lynn, James T.----- 1003, 1005
 Management and Budget, Office of, Director----- 802, 804, 817, 819, 994
 Maritime Traffic Convention, International----- 998
 Martinez, Samuel----- 829
 Massachusetts, U.S. marshal----- 804
 Mauritania, U.S. Ambassador to----- 994
 McAninch, Vernon D.----- 994
 Mead, Dana----- 802
 Medals. See Awards and Citations
 Medical stockpiles for civil defense-- 798
 Meetings with Foreign Leaders
 Belgium
 King Baudouin I.----- 728, 732, 790
 Prime Minister Leo Tindermans-- 790
 Germany, Federal Republic of, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt----- 790
 Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor-- 790
 Union of Soviet Socialist Republics
 Chairman N. V. Podgorny----- 790
 General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev-- 735, 748, 790
 Premier A. N. Kosygin----- 790
 United Kingdom, Prime Minister Harold Wilson----- 790
 Memorandums to Federal Agencies
 Combined Federal Campaign----- 1012
 Mental Health Administration, Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and----- 806, 818
 Meskill, Thomas J.----- 1022
 Middle East
 North Atlantic Council meeting, remarks----- 731
 U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint communique----- 758
 Military Appeals, U.S. Court of----- 1003, 1005, 1022
 Milk, support price----- 842, 958, 963
 Minnesota
 Disaster assistance----- 805
 U.S. district judge----- 1022
 Missile systems, protocol to treaty on the limitation of anti-ballistic-- 750, 756
 Mitchell, John N.----- 842, 951
 Monagan, Robert T.----- 1021
 Montgomery, Robert E., Jr.----- 789, 804
 Morton, Rogers C.B.----- 802, 994
 Mount Vernon, French sound and light spectacle for American Revolution Bicentennial----- 796, 797, 804
 Murphy, Richard W.----- 994, 999, 1005
 National Advisory Council on Adult Education----- 1021
 National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services----- 802
 National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency----- 813, 818, 1021
 National Commission for the Observance of World Population Year, 1974-- 798
 National Corporation for Housing Partnerships----- 1022
 National Forest Products Week, 1974-- 1000
 National Heart and Lung Advisory Council----- 998
 National Science Foundation----- 1021
 National Student Government Day, 1974----- 1010
 Natural resources, forests----- 1000
 New Jersey, U.S. district judge----- 1004
 New York, disaster assistance----- 829
 News Conferences Other Than Presidential
 Congressional support assessment, Republican Congressional leadership----- 1010
 House Judiciary Committee impeachment inquiry, Special Counsel St. Clair----- 822
 President's visit to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Secretary of State Kissinger----- 763
 Nominations submitted to the Senate. See last page of text in each issue
 North Atlantic Treaty Organization
 Brussels meeting with North Atlantic Council----- 728, 731, 732, 769
 Cyprus conflict----- 820
 Declaration on Atlantic Relations-- 729, 731
 Secretary General Joseph Luns----- 728
 Nuclear powerplants----- 1009
 Nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of underground----- 751
 Office. See other part of title
 Ohio, disaster assistance----- 798
 Oklahoma, U.S. district judge----- 1004
 O'Neill, John Ellis----- 802
 Otis, Webster----- 829
 Parker, Joseph O.----- 1021
 People's Republic of China. See China, People's Republic of
 Peron, Juan Domingo----- 771
 Pettit, John Whitney----- 1010, 1022
 Podgorny, N. V.----- 739, 741, 790
 Population control----- 798

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon—Continued

Population Year, 1974, National Commission on the Observance of World..	798	Rush, Kenneth.....	802, 804, 817, 995, 1002	Strategic arms limitation.....	750, 753, 755, 756, 763, 764, 769
Post, Marjorie Meriweather.....	802	St. Christopher-Nevis-Anguilla, U.S. Special Representative.....	994	Strategy Council on Drug Abuse.....	1021
Presidency, National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the.....	813, 818, 1021	St. Clair, James D.....	787, 802, 804, 822, 829, 1008	Student Government Day, 1974, National.....	1010
Presidential Medal of Freedom, Dr. Charles LeRoy Lowman.....	997, 1005	St. Lucia, U.S. Special Representative.....	994	Supplementary Centers and Services, National Advisory Council on.....	802
Presidential tapes and documents.....	822-828, 1008	St. Vincent, U.S. Special Representative.....	994	Supreme Court of the United States.....	772, 802, 822-829, 1008
President's Commission on White House Fellowships.....	830, 1002	Saletic, William G.....	1021	Surganov, F. A.....	742
President's travel		SALT. See Strategic arms limitation		Syria, U.S. Ambassador to.....	999, 1005
Domestic		San Clemente, Calif.....	803, 994, 1004	Tariff Commission, United States.....	1021
Bel Air, Calif.....	819, 994	Sant, Roger West.....	789, 804	Taylor, Joseph Z.....	830
Los Angeles, Calif.....	830	Sawhill, John C.....	788	Technology. See Science and technology
Palm Beach, Fla.....	802	Scalia, Antonin M.....	998, 1005	Telegraph and telephone regulations.....	1007
Foreign		Schmidt, Helmut.....	790	Texas, U.S. attorney.....	804
Belgium.....	718, 727-735	Science and technology, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	737, 740, 741, 761, 791	Tindermans, Leo.....	790
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.....	718, 735-771	Scott, Sen. Hugh.....	802, 1010	Trade
Proclamations		Securities and Exchange Commission.....	806, 818	Coffee.....	796
Captive Nations Week, 1974 (Proc. 4302).....	801	Security and Cooperation in Europe, Conference on.....	757	Multilateral negotiations.....	1013
Imports of brandy (Proc. 4304).....	807	Sequoia meetings, with certain Members of Congress.....	802	Regulation of exports.....	999
National Forest Products Week, 1974 (Proc. 4305).....	1000	Simon, William E.....	802, 1004, 1005	Trade Reform Act, proposed.....	1013
National Student Government Day, 1974 (Proc. 4307).....	1010	Sirica, John J.....	1008	Transportation
United Nations Day, 1974 (Proc. 4300).....	794	Sisco, Joseph J.....	817	Cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	762
United States Customs 185th Anniversary Year (Proc. 4306).....	1008	Smith, Elmer E.....	829	Urban.....	1001
United States Space Week, 1974 (Proc. 4303).....	805	Smith, Wilfred J.....	839, 1005	Transportation, Department of
White Cane Safety Day, 1974 (Proc. 4301).....	794	Snyder, Daniel J., III.....	829	Assistant Secretary.....	1021
World Population Year, 1974 (Proc. 4299).....	793	Southward, Maj. Gen. Charles L.....	802	Federal Aviation Administration.....	817, 995
Railway labor-management dispute.....	789	Spatz, Gen. Carl A.....	807	Treasury, Department of the
Raven, Jack E.....	829	Space program, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	762	Deputy Secretary.....	804
Reports to the President		Space Week, 1974, United States.....	805, 815	General Counsel.....	804
Emergency Board No. 185, railway labor dispute.....	789	Spain		Secretary.....	802, 1004, 1005
Research, medical.....	740, 761, 791	Foreign Minister Pedro Mauri Cortina.....	814	United States Customs Service.....	1008
Resignation, President's		Joint declaration of principles with U.S.....	814	Treaties and other international agreements
Address to Nation.....	1014	Prince Juan Carlos.....	814	Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol to treaty on the limitation of.....	750
Letter to Secretary of State.....	1021	State, Department of		Declaration on Atlantic Relations.....	729
Possibility of.....	1010	Assistant Inspector General, Foreign Assistance.....	830	Economic, industrial, and technical cooperation agreement with U.S.S.R.....	741
Press Secretary Ziegler, remarks to reporters.....	1018	Assistant Secretaries.....	791, 1002, 1005	Energy agreement with U.S.S.R.....	737
Resignations and Retirements		Secretary.....	763, 791, 802, 807, 814, 817, 1018, 1021	Heart research agreement with U.S.S.R.....	740
Ambassadors		Under Secretary.....	817	Housing and construction agreement with U.S.S.R.....	739
Barbados.....	994	Statements by the President		International Maritime Traffic Convention.....	998
Ghana.....	994	Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, signing ceremony.....	800	Telegraph and telephone regulations.....	1007
Mauritania.....	994	Deaths		Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of.....	751
Army Department, Assistant Secretary.....	802	Dean, Dizzy.....	813	Trione, Henry F.....	1022
Atomic Energy Commission, member.....	1021	King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr.....	771	Turkey, Cyprus conflict.....	817, 820
Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman.....	815	Peron, Juan Domingo.....	771	Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of.....	751
District of Columbia, National Guard, Commanding General.....	802	Spatz, Gen. Carl A.....	807	Union of Soviet Socialist Republics
Federal Energy Administration, Assistant Administrator.....	1004	Warren, Earl.....	795	Agreements with U.S.
National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services, member.....	802	Department of Defense Appropriation Authorization Act, 1975, bill signing.....	1007	Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol on the limitation of.....	750, 756
National Science Foundation, Board member.....	1021	Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974.....	838	Construction.....	739, 761, 791
Office of Economic Opportunity, Director.....	817	Energy conservation.....	788	Economic, industrial, and technical.....	741, 759, 791
Transportation Department, Assistant Secretary.....	1021	Independence Day, 1974.....	790	Energy.....	737, 761, 791
U.S. district judge		Joint declaration of principles between the United States and Spain.....	814	Heart research.....	740, 761, 791
New Jersey.....	1004	Supreme Court decision on Presidential tapes and documents.....	829	Housing.....	739, 761, 791
Oklahoma.....	1004	Tapes of Presidential conversations, release.....	1008	Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of.....	751
Rhodes, Repr. John J.....	802, 1010	Statements Other Than Presidential		Chairman N. V. Podgorny.....	739, 741, 790
Rural areas		Brussels meeting with the North Atlantic Council, Press Secretary.....	731	General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev.....	735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
Federal facilities.....	1000	Ziegler.....		Joint statements.....	753
Government services, report transmittal.....	1021	Uranium supplies, Deputy Press Secretary Warren.....	1009	North Atlantic Council meeting, remarks.....	731
		Stein, Herbert.....	802, 815, 817, 818	Premier A. N. Kosygin.....	740, 790

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon—Continued

United Kingdom		Veto Messages and Memorandums of Disapproval		Weinberger, Caspar W.-----	802, 804
Foreign Minister James Callaghan---	999			Whitaker, John C.-----	802
Prime Minister Harold Wilson-----	790			White Cane Safety Day, 1974-----	794
U.S. Ambassador to-----	817	Appropriations bill-----	1014	White House Fellows-----	1002
United Nations Day, 1974-----	794			White House Fellowships, President's Commission on-----	830, 1002
United States Courts. See Courts, United States		Vice President. See Ford, Vice President Gerald R.		White House Staff
United States Customs 185th Anniversary Year-----	1008	Virgin Islands, drought, emergency assistance-----	828	Communications Director-----	994
United States Space Week, 1974----	805, 815	Walters, Vernon A.-----	1009	Counsellor for Economic Policy-----	802, 804, 817, 995, 1002
United States Tariff Commission-----	1021	Warren, Earl-----	795		791, 802, 995
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Commercial Commission...	741	Warren, Gerald L.-----	1009, 1012	Counsellors-----	795
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in the Field of Energy----	737, 761	Watergate investigation		Deputy Assistant-----	795
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in Housing and Other Construction-----	739, 761	See also Impeachment inquiry		Deputy Press Secretary-----	1009, 1012
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee for Health Cooperation-----	740, 761	Central Intelligence Agency-----	1008	President's farewell remarks-----	1019
Uranium supplies, enriched-----	1009	Court documents-----	772	Press Secretary-----	731,
Urban transportation-----	1001	Federal Bureau of Investigation-----	1008		791, 818, 824, 825, 1012, 1018
		House Judiciary Committee-----	791,	Special Assistant-----	816
Vaky, Viron P-----	994		818, 840, 995, 1008
Van Court, Arthur F-----	804	Impeachable offense-----	826	White House Statements
Velde, Richard W-----	999, 1005	National security investigations-----	807	Cyprus cease-fire agreement-----	999
		Payments to defendants-----	824,	Wiretaps-----	807, 841, 923
			826, 827, 841, 870	World Population Year, 1974-----	793, 798
		Presidential tapes and documents-----	822--	World Weather Program-----	1001
			828, 1008	Wushu Troupe-----	801
		Supreme Court review---	772, 802, 822-829	Zamyatin, L. M.-----	791
		Weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of underground nuclear-----	751	Ziegler, Ronald L.-----	731,
		Weather Program, World-----	1001		791, 818, 824, 825, 1012, 1018
		Weber, John W.-----	1004

Index to Documents of the Administration of Gerald R. Ford

- Ackley, Gardner..... 1070
 Acts approved. See last page of text in each issue
Addresses and Remarks of the President
 Appointment of Press Secretary ter-Horst..... 1025
 Chicago, Ill., O'Hare Field..... 1045
 Congress
 House of Representatives..... 1058
 Joint Session..... 1029
 Senate..... 1057
 Council on Wage and Price Stability Act, bill signing..... 1065
 Davies, Rodger P., memorial ceremony honoring..... 1054
 Education Amendments of 1974, bill signing..... 1055
 Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, bill signing..... 1059
 Little League World Series teams..... 1067
 Mansfield, Sen. Mike, reception honoring..... 1053
 Meeting with foreign leaders, Jordan, King Hussein I..... 1039, 1041
 Michigan Republican State Convention..... 1066
 Ohio State University, summer commencement..... 1075
 Stein, Herbert, farewell dinner..... 1067
 Swearing-in ceremony..... 1023
 Veterans of Foreign Wars..... 1045
 Vice President of the United States, selection of nominee..... 1050, 1051
 AFL-CIO..... 1041
 Aging, National Council on the..... 1064
 Agriculture, Department of
 Secretary..... 1074, 1081
 Under Secretary..... 1064
 Alloto, Joseph..... 1042
Ambassadors
 Foreign presentation of credentials, visits, etc..... 1028, 1062, 1063
 United States. See Appointments and Nominations; Resignations and Retirements; countries to which assigned
 American Junior Miss..... 1063
 American Medical Association..... 1081
 American National Red Cross..... 1039
 American States, Organization of..... 1073
 Amnesty for draft evaders and deserters..... 1047
 Animal health research bill..... 1037
Appointments and Nominations
 Ambassadors, United States
 Cyprus..... 1055, 1064
 Ghana..... 1052, 1064
 Greece..... 1036, 1042
 Korea, Republic of..... 1036, 1042
 Council on Wage and Price Stability, Chairman and members..... 1074
 Summit Conference on Inflation
 Deputy Executive Director..... 1081
 Executive Director..... 1063
 Steering committee..... 1063
 Veterans Administration, Administrator..... 1050, 1064
 Vice President of the United States..... 1050, 1051, 1064
 White House Staff
 Assistant Press Secretaries.... 1038, 1039
 Counsel..... 1037
 Counsellors..... 1026, 1027
 Deputy Press Secretary..... 1038
 Liaison with Vice President-designate..... 1053
 Photographic Department, Director..... 1063
 Press Secretary..... 1025
 Speechwriting staff, Executive Editor and Administrator..... 1064
 Arends, Repr. Leslie C..... 1041
 Armed Forces, United States
 Aviation career incentive pay..... 1043
 Europe..... 1052
 Indian Ocean fleet..... 1071
 Promotion of naval and marine officers..... 1044
 Armstrong, Anne L..... 1074
 Ash, Roy L..... 1026, 1028, 1041, 1063, 1074, 1080
 Atkins, Ollie..... 1063
 Atomic energy, agreement with United Kingdom..... 1038
 Atomic Energy Commission
 Appropriations bill..... 1074
 Chairman..... 1081
 Australia, extradition treaty with U.S..... 1059
 Aviation Career Incentive Act of 1974..... 1043
Awards and Citations
 Ohio State University, Doctor of Laws honoris causa conferred upon the President..... 1079
 Balance of payments..... 1052
 Barbados, Ambassador to U.S..... 1062
Bill Signings
 Council on Wage and Price Stability Act, remarks and statement..... 1065
 Education Amendments of 1974, remarks and statement..... 1055, 1056
 Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974, statement..... 1043
 Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, remarks and statement..... 1059, 1060
 Public Works for Water and Power Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, statement..... 1074
 Small Business Amendments of 1974, statement..... 1066
 Black, Shirley Temple..... 1052, 1064
 Boo, Ben..... 1042
 Bradley, Tom..... 1042
 Brennan, Peter..... 1074
 Brock, Sen. Bill..... 1063
 Broomfield, Repr. William S..... 1080
 Brown, Repr. George E., Jr..... 1063
 Buchen, Philip W..... 1037
 Budget, Federal spending..... 1031, 1066, 1070, 1072, 1074
 Budget, Office of Management and. See Management and Budget, Office of
 Burger, Warren E..... 1023
 Burns, Arthur F..... 1026, 1028, 1041, 1063, 1080
 Burrell, Richard T..... 1053
 Bush, George H..... 1041, 1063, 1064
 Business Amendments of 1974, Small..... 1066
 Business Council..... 1063
 Busing..... 1057
 Butz, Earl L..... 1074, 1081
Cabinet
 Meetings with the President..... 1028, 1063, 1064, 1081
 White House dinner..... 1081
 Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for Spanish-Speaking People..... 1063
 Callaghan, James..... 1041
 Campaign. See Elections
 Campbell, J. Phil..... 1064
 Casey, Thomas R..... 1074
 Cavanaugh, James H..... 1062, 1064, 1082
 Cederberg, Repr. Elford A..... 1040
 Checklist of unpublished releases. See last page of text in each issue
 Chester, John J..... 1063
 Chicago, Ill..... 1045
 China, People's Republic of
 Bipartisan Congressional delegation, proposed visit..... 1080
 Premier Chou En-lai..... 1063
 Chinese People's Institute of Foreign Affairs..... 1080
 Chou En-lai..... 1063
 Church, Sen. Frank..... 1063
 Cities, National League of..... 1041
 Clements, William P., Jr..... 1041
 Cole, Kenneth R..... 1062
 Columbus Day, 1974..... 1063
 Commerce, Department of, Secretary..... 1043, 1074
 Community Development Act of 1974, Housing and..... 1059, 1060, 1064
 Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973..... 1041
 Comprehensive Health Insurance Plan, proposed..... 1032
 Conable, Repr. Barber B..... 1040
 Congress
 Bipartisan delegation to China..... 1080
 House of Representatives, remarks..... 1058
 Joint Session, address on assuming office..... 1029
 Meetings with the President
 Bipartisan leadership..... 1028, 1052, 1063
 Black Caucus..... 1063, 1064
 Courtesy calls by individual Members..... 1063
 Republican campaign committees, chairman..... 1063
 Republican candidates..... 1063
 Senate majority leader..... 1053, 1064
 Senate, remarks..... 1057
Congress, Communications to
See also Letters, Messages, Telegrams; Veto Messages and Memorandums of Disapproval
 Atomic energy agreement with United Kingdom, amendments..... 1038
 Freedom of Information Act amendments, letter to chairmen of House-Senate conference committee..... 1061
 North Atlantic Treaty Organization, U.S. forces in Europe, report transmittal..... 1052
 Special International Exhibits, annual report transmittal..... 1036
 U.S.-Australian extradition treaty, transmittal to Senate..... 1059
 Connor, John T..... 1063
 Conservation, forest and rangeland resources..... 1043
 Cost of Living Council..... 1031
 Costa Rica, Ambassador to U.S..... 1062
 Cotton, Sen. Norris..... 1063
 Council. See other part of title
 County Officials, National Association of..... 1041
 Courts, United States
 Deputy U.S. marshals pay raise bill, veto message..... 1035
 U.S. circuit judge, 8th circuit..... 1063
 Crane, Repr. Philip M..... 1041
 Crawford, William R., Jr..... 1055, 1064
 Cuba, relations with U.S..... 1073
 Cyprus
 Slain U.S. Ambassador Rodger P. Davies..... 1045, 1054, 1055
 U.S. Ambassador to..... 1055, 1064
 Davies, Rodger P..... 1045, 1054, 1055
 Defense, Department of
 See also specific service branch
 Assistant Secretary..... 1044
 Deputy Secretary..... 1041
 Joint Chiefs of Staff..... 1041
 Secretary..... 1041, 1043, 1047
 Dent, Frederick B..... 1074
 Diego Garcia, U.S. naval base..... 1071
 Digest of other White House announcements. See last pages of text in each issue
 Distributive Education Clubs of America..... 1082
 Dobrynin, A. F..... 1041

Index to Documents of the Administration of Gerald R. Ford—Continued

- Dole, Sen. Robert..... 1063
Domestic Council..... 1062, 1064, 1082
Dominick, Sen. Peter H...... 1041
Eberle, Harold F., Jr...... 1081
Economic Advisers, Council of
 Chairman..... 1026,
 1028, 1041, 1063, 1067, 1071
 Chairman-designate..... 1026,
 1028, 1063, 1080
Economic Opportunity, Office of..... 1072
Economy, national
 Address to Joint Session of Congress..... 1029
 Defense spending..... 1072
 Federal spending..... 1031,
 1066, 1070, 1072, 1074
 Inflation..... 1029,
 1030-1032, 1055, 1065, 1070, 1072, 1074
 Wage and price controls..... 1070, 1071
Education, Ohio State University, remarks..... 1076
Education Amendments of 1974..... 1055,
 1056, 1064
Education bill, veterans..... 1048
Education Clubs of America, Distributive..... 1082
Egypt, Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy..... 1041
Elections
 President's plans..... 1069
 Republican congressional campaign committees..... 1063
 Ellsworth, Robert..... 1044
Emergency assistance, Puerto Rico..... 1073
Employment and Training Act of 1973,
 Comprehensive..... 1041
Employment and unemployment
 Public works program, expansion..... 1069
 Veterans..... 1048
Enarson, Dr. Harold..... 1079
Energy crisis..... 1033, 1071
Europe, U.S. forces..... 1052
Evans, Gov. Daniel J...... 1042
- Executive Orders
 Aviation career incentive pay (EO
 11800)..... 1043
 Display of flag in memory of slain
 Ambassador to Cyprus (EO 11801)..... 1055
 Exports, regulation of (EO 11798)..... 1037
 Navy officers, promotion (EO 11799)..... 1044
Exhibitions, international..... 1036
Exports, regulation..... 1037
Fahmy, Ismail..... 1041
Farm Family of the Year..... 1064
Federal employees. See Government employees
Federal Energy Administration, Administrator..... 1081
Federal Reserve System, Board of Governors, Chairman..... 1026,
 1028, 1041, 1063, 1080
Federal-State-local cooperation..... 1060
First Lady's Staff
 Press Secretary..... 1081
 Social Secretary..... 1081
Fisher, Max..... 1080
Fitzsimmons, Frank E...... 1041
Fong, Sen. Hiram L...... 1080
Food Conference, World..... 1081
Ford, Mrs. Gerald R...... 1041
Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974..... 1043
Forsythe, Repr. Edwin B...... 1063
4-H Clubs..... 1082
Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. Julian V...... 1064
Freedom of Information Act amendments..... 1061
Frelinghuysen, Repr. Peter H. B...... 1080
Fulbright, Sen. J. William..... 1080
Garn, E. J...... 1042
General Motors Corporation..... 1029, 1055
Ghana, U.S. Ambassador to..... 1052,
 1062, 1064
Gierek, Edward..... 1081
Goldwater, Sen. Barry..... 1041
- Government employees
 Deputy U.S. marshals, pay raise..... 1035
 Pay increase..... 1073
 Personal liability under Freedom of Information Act amendments..... 1061
 Uniformed services, aviation career incentive pay..... 1043
Governors' Conference, National..... 1041, 1042
Greece, U.S. Ambassador to..... 1036, 1042
Greenspan, Alan..... 1026, 1028, 1071, 1080
Griffin, Sen. Robert P...... 1041
Guinea-Bissau..... 1029
Hale, David L...... 1081
Hall, Paul..... 1063
Hansen, Sen. Clifford P...... 1063
Harlow, Bryce N...... 1040
Hartmann, Robert T...... 1026, 1028
Health, Education, and Welfare, Department of, Secretary..... 1041, 1043
Health, insurance..... 1032, 1081
Health Insurance Plan, Comprehensive,
 proposed..... 1032
Holland, James R...... 1039
Housing and Community Development
 Act of 1974..... 1059, 1060, 1064
Housing and Urban Development, Department of, Secretary..... 1059,
 1060, 1064, 1080
Howe, Nancy..... 1041
Humphrey, Sen. Hubert H...... 1080
Hushen, John W...... 1038
Hussein I, King..... 1039, 1041, 1044
- Inauguration ceremony. See Swearing-
 In Ceremonies
Inflation. See Economy, national
Inflation, Summit Conference on. See
 Summit Conference on Inflation
Information Act, Freedom of, amendments..... 1061
Insurance, health..... 1032, 1081
Interior, Department of the, Secretary..... 1026, 1028, 1081
International Brotherhood of Teamsters..... 1041
Israel
 Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin..... 1080
 U.S. Embassy..... 1072
 Italy, President Giovanni Leone..... 1080
Jackson, Sen. Henry M...... 1041, 1042
James, Lt. Gen. Daniel, Jr...... 1063
Japan
 President's proposed visit..... 1041
 Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka..... 1081
Javits, Sen. Jacob K...... 1041, 1042
Jaworski, Leon..... 1070
Jaycees, United States..... 1081
Jensen, Tom..... 1082
Joint Chiefs of Staff..... 1041
- Joint Statements
 Jordan..... 1044
 Joint statement..... 1044
 King Hussein I...... 1039, 1041, 1044
 Jordan, Repr. Barbara..... 1080
 Jordan-United States Joint Commission..... 1044
 Justice, Department of
 Attorney General..... 1041, 1047
 Special Prosecutor..... 1070, 1071
 Kennedy, Sen. Edward M...... 1062
 Kennerly, David Hume..... 1041
 Khaddam, Abd al-Halim..... 1064
 Kissinger, Dr. Henry A...... 1026, 1041, 1054
 Klein, Herbert G...... 1081
 Knauer, Virginia..... 1074
 Korea, Republic of, U.S. Ambassador
 to..... 1036, 1042
 Kubisch, Jack B...... 1036, 1042
 Kurfess, Charles F...... 1082
 Labor, Department of, Secretary..... 1074
 Laird, Melvin R...... 1040
 Legislative Conference, National..... 1082
 Leone, Giovanni..... 1080
- Letters, Messages, Telegrams
 American National Red Cross, letter
 accepting honorary Chairmanship..... 1039
 Lindbergh, Charles A...... 1068
 Little League World Series teams..... 1067
 Long, Sen. Russell B...... 1041
 Lukash, Rear Adm. William M...... 1063
 Lynn, James T...... 1059, 1060, 1064, 1080
 Magnuson, Sen. Warren G...... 1063
 Malek, Frederic V...... 1041
 Management and Budget, Office of Assistant to the Director for Congressional Relations..... 1081
 Deputy Director..... 1041, 1063
 Director..... 1026, 1028, 1041, 1074, 1080
 Mansfield, Sen. Mike..... 1053, 1064
 Marine Corps, promotion of officers..... 1044
 Marsh, John O., Jr...... 1026-1028, 1041, 1042
 Mathias, Sen. Charles McC., Jr...... 1063
 Mayors, United States Conference of..... 1041
 McClure, Sen. James A...... 1041
 Meany, George..... 1041
 Medical Association, American..... 1081
- Meetings with Foreign Leaders
 Jordan, King Hussein I...... 1039, 1041, 1044
Mehaffy, Pat..... 1063
- Memorandums to Federal Agencies
 Presidential transition..... 1027
- Mexico, Foreign Minister Emilio Ra- basa..... 1081
Michel, Repr. Robert H...... 1063
Michigan Republican State Convention..... 1066
Miller, Robert W...... 1081
Mills, Repr. Wilbur D...... 1063
Miltich, Paul A...... 1038
Moorhead, Repr. William S...... 1062
Morris, Karen..... 1063
Mortgages..... 1060
Morton, Rogers C. B...... 1026, 1028, 1081
Mullen, Mary..... 1064
- National Association of County Off- icials..... 1041
National Association of Retired Teachers..... 1064
National Council on the Aging..... 1064
National Governors' Conference..... 1041, 1042
National League of Cities..... 1041
National Legislative Conference..... 1082
National security, disclosure of documents under Freedom of Information
 Act amendments..... 1061
National Security Council, meeting with the President..... 1028
Natural resources, forest and range-land..... 1043
Navy, Department of the
 Indian Ocean fleet..... 1071
 Promotion of officers..... 1044
- News Conferences
 August 28 (No. 1)..... 1069
- News Conferences Other Than Presidential
 Appointment of transition team and President's schedule, Press Secretary terHorst..... 1026
 Vice Presidential nomination, Nelson
 A. Rockefeller..... 1051
 Nixon, Richard M...... 1024,
 1063, 1069, 1070, 1071, 1073
Nominations submitted to the Senate.
 See last page of text in each issue
- Office. See other part of title
O'Hara, James G...... 1063
Ohio State University, summer commencement..... 1075, 1081
Organization of American States..... 1073
Ossofsky, Jack..... 1064
Packard, David..... 1063
Pardon for former President Nixon..... 1069,
 1070, 1073

Index to Documents of the Administration of Gerald R. Ford—Continued

- Parker, Daniel..... 1044
 Peach Queen..... 1063
 Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation..... 1063
 Perfil, Pamela..... 1063
 Poland, First Secretary Edward Gierak..... 1081
 Portugal, Guinea-Bissau, independence..... 1029
 President's health..... 1063
 President's domestic travel
 Chicago, Ill..... 1045, 1048, 1062
 Columbus, Ohio..... 1075, 1081
 Price Stability, Council on Wage and See Wage and Price Stability, Council on Privacy, protection of..... 1057, 1062
- Proclamations
 Columbus Day, 1974 (Proc. 4308)..... 1053
 Women's Equality Day, 1974 (Proc. 4309)..... 1059
- Public works
 Appropriations bill..... 1074
 Employment program..... 1069
 Puerto Rico, drought, emergency assistance..... 1073
 Pungan, Vasile..... 1080
- Quillen, Repr. James H..... 1063
- Rabasa, Emilio..... 1081
 Rabin, Yitzhak..... 1080
 Ramirez, Henry M..... 1063
 Rampton, Gov. Calvin..... 1042
 Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974, Forest and..... 1043
 Ray, Dixy Lee..... 1081
 Red Cross, American National..... 1039
- Republican Party
 Candidates..... 1066
 House-Senate campaign committees..... 1063, 1064
 Michigan State convention..... 1066
 National chairman..... 1063, 1064
- Resignations and Retirements
 Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for Spanish-Speaking People, Chairman..... 1063
 Office of Management and Budget
 Assistant to the Director for Congressional Relations..... 1081
 Deputy Director..... 1041
 Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation, Board of Directors, member..... 1063
 U.S. circuit judge, 8th circuit..... 1063
 White House Staff, Special Counsel..... 1063
- Rhodes, Repr. John J..... 1041
 Ribicoff, Sen. Abraham A..... 1041, 1042
 Rockefeller, Nelson A..... 1050, 1051, 1063, 1064, 1069, 1070, 1081
 Romania, Counselor Vasile Pungan..... 1080
 Roudebush, Richard L..... 1046, 1050, 1064
 Rumsfeld, Donald..... 1026, 1028
 Rush, Kenneth..... 1026, 1028, 1041, 1063, 1074, 1080
- Sabo, Martin O..... 1082
 St. Clair, James D..... 1041
 Saqqaf, 'Umar al-..... 1081
 Saudi Arabia, Foreign Minister 'Umar al-Saqqaf..... 1081
 Sawhill, John C..... 1081
 Saxbe, William B..... 1041
 Schlesinger, James R..... 1041
 Scott, Sen. Hugh..... 1041
 Scranton, William W..... 1026, 1028, 1080
- Seafarers International Union..... 1063
 Secret Service, United States..... 1062
 Security Council, National..... 1028
 Seidman, L. William..... 1026, 1028, 1063, 1080, 1082
 Simon, William E..... 1026, 1028, 1041, 1063, 1074, 1080, 1081
 Small Business Amendments of 1974..... 1066
 Smith, Helen McCain..... 1081
 Smith, Kenneth..... 1082
 Snelder, Richard L..... 1036, 1042
 Spain, Ambassador to U.S..... 1062
 Spanish-Speaking People, Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for..... 1063
 Special International Exhibits..... 1036
 State, Department of, Secretary..... 1026, 1041, 1054
 State legislators, meeting with the President..... 1081, 1082
- Statements by the President
 Council on Wage and Price Stability
 Bill signing..... 1065
 Chairman and members..... 1074
 Cyprus, death of U.S. Ambassador Rodger P. Davies..... 1045
 Education Amendments of 1974, bill signing..... 1056
 Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974, bill signing..... 1043
 General Motors price increase..... 1029, 1055
 Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, bill signing..... 1060
 Lindbergh, Charles A., death..... 1068
 Portuguese recognition of independence of Guinea-Bissau..... 1029
 Public Works for Water and Power Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, bill signing..... 1074
 Small Business Amendments of 1974, bill signing..... 1066
 Wage and price monitoring agency..... 1052
- Stein, Herbert..... 1026, 1028, 1041, 1063, 1067, 1071
 Strategic arms limitations talks..... 1073
 Summit Conference on Inflation
 Deputy Executive Director..... 1081
 Executive Director..... 1063, 1080, 1082
 Joint Session of Congress, remarks..... 1031
 Steering committee..... 1063, 1080
 Sumter, Geraldine..... 1082
 Supreme Court of the United States, Chief Justice..... 1023
- Swearing-In Ceremonies
 President of the United States..... 1023
- Syria
 Ambassador to U.S..... 1062
 Foreign Minister Abd al-Halim Khaddam..... 1064
- Tanaka, Kakuei..... 1081
 Teachers, National Association of Retired..... 1064
 Teamsters, International Brotherhood of..... 1041
 terHorst, J. F..... 1025, 1026
 Theis, Paul A..... 1064
 Thurmond, Sen. Strom..... 1041
 Tower, Sen. John..... 1041
- Trade
 Exports, regulation..... 1037
 Negotiations..... 1032
 Trade reform bill..... 1033
- Training Act of 1973, Comprehensive Employment and..... 1041
 Transportation, Department of, Secretary..... 1043
 Treasury, Department of the, Secretary..... 1026, 1028, 1041, 1063, 1074, 1080, 1081
 Treaties and other international agreements
 Atomic energy agreement with United Kingdom, amendments..... 1038
 Extradition treaty with Australia, transmittal to Senate..... 1059
 Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Ambassador to U.S..... 1041
 United Auto Workers..... 1081, 1082
 United Kingdom
 Atomic energy agreement with United States, amendments..... 1038
 Foreign Secretary James Callaghan..... 1041
 Prime Minister Harold Wilson..... 1041
 United Nations, Guinea-Bissau, membership..... 1029
 United States Conference of Mayors..... 1041
 United States Jaycees..... 1081
 U.S. Joint Commission, Jordan..... 1044
 United States Secret Service..... 1062
- Venezuela, Ambassador to U.S..... 1062
 Veterans Administration, Administrator..... 1046, 1050, 1064
 Veterans, benefits..... 1072
 Veterans education bill..... 1048
 Veterans of Foreign Wars..... 1045, 1062, 1064
 Veterinary research..... 1037
- Veto Messages and Memorandums of Disapproval
 Animal health research bill, message to House of Representatives..... 1037
 Deputy U.S. marshals bill, message to House of Representatives..... 1035
 Vice President, remarks on selection of nominee..... 1050, 1051
 Vice Presidential Staff, memorandum on Presidential transition..... 1027
 Wage and price controls..... 1070, 1071
 Wage and Price Stability, Council on..... 1052, 1065, 1074, 1082
 Weinberger, Caspar W..... 1041
- White House Staff
 Assistant Press Secretaries..... 1038, 1039
 Counsel..... 1037
 Counsellor for Economic Policy..... 1026, 1028, 1041, 1063, 1074, 1080
 Counsellors..... 1026, 1027, 1041, 1042, 1074
 Deputy Press Secretary..... 1038
 Liaison with Vice President-designate..... 1053
 Photographic Department, Director..... 1063
 Presidential transition, memorandum..... 1027
 Press Secretary..... 1025
 Special Assistant..... 1074
 Special Counsel..... 1063
 Speechwriting staff, Executive Editor and Administrator..... 1064
 White House dinner..... 1081
 Wilson, Harold..... 1041
 Winchester, Lucy Alexander..... 1081
 Women, Administration appointees..... 1081
 Women's Equality Day, 1974..... 1059
 Woodcock, Leonard..... 1081, 1082
 World Food Conference..... 1081
 Wylder, Repr. John W..... 1041
 Zablocki, Repr. Clement J..... 1080

Weekly Compilation of SEP 23
PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Monday, September 16, 1974

The University
of Michigan
Reference

Volume 10 • Number 37

Pages 1101-1147

Index of Contents

ACTS APPROVED.....	1147	CONGRESS, COMMUNICATIONS TO
ADDRESSES AND REMARKS		Legislative priorities, message.....	1137
(See also Meetings With Foreign Leaders)		U.S.-Bulgarian consular convention, message to Senate transmitting.....	1143
Alexandria Police Association picnic.....	1101	U.S.-Canadian extradition treaty, message to Senate transmitting.....	1143
Conference on Inflation.....	1132	DIGEST OF OTHER WHITE HOUSE ANNOUNCEMENTS	1146
Pardon for former President Nixon.....	1102	LETTERS, MEMORANDUMS, ETC.
Radio and Television Directors' Association.....	1145	Presidential materials of Richard Nixon
Sixth International Conference on Urban Transportation	1119	Legal opinion by the Attorney General.....	1105
World Golf Hall of Fame, Pinehurst, N.C. Fayetteville, N.C., arrival.....	1133	Letter of agreement between the former President and the Administrator of General Services	1104
Opening ceremony.....	1134	MEETINGS WITH FOREIGN LEADERS
Dinner honoring inductees.....	1135	Visit of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin of Israel
APPOINTMENTS AND NOMINATIONS		Arrival	1130
International Atomic Energy Agency, U.S. Representative and Alternate Representatives.....	1122	Exchange of toasts.....	1144
Nominations submitted to the Senate.....	1147	NEWS CONFERENCES
United Nations General Assembly, U.S. delegation	1121	Philip W. Buchen, Counsel to the President, on pardon and agreement on Presidential materials of Richard Nixon.....	1108, 1123
White House Staff		PROCLAMATIONS
Assistant to the President (William J. Baroody, Jr.)	1142	Citizenship Day and Constitution Week, 1974 (Proc. 4312).....	1144
Counsel to the President (Phillip E. Areeda)....	1143	Pardon for former President Nixon (Proc. 4311) ..	1103
Special Assistant to the President (Warren S. Rustand)	1122	STATEMENTS BY THE PRESIDENT
BILL SIGNINGS		(See also Bill Signings)
Federal employees compensation benefits, statement	1118	Presidential clemency and pardons.....	1133
Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974, statement.....	1118	Resignation of the Press Secretary.....	1119
CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES.....	1147	STATEMENTS OTHER THAN PRESIDENTIAL
		Bipartisan Congressional leadership meeting, statement by Deputy Press Secretary.....	1136

[A Cumulative Index to Prior Issues appears at the end of this issue.]

WEEKLY COMPILATION OF Presidential Documents

Published every Monday by the Office of the Federal Register, National Archives and Records Service, General Services Administration, Washington, D.C. 20408, the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents contains statements, messages and other Presidential materials released by the White House during the preceding week.

The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents is published pursuant to the authority contained in the Federal Register Act (49 Stat. 500, as amended; 44 U.S.C. Ch. 15), under regulations prescribed by the Administrative Committee of the Federal Register, approved by the President (37 F.R. 23607; 1 CFR Part 10).

Distribution is made only by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents will be furnished by mail to subscribers for $15.00 per year, payable to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The charge for a single copy is 50 cents.

There are no restrictions on the republication of material appearing in the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents.

Administration of Gerald R. Ford

PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Week Ending Friday, September 13, 1974

Alexandria Police Association Picnic

The President's Remarks at the Picnic at the Northern Virginia Police Academy. September 7, 1974

THE PRESIDENT. Well, thank you very, very much for the invitation to be here and the warm reception that I have received.

I wanted to come out here because it was one way that I could express my appreciation for the warm and kind things that were done by so many of the Alexandria Police Department, not only during those hectic weeks when I was Vice President and the even more hectic 8 or 10 days while we couldn't move out of where we were until where we are now.

But it was the wonderful opportunities that I and my wife and our four children had to live in Alexandria, to get to know the police department, the school system, the many nice people.

We have many fond memories of living in Alexandria, and we aren't going to sell our home. We are going to come back there. I don't know how soon. We like it and we like the people, and we are deeply grateful to the members of the Alexandria Police Force for all of the nice and many kind things that were done on our behalf.

And we apologize for the inconveniences, the extra hours, and any of the other problems that you went through.

When I decided to come out and have an opportunity to join with you in the crabfest, my schedule was put before me, and it indicated that I was to welcome some very distinguished guests from the Soviet Union who are here with me now, along with three of our American astronauts.

They are Soviet Union cosmonauts who have been in space and the American astronauts have likewise had that experience. And next July, in 1975, the cosmonauts, the two, and the three American astronauts will take off, the Soviet Union cosmonauts from their country, and our three from our country. And within 2 days, or whatever the time is, they will join up in space and will spend 2 days with their two space vehicles joined, and they will move back and forth between their spaceship and our spaceship.

This is not only a tremendous technological achievement but it is, I think, far broader in its implications and ramifications as far as the world is concerned.

We, as Americans, are very proud of our country; our friends from the Soviet Union are very proud of their country. And our two countries in very recent years have sought to work together in space, in the environment, in medicine, in many fields, including an effort to resolve differences in strategic arms.

I think all of us agree that the broader we can make our relationships in health, in environment, in space, and many other areas, the better it is for us here in America and for our friends in the Soviet Union.

So, I am honored to have the Ambassador from the Soviet Union, Mr. Anatoli Dobrynin, and his cosmonauts here this afternoon. They are your guests and I would like, Mr. Ambassador, for you, because I am not the best spokesman in the Russian language, if you would introduce—well, I will try, but if I don't do very well, then he will have to correct me.

First, this is the Ambassador from the Soviet Union, Mr. Anatoli Dobrynin. And the next is Major General Vladimir Shatalov. General Shatalov.

And Colonel Aleksei Leonov. Colonel Leonov. And Mr. Valeri Kubasov. Mr. Kubasov.

I think your warm welcome to them is indicative of the kind of friendship we have between peoples from the Soviet Union and the United States.

Now, I would like to introduce our three astronauts. First, Brigadier General Tom Stafford; secondly, Deke Slayton. Where is Deke? And then Vance Brand. Where is Vance?

So, next July, I want you young people to understand this, next July the people you have met—one group being launched from the Soviet Union and the other group being launched from the United States of America—will meet way up in the heavens some place—where is it going to be? They are going to meet over Spain—I am sure for some technical reason, not for any other.

We have some other guests here. General Brent Scowcroft, who is the Deputy Director of the National Security Council; and Mr. Lowe, who is the Deputy Director of our National Aeronautics and Space Agency.

Well, we enjoy the opportunity to be here. We look forward to some of that good crab. He said he would open the shells, or whatever you call them. Out in Michigan, we don't have crab. We have a few crabby people but not any crabs. [Laughter]

SGT. JOHN V. STREETER. Mr. President, we have an officer on our Police Department that is a very talented artist. It is Officer Ned Thompson, and he has taken the time to draw this for you. If I may describe it to the people out here, because they have not seen it either.

It shows President Ford. He is standing there, and there is a poor, sad little fellow there with a sign. In one hand, he is holding the world, and it is all cracked up. And then in the other hand, he is holding a sign that says, "Fix it." [Laughter]

Mr. President, God bless you, sir.

THE PRESIDENT. Thank you very much.

Well, I hope all you young people, particularly, will get to know our astronauts and the Soviet cosmonauts. The astronauts have learned to speak some Russian and the cosmonauts have learned to speak some English, so you can either talk to them in Russian or English, either way you want. [Laughter]

Thank you very much, and we look forward to having a bite to eat.

NOTE: The President spoke at 3:35 p.m. at the Northern Virginia Police Academy, Fairfax, Va.

Pardon for Former President Nixon

The President's Remarks Announcing His Decision To Grant the Pardon. September 8, 1974

Ladies and gentlemen, I have come to a decision which I felt I should tell you and all of my fellow American citizens, as soon as I was certain in my own mind and in my own conscience that it is the right thing to do.

I have learned already in this office that the difficult decisions always come to this desk. I must admit that many of them do not look at all the same as the hypothetical questions that I have answered freely and perhaps too fast on previous occasions.

My customary policy is to try and get all the facts and to consider the opinions of my countrymen and to take counsel with my most valued friends. But these seldom agree, and in the end, the decision is mine. To procrastinate, to agonize, and to wait for a more favorable turn of events that may never come or more compelling external pressures that may as well be wrong as right, is itself a decision of sorts and a weak and potentially dangerous course for a President to follow.

I have promised to uphold the Constitution, to do what is right as God gives me to see the right, and to do the very best that I can for America.

I have asked your help and your prayers, not only when I became President but many times since. The Constitution is the supreme law of our land and it governs our actions as citizens. Only the laws of God, which govern our consciences, are superior to it.

As we are a Nation under God, so I am sworn to uphold our laws with the help of God. And I have sought such guidance and searched my own conscience with special diligence to determine the right thing for me to do with respect to my predecessor in this place, Richard Nixon, and his loyal wife and family.

Theirs is an American tragedy in which we all have played a part. It could go on and on and on, or someone must write the end to it. I have concluded that only I can do that, and if I can, I must.

There are no historic or legal precedents to which I can turn in this matter, none that precisely fit the circumstances of a private citizen who has resigned the Presidency of the United States. But it is common knowledge that serious allegations and accusations hang like a sword over our former President's head, threatening his health as he tries to reshape his life, a great part of which was spent in the service of this country and by the mandate of its people.

After years of bitter controversy and divisive national debate, I have been advised, and I am compelled to conclude that many months and perhaps more years will have to pass before Richard Nixon could obtain a fair trial by jury in any jurisdiction of the United States under governing decisions of the Supreme Court.

I deeply believe in equal justice for all Americans, whatever their station or former station. The law, whether human or divine, is no respecter of persons, but the law is a respecter of reality.

The facts, as I see them, are that a former President of the United States, instead of enjoying equal treatment with any other citizen accused of violating the law, would be cruelly and excessively penalized either in preserving the presumption of his innocence or in obtaining a speedy determination of his guilt in order to repay a legal debt to society.

During this long period of delay and potential litigation, ugly passions would again be aroused. And our people would again be polarized in their opinions. And the credibility of our free institutions of Government would again be challenged at home and abroad.

In the end, the courts might well hold that Richard Nixon had been denied due process, and the verdict of history would even more be inconclusive with respect to those charges arising out of the period of his Presidency, of which I am presently aware.

But it is not the ultimate fate of Richard Nixon that most concerns me, though surely it deeply troubles every decent and every compassionate person. My concern is the immediate future of this great country.

In this, I dare not depend upon my personal sympathy as a long-time friend of the former President, nor my professional judgment as a lawyer, and I do not.

As President, my primary concern must always be the greatest good of all the people of the United States whose servant I am. As a man, my first consideration is to be true to my own convictions and my own conscience.

My conscience tells me clearly and certainly that I cannot prolong the bad dreams that continue to reopen a chapter that is closed. My conscience tells me that only I, as President, have the constitutional power to firmly shut and seal this book. My conscience tells me it is my duty, not merely to proclaim domestic tranquillity but to use every means that I have to insure it.

I do believe that the buck stops here, that I cannot rely upon public opinion polls to tell me what is right.

I do believe that right makes might and that if I am wrong, 10 angels swearing I was right would make no difference.

I do believe, with all my heart and mind and spirit, that I, not as President, but as a humble servant of God, will receive justice without mercy if I fail to show mercy.

Finally, I feel that Richard Nixon and his loved ones have suffered enough and will continue to suffer, no matter what I do, no matter what we, as a great and good Nation, can do together to make his goal of peace come true.

[At this point, the President began reading from the proclamation granting the pardon.]

"NOW, THEREFORE, I, GERALD R. FORD, President of the United States, pursuant to the pardon power conferred upon me by Article II, Section 2, of the Constitution, have granted and by these presents do grant a full, free, and absolute pardon unto Richard Nixon for all offenses against the United States which he, Richard Nixon, has committed or may have committed or taken part in during the period from July (January) 20, 1969 through August 9, 1974.

[The President signed the proclamation and then resumed reading.]

"IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this eighth day of September, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and seventy-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and ninety-ninth."

NOTE: The President spoke at 11:05 a.m. in the Oval Office at the White House.

The White House Press Office also made available the text of a statement by former President Nixon following President Ford's announcement of the granting of the pardon.

Pardon for Former President Nixon

Proclamation 4311. September 8, 1974

GRANTING PARDON TO RICHARD NIXON

*By the President of the United States of America
a Proclamation*

Richard Nixon became the thirty-seventh President of the United States on January 20, 1969 and was reelected in 1972 for a second term by the electors of forty-nine of the fifty states. His term in office continued until his resignation on August 9, 1974.

Pursuant to resolutions of the House of Representatives, its Committee on the Judiciary conducted an inquiry and investigation on the impeachment of the President extending over more than eight months. The hearings of the Committee and its deliberations, which received wide national publicity over television, radio, and in printed media, resulted in votes adverse to Richard Nixon on recommended Articles of Impeachment.

As a result of certain acts or omissions occurring before his resignation from the Office of President, Richard Nixon has become liable to possible indictment and trial for offenses against the United States. Whether or not he shall be so prosecuted depends on findings of the appropriate grand jury and on the discretion of the authorized prosecutor. Should an indictment ensue, the accused shall then be entitled to a fair trial by an impartial jury, as guaranteed to every individual by the Constitution.

It is believed that a trial of Richard Nixon, if it became necessary, could not fairly begin until a year or more has elapsed. In the meantime, the tranquility to which this nation has been restored by the events of recent weeks could be irreparably lost by the prospects of bringing to trial a former President of the United States. The prospects of such trial will cause prolonged and divisive debate over the propriety of exposing to further punishment and degradation a man who has already paid the unprecedented penalty of relinquishing the highest elective office of the United States.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, GERALD R. FORD, President of the United States, pursuant to the pardon power conferred upon me by Article II, Section 2, of the Constitution, have granted and by these presents do grant a full, free, and absolute pardon unto Richard Nixon for all offenses against the United States which he, Richard Nixon, has committed or may have committed or taken part in during the period from January 20, 1969 through August 9, 1974.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this eighth day of September, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and seventy-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and ninety-ninth.

GERALD R. FORD

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 11:28 a.m.,
September 9, 1974]

Presidential Materials of Richard Nixon

*Letter of Agreement Between Former President Nixon and the Administrator of General Services.
September 8, 1974*

September 6, 1974

Dear Mr. Sampson:

In keeping with the tradition established by other former Presidents, it is my desire to donate to the United States, at a future date, a substantial portion of my Presidential materials which are of historical value to our Country. In donating these Presidential materials to the United States, it will be my desire that they be made available, with appropriate restrictions, for research and study.

In the interim, so that my materials may be preserved, I offer to transfer to the Administrator of General Services (the "Administrator"), for deposit, pursuant to 44 U.S.C. Section 2101, et seq., all of my Presidential historical materials as defined in 44 U.S.C. Section 2101 (hereinafter "Materials"), which are located within the metropolitan area of the District of Columbia, subject to the following:

1. The Administrator agrees to accept solely for the purpose of deposit the transfer of the Materials, and in so accepting the Materials agrees to abide by each of the terms and conditions contained herein.

2. In the event of my death prior to the expiration of the three-year time period established in paragraph 7A hereof, the terms and conditions contained herein shall be binding upon and inure to the benefit of the executor of my estate for the duration of said period.

3. I retain all legal and equitable title to the Materials, including all literary property rights.

4. The Materials shall, upon acceptance of this offer by the Administrator, be deposited temporarily in an existing facility belonging to the United States, located within the State of California near my present residence. The Materials shall remain deposited in the temporary California facility until such time as there may be established, with my approval, a permanent Presidential archival depository as provided for in 44 U.S.C. Section 2108.

5. The Administrator shall provide in such temporary depository and in any permanent Presidential archival depository reasonable office space for my personal use in accordance with 44 U.S.C. Section 2108(f). The Materials in their entirety shall be deposited within such office space in the manner described in paragraph 6 hereof.

6. Within both the temporary and any permanent Presidential archival depository, all of the Materials shall be placed within secure storage areas to which access can be gained only by use of two keys. One key, essential for access, shall be given to me alone as custodian of the Materials. The other key may be duplicated and entrusted by you to the Archivist of the United States or to members of his staff.

7. Access to the Materials within the secure areas, with the exception of recordings of conversations in the White House and the Executive Office Building which are governed by paragraphs 8 and 9 hereof, shall be as follows:

- A. For a period of three years from the date of this instrument, I agree not to withdraw from deposit any originals of the Materials, except as provided in subparagraph B below and paragraph 10 herein. During said three-year period, I may make reproductions of any of the originals of the Materials and withdraw from deposit such reproductions for any use I may deem appropriate. Except as provided in subparagraph B below, access to the Materials shall be limited to myself, and to such persons as I may authorize from time to time in writing, the scope of such access to be set forth by me in each said written authorization. Any request for access to the Materials made to the Administrator, the Archivist of the United States or any member of their staffs shall be referred to me. After three years I shall have the right to withdraw from deposit without formality any or all of the Materials to which this paragraph applies and to retain such withdrawn Materials for any purpose or use I may deem appropriate, including but not limited to reproduction, examination, publication or display by myself or by anyone else I may approve.

- B. In the event that production of the Materials or any portion thereof is demanded by a subpoena or other order directed to any official or employee of the United States, the recipient of the subpoena or order shall immediately notify me so that I may respond thereto, as the owner and custodian of the Materials, with sole right and power of access thereto and, if appropriate, assert any privilege or defense I may have. Prior to any such production, I shall inform the United States so it may inspect the subpoenaed materials and determine whether to object to its production on grounds of national security or any other privilege.

8. The tape recordings of conversations in the White House and Executive Office Building which will be deposited pursuant to this instrument shall remain on deposit until September 1, 1979. I intend to and do hereby donate to the United States, such gift to be effective September 1, 1979, all of the tape recordings of conversations in the White House and Executive Office Building conditioned however on my continuing right of access as specified in paragraph 9 hereof and on the further condition that such tapes shall be destroyed at the time of my death or on September 1, 1984, whichever event shall first occur. Subsequent to September 1, 1979 the Administrator shall destroy such tapes as I may direct. I impose this restriction as other Presidents have before me to guard against the possibility of the tapes being used to injure, embarrass, or harass any person and properly to safeguard the interests of the United States.

9. Access to recordings of conversations in the White House and Executive Office Building within the secure areas shall be restricted as follows:

A. I agree not to withdraw from deposit any originals of the Materials, except as provided in subparagraph B and paragraph 10 below, and no reproductions shall be made unless there is mutual agreement. Access to the tapes shall be limited to myself, and to such persons as I may authorize from time to time in writing, the scope of such access to be set forth by me in each said written authorization. No person may listen to such tapes without my written prior approval. I reserve to myself such literary use of the information on the tapes.

B. In the event that production of the Materials or any portion thereof is demanded by a subpoena or other order directed to any official or employee of the United States, the recipient of the subpoena or order shall immediately notify me so that I may respond thereto, as the owner and custodian of the Materials, with sole right and power of access thereto and, if appropriate, assert any privilege or defense I may have. Prior to any such production, I shall inform the United States so it may inspect the subpoenaed materials and determine whether to object to its production on grounds of national security or any other privilege.

10. The Administrator shall arrange and be responsible for the reasonable protection of the Materials from loss, destruction or access by unauthorized persons, and may upon receipt of an appropriate written authorization from the Counsel to the President provide for a temporary re-deposit of certain of the Materials to a location other than the existing facility described in paragraph 4 herein, provided however that no diminution of the Administrator's responsibility to protect and secure the Materials from loss, destruction, unauthorized copying or access by unauthorized persons is affected by said temporary re-deposit.

11. From time to time as I deem appropriate, I intend to donate to the United States certain portions of the Materials deposited with the Administrator pursuant to this agreement, such donations to be accompanied by appropriate restrictions as authorized by 44 U.S.C. Section 2107. However, prior to such donation, it will be necessary to review the Materials to determine which of them should be subject to restriction, and the nature of the restrictions to be imposed. This review will require a meticulous, thorough, time-consuming analysis. If necessary to fulfill this task, I will request that you designate certain members of the Archivist's staff to assist in this review under my direction.

If you determine that the terms and conditions set forth above are acceptable for the purpose of governing the establishment and maintenance of a depository of the Materials pursuant to 44 U.S.C. Section 2101 and for accepting the irrevocable gift of recordings of conversations after the specified five year period for purposes as contained in paragraph 8 herein, please indicate your acceptance by signing the enclosed copy of this letter and returning it to me. Upon your acceptance we both shall be bound by the terms of this agreement.

Sincerely,

RICHARD NIXON

Accepted by: ARTHUR F. SAMPSON 9/7/74

Administrator

General Services Administration

[Honorable Arthur F. Sampson, Administrator, General Services Administration, Washington, D.C.]

Presidential Materials of Richard Nixon

Text of a Legal Opinion by the Attorney General.
September 8, 1974

September 6, 1974

Dear Mr. President:

You have requested my opinion concerning papers and other historical materials retained by the White House Office during the administration of former President Richard M. Nixon and now in the possession of the United States or its officials. Some such materials were left in the Executive Office Building or in the White House at the time of former President Nixon's departure; others had previously been deposited with the Administrator of General Services. You have inquired concerning the ownership of such materials and the obligations of the Government with respect to subpoenas and court orders addressed to the United States or its officials pertaining to them.

To conclude that such materials are not the property of former President Nixon would be to reverse what has apparently been the almost unvaried understanding of all three branches of the Government since the beginning of the Republic, and to call into question the practices of our Presidents since the earliest times. In Folsom v. Marsh, 9 F. Cas. 342 (No. 4901), 2 Story 100, 108-109 (C.C.D. Mass. 1841), Mr. Justice Story, while sitting in circuit, found that President Washington's letters, including his official correspondence,¹ were his private property

¹ The official documents involved in the case were:

Letters addressed by Washington, as commander-in-chief, to the President of Congress.

Official letters to governors of States and speakers of legislative bodies.

Circular letters.

General orders.

Communications (official) addressed as President to his Cabinet.

Letter accepting the command of the army, on our expected war with France. 2 Story at 104-105.

The clear holding on the property point (Id. at 108-09) is arguably which he could bequeath, which his estate could alienate, and in which the purchaser could acquire a copyright. According to testimony of the Archivist of the United States in 1955, every President of the United States beginning with George Washington regarded all the papers and historical materials which accumulated in the White House during his administration, whether of a private or official nature, as his own property.² A classic exposition of this Presidential view was set forth by President Taft in a lecture presented several years after he had left the White House:

The office of the President is not a recording office. The vast amount of correspondence that goes through it, signed either by the President or his secretaries, does not become the property or a record of the government unless it goes on to the official files of the department to which it may be addressed. The President takes with him all the correspondence, original and copies, carried on during his administration. Taft, The Presidency 30-31 (1916).

Past Congressional recognition of the President's title is evidenced by the various statutes providing for Government purchase of the official and private papers of many of our early Presidents, including Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe and Jackson. See 1955 Hearings at 28, 39-42.

Even if there were no recent statutory sanction of Presidential ownership, a consistent history such as that described above might well be determinative. As the Supreme Court said in United States v. Midwest Oil Co., 236 U.S. 495 (1915):

[G]overnment is a practical affair intended for practical men. Both officers, law-makers and citizens naturally adjust themselves to any long-continued action of the Executive Department—on the presumption that unauthorized acts would not have been allowed to be so often repeated as to crystallize into a regular practice. That presumption is not reasoning in a circle but the basis of a wise and quieting rule that in determining the meaning of a statute or the existence of a power, weight shall be given to the usage itself—even when the validity of the practice is the subject of investigation. Id. at 472-73.

[W]hile no . . . express authority has been granted [by Congress], there is nothing in the nature of the power exercised which prevents Congress from granting it by implication just as could be done by any other owner of property under similar conditions. Id. at 474.

Moreover, with respect to the practice at issue here, there is recent statutory sanction. The 1955 Presidential Libraries Act, which serves as the permanent basis of the converted to dictum by Justice Story's later indication, in connection with another issue, that copyright violation with respect to the official documents did not have to be established in order to maintain the suit. (Id. at 114).

² Statement of Dr. Wayne C. Grover, Archivist of the United States, during the House Hearings on the Joint Resolution of August 12, 1955, 69 Stat. 695, To provide for the acceptance and maintenance of Presidential libraries, and for other purposes (now codified in 44 U.S.C. 2101, 2107 and 2108; hereinafter referred to as the "Presidential Libraries Act"), Hearing before a Special Subcommittee of the Committee on Government Operations, House of Representatives, 84th Cong., 1st Sess., on H.J. Res. 330, H.J. Res. 331, and H.J. Res. 332 (hereafter referred to as "1955 Hearings"), pp. 28, 45.

Presidential Library system, constitutes clear legislative acknowledgement that a President has title to all the documents and historical materials—whether personal or official—which accumulate in the White House Office during his incumbency. The Federal Records Act of 1950, 64 Stat. 587, which was the predecessor of the Presidential Libraries Act, authorized the Administrator of General Services to accept for deposit "the personal papers and other personal historical documentary materials of the present President of the United States." Section 507(e), 64 Stat. 588. The word "personal" might have been read as intended to distinguish between the private and official papers of the President.³ The corresponding provision of the current law, however, 44 U.S.C. 2107(1), avoids the ambiguity. It envisions the President's deposit of all Presidential materials, not only personal ones. During the House debate on the Presidential Libraries Act, Congressman Moss, who was in charge of the bill, expressly stated:

Four. Finally, it should be remembered that Presidential papers belong to the President, and that they have increased tremendously in volume in the past 25 or 30 years. It is no longer possible for a President to take his papers home with him and care for them properly. It is no accident that the last three Presidents—Hoover, F. D. Roosevelt, and Harry Truman—have had to make special provisions through the means of the presidential library to take care of their papers. 101 Cong. Rec. 9935 (1955).

The legislative history of the Act reflects no disagreement with this position on the part of any Member of the Congress. The hearings before a Special Subcommittee of the House Committee on Government Operations indicate congressional awareness of the Act's assumption that all Presidential papers are the private property of the President. 1955 Hearings at 12, 20, 28, 32, 52, 54, 58.

A recent discussion concerning ownership of Presidential materials appears in the report prepared by the staff of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation involving the examination of President Nixon's tax returns. H. Rept. 93-966, 93d Cong., 2d Sess. (1974). The report points to the practice of Presidents since Washington of treating their papers, both private and official, as their personal property; and to the congressional ratification of the practice in the 1955 library legislation. It concludes that "the historical precedents taken together with the provisions set forth in the Presidential Libraries Act, suggest that the papers of President Nixon are considered his personal property rather than public property." Id. at 28-29.

³ Compare Section 507(e) with Section 507(a), dealing with the records of an agency. A memorandum prepared in the Office of the Assistant Solicitor General (now Office of Legal Counsel) on July 24, 1951 indicated that such a distinction between private and official Presidential papers would be inconsistent with historic precedents, and difficult if not impossible to maintain. It accordingly regarded the Records Act's use of the term "personal" as intended merely to exclude the permanent files of the Chief Executive Clerk discussed at page 12 below [page 1108 of this issue].

An apparent obstacle to Presidential ownership of all White House materials is Article II, section 1, clause 7 of the Constitution, which provides:

"The President shall, at stated times, receive for his services a compensation, which shall neither be increased nor diminished during the period for which he shall have been elected, and he shall not receive within that period any other emolument from the United States, or any of them."

But objection based upon this provision is circular in its reasoning, except insofar as it applies to the blank typing paper and materials upon which the Presidential records are inscribed. For the records themselves are given to the President as an "emolument" only if one assumes that they are not the property of the President from the very moment of their creation. As for the blank typing paper and materials, which are of course of negligible value, they can be regarded as consumables, like electricity or telephone service, provided for the conduct of Presidential business. In any event, the Constitutional provision can simply not be interpreted in such a fashion as to preclude the conferral of anything of value, beyond his salary, upon the President. An eminent authority on the subject states the following:

As a matter of fact the President enjoys many more "emoluments" from the United States than the "compensation" which he receives "at stated times"—at least, what most people would reckon to be emoluments. Corwin, The President 348 n. 53.

He gives as examples of such additional emoluments provided by the Congress the use of personal secretaries and the right to reside in the White House. Id. at 348-49.

Another obstacle to Presidential ownership of the materials in question is their character as public documents, often secret and sometimes necessary for the continued operation of government. However, without speaking to the desirability of the established property rule (and there is pending in the Congress legislation which would apparently alter it—S. 2951, 93d Cong., 2d Sess., a bill "[t]o provide for public ownership of certain documents of elected public officials"), it must be conceded that accommodation of such concerns can be achieved whether or not ownership of the materials in question rests with the former President. Historically, there has been consistent acknowledgement that Presidential materials are peculiarly affected by a public interest which may justify subjecting the absolute ownership rights of the ex-President to certain limitations directly related to the character of the documents as records of government activity. Thus, in Folsom v. Marsh, supra, Mr. Justice Story stated the following:

In respect to official letters, addressed to the government, or any of its departments, by public officers, so far as the right of the government extends, from principles of public policy, to withhold them from publication, or to give them publicity, there may be a just ground of distinction. It may be doubtful, whether any public officer is at liberty to publish them, at least, in the same age, when secrecy may be required by the public exigencies, without the sanction of the government. On the other hand, from the nature of the public service, or the character of the documents, embracing historical, military, or diplomatic information, it may be the right, and even the duty, of the government, to give them publicity, even against the will of the writers. 2 Story at 113.

That portion of the Criminal Code dealing with the transmission or loss of national security information, 18 U.S.C. § 793, obviously applies to Presidential papers even when they are within the possession of the former President.⁴ Upon the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt during the closing months of World War II, with full acceptance of the traditional view that all White House papers belonged to the President and devolved to his estate, some of the papers dealing with prosecution of the War (the so-called "Map Room Papers") were retained by President Truman under a theory of "protective custody" until December 1946. Matter of Roosevelt, 190 Misc. 341, 344, 73 N.Y.S. 821, 825 (Sur. Ct. 1947); Eighth Annual Report of the Archivist of the United States as to the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library (1947) p. 1. Thus, regardless of whether this is the best way to approach the problem, precedent demonstrates that the governmental interests arising because of the peculiar nature of these materials (notably, any need to protect national security information and any need for continued use of certain documents in the process of government) can be protected in full conformity with the theory of ownership on the part of the ex-President.

Because the principle of Presidential ownership of White House materials has been acknowledged by all three branches of the Government from the earliest times; because that principle does not violate any provision of the Constitution or contravene any existing statute; and because that principle is not inconsistent with adequate protection of the interests of the United States; I conclude that the papers and materials in question were the property of Richard M. Nixon when his term of office ended. Any inference that the former President abandoned his ownership of the materials he left in the White House and the Executive Office Building is eliminated by a memorandum to the White House staff from Jerry H. Jones, Special Assistant to President Nixon, dated the day of his resignation, asserting that "the files of the White House Office belong to the President in whose Administration they were accumulated," and setting forth instructions with respect to the treatment of such materials until they can be collected and disposed of according to the ex-President's wishes. We are advised that the materials previously deposited with the Administrator of General Services were likewise transmitted and received with the understanding of continuing Presidential ownership.

I must, however, exclude one category of documents from the scope of this opinion concerning ownership and advise you that their status cannot be definitively determined on the basis of presently available information. Although the fact is not recorded in the published materials we have examined, our inquiry indicates that at least in recent memory certain "permanent files" have been retained by the Chief Executive Clerk of the White House from administration to administration. These include White House budget and personnel material, and records or copies of some Presidential actions useful to the Clerk's office for such purposes as keeping track of the terms of Presidential appointments and providing models or precedents for future Presidential action. Retention of these materials by the Chief Executive Clerk is of course not necessarily inconsistent with initial Presidential ownership. In light of the otherwise uniform practice with respect to much more important official documents, relinquishment of these materials may reasonably be regarded as a voluntary act of courtesy on the part of the outgoing Chief Executive. I cannot, however, make an adequately informed judgment concerning these files without more extensive factual and historical inquiry, which your need for this opinion does not permit. Of course, even if such inquiry should show that these particular documents have been regarded as Government property, that conclusion would not support a generalization of Government ownership with respect to the much more extensive other material covered by this opinion, as to which the Presidential practice and congressional acquiescence are clear.

⁴ Section 11 of Executive Order 11652 makes explicit provision for declassification of Presidential material that has been deposited in the Archives.

As to the obligations of the Government with respect to subpoenas and court orders directed to the United States or its officials pertaining to the subject materials: Even though the Government is merely the custodian and not the owner, it can properly be subjected to court directives relating to the materials. The Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure authorize the courts, upon motion of a defendant, to order the Government to permit access to papers and other objects "which are within the possession, custody or control of the government. . . ." Fed. R. Crim. P. 16(b). A similar provision is applicable with regard to discovery in civil cases involving material within the "possession, custody or control" of a party (including the Government) Fed. R. Civ. P. 34(a). In addition, in both criminal and civil cases, a subpoena may be issued directing a person to produce documents or objects which are within his possession, but which belong to another person. Fed. R. Crim. P. 17(c); Fed. R. Civ. P. 45(b). See, e.g., Couch v. United States, 409 U.S. 322 (1973); Schwimmer v. United States, 232 F.2d 855, 860 (8th Cir., 1956), cert. denied, 352 U.S. 833; United States v. Re, 313 F. Supp. 442, 449 (S.D.N.Y. 1970). I advise you, therefore, that items included within the subject materials properly subpoenaed from the Government or its officials must be produced; and that none of the materials can be moved or otherwise disposed of contrary to the provisions of any duly issued court order against the Government or its officials pertaining to them. Of course both the former President and the Government can seek modification of such subpoenas and orders, and can challenge their validity on Constitutional or other grounds.

Respectfully,

WILLIAM B. SAXBE
Attorney General

[The President, The White House]

Pardon and Agreement on Presidential Materials of Richard Nixon

News Conference of Philip W. Buchen, Counsel to the President. September 8, 1974

MR. TERHORST. Gentlemen, if you are ready for the briefing, we have Philip Buchen, the legal counsel of the White House, to address your questions on the President's statement and on the documents you have in your hand.

As you know, he is the President's legal adviser. He was very much a participant in the preparation of this proclamation, and so here is Mr. Buchen to take your questions.

I think he may have an opening statement which he may like to read first.

MR. BUCHEN. Thank you, Jerry.

I appreciate your all being here on this Sunday morning, or midday.

I wanted just to say a few things first, because it may answer questions in advance. And at the conclusion of these remarks, I will try to field the questions you throw this way.

In addition to the major development of this morning when President Ford granted a pardon to former President Nixon, I have two other legal developments to announce which occurred prior to the issuance of the proclamation of pardon.

The first involves the opinion of Attorney General William B. Saxbe to President Ford dealing with papers and other records, including tapes, retained during the Administration of former President Nixon in the White House offices.

In this opinion, the Attorney General concludes that such materials are the present property of Mr. Nixon; however, it is also concluded that during the time the materials remain in the custody of the United States, they are subject to subpoenas and court orders directed to any official who controls that custody. And in this conclusion, I have concurred.

This opinion was sought by the President from the Attorney General on August 22.

Q. When you say the President, you mean President Ford?

MR. BUCHEN. That is right.

The reason for seeking the opinion was the conflict created between Mr. Nixon's requests on the one hand for delivery to his control of the materials, and on the other hand, the pending court orders and subpoenas directed at the United States and certain of its officials.

The court orders have required that the custody of the materials be maintained at their present locations. And both the orders and subpoenas have called for the identification and production of certain materials allegedly relevant to court proceedings in which the orders and subpoenas originated.

In addition, we were advised of interests of other parties in having certain records disclosed to them under warning that if they were to be removed and delivered to the control of Mr. Nixon, court action would be taken to prevent that move and to protect the claimed rights to inspection or disclosure.

Therefore, it became fully apparent that unless this conflict was resolved, the present Administration would be enmeshed for a long time in answering to disputed claims over who could obtain information from the Nixon records, how requested information could, as a practical matter, be extracted from the vast volume of records in which it might appear, and how and by whom its relevancy to any particular court proceeding could be determined, and at the same time to try satisfying the claims of Mr. Nixon that he owned the records.

Within a week of the request to the Attorney General for an opinion made by President Ford, I was advised informally of what its general nature would be. From that time on, I realized that the opinion itself would not provide a practical solution to the handling and management of the papers so as to reconcile rights and interests of private ownership with the limited but very important rights and interests of litigants to disclosure of selected relevant parts of the materials.

Thus, I initiated conversations with the Attorney General's Office, with Special Prosecutor Jaworski, with attorneys for certain litigants seeking disclosure, and with Herbert J. Miller, as soon as he became attorney for Mr. Nixon.

The purpose of these conversations was to explore ways for reconciling these different interests in records of the previous Administration so that this Administration would not be caught in the middle of trying on a case-by-case basis to resolve each dispute over the right of access or disclosure.

The outcome of these conversations was the conclusion on my part that Mr. Nixon, as the principal party in interest, should be requested to come forth with a proposal for dealing satisfactorily with Presidential materials of his Administration in ways that offered reasonable protection and safeguards to each party who has a legitimate court-supported right to production of particular materials relevant to his case.

Mr. Nixon and his attorney then agreed to pursue this approach, and in company with White House Counsel, they were able to accomplish the second of the developments which I am announcing today.

And that is the letter agreement, of which you have copies, between former President Nixon and Arthur F. Sampson, Administrator of the General Services Administration.

These two developments are, of course, much less significant than the one you have learned about earlier. President Ford has chosen to carry out a responsibility expressed in the preamble to the Constitution of ensuring domestic tranquillity and has chosen to do so by exercise of a power that he alone has under the Constitution to grant a pardon for offenses against the United States.

About a week ago, President Ford asked me to study judicial precedents bearing on the exercise of his right to grant a pardon, particularly with reference to whether or not a pardon could only follow indictment or conviction. The answer I found, based on considerable authority, was that a pardon could be granted at any time and need not await an indictment or conviction.

President Ford also asked me to investigate how long it would be before prosecution of former President Nixon could occur, if it were brought, and how long it would take to bring it to a conclusion.

On this point, I consulted with Special Prosecutor Jaworski, and he advised me as follows and has authorized me to quote his language, and I quote:

"The factual situation regarding a trial of Richard M. Nixon within constitutional bounds is unprecedented. It is especially unique in view of the recent House Judiciary Committee inquiry on impeachment, resulting in a unanimous adverse finding to Richard M. Nixon on the article involving obstruction of justice.

"The massive publicity given the hearings and the findings that ensued, the reversal of judgment of a number of members of the Republican Party following the release of the June 23 tape recording, and their statements carried nationwide, and, finally, the resignation of Richard M. Nixon require a delay before selection of a jury is begun of a period from 9 months to a year, and perhaps even longer.

"This judgment is predicated on a review of the decisions of United States courts involving prejudicial pretrial publicity."

Q. Is that the end of the quotes?

MR. BUCHEN. No, I am going on to indicate something else that will be of interest to you. That is the end of that quote.

Another quote from his communication to me is as follows: "The situation involving Richard M. Nixon is readily distinguishable from the facts involved in the case of United States v. Mitchell, et al., set for trial on September 30.

"The defendants in the Mitchell case were indicted by a grand jury operating in secret session. They will be called to trial, unlike Richard M. Nixon, if indicted, without any previous adverse finding by an investigatory body holding public hearings on its conclusions."

That is the end of the quotation.

Q. Would you read that last sentence again?

MR. BUCHEN. Yes. It is an important one. "They," meaning the defendants, "will be called to trial, unlike Richard M. Nixon, if indicted, without any previous adverse finding by an investigatory body holding public hearings on its conclusions."

Except for my seeking and obtaining this advice from Mr. Jaworski, none of my discussions with him involved any understandings or commitments regarding his role in the possible prosecution of former President Nixon or in the prosecution of others.

President Ford has not talked with Mr. Jaworski, but I did report to President Ford the opinion of the Special Prosecutor about the delay necessary before any possible trial of the former President could begin.

I would also like to add on another subject, no action or statement by former President Nixon, which has been disclosed today, however welcome and helpful, was made a precondition of the pardon.

That is a negative because of the word "no" at the beginning. I might add that whether or not it was disclosed today, it was not a precondition.

Q. There were no secret agreements made?

MR. BUCHEN. That is right.

President Ford in determining to issue a pardon acted solely according to the dictates of his own conscience. Moreover, he did so as an act of mercy not related in any way to obtaining concessions in return.

Q. Would you go over the last phrase?

Q. After "mercy."

MR. BUCHEN. Mercy not related in any way to obtaining concessions in return. However, my personal view—

Q. Is that yours or Ford's?

MR. BUCHEN. Mine. —is that former President Nixon's words, which I have had a chance to read, as you have, that followed the granting of the pardon, constitute a statement of contrition which I believe will hasten the time when he and his family may achieve peace of mind and spirit and will much sooner bring peace of mind and spirit to all of our citizens.

Q. Would you review that sentence?

MR. BUCHEN. Yes.

However, my personal view—these are my own words—is that former President Nixon's words expressed upon his learning of the pardon, constitute a statement of contrition which I believe will hasten the time when he and his family may achieve peace of mind and spirit and will much sooner bring peace of mind and spirit to all of our citizens.

Now I have only one other paragraph that I would like to bring out in conclusion. I want to express for the record my heartfelt personal thanks and appreciation to a dear friend of the President's and of mine. He is Benton Becker, a Washington attorney, who has served voluntarily as my special and trusted consultant and emissary in helping to bring about the events reported today.

Q. Emissary to Mr. Jaworski or Mr. Nixon?

MR. BUCHEN. To Mr. Miller and Mr. Nixon, not to Mr. Jaworski.

I also acknowledge with deep gratitude the services of William E. Casselman II, who is the highly valued counsel—who was the highly valued counsel to Vice President Ford for his whole tenure in that office, and is now my close associate in the service of the President of the United States.

Q. Who informed President Nixon that he was getting a pardon, and also is President Ford basing this pardon only on the fact that it would have taken a long time to try the Presidency and his own conscience?

MR. BUCHEN. Let me take the first question first.

When Mr. Becker went to San Clemente on Thursday evening, he was authorized to advise the former President that President Ford was intending to grant a pardon, subject, however, to his further consideration of the matter because he wanted to reserve the chance to deliberate and ponder somewhat longer, but he was authorized to say that in all probability a pardon would be issued in the near future.

The second question?

Q. The second question is: There is no admission of guilt here at all and despite your assumptions that it is contrition, there is no actual admission of guilt. Do you agree?

MR. BUCHEN. Well, my interpretation is that it comes very close to saying that he did wrong, that he did not act forthrightly.

Q. Mr. Buchen, what is the linkage between the agreement with Mr. Sampson and Mr. Becker's negotiations at San Clemente?

MR. BUCHEN. The initiative for getting an agreement that would help solve our problems came from me, and I advised Mr. Miller as attorney for Mr. Nixon that that was my desire. I so advised him before I knew anything about a contemplated pardon.

Q. Mr. Buchen—

MR. BUCHEN. May I finish, please?

However, as we pursued talks on what to do with the papers, I made it very clear to Mr. Miller that I wanted the initiative to come from him and his client as to the specifics of what he and his client would be willing to do regarding the management and ultimate disposition of the papers and tapes.

Q. Mr. Buchen, what will this mean as far as former President Nixon's role as a witness in the upcoming trials are concerned?

MR. BUCHEN. It would have no effect on that. If the documents do get transferred in a timely fashion, it may permit him to review the pertinent material more adequately so far as his testimony is concerned.

Q. Mr. Buchen, doesn't this pardon eliminate any possibility that the former President might invoke the fifth amendment to refuse to testify?

MR. BUCHEN. I think you better ask his own lawyer that. As you know, this applies only to offenses against the United States. It does not apply to possible offenses against State law.

Q. But regarding offenses against the United States, he would have no fifth amendment rights now that he has been pardoned; is that correct?

MR. BUCHEN. I don't know that you can separate them when you plead.

Q. Mr. Buchen, why did the President decide to do this now at a time before the jury has been sequestered in the September 30 trial?

MR. BUCHEN. That will have to be information that will have to come from his statement. I have nothing to add.

Q. Can you tell us if the President has assured himself that former President Nixon is not guilty or liable to accusation of any very serious charges that have not been made public so far, that there is no other time bomb ticking away?

MR. BUCHEN. I don't think he said that.

Q. No, no, I am saying, has President Ford done anything to assure himself that there is no evidence of any more serious criminality committed by former President Nixon than what is generally out in the House Judiciary Committee report and this sort of thing?

MR. BUCHEN. So far as I know, he has made no independent inquiries. If he had wanted to satisfy himself as to the content of the evidence still in the White House, of course, that would have been an insurmountable task, as you have no idea of the huge volumes.

Q. Did you assure yourself—

MR. BUCHEN. Just a minute. There are huge volumes. However, I did personally consult with Mr. Jaworski as to the nature of the investigations being conducted, and I was able to tell the President that so far as I was able to learn through that inquiry, there were no time bombs, as you call them.

Q. Mr. Buchen, what was the President's reaction when Mr. Becker conveyed this message to him?

MR. BUCHEN. I don't know that it was done in person. I don't think he was necessarily in the room, so I don't believe he can—

Q. Did you get any reaction from the President, even if it was by mail or through counsel, did the President say he was grateful for this?

MR. BUCHEN. The only reaction we have gotten is the statement that came over the wire.

Q. Are you saying that Ziegler got the word from Becker and that President Nixon was not informed personally at any time by Ford or by any emissary?

MR. BUCHEN. I think you will have to ask Mr. Becker that. My understanding is that initially the talks went through Mr. Ziegler, but there were also face-to-face meetings between Mr. Becker and the President, and what occurred by one method, and one by the other, I don't know.

Q. There was no personal contact between Ford and Nixon?

MR. BUCHEN. None at all.

Q. You refer to Becker as an emissary, and you talk about one meeting out there Thursday to notify him. What were the reasons for his previous trips back and forth? What was discussed?

MR. BUCHEN. Becker only went once.

Q. Only on Thursday?

MR. BUCHEN. Yes, and not only to discuss that. They had to work out the details of that letter agreement, because Miller and Becker were in negotiation, and Miller had to consult his client, and they had to make modifications. And they had to call back to see whether that fit in correctly with what General Services Administration could feasibly do. So, that involved a lot of the time he was out there.

Q. Mr. Buchen, did Mr. Jaworski inform you that an indictment, or indictments, against former President Nixon were expected?

MR. BUCHEN. No, he did not.

Q. May I follow that, then? Isn't the granting of a pardon at this stage an admission that an indictment was expected and that conviction was probable?

MR. BUCHEN. I think you have to recall that word came out that the grand jury at one time wanted to name the former President, or then President, as a co-conspirator, and that is one evidence that something more would have happened.

And I think it is very likely, from all we have read, that there would be people who would want him prosecuted and would intend to do so, although I don't say that that was Mr. Jaworski's view.

Q. Was Mr. Jaworski ever consulted about this pardon, ever asked about this?

MR. BUCHEN. No.

Q. Did Jaworski agree to what was done today?

MR. BUCHEN. He had no voice in it.

Q. Do you know what his mood or sentiment was?

MR. BUCHEN. You will have to ask him. I want to get to Peter, here.

Q. I wanted to follow up that line. You know we are not able to get a response from Mr. Jaworski's office, and it would really help us for you to tell us all you can about the status of the investigation against the President, former President Nixon?

MR. BUCHEN. I don't have that information, Peter. That is kept in his shop.

Q. But in that regard, why was he not consulted about what kind of action he contemplated against the President before the pardon was issued?

MR. BUCHEN. We didn't think that was relevant.

Q. You assumed he would be prosecuted; is that right?

MR. BUCHEN. We assumed that he may have been prosecuted.

Q. When was Jaworski told?

MR. BUCHEN. About the pardon?

Q. About the pardon.

MR. BUCHEN. I called him about three-quarters of an hour before I knew the President was going to announce it so that he would know it.

Q. Today?

MR. BUCHEN. Yes.

Q. What was his reaction?

Q. When was that?

MR. BUCHEN. He thanked me for advising him in advance of his hearing it over the radio or TV.

Q. And he did not object?

MR. BUCHEN. He didn't. He didn't say anything one way or the other.

Q. As we read this statement, which does not admit any guilt whatsoever, what is to prevent the former President from going out, say 6 months hence, and saying that nothing was really even proven against him and he was hounded out of office?

MR. BUCHEN. I guess he has the right to say that, because until an indictment and conviction, I think that would be true in his case as well as anybody else's case who is under a cloud of suspicion.

Q. But President Ford spoke of the historical aspects of this, and what is going to keep history from getting more muddled than ever?

MR. BUCHEN. I think the historians will take care of that.

Q. Mr. Buchen, does President Ford plan to grant a similar pardon to the former President's subordinates who are scheduled to go on trial later this month?

MR. BUCHEN. To my knowledge, he has not given that matter any thought.

Q. Can you clarify—was the agreement reached with the GSA about the disposal of the tapes and documents? Was the pardon contingent on that?

MR. BUCHEN. Neither.

Q. They are not together?

MR. BUCHEN. Right.

Q. Number two, why did he choose 10:30, Sunday morning, to make the announcement?

MR. BUCHEN. I think you will have to ask him that. He figured that this was a very solemn moment that exemplified, I think, an act that was one of high mercy, and it seemed appropriate, I think, to him that it should occur on a day when we do have thoughts like that, or should.

Q. Mr. Buchen, I don't understand why you contrast the treatment of Nixon with the treatment of Mitchell coming up. If I understand your statement right, you said that Mitchell has not had the publicity and the action by a hearing as Nixon had before the House Judiciary Committee.

MR. BUCHEN. That was Mr. Jaworski's statement. That was not mine.

Q. I don't understand this, and maybe you can explain what you think he means there. Mitchell certainly had the hearing with conclusions and explanations of conclusions of a hearing by the Watergate committee.

MR. BUCHEN. There was a hearing, but I don't know how conclusive the findings were.

Q. There was a hearing, and Mitchell testified. There was a public hearing, and there were conclusions and recommendations on that, and a press conference on that, and great publicity.

MR. BUCHEN. I would judge that Mr. Jaworski does not find those conclusions prejudicial to Mr. Mitchell's upcoming case.

Q. Mr. Buchen, the President, in his statement this morning, referred to this matter threatening the former President's health. Do you have any further details on that? Do you know something about his health that we don't?

MR. BUCHEN. No, I didn't go out there, so I didn't see the man.

Q. Do you know what he meant by that?

MR. BUCHEN. I think it is generally known that this man has suffered a good deal. I think you people who saw him more recently than I have can form your own conclusions.

Q. Have Mr. Ford and Mr. Nixon talked this morning?

MR. BUCHEN. No, not to my knowledge, but I do not believe they did.

Q. Do you know, was the President in a depression and has the President threatened to commit suicide or anything like that?

MR. BUCHEN. I have no knowledge.

Q. You say that you looked into this matter from a constitutional standpoint for the President, and I am sure you looked into the history of it. Has any President ever granted a pardon before in history to anyone prior to that person being charged with a crime formally?

MR. BUCHEN. Oh, yes, there are lots of precedents for that.

Q. Like what?

MR. BUCHEN. Well, one of your colleagues, named Mr. Burdick, was pardoned before he was asked to testify regarding some alleged criminality involving the Customs Service during the Wilson Administration, and he was given a pardon.

Q. He was a newsman?

MR. BUCHEN. He was a newsman.

And, of course, the pardons granted by President Lincoln, for example, and the pardons granted after the Whiskey Rebellion and other insurrections, were applied to people who were not indicted.

Q. Mr. Buchen, I am a little confused at your words, more or less dismissing the question of whether or not the President would grant pardons to Mr. Haldeman, Mr. Ehrlichman, Mr. Mitchell, and the others who will go on trial September 30. Is it not fairly clear to you, or at least do you not, here in the White House, admit the possibility that their defense now, in light of the action of President Ford today, will be that the President has pardoned the man under whose orders they were operating? And what is your reaction to this possible line of defense or line of appeal by the defendants in that trial?

Surely, this must have been given some consideration. And I again would ask you what you think is going to happen; what you think the President would do when confronted with this question?

MR. BUCHEN. Well, I question your broad characterization that the acts for which they are being charged were necessarily—

Q. I am just suggesting this may be their defense.

MR. BUCHEN. This may be their defense. Now, that will become Mr. Jaworski's problem and, of course, the judge's problem. You have already seen that Mr. Jaworski apparently assumes that the situation in their case is far different from the situation in the former President's case.

Q. Phil, can I ask you this: Did this process that led up to the pardon today start a week ago when the President came to you?

MR. BUCHEN. Yes.

Q. Was there something that happened just prior to his coming to you that got his interest working in doing this thing just now?

MR. BUCHEN. If there was, I don't know what it was, Ron.

Q. Have they talked on the phone at any time this week or immediately prior to this week?

MR. BUCHEN. They have not talked on the phone since Jack Miller became his attorney.

Q. Did this process start after last Sunday's publication of the Gallup poll that said that the majority of the public wanted to see Mr. Nixon prosecuted?

MR. BUCHEN. Let me figure my dates. That was Labor Day weekend, was it? I worked all Labor Day weekend so it came before that.

Q. To what extent did the transition team look ahead to the problem of a pardon, and have you done any work at all—

MR. BUCHEN. They didn't consider that. They had far too much else to consider.

Q. As a matter of equal justice under law, we have now had the two top officials of the United States, both allegedly involved in crimes, namely, Vice President Agnew and Mr. Nixon, who have been freed of criminal charges. Both of them are entitled to go around the country and represent themselves as being innocent. What is a citizen to make of that situation when ordinary criminals, including the aides involved in this, have to be tried?

MR. BUCHEN. Of course, I cannot speak at all for the treatment of former Vice President Agnew because this Administration was not in any way involved. But I think you have to understand—and maybe it is a good time on Sunday to think about it—that there is a difference between mercy and justice.

I don't think that you can assume that mercy is equally dispensed or how it could be equally dispensed.

Q. Mr. Buchen, is there any pardon being considered for the aides who performed their acts allegedly in the name of and in behalf of Richard Nixon?

MR. BUCHEN. I have already spoken to that question.

Q. I don't think you have, Mr. Buchen. I am actually talking about those now in prison, not Mr. Nixon, John Dean and others?

MR. BUCHEN. So far as I know, no thought has been given to that.

Q. Mr. Buchen, is it now possible under the agreement on the custody of Presidential tapes and papers for any tape made during the Nixon Administration to be subpoenaed even though it is not now the subject of a subpoena?

MR. BUCHEN. It is possible. In order to get a subpoena or court order, of course, certain showings would have to be made. It is also possible, of course, for the owner of the tapes to interject objections.

Q. A followup to that. If the owner of those tapes doesn't want to give them up—he has now been pardoned of everything—what is the leverage?

MR. BUCHEN. It doesn't affect the court orders or subpoenas, and he is subject to the consequences of not obeying a valid court order or subpoena.

Q. In other words, that would come under the expiration date of August 9 in the pardon; is that right?

MR. BUCHEN. That is right.

Q. Do you feel the agreement with Mr. Sampson has insured that the Ford Administration cannot be implicated in any Watergate coverup? Was that one of your considerations?

MR. BUCHEN. That was not involved, because I don't think that is a relevant issue.

Q. Is there any change in the rules of access to documents by former White House aides?

MR. BUCHEN. The problem is that there would, of course, be an interim before the Nixon-Sampson letter agreement can be fully implemented. How we will handle the interim arrangements, I am sure can be worked out with Jack Miller as attorney for Mr. Nixon.

Q. As you recall, in the Agnew case, a paper prepared by the Justice Department listing the law violations by the former Vice President was presented in court on the theory that the American people were entitled to have the full story in addition to the specific charge to which the former Vice President pleaded.

In President Ford's preparation for today, what thought did he give to the presentation of an analysis by Special Prosecutor Jaworski of the full extent of President Nixon's role in the Watergate case, and is there any understanding at this point of eliminating Special Prosecutor Jaworski's ability to pursue that type of investigation?

MR. BUCHEN. There is no limitation on what Mr. Jaworski can do except, of course, the putative defendant has the defense now of a pardon.

On the first part of your question, there is a distinct difference between asking a man to plead guilty to a limited offense, and the treatment of Mr. Agnew, of course, was done under very different circumstances by the system of justice. In this case, it was reliance entirely on the pardon powers which involve acts of mercy.

Q. You said earlier that you had assumed that Mr. Nixon may have been prosecuted. Is that as far as you are willing to go on that issue? Did you all think it was likely that he would be prosecuted?

MR. BUCHEN. If you mean tried or indicted?

Q. Indicted?

MR. BUCHEN. I think it would be very likely that he would be indicted. How and when he could be tried was still an open question.

Q. This likelihood, is that on the strength of your conversation with Mr. Jaworski that you think it was very likely?

MR. BUCHEN. No, it was largely on the basis of what the grand jury apparently intended to do on the basis of less evidence than is now available.

Q. Mr. Buchen, if the ex-President retains the sole right of access to the documents and, as I understand this GSA agreement, can even limit access by the Archivist of the United States and his staff, why should the United States remain as custodian of the documents at all?

MR. BUCHEN. There is a double-key arrangement. In other words, access can't be obtained by either the former President or the General Services Administration except by their concurrent acts.

Q. But he could conceivably, to prevent himself from embarrassment, limit access—no one could see these documents during the 3 years the United States agrees to act as custodian.

MR. BUCHEN. Unless there is a court order or subpoena.

Q. What about the court orders or subpoenas that are outstanding?

MR. BUCHEN. We will have to take this agreement to the courts involved in those proceedings and seek relief from the present processes and subpoenas on the basis of the current agreement.

Q. Mr. Buchen, did you and the President give much consideration to the fact that a criminal trial could have cleared Mr. Nixon of the charges of possible guilt, could have cleared him, cleared his name?

MR. BUCHEN. We certainly recognized that as a possibility. Whether it was given any consideration, I don't know.

Q. I mean by you or the President?

Q. Well, you were there. What was your own view?

MR. BUCHEN. My own view is that that was a possibility. If that was what the former President wanted to do, he certainly would have told us. He didn't have to accept the pardon.

Q. Did you recommend the pardon?

MR. BUCHEN. I had nothing to do with recommending it or disrecommending it.

Q. Did you ever discuss the political implications of this pardon with the President?

MR. BUCHEN. I did not.

Q. Mr. Buchen, to follow up on some of these other questions, it seems that President Ford has an interest in building into the public record a record of Mr. Nixon's alleged criminality for the same reasons that Mr. Agnew's alleged criminality was made a part of the record, to prevent him from saying that he was driven out by political opponents, et cetera. Is President Ford satisfied that former President Nixon's record of wrongdoing is sufficiently in the public record now?

MR. BUCHEN. All I can tell you is that he knows nothing that you don't know.

Q. Mr. Buchen, does the pardon in any way affect Mr. Nixon's payment of back income taxes?

MR. BUCHEN. Not at all. This does not apply to civil liabilities.

Q. Let's get back to this double-key arrangement. This is just so much lawyer's language.

MR. BUCHEN. I know that is complicated.

Q. Does that double-key arrangement prevent the President from going in there and destroying some of those tapes if he wanted to?

MR. BUCHEN. Yes, it does.

Q. So, there is adequate safeguards?

MR. BUCHEN. Yes.

Q. Does it mean that if any of those tapes are subpoenaed and he just refuses to honor the subpoena, then what would happen?

MR. BUCHEN. He would be subject to contempt of the court that issued the subpoena. It doesn't apply to any future acts.

Q. When will the tapes be physically moved to this repository in California, or are they going to remain here?

MR. BUCHEN. No, they will be moved to the California depository as soon as we can get rid of, or modification of the existing orders that require they be retained here.

Q. Is that that Laguna Niguel pyramid they will be put in?

MR. BUCHEN. Yes.

Q. But nobody can get in there by themselves. There will always be somebody to watch, is that correct?

MR. BUCHEN. Yes.

Q. When you say "current," are you referring to the two court orders that are pending?

MR. BUCHEN. There are at least three court orders that I know of. One is in the Wounded Knee case in Minnesota. Another is in the nature of an order, because the court declined to issue the order on the assurance that documents or tapes would not be moved, and that is the case involving the networks. So, you can get Ron to answer your questions on that.

The third one is the civil suit in North Carolina involving a suit by people kept out of a meeting to celebrate Billy Graham Day.

Q. Mr. Buchen, Mr. Jaworski has, of course, in his possession a considerable number of tapes which are not the originals. They are copies. This agreement with Mr. Sampson does not affect that, does it? They don't have to be returned to the mass to be moved out to Laguna?

MR. BUCHEN. The copies will be disposed of as the court orders, I assume.

Q. But this does not require them to be returned to the big group?

MR. BUCHEN. No.

Q. Can I clarify the chronology of all this? When is the first time the President indicated to you he might want to pardon Mr. Nixon?

MR. BUCHEN. Just at the start of the Labor Day weekend.

Q. On which day?

MR. BUCHEN. I know I started to work Friday night, so it must have been Friday.

Q. Did you have any contact with Mr. Miller on the issue of a pardon?

MR. BUCHEN. Not at that time. The first contact, I think, was on Thursday of this week.

Q. And you can't suggest what precipitated the President's interest?

MR. BUCHEN. I do not know.

Q. Can you tell us whether the President ever tried to—I hesitate to use "extract"—but get any admission of guilt from the President, or was it strictly—

MR. BUCHEN. He did not.

Q. Mr. Buchen, you said that President Ford has not talked to former President Nixon since Mr. Nixon retained Miller. Could you tell us the last time President Ford had contact with President Nixon—direct contact?

MR. BUCHEN. I don't know. I think it may have been the time of the Rockefeller appointment.

Q. Mr. Buchen, I am not clear on one thing, and following up Helen's question, your emissary went out on that Thursday, Mr. Becker went out on Thursday, that was the only time he went out. I am trying to get clear in my mind precisely what it was; he told the former President, or told Mr. Ziegler, and both of them at different times, that President Ford, in all probability would grant a pardon. What did he ask either of Mr. Nixon or Mr. Ziegler? What did he ask that Mr. Nixon do? Did he ask that this statement we have been given today be issued? Did he suggest wording and what it should say or did he ask for nothing? Did he ask for more than what we got in this statement?

You say at one point the former President could have turned down the pardon.

MR. BUCHEN. Yes.

Q. Did he offer that option, and did he say, if the pardon was to be granted, what the former President then should do?

MR. BUCHEN. The former President was represented by counsel, you know.

Q. Well, did he make the offer to Mr. Miller?

MR. BUCHEN. Mr. Miller is a shrewd enough attorney to know that he could have advised his client either to accept or reject the pardon.

To answer your other question, as you can see, that letter agreement is a very complicated one, and it involved a lot of practical problems. Before Miller and Becker went out, a rough draft of Miller's proposal was in our hands. But it was obvious that we could not work out the details of what would suit Miller's client and what would suit GSA and what would suit what we thought was the best interests of the Government and of the potential other parties in interest without going out and making the final draft out there. And that was done.

As far as the statement from the former President is concerned, that was a matter that was left entirely up to the discretion of his own counsel and his own advisers.

Q. Let me see if I can put it another way, Mr. Buchen. Was the pardon in any of the conversations involving yourself, Mr. Becker, or anyone else, with anyone representing the former President, was this pardon contingent on anything?

MR. BUCHEN. I have said no, and I repeat no.

Q. Are you saying if he had not given this letter at all, if he had said, "Well, I will make no letter agreement," are you saying categorically that a pardon would have been issued anyway?

MR. BUCHEN. I am not sure because President Ford could have changed his mind or not made up his mind finally.

Q. When was the package completed that was announced today?

MR. BUCHEN. We got the agreement back on early Saturday morning and spent that day reviewing it with Mr. Sampson, so that was wound up.

Q. You mean yesterday morning?

MR. BUCHEN. Yes, yesterday morning. The statement, of course, we didn't see until we got it over the wires right after the speech.

Q. Did the President know there was going to be a statement before he finally decided on the pardon?

MR. BUCHEN. Yes.

Q. Did he have any idea what the contents would be, what the tone would be?

MR. BUCHEN. In a general way, yes.

Q. You are saying that the pardon had nothing to do with this letter agreement?

MR. BUCHEN. That was not a condition.

Q. This was a completely independent action?

MR. BUCHEN. Right. The negotiations for that agreement were started independently of even a consideration of a pardon.

Q. The decision to pardon was not made until after this agreement was obtained?

MR. BUCHEN. That is right.

Q. What you are saying, you cannot say there would have been a pardon if the agreement had not been made?

MR. BUCHEN. All I can say is that the President had the right not to grant a pardon because he had not finally made up his mind to do so.

Q. When did he make up his mind to do so?

MR. BUCHEN. I suppose until that pen got on paper or until he started making the statement.

Q. He made his decision after the agreement was made?

MR. BUCHEN. That—what went on in his mind, I don't know.

Q. When did he write the speech?

MR. BUCHEN. Last night.

Q. In sending this word through the emissary to Mr. Nixon, that he was thinking of or expected to pardon him but was reserving final judgment, was that in any way intended as encouragement to Mr. Nixon to get on with the final agreement and possibly offer the kind of a statement that he did offer today?

MR. BUCHEN. That was not the intent. If it created that impression, it was a wrong impression.

Q. Mr. Buchen, you just said that the President had an indication in a general way of the content of the former President's statement. If I may ask a two-part question: How did he obtain this indication, and did he believe, or was he informed, that the statement would be one of contrition?

MR. BUCHEN. The report was through the mouth of Benton Becker, and the characterization of it as an act of contrition is mine.

Q. Excuse me, then. What general feeling did the President have that the statement would be, what indication did he have of what the statement would be? How was it characterized by Mr. Becker?

MR. BUCHEN. He in general told the President what it would amount to and particularly called attention to the fact that there would be an acknowledgement of failure to act decisively and forthrightly on the matter of the Water-gate break-in after it became a judicial proceeding.

Q. Was that negotiated at all?

MR. BUCHEN. It was not negotiated.

Q. Was Mr. Becker informed of that on Thursday at the time he went out there?

MR. BUCHEN. I think he was informed on Friday because he got out there very late on Thursday night.

Q. Do you know if that information had any effect on Mr. Ford's decision?

MR. BUCHEN. I don't know. I am sure it pleased him and made him feel that it was easier for him to act as he contemplated doing.

MR. TERHORST. We will take three more questions.

Q. Would you please clear up some things about this letter of agreement? I am sorry, but it will take me some time to understand it. Let me see here if this is what it means. Unless there is a subpoena or a court order which Mr. Nixon would reply to, any ordinary citizen of the United States, or any officials, outside of Sampson, could not just go in there and look at these tapes or listen to them, or see them at any time? They will be shut off completely to the public?

MR. BUCHEN. That is right.

Q. Mr. Buchen, why is the date of July 1969 mentioned in the pardon?

MR. BUCHEN. It is January, the date of inauguration, January 20. President Ford misspoke when he used the word "July."

Q. How complete was your explanation of the case against the former President by Mr. Jaworski? Did he go into what areas that he might be pursuing, what he heard on the tapes that have not been made public? Anything like that?

MR. BUCHEN. The question asked him what matters could arguably involve further steps, and it read like a list from one of your newspapers.

Q. Did Mr. Becker talk strictly with you or did he ever speak to Mr. Ford? Did he deal strictly with you?

MR. BUCHEN. Oh, no; he was also in the room on occasions when I was speaking to the President.

Q. Why did he pick Becker to do this?

MR. BUCHEN. Part of the problem, as you may know, is we have a rather understaffed legal staff here and Mr. Becker is a man of rare talent that helped during the confirmation hearings of the Vice President, and he is such a good and trusted friend of both of ours that we felt he was the one we should call on.

REPORTER. Thank you.

MR. BUCHEN. All I am going to say is, for the tapes there will be two 5-year windows. The first of the 5-year windows involves controlled access by the former President for his listening to copies of tapes, copies to be made by an operator who himself does not listen to the originals.

Also, during the first 5-year window, anyone with a legitimate court subpoena or order that is upheld can have access or can require the former President to furnish the information contained on relevant portions of the tapes.

At the end of that first 5-year period, the former President retains his window, but also can order selective destruction of tapes. At the end of the 10-year period, they all get destroyed, all that remain.

Q. In the second 5-year window, is that just by persons who have legitimate subpoenas and court orders closed off?

MR. BUCHEN. That is right, because there is a 5-year statute of limitations on most, in fact on all, Federal offenses and most civil matters, so it is assumed the initial 5-year window is long enough.

Q. What is the limit on destruction after 5 years plus 1 day, or can he destroy them all?

MR. BUCHEN. He can.

Q. He can?

MR. BUCHEN. He can order them destroyed.

Q. If they were making any copies, would the originals then be destroyed in the second 5-year window?

MR. BUCHEN. The originals will be destroyed. The copies will be destroyed immediately after they are used.

Q. And he could do it after 5 years and one day for everything?

MR. BUCHEN. Right.

Q. Now can you go then from there to the documents?

MR. BUCHEN. The documents are in a different category. There is no present gift of the documents as distinguished from the tapes. However, there is a 3-year period when there will be controlled access by the owner of those documents requiring the double-key arrangement with the General Services Administrator. And the former President is under obligation to respond to any subpoena involving documents, just as he is to those involving tapes.

Q. Could you repeat that last—

MR. BUCHEN. During the 3-year period involving documents, the former President will be under obligation to respond to subpoenas involving those documents. At any time, the former President can designate certain documents by description to become the absolute property of the United States.

However, after the 3-year period, he may either elect to complete his gifts or to withdraw materials as he desires. These are documentary materials.

Q. Why the 3-year limit?

MR. BUCHEN. We felt that as a practical matter on the documentation that would be long enough. It gives everybody a warning. Obviously if there is a subpoena out that was obtained within the 3 years and the matter of its resolution has not been concluded, the subpoena would prevail.

Q. Can you destroy the documents after 3 years?

MR. BUCHEN. Yes, if he wants to withdraw them.

Q. By the way, Mr. Buchen, I may be wrong in what I am about to say, but I am going to predicate a question on it, nevertheless.

I am under the impression that the tapes, as opposed to documents, the tapes were—that things such as tape recordings were not covered when Congress closed that loophole, and for that reason, the former President could donate those tapes to the Government and claim a tax exemption.

Your second window, the 10-year time for destruction appears to rule that out; is that right?

MR. BUCHEN. He has already given them to the U.S. Government to be a gift effective at the end of the 5-year period.

Q. After he destroys them all?

MR. BUCHEN. He can't destroy them during the first 5-year period.

Q. He has given them as a gift to the United States—we are talking about tapes now—he has given them as a gift to the United States for 5 years; is that right?

MR. BUCHEN. No, it is the other way around. He has retained title for 5 years, and the gift takes effect at the end of the fifth year.

Q. But he can destroy his gift?

MR. BUCHEN. He doesn't have access to them.

Q. But he can the next day. Didn't you say 5 years and 1 day he could destroy them all?

MR. BUCHEN. He can order their destruction.

Q. What can he do with the copies? Can he dispose of them for his own purpose?

MR. BUCHEN. No, the copies will go back into the hands of the General Services Administrator, and they will be destroyed after he has listened to them.

Q. Mr. Buchen, after the 10-year period, is it mandated that the tapes, all tapes and all copies, be destroyed?

MR. BUCHEN. That is a condition.

Q. So, his gift in the second 5 years is a limited gift, in time it is a limited gift, say limited to 5 years; is that right?

MR. BUCHEN. No.

Q. You say he has given them to the United States?

MR. BUCHEN. Effective 10 years from now.

Q. Why are they going to be destroyed after 5 years?

MR. BUCHEN. Well, maybe they never should have been made in the first place. This was his desire, and I think it is consistent with the fact that these matters do involve conversations with people who had no realization that their voices were being recorded.

As an old spokesman for the right of privacy, I think there is considerable merit for putting these in a separate category from documents.

Q. Mr. Buchen, was any consideration given to the right of history and historians?

MR. BUCHEN. I am sure the historians will protest, but I think historians cannot complain if evidence for history is not perpetuated which shouldn't have been created in the first place.

Q. Is there anything he can keep, or intends to keep?

MR. BUCHEN. I am sure there are items in the documents that he would intend to keep. Of course, it would involve family letters, things of a highly personal nature.

Q. Mr. Buchen, if it is Mr. Nixon's desire to destroy the tapes after 10 years, would it not be logical to assume he will destroy them after 5 years?

MR. BUCHEN. That is his option, order them destroyed.

Q. What about the gift option, the tax deduction option?

MR. BUCHEN. I am not his tax lawyer and it seems to me if you give a gift with instructions that the items have to be destroyed, that the gift immediately loses its value, so I would think it would be very questionable.

Q. What about the President, though? Could he—

MR. BUCHEN. They will not be perpetuated beyond the limited use.

Q. Does the word "copies" include written transcripts as well as the originals?

MR. BUCHEN. Yes.

Q. As a practical matter, at the end of 5 years, then all the tapes will be destroyed except those under subpoena?

MR. BUCHEN. No, because he reserves the right to keep the window open for himself for another 5 years.

Q. Just the President, no public?

MR. BUCHEN. That is right.

Q. Is it a question they can be destroyed in 5 years, but must be destroyed in 10 years?

MR. BUCHEN. They can't be destroyed short of 5 years.

Q. Mr. Buchen, Prosecutor Jaworski gave no indication that he objected to the pardon. Is it your impression that he sort of feels relieved?

MR. BUCHEN. Wouldn't you if you were in his place?

REPORTER. Thank you.

NOTE: Press Secretary J. F. terHorst introduced Mr. Buchen at 12:12 p.m. in the Briefing Room at the White House.

For a further news conference by Mr. Buchen, see page 1123 of this issue.

Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974

Statement by the President Following Signing the Bill Into Law, While Expressing Reservations About Certain of Its Provisions. September 8, 1974

Late Saturday, I signed into law S. 821, the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974.

This is the first piece of legislation to reach my desk for action in the field of prevention and reduction of crime among our youth. Its passage by very strong majorities in both bodies of the Congress represents a continuation of our national commitment to reduce juvenile delinquency in the United States, to keep juveniles from entering the treadmill of the criminal process, and to guarantee procedural and Constitutional protection to juveniles under Federal jurisdiction.

This national commitment is one of partnership with State and local governments through which, together, we spend over $10 billion per year for criminal justice programs.

During the course of this bill's passage through the Congress, the executive branch voiced serious reservations with regard to several of its provisions for organizational change and fund authorizations. I continue to be concerned about these provisions—especially the threat they carry with regard to increased Federal spending at a time when the economic situation demands across-the-board restraint, especially in the Federal budget.

Therefore, I do not intend to seek appropriations for the new programs authorized in the bill in excess of amounts included in the 1975 budget until the general need for restricting Federal spending has abated. In the interim, the estimated $155 million in spending already provided under current programs will provide a continuation of strong Federal support.

This bill represents a constructive effort to consolidate policy direction and coordination of all Federal programs to assist States and localities in dealing with the problems of juvenile delinquency. The direction of our Federal programs has been fragmented for too long. This restructuring of present operation and authority will better assist State and local governments to carry out the responsibilities in this field, which should remain with them. Hopefully, the result will be greater security for all citizens and more purpose, sense, and happiness in the lives of young Americans.

NOTE: As enacted, the bill (S. 821) is Public Law 93-415, approved September 7, 1974.

Federal Employees Compensation Benefits

Statement by the President Following Signing of Bill Providing Increased Benefits for Employees and Their Survivors. September 8, 1974

On Saturday, I signed into law H.R. 13871, the 1974 amendments to the Federal Employees' Compensation Act. This act provides workers' compensation benefits for Federal employees injured or killed in the performance of duty. Since the law was last amended over 8 years ago, a number of social and economic developments have made it necessary to update and revise the requirements regarding compensation benefits for injured Federal workers. I feel this new legislation meets those changing conditions.

This bill will provide for improved protection against rising costs for Federal employees and survivors who receive benefits. It also guarantees reemployment rights at the same or an equivalent position upon recovery within certain time limitations. Finally, the bill increases compensation benefits for survivors.

Therefore, I am pleased to sign this bill which will assure quality protection for a very deserving group of workers—the Nation's Federal employees.

NOTE: As enacted, the bill (H.R. 13871) is Public Law 93-416, approved September 7, 1974.

Resignation of the Press Secretary

Statement by the President Following the Resignation of J. F. terHorst. September 8, 1974

I deeply regret Jerry terHorst's resignation. I understand his position. I appreciate the fact that good people will differ with me on this very difficult decision. However, it is my judgment that it is in the best interest of our country. I think Jerry did an outstanding job in a controversial period of transition. I thank him for his service.

NOTE: The statement was made available by the White House Press Office. It was not issued in the form of a White House press release.

Sixth International Conference on Urban Transportation

The President's Remarks at the Meeting in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. September 9, 1974

Will Rockwell, Senators Scott and Schweiker, my former colleagues in the House of Representatives, Governor Shapp, Mayor Flaherty, distinguished local officials, ladies and gentlemen:

It is a very great privilege and an exceedingly high honor for me to participate in this conference on urban transportation, and I am especially grateful to be participating here in the Golden Triangle in the area where the city of Pittsburgh has done so much in the field of urban transportation.

And may I also express my appreciation for the Secretary of Transportation, Mr. Claude Brinegar, and

Mr. Russell Train of the Environmental Protection Agency for joining me on this trip on this occasion.

I am told that some people in Europe heard about my nomination of Governor Rockefeller and concluded that we had solved our transportation problems in America. The Europeans said that we now have a combination of a Ford—who makes automobiles—and a Rockefeller—who makes gasoline.

In any event, you are international authorities on—all of you are international authorities on urban transportation. You know better than I that we have too many automobiles at the wrong place and at the wrong time, and not enough gasoline at the right place at the right time.

So, it is essential that you in this conference proceed, move ahead with the problems that you see and the problems that must be solved.

Even though I am not in the transportation business, I am dedicated to the revival of efficient transportation in our great urban centers here in the United States. Pittsburgh, where we are meeting, in the Golden Triangle, has done an effective and efficient job, and I compliment the citizens and public officials who have made this possible.

Your theme of this conference—"Marketing Urban Renaissance"—is appropriate, appropriate not only for those of us in America but, I think, worldwide. And all of our cities obviously will be observing the work, the recommendations, the proposals that come from this conference.

The relationship between urban regeneration and urban transportation is extremely close. Among our most pressing urban problems—and your presence here highlights it—is transportation, especially the automobile. For the last 25 years, two decades and a half, automobiles have been the most important factor in shaping urban centers and expanding suburbs. The statisticians tell me that there are some 100 million automobiles on nearly 4 million miles of American streets and highways. That makes one automobile for every two Americans, and most of those 100 million cars are in our way when any one of us tries to go downtown.

Many Americans have moved to suburbs where there is less and less traffic. My wife, Betty, and I can vouch for the very restful suburban life, and we picked it for reasons that most Americans select it. We raised our family in Alexandria, Virginia, just outside of Washington, D.C., and on a personal note, I miss it, especially my backyard swimming pool.

In the last two decades, suburban population grew far faster than our central city population. And in some instances, the population growth in our suburbs resulted in an actual numerical decline in our central cities. Americans, as a result, by the millions on a day-to-day basis, drive to and from work. Most took the road or the highway or the street, approximately at the same time of day as everybody else. Frankly, I admire the fortitude and the driving skill of the millions of Americans who are on time going to work without police and Secret Service escorts. And may I thank the Governor and the Mayor for the State and local police in Pittsburgh for their fine courtesy and efficiency this morning.

I am sure everyone, everyone here especially, along with thousands, or literally millions of other Americans have been caught in rush-hour traffic jams. I know I have for a number of years while serving in the House of Representatives and living in Alexandria. Sitting in bumper-to-bumper traffic has become a way of life to far too many Americans.

As a Congressman, I was in New York City about 10 years ago, and I asked a New York City policeman the best way to get to Brooklyn, and he was very blunt in his answer. "Buddy," he said, "the best way to get to Brooklyn is to be born there." [Laughter]

Obviously, America must have better solutions. That is what this conference is all about. Solutions must be found for the growing problems of congestion and pollution, challenges now complicated very severely by our energy conservation.

As a Michigander with the name of Ford, you can be sure I am not going to say anything unkind about automobiles. But it is self-evident that excessive use of cars in dense urban areas increases pollution levels, causes unbelievable traffic jams, massive headaches, and bumper-to-bumper tie-ups which burn too much scarce and expensive fuel.

I think last winter's serious energy crisis drove home a message to our fellow Americans. The net result is we must make major progress in improving urban transit. We must move promptly, we must have a well-planned, a well-coordinated action, an action program.

Priorities at the local level must be very carefully laid out. If there is to be a renaissance of urban transportation, that renaissance must be built on solid, defensible concepts.

We must, in this conference, address ourselves to the high priority need for action to halt the decline which has developed over the past decade in existing or traditional urban transit systems. And time is of the essence.

Progress, fortunately, is being made. The approximately 750 separate capital grants, totaling more than $3 billion since 1970, which the Federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration made to our cities to buy buses and to add urban and commuter rail systems has certainly helped.

It was encouraging, I think, to find that mass transit ridership in the United States this past year has risen above last year's level. And I think it should be even more encouraging, this is the first time such an increase has taken place since the end of World War II.

Our Nation has to develop urban mass transit systems that people want to use. Until we develop those systems that offer convenience, comfort, and reliability expected from the automobiles that Americans have been traditionally using, transit service, even in our most congested urban areas, will continue to be under-used.

That is why I believe this conference, with its accent on transit marketing, is exactly on the right target.

We know that most Americans for a wide variety of reasons have simply not bought the concept of public transit. Unlike the appealing and heavily used mass transit of cities like London, Paris, Montreal, Munich, and Moscow, public transportation in America is considered by most of our fellow Americans as a painful last resort.

There is a terrible reluctance to go from what they were brought up to use, to something that is new and different. There has to be something extra if we are going to achieve a viable mass transit system in most of our urban metropolitan areas.

But let's take a look—or a leaf, I should say, from the book of the automotive industry. They have done quite well with the product that they have promoted in our country. We must compete with the automakers in the effective promotion of products, in their imagination, enterprise, and marketing skills.

I don't think there is a group of men and women better qualified to carry out that mission than all of you here today. But I quickly add, I don't minimize the challenge that you are faced with.

Now, as we move to improve our transit systems, we must not lose sight of one very important fact: The automobile is and will continue to be our chief transportation vehicle. The automobile fits America's traditional life style.

No matter how plush the bus, no matter how comfortable the train, Americans, to one degree or another, will continue to drive their automobiles. The car will be with us for a long, long time to come.

But what we must do is to learn how best to live with them in the urban scene. We have to develop, to achieve the end that you seek, and we must have, we must develop and come forth with sound planning procedures, transit programs, and policies that are sufficiently flexible to match the diversity of our many, many cities.

I think diversity of the community is the key, and it does require some flexibility in our planning for an adequate, usable, desirable transit system.

Because of this diversity there is no one best transit solution that will fit all of our cities. Some are better suited for bus systems, others for subways, fixed guideway systems, or for a combination of such services.

And in developing these systems, long-term considerations require that transportation and land-use planning be closely coordinated. And this, of course, can only be done, in my judgment, wisely and well at the local level.

There is a legitimate and major role to be played by the Federal Government in assisting urban mass transit systems. But I emphasize here that role must be carried out in complete and total partnership with States and localities. The heavy hand of the Federal Government must not be the dictator that tells how Pittsburgh or other communities should utilize their systems or the funding.

Obviously, we will help with urban planning, although under the new better communities legislation recently approved, local planning and decisionmaking will be controlling.

The Federal Government will assist with important technological development, yet it should be clearly understood that the chief objective of the Department of Transportation grant programs is to help cities solve their transportation problems. It is not a program primarily aimed at the restructuring and rebuilding of our cities in America.

Federal assistance, as I see it, must be primarily directed at finding cost-efficient solutions to the problem of moving people. It must only secondarily be viewed as a means to stimulate urban area economic growth or to increase central city density.

Federal taxpayers just can't afford to pay for the whole package, and I won't ask them to do so.

Washington, obviously, has to help with the funding, but that funding must have realistic restraints. This is especially true as the Congress, Members of the House and the Senate, join with the White House as inflation fighters in a policy of fiscal responsibility. Investments in local mass transit systems must have reasonable cost-to-benefit ratios or relationships. The House-passed Federal Mass Transit Act of 1974 proposes an $11 billion spread over a 6-year period and, I add emphatically, an absolute upper dollar limit.

In addition, I have a problem with the program structure in the House bill and its treatment of Federal operating assistance for public transit. A committee of the Senate will be considering a transit bill whose program structure is similar to the Administration's transit proposal. I am confident that this problem, or this conflict between the House and Senate versions, can be overcome in a House and Senate conference.

It is probably known to many here, I have opposed in the past transit operating subsidies, particularly out of the Highway Trust Fund, because of my strong belief that such a program would lead to the Federal Government in the local day-to-day transit operating matters. And also, I have learned, from my experience with other Federal categorical grant programs for operating expenses, that these funds often do not result in better or more service. Instead, they simply result in greater cost and less efficiency.

It is my conclusion, however, that our current inflexible urban mass transit grant program encourages States, encourages cities to adopt what you can call capital intensive solutions, such as subways, as a response to their transportation problems.

Accordingly, as a compromise for my own long, deeply held previous convictions, I am supporting some limited

Federal operating assistance such as the proposal I mentioned a few moments ago, submitted in February and currently being considered by the Senate.

I recognize that this change will allow a limited portion of Federal urban transit funds to be used for operating expenses as an integral part of a comprehensive transit program and as a result, primarily, of decisions by local and State officials.

The key here, therefore, is that Federal officials are not involved in the capital operating tradeoff. Local officials will make that decision.

And although the operating assistance provisions of the House bill do not meet these standards, the Senate will have, and I hope does, correct this deficiency, and I trust the final version will contain that specific provision.

I am convinced that with enough imagination, with enough determination, with enough flexibility, and with careful ordering of your local priorities, we can achieve our national transportation goals. I am determined to do so without further feeding the fires of inflation or busting the Federal budget.

Let me leave you with one final thought. From the early days of this Nation, we have been a mobile people. We have carved canals out of the countryside to carry our commerce. We journeyed west following the only roadmaps we knew, the wagon ruts of those who had gone before.

Today, with modern methods of movement, we have achieved miracles of mobility in America and in many, many parts of the world. But we have to maintain and expand the avenues of movement for all Americans, young and old, rich and poor.

The wheels of this Nation cannot stop turning, whether they are on cars, or trucks, or buses, or trains, or planes. If we are to continue to be a great Nation, and I think we will, as Americans we must move forward together in the future.

With your dedicated, inspired efforts here this week, I think you can contribute very significantly to make this journey a memorable one in the years ahead.

Thank you very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 11:35 a.m. at the Pittsburgh Hilton Hotel, Pittsburgh, Pa.

United Nations General Assembly

Announcement of Nomination of United States Delegation to the 29th Session. September 10, 1974

The President today has announced his intention to nominate five persons to be the Representatives and Alternate Representatives who will constitute the United States Delegation to the 29th Session of the United Nations General Assembly which opens on September 17, 1974.

Those to be nominated as U.S. Representatives are:

JOHN A. SCALI, of the District of Columbia, U.S. Representative to the United Nations with the rank and status of Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary and U.S. Representative in the Security Council
 W. TAPLEY BENNETT, JR., of Georgia, Deputy Representative of the U.S. to the United Nations, with the rank and status of Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary
 STUART SYMINGTON, U.S. Senator from the State of Missouri
 CHARLES H. PERCY, U.S. Senator from the State of Illinois
 THOMAS H. KUCHEL, of California, partner in the law firm of Wyman, Bautzer, Fincell, Rothman and Kuchel, California and Washington, D.C.

Those to be nominated as Alternate Representatives are:

OLIVER C. CARMICHAEL, JR., of South Bend, Ind., chairman and chief executive officer, Associates Corp. of North America and Associates First Capital Corp., South Bend, Ind.
 JOSEPH M. SEGEL, of Merion, Pa., chairman of the board of governors of the United Nations Association of the USA
 WILLIAM E. SCHAUFLE, JR., of Avon Lake, Ohio, Deputy Representative of the U.S. in the Security Council of the United Nations with the rank of Ambassador
 CLARENCE CLYDE FERGUSON, JR., of East Orange, N.J., Representative of the U.S. on the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations with the rank of Ambassador
 BARBARA M. WHITE, of Massachusetts, Alternate Representative of the U.S. for Special Political Affairs in the United Nations, with the rank of Ambassador

The Secretary of State, the Honorable Henry A. Kissinger, will serve as Chairman of the Delegation, ex officio, during his presence, at the session.

International Atomic Energy Agency

Announcement of Intention To Nominate U.S. Representative and Alternate Representatives to the 18th Session of the Agency's General Conference. September 10, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate five persons to be the Representative and Alternate Representatives of the United States to the 18th Session of the General Conference of the International Atomic Energy Agency which is to be held in Vienna, Austria, from September 16 through September 20, 1974:

Representative:

DIXY LEE RAY, Tacoma, Wash., Chairman, United States Atomic Energy Commission

Alternate Representatives:

JOHN A. ERLEWINE, Silver Spring, Md., General Manager, Atomic Energy Commission

ABRAHAM S. FRIEDMAN, New York, N.Y., Division of International Programs, Atomic Energy Commission

DWIGHT J. PORTER, Omaha, Nebr., Deputy United States Representative to the International Atomic Energy Agency

GERALD F. TAPE, Bethesda, Md., United States Representative to the International Atomic Energy Agency

The International Atomic Energy Agency, which is currently composed of 103 member states, meets in general conference annually. At these sessions, they discuss the Agency's budget, determine which countries will serve on the Board of Governors, and take up other matters relating to the peaceful uses of atomic energy.

The Agency was set up by the United Nations in 1957, to accelerate and enlarge the contribution of atomic energy to peace, health, and prosperity throughout the world. It ensures that assistance provided by it or at its request or under its supervision or control is not used to further any military purpose.

Special Assistant to the President

Announcement of Appointment of Warren S. Rustand To Serve as Appointments Secretary. September 10, 1974

The President today announced the appointment of Warren S. Rustand of Tucson, Ariz., as Appointments Secretary to the President. He had served as Director of Scheduling and Advance Operations on the staff of the Vice President since December 18, 1973.

From 1970 to 1973, Mr. Rustand was president of Executive Analysts, Inc., of Tucson, Ariz., an asset management firm. In 1969, he became president of Warren Rustand Associates, an insurance and mutual funds company. From 1965 to 1968, he was a faculty member at the University of Arizona, and was a high draft choice of the San Francisco Warriors, and played basketball for the Phillips 66'ers.

He was born in Fergus Falls, Minn., on January 3, 1943. Mr. Rustand received his B.S. degree in 1965 and his M.A. degree in 1971 from the University of Arizona. He was selected as an All-American basketball player and received the Merrill Freeman Award as the University's outstanding graduate.

Prior to coming to Washington, Mr. Rustand was a member of the board of directors of the Tucson Y.M.C.A., chairman of the Recreation Planning Commission, and member of the Master Planning Commission.

He is married to the former Carson Boice of Phoenix, Ariz., and they have three children. They reside in McLean, Va.

Pardon and Agreement on Presidential Materials of Richard Nixon

News Conference of Philip W. Buchen, Counsel to the President. September 10, 1974

MR. HUSHEN. As I announced earlier, Mr. Philip Buchen, the Counsel to the President, has agreed to come back out here today to answer some of the questions you have.

Let me say we are going to give them 60 seconds to get some photographs and then they will go away. [Laughter]

Let me say at the outset that the document that is about to be handed out is embargoed until the completion of the briefing.

MR. BUCHEN. This is a followup, of course, of the meeting we had on Sunday. And at that time someone asked the question about the disclosures made to me by Special Prosecutor Jaworski to the areas of investigation in which his special force was engaged.

And my answer was that the question asked him was: "What matters could arguably involve further steps?" And I reported that it read like a list from one of your newspapers.

You have now before you the document that was furnished to me and, although the copy of the Special Prosecutor's memorandum from Henry Ruth to the Special Prosecutor dated September 3, 1974, on the subject of Mr. Nixon was sent to me in confidence, Mr. Jaworski has since advised me that if I were willing to assume the responsibility for its release, he would raise no objection to my doing so.

However, he cautioned that in the event of its release, he would expect that it be made available in its entirety, including the first and last paragraphs of the memorandum, and I quote that the first paragraph reads:

"The following matters are still under investigation in this Office and may prove to have some direct connection to activities in which Mr. Nixon is personally involved:"

At the conclusion of the memorandum, Mr. Ruth, in reporting to Special Prosecutor Jaworski, wrote:

"None of these matters at the moment rises to the level of our ability to prove even a probable criminal violation by Mr. Nixon, but I thought you ought to know which of the pending investigations were even remotely connected to Mr. Nixon. Of course, the Watergate coverup is the subject of a separate memorandum."

Now I will try to field any questions.

Q. Tell us about considering pardons for everybody involved in Watergate.

MR. BUCHEN. I am not involved in that matter.

Q. Well, who is?

MR. BUCHEN. I said at the time of the last press conference to my knowledge no thought was being given to that, and I have not been called in to do any part of the study so far. I assume I will be.

Q. Who is at this point?

Q. Who is considering this, the President?

MR. BUCHEN. The President made the statement.

Q. Mr. Buchen, can you tell us if anyone tried to persuade Mr. Nixon to confess guilt prior to the granting of the pardon by President Ford?

MR. BUCHEN. No. Mr. Miller, at the time that I informed him that the President was considering a possible pardon for Mr. Nixon, was told by me that I thought it would be very beneficial in the interests of the country, in the interests of the present Administration, and in the interest of the former President, that as full a statement as possible should be issued by Mr. Nixon, but that I had been told that that was not a condition to the consideration of a pardon.

Mr. Miller at that time assured me that he agreed with me that such a statement should be forthcoming from his client.

Q. Mr. Buchen, I was wondering if—as the President's legal counsel—would you advise that the President in this study about the possibility of giving amnesty to all the Watergate people, that excluded from the people doing the study should be all Nixon holdovers? Would you advise, or do you think it is reasonable for Nixon holdovers to participate in a study of possible amnesty to all Nixon defendants?

MR. BUCHEN. I think that is a decision the President will have to instruct me on.

Q. How would you advise him?

Q. Did you finish your answer to the earlier question?

MR. BUCHEN. I was finished.

Q. Could I follow up then, sir? Did the former President balk at this, was there negotiation on what finally came out in his statement afterwards?

Did you see that statement, sir, or did anyone else in the White House see it prior to its issuance?

MR. BUCHEN. When Mr. Becker came back from San Clemente, he was able to report the substance of the statement that he thought would be forthcoming after the announcement was made. But we did not have the statement in the form in which it was ultimately delivered.

Q. Are you satisfied that this was as full a statement as possible coming from the former President?

MR. BUCHEN. That is something that I think would require going into the former President's mind. Obviously, if you do not condition an act of mercy on the recipient of the mercy doing anything, you are not in a position to do much bargaining.

Q. Mr. Buchen, did Mr. Becker go to San Clemente with a much stronger statement, or a statement——

MR. BUCHEN. He had no statement in hand.

Q. You say he came back with a statement—he reported the substance of the statement he thought would be forthcoming. Was that substance substantially different from the statement that was then issued?

MR. BUCHEN. No, the essential feature was the statement that the President believed he had not acted decisively and forthrightly in respect to the Watergate once it became a judicial proceeding, and the regret for having done wrong was in the report that Becker gave us.

Q. Was it your hope or intention early in those negotiations to get Mr. Nixon to agree to a statement in which he admitted his own personal wrongdoing and guilt and involvement in the Watergate coverup?

MR. BUCHEN. Again I had to rely on what Mr. Miller believed would be in the best interests of his client and the country, because I had no authority to extract a statement of my own making.

Q. Not what was in the former President's mind, but what was in your mind—do you think that the final statement met the standards that you and Mr. Miller discussed at the meeting?

MR. BUCHEN. Well, I think they did, because as some of your papers have already suggested, the very fact that a man accepts a pardon does imply that he believes it is necessary for him to have that pardon, or that it is useful for him to have that pardon.

And there aren't many instances in which it is useful to have a pardon unless there is a strong probability of guilt.

Q. Mr. Buchen, do you think that you and President Ford misread the public's acceptance of the terms of this pardon and the acceptance in Congress?

MR. BUCHEN. Well, I was not doing much reading on the outside as to what might happen. That was really outside my bailiwick, so I cannot tell you.

Q. Mr. Buchen, do you and the President hope that the former President will at some time, perhaps in the near future, release some kind of formal statement detailing further his connection with Watergate?

MR. BUCHEN. I have not given that any thought, and I assume that would be entirely up to the former President.

Q. Mr. Buchen, you were involved in the preaccession negotiations and pretransition operations of the Ford Administration. Was there at any time any discussion between any high-ranking member of the Ford group and any member of the Nixon group as to the possibility of a pardon for Nixon in advance of his leaving office?

MR. BUCHEN. I answered that question Sunday and, to my knowledge, there was absolutely none and it never came up as a matter to be discussed by the transition team. And I think I participated in virtually all meetings of the transition team.

Q. How about between Ford and Nixon alone?

MR. BUCHEN. I don't believe so.

Q. Can we find out definitely whether there was no deal before Nixon left office?

MR. BUCHEN. Well, I know the man in the present office quite well, and I can assure you he did not make a deal. I know him that well.

Q. Mr. Buchen, he assured us in a press conference it would be untimely to do such a thing, and he assured us when he was nominated for Vice President that the American people would not stand for it. Can you give us an explanation of this?

MR. BUCHEN. Let's take the first. The matter of untimeliness seems to me to involve a debate that really makes little sense, because a man who had to consider whether or not to grant a pardon, it seems to me, has to consider the fact that if a pardon is desirable, the earlier it comes, the better.

It is like making a man walk a plank. You wait until he takes the first step. You wait until he gets to the middle of the plank. You wait until he jumps off the end, and then dive in to rescue him. I think it represents—let me put it this way: I don't think an act of mercy can ever be untimely, and it certainly becomes less merciful if you postpone the agony.

Q. Mr. Buchen, in that statement you are suggesting that the former President was going to go off the end of the plank?

MR. BUCHEN. I think there was strong probability.

Q. When Mr. Becker was out at San Clemente, did he discuss in the President's presence what the President might say in a statement, and did the President get angry at the suggestions that he admit guilt?

MR. BUCHEN. I think those negotiations were entirely with Mr. Ziegler, so I don't think we have any knowledge of what the President—

Q. The New York Times this morning reports it as I've quoted it.

MR. BUCHEN. Yes, but I think that's completely in error.

Q. You better clear up what you mean by "walking the plank"; do you mean suicide or going to jail?

MR. BUCHEN. No, as I understand the law of "walking the planks," it is because the man has been convicted of some crime that offended the master of the ship—or not convicted, say indicted.

Q. What about the question of health, Mr. Buchen? How did that figure into this decision?

MR. BUCHEN. I don't know because I wasn't party to any of the investigations or discussions, if there were any, about the former President's health.

Q. Did you say Mr. Becker at no time spoke to Mr. Nixon in San Clemente?

MR. BUCHEN. I didn't say that.

Q. I thought you said the negotiations were entirely with Mr. Ziegler.

MR. BUCHEN. I don't know whether there were negotiations, but the matter of the content of the former President's statement which he contemplated giving when the pardon was issued was dealt with entirely through Ron Ziegler. The only face-to-face matters taken up with the former President dealt with the manner of managing and disposing of his papers and tapes.

Q. Mr. Buchen, did Mr. terHorst ask you on Friday whether Mr. Becker was involved in discussing a pardon with the former President during his trip to California, and if he did, what did you tell him?

MR. BUCHEN. Well, we better clear that one up.

Jerry terHorst reported to me that someone had observed Benton Becker and Jack Miller in the area of San Clemente. Jerry terHorst asked me what the purpose of my having sent Benton Becker out to San Clemente was, and I said that the purpose was to take a document that had been prepared in rough draft before he left Washington, had been prepared by Mr. Miller, which related to the management and disposition of the tapes and records.

However, we objected and wanted changes in those documents, partly because we were concerned as to the practicality of some of the proposals made insofar as they involved the Administrator of the General Services Administration.

The matter is very complex, as you see, so I suggested when Mr. Miller said he would have to go and discuss the terms of that document with his client that Mr. Becker go along, so that there would be a way that Mr. Becker could be on hand as changes, additions, or whatnot were proposed, and so that he would be available to report back to me on the progress of the negotiations. That was the purpose of his assignment.

Q. We specifically asked you if Mr. Becker was out there engaging in pardon negotiations.

MR. BUCHEN. There were no pardon negotiations, that is the point.

Q. Anything at all?

Q. You sent him out with instructions to say that the President had this under consideration?

Q. Would you answer my question, please?

MR. BUCHEN. Mr. Miller knew that the pardon was under consideration, and he could report to his client. It was not necessary for Mr. Becker to do anything in connection with the pardon.

Q. Didn't Mr. Becker take out a copy of the proposed pardon?

MR. BUCHEN. Yes, he did. It was a draft that he and I had worked on very hurriedly Thursday afternoon before he had to leave on the plane. I said, "Benton, you are going to be 5 hours on that plane. Take a copy along; keep working on it. I don't think it is in the form we want to submit to the President for his consideration. Take it along and work on it."

Q. You didn't tell Mr. terHorst that?

MR. BUCHEN. No. I will explain. As you may appreciate, being counsel to anyone, or lawyer to anyone, imposes certain restrictions. And I believed, on this matter, I was under complete restriction as a lawyer to the President not to disclose what I was doing for the President on a matter that he regarded as highly confidential.

Q. Did the subject of pardon ever—

Q. Would you say that you misled Mr. terHorst on Friday?

MR. BUCHEN. Let me put it this way: I can see how he could have been misled.

Q. Can you see how he could not have been misled?

MR. BUCHEN. No, I can see how he could have been; I don't say he could not have been. After all, if you get a question, why is a man whom you have sent to San Clemente there, and I give him an answer, I can see when he in turn had to respond to the man, or the reporter making the inquiries, that he would inject a negative. Was he there doing anything else? And I assume that Jerry said, "Well, as far as I know, he wasn't," because I had not told him he was doing anything else.

Q. Did you tell him he wasn't out there discussing the pardon?

MR. BUCHEN. Oh, no.

Q. Why was it something you couldn't talk about?

MR. BUCHEN. I could talk about the negotiations on the tapes.

Q. When he asked you about the pardon?

MR. BUCHEN. He didn't ask me about the pardon.

Q. What was the precision of language used in President Nixon's statement?

MR. BUCHEN. Let me get the question.

Q. What was the need for the secrecy in the negotiations, whatever they were?

MR. BUCHEN. In the course of any client-attorney relationship, usually until something happens, you are under obligation—until something happens as a matter of public record—you are under obligation not to disclose the conversations.

Q. I mean, what was the need for secrecy about the fact that a pardon was being considered, generally, not just your conversations with the President?

MR. BUCHEN. Well, generally, that was the President's decision and not mine. I was just bound by my client-attorney relationship.

Q. Mr. Buchen, if Mr. Becker knew all about the pardon, the President seemed to trust him with that information, yet he didn't trust Mr. terHorst with that information?

Q. Or you didn't trust Mr. terHorst with it?

MR. BUCHEN. I had no power to subdelegate in passing information. The first question is why didn't the President trust Mr. terHorst to have the information at the same time I got it?

Q. No, I mean Mr. Becker. You are talking about the attorney-client relationship, which involves you and the President; Mr. Becker I assume is someone outside that relationship, yet he knew about the pardon because he was working on the pardon agreements.

MR. BUCHEN. No, he had the same relationship that I had in terms of his being a lawyer and working under my supervision for a client. It's just as in a law office, if a client comes and talks to a partner and the partner assigns an associate to work on the problem, the obligation of confidentiality extends to the other lawyer as well as the original one.

Q. Can you be forthright with us on what is your advice to the President on pardoning other individuals associated with the—

MR. BUCHEN. I have not given him any advice.

Q. What would be your advice; how do you see the issue?

MR. BUCHEN. I haven't even had time to study it.

Q. When did the President's other advisers find out that the pardon was under consideration or was to be granted, and did they agree with it when they found out about it?

Q. And did you?

MR. BUCHEN. I was in the room at the time when certain advisers were told about it on Friday before Labor Day, but I don't feel free to report their reactions.

Q. Can you tell us what role General Haig played in this granting of the pardon? He was in on all of this all the time, wasn't he? Was he recommending a pardon during this period?

Q. What was the question?

MR. BUCHEN. I was asked that question last night, and I can tell you that at every occasion when I was present when the subject was raised and General Haig was there, he took an absolutely neutral stand.

Q. Mr. Buchen, you say you are not part of the study of the pardon for the other Watergate defendants. Can you tell me when you became aware that that study was in the works?

MR. BUCHEN. I learned from Mr. Hartmann and Mr. Hushen that this matter was brought up at the early morning conference that the two of them had.

Q. Who brought it up?

Q. Today, for the first time?

Q. Did you say there was a connection between his consideration of a pardon for the others and the reaction against the pardon for Nixon? And secondly, if you are the President's lawyer and you are not working on it, who is?

MR. BUCHEN. Well, I don't know, Ron. I really don't.

Q. What about the first part of that question; is he trying to dampen down the reaction by giving out pardons to the others?

MR. BUCHEN. Well, I don't interpret studying a problem as predicting what the results would be.

Q. Mr. Buchen, as a lawyer, can you see a distinction between a President granting a pardon to a former President and granting pardons or not granting pardons to former subordinates for involvement in the same illegal acts?

MR. BUCHEN. Well, there certainly is a distinction. I will later have available for distribution—because I don't think there will be many questions on it—a memorandum, a copy of a memorandum that Mr. Jack Miller prepared for the Special Prosecutor in which he rather carefully documents the reason why the situation of his client is distinguishable from the situation of anybody else even remotely involved in the acts, or Watergate-related events.

And as you will remember I quoted the letter from Mr. Jaworski who did say he thought there was a distinction. That was on Sunday.

Q. Phil, could I ask you this question: Does not the mere fact that the White House has made a statement saying that pardons for all Watergate defendants are under study, does that not intrude upon the judicial process to the point that the trial for the Watergate defendants, the trial now scheduled for September 30, is somehow intruded upon and interfered with by this statement?

MR. BUCHEN. Well, I don't think so. You see, after all, the fact that there can be a pardon hangs over the trial of anybody. That is not a unique situation. The power to pardon exists in the Federal Constitution and, I believe, in every State Constitution.

Q. This is a matter of great and intense national interest. It is not like the case of any defendant. This is a case of specific defendants that have been involved in a great national drama or what have you, so it is a different case, is it not?

MR. BUCHEN. Yes, but the Presidential pardon power, as well as that of a Governor of a State, hangs over the judicial process all the time.

Q. What purpose was served by announcing it this morning, or authorizing Jack Hushen to announce it this morning?

MR. BUCHEN. Well, I was not party to that determination, so I can't tell you.

Q. What purpose was served by the intention of releasing the Ruth-Jaworski letter on the 10 points?

MR. BUCHEN. Well, as I indicated, it was given to me on a confidential basis. The comments that have been made around town is that there was not a consideration given of what was, what someone else called "are there any possible time bombs," and we felt that it would be in the interest—provided Mr. Jaworski consented—that we do provide you with the information on which the President in part acted before he decided to grant the pardon.

Q. In this study that is being undertaken, sir, what is your understanding of the philosophy behind it—that families of all Watergate defendants have suffered enough, or what other considerations?

MR. BUCHEN. I can't go beyond the statement Jack gave you. That is all I know.

Q. Where did it first come up?

Q. Where did this subject of possible clemency for all other Watergate defendants first come up? You didn't make that clear. You said "an early morning conference."

Q. What morning?

MR. BUCHEN. This morning, I understand.

Q. What were the circumstances?

MR. BUCHEN. I don't know, except it was reported to me by Mr. Hartmann and Mr. Hushen that it was raised this morning.

Q. Where?

MR. BUCHEN. I assume with the President. I don't know the circumstances.

Q. Is this a reaction, Mr. Buchen? Is this consideration of the study, consideration of pardons, and the announcement of this study—is this a reaction to the popular outcry against the pardon of the former President?

MR. BUCHEN. I don't think so, because the fact that two people are brought into his confidence this morning and that confidence has been shared with you today, doesn't mean that that is when the thought came.

I explained on Sunday when the question was asked me as to whether any thought was given to the way in which the pardon power might be exercised, if at all, respecting other people involved, I said that to my knowledge—meaning that as far as I knew—no thought had been given. But that didn't mean that the thought processes weren't going on unbeknownst to me, or unbeknownst to the people who got the reports this morning.

Q. Mr. Buchen, in going back to my other question, you said mercy is never untimely. Was the President not merciful 10 days ago when he said it would be untimely, and was the President lacking in mercy when he told the committee that the American people wouldn't stand for it?

What caused him to be suddenly merciful? Could you tell us what happened?

MR. BUCHEN. I wish you would come up here and explain the theory of mercy. You can probably do a much better job than I can.

But let me tell you: It is not whether to be merciful, but how he could be merciful; and I do not think he was aware that he could act before there was any formal indictment when he made his statement before the press.

Q. Wasn't the President briefed on that very point before the news conference? Wasn't he briefed that there would be a question on pardon and this was a policy adopted?

MR. BUCHEN. That is right.

Q. Why was that policy changed—that there would be no pardon until there was due process?

MR. BUCHEN. You have lost me; I am sorry.

Q. He announced a policy at that news conference, and you say he was briefed on that policy.

MR. BUCHEN. He said that he would make no commitments. His intention then was to make no commitments on the pardon until something had been brought to him.

Q. Why was that changed?

MR. BUCHEN. Well, because after the conference I assume he reflected on the matter, and then asked me to find out whether or not he could move quicker than he had indicated at the press conference.

Q. Did you brief him prior to the news conference that the best policy was for him to wait until there was some—

MR. BUCHEN. No, I did not.

Q. With whom was he in touch with at that point? Can you tell us who he consulted between Wednesday and Friday when he asked you to begin your research into precedents?

MR. BUCHEN. I have no notion; I really don't, Pete.

Q. Mr. Buchen, what is your understanding of the status of the investigation referred to in the memo? Is Jaworski going on with his investigation into these points? Is he going to make the material public?

MR. BUCHEN. I know nothing more than appears in the memorandum.

Q. The Watergate coverup, it says, is the subject of a separate memorandum. Has that memorandum reached you?

MR. BUCHEN. It has not.

Q. Do you know what it concerns?

MR. BUCHEN. I can imagine what it concerns, but I have not seen it.

Q. Mr. Buchen, is it indicated to you, as a lawyer reading from this, that that, number one, is ongoing, and unlike this listing of 10 points which according to the memo may prove to have some direct connection, but then says there is no point we can prove regarding the connection with Mr. Nixon—does it indicate to you that is a different story entirely when it comes to the coverup?

MR. BUCHEN. As you know, this memorandum was issued before the pardon, so I don't know what the effect of the pardon has on the investigation referred to in the last paragraph.

Q. You must have had some indication from the Special Prosecutor as to where he stands with regard to the coverup investigation.

MR. BUCHEN. I do not.

Q. In preparing your advice for the President, did you address at all the time element of granting this pardon, with specific reference to the possibility that the Watergate coverup trial might be affected since the jury had not been sequestered?

MR. BUCHEN. I did not discuss that with the President, but I understand, of course, that, one, it is not certain the jury would be sequestered. I assume it is available to the attorneys for the defendant to waive any such request; and, second, I am not sure that a story like this could possibly have been kept from the jury, however tightly sequestered.

Q. Mr. Buchen, did you get from Mr. Ziegler or from Mr. Nixon, either after Mr. Becker returned here or while he was there, some sort of commitment that the President would not in the future make statements protesting his innocence?

MR. BUCHEN. We did not.

Q. Mr. Buchen, are you saying that the President did not know or understand at the time of the August 28 press conference that the pardoning power could be exercised before indictment or conviction?

MR. BUCHEN. I certainly had not so advised him, and he had not asked my advice.

Q. You didn't say that? Do you have reason to believe that, that he didn't realize he could move before the indictment was voted?

MR. BUCHEN. That I don't know. I didn't ask him.

Q. You so far have not really given us any explanation for why Mr. Ford changed his mind after that press conference with the possible exception of his having received this documentation of the investigation.

Does that mean that the investigation turned out to be so serious that he thought the former President couldn't withstand it?

MR. BUCHEN. No; I think more significant than that was the advice that I reported Sunday, namely, that before there could be a trial, there would have to be a delay of a year or more, and I think that was the matter that concerned him most.

Q. Don't many trials take a year or more to come to the court or to settle? And why is Mr. Nixon to be treated any differently in this respect than anyone else?

MR. BUCHEN. Every defendant under the law is entitled to a prompt trial provided he can have a fair trial by an impartial jury.

Q. When did you advise the President of the long delay of 9 months or a year? Was that after the press conference?

MR. BUCHEN. He asked me after the press conference, or that Friday, to find the answer. So, apparently someone had told him that that probably would be the case.

But he wanted his own lawyer to ask the Special Prosecutor who would be the best judge of how long it might take, and that is the reason I went to Mr. Jaworski, so we would have an expert opinion, because I don't claim to be an expert. On the other hand, I also have read the cases that are cited by Mr. Nixon's own attorney who makes the same argument very effectively in a memorandum that you can all take back to your legal counsel, because I don't think you want to read it all.

Q. However, you did know that indictments could be very quick, the question of laying out the charges on the public record would not have taken very long—maybe a month; is that correct?

MR. BUCHEN. As you know, the word came out that the former President—then the President—was about to be named as an unindicted coconspirator, so that the indictment that is involved—that involves the present defendants, spells out everything that would probably have come out of an indictment of Mr. Nixon alone.

Q. But it is not the same, really.

MR. BUCHEN. I think it is pretty good evidence of what that jury intended to do, and would have done if there had not been a pardon.

Q. Was consideration given to the timing of when this jury would have done this, vis-a-vis the November elections?

MR. BUCHEN. It had nothing to do with the elections. However, it was evident that if it was the President's decision to grant a pardon before the indictment, he would have to act fairly soon because it was not possible, of course, to guide the grand jury in the time it would act.

Q. May I clear up a question here?

MR. BUCHEN. Let me get Phil first.

Q. In view of the last sentence in this memorandum, didn't you have any qualms about whether you could give the President full legal advice on what he could do? When it says here there are other matters and other memoranda which you have not seen, how could you give the President full advice on what he could do on the pardon in view of that?

MR. BUCHEN. Well, because we believed, of course, that the evidence before the House Judiciary Committee on this very point that resulted in the article that brought a unanimous vote ultimately, and based on particularly the June 23 tapes, gave every indication of what was involved in the alleged Watergate coverup. I didn't think we needed to know any more than that.

Q. I think my notes are correct, that is, you told us earlier, "I do not think he (the President) was aware that he could grant a pardon before an indictment when he made his press conference statement." Is that right?

MR. BUCHEN. As far as I know. I don't believe that he was or that he understood what, if any, problems—I am talking legal problems now—would arise if he acted before indictment.

Q. The President seemed to say in his news conference that he wouldn't act on the pardon until after an indictment, and your explanation, that there would be 9 months or a year, perhaps longer, before a trial, doesn't really go to the question of why he changed his mind about waiting until after an indictment to act on a pardon.

MR. BUCHEN. Well, I guess all I can go back to is my own analogy. If you are going to—if you do come to the conclusion you ought to consider mercy, it doesn't seem to be very relevant to consider what other steps you ought to require the man to whom you are granting mercy must take.

Q. And at the news conference he had not made up his mind yet?

MR. BUCHEN. He had not made up his mind.

Q. You are saying the main reason he changed his mind was because somebody told him there would be this long delay, and he asked you to check it out, and you did and said it would be. And then he decided to grant it right away. In the same period, did somebody tell him that a 9-month or a year delay would wreck Nixon's health?

MR. BUCHEN. Not that I know of.

Q. Has there been any discussion about President Nixon testifying in the trials—has there been any discussion about the former President not wishing to testify or be a witness?

MR. BUCHEN. Well, he is under subpoena so he has no choice.

Q. I know, but if you are considering pardons, if there is consideration for others that would spare the former President from testifying, is that a consideration in this study?

MR. BUCHEN. I have not started the study, so I don't know.

Q. In your discussion of the coverup memorandum a moment ago, you said the June 23 tape told you everything you needed to know about that.

MR. BUCHEN. I didn't say everything. I also said the findings of the House Judiciary Committee.

Q. Right, and earlier you spoke of the necessity, the acceptance of the pardon, the necessity for the pardon. Does this mean that you and the President, in offering this pardon to the President, were making a presumption of guilt?

MR. BUCHEN. First, take the "you" pronoun out of that, and perhaps I can answer it. I did advise the President that a pardon could be characterized as implying guilt on the part of the person who was pardoned, because there is no other reason for granting a pardon. But that did not deter or affect his determination to act when he finally made up his mind to do so.

Q. From the perspective of the person who accepts the pardon, does the acceptance of the pardon amount to a tacit admission of guilt?

MR. BUCHEN. You can so read it. The question never came up, because I couldn't find in any cases where that question was litigated, so I can't give you any authority. But it just takes common sense and logic to reach that inference.

Let's have one of the women.

Q. Thank you.

Throughout this, we have heard solely about the consideration of an indictment and the lengthy period of time between indictment and trial. Did you try to determine from Mr. Jaworski the possibility of a plea from the former President? Now faced with the prospect of a multi-count indictment, as he was and as I am sure Mr. Miller advised him, it seems extremely likely there might have been a plea far sooner than there would ever have been an indictment and trial. Did you ask for any timing on this, and if not, why not?

MR. BUCHEN. I did consult, of course, with Mr. Nixon's attorney, and I was pretty sure from what he told me that in his mind there would never be a plea.

Q. There would have been a trial then? You are saying he would have gone the whole route had he not been pardoned?

MR. BUCHEN. I believe so.

MR. HUSHEN. Let's take two more questions. We've been out here for 45 minutes. Two more questions.

Q. Maybe you have answered this. Why did President Ford want mercy for Richard Nixon?

MR. BUCHEN. Because I think he truly believed it would be in the best interests of the country.

Q. Mr. Buchen, if you are done with that answer, I would like to ask you, as a lawyer, do you think it not fair and proper that, if the President considers amnesty or granting a pardon for persons convicted for or indicted for burglary, perjury, conspiracy in Watergate-related crimes, that he should give equal consideration to pardoning other persons indicted or convicted of burglary, perjury, or conspiracy in non-Watergate related crimes?

MR. BUCHEN. I wish I were a better student of the ethics or morality of mercy, but I believe a representative of the clergy would substantiate my remarks that throughout our religious history—and I don't mean just the Christian religion—there has always been a separate category of mercy that we know has never been equally dispensed, and we know that it is an act of grace that is many times inexplicable.

I am sure all of us in the room have sought mercy on matters that we wanted to blame ourselves for or some adverse consequences, and we didn't always get mercy.

Mercy seems to work in very unequal fashion. That is a point on which Jerry terHorst and I have disagreed. He has a notion, as he said, that mercy should be dispensed with—in the same even-handed fashion as we would like to see justice dispensed.

But, I believe, history tells us mercy doesn't work the same way.

Q. Mr. Buchen—

MR. HUSHEN. Thank you, ladies and gentlemen.

Q. Mr. Buchen, is there any limitation on the power of pardons?

MR. BUCHEN. I refer you to—

Q. Is there any limitation on this at all?

MR. BUCHEN. I refer you to the Constitution.

Q. Is there anything he could do that was more than this?

MR. BUCHEN. No, not that I could find in the Constitution; no.

REPORTER. Thank you.

NOTE: Deputy Press Secretary John W. Hushen introduced Mr. Buchen at 12:49 p.m. in the Briefing Room at the White House. For Mr. Buchen's news conference of September 8, see page 1108 of this issue.

The White House Press Office also made available copies of the following documents:

—Memorandum to the Special Prosecutor from Henry Ruth of the Watergate Special Prosecution Force, concerning matters involving Mr. Nixon which were still under investigation.

—Memorandum to the Special Prosecutor from Herbert J. Miller, Jr., attorney, on behalf of Richard M. Nixon.

VISIT OF PRIME MINISTER YITZHAK RABIN OF ISRAEL

Exchange of Remarks Between the President and the Prime Minister at the Welcoming Ceremony on the South Lawn. September 10, 1974

THE PRESIDENT. Mr. Prime Minister and Mrs. Rabin:

It is a very real pleasure for me to have the opportunity of welcoming both of you to the United States.

You are returning as the leader of a great country. You are returning to meet many of your friends over the years that you knew so well during your service here as Ambassador to the United States.

I trust that you and Mrs. Rabin will thoroughly enjoy this visit back to the United States.

The United States, Mr. Prime Minister, has been proud of its association with the State of Israel. We shall continue to stand with Israel. We are committed to Israel's survival and security.

The United States for a quarter of a century has had an excellent relationship with the State of Israel. We have cooperated in many, many fields—in your security, in the well-being of the Middle East, and in leading what we all hope is a lasting peace throughout the world.

Many of our people have a close personal relationship and association with your citizens, your fellow citizens in Israel, and we hope and trust that this relationship will grow and expand.

Over the last few months, there has been movement in the Middle East for a lasting and durable peace. Israel has cooperated; Israel has been helpful. And we hope and trust that in the months ahead the foundation which has been laid will be built upon.

We want, you want, and others throughout the world want a lasting and durable peace in the Middle East.

The first steps have been taken; others will follow. And I am certain and positive that, as we meet here during the next several days, we can contribute to the building of a better and finer peace in the Middle East.

I hope that you and Mrs. Rabin have a delightful and warm welcome, which you so richly deserve, in the United States.

THE PRIME MINISTER. Mr. President, Mrs. Ford, I am grateful to you for your kind invitation to come to Washington and for your warm words of welcome.

As you know, Mr. President, I am not a complete stranger in this country, nor, indeed, in this city. But this is the first time that I come here in my capacity of Prime Minister of Israel.

You, Mr. President, have very recently undertaken new and awesome responsibilities, and I feel certain, therefore, that you can appreciate the weighty load that rests on my shoulders.

I represent a country which is faced—which is facing manifold problems, great challenges, but also great and new opportunities for internal progress and for peace with her neighbors.

In the performance of my new duties, I am encouraged, as all my predecessors have been, by their binding friendship and by the ever-deepening ties which bind the people of Israel with the people of this, the greatest democracy, and with its leaders.

Ever since the renewal of Jewish independence in the land of our forefathers, after long generations of suffering and martyrdom, Israel has enjoyed generous aid and support on the part of the United States. Our gratitude for this sustenance will be recorded forever in the annals of our people.

During all these times since 1948, Israel has seen periods of trials and hardships. Yet she never swerved, even for a moment, from her supreme national goal, which is the quest for peace with her Arab neighbors.

So far, to our nation's deep sorrow, this goal has eluded us. Despite the recent test of arms, Israel is prepared to continue to seek progress towards peace.

We have in recent months demonstrated that we have taken risks for peace to see whether new efforts may possibly bring us nearer to its achievement.

I know, in this quest for peace in our region, we have in you, Mr. President, and in your colleagues in the Government of the United States, a strong and determined partner.

Indeed, you, Mr. President, pronounced the commitment of the United States to the quest of world peace as the central theme in your inaugural address only a few weeks ago.

The people of Israel stand united in the conviction that war is futile, that it cannot solve problems, that only human suffering is brought in its wake. As far as our part of the world is concerned, we are convinced that there is no issue, however complicated it may now appear, that it cannot be resolved by patient negotiations.

What is needed is an equal measure of desire and determination on all sides to achieve peace.

Much depends at this stage on what other governments in the area are prepared to do. At any rate, we in Israel are ready for the peace-making effort.

I must, however, with a full sense of responsibility, add this: As you, Mr. President, assumed high office you conveyed to your people and to the world the message that a strong America is a paramount guarantee for peace in the world. This is true in the same measure as far as Israel and her own region are concerned. Only a strong Israel which has the capacity to deter aggression and to defend herself successfully by her own strengths, has a chance of winning peace.

I cannot underline strongly enough our conviction that the constant maintenance of Israel's strength is an absolute prerequisite for the attainment of solutions to the problems of our troubled region.

On these and other matters of common interest and concern, I shall be exchanging views with you, Mr. President, and your colleagues, within the next few days. I look forward to doing so in the spirit of confidence and of the cultivation of a good future which has linked our governments and our people for so many years.

I am confident that I shall return to Jerusalem assured of the United States' determination to support the well-being of Israel within a Middle East that we hope that will finally be advancing on the road towards a just and durable peace which assures security and progress for all its people.

Thank you very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 3:10 p.m. on the South Lawn at the White House where Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin was given a formal welcome with full military honors.

Conference on Inflation

The President's Remarks to Labor Leaders and Members of Congress at the Second of a Series of Meetings Preliminary to the Summit Conference. September 11, 1974

Let me at the outset wish you all a good morning and to express my deep appreciation for your attendance at this very important and very critical meeting.

Naturally, I am very pleased to have in attendance the distinguished Members of the House and the Senate—both Democratic as well as Republican—and I am especially pleased to see so many outstanding labor leaders in the United States. And I warmly welcome each and every one of you.

Obviously, we have gathered here to deal with inflation and the immediate danger that is threatening every American, young and old, poor and well-to-do.

It is a very critical issue. I think the future of labor union members and all other Americans depends upon what we can achieve together in this campaign against inflation. And I wish to reemphasize my appreciation for your participation.

Some of you have generously accepted an additional burden by agreeing to participate in such other meetings. By so doing, you have indicated that you share with me the conviction that inflation is the most critical national domestic issue facing the United States.

I am grateful for your willingness to work together with me on a problem that transcends America's many special interests, whether Republican or Democratic, labor or business, urban or rural.

I think it also goes beyond any divisions based on age, sex, race, color, or creed.

The enlistment of trade unionists in the war against inflation is consistent with the patriotic involvement of American labor in every great challenge that our Nation has faced. Without the productive dedication of American labor, World War II might have ended very differently.

Labor built America, and labor is America. Together we must now preserve and enhance the economic base of our existence from everybody's enemy, the scourge of inflation. I have described it as public enemy number one in America, and it might be expanded actually to say that it is a worldwide problem.

We need your advice and we need your guidance on this issue of such overwhelming concern to all your members. I want your ideas on steps which can help the individual as well as the Nation.

Today's meeting is a part of the series that culminates in the conference on inflation on September 27 and 28. Since this is only a one-day session, let's get directly to the point. Let's dispense with formality. Let's be frank. Let us also try to keep our comments brief and specifically on target.

I should say that the meeting we held last week with 28 outstanding economists was, by all standards, a success.

I must confess I was dubious that we could get that many divergent economists together and have them come up with a superb performance, which they did, and I am confident in this room we can have the same constructive results.

I will certainly welcome, however, any detailed statement that anyone wishes to make in the form of a written proposal, and please submit these directly to me, if you will, within the next several days. This will give us adequate time to consider them before the conclusion of the designated time frame.

You are aware of the severity of inflation although inflation is unfortunately no novelty in our economic history.

Its present form is the worst we have experienced in 27 years. Consumer prices are increasing at an unacceptable annual rate of 11 percent. Statistics alone are inadequate to describe the inflation in human terms; cold and impersonal numbers and percentages cannot describe the impact on individuals' lives.

While everyone is hit by inflation, some obviously are hit much harder. I am thinking of families in the low- and moderate-income levels, of older people who are struggling, trying to live on modest incomes, or young people whose initial experience with the employment scene may not generate real confidence in our economic system. These are very real human problems which must guide the actions of Government as well as the decisions in the private sector.

Government has a particular obligation to act responsibly, and we will. We will make a concerted effort to cut the budget and reduce our expenditures to show our willingness to sacrifice. But we shall wield our budgetary knife ever so carefully so as not to sacrifice the meat while trimming the fat.

Within our general budgetary restraint, we shall be mindful of the need to increase what we allocate to the essential, while we decrease what we apportion to programs which are to some extent discretionary.

We also must exercise care to prevent our recently overheated economy from cooling off too rapidly. We must, at all costs, avoid a damaging recession.

We are now making a cooperative effort, in response to the initiative of the distinguished majority leader of the United States Senate and other Members of the Congress, on a bipartisan basis. The legislative and executive branches are working together, and this is evidenced by the people who are here from both political parties to seek short-term answers to short-term problems and long-term answers to long-term problems.

In May of 1973, the Administration requested enactment of the Job Security Assistance Act. This proposal is an important part of our policy to assist in a period of rising unemployment. It would modernize the unemployment compensation system without violating the relationship between the States and the Federal Government.

I recognize the concern of many that unemployment might rise because of the policies we must follow to fight inflation. I am watching the unemployment rate very, very closely. This Administration, as I said the other day, will act with compassion. We will not permit the burden of necessary economic restraint to fall on those members of society least able to bear the cost.

The unemployment rate in August, announced last Friday, was 5.4 percent. But we certainly cannot be complacent about any American lacking work. The present situation calls for full use of currently available tools and dollars. As a consequence, I have instructed the Department of Labor to accelerate the obligation of currently available funds under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

The Secretary of Labor will immediately disburse $65 million to those communities in which unemployment is at the highest level. By the end of the month, he will make available another $350 million under the CETA Title II program. This $415 million will finance some 85,000 public sector jobs in State and local governments.

Added to the almost $550 million obligated for public service employment in June from the FY 1974 appropriation, and about $50 million in prime sponsorship under CETA Title I as allocated for this purpose, currently available resources will provide approximately 170,000 public service jobs this coming winter.

The effect of these actions, based on the tools and the dollars we have, will be to double the number of federally funded public service jobs. In addition, $1.3 billion will be available to State and local governments for manpower programs.

Beyond this, drawing on the outcome of the conference on inflation, and your suggestions, we will develop contingency plans against the possibility that unemployment might give evidence of rising to substantially higher levels.

If the employment statistics demonstrate the need in the future, we will be ready to present such plans to the Congress and work together to assure a mutually satisfactory course of action before the end of this session.

To the leaders of our labor organizations and to the captains of industry, I make a sincere appeal for restraint. It must be a self-imposed restraint. As I have said before, there will be no controls imposed on wages and prices, as far as I am concerned. Settlements at the bargaining table are the sole responsibility of the participants, so long as they respect the public interest.

We need your help today, not merely for my Administration but for the whole Nation. I hope this discussion will not only be productive of ideas to preserve the American dollar but will demonstrate that in a time of crisis we remain a nation united.

With those opening observations and comments, I would like to move now to some observations and comments.

First, I would like to call on my friend George Meany, who will make his comments.

NOTE: The President spoke at 9:47 a.m. in the East Room at the White House. At the conclusion of the morning session of the conference, the President hosted a luncheon for the participants in the State Dining Room.

The conference with labor leaders, as well as the conference with economists held on September 5, 1974, was broadcast live on public television.

Presidential Clemency and Pardons

Statement by the President. September 11, 1974

The announcement yesterday by Mr. Hushen concerning study of the entire matter of Presidential clemency and pardons was prompted by inquiries to the White House Press Office concerning Mrs. John Dean's reported statement in reference to pardoning of her husband and similar public statements on behalf of others.

Such a study is, of course, made for any request concerning pardon of an individual.

However, no inference should be drawn as to the outcome of such study in any case. Nor is my pardon of the former President, under the unique circumstances stated by me in granting it, related to any other case which is or may be under study.

NOTE: The statement was read by Senator Hugh Scott at a news conference at the White House by Senator Scott and Representative John J. Rhodes following the President's first meeting with the Republican Congressional leadership.

The statement refers to Deputy Press Secretary John W. Hushen's answer to a reporter's question at his news conference at the White House on Tuesday, September 10, 1974. The exchange follows:

"QUESTION. Mrs. Dean is now talking about a pardon for John Dean; what is the President's feeling about pardon for any of the other people involved in the whole Watergate thing?"

"MR. HUSHEN. I am authorized to say that that entire matter is now under study."

Fayetteville, North Carolina

The President's Remarks Upon Arrival at Pope Air Force Base To Attend Ceremonies at the World Golf Hall of Fame. September 11, 1974

Thank you very, very much for coming out in such great numbers. I am very, very grateful.

It is a particular pleasure to be here in the great State of North Carolina. It is a pleasure to be—or have come down with me, Senator Jesse Helms, and it is always nice to see an old friend of mine like Congressman Earl Ruth, who I knew a long, long time ago back in the days when both he and I were in the Navy. I guess that is not a good thing to say here with all of you. [Laughter]

As a matter of fact, I got to know Congressman Ruth when we were both stationed here in the Navy over at Chapel Hill. So, I spent a bit of my military career in Chapel Hill before going to sea with the Navy.

It is nice to be in North Carolina because I have had the privilege and pleasure of knowing so many, many good people from this State.

But in addition—and this is the main point I would like to make—this air base, which is so vitally important, is not one that just belongs to the State of North Carolina but it belongs to all of us.

I come from the State of Michigan. We are as proud as all of the North Carolinians are of Pope Air Force Base and the people who are here, and Fort Bragg and the others.

We feel that the contribution made by the Defense Department—the 2,200,000, roughly, men and women in the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marines, the people who are civilians and work for the Defense Department are an extremely vital part of our security and the security of the free world.

And when we talk about security today, we are talking not only about security from attack but we are talking about a deterrence against war. And one major part of my service in the Presidency is to be sure that the Defense Department is strong enough to deter war and to protect our great country from any aggression.

I know there are people who think that we can slash the money for the Army, the Navy, the Air Force, Marines, and spend money for other programs. I don't think we can hurt our military establishment without hurting our security.

And so, to the extent that I have any influence, I am going to make sure that we have adequate funding for the weapons system, research and development, operations and maintenance, personnel, so that all of you feel that the service you are performing is with the best of equipment, in the best of environment, and for the best interests of every one of 211 million Americans.

Thank you very, very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 1:47 p.m. at Pope Air Force Base, Fayetteville, N.C.

World Golf Hall of Fame

*The President's Remarks at the Opening of the Hall of Fame in Pinehurst, North Carolina.
September 11, 1974*

Honored inductees, Governor Jim Holshouser, Lieutenant Governor Hunt, ladies and gentlemen:

Back in late July of this year, I participated in the induction ceremonies for four or five professional football players in Canton, Ohio, at their Hall of Fame.

It was a little more logical for me to participate in that even though I was never good enough on the gridiron to play professional football, but I did play at the University of Michigan and coached at Yale, and it was a very important part of my life for a substantial part of my youth.

Shortly after that, I got a letter of invitation while I was still the first instant Vice President to come and participate in these ceremonies. Well, I think my record is clear. I have no background that would justify my professional appearance here, but I thought maybe by coming, it would be helpful to me to get a little rub-off from some of the people who are inductees and others who are participating.

I can only say, regardless of which sport, I think, whether it is golf, professional or college football, or any one of the other wonderful athletic areas of competition, so much is added to America's society by the things that you learn and the things that you do.

So I am always a willing participant in anything that involves athletics. I think it is great and wholesome, not only for the United States but the world.

And, naturally, I wish to compliment and congratulate Don and Bill and those who had the vision and the foresight. I am sure you realize what a thrill it is for a weekend golfer like myself to walk the same fairways today with Byron Nelson, Gene Sarazen, Ben Hogan, Sam Snead, Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Gary Player, Patty Berg.

I always have idols in athletics, and I don't apologize for it now. These are the kind of idols that I think are good and wholesome for America.

And then, of course, there are the immortals who are not here today. They are here in spirit: Walter Hagen, Harry Vardon, Francis Ouimet, Babe Didrikson Zaharias, and that great statesman of golf, of course, Bobby Jones.

I think it is fair to say that there is another great golfer who I know is actually watching us here today. He wasn't a professional, but his love for golf was profound, and I think he did as much as any man in this century to make golf one of the world's number one participant sports. And I, of course, on this occasion refer to Ike Eisenhower.

Ike would be deeply honored that some of his golfing gear is to be included in the World Golf Hall of Fame here in Pinehurst.

As President Eisenhower knew so very well, golf is a very special game, and it is not hard to understand its popularity. Fortunately, golf is a game that crosses all borders and is played in virtually every country in the world.

Today we are dedicating the World Golf Hall of Fame, and I think the word "world" is vitally important.

This is an international event and participating with my good friend, Jim Holshouser, who has proclaimed the "Grand Week of Golf" are, of course, athletes from all over the world. The list is long, and I won't read it at the present time.

I think Americans sometimes lose sight of the fact that many things we value most have been bequeathed to us by other nations. Golf, for instance, has a centuries-old history and is just as popular in scores of other countries throughout the world. And I think that is why history's most spectacular chip shot struck such a responsive chord among people in so many nations. No one will ever forget that moment when Alan Shephard, swinging his home-made six-iron, lofted a ball off the surface of the moon.

That was a great chip shot for all mankind.

And in conclusion, let me say, we made it to the moon because of a technology built upon the knowledge and the discoveries by all the nations of the earth. We made it to the moon because of the shared experiences of the human race.

And that chip shot symbolized all that in one of the most natural languages shared by all—the language of golf.

Congratulations to the inductees and thank you all for being here.

NOTE: The President spoke at 3:28 p.m. at the World Golf Hall of Fame, Pinehurst, N.C.

In his remarks, the President referred to William H. Maurer, board chairman, and Donald C. Collett, president, World Golf Hall of Fame.

World Golf Hall of Fame

The President's Remarks at a Dinner Honoring Inductees Into the Hall of Fame. September 11, 1974

Thank you very, very much, Governor Jim Holshouser, my good golfing partner, the Governor of South [North] Carolina, Senator Jesse Helms, my old friend Earl Ruth:

But I do wish to acknowledge and pay special tribute to the inductees who I tremendously admire and greatly respect. And I have really enjoyed listening to the stories that each of them have given. And it is an awfully hard act to follow after the tales they have told and the incidents that they have related.

It has always been one of the great things that I have admired—excellence. And I have spent a great deal of time in the last few years on Saturday afternoons and Sunday afternoons watching various tournaments.

I usually take with me—and sit in front of the television and take a pile of work, and in between this shot and that shot, I try to concentrate. But I really am more interested in the excellence that they demonstrate to the American people. I admire excellence. I respect it.

And it seems to me that this is what we want in this country and what we want in the world. And to be here this afternoon and this evening, and to get better acquainted with those I have known, and to meet others that I have not known in the sport of golf has been a great and an exhilarating day for me. And I compliment and congratulate every one of them because they epitomize excellence in probably one of the most competitive areas of athletic competition that I have ever seen.

And I just hope that they, through their example, give to all Americans the kind of spirit, the kind of drive, the kind of dedication that is so essential if we are to achieve what is the best for everybody in this country and throughout the world.

If I may, I would like to tell you the most memorable golfing experience I ever had. I was at the Burning Tree course, which is one of those courses in Washington, D.C. I was playing with Ben Hogan, and Arnold Palmer, and Byron Nelson. And they came up to me, and they said they were looking for another great, great golfer to join them. I said, "Well, here I am." And they said, "Good. Can you help us look for one?"

I didn't mind that so much, but what really hurt me was when Arnold Palmer asked if I would not wear his slacks except under an assumed name.

I do appreciate the honor of the invitation from Don and Bill, but as I stand before all of you golfing immortals, one thought keeps running through my mind. I have an 18 handicap, and I guess I played it that way today in between the first and 18th hole. You need me as a good golfer like Sam Snead needs another tomato can.

They say you can always tell a good player by the number of people in the gallery. You have heard, and we have all heard, of Arnie's Army. My group is called Ford's Few.

I figured it out, that my problem is I have a very wild swing, and I demonstrated it on a number of occasions for Patty and some of the others this afternoon. Back on my home course in Grand Rapids, Michigan, they don't yell "Fore," they yell "Ford."

And you know, all of these fine Secret Service men you have seen around me today, and elsewhere—when I play golf, I am told they qualify for combat pay.

But I try to keep my hand in whenever I can. Personally, I thoroughly enjoy playing golf with Henry Kissinger. Henry is undoubtedly one of the greatest, one of the finest, and one of the very best diplomats the world has ever known, and fortunately for us, he has been carrying out that responsibility on behalf of our country. I will tell you why I say that: Last week, I was in a sand trap, which I frequently find myself in. There was a water hazard beyond that, and then some 95 feet or more to the pin, and Henry conceded the putt.

But this afternoon, I had one of the greatest thrills of my lifetime, the chance to play a few holes with the superstars of world golfing, and I thoroughly enjoyed it and they were most considerate of my difficulties.

I can't tell you how I felt out there surrounded by such legendary names as Berg, Hogan, Nelson, Nicklaus, Palmer, Player, Sarazen, Snead. And in all honesty, it was something like being in a golfer's heaven, and I appreciate the opportunity to be there.

But as the cliché goes, tonight I have good news and some bad news. The good news, that four of our honorees—Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Gary Player, and Sam Snead—will be competing in the World Open beginning tomorrow.

The bad news is today they shared the course with me. And I will tell you what I mean.

In 1972, I played with Sam Snead in the Pro-Am before the Kemper Open, and he didn't win. In 1973, I played with Miller Barber before the Kemper Open, and he didn't win. And this year, I played with Tom Weiskopf before the Kemper Open, and then I played with Dave Stockton up at Pleasant Valley in the Pro-Am, and neither of them won the tournament.

Now, you know why, I am sure, in Washington I am known as the President of the United States, and in golf, I am sort of known as the jinx of the links.

Frankly, I figured it out, that Snead, Barber, Weiskopf, and Stockton blew about $165,000 in prize money by their performance with me in the several Pro-Amateurs that I indicated. But if you think they are unhappy, you should see the Internal Revenue Service.

As you undoubtedly know by now, I thoroughly enjoy golf, not only the competition but the people. I enjoy the exercise it provides, the competitive challenge, the good fellowship before and after each game.

But if I had to single out one attribute of golf above all others, it would be found in the very simple statement from the Encyclopaedia Britannica, and I quote, "Golf is played on the honor system. A player is expected to count his own strokes even though he may miss the ball completely, to acknowledge the fact promptly if he violates a rule and incurs a penalty, and to avoid interfering in any way with his opponents or his fellow competitor's play."

Golf is one of the few games where honor is more important than the rules. Without good sportsmanship, golf could not exist. Without trust, another name for good sportsmanship, governments cannot exist.

But there is still one more lesson to be learned from golf. And I have never seen a tournament, regardless of how much money, or how much fame, or prestige, or emotion was ever involved, that didn't end with the victor extending his hand to the vanquished.

I have enjoyed sitting there watching on television the pat on the back, the arm around the shoulder, the praise for what was done right, and the sympathetic nod for what wasn't. These are as much a part of golf as life itself, and I would hope that understanding and reconciliation are not limited to the 19th hole.

Before I leave—and let me express to Don and Bill my great enjoyment to be with all of you—I would like to thank them and you for asking me. It was a delightful day, after a few kind of tough ones.

This afternoon for a few hours, quite unsuccessfully, I tried to make a hole in one. Tomorrow morning I will be back in Washington trying to get out of one.

And thank all of you for making this a most welcome "mini" vacation.

Thank you, and good night.

NOTE: The President spoke at 10:35 p.m. at the World Golf Hall of Fame, Pinehurst, N.C.

In his remarks, the President referred to William H. Maurer, board chairman, and Donald C. Collett, president, World Golf Hall of Fame.

Bipartisan Congressional Leadership Meeting

Remarks of Deputy Press Secretary John W. Hushen Following the Meeting. September 12, 1974

The President met for about an hour and a quarter with the bipartisan Congressional leadership to discuss international developments and foreign assistance legislation. That took place in the Cabinet Room. In this meeting, the President sought Congressional support for increased levels of economic and military assistance to Indochina.

He also discussed with them his concerns over a number of amendments in the Foreign Assistance Act which would severely limit his authority to conduct U.S. foreign policy. The President told the leaders that he was disappointed with recent moves to drastically cut military assistance to Vietnam and asked that reconsideration be given to these actions.

The President said the Administration has asked for minimal levels to assure adequate replacement of equipment on the one-for-one basis provided for in the Paris agreement, and he said that the recent cuts will seriously reduce South Vietnam's abilities to defend itself in the face of increasing North Vietnamese military actions.

The President also pointed out that economic assistance to Vietnam has been cut nearly in half by Congressional action and that such amendments would not permit the United States to help in the vital reconstruction process necessary to give South Vietnam an opportunity to build a viable, self-sufficient economy capable of maintaining its freedom.

NOTE: Mr. Hushen made the remarks at his news conference at the White House on Thursday, September 12, 1974. They were not issued in the form of a White House press release.

LEGISLATIVE PRIORITIES

The President's Message to the Congress. September 12, 1974

To the Congress of the United States:

In my first address before a Joint Session of Congress, I spoke of "communication, conciliation, compromise and cooperation." The Congress responded. We have communicated, conciliated, compromised, and cooperated.

I thank the bipartisan leaders and all Members for this working partnership. So far, despite some spats, we have had a good marriage.

Landmark bills in the fields of Education, Housing-Community Development, and Pension Reform were passed. For these examples of cooperation of real benefit to so many Americans, I am grateful.

I had serious objections to the SBA loan legislation, Public Works Appropriations, and D.C. Medical School bill. Recognizing congressional interest in particular elements of each measure, I signed them.

No effort was made to override measures that I had to veto. Congress responded promptly to my request for a Council on Wage and Price Stability.

Of the specific proposals I am singling out today, some are in the conference stage. Others have passed only one body. A few have passed neither. But virtually all have been the subject of hearings and are in the mark-up phase.

NOMINATIONS

Of utmost importance for Congress in its fall term is the consideration of Nelson Rockefeller as my nominee for Vice President of the United States. The Administration will assist the Congress in all appropriate ways to expedite this nomination. The precedent for this procedure under the 25th Amendment to the Constitution has been established. I am sure there will be no inordinate delay in moving forward Governor Rockefeller's nomination.

There are other nominations before the Senate, some pending since last January. There are other candidates for Federal office in varying stages of clearance. I expect to be able to submit them to the Senate within a few days. I would hope Congress could expedite action on all these nominees so that none will have to be held over to 1975.

REDUCING 1975 SPENDING

Responding to the initiative of the distinguished majority leader of the Senate and other members of the Congress, I have convened bipartisan summit meetings on the issue of inflation. Many of you are participating. The legislative and executive branches are working together.

We are seeking short-term answers to short-term problems and long-term answers to long-term problems.

A concerted effort must be undertaken to bring spending down to manageable proportions. An important first step in this effort is to bring Federal outlays under control in 1975, making possible a balanced budget in 1976.

I need the help of the Congress in reducing 1975 spending below $300 billion. Several important cooperative steps by the Congress will be required to achieve this difficult target.

First, the Congress must resist temptations to add to spending totals on legislation now being considered. Responsible action calls for agreements on cuts, not increases. I solicit suggestions on any programs that might be curtailed or stopped. Let me know about any spending that seems unnecessary or inflationary.

In the same vein, I would hope the Congress could pass specific legislation proposed in the February Budget submission that would reduce 1975 spending by almost $700 million.

Immediate action should be taken on the rescissions that I am proposing in my first message to the Congress under the newly-enacted Budget and Impoundment Control Act. Moreover, the deferrals transmitted to Congress under the same Act should be supported. Overturning these actions could increase spending by as much as $600 million in 1975 and by far more in 1976 and future years.

As a matter of highest priority, I need your support of my recommendation to defer the next Federal pay raise from October to January. It will be my intention to deal fairly with the just concerns of Federal workers. But I am asking them to join in the sacrifice I want all Americans to share. This action will reduce 1975 outlays by $700 million. It will also set an example of wage restraint for the private sector. Let us practice what we preach.

These efforts are essential if our cooperation is to keep spending under $300 billion. We simply cannot afford to fail.

APPROPRIATIONS

Eight of fourteen regular appropriations bills have been enacted. These measures in total represent a reduction of $532 million from the Administration's Budget in spending authority and $144 million in outlays for the current fiscal year. These are helpful moves in the right direction. I urge that this momentum be maintained.

There are seven money bills that require action during the balance of the session.

The Agriculture money bill was vetoed on the basis of excessive funding; the Defense appropriation is in conference with very sharp reductions. Levels below the House bill would be extremely unwise. State-Justice-Commerce is also in conference and undoubtedly will show a reduction in the Budget; Labor-HEW appropriations, however, appear to be moving in the direction of exceeding the Budget substantially.

Appropriations for Military Construction and Foreign Assistance have not yet passed the House of Representatives.

There is ample time to consider the remaining appropriations bills before adjournment. In addition, I will be sending essential but carefully limited Supplemental Requests for fiscal year 1975. I trust they will be considered an urgent priority.

LEGISLATION

It is unnecessary to submit a complete list of Administration legislative initiatives to this Congress. Leaders and Members know them as well as I do. I recognize that the inevitable consequence of any legislative Message in the twilight of the 93rd Congress is to suggest deferment of some desirable legislation in favor of imperatives that are realistic in the time we have left.

The Trade Reform bill has passed the House of Representatives but remains pending before the Senate Finance Committee. Efforts are underway to find a reasonable and mutually acceptable compromise to restrictive language that would deny Most Favored Nation status and Export-Import credits to the Soviet Union. I want to emphasize the importance I attach to the granting of Most Favored Nation status to the USSR. Careful attention should also be given to the importance of Title V concerning tariff preferences for developing countries and providing appropriate limits for Trade Adjustment Assistance. This legislation is close to enactment. It would be a tragedy not to pass it.

In the area of foreign policy, Congress should enact the Export-Import Bank Authorization, Asian and African Development Bank Authorizations, and the Foreign Assistance Act.

I know that a troublesome piece of legislation for me—and perhaps one of the most important for the Nation—is the Foreign Assistance Act. I am disturbed over the deep cuts in many essential and worthwhile programs which contribute to our overall efforts to attain peace and stability in the world. In addition, the bill contains several restrictions on the Executive which would reduce my ability to meet obligations to American security and that of our friends abroad. I respect and strongly support the role of Congress in the area of foreign policy. But under the Constitution, the Executive is the spokesman for the Nation and must have adequate freedom of action. I may recommend changes in our approach to foreign aid in the coming year and will propose realistic programs in the national interest. I strongly urge this Congress to continue the current programs unencumbered by amendments which prevent the effective implementation of policy.

There are several significant problems in the State Department Authorization. I have requested Secretary of State Kissinger to work with appropriate leaders in an effort to resolve these differences.

The USIA Authorization has been passed by both bodies and should be finally considered by a conference committee. The House version is preferred.

Both bodies have passed an extension of the Defense Production Act. I hope the differing versions will be reconciled and sent to me for signature.

To promote more effective management of the Government's approach to our national energy resources, the Administration recommended creation of an Energy Research and Development Administration. This key legislation has now passed both Houses and hopefully will soon be considered by a conference committee. In its consideration of this legislation, I recommend to the conference committee that the provision calling for an Energy Policy Council be deleted and several other undesirable provisions be revised in accordance with current discussions.

To increase the availability of clean natural gas through competitive pricing of newly developed gas supplies, I urge this Congress to enact the Natural Gas Supply bill. As we enter the winter months, our energy resources must be effectively utilized for the benefit of all Americans.

Gas deregulation which would increase supply is a vital part of the Administration's response to the energy shortage.

Of major importance to our ability to provide sufficient energy in the years ahead is a proposal for the Federal Government to grant permits for construction, licensing and operation of Deepwater Ports beyond the three-mile limit. The House has passed a bill. Hopefully, the Senate will also move forward on this key measure.

Among the many energy-related bills before Congress, is the important Energy Tax Package. This measure imposes a windfall profits tax on the selling price of domestic crude oil, eliminates the percentage depletion deduction for U.S. taxes on foreign production of oil and gas, and limits foreign tax credits available to U.S. oil and gas companies operating in foreign lands.

We learned from the recent oil embargo that we must be better prepared to reduce the impact of any future supply interruptions. At the time of the embargo our Naval petroleum reserves, set aside through the foresight of the Congress for the specific purpose of assuring adequate supplies of essential fuels, could not be used in time to contribute to our national defense requirements.

In a moment of need, oil in the ground is useless. We must have authority to produce and deliver our emergency petroleum reserves to the user. Presently, the Navy Petroleum Reserves at Elk Hills, California, have proven reserves of approximately one billion barrels. The Navy Petroleum Reserves in Alaska, although unexplored, have estimated reserves of up to 33 billion barrels. I intend to consult with the Congress on the best way to assure that the reserve capacities of these fields are in a state where they can contribute effectively to our national security in any future energy crisis.

The House and Senate conferees are now addressing the difficult issues involved in striking a balance between the environmental effects of surface coal mining under the proposed Surface Mining Act and the nation's need for coal as an essential source of energy. This issue has been under consideration throughout this Congress. It would greatly reduce the problem of opening new coal mines and increasing production if acceptable mined area legislation can be enacted. I am asking Secretary of the Interior Morton to continue discussions with legislative leaders in an effort to reach an agreement over troublesome provisions in this measure.

The Illegal Aliens legislation is necessary to establish clear guidelines regarding the law for employment of aliens who work in this country. The House has already passed a bill. I would hope the Senate could consider this measure during the fall term.

Real progress was made on the House floor when the Conference report on the Veterans Education Bill was substantially reduced in terms of Federal expenditures. I hope the Senate will now act in the same spirit. This can be done by reducing the benefit limit to the original Senate bill. It provided a substantial increase—18.2 percent. But cost-of-living increases for our veterans in school are necessary. I urge the Senate to reaffirm its original rate increase and send the bill to me so benefits can begin.

In May of 1973, the Administration proposed the Job Security Assistance Act. This measure is an important part of our policy to assist in a period of rising unemployment. It would modernize the unemployment compensation system without violating the relationship between the States and the Federal government.

I recognize the concern of many that unemployment might rise because of the policies we must follow to fight inflation.

I am watching the unemployment rate very closely. This Administration will act with compassion. We will not permit the burden of necessary economic restraint to fall on those members of society least able to bear the costs.

The unemployment rate in August, announced last Friday, was 5.4 percent. While we certainly cannot be complacent about any American lacking work, we are thankful that the number is not larger.

The present situation calls for full use of available tools and dollars.

I have asked Secretary of Labor Brennan to accelerate the obligation of currently available funds under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

The Secretary will immediately disperse $65 million to those communities in which unemployment is highest. By the end of the month he will make available another $350 million under CETA Title II. This $415 million will finance some 85,000 public sector jobs in State and local governments. Added to the almost $550 million obligated for public service employment in June from the FY 1974 appropriation, and about $50 million in other funds, currently available resources will provide 170,000 public service jobs this coming winter. The effect of these actions will be to double the number of federally funded public service jobs. In addition, $1.3 billion will be available to State and local governments for manpower programs.

Beyond this, I have requested the Secretary of Labor, in consultation with my economic advisors, and drawing on the outcome of the Conference on Inflation, to develop contingency plans against the possibility of substantially increased unemployment. If future unemployment statistics demonstrate the need, we will be ready to present plans to the Congress and to work together to assure a mutually satisfactory course of action.

There are several health authorizations that require extension this year. They are the Health Manpower Act, Health Services Act and the Health Resources Planning Act. All are necessary but, unfortunately, each currently has objectionable features in program provisions and excessive authorizations. I have requested Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare Weinberger to cooperate fully with appropriate committees in an effort to enact reasonable legislation. I will continue to seek a sound compromise on the Comprehensive Health Insurance Plan.

The House recently passed the Federal Mass Transportation Act. While the funding was kept to a level which I can support, certain structural changes in that bill are necessary. I am asking Secretary of Transportation Brinegar to work closely with the Senate in an effort to develop an acceptable bill.

The Administration's proposal to improve the regulatory climate in the surface transportation industry is presently before the Congress. This bill, with certain modifications to ensure greater reliance on competitive market forces, would contribute substantially to the efficiency and vitality of this Nation's private sector transportation system. I urge the Congress to act promptly to complete its work on this important legislation.

The Amtrak Authorization legislation is now ready for Conference. Since major problems exist with the Senate version, I hope the Conference will adhere as closely as possible to the House measure and soon present it for my signature.

I assume the Congress will pass the Military Construction Authorization bill, including expansion of the support facility at Diego Garcia.

The Export Administration Act is ready for conference action and should be reported soon.

Legislation to restore financial integrity to the Railroad Retirement system has not been enacted by either House. I urge legislation be adopted to accomplish this objective without resorting to a subsidy from either the Social Security System or the general taxpayers.

Court congestion impairs fair and speedy trials. The Administration supports legislation to create new Federal District Court Judgeships. While this measure has been slow to move, I would hope Congress could expedite consideration in order to alleviate overcrowded court calendars.

A bill to renew my authority to submit Executive Reorganization Plans has been sent to the Congress. During the past 25 years all Presidents have used this authority to improve management in the executive branch. I would like my Administration also to be able to utilize this effective tool of good government. I urge prompt bipartisan consideration of this bill.

It is apparent that I have referred to some legislative matters and omitted reference to others. This is not an inventory of my total legislative concerns. I will send the traditional message to the Congress in January covering the broad spectrum of legislative programs. This will afford me an interim opportunity for detailed study and review.

The 93rd Congress, in which I am proud to have served, has an opportunity to join with the Executive Branch at this turning point of history. We can respond together in the constructive harmony that ought to exist between Republicans and Democrats, between Federal and local governments, between the Executive and Legislative branches, and between America and other nations. A momentous challenge confronts me as well as the 93rd Congress. Together, we can summon forth the reserves of energy, imagination, and devotion necessary to generate a new and proud era of American achievement. We cannot and will not fail the American people.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
September 12, 1974.

Assistant to the President

Announcement of Appointment of William J. Baroody, Jr. September 12, 1974

The President today announced the appointment of William J. Baroody, Jr., as Assistant to the President. Mr. Baroody was Special Assistant to the President from February 4, 1973, to January 30, 1974, and since then has been Special Consultant to the President. From June 6, 1973, to January 30, 1974, Mr. Baroody also served as Deputy to Counsellor to the President for Domestic Affairs Melvin R. Laird.

As Assistant to the President, Mr. Baroody will head the Office of Public Liaison. He will be responsible for providing liaison with major nongovernmental organizations in the private sector, including farm, labor, veterans, business, civic, academic, ethnic, consumer, youth, senior citizens, and professional groups.

Prior to joining the White House Staff, Mr. Baroody served in the Department of Defense from 1969 to 1973 and in a staff capacity in the Congress from 1961 to 1969. At the Department of Defense, he was Assistant to the Secretary and Deputy Secretary of Defense from February 1, 1969, and was assigned additional responsibility for the long-range planning and net assessment functions of the Secretary of Defense in 1971. He received the highest civilian award that can be given by the Secretary of Defense, the Defense Distinguished Civilian Public Service Award, in January 1973.

In the Congress, Baroody was research director of the House Republican Conference from 1968 to 1969. Prior to that, he served as legislative assistant and press secretary to then Congressman Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin, having joined Mr. Laird's staff in July of 1961.

Mr. Baroody was born on November 5, 1937, in Manchester, N.H. He was graduated from Holy Cross College, Worcester, Mass., with a degree in English in 1959 and pursued graduate work in political science at Georgetown University, Washington, D.C. He served as an officer in the U.S. Navy from 1959 to 1961 on the U.S.S. Chilton, based at Norfolk, Va. He is married to the former Mary Margaret Cullen. They have nine children and reside in Alexandria, Va.

Counsel to the President

Announcement of Appointment of Phillip E. Areeda. September 12, 1974

The President today announced that he will appoint Professor Phillip E. Areeda of the Harvard Law School to serve as Counsel to the President and a member of his senior staff. The appointment will be made on October 14. In the interim, Mr. Areeda will serve as a part-time consultant while arranging his transition from Harvard from which he will take a leave of absence. Mr. Areeda will be associated with Philip W. Buchen, who is also Counsel to the President and who has today been given Cabinet rank.

Mr. Areeda has been a professor at Harvard since 1961. Before that, he was Assistant Special Counsel to President Dwight D. Eisenhower. During 1969, he served as Executive Director of the President's Cabinet Task Force on Oil Import Control. At Harvard, Professor Areeda specialized in antitrust law and other subjects related to law and economics. He is the author of the first volume of Antitrust Analysis (2d ed. 1974) and joint author of the first volume of an antitrust treatise which has been substantially completed and which will be published in a year or so.

Born on January 28, 1930, in Detroit, Mich., Mr. Areeda received his A.B. degree summa cum laude in 1951 from Harvard College and his LL.B. degree summa cum laude in 1954 from the Harvard Law School. He held a traveling fellowship from Harvard in 1954-55 and served in the United States Air Force from 1955 through 1957. He joined the staff of President Eisenhower in 1956.

U.S.-Bulgarian Consular Convention

The President's Message to the Senate Transmitting the Convention for Advice and Consent to Ratification. September 12, 1974

To the Senate of the United States:

I am pleased to transmit for the Senate's advice and consent to ratification the Consular Convention between the United States of America and the People's Republic of Bulgaria, with an Agreed Memorandum and a related exchange of letters, signed at Sofia on April 15, 1974. I transmit also, for the information of the Senate, the report of the Department of State with respect to the Convention.

The signing of this Convention is a significant step in the gradual process of improving and broadening the relationship between the United States and Bulgaria. Consular relations between the two countries have not previously been subject to formal agreement. This Convention will establish firm obligations on such important matters as free communication between a citizen and his consul, notification to consular officers of the arrest and detention of their citizens, and permission for visits by consuls to citizens who are under detention.

I welcome the opportunity through this Consular Convention to strengthen the ties between the United States and Bulgaria. I urge the Senate to give the Convention its prompt and favorable consideration.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
September 12, 1974.

U.S.-Canadian Extradition Treaty

The President's Message to the Senate Transmitting the Treaty for Advice and Consent to Ratification. September 12, 1974

To the Senate of the United States:

With a view to receiving the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, I transmit herewith the Treaty on Extradition between the United States of America and Canada, signed at Washington on December 3, 1971, as amended by an exchange of notes of June 28 and July 9, 1974.

The Treaty is one of a current series of extradition treaties being negotiated by the United States and contains provisions regarding extradition for the offenses of aircraft hijacking, narcotics and conspiracy to commit listed offenses.

The Treaty will facilitate the mutual efforts of the United States and Canada in combating international crime. In addition, modernization of the extradition relations between the United States and Canada is especially important in light of the ease of travel between the two countries. I recommend that the Senate give early and favorable consideration to the Treaty as amended and give its advice and consent to ratification.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
September 12, 1974.

Citizenship Day and Constitution Week, 1974

Proclamation 4312. September 12, 1974

*By the President of the United States of America
a Proclamation*

As we near our Nation's two hundredth anniversary, let all of us, as equal partners in a Nation of justice under law, resolve to work, with all our strength and common sense, to achieve ". . . a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity. . . ." Through such a rededication to the spirit and principles of the Constitution we can build a better future for every individual American, and a better America for all.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, GERALD R. FORD, President of the United States of America, in compliance with the joint resolutions of the Congress of the United States, call upon appropriate Government officials to display the flag of the United States on all Government buildings on Citizenship Day, September 17, 1974—the 187th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution. I urge Federal, State, and local officials, as well as leaders of civic, educational and religious organizations to conduct appropriate ceremonies and programs on that day.

I also designate as Constitution Week the period beginning September 17 and ending September 23, 1974, and urge all Americans to observe that week with appropriate ceremonies and activities in their schools, churches and in other suitable places in order to foster a better understanding of the Constitution, and of the rights and responsibilities of United States citizens.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this twelfth day of September, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and seventy-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and ninety-ninth.

GERALD R. FORD

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 10:13 a.m.,
September 13, 1974]

Visit of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin of Israel

Exchange of Toasts Between the President and Prime Minister Rabin at a Dinner Honoring the Israeli Prime Minister. September 12, 1974

THE PRESIDENT. Mr. Prime Minister, Mrs. Rabin, and honored guests:

It is a great privilege and honor for Mrs. Ford and myself to be host to the two of you on this occasion and to warmly welcome you back to the United States in this capacity as the Prime Minister of your great country.

But I would also like to extend our warm welcome for all of your friends who are here and the many, many friends throughout the whole United States who are also good and firm friends of the two of you and to extend to you, representing your country, the depth and the warmth of the feeling that we in the United States have for Israel.

As I was sitting here chatting with you and talking to Mrs. Rabin, I couldn't help but note that 1948 was a somewhat significant year as far as your country is concerned, and it just happened that it was quite a year as far as the Fords were concerned. It was the year that we were married—

MRS. RABIN. And the Rabins.

THE PRESIDENT. Oh! [Laughter]—and the year that I got elected to Congress but, more importantly, certainly, the year that Israel gained its independence.

And I am pleased to note that our country was the first of all countries in the world at that time to recognize Israel. And we were proud to do it then, and we are proud that it was done by America at that time.

It is especially nice to have the opportunity of meeting with you yesterday, and today, and tonight, tomorrow, a person who is a soldier, a diplomat, and a political leader, and to know that you represent your country so effectively and so well.

The American people have a great deal of understanding and sympathy and dedication to the same kind of ideals that are representative of Israel. And, therefore, I think we in America have a certain rapport and understanding with the people of Israel.

We, as two nations who believe in peace, have sought by joint action in conjunction with others a durable and stable peace in the Middle East which I think all of us agree is in the best interest of your country and the Middle East—the world as a whole.

We, as a country, are proud to be associated with Israel in this mutual effort to move and to continue to move in the direction of an even better, more stable, and more equitable peace in the Middle East.

I can't tell you how pleased that we are to have the opportunity of expressing our gratitude for all of the things that our countries have done together and all of the things that I hope that our two countries can continue to do in the future.

We have mutual aims and objectives. We have a friendship that is durable and growing. We have the kind of relationship that I think, if expanded worldwide, would be beneficial to all mankind.

And so if I may, Mr. Prime Minister, I would like to ask all of our guests here tonight to stand and to offer a toast to your President, and to you and Mrs. Rabin.

To the President.

THE PRIME MINISTER. Mr. President, Mrs. Ford, distinguished guests:

In the name of my wife and myself, I would like to thank you very much for inviting us and taking care of us during our visit here.

I remember, Mr. President, meeting you while you were the minority leader in the House. I had many talks then with you; I learned very much to admire you. And I know that by assuming the responsibilities of the President of the United States, you have taken upon yourself tremendous—tremendous role not only for this country. But I believe that the President of the United States is the leader of the free world and has to bear in mind, if you would allow me to say so, not only the well-being of this country but the well-being of all countries that strive for freedom, for democracy, because in the world that we live today, it is not always possible to a small country to do it against odds.

The relations between the United States and Israel started many years ago. When our country was reborn we faced many problems. The first one was the absorption of many newcomers, immigrants, the remnants of the holocaust of Europe, the Second World War, the refugees that came from the Arab countries. I believe that we were a country that half of its population were refugees.

And then the United States offered Israel economic aid, technical aid, that made it possible to us to absorb these people, our brothers, in a way that the transformation from refugees to be part of our creative society was very much facilitated by your help.

During the years other problems appeared. The threat from outside became more apparent, and the United States added also military aid in terms of supplying us arms to be able to defend ourselves by ourselves.

I think that 26 years from 1948 have proved that your support to us was used in the best way for the well-being of our people and for preservation of a democracy and the free country in that part of the world.

And I would like to thank you and to thank everybody in this country that has made it possible till today.

I don't know, Mr. President, if you have seen it. I have given a small present to you. It is a sculpture, a sculpture that describes the struggle between David and Goliath. I believe it is not only a story from the Bible, it is a story that started then and continues on till the present days.

And if there is something that symbolizes Israel today, it is the spirit of David facing Goliath. And the meaning of the spirit is, on the one hand, to seek peace, to believe in peace. We are a Jewish state, and we believe that part of being a Jew means to seek peace, to search peace, but on the other hand, to realize that peace is attainable only for those who are ready to take risks to dare to withstand Goliaths.

I believe that this is what is significant to Israel today, the spirit of David seeking peace and, at the same time, being ready and capable to meet some Goliaths.

I hope and I believe, Mr. President, that under your leadership the relations between our two countries will continue, will be strengthened in the unique spirit that was so significant till today, the search of peace and the understanding that strength helps to achieve peace.

Allow me, Mr. President, to raise my glass to the President of the United States.

THE PRESIDENT. Thank you very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 9:58 p.m. in the State Dining Room at the White House.

Radio and Television Directors' Association

The President's Filmed Remarks to the Association's Conference in Montreal, Canada. September 13, 1974

I would very much rather be giving you this greeting in person than on film. It has been far too long since I have had a chance to meet with you and your organization.

I well remember that 1968 conference in Los Angeles when you asked me to discuss the legislative plans of the newly elected Republican Administration. A lot has happened since then.

And unpredictable as the future can be, I can tell you one thing for sure about my new job. To the very best of my ability to make it so, this will be an open Administration, and that means open to all newsmen.

You and your organization can perform a very vital service for those of us in Government through your questions and your reports.

We get a wealth of information fed back to us about what people are thinking, what their concerns are, and their hopes and aspirations. And this is even more important to me as President than it has been in the past.

The members of your organization know so well the communities and the people they serve. Over the years I was able to pay particular attention to the work of two of your members, the late Dick Cheverton at WOTV, and that of Jack Hogan at WZZM-TV, both stations in Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Their work and their involvement in the community problems and projects provide eloquent testimony to the dedication of your members.

I believe the news media's concern with community affairs is vitally important. Half jokingly, I have urged Washington correspondents to go back to their hometowns occasionally, for 6 months or so each year, to get reacquainted with what the people are thinking and doing.

By the same token, I suggest it might be profitable for you who work outside Washington to spend a few months in our Capital every so often. We all would benefit from such an exchange of ideas, attitudes, and experiences.

As you may know, most of our White House press staff are experienced journalists. One of them, Bill Roberts, served as president of your organization. I know that to the best of their abilities they will do what they can to help you.

And while some people say that Government and the news media are in a sense adversaries, I hope we can always remain friendly adversaries.

I trust your conference will prove stimulating and professionally helpful. I congratulate your president, Tom Frawley, on completion of a successful year, and wish your new president and officers well in meeting and surmounting the challenges and the concerns of the broadcast journalists.

Thank you very much.

NOTE: The remarks were filmed for use at the conference on Friday, September 13, 1974.

Digest of Other White House Announcements

Following is a listing of items of general interest which were announced to the press during the period covered by this issue but which are not carried elsewhere in the issue. Appointments requiring Senate approval are not included since they appear in the list of nominations submitted to the Senate, below.

September 7

The President met at the White House with American astronauts and Soviet cosmonauts who will make up the crew of the joint Apollo-Soyuz mission in 1975. The crew members were accompanied by Soviet Ambassador A. F. Dobrynin.

September 9

During his visit to Pittsburgh, the President stopped at a school complex in Moon Township to greet students and faculty members.

The President met with Kurt Waldheim, Secretary General of the United Nations, and F. Bradford Morse, Under Secretary General for Political and General Assembly Affairs.

At the invitation of the Government of Japan, the President will visit Japan for 3 days beginning November 19, 1974.

September 10

Former Prime Minister Edward Heath of the United Kingdom met with the President at the White House.

September 12

The President today accepted with deep regret the resignation of Henry B. Turner as Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Administration, effective September 20, 1974.

The President today accepted, with regret and with appreciation for his contributions in the area of arms control, the resignation of Robert H. Miller as Assistant Director of the United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

The President today accepted with regret the resignation of George E. Johnson as a Governor of the United States Postal Service.

The President today acknowledged the retirement from active service of Martin Pence as Chief Judge of the United States District Court for the District of Hawaii, effective November 19, 1974.

The President today accepted the resignation of Kenneth A. Guenther as Alternate U.S. Executive Director of the Inter-American Development Bank, effective August 31, 1974. The President expressed his appreciation for Mr. Guenther's contributions to the work of the Bank.

September 13

A group of black mayors and black Republican leaders met with the President at the White House.

Gov. Winfield Dunn, of Tennessee, chairman of the Republican Governors Association, met with the President to discuss fall gubernatorial campaigns.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin met with the President to conclude 3 days of meetings.

NOMINATIONS SUBMITTED TO THE SENATE

The following list does not include promotions of members of the Uniformed Services, nominations to the Service Academies, or nominations of Foreign Service officers.

Submitted September 10, 1974

The following-named persons to be Representatives of the United States of America to the Twenty-ninth Session of the General Assembly of the United Nations:

JOHN A. SCALL, of the District of Columbia

W. TAPLEY BENNETT, Jr., of Georgia

STUART SYMINGTON, United States Senator from the State of Missouri

CHARLES H. PERCY, United States Senator from the State of Illinois

THOMAS H. KUCHEL, of California

The following-named persons to be Alternate Representatives of the United States of America to the Twenty-ninth Session of the General Assembly of the United Nations:

OLIVER C. CARMICHAEL, Jr., of Indiana

JOSEPH M. SEGEL, of Pennsylvania

WILLIAM E. SCHAUFELE, Jr., of Ohio

CLARENCE CLYDE FERGUSON, Jr., of New Jersey

BARBARA M. WHITE, of Massachusetts

The following-named persons to be the Representative and Alternate Representatives of the United States of America to the Eighteenth Session of the General Conference of the International Atomic Energy Agency:

NOMINATIONS SUBMITTED TO THE SENATE—Continued

Submitted September 10, 1974—Continued

Representative:

DIXY LEE RAY, of Washington

Alternative Representatives:

JOHN A. ERLEWINE, of Maryland

ABRAHAM S. FRIEDMAN, of New York

DWIGHT J. PORTER, of Nebraska

GERALD F. TAPE, of Maryland

Withdrawn September 12, 1974

CLIFFORD G. MCINTYRE, of Maine, to be a member of the Board of Directors of the United States Railway Association for a term of 2 years, which was sent to the Senate on May 30, 1974.

Submitted September 12, 1974

CLIFFORD G. MCINTYRE, of Maine, to be a member of the Board of Directors of the United States Railway Association for a term of 2 years (new position).

ACTS APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT

Approved September 7, 1974

H.R. 13871..... Public Law 93-416
An act to amend chapter 81 of subpart G of title 5, United States Code, relating to compensation for work injuries, and for other purposes.

S. 821..... Public Law 93-415
Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974.

CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES

The following releases of the Office of the White House Press Secretary, distributed during the period covered by this issue, are not included in the issue.

Released September 9, 1974

Advance text: remarks to the Sixth International Conference on Urban Transportation

Released September 11, 1974

Advance text: remarks to the conference on inflation

Advance text: remarks at a dinner at the World Golf Hall of Fame, Pinehurst, N.C.

News conference: following the President's meeting with the Republican Congressional leadership—by Senator Hugh Scott and Representative John J. Rhodes

Released September 13, 1974

News conference: on the President's meeting with black mayors and black Republican leaders—by Robert Blackwell, mayor, Highland Park, Mich.; Timothy Jenkins, chairman, the Match Institution; and Stanley S. Scott, Special Assistant to the President

CUMULATIVE INDEX TO PRIOR ISSUES

Third Quarter, 1974

[See Index of Contents for Documents in this Issue]

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon

ABM. See Anti-ballistic missile systems
 Acts approved. See last page of text in each issue

Addresses and Remarks of the President

Ash, Roy L., dinner honoring the President..... 819
 Belgium, visit..... 718, 727, 728, 732
 Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, signing ceremony..... 799
 Economy, national, address to Nation..... 830
 Farewell remarks to Cabinet and White House Staff..... 1019
 French gift for the American Revolution Bicentennial, exchange of remarks with French Ambassador Jacques Kosciuszko-Morizet..... 796
 Loring Air Force Base, Maine, report to Nation on Soviet visit..... 766
 Lowman, Dr. Charles LeRoy, Medal of Freedom presentation..... 997
 National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency..... 813
 People's Republic of China, martial arts and acrobatic troupe visit to the White House..... 801
 Resignation, address to Nation..... 1014
 Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, visit..... 718, 727, 735, 742, 744, 748, 766
 United States Space Week, 1974..... 815
 Vice President Gerald R. Ford, remarks following President's resignation announcement..... 1018

Administrative Conference of the United States, Chairman..... 1003, 1005
 Adult Education, National Advisory Council on..... 1021

Agriculture, Department of
 Appropriations, veto..... 1014
 Secretary..... 796, 799, 803, 1000
 Albrecht, Richard R..... 804

Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration..... 806, 818
 Alsop, Donald D..... 1022

American Revolution Bicentennial, French gift..... 796, 797, 804

Annenberg, Walter H..... 817

Anthony, Robert Armstrong..... 1003, 1005

Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocols to treaty on the limitation of..... 750, 756

Antigua, U.S. Special Representative..... 994

Appointments and Nominations

Administrative Conference of the United States, Chairman..... 1003, 1005
 Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, Administrator..... 806, 818
 Ambassador, U.S., to Syria..... 999, 1005
 Corporation for Public Broadcasting, Board of Directors, members..... 1010, 1022
 Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman..... 828, 995
 Council on International Economic Policy, Executive Director..... 788, 804
 Federal Aviation Administration, Deputy Administrator..... 817, 995
 Federal Energy Administration, Assistant Administrator..... 789, 804
 General Counsel..... 789, 804
 Office of Intergovernmental and Regional Relations, Director..... 839, 1005

Appointments and Nominations—Continued

Federal Regional Councils, Chairmen..... 829
 Foreign Claims Settlement Commission
 Chairman..... 783
 Members..... 804, 839, 1005
 Interior Department
 Assistant Secretary..... 838, 1005
 United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Director..... 838, 1005
 International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission..... 1021
 Justice Department, Assistant Attorney General..... 998, 1005
 Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, Administrator..... 999, 1005
 National Commission for the Observance of World Population Year, 1974, members..... 798
 National Corporation for Housing Partnerships, Board of Directors, member..... 1022
 Office of Economic Opportunity, Director..... 807, 1005
 President's Commission on White House Fellowships, members..... 830
 Securities and Exchange Commission, member..... 806, 818
 State Department
 Assistant Inspector General, Foreign Assistance..... 830
 Assistant Secretary..... 1002, 1005
 Treasury Department
 Deputy Secretary..... 804
 General Counsel..... 804
 U.S. attorney, Texas..... 804
 U.S. circuit judge, 2d circuit..... 804, 1022
 U.S. Court of Military Appeals
 Associate judge..... 1008, 1005
 Chief judge, withdrawal of prior nomination..... 1022
 U.S. district judges
 Georgia..... 804
 Minnesota..... 1022
 U.S. marshals
 California..... 804
 Louisiana..... 803, 818
 White House Staff
 Deputy Assistant..... 795
 Special Assistant..... 816

Appropriations bill, veto..... 1014
 Arends, Repr. Leslie C..... 802
 Argentina, President Juan Domingo Peron, death..... 771
 Armed Forces, United States..... 729, 731
 Arms control and disarmament..... 750, 751, 753, 755, 756, 763, 764, 769
 Armstrong, Anne L..... 802, 815

Army, Department of the, Assistant Secretary..... 802

Arnett, Alvin J..... 817

Ash, Roy L..... 802, 804, 817, 819, 994

Atlantic Relations, Declaration on..... 728, 729, 731

Atomic Energy Commission..... 1009, 1021

Augelli, Anthony T..... 1004

Awards and Citations

Presidential Medal of Freedom..... 997, 1005

Baker, Repr. LaMar..... 802

Balaguer, Joaquin..... 1021

Barbados, U.S. Ambassador to..... 994

Baudouin I, King..... 728, 732, 790

Belgium

King Baudouin I..... 728, 732, 790
 President's visit
 Arrival in Brussels..... 728
 Declaration of Atlantic Relations..... 731
 Departure from Washington..... 718, 727
 Luncheon in Brussels..... 732
 Prime Minister Leo Tindermans..... 790
 Bell, J. Raymond..... 793, 804
 Berg, Eugene E..... 802
 Bicentennial, American Revolution..... 796, 797, 804

Bill Signings

Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, remarks and statement..... 799, 800
 Department of Defense Appropriations Authorization Act, 1975, statement..... 1007
 Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974, statement..... 838

Birknes, John A..... 804
 Bisplinghoff, Raymond L..... 1021
 Bohanon, Luther..... 1004
 Brandy imports..... 807
 Brennan, Peter J..... 802
 Brezhnev, L. I..... 735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
 Broadcasting, Corporation for Public..... 1010, 1022

Budget, federal spending..... 799, 800, 821, 832, 1014

Budget, Office of Management and Budget, Office of Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, Congressional..... 799, 800, 804

Burch, Dean..... 791, 802, 995

Burnham, D.C..... 830

Burns, Arthur F..... 802

Business and industry, cooperation with U.S.S.R..... 741, 759, 791

Butz, Earl L..... 803

Cabinet

Meetings with the President..... 802, 1021

President's farewell remarks..... 1019

California, U.S. marshal..... 804

Callaghan, James..... 999

Captive Nations Week, 1974..... 801

Carlos, Prince Juan..... 814

Carlson, Jack W..... 838, 1005

Cary, Frank..... 794

Casey, Thomas R..... 828, 829

Central Intelligence Agency..... 1008

Checklist of unpublished releases. See last page of text in each issue

China, People's Republic of, Wushu Troupe, visit to the White House..... 801

Civil defense medical and food stockpiles..... 798

Claims Settlement Commission, Foreign..... 793, 804, 839, 1005

Clements, William P., Jr..... 1012

Coffee Agreement, International..... 796

Cole, Kenneth R., Jr..... 830

Colombia

President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen, inauguration..... 994

U.S. Ambassador to..... 994

Combined Federal Campaign..... 1012

Commerce, Department of, Secretary..... 788, 1000

[illegible]

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon—Continued

Hartman, Arthur A.	791	Joint Statements		Memorandums to Federal Agencies
Hays, David W.	829	Union of Soviet Socialist Republics..	753	Combined Federal Campaign.....	1012
Hazardous materials transportation..	802	Jones, Sidney L.	795	Mental Health Administration, Alcohol,
Health, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	740, 761, 791	Judiciary Committee, House.....	791, 818, 822, 840, 995, 1008	Drug Abuse, and.....	806, 818
Health, Education, and Welfare, Department of		Justice, Department of		Meskill, Thomas J.	1022
Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration. See Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration		Assistant Attorney General.....	998, 1005	Middle East
Secretary	802, 804	Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. See Law Enforcement Assistance Administration		North Atlantic Council meeting, remarks	731
Health Cooperation, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee for	740, 761	Special Prosecutor.....	1008	U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint communique.....	758
Heart and Lung Advisory Council, National	998	Karamanlis, Konstantinos.....	994	Military Appeals, U.S. Court of.....	1003, 1005, 1022
Heart research, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	740, 761, 791	Keene, Joseph W.	803, 818	Milk, support price.....	842, 958, 963
Helms, Richard	1009	Kelly, Bernard	829	Minnesota
Herdson, Lillie E.	1010, 1022	Key Biscayne, Fla.	790, 802	Disaster assistance.....	805
Hodgson, James D.	802	King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr.	771	U.S. district judge.....	1022
Hogan, Repr. Lawrence J.	995	Kissinger, Dr. Henry A.	763, 791, 807, 814, 817, 1018, 1021	Missile systems, protocol to treaty on the limitation of anti-ballistic.....	750, 756
Hostetter, Amos B., Jr.	1010, 1022	Klein, Herbert G.	994	Mitchell, John N.	842, 951
Housing, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	739, 761, 791	Kleindienst, Richard G.	842, 951	Monagan, Robert T.	1021
Housing and Other Construction, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in	739, 761	Korff, Baruch	813, 817, 818, 1021	Montgomery, Robert E., Jr.	789, 804
Housing Partnerships, National Corporation for	1022	Kosciusko-Morizet, Jacques.....	796	Morton, Rogers C.B.	802, 994
Housing and Urban Development, Department of, Secretary.....	799, 1003, 1005	Kosygin, A. N.	740, 790	Mount Vernon, French sound and light spectacle for American Revolution Bicentennial	796, 797, 804
Hunt, E. Howard	841, 870	Labor, Department of, Secretary.....	802	Murphy, Richard W.	994, 999, 1005
Hurwitch, Robert A.	1021	Labor, railway dispute.....	789	National Advisory Council on Adult Education	1021
Iceland, Special Ambassador to 1100th anniversary	994	Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, Administrator.....	999, 1005	National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services.....	802
Immunity from prosecution.....	1011	Letters, Messages, Telegrams		National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency.....	818, 819, 1021
Impeachment inquiry		See also Congress, Communications to		National Commission for the Observance of World Population Year, 1974	798
See also Watergate investigation		Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman Herbert Stein, exchange of letters on resignation.....	815	National Corporation for Housing Partnerships	1022
Brief submitted to the House Judiciary Committee.....	840	French gift for the American Revolution Bicentennial, exchange of letters with French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing.....	797	National Forest Products Week, 1974..	1000
Impeachable offense.....	826	Resignation, letter to the Secretary of State	1021	National Heart and Lung Advisory Council	998
Internal Revenue Service.....	842, 963	Livestock Credit Act of 1974, Emergency	838	National Science Foundation.....	1021
International Telephone and Telegraph	841, 945	Loomis, Philip A., Jr.	806, 818	National Student Government Day, 1974	1010
Milk support price.....	842, 958, 963	Loring Air Force Base, Maine.....	786, 790	Natural resources, forests.....	1000
News conference by Special Counsel St. Clair.....	822	Louisiana, U.S. marshal.....	803, 818	New Jersey, U.S. district judge.....	1004
Presidential tapes and documents.....	822, 828, 1008	Lowman, Dr. Charles LeRoy.....	997, 1005	New York, disaster assistance.....	829
Wiretaps	807, 841, 923	Lung Advisory Council, National Heart and	998	News Conferences Other Than Presidential
Imports, brandy.....	807	Luns, Joseph.....	738	Congressional support assessment, Republican Congressional leadership	1010
Impoundment Control Act of 1974, Congressional Budget and... ..	799, 800, 804	Lynn, James T.	1003, 1005	House Judiciary Committee impeachment inquiry, Special Counsel St. Clair	822
Independence Day, 1974.....	790	Management and Budget, Office of, Director.....	802, 804, 817, 819, 994	President's visit to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Secretary of State Kissinger.....	763
Industry. See Business and industry.		Maritime Traffic Convention, International	998	Nominations submitted to the Senate. See last page of text in each issue
Interior, Department of the		Martinez, Samuel.....	829	North Atlantic Treaty Organization
Assistant Secretary.....	838, 1005	Massachusetts, U.S. marshal.....	804	Brussels meeting with North Atlantic Council	728, 731, 732, 769
Office of Oil and Gas, Associate Director	803	Mauritania, U.S. Ambassador to.....	994	Cyprus conflict.....	820
Secretary	802, 994	McAninch, Vernon D.	994	Declaration on Atlantic Relations.....	729, 731
Under Secretary.....	802	Mead, Dana.....	802	Secretary General Joseph Luns.....	728
United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Director	838, 1005	Medals. See Awards and Citations		Nuclear powerplants.....	1009
Internal Revenue Service, impeachment inquiry	842, 983	Medical stockpiles for civil defense....	798	Nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of underground.....	751
International Coffee Agreement.....	796	Meetings with Foreign Leaders		Office. See other part of title
International Economic Policy, Council on	788, 804	Belgium		Ohio, disaster assistance.....	798
International Maritime Traffic Convention	998	King Baudouin I.	728, 732, 790	Oklahoma, U.S. district judge.....	1004
International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission	1021	Prime Minister Leo Tindermans.....	790	O'Neill, John Ellis	802
International Telephone and Telegraph	841, 945	Germany, Federal Republic of, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.....	790	Otis, Webster.....	829
Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor..	790	Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor..	796	Parker, Joseph O.	1021
ITT. See International Telephone and Telegraph		Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Chairman N. V. Podgorny.....	790	People's Republic of China. See China, People's Republic of
Jackson, Levi A.	830	General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev.....	735, 748, 790	Peron, Juan Domingo.....	771
Japan, U.S. Ambassador to.....	802	Premier A. N. Kosygin.....	790	Pettit, John Whitney.....	1010, 1022
Jenner, Albert E., Jr.	824	United Kingdom, Prime Minister Harold Wilson.....	790	Podgorny, N. V.	789, 741, 790
Johnston, Donald A.	994			Population control.....	798

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon—Continued

Population Year, 1974, National Commission on the Observance of World..	798	Rush, Kenneth.....	802, 804, 817, 995, 1002	Strategic arms limitation.....	750, 753, 755, 756, 763, 764, 769
Post, Marjorie Meriweather.....	802	St. Christopher-Nevis-Anguilla, U.S. Special Representative.....	994	Strategy Council on Drug Abuse.....	1021
Presidency, National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the.....	813, 818, 1021	St. Clair, James D.....	787, 802, 804, 822, 829, 1008	Student Government Day, 1974, National.....	1010
Presidential Medal of Freedom, Dr. Charles LeRoy Lowman.....	997, 1005	St. Lucia, U.S. Special Representative.....	994	Supplementary Centers and Services, National Advisory Council on.....	802
Presidential tapes and documents.....	822-828, 1008	St. Vincent, U.S. Special Representative.....	994	Supreme Court of the United States.....	772, 802, 822-829, 1008
President's Commission on White House Fellowships.....	830, 1002	Saletic, William G.....	1021	Surganov, F. A.....	742
President's travel		SALT. See Strategic arms limitation		Syria, U.S. Ambassador to.....	999, 1005
Domestic		San Clemente, Calif.....	803, 994, 1004	Tariff Commission, United States.....	1021
Bel Air, Calif.....	819, 994	Sant, Roger West.....	789, 804	Taylor, Joseph Z.....	830
Los Angeles, Calif.....	830	Sawhill, John C.....	788	Technology. See Science and technology
Palm Beach, Fla.....	802	Scalls, Antonin M.....	998, 1005	Telegraph and telephone regulations.....	1007
Foreign		Schmidt, Helmut.....	790	Texas, U.S. attorney.....	804
Belgium.....	718, 727-735	Science and technology, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	737, 740, 741, 761, 791	Tindermans, Leo.....	790
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.....	718, 735-771	Scott, Sen. Hugh.....	802, 1010	Trade
Proclamations		Securities and Exchange Commission.....	806, 818	Coffee.....	796
Captive Nations Week, 1974 (Proc. 4302).....	801	Security and Cooperation in Europe, Conference on.....	757	Multilateral negotiations.....	1013
Imports of brandy (Proc. 4304).....	807	Sequoia meetings, with certain Members of Congress.....	802	Regulation of exports.....	999
National Forest Products Week, 1974 (Proc. 4305).....	1000	Simon, William E.....	802, 1004, 1005	Trade Reform Act, proposed.....	1013
National Student Government Day, 1974 (Proc. 4307).....	1010	Sirica, John J.....	1008	Transportation
United Nations Day, 1974 (Proc. 4300).....	794	Sisco, Joseph J.....	817	Cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	762
United States Customs 185th Anniversary Year (Proc. 4306).....	1008	Smith, Elmer E.....	829	Urban.....	1001
United States Space Week, 1974 (Proc. 4303).....	805	Smith, Wilfred J.....	839, 1005	Transportation, Department of
White Cane Safety Day, 1974 (Proc. 4301).....	794	Snyder, Daniel J., III.....	829	Assistant Secretary.....	1021
World Population Year, 1974 (Proc. 4299).....	793	Southward, Maj. Gen. Charles L.....	802	Federal Aviation Administration.....	817, 995
Railway labor-management dispute.....	789	Spaatz, Gen. Carl A.....	807	Treasury, Department of the
Raven, Jack E.....	829	Space program, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	762	Deputy Secretary.....	804
Reports to the President		Space Week, 1974, United States.....	805, 815	General Counsel.....	804
Emergency Board No. 185, railway labor dispute.....	789	Spain		Secretary.....	802, 1004, 1005
Research, medical.....	740, 761, 791	Foreign Minister Pedro Mauri Cortina.....	814	United States Customs Service.....	1008
Resignation, President's		Joint declaration of principles with U.S.....	814	Treaties and other international agreements
Address to Nation.....	1014	Prince Juan Carlos.....	814	Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol to treaty on the limitation of.....	750
Letter to Secretary of State.....	1021	State, Department of		Declaration on Atlantic Relations.....	739
Possibility of.....	1010	Assistant Inspector General, Foreign Assistance.....	830	Economic, industrial, and technical cooperation agreement with U.S.S.R.....	741
Press Secretary Ziegler, remarks to reporters.....	1018	Assistant Secretaries.....	791, 1002, 1005	Energy agreement with U.S.S.R.....	737
Resignations and Retirements		Secretary.....	763, 791, 802, 807, 814, 817, 1018, 1021	Heart research agreement with U.S.S.R.....	740
Ambassadors		Under Secretary.....	817	Housing and construction agreement with U.S.S.R.....	739
Barbados.....	994	Statements by the President		International Maritime Traffic Convention.....	998
Ghana.....	994	Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, signing ceremony.....	800	Telegraph and telephone regulations.....	1007
Mauritania.....	994	Deaths		Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of.....	751
Army Department, Assistant Secretary.....	802	Dean, Dizzy.....	813	Trione, Henry F.....	1022
Atomic Energy Commission, member.....	1021	King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr.....	771	Turkey, Cyprus conflict.....	817, 830
Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman.....	815	Peron, Juan Domingo.....	771	Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of.....	751
District of Columbia, National Guard, Commanding General.....	802	Spaatz, Gen. Carl A.....	807	Union of Soviet Socialist Republics
Federal Energy Administration, Assistant Administrator.....	1004	Warren, Earl.....	795	Agreements with U.S.
National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services, member.....	802	Department of Defense Appropriation Authorization Act, 1975, bill signing.....	1007	Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol on the limitation of.....	750, 756
National Science Foundation, Board member.....	1021	Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974.....	838	Construction.....	739, 761, 791
Office of Economic Opportunity, Director.....	817	Energy conservation.....	788	Economic, industrial, and technical.....	741, 759, 791
Transportation Department, Assistant Secretary.....	1021	Independence Day, 1974.....	790	Energy.....	737, 761, 791
U.S. district judge		Joint declaration of principles between the United States and Spain.....	814	Heart research.....	740, 761, 791
New Jersey.....	1004	Supreme Court decision on Presidential tapes and documents.....	829	Housing.....	739, 761, 791
Oklahoma.....	1004	Tapes of Presidential conversations, release.....	1008	Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of.....	751
Rhodes, Repr. John J.....	802, 1010	Statements Other Than Presidential		Chairman N. V. Podgorny.....	739, 741, 790
Rural areas		Brussels meeting with the North Atlantic Council, Press Secretary Ziegler.....	731	General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev.....	735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
Federal facilities.....	1000	Uranium supplies, Deputy Press Secretary Warren.....	1009	Joint statements.....	783
Government services, report transmittal.....	1021	Stein, Herbert.....	802, 815, 817, 818	North Atlantic Council meeting, remarks.....	731

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon—Continued

United Kingdom		Veto Messages and Memorandums of Disapproval		Weinberger, Casper W.....	802, 804
Foreign Minister James Callaghan.....	999			Whitaker, John C.....	802
Prime Minister Harold Wilson.....	790	Appropriations bill.....	1014	White Cane Safety Day, 1974.....	794
U.S. Ambassador to.....	817			White House Fellows.....	1002
United Nations Day, 1974.....	794	Vice President. See Ford, Vice President Gerald R.		White House Fellowships, President's Commission on.....	830, 1002
United States Courts. See Courts, United States		Virgin Islands, drought, emergency assistance.....	828	White House Staff
United States Customs 185th Anniversary Year.....	1008	Walters, Vernon A.....	1009	Communications Director.....	994
United States Space Week, 1974.....	805, 815	Warren, Earl.....	795	Counsellor for Economic Policy.....	802, 804, 817, 998, 1002
United States Tariff Commission.....	1021	Warren, Gerald L.....	1009, 1012	Counsellors.....	791, 802, 995
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Commercial Commission.....	741	Watergate investigation		Deputy Assistant.....	795
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in the Field of Energy.....	737, 761	See also Impeachment inquiry		Deputy Press Secretary.....	1009, 1012
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in Housing and Other Construction.....	739, 761	Central Intelligence Agency.....	1008	President's farewell remarks.....	1019
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee for Health Cooperation.....	740, 761	Court documents.....	772	Press Secretary.....	781, 791, 818, 824, 825, 1012, 1018
Uranium supplies, enriched.....	1009	Federal Bureau of Investigation.....	1008	Special Assistant.....	816
Urban transportation.....	1001	House Judiciary Committee.....	791, 818, 840, 995, 1008
Vaky, Viron P.....	994	Impeachable offense.....	826	White House Statements
Van Court, Arthur F.....	804	National security investigations.....	807	Cyprus cease-fire agreement.....	999
Velde, Richard W.....	999, 1005	Payments to defendants.....	824, 826, 827, 841, 870	Wiretaps.....	807, 841, 928
		Presidential tapes and documents.....	822-828, 1008	World Population Year, 1974.....	793, 798
		Supreme Court review....	772, 802, 822-829	World Weather Program.....	1001
		Weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of underground nuclear.....	751	Wushu Troupe.....	801
		Weather Program, World.....	1001	Zamyatin, L. M.....	791
		Weber, John W.....	1004	Ziegler, Ronald L.....	781, 791, 818, 824, 825, 1012, 1018, 1021

Index to Documents of the Administration of Gerald R. Ford

- Abrams, Gen. Creighton..... 1088
Ackley, Gardner..... 1070
Acts approved. See last page of text in each issue
- Addresses and Remarks of the President
Appointment of Press Secretary Ter-Horst..... 1025
Chicago, Ill., O'Hare Field..... 1045
Conference on inflation with economists..... 1091, 1093
Congress
House of Representatives..... 1058
Joint Session..... 1029
Senate..... 1057
Council on Wage and Price Stability Act, bill signing..... 1065
Davies, Rodger P., memorial ceremony honoring..... 1054
Education Amendments of 1974, bill signing..... 1055
Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, bill signing..... 1084
First Continental Congress, reconvened in Philadelphia, Pa..... 1095
Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, bill signing..... 1059
Little League World Series teams..... 1067
Mansfield, Sen. Mike, reception honoring..... 1063
Meeting with foreign leaders, Jordan, King Hussein I..... 1039, 1041
Michigan Republican State Convention..... 1066
National Council on the Arts, reception..... 1090
National Hispanic Heritage Week, 1974, proclamation signing ceremony..... 1086
Ohio State University, summer commencement..... 1075
Stein, Herbert, farewell dinner..... 1067
Swearing-in ceremony..... 1023
United Way campaign..... 1094
Veterans of Foreign Wars..... 1045
Vice President of the United States, selection of nominee..... 1050, 1051
- Aeronautics and Space Administration, National
AFL-CIO..... 1041, 1098
Aging, National Council on the..... 1064
Agriculture, Department of Secretary..... 1074, 1081
Under Secretary..... 1064
Air Show, Farnborough International..... 1098
Alexander, Donald C..... 1099
Alloto, Joseph..... 1042
- Ambassadors
Foreign presentation of credentials, visits, etc..... 1023, 1062, 1063
United States. See Appointments and Nominations; Resignations and Retirements; countries to which assigned
- American Junior Miss..... 1063
American Legion..... 1098
American Medical Association..... 1061
American National Red Cross..... 1039
American Revolution Bicentennial..... 1095
American States, Organization of..... 1073
Amnesty for draft evaders and deserters..... 1047, 1098
Animal health research bill..... 1037
- Appointments and Nominations
Ambassadors, United States
Cyprus..... 1055, 1064
France..... 1088, 1099
German Democratic Republic..... 1089, 1099
Ghana..... 1052, 1064
Greece..... 1036, 1042
Korea, Republic of..... 1036, 1042
Council on Wage and Price Stability, Chairman and members..... 1074
Defense, Department of, Deputy Assistant Secretary..... 1093, 1099
Federal Energy Administration, Assistant Administrator..... 1093, 1099
- Appointments and Nominations—Continued
Federal Trade Commission, member..... 1092, 1099
National Council on the Arts, members..... 1085
People's Republic of China, Liaison Office, Chief..... 1089
State Department, Assistant Secretary..... 1089
Strategic Arms Limitations Talks, U.S. Delegation..... 1095
Summit Conference on Inflation
Deputy Executive Director..... 1081
Executive Director..... 1063
Steering committee..... 1063
Veterans Administration, Administrator..... 1050, 1064
Vice President of the United States..... 1050, 1051, 1064
White House Staff
Assistant Press Secretaries..... 1038, 1039
Counsel..... 1037
Counsellors..... 1026, 1027
Deputy Press Secretary..... 1038
Liaison with Vice President-designate..... 1063
Photographic Department, Director..... 1063
Press Secretary..... 1025
Speechwriting staff, Executive Editor and Administrator..... 1064
Arends, Repr. Leslie C..... 1041
Armed Forces, United States
Aviation career incentive pay..... 1043
Europe..... 1062
Indian Ocean fleet..... 1071
Promotion of naval and marine officers..... 1044
Armstrong, Anne L..... 1074, 1098, 1099
Army, Department of the, Chief of Staff..... 1088
Arts, National Council on the..... 1085, 1090
Ash, Roy L..... 1026, 1080
Atkins, Ollie..... 1063
Atomic energy, agreement with United Kingdom..... 1038
Atomic Energy Commission
Appropriations bill..... 1074
Chairman..... 1081
Australia, extradition treaty with U.S..... 1059
Aviation Career Incentive Act of 1974..... 1043
- Awards and Citations
Ohio State University, Doctor of Laws honoris causa conferred upon the President..... 1079
Balance of payments..... 1062
Barbados, Ambassador to U.S..... 1062
Beirne, Joseph A..... 1098
Bicentennial, American Revolution..... 1095
- Bill Signings
Council on Wage and Price Stability Act, remarks and statement..... 1065
Education Amendments of 1974, remarks and statement..... 1055, 1066
Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, remarks and statement..... 1084
Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974, statement..... 1043
Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, remarks and statement..... 1059, 1060
Public Works for Water and Power Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, statement..... 1074
Small Business Amendments of 1974, statement..... 1066
Youth Conservation Corps Act amendments, statement..... 1066
Black, Shirley Temple..... 1062, 1064
Boo, Ben..... 1042
Booth, Arch N..... 1098
- Bowden, Marie..... 1099
Bowler, Angus L..... 1085
Bradley, Tom..... 1042
Brennan, Peter J..... 1074, 1098
Brock, Sen. Bill..... 1066
Broomfield, Repr. William S..... 1060
Brown, Repr. George E., Jr..... 1063
Brown, Dr. Harold..... 1085
Buchen, Philip W..... 1037
Budget, Federal spending..... 1051, 1066, 1070, 1072, 1074, 1088
Budget, Office of Management and. See Management and Budget, Office of
Burch, Dean..... 1098, 1099
Burger, Warren E..... 1023
Burns, Arthur F..... 1026, 1028, 1041, 1063, 1080
Burruss, Richard T..... 1063
Bush, George H..... 1041, 1063, 1064, 1089
Business Amendments of 1974, Small Business Council..... 1096
Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., National Federation of..... 1099
Busing..... 1097
Butz, Earl L..... 1074, 1081
- Cabinet
Meetings with the President..... 1026, 1063, 1064, 1081
White House dinner..... 1081
Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for Spanish-Speaking People..... 1063
Callaghan, James..... 1041
Campaign, See Elections
Campbell, J. Phil..... 1064
Casey, Thomas R..... 1074
Cavanaugh, James H..... 1062, 1064, 1082
Cederberg, Repr. Elford A..... 1040
Chamber of Commerce of the United States..... 1098
Checklist of unpublished releases. See last page of text in each issue
Chester, John J..... 1063
Chicago, Ill..... 1045
China, People's Republic of
Bipartisan Congressional delegation, proposed visit..... 1080
Premier Chou En-lai..... 1063
U.S. Liaison Office, Chief..... 1099
Chinese People's Institute of Foreign Affairs..... 1080
Chou En-lai..... 1063
Church, Sen. Frank..... 1063
Cities, National League of..... 1041
Clements, William F., Jr..... 1041
Cliburn, Van..... 1068
Coal mine health and safety, report..... 1098
Cole, Kenneth R..... 1062
Columbus, Ohio..... 1075, 1081
Columbus Day, 1974..... 1063
Commerce, Department of, Secretary..... 1043, 1074
Commerce of the United States, Chamber of..... 1098
Communications Workers of America..... 1098
Community Development Act of 1974, Housing and..... 1059, 1060, 1064
Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973..... 1041
Comprehensive Health Insurance Plan, proposed..... 1082
Conable, Repr. Barber B..... 1040
Conant, Melvin E..... 1093, 1099
- Congress
Bipartisan delegation to China..... 1080
House of Representatives, remarks..... 1058
Joint Session, address on assuming office..... 1029
Meetings with the President
Bipartisan leadership..... 1026, 1052, 1063
Black Caucus..... 1066, 1064
Courtesy calls by individual Members..... 1063
Republican campaign committees, chairmen..... 1063
Republican candidates..... 1063
Senate majority leader..... 1058, 1064
Senate, remarks..... 1067

Index to Documents of the Administration of Gerald R. Ford—Continued

Congress, Communications to

- See also Letters, Messages, Telegrams; Veto Messages and Memorandums of Disapproval*
- Atomic energy agreement with United Kingdom, amendments..... 1038
- Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act, annual report transmittal..... 1098
- Federal pay raise and employment, message..... 1063
- Freedom of Information Act amendments, letter to chairmen of House-Senate conference committee..... 1051
- Highway and traffic safety programs, annual report transmittal..... 1087
- North Atlantic Treaty Organization, U.S. forces in Europe, report transmittal..... 1052
- Special International Exhibits, annual report transmittal..... 1036
- U.S.-Australian extradition treaty, transmittal to Senate..... 1059
- Congress, First Continental..... 1095, 1099
- Connor, John T..... 1063
- Conservation, forest and rangeland resources..... 1043
- Conservation Corps, Youth..... 1066
- Continental Congress, First..... 1095, 1099
- Cooper, John Sherman..... 1069, 1099
- Cost of Living Council..... 1031
- Costa Rica, Ambassador to U.S..... 1062
- Ottom, Sen. Norris..... 1063
- Council. See other part of title
- County Officials, National Association of..... 1041
- Courts, United States
- Deputy U.S. marshals pay raise bill, veto message..... 1035
- U.S. circuit judge, 8th circuit..... 1063
- Crane, Repr. Philip M..... 1041
- Crawford, William R., Jr..... 1055, 1064
- Cuba, relations with U.S..... 1073
- Cyprus
- Slain U.S. Ambassador Rodger P. Davies..... 1045, 1054, 1055
- U.S. Ambassador to..... 1055, 1064
- Davies, Rodger P..... 1045, 1054, 1055
- DeBaca, Fernando..... 1099
- Defense, Department of
- See also specific service branch*
- Assistant Secretary..... 1044
- Deputy Assistant Secretary..... 1093, 1099
- Deputy Secretary..... 1041
- Joint Chiefs of Staff..... 1041
- Secretary..... 1041, 1043, 1047, 1098
- Dent, Frederick B..... 1074
- Diego Garcia, U.S. naval base..... 1071
- Digest of other White House announcements. See last pages of text in each issue
- Distributive Education Clubs of America..... 1082
- Dixon, Paul Rand..... 1092, 1099
- Dobrynin, A. F..... 1041
- Dole, Sen. Robert..... 1063
- Domestic Council..... 1062, 1064, 1082
- Dominick, Sen. Peter H..... 1041
- Earle, Ralph, II..... 1095
- Eberle, Harold F., Jr..... 1081
- Economic Advisers, Council of
- Chairman..... 1026, 1028, 1041, 1063, 1067, 1071, 1090, 1092, 1099
- Chairman-designate..... 1026, 1028, 1063, 1080
- Economic Opportunity, Office of..... 1072
- Economy, national
- Address to Joint Session of Congress..... 1029
- Defense spending..... 1072
- Federal spending..... 1081, 1066, 1070, 1072, 1074
- Inflation..... 1029, 1030-1032, 1055, 1065, 1070, 1072, 1074, 1091, 1098
- Pay increase for Federal employees..... 1063
- Economy, national—Continued
- Summit conference..... 1031, 1063, 1080, 1081, 1082, 1091, 1093
- Wage and price controls..... 1070, 1071
- Education, Ohio State University, remarks..... 1076
- Education Amendments of 1974..... 1055, 1056, 1064
- Education bill, veterans..... 1048
- Education Clubs of America, Distributive..... 1082
- Egypt, Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy..... 1041
- Elections
- President's plans..... 1069
- Republican congressional campaign committees..... 1063
- Ellsworth, Robert..... 1044
- Emergency assistance, Puerto Rico..... 1073
- Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974..... 1084
- Employment and Training Act of 1973, Comprehensive..... 1041
- Employment and unemployment
- Government employees, reduction in force..... 1083
- Public works program, expansion..... 1069
- Veterans..... 1043
- Youth, summer..... 1086
- Enarson, Dr. Harold..... 1079
- Energy Administration, Federal..... 1081, 1083, 1099
- Energy crisis..... 1083, 1071
- Europe, U.S. forces..... 1052
- Evans, Gov. Daniel J..... 1042
- Executive Orders*
- Aviation career incentive pay (EO 11800)..... 1043
- Display of flag in memory of Abrams, Gen. Creighton (EO 11802)..... 1088
- Davies, Rodger P. (EO 11801)..... 1055
- Exports, regulation of (EO 11798)..... 1037
- Navy officers, promotion (EO 11799)..... 1044
- Exhibitions, international..... 1036
- Exports, regulation..... 1037
- Fahmy, Ismail..... 1041
- Farm Family of the Year..... 1064
- Farnborough International Air Show..... 1098
- Fasser, Paul J., Jr..... 1099
- Federal employees. See Government employees
- Federal Energy Administration
- Administrator..... 1081
- Assistant Administrator..... 1093, 1099
- Federal Reserve System, Board of Governors, Chairman..... 1026, 1028, 1041, 1063, 1080
- Federal-State-local cooperation..... 1080
- Federal Trade Commission..... 1092, 1099
- First Continental Congress..... 1095, 1099
- First Lady's Staff
- Press Secretary..... 1081
- Social Secretary..... 1081
- Fisher, Max..... 1080
- Fitzsimmons, Frank E..... 1041
- Fong, Sen. Hiram L..... 1080
- Food Conference, World..... 1081
- Ford, Mrs. Gerald R..... 1041
- Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974..... 1043
- Forsythe, Repr. Edwin B..... 1063
- 4-H Clubs..... 1082
- Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. Julian V..... 1064
- France, U.S. Ambassador to..... 1063, 1099
- Freedom of Information Act amendments..... 1051
- Frelinghuysen, Repr. Peter H. B..... 1080
- Fulbright, Sen. J. William..... 1080
- Gardner, Stephen S..... 1090
- Garn, E. J..... 1042
- Garriott, Owen K..... 1098
- Gaudion, Donald A..... 1098
- General Motors Corporation..... 1029, 1055
- German Democratic Republic, U.S. Ambassador to..... 1089, 1099
- Germany, East. See German Democratic Republic
- Ghana, U.S. Ambassador to..... 1062, 1063, 1064
- Gierek, Edward..... 1061
- Goldwater, Sen. Barry..... 1041
- Government employees
- Deputy U.S. marshals, pay raise..... 1035
- Pay increase..... 1073, 1083, 1099
- Personal liability under Freedom of Information Act amendments..... 1061
- Reduction in civilian work force..... 1083, 1099
- Uniformed services, aviation career incentive pay..... 1043
- Governors' Conference, National..... 1041, 1042
- Greece, U.S. Ambassador to..... 1036, 1042
- Greenspan, Alan..... 1026, 1071, 1080, 1090, 1092, 1099
- Griffin, Sen. Robert P..... 1041
- Guinea-Bissau..... 1039
- Hale, David L..... 1081
- Hall, Paul..... 1063
- Hammer, Rhea Mojica..... 1099
- Hanks, Nancy..... 1090
- Hansen, Sen. Clifford P..... 1063
- Harlow, Bryce N..... 1040
- Hartke, Sen. Vance..... 1098
- Hartmann, Robert T..... 1026, 1063
- Health
- Coal mines..... 1066
- Insurance..... 1032, 1081
- Health, Education, and Welfare, Department of, Secretary..... 1041, 1043
- Health Insurance Plan, Comprehensive, proposed..... 1032
- Henning, John F..... 1098
- Highway and traffic safety programs..... 1087
- Hispanic Heritage Week, 1974, National..... 1066
- Holland, James R..... 1029
- Housing and Community Development Act of 1974..... 1029, 1060, 1064
- Housing and Urban Development, Department of, Secretary..... 1099, 1090, 1064, 1080
- Howe, Nancy..... 1041
- Humphrey, Sen. Hubert H..... 1090
- Hushen, John W..... 1038
- Hussein I, King..... 1029, 1041, 1044
- Inauguration ceremony. See Swearing-In Ceremonies
- Income Security Act of 1974, Employee Retirement..... 1064
- Inflation. See Economy, national
- Inflation; Summit Conference on. See Summit Conference on Inflation
- Information Act, Freedom of, amendments..... 1081
- Insurance, health..... 1032, 1081
- Interior, Department of the, Secretary..... 1026, 1028, 1081, 1098
- Internal Revenue Service..... 1080
- International Brotherhood of Teamsters..... 1041
- Israel
- Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin..... 1080
- U.S. Embassy..... 1072
- Italy, President Giovanni Leone..... 1080
- Jackson, Sen. Henry M..... 1041, 1042
- James, Lt. Gen. Daniel, Jr..... 1066
- Japan
- President's proposed visit..... 1041
- Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka..... 1081
- Javits, Sen. Jacob K..... 1041, 1042
- Jaworski, Leon..... 1070
- Jaycees, United States..... 1081
- Jensen, Tom..... 1032
- Jewish High Holy Days..... 1099
- Jewish War Veterans..... 1066
- Johnson, Alexis U..... 1080
- Joint Chiefs of Staff..... 1041
- Joint Statements*
- Jordan..... 1044
- Jordan
- Joint statement..... 1044
- King Hussein I..... 1080, 1041, 1044
- Jordan, Repr. Barbara..... 1080
- Jordan-United States Joint Commission..... 1044

Index to Documents of the Administration of Gerald R. Ford—Continued

- Justice, Department of
 Attorney General..... 1041, 1047, 1098
 Special Prosecutor..... 1070, 1071
- Kenna, E. Douglas..... 1098
 Kennedy, Sen. Edward M..... 1062
 Kennerly, David Hume..... 1041
 Khaddam, Abd al-Halim..... 1064
 Kilberg, William J..... 1099
 Kirk, Norman E..... 1098
 Kissinger, Dr. Henry A..... 1026, 1041, 1054
 Klein, Herbert G..... 1061
 Klosson, Boris..... 1095
 Knauer, Virginia..... 1074
 Korea, Republic of, U.S. Ambassador
 to..... 1036, 1042
 Kubisch, Jack B..... 1036, 1042
 Kurfess, Charles F..... 1082
- Labor, Department of
 Assistant Secretary..... 1099
 Secretary..... 1074, 1098
 Solicitor..... 1099
 Under Secretary..... 1099
 Labor, pensions..... 1084, 1099
 Labor Day, 1974, statement..... 1084
 Laird, Melvin R..... 1040
 Lawson, Brig. Gen. Richard W..... 1098
 Legislative Conference, National..... 1082
 Leone, Giovanni..... 1060
- Letters, Messages, Telegrams
 American National Red Cross, letter
 accepting honorary Chairmanship..... 1039
 Jewish High Holy Days, message..... 1093
- Lindbergh, Charles A..... 1068
 Little League World Series teams..... 1097
 Long, Sen. Russell B..... 1041
 Lujan, Repr. Manuel..... 1099
 Lukash, Rear Adm. William M..... 1063
 Lynn, James T..... 1059, 1060, 1064, 1080
- Magnuson, Sen. Warren G..... 1063
 Malek, Frederic V..... 1041
 Management and Budget, Office of Assistant to the Director for Congressional Relations..... 1081
 Deputy Director..... 1041, 1063
 Director..... 1026, 1028, 1041, 1074, 1080
 Mansfield, Sen. Mike..... 1053, 1064
 Manufacturers, National Association of..... 1098
 Marine Corps, promotion of officers..... 1044
 Marsh, John O., Jr..... 1026-1028, 1041, 1042
 Mathias, Sen. Charles McC., Jr..... 1063
 May, Dr. Michael..... 1095
 Mayors, United States Conference of..... 1041
 McClure, Sen. James A..... 1041
 Meany, George..... 1041
 Medical Association, American..... 1081
- Meetings with Foreign Leaders
 Jordan, King Hussein I..... 1039, 1041, 1044
 Mehafty, Pat..... 1063
- Memorandums to Federal Agencies
 Presidential transition..... 1027
- Mexico, Foreign Minister Emilio Rabasa..... 1081
 Michel, Repr. Robert H..... 1063
 Michigan Republican State Convention..... 1066
 Miller, Arnold R..... 1098
 Miller, Robert W..... 1061
 Mills, Repr. Wilbur D..... 1063
 Miltich, Paul A..... 1038
 Montoya, Sen. Joseph M..... 1099
 Moorhead, Repr. William S..... 1062
 Morris, Karen..... 1063
 Mortgages..... 1060
 Morton, Rogers C. B..... 1026, 1028, 1081
 Mullen, Mary..... 1064
- National Aeronautics and Space Administration..... 1098
 National Association of County Officials..... 1041
 National Association of Manufacturers..... 1098
 National Association of Retired Teachers..... 1064
- National Council on the Aging..... 1064
 National Council on the Arts..... 1085, 1090
 National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc..... 1099
 National Governors' Conference..... 1041, 1042
 National Hispanic Heritage Week, 1974..... 1086
 National League of Cities..... 1041
 National Legislative Conference..... 1082
 National security, disclosure of documents under Freedom of Information Act amendments..... 1061
 National Security Council, meeting with the President..... 1028, 1098
 National Women's Political Caucus..... 1099
 Natural resources, forest and rangeland..... 1043
 Navy, Department of the
 Indian Ocean fleet..... 1071
 Promotion of officers..... 1044
 New Zealand
 Prime Minister Norman E. Kirk..... 1098
 U.S. Ambassador to..... 1098
- News Conferences
 August 28 (No. 1)..... 1069
- News Conferences Other Than Presidential
 Appointment of transition team and President's schedule, Press Secretary terHorst..... 1026
 Vice Presidential nomination, Nelson A. Rockefeller..... 1061
- Nixon, Richard M..... 1024, 1063, 1069, 1070, 1071, 1073
 Nominations submitted to the Senate.
See last page of text in each issue
- Obenshain, Richard D..... 1098
 Office. See other part of title
- O'Hara, James G..... 1063
 Ohio State University, summer commencement..... 1076, 1081
 Organization of American States..... 1073
 Ossosky, Jack..... 1064
- Packard, David..... 1063
 Pardon for former President Nixon..... 1069, 1070, 1073
- Parker, Daniel..... 1044
 Peach Queen..... 1063
 Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation..... 1063
 Pensions, legislation..... 1084, 1099
 People's Republic of China. See China, People's Republic of
- Perfill, Pamela..... 1063
 Philadelphia, Pa..... 1095
 Poland, First Secretary Edward Gierek..... 1081
 Portugal, Guinea-Bissau, independence..... 1029
- President's domestic travel
 Chicago, Ill..... 1045, 1048, 1062
 Columbus, Ohio..... 1075, 1081
 Philadelphia, Pa..... 1095
- President's health..... 1063
- Price Stability, Council on Wage and. See Wage and Price Stability, Council on
- Privacy, protection of..... 1057, 1062
- Proclamations
 Columbus Day, 1974 (Proc. 4308)..... 1053
 National Hispanic Heritage Week, 1974 (Proc. 4310)..... 1086
 Women's Equality Day, 1974 (Proc. 4309)..... 1059
- Public works
 Appropriations bill..... 1074
 Employment program..... 1069
- Puerto Rico, drought, emergency assistance..... 1073
- Pungan, Vasile..... 1080
- Quillen, Repr. James H..... 1063
- Rabasa, Emilio..... 1081
 Rabin, Yitzhak..... 1080
 Ramirez, Henry M..... 1063
- Rampton, Gov. Calvin..... 1042
- Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974, Forest and..... 1043
- Ray, Dixy Lee..... 1081
- Red Cross, American National Republican Party
 Candidates..... 1066
 House-Senate campaign committees..... 1063, 1064
 Michigan State convention..... 1066
 National chairman..... 1063, 1064, 1098
 National cochairman..... 1098
- Resignations and Retirements
 Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for Spanish-Speaking People, Chairman..... 1063
 Office of Management and Budget
 Assistant to the Director for Congressional Relations..... 1081
 Deputy Director..... 1041
 Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation, Board of Directors, member..... 1063
 U.S. circuit judge, 8th circuit..... 1063
 White House Staff, Special Counsel..... 1063
- Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, Employee..... 1084
 Rhodes, Repr. John J..... 1041
 Ribicoff, Sen. Abraham A..... 1041, 1042
 Ribner, Paul..... 1098
 Robbins, Jerome..... 1085
 Rockefeller, Nelson A..... 1050, 1051, 1063, 1064, 1069, 1070, 1081
 Rogers, William D..... 1089
 Romania, Counselor Vasile Pungan..... 1080
 Roubush, Richard L..... 1046, 1050, 1064
 Rowny, Lt. Gen. Edward L..... 1095
 Rumsfeld, Donald..... 1026, 1028
 Rush, Kenneth..... 1026, 1028, 1041, 1063, 1074, 1080, 1088, 1099
- Sabo, Martin O..... 1082
- Safety
 Coal mines..... 1098
 Highway and traffic..... 1087
 St. Clair, James D..... 1041
 SALT. See Strategic arms limitations
- Saqqaf, 'Umar al-Saudi Arabia, Foreign Minister 'Umar al-Saqqaf..... 1081
 Sawhill, John C..... 1081
 Saxbe, William B..... 1041, 1098
 Schippers, Thomas..... 1065
 Schlesinger, James R..... 1041, 1098
 Schubert, Richard F..... 1099
 Schuller, Gunther..... 1085
 Scott, Sen. Hugh..... 1041
 Scowcroft, Maj. Gen. Brent..... 1098
 Seranton, William W..... 1026, 1028, 1080
 Seafarers International Union..... 1063
 Secret Service, United States..... 1062
 Security Council, National..... 1028, 1098
 Seidman, L. William..... 1026, 1028, 1063, 1080, 1082
 Selden, Armistead I., Jr..... 1098
 Seybolt, George C..... 1085
 Shrine of North America..... 1098
 Simon, William E..... 1026, 1028, 1041, 1063, 1074, 1080, 1081
- Small Business Amendments of 1974..... 1066
 Smith, Charles H..... 1098
 Smith, Helen McCain..... 1061
 Smith, Kenneth..... 1082
 Smith, Mary Louise..... 1098
 Snider, Richard L..... 1036, 1042
 Space Administration, National Aeronautics and..... 1098
 Spain, Ambassador to U.S..... 1062
 Spanish-speaking Americans..... 1086
 Spanish-Speaking People, Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for..... 1063
 Special International Exhibits..... 1036
 State, Department of
 Assistant Secretary..... 1089
 Secretary..... 1026, 1041, 1054
 State legislators, meeting with the President..... 1081, 1082

Index to Documents of the Administration of Gerald R. Ford—Continued

Statements by the President

Council on Wage and Price Stability Bill signing.....	1065	Tanaka, Kakuei.....	1061	Veterans of Foreign Wars....	1046, 1062, 1064
Chairman and members.....	1074	Tankersley, Will Hill.....	1093, 1099	Veterinary research.....	1037
Deaths		Tariff increase.....	1038	Veto Messages and Memorandums of Disapproval
Abrams, Gen. Creighton.....	1068	Teachers, National Association of Retired.....	1064	Animal health research bill, message to House of Representatives.....	1037
Davies, Rodger P.....	1045	Teamsters, International Brotherhood of.....	1041	Deputy U.S. marshals bill, message to House of Representatives.....	1035
Lindbergh, Charles A.....	1068	terHorst, J. F.....	1025, 1026	Vice President, remarks on selection of nominee.....	1080, 1051
Education Amendments of 1974, bill signing.....	1056	Thels, Paul A.....	1064	Vice Presidential Staff, memorandum on Presidential transition.....	1027
Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, bill signing.....	1064	Thurmond, Sen. Strom.....	1041	Wage and price controls.....	1070, 1071
Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974, bill signing.....	1043	Tower, Sen. John.....	1041, 1038	Wage and Price Stability, Council on.....	1062, 1065, 1074, 1063
General Motors price increase....	1029, 1055	Trade		Wagonseller, James W.....	1069
Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, bill signing.....	1060	Adjustment assistance.....	1038	Warren, Philip.....	1069
Labor Day, 1974.....	1064	Exports, regulation.....	1037	Weese, Harry M.....	1066
Portuguese recognition of independence of Guinea-Bissau.....	1029	Negotiations.....	1032	Weinberger, Caspar W.....	1041
Public Works for Water and Power Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, bill signing.....	1074	Tariffs.....	1038	Wharton, Delores.....	1063
Small Business Amendments of 1974, bill signing.....	1066	Trade Commission, Federal.....	1092, 1099	White House Staff
Wage and price monitoring agency....	1062	Trade reform bill.....	1033	Assistant Press Secretaries.....	1038, 1039
Youth Conservation Corps Act amendments, bill signing.....	1066	Traffic safety programs, highway and.....	1067	Council.....	1067
Stein, Herbert.....	1026, 1028, 1041, 1063, 1067, 1071	Training Act of 1973, Comprehensive Employment and.....	1041	Counsellor for Economic Policy.....	1026, 1028, 1041, 1063, 1074, 1080
Strategic arms limitations.....	1073, 1095	Transportation, Department of, Secretary.....	1043	Counsellors.....	1026, 1027, 1041, 1042, 1074, 1098
Streight, Jack M.....	1098	Treasury, Department of the Deputy Secretary.....	1099	Deputy Assistant.....	1098
Sullivan, Maj. James V.....	1098	Internal Revenue Service. See Internal Revenue Service.....		Deputy Press Secretary.....	1098
Summit Conference on Inflation		Secretary.....	1026, 1028, 1041, 1063, 1074, 1080, 1081	Liaison with Vice President-designate.....	1063
Deputy Executive Director.....	1061	Treaties and other international agreements		Military Assistant.....	1099
Executive Director.....	1063, 1080, 1082	Atomic energy agreement with United Kingdom, amendments.....	1038	Photographic Department, Director.....	1063
Joint Session of Congress, remarks....	1031	Extradition treaty with Australia, transmittal to Senate.....	1069	Presidential transition, memorandum.....	1027
Preliminary meeting with economists.....	1091, 1093	Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Ambassador to U.S.....	1041	Press Secretary.....	1023
Steering committee.....	1063, 1060	United Auto Workers.....	1061, 1062	Special Assistants.....	1074, 1099
Sumter, Geraldine.....	1062	United Kingdom		Special Counsel.....	1068
Supreme Court of the United States, Chief Justice.....	1023	Atomic energy agreement with United States, amendments.....	1038	Speechwriting staff, Executive Editor and Administrator.....	1064
Swearing-In Ceremonies		Foreign Secretary James Callaghan.....	1041	White House dinner.....	1061
Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman.....	1060	Prime Minister Harold Wilson.....	1041	Widdifield, Maj. Noel F.....	1098
President of the United States.....	1023	United Mine Workers.....	1098	Wilson, Harold.....	1041
Syria		United Nations, Guinea-Bissau, membership.....	1029	Winchester, Lucy Alexander.....	1061
Ambassador to U.S.....	1062	United States Conference of Mayors.....	1041	Women, Administration appointees.....	1061
Foreign Minister Abd al-Halim Khaddam.....	1064	United States Jaycees.....	1081	Women's Political Caucus, National.....	1099
		U.S. Joint Commission, Jordan.....	1044	Women's Clubs, Inc., National Federation of Business and Professional.....	1099
		United States Secret Service.....	1062	Women's Equality Day, 1974.....	1069
		United Way campaign.....	1094	Woodcock, Leonard.....	1081, 1082
		Venezuela, Ambassador to U.S.....	1062	World Food Conference.....	1061
		Veterans, benefits.....	1072	Wydler, Repr. John W.....	1041
		Veterans, Jewish War.....	1068	Youth, employment.....	1066
		Veterans Administration, Administrator.....	1046, 1050, 1064	Youth Conservation Corps.....	1066
		Veterans education bill.....	1048	Zablocki, Repr. Clement J.....	1060

~~Doc Desk~~

001 1 1974

Weekly Compilation of
PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Monday, September 23, 1974

The University
of Michigan
Reference

Volume 10 • Number 38

Pages 1149-1180

Index of Contents

ACTS APPROVED.....	1180	APPOINTMENTS AND NOMINATIONS—Continued
ADDRESSES AND REMARKS		White House Staff
(See also News Conferences)		Counsel (William E. Casselman II).....	1175
Alexandria, Va., Belle Haven Country Club.....	1173	Press Secretary (Ronald H. Nessen).....	1177, 1178
Press Secretary to the President, introduction.....	1177	CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES.....	1180
Program for the return of Vietnam era draft evad- ers and military deserters.....	1149	CONGRESS, COMMUNICATIONS TO
Republican National Committee luncheon.....	1155	Budget deferrals and rescissions, message trans- mitting	1173
United Nations General Assembly.....	1165	U.S. participation in the United Nations, message transmitting report.....	1171
Washington Press Club.....	1170	U.S.-Soviet treaty on the limitation of anti-ballistic missile systems, message to the Senate trans- mitting protocol.....	1170
ANNOUNCEMENTS		DIGEST OF OTHER WHITE HOUSE ANNOUNCE- MENTS	1178
Emergency assistance for Alaska.....	1149	EXECUTIVE ORDERS
Program for the return of Vietnam era draft evad- ers and military deserters, fact sheets.....	1153	Presidential Clemency Board (EO 11803).....	1151
APPOINTMENTS AND NOMINATIONS		Program for the return of Vietnam era draft evad- ers and military deserters (EO 11804).....	1153
Ambassadors, U.S.		White House inspection of tax returns (EO 11805)	1176
Republic of Chad (Edward S. Little).....	1162	MEMORANDUMS TO FEDERAL AGENCIES
Spain (Peter M. Flanigan).....	1162	Budget deferrals and rescissions.....	1175
Army Department, Assistant Secretary for Installa- tions and Logistics (Harold L. Brownman).....	1163	Career civil service.....	1176
Commerce Department, Assistant Secretary for Economic Affairs (James Leonard Pate).....	1164	NEWS CONFERENCES
Defense Department, Commander in Chief, United States European Command (Gen. Alex- ander M. Haig, Jr.).....	1155	Monday, September 16 (No. 2).....	1157
National Mediation Board, member (Kay Mc- Murray)	1164	PROCLAMATIONS
Navy Department		Johnny Horizon '76 Clean Up America Month, 1974 (Proc. 4315).....	1172
Assistant Secretary for Financial Management (Gary Dean Penisten).....	1163	National Employ the Handicapped Week, 1974 (Proc. 4314).....	1164
Assistant Secretary for Research and Develop- ment (H. Tyler Marcy).....	1163	Program for the return of Vietnam era draft evad- ers and military deserters (Proc. 4313).....	1150
Nominations submitted to the Senate.....	1180	RESIGNATIONS AND RETIREMENTS
Postal Rate Commission, Commissioner (Clyde S. DuPont)	1176	Supreme Allied Commander, Europe (Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster).....	1155
Presidential Clemency Board, Chairman and members	1151	STATEMENTS BY THE PRESIDENT
Supreme Allied Commander, Europe (Gen. Alex- ander M. Haig, Jr.).....	1155	Federal pay raise.....	1168, 1173
U.S. Tariff Commission, member (Daniel Min- chew)	1176	Release of American prisoner in Laos.....	1168

[A Cumulative Index to Prior Issues appears at the end of this issue.]

WEEKLY COMPILATION OF Presidential Documents

Published every Monday by the Office of the Federal Register, National Archives and Records Service, General Services Administration, Washington, D.C. 20408, the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents contains statements, messages and other Presidential materials released by the White House during the preceding week.

The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents is published pursuant to the authority contained in the Federal Register Act (49 Stat. 500, as amended; 44 U.S.C. Ch. 15), under regulations prescribed by the Administrative Committee of the Federal Register, approved by the President (37 F.R. 23607; 1 CFR Part 10).

Distribution is made only by the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents will be furnished by mail to subscribers for $15.00 per year, payable to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. The charge for a single copy is 50 cents.

There are no restrictions on the republication of material appearing in the Weekly Compilation of Presidential Documents.

Administration of Gerald R. Ford

PRESIDENTIAL DOCUMENTS

Week Ending Friday, September 20, 1974

Emergency Assistance for Alaska

Announcement of Emergency Declaration and Authorization of Federal Assistance Because of the Loss of Power Generating Capability for Kodiak. September 14, 1974

The President today declared an emergency for the State of Alaska because of the impact of the loss of power generating capability. The President's action will permit the use of Federal funds in relief efforts in designated areas of the State.

The emergency situation in the city of Kodiak resulted from a fire which severely damaged large generators belonging to the Kodiak Electric Authority, and the subsequent loss of a United States Coast Guard generator which had been assisting in supplying power to the city. The President's declaration of an emergency will allow the Federal Government to provide supplementary generators to temporarily restore power to the affected community until permanent restoration of power is accomplished.

Federal relief activities in Alaska will be coordinated by the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, Department of Housing and Urban Development, under the direction of Administrator Thomas P. Dunne. Mr. Dunne will designate the specific areas within the State eligible for Federal assistance.

Mr. William H. Mayer, Regional Director for Federal Disaster Assistance, HUD Region 10, will be designated as the Federal Coordinating Officer to work with the State in providing Federal emergency assistance under the Disaster Relief Act of 1974, Public Law 93-288.

Program for the Return of Vietnam Era Draft Evaders and Military Deserters

The President's Remarks Announcing the Program. September 16, 1974

Good morning:

In my first week as President, I asked the Attorney General and the Secretary of Defense to report to me, after consultation with other Governmental officials and private citizens concerned, on the status of those young Americans who have been convicted, charged, investigated, or are still being sought as draft evaders or military deserters.

On August 19, at the national convention of Veterans of Foreign Wars in the city of Chicago, I announced my intention to give these young people a chance to earn their return to the mainstream of American society so that they can, if they choose, contribute, even though belatedly, to the building and the betterment of our country and the world.

I did this for the simple reason that for American fighting men, the long and divisive war in Vietnam has been over for more than a year, and I was determined then, as now, to do everything in my power to bind up the Nation's wounds.

I promised to throw the weight of my Presidency into the scales of justice on the side of leniency and mercy, but I promised also to work within the existing system of military and civilian law and the precedents set by my predecessors who faced similar postwar situations, among them Presidents Abraham Lincoln and Harry S. Truman.

My objective of making future penalties fit the seriousness of each individual's offense and of mitigating punishment already meted out in a spirit of equity has proved an immensely hard and very complicated matter, even more difficult than I knew it would be.

But the agencies of Government concerned and my own staff have worked with me literally night and day in order to develop fair and orderly procedures and completed their work for my final approval over this last weekend.

I do not want to delay another day in resolving the dilemmas of the past, so that we may all get going on the pressing problems of the present. Therefore, I am today signing the necessary Presidential proclamation and Executive orders that will put this plan into effect.

The program provides for administrative disposition of cases involving draft evaders and military deserters not yet convicted or punished. In such cases, 24 months of alternate service will be required which may be reduced for mitigating circumstances.

The program also deals with cases of those already convicted by a civilian or military court. For the latter purpose, I am establishing a Clemency Review Board of nine distinguished Americans whose duty it will be to assist me in assuring that the Government's forgiveness is extended to applicable cases of prior conviction as equitably and as impartially as is humanly possible.

The primary purpose of this program is the reconciliation of all our people and the restoration of the essential unity of Americans within which honest differences of opinion do not descend to angry discord and mutual problems are not polarized by excessive passion.

My sincere hope is that this is a constructive step toward a calmer and cooler appreciation of our individual rights and responsibilities and our common purpose as a nation whose future is always more important than its past.

At this point, I will sign the proclamation that I mentioned in my statement, followed by an Executive order for the establishment of the Clemency Board, followed by the signing of an Executive order for the Director of Selective Service, who will have a prime responsibility in the handling of the matters involving alternate service.

Thank you very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 11:21 a.m. in the Cabinet Room at the White House.

For related releases, see the following four items.

Program for the Return of Vietnam Era Draft Evaders and Military Deserters

Proclamation 4313. September 16, 1974

ANNOUNCING A PROGRAM FOR THE RETURN OF VIETNAM ERA DRAFT EVADERS AND MILITARY DESERTERS

*By the President of the United States of America
a Proclamation*

The United States withdrew the last of its forces from the Republic of Vietnam on March 28, 1973.

In the period of its involvement in armed hostilities in Southeast Asia, the United States suffered great losses.

Millions served their country, thousands died in combat, thousands more were wounded, others are still listed as missing in action.

Over a year after the last American combatant had left Vietnam, the status of thousands of our countrymen—convicted, charged, investigated or still sought for violations of the Military Selective Service Act or of the Uniform Code of Military Justice—remains unresolved.

In furtherance of our national commitment to justice and mercy these young Americans should have the chance to contribute a share to the rebuilding of peace among ourselves and with all nations. They should be allowed the opportunity to earn return to their country, their communities, and their families, upon their agreement to a period of alternate service in the national interest, together with an acknowledgement of their allegiance to the country and its Constitution.

Desertion in time of war is a major, serious offense; failure to respond to the country's call for duty is also a serious offense. Reconciliation among our people does not require that these acts be condoned. Yet, reconciliation calls for an act of mercy to bind the Nation's wounds and to heal the scars of divisiveness.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, GERALD R. FORD, President of the United States, pursuant to my powers under Article II, Sections 1, 2 and 3 of the Constitution, do hereby proclaim a program to commence immediately to afford reconciliation to Vietnam era draft evaders and military deserters upon the following terms and conditions:

1. Draft Evaders—An individual who allegedly unlawfully failed under the Military Selective Service Act or any rule or regulation promulgated thereunder, to register or register on time, to keep the local board informed of his current address, to report for or submit to preinduction or induction examination, to report for or submit to induction itself, or to report for or submit to, or complete service under Section 6(j) of such Act during the period from August 4, 1964 to March 28, 1973, inclusive, and who has not been adjudged guilty in a trial for such offense, will be relieved of prosecution and punishment for such offense if he:

- (i) presents himself to a United States Attorney before January 31, 1975,
- (ii) executes an agreement acknowledging his allegiance to the United States and pledging to fulfill a period of alternate service under the auspices of the Director of Selective Service, and
- (iii) satisfactorily completes such service.

The alternate service shall promote the national health, safety, or interest. No draft evader will be given the privilege of completing a period of alternate service by service in the Armed Forces.

However, this program will not apply to an individual who is precluded from re-entering the United States under 8 U.S.C. 1182(a)(22) or other law. Additionally, if individuals eligible for this program have other criminal charges outstanding, their participation in the program may be conditioned upon, or postponed until after, final disposition of the other charges has been reached in accordance with law.

The period of service shall be twenty-four months, which may be reduced by the Attorney General because of mitigating circumstances.

2. Military Deserters—A member of the armed forces who has been administratively classified as a deserter by reason of unauthorized absence and whose absence commenced during the period from August 4, 1964 to March 28, 1973, inclusive, will be relieved of prosecution and punishment under Articles 85, 86 and 87 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice for such absence and for offenses directly related thereto if before January 31, 1975 he takes an oath of allegiance to the United States and executes an agreement with the Secretary of the Military Department from which he absented himself or for members of the Coast Guard, with the Secretary of Transportation, pledging to fulfill a period of alternate service under the auspices of the Director of Selective Service. The alternate service shall promote the national health, safety, or interest.

The period of service shall be twenty-four months, which may be reduced by the Secretary of the appropriate Military Department, or Secretary of Transportation for members of the Coast Guard, because of mitigating circumstances.

However, if a member of the armed forces has additional outstanding charges pending against him under the Uniform Code of Military Justice, his eligibility to participate in this program may be conditioned upon, or postponed until after, final disposition of the additional charges has been reached in accordance with law.

Each member of the armed forces who elects to seek relief through this program will receive an undesirable discharge. Thereafter, upon satisfactory completion of a period of alternate service prescribed by the Military Department or Department of Transportation, such individual will be entitled to receive, in lieu of his undesirable discharge, a clemency discharge in recognition of his fulfillment of the requirements of the program. Such clemency discharge shall not bestow entitlement to benefits administered by the Veterans Administration.

Procedures of the Military Departments implementing this Proclamation will be in accordance with guidelines established by the Secretary of Defense, present Military Department regulations notwithstanding.

3. Presidential Clemency Board—By Executive Order I have this date established a Presidential Clemency Board which will review the records of individuals within the following categories: (i) those who have been convicted of draft evasion offenses as described above, (ii) those who have received a punitive or undesirable discharge from service in the armed forces for having violated Article 85, 86, or 87 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice between August 4, 1964 and March 28, 1973, or are serving sentences of confinement for such violations. Where appropriate, the Board may recommend that clemency be conditioned upon completion of a period of alternate service. However, if any clemency discharge is recommended, such discharge shall not bestow entitlement to benefits administered by the Veterans Administration.

4. Alternate Service—In prescribing the length of alternate service in individual cases, the Attorney General, the Secretary of the appropriate Department, or the Clemency Board shall take into account such honorable service as an individual may have rendered prior to his absence, penalties already paid under law, and such other mitigating factors as may be appropriate to seek equity among those who participate in this program.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this sixteenth day of September in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and ninety-ninth.

GERALD R. FORD

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 12:47 p.m., September 16, 1974]

Presidential Clemency Board

Executive Order 11803. September 16, 1974

ESTABLISHING A CLEMENCY BOARD TO REVIEW CERTAIN CONVICTIONS OF PERSONS UNDER SECTION 12 OR 6(j) OF THE MILITARY SELECTIVE SERVICE ACT AND CERTAIN DISCHARGES ISSUED BECAUSE OF, AND CERTAIN CONVICTIONS FOR, VIOLATIONS OF ARTICLE 85, 86 OR 87 OF THE UNIFORM CODE OF MILITARY JUSTICE AND TO MAKE RECOMMENDATIONS FOR EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY WITH RESPECT THERETO

By virtue of the authority vested in me as President of the United States by Section 2 of Article II of the Constitution of the United States, and in the interest of the internal management of the Government, it is ordered as follows:

SECTION 1. There is hereby established in the Executive Office of the President a board of 9 members, which shall be known as the Presidential Clemency Board. The members of the Board shall be appointed by the President, who shall also designate its Chairman.

SEC. 2. The Board, under such regulations as it may prescribe, shall examine the cases of persons who apply for Executive clemency prior to January 31, 1975, and who (i) have been convicted of violating Section 12 or 6(j) of the Military Selective Service Act (50 App. U.S.C. § 462), or of any rule or regulation promulgated pursuant to that section, for acts committed between August 4, 1964 and March 28, 1973, inclusive, or (ii) have received punitive or undesirable discharges as a consequence of violations of Article 85, 86 or 87 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice (10 U.S.C. §§ 885, 886, 887) that occurred between August 4, 1964 and March 28, 1973, inclusive, or are serving sentences of confinement for such violations. The Board will only consider the cases of Military Selective Service Act violators who were convicted of unlawfully failing (i) to register or register on time, (ii) to keep the local board informed of their current address, (iii) to report for or submit to preinduction or induction examination, (iv) to report for or submit to induction itself, or (v) to report for or submit to, or complete service under Section 6(j) of such Act. However, the Board will not consider the cases of individuals who are precluded from re-entering the United States under 8 U.S.C. 1182(a) (22) or other law.

SEC. 3. The Board shall report to the President its findings and recommendations as to whether Executive clemency should be granted or denied in any case. If clemency is recommended, the Board shall also recommend the form that such clemency should take, including clemency conditioned upon a period of alternative service in the national interest. In the case of an individual discharged from the armed forces with a punitive or undesirable discharge, the Board may recommend to the President that a clemency discharge be substituted for a punitive or undesirable discharge. Determination of any period of alternate service shall be in accord with the Proclamation announcing a program for the return of Vietnam era draft evaders and military deserters.

SEC. 4. The Board shall give priority consideration to those applicants who are presently confined and have been convicted only of an offense set forth in section 2 of this order, and who have no outstanding criminal charges.

SEC. 5. Each member of the Board, except any member who then receives other compensation from the United States, may receive compensation for each day he or she is engaged upon the work of the Board at not to exceed the daily rate now or hereafter prescribed by law for persons and positions in GS-18, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 3109), and may also receive travel expenses, including per diem in lieu of subsistence, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5703) for persons in the government service employed intermittently.

SEC. 6. Necessary expenses of the Board may be paid from the Unanticipated Personnel Needs Fund of the President or from such other funds as may be available.

SEC. 7. Necessary administrative services and support may be provided the Board by the General Services Administration on a reimbursable basis.

SEC. 8. All departments and agencies in the Executive branch are authorized and directed to cooperate with the Board in its work, and to furnish the Board all appropriate information and assistance, to the extent permitted by law.

SEC. 9. The Board shall submit its final recommendations to the President not later than December 31, 1976, at which time it shall cease to exist.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
September 16, 1974.

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 12:47 p.m.,
September 16, 1974]

NOTE: The White House announced the appointment of the following persons as members of the Presidential Clemency Board:

DR. RALPH ADAMS, 59, educator, has been president of Troy State University in Troy, Ala., for 10 years. He is a graduate of Birmingham-Southern College with LL.B. and J.D. degrees from the University of Alabama, and a brigadier general, Air National Guard of Alabama.

JAMES P. DOUGOVITA, 28, is a full-time teaching aide of minority students in the department of applied technology, Michigan Technological University. Mr. Dougovita is a veteran and has been awarded the Combat Infantryman Badge, Silver Star, Bronze Star, Purple Heart, and is now a captain in the Michigan National Guard.

ROBERT H. FINCH, 51, is a lawyer and partner in the firm of McKenna, Fitting & Finch in Los Angeles, Calif. He was formerly Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare and Counselor to President Nixon.

CHARLES E. GOODELL, 48—Chairman—is a former Senator from New York who is currently in the private practice of law. He was a Ford Foundation Fellow at Yale and was a graduate of Williams College.

REV. THEODORE M. HESBURGH, 57, is president, University of Notre Dame, and holds honorary degrees from numerous colleges and universities. He is a permanent Vatican delegate. He has served as Chairman of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights and as a member of the Committee on an All-Volunteer Armed Force.

VERNON E. JORDAN, 39, is executive director of the National Urban League, an organization concerned with the advancement of the minority groups. Mr. Jordan is a lawyer by profession and served previously as the executive director of the United Negro College Fund, director of the voter education project, Southern Regional Council, and as Attorney-Consultant in the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity.

JAMES MAYE, 31, is executive director of Paralyzed Veterans of America in Washington, D.C. He is a graduate of Bridgewater College, Bridgewater, Va., and received his master's degree from Virginia Commonwealth University.

AIDA CASANAS O'CONNOR, 52, is a woman lawyer with a master of laws degree from George Washington University, Washington, D.C. She is a member of the Bar of the State of New York, the Supreme Court of Puerto Rico, U.S. District Court of Puerto Rico, and the Supreme Court of the United States. Presently she is assistant counsel to the New York State division of housing and community renewal in New York City.

GEN. LEWIS W. WALT, USMC (Ret.), 61, retired after 34 years in the Marine Corps and is a veteran of the Second World War, the Korean and Vietnamese wars. He was an Assistant Commandant of the Marine Corps. He has received the Navy Cross, Silver Star, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star, the Purple Heart, and numerous other military decorations.

Program for the Return of Vietnam Era Draft Evaders and Military Deserters

Executive Order 11804. September 16, 1974

DELEGATION OF CERTAIN FUNCTIONS VESTED IN THE PRESIDENT TO THE DIRECTOR OF SELECTIVE SERVICE

By virtue of the authority vested in me as President of the United States, pursuant to my powers under Article II, Sections 1, 2 and 3 of the Constitution, and under Section 301 of Title 3 of the United States Code, it is hereby ordered as follows:

SECTION 1. The Director of Selective Service is designated and empowered, without the approval, ratification or other action of the President, under such regulations as he may prescribe, to establish, implement, and administer the program of alternate service authorized in the Proclamation announcing a program for the return of Vietnam era draft evaders and military deserters.

SEC. 2. Departments and agencies in the Executive branch shall, upon the request of the Director of Selective Service, cooperate and assist in the implementation or administration of the Director's duties under this Order, to the extent permitted by law.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
September 16, 1974.

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 12:48 p.m.,
September 16, 1974]

Program for the Return of Vietnam Era Draft Evaders and Military Deserters

*Fact Sheets Concerning the Program.
September 16, 1974*

The President has today issued a proclamation and Executive orders establishing a program of clemency for draft evaders and military deserters to commence immediately. This program has been formulated to permit these individuals to return to American society without risking criminal prosecution or incarceration for qualifying offenses if they acknowledge their allegiance to the United States and satisfactorily serve a period of alternate civilian service.

The program is designed to conciliate divergent elements of American society which were polarized by the protracted period of conscription necessary to sustain United States activities in Vietnam. Thus, only those who were delinquent with respect to required military service between the date of the Tonkin Gulf Resolution (August 4, 1964) and the date of withdrawal of United States forces from Vietnam (March 28, 1973) will be eligible. Further, only the offenses of draft evasion and prolonged unauthorized absence from military service (referred to hereinafter as desertion) are covered by the program.

Essential features of the program are outlined below.

1. Number of Draft Evaders. There are approximately 15,500 draft evaders potentially eligible. Of these some 8,700 have been convicted of draft evasion. Approximately 4,350 are under indictment at the present time, of whom some 4,060 are listed as fugitives. An estimated 3,000 of these are in Canada. A further 2,250 individuals are under investigation with no pending indictments. It is estimated that approximately 130 persons are still serving prison sentences for draft evasion.

2. Number of Military Deserters. Desertion, for the purposes of this program, refers to the status of those members of the Armed Forces who absented themselves from military service without authorization for 30 days or more. During the Vietnam era it is estimated that there were some 500,000 incidents of desertion as so defined. Of this 500,000 a number were charged with offenses other than desertion at the time they absented themselves. These other offenses are not within the purview of the clemency program for deserters. Approximately 12,500 of the deserters are still at large of whom about 1,500 are in Canada. Some 660 deserters are at present serving sentences to confinement or are awaiting trial under the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

3. Unconvicted Evader. Draft evaders will report to the U.S. attorney for the district in which they allegedly committed their offense.

Draft evaders participating in this program will acknowledge their allegiance to the United States by agreeing with the United States attorney to perform alternate service under the auspices of the Director of Selective Service.

The duration of alternate service will be 24 months, but may be reduced for mitigating factors as determined by the Attorney General.

The Director of Selective Service will have the responsibility to find alternate service jobs for those who report. Upon satisfactory completion of the alternate service, the Director will issue a certificate of satisfactory completion to the individual and U.S. attorney, who will either move to dismiss the indictment if one is outstanding, or agree not to press possible charges in cases where an indictment has not been returned.

If the draft evader fails to perform the agreed term of alternate service, the U.S. attorney will be free to, and in normal circumstances will, resume prosecution of the case as provided in the terms of the agreement.

Aliens who fled the country to evade the draft will be ineligible to participate in the program.

4. Unconvicted Military Absentees. Military absentees who have no other pending charges may elect to participate in the program. Military deserters may seek instructions by writing to:

- (a). Army—U.S. Army Deserter Information Point, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. 46216
- (b). Navy—Chief of Naval Personnel, (Pers 83), Department of the Navy, Washington, D.C. 20370
- (c). Air Force—U.S. Air Force Deserter Information Point, (AFMDC/DPMAC) Randolph Air Force Base, Tex. 78148
- (d). Marine Corps—Headquarters, U.S. Marine Corps, (MC) Washington, D.C. 20380

Those who make such an election will be required to execute a reaffirmation of allegiance and pledge to perform a period of alternate civilian service. Those against whom other charges under the Uniform Code of Military Justice are pending will not be eligible to participate in the program until these other charges are disposed of in accordance with the law. Participants in the program will be separated with an undesirable discharge. Although these discharges will not be coded on their face in any manner, the Veterans Administration will be advised that the recipients were discharged for willful and persistent unauthorized absence. They will thus not be eligible for any benefits provided by the Veterans Administration.

The length of required alternate civilian service will be determined by the parent Services for each individual on a case-by-case basis. The length of service will be 24 months but may be reduced for military service already completed or for other mitigating factors as determined by the parent Service. After being discharged each individual will be referred to the Director of Selective Service for assignment to prescribed work. Upon certification that this work has been satisfactorily completed, the individual may submit the certification to his former Service. The Service will then issue a special new type of discharge—a clemency discharge—which will be substituted for the previously awarded undesirable discharge. However, the clemency discharge shall not bestow entitlement to benefits administered by the Veterans Administration.

5. Alternate Civilian Service. Determining factors in selecting suitable alternate service jobs will be:

(a) National health, safety or interest.

(b) Noninterference with the competitive labor market. The applicant cannot be assigned to a job for which there are more numerous qualified applicants than jobs available.

(c) Compensation. The compensation will provide a standard of living to the applicant reasonably comparable to the standard of living the same man would enjoy if he were entering the military service.

(d) Skill and talent utilization. Where possible, an applicant may utilize his special skills.

In prescribing the length of alternate service in individual cases, the Attorney General, the military department, or the Clemency Board shall take into account such honorable service as an individual may have rendered prior to his absence, penalties already paid under the law, and such other mitigating factors as may be appropriate to seek equity among participants in the program.

6. No Grace Period. There will not be a grace period for those outside the country to return and negotiate for clemency with the option of again fleeing the jurisdiction. All those eligible for the program and who have no additional criminal charges outstanding who re-enter the United States will have 15 days to report to the appropriate authority from the date of their re-entry. However, this 15-day period shall not extend the final date of reporting of January 21, 1975, as set forth in the proclamation.

7. Inquiries. Telephone inquiries may be made to the following authorities:

Evaders:

Department of Justice:	(202) 739-4281
Military Absentees:
U.S. Navy:	(202) 694-2007 (202) 694-1936
U.S. Marine Corps:	(202) 694-8526
U.S. Army:	(317) 542-3417
U.S. Air Force:	(512) 652-4104
U.S. Coast Guard:	(202) 426-1830

PROCEDURES TO BE FOLLOWED

UNCONVICTED DRAFT EVADER AND MILITARY ABSENTEE

DRAFT EVADER

Report to United States attorney where offense was committed

Acknowledge allegiance to the United States by agreeing with the United States attorney to perform 24 months alternate service or less based on mitigating circumstances

Perform alternate service under the auspices of the Director of Selective Service

Director of Selective Service issues certificate of satisfactory completion of alternate service

Receipt by United States attorney of a certificate of satisfactory completion of alternate service

Dismissal of indictment or dropping of charges

MILITARY ABSENTEE (including Coast Guard)

Report as prescribed by the military department concerned or for members of the Coast Guard report to the Secretary of Transportation

Oath of allegiance to United States

Agree with the concerned military department to perform 24 months alternate service or less based upon mitigating circumstances

Upon request, military department forgoes prosecution and issues undesirable discharge

Perform alternate service under the auspices of the Director of Selective Service

Director of Selective Service issues certificate of satisfactory completion of alternate service

Receipt of a certificate of satisfactory completion of alternate service by the concerned military department

Clemency discharge substituted for undesirable discharge

CONVICTED DRAFT EVADER AND MILITARY ABSENTEE

DRAFT EVADER

Apply to Clemency Board
Clemency Board may recommend clemency to the President

Clemency Board may condition recommendation of clemency on period of alternate service
President may grant clemency

MILITARY ABSENTEE
(including Coast Guard)

Apply to Clemency Board
Clemency Board may recommend clemency to the President, including substitution of a clemency discharge for a punitive or undesirable discharge
Clemency Board may condition recommendation of clemency on period of alternate service
President may grant clemency, including substitution of a clemency discharge for a punitive or undesirable discharge

Supreme Allied Commander, Europe

*Announcement of Appointment of Gen.
Alexander M. Haig, Jr., To Succeed Gen.
Andrew J. Goodpaster. September 16, 1974*

The President announced today that Gen. Alexander M. Haig, Jr., has been appointed Supreme Allied Commander, Europe. The President's nomination of General Haig to the post was approved by NATO's Defense Planning Committee, which met today at NATO Headquarters in Brussels, Belgium. The new appointment will become effective on December 15, 1974.

The President also appointed General Haig to be Commander of United States Forces in Europe, effective November 1, 1974.

General Haig will be replacing Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster, who will be retiring. In agreeing to his release as SACEUR, the 14 NATO Governments on the Committee expressed their lasting gratitude for General Goodpaster's distinguished service. On behalf of the American people, President Ford joins in extending his appreciation to General Goodpaster for a job well done.

NOTE: The announcement was made available by the White House Press Office. It was not issued in the form of a White House press release.

Republican National Committee

The President's Remarks at a Luncheon for Members of the Committee and of the Republican National Finance Committee. September 16, 1974

Thank you very much, Nelson, Mary Louise, Dick, George, Senator Bill Brock, Congressman Bob Michel, members of the National Republican Committee, members of the Finance Committee, and others:

It is really a great privilege and a high honor to have an opportunity of participating with all of you on this fine occasion.

At the outset, let me congratulate Mary Louise on being unanimously selected this morning. That is a lot better than I did before the Congress, and I suspect it might be a little better than what Nelson will do. [Laughter]

I also wish to congratulate all of you on the selection of Dick Obenshain. As Nelson said, it reflects in this team the recognition that we wish to give as a political party to the women throughout the country who over the years have done as much, if not more, to make our political system work by working in the grass roots, unselfishly dedicating themselves to the necessary efforts that had to be made the length and the breadth of our country.

And Mary Louise, I am positive will end up being an outstanding Chairman of the Republican National Committee.

We have been a long time working on trying to make the Republican Party a viable, effective party in all 50 States. When I came to the Congress 26 years ago, the Republican Party was practically prohibited from having an impact politically in a number of our States in the South.

Patiently, constructively, and effectively, today the Republican Party is viable. It is constructive in every one of our 50 States. And the Republican Party can only expand and broaden that total effort by making certain that the voices in that area of our country are heard, and heard at the highest level.

And in Dick Obenshain we have a man who will represent that overall viewpoint and represent it well, as he has in the State of Virginia, where now we have a second Republican Governor elected, one after another, where we now have more Republican Congressmen on our side of the aisle than the opposition does on their side of the aisle.

We want this kind of effort made in every State, and Mary Louise and Dick, in my judgment, make that kind of a team.

But let me say, speaking of a team, I believe that Nelson Rockefeller and myself will make a good team, reflecting your views and the views of the Republicans and independents and, I trust, a good many Democrats, in trying to head the executive branch of the Government.

At the time that I made the announcement of Nelson's selection, I said I picked a strong man for a tough job.

And I am even more convinced today that his selection is in the best interests of this country, and he will be a great person.

The Governor is going to be given plenty of work to do politically, within the executive branch of the Government, in the field of domestic as well as foreign policy, and it is a pleasure for me to see the way it has all worked so far, and I am sure that this team will do the best job we possibly can in the months ahead, primarily for the country but also reflecting our political philosophy.

May I say also that the White House at the present time has in my judgment one of the finest members of the White House team to concentrate exclusively on the problems relating to politics. Dean Burch, a Counsellor with Cabinet status, is in charge of the White House political activities and relationships.

A former Chairman of the National Committee, an outstanding and long dedicated Republican, a person who performed superbly on the Federal Communications Commission—I think we are lucky to have Dean, and if you have any political problems, talk to Dean. He has an open door to my office and always will.

Dean has as an assistant, one of you from the Republican National Committee, and here I speak of Gwen Anderson, who was my political adviser while I was Vice President.

So again, in Dean, from the great State of Arizona, and Gwen, from the great State of Washington—they make a broad and effective Republican organization, operating in the White House.

Now, we all hate to say goodbye to George Bush, our new U.S. representative to the People's Republic of China. George, as all of you know, was a hard campaigner when he was first campaigning for the House of Representatives. He served extremely well in the House. He was a strong representative of our Government at the United Nations. He has been, I think, an excellent National Chairman in a most difficult time.

And so, with all that background, with all the wonderful personality and talent that he has, along with Barbara, our country will be extremely well represented in the People's Republic of China, and I just know they will enjoy it and do an extremely good job for all of us in that great responsibility.

A few months ago, when Ray Bliss asked me to come out to make a speech in Chicago to a regional gathering of Republicans, I went and made some remarks that I won't dwell on this morning, but I would like to say that what I said there is the criteria by which we will meet the campaign problems of 1976. The campaign will be in the hands of the Republican National Committee.

But that is all I am going to say about 1976, because we have a more important job in 1974.

A few months ago there were dire predictions about the fate of the Republican candidates from Governor down through local offices, from candidates for the United States Senate, candidates for the House of Representatives in the Federal Congress.

I can remember some great predictions by some of our adversaries who said we were going to have a net loss of 100 or a net loss of 50, and there was great glee on the part of some of our adversaries that they were going to have a veto-proof Congress.

Well, we took on that challenge, and we pointed out what a veto-proof Congress would mean. It would mean a Congress that would spend more and more—and I repeatedly alerted people around the country that if we had a veto-proof Congress, they better tighten their seat belts because they were going right through the sky in spending. They backed off from that, and we on the other side have coined, I think, a better campaign slogan, because it involves our number one public enemy domestically, inflation.

What we want to elect to Congress—Senators and Members of the House—is an inflation-proof Congress, and we will get it with Republican candidates.

And I am quite frank to tell you that those Members of Congress who support our efforts to win the battle against inflation will get my wholehearted endorsement.

But we need strong and tall candidates who will stand up and fight the battle of inflation in fiscal policy and in any other of those policies that involve saving this country from the ravages of inflation.

So, urge your incumbents who are running for reelection, urge your candidates who are seeking the high office of the Congress, to campaign, to vote for economy, for strength in our battle against inflation.

You can have a big impact. Your influence can be significant. And we have got some tough votes coming up right soon in the Senate and in the House. Let them hear from you, that you want them to vote for economy, to hold down the lid.

And if we win some of these battles—and I hope we can—with the help of Republicans, the help of a necessary number of Democrats, then I think we will have defeated our public enemy number one.

But there are some other issues which I think we can affirmatively talk about. We can honestly say that we have turned a great deal of the power that was accumulating in Washington away and sent it back to our local units of government, to our States.

We have revenue sharing. It is a most important part of New Federalism. I can remember 5, 6, 7 years ago, maybe longer, talking to Nelson Rockefeller when he was Governor, working with him when he was active in the Governors' Conference.

I can recall vividly working with Bill Brock and Bob Michel and other Members of the Congress on trying to get the Congress to undertake a general revenue sharing program.

It is now law. It is about halfway through. Approximately $16 billion of Federal money has gone back to States and local units of government so that they can establish at the local or State level that priorities that vary from New York to California, or Michigan to Florida, or communities in one State or another, have totally different problems.

And this vast amount of Federal money going without restriction for decisionmaking at the local and State level, I think, is a great achievement for a Republican Administration. And this Administration is going to continue it.

We want the legislation extended so that this effort will get even stronger in the months ahead.

So, I think we can take credit as Republicans for a program that is very meaningful and very substantial. But there are other things that have to be done, and they involve the area of foreign policy.

I always said and I believed then that America and the world was fortunate to have a great statesman in Henry Kissinger as our Secretary of State. And I have learned to an even greater degree how effective, how able, what a great teammate he is as he and I work on the problems involving peace throughout the world.

We have peace at the present time. We have peace for several reasons. One, we have peace because the United States is strong militarily. And we are not going to weaken our national security, despite the pressure from some sources.

Peace is related to strength. Weakness inevitably brings on war. History tells us that story.

In the interim while we are keeping strong, we are going to make conscientious efforts to negotiate with the Soviet Union, broadening our détente, seeking to make our total effort one of negotiation, not necessarily confrontation.

We are going to be working intimately with the problems of the Middle East, trying to move forward the successful efforts of disengagement which took place last fall.

We will concentrate in seeking to obtain a just and durable peace in that very difficult area of the world, but that is not the only area where we must concentrate. The Pacific, where over a period of about 10 years almost 60,000 Americans lost their lives—that was a great sacrifice, a sacrifice for an objective that many Administrations, not just one, felt was in the best interests of the United States and the world at large.

We cannot afford to throw away the sacrifices of those people. So, we must maintain our own strength and help our allies who are trying to retain the gains that were made in Vietnam and elsewhere in the Pacific.

We have the problem of Western Europe. The key to peace in the minds of many is the strengthening of NATO. We are working to keep better cooperation, stronger military and economic policies moving ahead.

I am encouraged, and we are going to be meeting from time to time, Secretary Kissinger and others, with those who can have a meaningful impact on the NATO organization, keeping it strong militarily, economically, diplomatically, and otherwise.

When you look at the other areas—Latin America, we are not going to neglect Latin America. We are going to work for greater cooperation there, and the activities of Dr. Kissinger in this area in the last 5 or 6 months have been significant.

We are not going to neglect Africa. We have and we will continue to work with those nations in that area of the world.

So anyplace you go, our broad policy of global peace will get our first and top attention because if we are going to keep peace, we can solve more easily our problems at home.

As I close, let me just thank all of you for the wonderful job you did in endorsing Mary Louise and Dick. Let me thank George for his tireless efforts, effective ones, and let me thank the Republican leadership in the House, Hugh Scott, John Rhodes, and their associates, and let me express to my staff that have been so helpful to me that I am grateful, and we are moving, and we are going to move with the Republican workers throughout the country. It is vital for us to carry our banner high, because I think we can do a great job for the country as a whole.

Thank you very kindly.

NOTE: The President spoke at 12:13 p.m. at the Mayflower Hotel. Earlier in the day, the President had held a breakfast meeting with members of the nominating committee of the Republican National Committee at the White House.

Prior to the luncheon, members of the Republican National Committee had elected Mary Louise Smith of Iowa as Republican National Chairman and Mrs. Smith had appointed Richard D. Obenshain of Virginia as Cochairman.

THE PRESIDENT'S NEWS CONFERENCE OF SEPTEMBER 16, 1974

THE PRESIDENT. Ladies and gentlemen, this press conference is being held at a time when many Americans are observing the Jewish religious New Year. It begins a period of self-examination and reconciliation. In opening this press conference, I am mindful that the spirit of this holy day has a meaning for all Americans.

In examining one's deeds of the last year and in assuming responsibility for past actions and personal decisions, one can reach a point of growth and change. The purpose of looking back is to go forward with a new and enlightened dedication to our highest values.

The record of the past year does not have to be endlessly relived, but can be transformed by commitment to new insights and new actions in the year to come.

Ladies and gentlemen, I am ready for your questions. Mr. Cormier [Frank Cormier, Associated Press].

QUESTIONS

PARDON FOR FORMER PRESIDENT NIXON

Q. Mr. President, some Congressional Republicans who have talked to you have hinted that you may have had a secret reason for granting President Nixon a pardon sooner than you indicated you would at the last news conference, and I wonder if you could tell us what that reason was?

THE PRESIDENT. At the outset, let me say I had no secret reason, and I don't recall telling any Republican that I had such a reason.

Let me review quickly, if I might, the things that transpired following the last news conference.

As many of you know, I answered two, maybe three, questions concerning a pardon at that time. On return to the office, I felt that I had to have my counsel undertake a thorough examination as to what my right of pardon was under the Constitution. I also felt that it was very important that I find out what legal actions, if any, were contemplated by the Special Prosecutor.

That information was found out, and it was indicated to me that the possibility exists, the very real possibility, that the President would be charged with obstructing justice and 10 other possible criminal actions.

In addition, I asked my general counsel to find out, if he could, how long such criminal proceedings would take, from the indictment, the carrying on of the trial, et cetera, and I was informed that this would take a year, maybe somewhat longer, for the whole process to go through.

I also asked my counsel to find out whether or not, under decisions of the judicial system, a fair trial could be given to the former President.

After I got that information, which took 2 or 3 days, I then began to evaluate, in my own mind, whether or not I should take the action which I subsequently did.

Miss Thomas [Helen Thomas, United Press International].

Q. Throughout your Vice Presidency, you said that you didn't believe that former President Nixon had ever committed an impeachable offense. Is that still your belief, or do you believe that his acceptance of a pardon implies his guilt or is an admission of guilt?

THE PRESIDENT. The fact that 38 members of the House Committee on the Judiciary, Democrat and Republican, have unanimously agreed in the report that was filed that the former President was guilty of an impeachable offense, I think, is very persuasive evidence.

And the second question, I don't—

Q. Was it an admission of guilt?

THE PRESIDENT. Was the acceptance of the pardon by the President an admission of guilt? The acceptance of a pardon, I think, can be construed by many, if not all, as an admission of guilt.

Yes, Mr. Nessen [Ron Nessen, NBC News].

Q. What reports have you received on Mr. Nixon's health, and what effect, if any, did this have on your decision to pardon him now?

THE PRESIDENT. I have asked Dr. Lukash, who is the head physician in the White House, to keep me posted in proper channels as to the former President's health. I have been informed on a routine day-to-day basis, but I don't think I am at liberty to give any information as to those reports that I have received.

You also asked, what impact did the President's health have on my decision. I think it is well known that just before I gave my statement, at the time that I gave the pardon, I personally wrote in a phrase "the threat to the President's health."

The main concern that I had at the time I made the decision was to heal the wounds throughout the United States. For a period of 18 months or longer, we had had turmoil and divisiveness in the American society. At the same time, the United States had major problems, both at home and abroad, that needed the maximum personal attention of the President and many others in the Government.

It seemed to me that as long as this divisiveness continued, this turmoil existed, caused by the charges and countercharges, the responsible people in the Government could not give their total attention to the problems that we had to solve at home and abroad.

And the net result was I was more anxious to heal the Nation—that was the top priority. And I felt then, and I feel now, that the action I took will do that. I couldn't be oblivious, however, to news accounts that I had concerning the President's health, but the major reason for the action I took related to the effort to reconcile divisions in our country and to heal the wounds that had festered far too long.

Q. Mr. President, after you had told us that you were going to allow the legal process to go on before you decided whether to pardon him, why did you decide on Sunday morning, abruptly, to pardon President Nixon?

THE PRESIDENT. I didn't decide abruptly. I explained a moment ago the process that I went through subsequent to the last press conference. And when I had assembled all of that information that came to me through my counsel, I then most carefully analyzed the situation in the country, and I decided that we could not afford in America an extended period of continued turmoil. And the fact that the trial, and all of the parts thereof, would have lasted a year, perhaps more, with the continuation of the divisions in America, I felt that I should take the action that I did promptly and effectively.

FORMER PRESIDENT'S TAPES AND DOCUMENTS

Q. Mr. President, I would like to ask you a question about the decision relating to custody of the Nixon tapes and documents. Considering the enormous interest that the Special Prosecutor's office had in those documents for further investigation, I am wondering why the negotiations with Mr. Nixon's representatives were conducted strictly between the counsel in your office without bringing in discussions with either Mr. Jaworski's representatives or those from the Justice Department.

THE PRESIDENT. In the first place, I did receive a memorandum, or legal opinion, from the Department of Justice which indicated that in the opinion of the Department of Justice, the documents, tapes—the ownership of them—were in the hands of the former President. And historically, that has been the case for all Presidents.

Now, the negotiations for the handling of the tapes and documents were undertaken and consummated by my staff and the staff of the former President. I believe that they have been properly preserved, and they will be available under subpoena for any criminal proceeding. Now, the Special Prosecutor's staff has indicated some concern. I am saying tonight that my staff is working with the Special Prosecutor's staff to try and alleviate any concerns that they have. I hope a satisfactory arrangement can be worked out.

PREVIOUS STATEMENTS ON PARDON

Q. Mr. President, during your confirmation hearings as Vice President, you said that you did not think that the country would stand for a President to pardon his predecessor. Has your mind changed about such public opinion?

THE PRESIDENT. In those hearings before the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration, I was asked a hypothetical question. And in answer to that hypothetical question I responded by saying that I did not think the American people would stand for such an action.

Now that I am in the White House and don't have to answer hypothetical questions but have to deal with reality, it was my judgment, after analyzing all of the facts, that it was in the best interest of the United States for me to take the action that I did.

I think if you will reread what I said in answer to that hypothetical question, I did not say I wouldn't. I simply said that under the way the question was phrased, the American people would object.

But I am absolutely convinced when dealing with reality in this very, very difficult situation, that I made the right decision in an effort—an honest, conscientious effort—to end the divisions and the turmoil in the United States.

Mr. Lisagor [Peter Lisagor, Chicago Daily News].

SAFEGUARDING OF TAPES AND DOCUMENTS

Q. Mr. President, is there any safeguard in the tapes agreement that was made with Mr. Nixon, first, with their destruction in the event anything happens to him, because under the agreement they will be destroyed, and secondly, should not the tapes be kept in the White House until the Special Prosecutor has finished dealing with them?

THE PRESIDENT. The tapes and the documents are still in our possession, and we are, as I said a moment ago, working with the Special Prosecutor's office to alleviate any concerns they have as to their disposition and their availability.

The agreement as to destruction is quite clear-cut. As long as Mr. Nixon is alive and during the period of time that is set forth, they are available for subpoena by a court involving any criminal proceedings. I think this is a necessary requirement for the protection of evidence for any such action.

THE CIA AND CHILE

Q. Mr. President, recent Congressional testimony has indicated that the CIA, under the direction of a committee headed by Dr. Kissinger, attempted to destabilize the Government of Chile under former President Allende.

Is it the policy of your Administration to attempt to destabilize the governments of other democracies?

THE PRESIDENT. Let me answer in general. I think this is a very important question.

Our Government, like other governments, does take certain actions in the intelligence field to help implement foreign policy and protect national security. I am informed reliably that Communist nations spend vastly more money than we do for the same kind of purposes.

Now, in this particular case, as I understand it—and there is no doubt in my mind—our Government had no involvement whatsoever in the Allende coup. To my knowledge, nobody has charged that. The facts are we had no involvement in any way whatsoever in the coup itself.

In a period of time, 3 or 4 years ago, there was an effort being made by the Allende government to destroy opposition news media, both the writing press as well as the electronic press, and to destroy opposition political parties.

The effort that was made in this case was to help and assist the preservation of opposition newspapers and electronic media and to preserve opposition political parties.

I think this is in the best interest of the people in Chile and, certainly, in our best interest.

Now, may I add one further comment.

The 40 Committee was established in 1948. It has been in existence under Presidents since that time. That committee reviews every covert operation undertaken by our Government, and that information is relayed to the responsible Congressional committees where it is reviewed by House and Senate committees.

It seems to me that the 40 Committee should continue in existence, and I am going to meet with the responsible Congressional committees to see whether or not they want any changes in the review process so that the Congress, as well as the President, are fully informed and are fully included in the operations for any such action.

Mr. Sperling [Godfrey Sperling, Jr., Christian Science Monitor].

FURTHER QUESTIONS ON PARDON DECISION

Q. In view of public reaction, do you think that the Nixon pardon really served to bind up the Nation's wounds? I wonder if you would assess public reaction to that move.

THE PRESIDENT. I must say that the decision has created more antagonism than I anticipated. But as I look over the long haul with a trial, or several trials, of a former President, criminal trials, the possibility of a former President being in the dock, so to speak, and the divisions that would have existed not just for a limited period of time but for a long period of time, it seems to me that when I had the choice between that possibility and the possibility of taking direct action hoping to conclude it, I am still convinced, despite the public reaction so far, that the decision I made was the right one.

Q. Mr. President, in regard to the pardon, you talk about the realities of the situation. Now those realities, rightly or wrongly, include a good many people who speculate about whether or not there is some sort of arrangement—they even, some of them, call it a deal—between you and the former President, or between your staff and his staff—resignation in exchange for a full pardon.

The question is: Is there or was there, to your knowledge, any kind of understanding about this?

THE PRESIDENT. There was no understanding, no deal between me and the former President, nor between my staff and the staff of the former President, none whatsoever.

ACCESS TO INCOME TAX RETURNS

Q. Mr. President, sir, there is a bill that the Treasury Department has put forward, I think it is about 38 pages. Under this bill, which deals with getting hold of the returns, Internal Revenue returns, of citizens of the country, you could take action to get those returns whenever you wanted to.

I wonder if you are aware of this and if you feel that you need to get those returns of citizens?

THE PRESIDENT. It is my understanding that a President has, by tradition and practice and by law, the right to have access to income tax returns. I personally think that is something that should be kept very closely held. A person's income tax return is a very precious thing to that individual, and therefore, I am about to issue an Executive order that makes it even more restrictive as to how those returns can be handled.¹ And I do think that a proposed piece of legislation that is coming to me and subsequently will be submitted, as I recollect, to the Congress would also greatly tighten up the availability or accessibility of income tax returns. I think they should be closely held, and I can assure you that they will be most judiciously handled as far as I am concerned.

OWNERSHIP OF PRESIDENTIAL PAPERS

Q. Mr. President, looking beyond the Nixon papers and in view of some criticism in Congress, do you believe we may have now reached the point where Presidential White House papers should remain in the Government's hands as the property of the Government?

THE PRESIDENT. As far as I am personally concerned, I can see a legitimate reason for Presidential papers remaining the property of the Government. In my own case, I made a decision some years ago to turn over all of my Congressional papers, all of my Vice Presidential papers, to the University of Michigan archives.

As far as I am concerned, whether they go to the archives for use or whether they stay the possession of the Government, I don't think it makes too much difference.

I have no desire, personally, to retain whatever papers come out of my Administration.

Mr. Mollenhoff [Clark R. Mollenhoff, Des Moines Register and Tribune].

THE PARDON DECISION

Q. Mr. President, at the last press conference you said, "The code of ethics that will be followed will be the example that I set." Do you find any conflicts of interest in the decision to grant a sweeping pardon to your life-long friend and your financial benefactor with no consultation for advice and judgment for the legal fallout?

THE PRESIDENT. The decision to grant a pardon to Mr. Nixon was made primarily, as I have expressed, for the purpose of trying to heal the wounds throughout the country between Americans on one side of the issue or the other. Mr. Nixon nominated me for the office of Vice President. I was confirmed overwhelmingly in the House as well as in the Senate. Every action I have taken, Mr. Mollenhoff, is predicated on my conscience without any concern or consideration as to favor as far as I am concerned.

CONDITIONAL AMNESTY AND THE PARDON DECISION

Q. If your intention was to heal the wounds of the Nation, sir, why did you grant only a conditional amnesty to the Vietnam war draft evaders while granting a full pardon to President Nixon?

THE PRESIDENT. The only connection between those two cases is the effort that I made in the one to heal the wounds involving the charges against Mr. Nixon and my honest and conscientious effort to heal the wounds for those who had deserted military service or dodged the draft. That is the only connection between the two.

¹ See page 1176 of this issue.

In one case, you have a President who was forced to resign because of circumstances involving his Administration, and he has been shamed and disgraced by that resignation. In the case of the draft dodgers and Army and military deserters, we are trying to heal the wounds by the action that I took with the signing of the proclamation this morning.

REPORTS ON WATERGATE INVESTIGATION

Q. Mr. President, another concern that has been voiced around the country since the pardon is that the judicial process as it finally unwinds may not write the definitive chapter on Watergate and perhaps with particular regard to Mr. Nixon's particular involvement, however total, however it may have been in truth. My question is, would you consider appointing a special commission with extraordinary powers to look into all of the evidentiary material and to write that chapter and not leave it to later history?

THE PRESIDENT. Well, it seems to me as I look at what has been done, I think you find a mass of evidence that has been accumulated. In the first instance, you have the very intensive investigation conducted by the House Committee on the Judiciary. It was a very well-conducted investigation. It came up with volumes of information.

In addition, the Special Prosecutor's office under Mr. Jaworski has conducted an intensive investigation and the Special Prosecutor's office will issue a report at the conclusion of their responsibilities that I think will probably make additional information available to the American people.

And thirdly, as the various criminal trials proceed in the months ahead, there obviously will be additional information made available to the American people. So, when you see what has been done and what undoubtedly will be done, I think the full story will be made available to the American people.

SUCCESSORS TO GENERAL HAIG AND PRESS SECRETARY TER HORST

Q. Mr. President, could you give us an idea who will succeed General Haig, and how are you coming on your search for a Press Secretary?

THE PRESIDENT. Do I have a lot of candidates here? [Laughter] No shows. [Laughter]

I have several people in mind to replace General Haig, but I have made no decision on that. It was just announced today that the NATO countries have accepted him as the officer handling those responsibilities.²

I think he is to take office succeeding General Goodpaster on December 15. He assumes his responsibilities as the head of U.S. military forces November 1. In the next few days undoubtedly I will make the decision as to the individual to succeed him.

² See page 1155 of this issue.

As far as the Press Secretary is concerned, we are actively working on that, and we hope to have an announcement in a relatively short period of time.³

THE FORMER PRESIDENT'S HEALTH

Q. Mr. President, prior to your deciding to pardon Mr. Nixon, did you have, apart from those reports, any information either from associates of the President or from his family or from any other source about his health, about his medical condition?

THE PRESIDENT. Prior to the decision that I made granting a pardon to Mr. Nixon, I had no other specific information concerning his health other than what I had read in the news media or heard in the news media. I had not gotten any information from any of the Nixon family.

The sole source was what I had read in the news media plus one other fact. On Saturday, before the Sunday, a member of my staff was working with me on the several decisions I had to make. He was, from my staff, the one who had been in negotiations on Friday with the President and his staff. At the conclusion of some decisions that were made, I asked him, how did the President look, and he reported to me his observations.

But other than what I had read or heard and this particular incident, I had no precise information concerning the President's health.

Yes, Mr. Joyce. [Thomas H. Joyce, Newsweek Magazine].

POSSIBILITY OF A DEPRESSION

Q. Mr. President, your own economic advisers are suggesting—say the economy is very bad and they're very pessimistic—we are hearing the word "depression" used now. I wonder how you feel about whether we are heading for a depression?

THE PRESIDENT. Let me say very strongly that the United States is not going to have a depression. The overall economy of the United States is strong. Employment is still high. We do have the problem of inflation. We do have related problems, and we are going to come up with some answers that I hope will solve those problems.

We are not going to have a depression. We are going to work to make sure that our economy improves in the months ahead.

FOOD AID POLICY

Q. Mr. President, in the face of massive food shortages and the prospects of significant starvation, will the United States be able to significantly increase its food aid to foreign countries, and what is our position going to be at the Rome conference on participation in the world grain reserves?

³ See page 1177 of this issue.

THE PRESIDENT. Within the next few days a very major decision in this area will be made. I am not at liberty to tell you what the answer will be because it has not been decided.

But it is my hope that the United States for humanitarian purposes will be able to increase its contribution to those nations that have suffered because of drought or any of the other problems related to human needs.

INTELLIGENCE ACTIVITIES AND INTERNATIONAL LAW

Q. Back to the CIA, under what international law do we have a right to attempt to destabilize the constitutionally elected government of another country, and does the Soviet Union have a similar right to try to destabilize the Government of Canada, for example, or the United States?

THE PRESIDENT. I am not going to pass judgment on whether it is permitted or authorized under international law. It is a recognized fact that historically, as well as presently, such actions are taken in the best interest of the countries involved.

ADMINISTRATION OPENNESS AND CANDOR

Q. Mr. President, last month when you assumed the Presidency, you pledged openness and candor. Last week you decided on the ex-President's pardon in virtually total secrecy. Despite all you have said tonight, there would still seem to be some confusion, some contradiction.

My question is this: Are your watchwords of your Administration still openness and candor?

THE PRESIDENT. Without any question, without any reservation. And I think in the one instance that you cite, it was a sole decision, and, believe me, it wasn't easy. And since I was the only one who could make that decision, I thought I had to search my own soul after consulting with a limited number of people. And I did it. And I think in the long run it was the right decision.

MR. CORMIER. Thank you, Mr. President.

NOTE: President Ford's second news conference was held at 8 p.m. on Monday, September 16, 1974, in the East Room at the White House. It was broadcast live on radio and television.

United States Ambassador to Spain

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Peter M. Flanigan. September 17, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Peter M. Flanigan, of Purchase, N.Y., to be Ambassador to Spain. Mr. Flanigan will succeed Adm. Horacio Rivero.

He was associated with the New York investment banking firm of Dillion, Read & Co., Inc., from 1949 to 1969, serving as vice president from 1954 to 1969. He was appointed Assistant to the President in 1969 and also served as Executive Director of the Council on International Economic Policy until June of this year, when he resigned.

He was born in New York on June 21, 1923. Mr. Flanigan was a graduate cum laude of Portsmouth Priory, in Rhode Island, and received his B.A. summa cum laude from Princeton University in 1945. He served as a Navy carrier pilot in the Pacific theater during World War II.

He is married to the former Brigid Snow, and they have four children.

United States Ambassador to the Republic of Chad

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Edward S. Little. September 17, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Edward S. Little, of Toledo, Ohio, to be Ambassador to the Republic of Chad. He will succeed Edward W. Mulcahy, who is now Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs.

He is currently the Acting Coordinator, Office of Cuban Affairs, of the Bureau of Inter-American Affairs. In 1969, he became the Country Director of the North Coast, of the Bureau of Inter-American Affairs, after serving as Deputy Chief of Mission in Bern, Switzerland. He attended the National War College from 1965 to 1966. He was Special Assistant to the Secretary of State from 1962 to 1965 after serving as Deputy Executive Secretary of the Department. From 1957 to 1959, he was the Officer in Charge of Caribbean Affairs before becoming the Deputy Director of the Office of Caribbean and Mexican Affairs. He was an international economist with the Bureau of Economic Affairs from 1956 to 1957.

Mr. Little was born on July 20, 1918, in Toledo, Ohio. He received his A.B. from Swarthmore College in 1939 and his M.A. in 1940 from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy. He was awarded his Ph. D. from American University in 1959. He served overseas with the U.S. Navy from 1942 to 1946. He began his Government career as an economist with the Department of Agriculture in 1940. In 1946, he served with the Office of Price Administration before joining the State Department in 1947. In Washington, he served as international economist in the Bureau of Economic Affairs, and as staff assistant in the Bureau of European Affairs before being assigned to Madrid as an economic officer in 1952.

He is married to the former Marian McCarty, and they reside in Alexandria, Va.

Department of the Army

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Harold L. Brownman To Be Assistant Secretary for Installations and Logistics. September 17, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Harold L. Brownman, of Rockville, Md., to be an Assistant Secretary of the Army for Installations and Logistics. He will succeed Eugene E. Berg, who resigned effective July 15, 1974.

In March of 1973, he became Deputy Director for Management and Services of the Central Intelligence Agency after serving as Director of Special Projects. In 1967, he became vice president of systems for LTV ElectroSystems, Inc. From 1958 to 1967, he was assistant to the division director of the Airborne Instruments Laboratory, which is a division of Cutler-Hammer. He had previously served, in 1958, as program director of the Fairchild Camera and Instrument Corp. From 1957 to 1958, he had been laboratory manager of the Fairchild Controls Corp. after serving as research engineer of the Fairchild Camera and Instrument Corp.

Mr. Brownman was born on May 21, 1923, in New York City and received his B.E.E. from the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn. In 1949, he received his M.E.E. from the Polytechnic Institute. He joined the teaching staff of the Polytechnic Institute in 1946. In 1948, he became an engineer with the Fairchild Engine and Airplane Company. From 1950 to 1952, he was an engineer with SERVO Mechanisms before joining TELE Register Corp. as an engineer. In 1954, he became senior engineer of the American Bosch Arma Corp. until joining the Fairchild Corp.

He is married to the former Edith Heller, and they have three children. They reside in Rockville, Md.

Department of the Navy

Announcement of Intention To Nominate H. Tyler Marcy To Be Assistant Secretary for Research and Development. September 17, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate H. Tyler Marcy, of Brewster, Mass., to be Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Research and Development. He will succeed David Samuel Potter, who was appointed Under Secretary of the Navy on August 27, 1974.

Since 1972, he has been a self-employed consultant after serving as director of technology for the IBM Corp. in Armonk, N.Y., from 1968 to 1972. In 1962, he became vice president, general products division, systems development division, of the IBM Corp. He had previously been laboratory manager for IBM in Poughkeepsie, N.Y. From 1956 to 1957, he was assistant manager of product development for the IBM Corp. and was employed in the navigation computer, character recognition, data processing systems for IBM in Endicott, N.Y. In 1946, he became associate director for the special projects department for the M. W. Kellogg Co.

Mr. Marcy was born on September 14, 1918, in Rochester, N.Y., and received his B.S. degree from M.I.T. He received his M.S. from M.I.T. in 1941 before working in the servomechanism laboratory at M.I.T. He is a member of the Instrument Society of America and the Institute of Electrical Electronic Engineers.

He is married to the former Cynthia Spencer, and they have five children. They reside in Brewster, Mass.

Department of the Navy

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Gary Dean Penisten To Be Assistant Secretary for Financial Management. September 17, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Gary Dean Penisten, of Southport, Conn., to be Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Financial Management. He will succeed Robert D. Nesen, who resigned effective May 1, 1974.

He is currently manager, group finance operation, power generation business group, for the General Electric Co. He served as manager, strategic planning operation of the industrial and marine turbine business division, from 1971 to 1972. He had served as manager, finance, medium steam turbine, of the generator department. In 1965, he served as manager for the program and staff management after he had been audit administrator since 1963. From 1958 to 1963, he served as a cost estimator and junior to the supervising traveling auditor of the corporate audit staff, after having trained in the appliance park project since 1953.

Mr. Penisten was born on May 14, 1931, in Lincoln, Nebr., and received his B.S. degree from the University of Omaha in 1953. He served as a first lieutenant in the United States Army Reserve from 1950 to 1963.

He is married to the former Nancy M. Golding, and they have four children. They reside in Southport, Conn.

Department of Commerce

Announcement of Intention To Nominate James Leonard Pate To Be Assistant Secretary for Economic Affairs. September 17, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate James Leonard Pate, of Akron, Ohio, to be an Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Economic Affairs. He will succeed Sidney L. Jones, who was appointed as a Deputy Assistant to the President on July 10, 1974.

Mr. Pate is currently the director of business research and chief economist for the B. F. Goodrich Co. in Akron. From 1965 to 1968, he served as a consultant to various private industries. In 1968, he became an economist with the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland, and later became the senior economist.

He was born in Mt. Sterling, Ill., on September 6, 1935, and received his A.B. degree from Monmouth College in 1963. He received his M.B.A. degree in 1964 from Indiana University. He served as an assistant professor of economics at Monmouth College from 1965 to 1968. Previously, he had been a teaching associate at the Graduate School of Business at Indiana University from 1964 to 1965, where he had also been a graduate assistant.

He and his wife, Donna, have three children, and they reside in Akron, Ohio.

National Mediation Board

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Kay McMurray for Reappointment as a Member of the Board. September 17, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Kay McMurray, of Hinsdale, Ill., for reappointment as a member of the National Mediation Board for a term expiring July 1, 1977. He was initially appointed on October 3, 1972, to serve a term expiring July 1, 1974.

Mr. McMurray was born March 18, 1918, in Oakley, Idaho, and received his A.B. degree from Stanford University in 1940. He joined United Air Lines in 1940 and became a captain in 1942 after attending flight school and serving as a copilot for 13 months. During this time, he was elected to the United Air Lines pilot negotiating committee. From 1949 to 1953, Mr. McMurray returned to Boise, Idaho, where he was assistant to the president of Inland Empire Insurance Co., a registered representative (NYSE) with Wegener & Daly, and legislative representative for the Western Highway Institute.

From 1953 to 1971, Mr. McMurray was executive administrator of the Air Line Pilots Association, and from 1971 to 1972 he was special consultant to the president of United Air Lines.

Mr. McMurray is married. He and his wife have three children.

The National Mediation Board was established in 1934 and consists of three members, not more than two of whom may be members of the same political party. The Board designates its own Chairman annually. The principal duty of the Board is to mediate differences between the railroads, the express and Pullman companies, and the airlines on the one hand, and their employees on the other, growing out of their attempts to make and maintain agreements establishing rates of pay, rules, and working conditions of the employees as directed by the Railway Labor Act.

National Employ the Handicapped Week, 1974

Proclamation 4314. September 17, 1974

*By the President of the United States of America
a Proclamation*

The single greatest difficulty facing the handicapped person is not his or her own disability but rather the attitudes of society toward that disability. Yet handicapped people have proven themselves capable of performing a wide range of jobs with great diligence, skill, and efficiency.

As scientists, teachers, Government officials, aerospace engineers—in nearly every occupation—otherwise qualified but handicapped Americans have contributed significantly to our Nation's progress.

Let us resolve in 1974 to make use of the talents and abilities and energies of the handicapped. Our Nation needs them.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, GERALD R. FORD, President of the United States of America, in accordance with the joint resolution of Congress approved August 11, 1945, as amended (36 U.S.C. 155), designating the first week in October of each year as National Employ the Handicapped Week, do hereby call upon the people of the United States to observe the week beginning October 6, 1974, for such purpose.

I urge the Nation's Governors, Mayors, and all other public officials, as well as leaders in every area of American life, to join with the handicapped themselves in active participation in this observance.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this seventeenth day of September, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America, the one hundred ninety-ninth.

GERALD R. FORD

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 2:17 p.m.,
September 17, 1974]

GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE UNITED NATIONS

*The President's Address to the 29th Session of the General Assembly.
September 18, 1974*

Mr. President, Mr. Secretary General, your Excellencies:

In 1946, President Harry Truman welcomed representatives of 55 nations to the first General Assembly of the United Nations. Since then, every American President has had the great honor of addressing this Assembly.

Today, with pleasure and humility, I take my turn in welcoming you, the distinguished representatives of 138 nations.

When I took office, I told the American people that my remarks would be "just a little straight talk among friends." Straight talk is what I propose here today in the first of my addresses to the representatives of the world.

Next week, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger will present in specifics the overall principles which I will outline in my remarks today. It should be emphatically understood that the Secretary of State has my full support and the unquestioned backing of the American people.

As a party leader in the Congress of the United States, as Vice President, and now as President of the United States of America, I have had the closest working relationship with Secretary of State Kissinger. I have supported and will continue to endorse his many efforts as Secretary of State and in our National Security Council system to build a world of peace.

Since the United Nations was founded, the world has experienced conflicts and threats to peace, but we have avoided the greatest danger—another world war. Today, we have the opportunity to make the remainder of this century an era of peace and cooperation and economic well-being.

The harsh hostilities which once held great powers in their rigid grasp have now begun to moderate. Many of the crises which dominated past General Assemblies are fortunately behind us. And technological progress holds out the hope that one day all men can achieve a decent life.

Nations too often have had no choice but to be either hammer or anvil, to strike or to be struck. Now we have a new opportunity—to forge, in concert with others, a framework of international cooperation. That is the course the United States has chosen for itself.

On behalf of the American people, I renew these basic pledges to you today.

—We are committed to a pursuit of a more peaceful, stable, and cooperative world. While we are determined never to be bested in a test of strength, we will devote our strength to what is best. And in the nuclear era, there is no rational alternative to accords of mutual restraint between the United States and the Soviet Union, two nations which have the power to destroy mankind.

—We will bolster our partnerships with traditional friends in Europe, Asia, and Latin America to meet new challenges in a rapidly changing world. The maintenance of such relationships underpins rather than undercuts the search for peace.

—We will seek out, we will expand our relations with old adversaries. For example, our new rapport with the People's Republic of China best serves the purposes of each nation and the interests of the entire world.

—We will strive to heal old wounds, reopened in recent conflicts in Cyprus, the Middle East, and in Indochina. Peace cannot be imposed from without, but we will do whatever is within our capacity to help achieve it.

—We rededicate ourselves to the search for justice, equality, and freedom. Recent developments in Africa signal the welcome end of colonialism. Behavior appropriate to an era of dependence must give way to the new responsibilities of an era of interdependence.

No single nation, no single group of nations, no single organization can meet all of the challenges before the community of nations. We must act in concert. Progress toward a better world must come through cooperative efforts across the whole range of bilateral and multilateral relations.

America's revolutionary birth and centuries of experience in adjusting democratic government to changing conditions have made Americans practical as well as idealistic. As idealists, we are proud of our role in the founding of the United Nations and in supporting its many accomplishments. As practical people, we are sometimes impatient at what we see as shortcomings.

In my 25 years as a Member of the Congress of the United States, I learned two basic practical lessons:

First, men of differing political persuasions can find common ground for cooperation. We need not agree on all issues in order to agree on most. Differences of principle, of purpose, of perspective will not disappear. But neither will our mutual problems disappear unless we are determined to find mutually helpful solutions.

Second, a majority must take into account the proper interest of a minority if the decisions of the majority are to be accepted. We who believe in and live by majority rule must always be alert to the danger of the "tyranny of the majority." Majority rule thrives on the habits of accommodation, moderation, and consideration of the interests of others.

A very stark reality has tempered America's actions for decades and must now temper the actions of all nations. Prevention of full-scale warfare in the nuclear age has become everybody's responsibility. Today's regional conflict must not become tomorrow's world disaster. We must assure by every means at our disposal that local crises are quickly contained and resolved.

The challenge before the United States [Nations] is very clear. This organization can place the weight of the world community on the side of world peace. And this organization can provide impartial forces to maintain the peace.

And at this point I wish to pay tribute on behalf of the American people to the 37 members of the United Nations peacekeeping forces who have given their lives in the Middle East and in Cyprus in the past 10 months, and I convey our deepest sympathies to their loved ones.

Let the quality of our response measure up to the magnitude of the challenge that we face. I pledge to you that America will continue to be constructive, innovative, and responsive to the work of this great body.

The nations in this hall are united by a deep concern for peace. We are united as well by our desire to ensure a better life for all people.

Today, the economy of the world is under unprecedented stress. We need new approaches to international cooperation to respond effectively to the problems that we face. Developing and developed countries, market and nonmarket countries—we are all a part of one interdependent economic system.

The food and oil crises demonstrate the extent of our interdependence. Many developing nations need the food surplus of a few developed nations. And many industrialized nations need the oil production of a few developing nations.

Energy is required to produce food and food to produce energy—and both to provide a decent life for everyone. The problems of food and energy can be resolved on the basis of cooperation, or can, I should say, [be] made unmanageable on the basis of confrontation. Runaway inflation, propelled by food and oil price increases, is an early warning signal to all of us.

Let us not delude ourselves. Failure to cooperate on oil and food and inflation could spell disaster for every nation represented in this room. The United Nations must not and need not allow this to occur. A global strategy for food and energy is urgently required.

The United States believes four principles should guide a global approach:

First, all nations must substantially increase production. Just to maintain the present standards of living the world must almost double its output of food and energy to match the expected increase in the world's population by the end of this century. To meet aspirations for a better life, production will have to expand at a significantly faster rate than population growth.

Second, all nations must seek to achieve a level of prices which not only provides an incentive to producers but which consumers can afford. It should now be clear that the developed nations are not the only countries which demand and receive an adequate return for their goods. But it should also be clear that by confronting consumers with production restrictions, artificial pricing, and the prospect of ultimate bankruptcy, producers will eventually become the victims of their own actions.

Third, all nations must avoid the abuse of man's fundamental needs for the sake of narrow national or bloc advantage. The attempt by any nation to use one commodity for political purposes will inevitably tempt other countries to use their commodities for their own purposes.

Fourth, the nations of the world must assure that the poorest among us are not overwhelmed by rising prices of the imports necessary for their survival. The traditional aid donors and the increasingly wealthy oil producers must join in this effort.

The United States recognizes the special responsibility we bear as the world's largest producer of food. That is why Secretary of State Kissinger proposed from this very podium last year a world food conference to define a global food policy. And that is one reason why we have removed domestic restrictions on food productions in the United States.

It has not been our policy to use food as a political weapon, despite the oil embargo and recent oil prices and production decisions.

It would be tempting for the United States—beset by inflation and soaring energy prices—to turn a deaf ear to external appeals for food assistance, or to respond with internal appeals for export controls. But however difficult our own economic situation, we recognize that the plight of others is worse.

Americans have always responded to human emergencies in the past, and we respond again here today. In response to Secretary General Waldheim's appeal and to help meet the long-term challenge in food, I reiterate: To help developing nations realize their aspirations to grow more of their own food, the United States will substantially increase its assistance to agricultural production programs in other countries.

Next, to ensure that the survival of millions of our fellow men does not depend upon the vagaries of weather, the United States is prepared to join in a worldwide effort to negotiate, establish, and maintain an international system of food reserves. This system will work best if each nation is made responsible for managing the reserves that it will have available.

Finally, to make certain that the more immediate needs for food are met this year, the United States will not only maintain the amount it spends for food shipments to nations in need but it will increase this amount this year.

Thus, the United States is striving to help define and help contribute to a cooperative global policy to meet man's immediate and long-term need for food. We will set forth our comprehensive proposals at the World Food Conference in November.

Now is the time for oil producers to define their conception of a global policy on energy to meet the growing need and to do this without imposing unacceptable burdens on the international monetary and trade system.

A world of economic confrontation cannot be a world of political cooperation. If we fail to satisfy man's fundamental needs for energy and food, we face a threat not just to our aspirations for a better life for all our peoples but to our hopes for a more stable and a more peaceful world. By working together to overcome our common problems, mankind can turn from fear towards hope.

From the time of the founding of the United Nations, America volunteered to help nations in need, frequently as the main benefactor. We were able to do it. We were glad to do it. But as new economic forces alter and reshape today's complex world, no nation can be expected to feed all the world's hungry peoples.

Fortunately, however, many nations are increasingly able to help. And I call on them to join with us as truly united nations in the struggle to produce, to provide more food at lower prices for the hungry and, in general, a better life for the needy of this world.

America will continue to do more than its share. But there are realistic limits to our capacities. There is no limit, however, to our determination to act in concert with other nations to fulfill the vision of the United Nations Charter, to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war, and to promote social progress and better standards, better standards of life in a larger freedom.

Thank you very, very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 12:15 p.m. at the United Nations General Assembly in New York City. The address was broadcast live on radio and television.

During his visit to New York City to address the General Assembly, the President:

- met with Kurt Waldheim, Secretary General of the United Nations;
- met with Abdel Aziz Bouteflika, President of the General Assembly;
- attended a reception in the Indonesian Lounge for representatives to the United Nations;
- attended a luncheon in the South Lounge hosted by Secretary General Waldheim; and
- attended a reception at the United States Mission to the United Nations for members of the U.S. delegation to the 29th General Assembly and members of the U.S. Mission staff.

Deferral of Federal Pay Raise

Statement by the President Urging the Senate To Sustain the Deferral. September 18, 1974

I have labeled inflation fighting as my number one priority. To win will require the cooperation of all branches of Government and all of the American people.

Tomorrow, the Senate will consider a vital part of this effort—my decision to defer a pay increase for Federal employees from October 1974 to January 1975. This deferral will save the American taxpayers $700 million and will help the Federal Government in its campaign to bring inflation under control.

I realize that I am asking Federal employees to make a sacrifice, but now is the time when all of us must set an example of fiscal restraint for the rest of the Nation.

The Senate can do its part by voting to sustain my action on the 3-month Federal pay deferral. I see this vote as the first test of our common effort to put our economic house in order.

This is one of the most significant votes the Congress is being called upon to take in the fight against inflation. I am confident the Senate will act responsibly and in the best interests of all Americans.

Release of American Prisoner in Laos

Statement by the President Following the Release of Emmet Kay. September 18, 1974

With all Americans, I welcome the news that Mr. Emmet Kay has been released as part of the prisoner exchange in Laos. This release marks a major positive step in carrying out the Vientiane Accords which ended the war in that country last year. We are encouraged by this development and hope it will be followed by other positive steps to achieve peace and reconciliation in Laos.

At the same time, I remain concerned about the many Americans still unaccounted for in Southeast Asia. As Vice President, and during my time in the Congress, I had the opportunity to meet with the families of a number of our missing men. I have the highest regard for the strength and courage these families have shown in the long period since their loved ones were lost.

It has now been more than 18 months since the Paris Agreement on Vietnam was signed in January 1973. In addition to the return of prisoners, that Agreement contained specific provisions on accounting for the missing and the return of the remains of the dead. The record shows that there has been almost no compliance with these humanitarian provisions. Although the Government of North Vietnam returned the remains of 23 American servicemen who died in captivity, there has been no progress on accounting for the missing and no further arrangements for the return of the remains of the dead.

The Communist side has refused to permit searches in areas under their control for crash sites, graves, and other information on the MIA's. We are prepared to carry out such searches by unarmed American teams, and we stand ready to discuss arrangements for the conduct of such searches by teams from neutral countries, the International Red Cross, other humanitarian organizations, or by local authorities. The important thing is that we get on with this job now.

The families of our men have waited too long already, and I am sure that families of those of other nationalities who remain unaccounted for have a similar desire to know the fate of their loved ones. There should be no political or military controversy about this humanitarian problem, and I call for renewed efforts to resolve it.

NOTE: Emmet James Kay, a civilian pilot on contract with the Agency for International Development, was released by the Pathet Lao on September 18, after 16 months of captivity.

Washington Press Club

The President's Remarks at the Swearing In of Ronald A. Sarro as President of the Club. September 18, 1974

Thank you very much, Wauhilla, Miriam, Ron, Betty, all of you.

Obviously, it is a great privilege and a great pleasure for me to be here tonight.

When I received the printed invitation for this affair this evening, one phrase in particular caught my attention. It said, "Come honeymoon with us."

You people sure know how to hurt a fellow.

As you might imagine, I don't agree with those who have called me the Evel Knievel of politics, but I do think beyond a doubt, beyond a shadow of a doubt, you don't need to have a pool at the White House to get in deep water.

Really, I didn't realize how much the honeymoon was over until this morning when the Metro started to build a new station in the Oval Office.

When I first said "yes" to being here tonight, I was then Vice President and had a lot more time on my hands. You know people say a lot of nice things about Vice Presidents. But it is almost like being the best man at a wedding—you never get a chance to prove it.

As all of you know, on August 9 I became President, and I wasn't sure that my schedule would allow me enough time to be here with all of you tonight. But then 3 weeks ago, Maggie Hunter—she cornered me at Ron Nessen's Sunday pool party, and who can say "no" to Maggie Hunter in a bathing suit?

And frankly, I am very glad she did ask me, because it is a real pleasure to be here and see so many familiar faces in the audience.

For instance, I saw, as I came in, my very good friend, Sarah McClendon. Some people say that Sarah is very outspoken. Not by anyone that I know.

But anybody in public life is well aware of how important the judgments of the press are. I am firmly convinced that if the good Lord had made the world today, he would have spent 6 days creating the heavens and the earth and all the living creatures upon it. But on the seventh day, he would not have rested. He would have justified it to Helen Thomas.

I also want to say a special "hello" to all my fellow survivors of Air Force Two who are here tonight, and I see many in the audience. Be honest, now, all of you who flew with me in Air Force Two. Don't you really miss it?

This is the only plane that the Air Force has that has to stop for red lights.

When Governor Nelson Rockefeller saw this plane, he was really in a state of shock. As a matter of fact, I think he thought about reconsidering the nomination.

He said, "Is this Air Force Two? I have something that goes much faster."

And I said to Nelson, "Is it a jet?"

Nelson said, "No, it is a lawnmower."

Before closing, I would like to congratulate the very popular Ron Sarro on the occasion of his being elected to the presidency of the Washington Press Club. I understand that Ron really put his heart and his soul into this campaign. He was even going to set up a campaign organization called "The Committee to Re-elect Ron President" until somebody pointed out that is CREEP spelled sideways.

But when it comes to a reporter's intuition, and really being ahead of his time, you just can't beat Ron Sarro.

Do you know that in 1970—that is quite a while ago—Ron wrote a book called "Are You Safe From Burglars?"

I don't know how many people bought it—obviously not enough—but I do deeply appreciate your asking me to be here tonight on this very historic occasion, the inauguration of the first male president of the Washington Press Club.

As one President to another, Ron, I salute you, and I also salute the members of the Washington Press Club for breaking down the barriers of sexual discrimination.

I think all of you know where I stand on this issue. As I prove every morning at breakfast time, I certainly don't believe that a woman's place is in the kitchen.

If our country is to survive and to prosper, we need the best efforts of all Americans—men and women—to bring this, I think, proper attitude and atmosphere and results in America.

And besides, as one of the great philosophers once said—and it was Henry A. Kissinger—"Nobody will ever win the battle of the sexes. There is just too much fraternizing with the enemy."

Thank you very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 7:50 p.m. at the Sheraton-Carlton Hotel.

In his remarks, the President referred to Wauhilla LaHay, former president of the Washington Press Club, Miriam Ottenberg, chairman of the Press Club's inaugural party committee, and Marjorie Hunter, a reporter for the New York Times.

Following his remarks, the President administered the oath of office to Mr. Sarro.

U.S.-Soviet Treaty on the Limitation of Anti-Ballistic Missile Systems

The President's Message to the Senate Transmitting the Protocol to the Treaty for Advice and Consent to Ratification. September 19, 1974

To the Senate of the United States:

I transmit herewith the Protocol to the Treaty between the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics on the Limitation of Anti-Ballistic Missile Systems. This Protocol was signed in Moscow on July 3, 1974. I ask the Senate's advice and consent to its ratification.

The provisions of the Protocol are explained in detail in the report of the Department of State which I enclose. The main effect of the Protocol is to limit further the level and potential extent of ABM deployment permitted by the 1972 ABM Treaty. The Protocol furthers fundamental United States objectives set forth in President Nixon's message to the Senate of June 13, 1972, transmitting the Agreements reached at SALT ONE.

The ABM Treaty prohibits the deployment of operational ABM systems or their components except at two deployment areas, one centered on a Party's national capital area and the other in a separate area containing ICBM silo launchers. The Protocol would amend the Treaty to limit each Party to a single ABM deployment area at any one time, which level is consistent with the current level of deployment. However, each side would retain the right to remove its ABM system and the components thereof from their present deployment area and to deploy an ABM system or its components in the alternative deployment area permitted by the ABM Treaty. This right may be exercised only once.

This Protocol represents a further advance in the stabilization of the strategic relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union. It reinforces the ABM Treaty provision that neither Party will establish a nationwide ABM defense or a base for such a defense.

I believe that this Protocol strengthens the ABM Treaty and will, as an integral part of the Treaty, contribute to the reduction of international tension and a more secure and peaceful world in which the security of the United States is fully protected. I strongly recommend that the Senate give it prompt and favorable attention.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
September 19, 1974.

United States Participation in the United Nations

The President's Message to the Congress Transmitting the 28th Annual Report, Covering Calendar Year 1973. September 19, 1974

To the Congress of the United States:

I am pleased to send to the Congress the 28th annual report on United States participation in the work of the United Nations.

This report, covering Calendar Year 1973, encompasses the wide range of activities carried on by the United Nations and its subsidiary organizations. It demonstrates the growing conviction of United Nations members that many problems of international concern are best resolved through multilateral action, utilizing the machinery of mature international institutions.

In the fall of 1973 the United Nations demonstrated once again its ability to foster peace by the crucial role it played in the Middle East. Following the outbreak of war, the Security Council arranged a ceasefire and deployed United Nations troops to supervise disengagement agreements between Israel and Egypt and, later, between Israel and Syria. We cannot know what might have happened in the absence of such United Nations action. However, it is clear that the efforts of the United Nations, combined with bilateral diplomacy, are still crucial to promoting a just and lasting settlement of the Middle East dispute.

One area of increasing concern is the production and distribution of adequate supplies of food. Our concern with feeding the world can no longer be limited to relief activities in aid of victims of natural disasters. Population growth and better living standards have increased the total demand for food which in turn has increased the demand for energy sources and fertilizer. The pressure of these interlocking demands has pushed against limited supplies and caused spiraling prices. This is a worldwide problem requiring worldwide action for its solution. Secretary Kissinger proposed to the United Nations General Assembly in September 1973 that the organization sponsor a World Food Conference. The General Assembly acted favorably on this proposal and the Conference will be held in Rome in November 1974. The United States also took an active participation in the preparation for the first United Nations Conference on World Population, convened in Bucharest in August 1974.

The Third United Nations Conference on the Law of the Sea, which convened an organizational session in December 1973, is another example of how the United Nations can be utilized to attack contemporary world problems. The goal of the Law of the Sea Conference is a comprehensive international convention to govern man's use of the oceans. We need new understandings to govern international navigation, rational management of the ocean's living and non-living resources, and the protection of the life-sustaining processes of the marine environment. Success in the efforts to resolve conflicting claims over ocean jurisdiction would remove a major and growing source of conflict from the international arena.

The regular economic and social activities of the United Nations' family of organizations continued to absorb over 90 percent of its funds and personnel during 1973. In addition to the traditional operational programs, many special conferences during the year provided opportunities for nations to enlarge their understanding of and work toward consensus on such major international economic and social issues as development assistance, the role of multinational corporations, commodity agreements, and the economic rights and duties of states. Perhaps the most important series of negotiations were those held to carry out the first biennial review and appraisal of the progress toward the goals of the Second United Nations Development Decade. In these negotiations delegations from all parts of the world worked for months to formulate a report that refined the broad measures necessary to improve the world's economic and social situation. The United States played a leading role in these negotiations.

Unfortunately, not all international problems dealt with by the United Nations were successfully approached in 1973. For example, it is generally believed in the United States that terrorism against innocent third parties, including the hijacking of aircraft, is a matter of international concern that calls for international solutions. The divergence of political views among member states, however, has made it impossible to agree on either a general definition of terrorism or a remedy for it. Despite the limit thus placed on the effectiveness of the United Nations forum in dealing with the problem, a start was made in 1973 with the adoption by the General Assembly of the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of Crimes Against Internationally Protected Persons, Including Diplomatic Agents. On the other hand, neither the International Conference on Air Law nor the Assembly of the International Civil Aviation Organization, which met simultaneously, made progress on measures to improve security for aircraft passengers.

An important part of the United Nations record in 1973 was the admission to membership of the Federal Republic of Germany, the German Democratic Republic, and The Bahamas—admissions the United States supported. The United Nations has thus become still more representative of the world community.

Our participation in the United Nations reflects our fundamental belief that to assure a peaceful world it is necessary to cooperate with other nations in a multilateral framework on mutually agreed upon activities. This report records the successes and failures, the hopes and frustrations of many of those activities. Above all it records what we tried to accomplish through the United Nations to further the many interests that our citizens and our country share with the world community.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
September 19, 1974.

NOTE: The 416-page report is entitled "U.S. Participation in the UN, Report by the President to the Congress for the Year 1973."

Johnny Horizon '76 Clean Up America Month, 1974

Proclamation 4315. September 19, 1974

*By the President of the United States of America
a Proclamation*

Although our Nation's 200th birthday is less than two years away, much has been accomplished through the Johnny Horizon '76 Program toward improving the environment of our country for this historic event. But much remains to be done. To date, thousands of schools; churches; youth groups; chambers of commerce; conservation, civic and commercial organizations and millions of private citizens have joined in partnership with Johnny Horizon '76 in a wide range of projects to create environmental awareness and to beautify America.

Our most precious environment is the area in which we live—our city streets and rural towns—and this is where each individual can effectively exercise his responsibility. This has been exemplified by the many action projects which have been undertaken thus far across our country.

We need to continue these improvements. To dramatize this need, the Congress has by House Joint Resolution 1070, 93rd Congress, requested the President to proclaim the period of September 15, 1974, to October 15, 1974, as "Johnny Horizon '76 Clean Up America Month."

NOW, THEREFORE, I, GERALD R. FORD, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim the period September 15 through October 15, 1974, as Johnny Horizon '76 Clean Up America Month and ask our Nation's attention to the Johnny Horizon '76 environmental awareness and action program for America's 200th birthday and related Bicentennial activities. I urge representatives of business, industry, labor, Government, civic groups, and other citizens to continue to join together to demonstrate the significant results that can be realized when Americans translate their concern into affirmative action. I further urge a continuation of neighborhood and community cleanups, beautification programs, resource recovery and education programs, energy and wildlife conservation efforts and other worthwhile activities.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this nineteenth day of September, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-four and of the Independence of the United States of America, the one hundred ninety-ninth.

GERALD R. FORD

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 2:55 p.m.,
September 20, 1974]

Federal Pay Raise

*Statement by the President Following Senate Action Disapproving Deferral of the Raise.
September 19, 1974*

While disappointed in today's Senate vote, I am in agreement with the Congress that Federal employees deserve this pay increase. It was painful for me to ask the Congress to defer this raise for 3 months. I know I had asked the Congress to do a difficult thing. But there was a compelling reason. I refer to the inflationary momentum which I regard as domestic public enemy number one. That is why I had requested the Congress and the Federal employees to cooperate.

Now that the Congress has acted, I will proceed to reach a decision as quickly as possible, within the prescribed discretionary limits, on the precise amount of the raise.

The need to reduce Federal spending continues. I sincerely hope that the Congress will join with me in this effort.

Alexandria, Virginia

The President's Remarks at a Reception at the Belle Haven Country Club for Representative Stanford E. Parris. September 19, 1974

Thank you very, very much, Stan.

I think most of you know I was originally scheduled to get together and help Stan, if he thought it might be helpful, before I got this new job and this new responsibility. I wanted to do it then, and I am here now because the Fords lived in Stan's Congressional district a good part of the time in the last several years, and we thought as a constituent of Stan's that he did a first-class job.

We talked with our neighbors. That was their impression, and, of course, it fortified my own deep conviction that Stan was an outstanding Member of the Congress.

I had an opportunity to work with him following his swearing in. I was impressed not only with his background when he served all of you so well; I was impressed with Stan's willingness to look at an issue and to decide it on its merits.

He was independent when he thought he was right and I was wrong. It didn't happen too often. [Laughter] But when he agreed with me, he was a strong and staunch ally and was very effective in helping to get others to join us in whatever the issue was.

So, on the basis of his experience, on the basis of Stan's willingness to be a real team player, and yet on the respect that I had for him to be independent when he thought it was the right thing to do, I am delighted to be here and to show to all of you and to any others that might be interested that I think Stan Parris has done a great job, and I surely hope he is reelected.

It was a wonderful thing for me to meet, as I came to the door, your fine Governor, Mills Godwin. I said to Mills, when he was campaigning last fall, that I envied the State of Virginia when he was a Democratic Governor because I thought he did a great job. And I was so pleased to contribute to a very minor degree last fall when he was a candidate, because I think he has proven to all of us that the State of Virginia is lucky to have him as a Governor.

I see some of my former House colleagues here. They are the kind of people that, in my judgment, make a good representative in the House of Representatives.

Bob, it is nice to see you. Is anybody else here? Dan? Is Kenny here? Well, those are the kind of people that I think are first-class.

I did see Dick Obenshain, and I think you know how strongly I feel about him. He is our new Cochairman of the Republican Party in the United States, and we are fortunate to have Dick joining us in trying to broaden our party's representation on a nationwide basis.

I just would like to conclude by expressing my appreciation for all of you being here to show your support for Stan. Stan is a first-class Member of the House of Representatives, and I am going to rely on him in this session, and I know that he will be back so I can rely on him in the next Congress.

Thank you very, very much.

NOTE: The President spoke at 6:45 p.m. at the Belle Haven Country Club, Alexandria, Va.

In his remarks, the President referred to members of the Virginia Congressional delegation: Robert W. Daniel, Jr., W. C. (Dan) Daniel, and J. Kenneth Robinson.

Budget Deferrals and Rescissions

The President's Message to the Congress Transmitting the Deferrals and Rescissions. September 20, 1974

To the Congress of the United States:

The recently enacted Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974 provides new procedures for executive reporting and congressional review of actions by the executive branch affecting the flow of Federal spending. It thereby serves to make the Congress a full partner in the continuing struggle to keep Federal spending under control.

The new law provides that the executive branch may seek to alter the normal course of spending either through deferrals of spending actions or by asking the Congress to rescind authority to spend. The use of funds may be deferred unless either House of the Congress enacts a resolution requiring that they be made available for spending. For executive rescission proposals to take effect, the Congress must enact rescission bills within 45 days of continuous session.

Following these procedures, I am today reporting the first in a series of deferrals and proposed rescissions.

As is often the case in the institution of new procedures, and in the implementation of new laws, there are questions as to what the law may require of the executive branch and what the Congress may expect. In this instance, the Attorney General has determined that this act applies only to determinations to withhold budget authority which have been made since the law was approved.

However, I am including in today's submission to the Congress reports on some actions which were concluded before the effective date of the act. While these items are not subject, in the Attorney General's opinion, to congressional ratification or disapproval as are those addressed in the recent law, I believe that it is appropriate that I use this occasion to transmit this information to the Congress.

Reasonable men frequently differ on interpretation of law. The law to which this message pertains is no exception. It is particularly important that the executive and legislative branches develop a common understanding as to its operation. Such an understanding is both in keeping with the spirit of partnership implicit in the law and essential for its effective use. As we begin management of the Federal budget under this new statute, I would appreciate further guidance from the Congress. The added information on the status of funds not subject to Congressional action is being made available with this in mind. It will also permit a better understanding of the status of some funds reported previously under the earlier impoundment reporting law.

Virtually all of the actions included in this report were anticipated in the 1975 budget, and six of them were taken before July 12, when the new procedures came into effect. Failure to take these actions would cause more than $20 billion of additional funds to become available for obligation. The immediate release of these funds would raise Federal spending by nearly $600 million in the current fiscal year. More significantly, outlays would rise by over $2 billion in 1976 and even more in 1977, the first year in which the new procedures for congressional review of the budget will be in full effect.

The deferrals of budget authority being reported today total $19.8 billion. The major deferrals are:

- Grants for waste treatment plant construction ($9 billion). Release of all these funds would be highly inflationary, particularly in view of the rapid rise in non-Federal spending for pollution control. Some of the funds now deferred will be allotted on or prior to February 1, 1975.
- Federal aid highway funds ($4.4 billion for fiscal year 1975 and $6.4 billion for fiscal year 1976). Release of these funds would also be highly inflationary and would have to be offset by cuts in higher priority programs. Some of the funds are being withheld pending resolution of court cases concerning the environmental effects of proposed highway construction.

- Various programs of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare ($39.6 million). Pending enactment of the 1975 appropriations, HEW funds are being provided under a continuing resolution. Amounts available under the continuing resolution above the budget request are deferred to preserve the flexibility of the Congress and the Administration in arriving at a final decision on the funding levels for these programs.

The larger of the two rescissions which I am proposing would write off the $456 million of budget authority provided for rural electric and telephone loans at a 2 percent interest rate. The release of these funds would be inconsistent with the legislation enacted in 1973, which limits the availability of 2 percent loans to cases of special need. Loans to borrowers who meet the specified criteria can be financed out of funds provided by the pending Agriculture Appropriations Act.

The deferrals and rescissions covered in this first report are those believed to be of particular interest to the Congress and which would have significant impact on budget spending if released. They are summarized in the attached table. A second report of a series on additional deferrals and rescissions will be submitted to the Congress soon.

Budgetary restraint remains a crucial factor in our efforts to bring inflation under control. In today's environment, we cannot allow excess Federal spending to stimulate demand in a way that exerts further pressures on prices. And we cannot expect others to exercise necessary restraint unless the Government itself does so.

The responsible apportionment of congressional appropriations and other Federal budget authority is an essential—though often controversial—element of budget execution. Sound management principles and common sense dictate that Federal agencies spend money in an orderly fashion and only to the extent necessary to carry out the objectives for which the spending authority was provided. Current economic conditions require extra care to assure that Federal spending is held to the minimum levels necessary.

The deferrals and rescissions described in the attached report represent an essential step toward the goal of reducing spending and achieving the balanced budget we seek by fiscal year 1976. These actions, by themselves, will not be enough. However, failure to take and sustain this important step would jeopardize our ability to control Federal spending not only during the current fiscal year but, more importantly, for several years to come.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
September 20, 1974.

Department of the Army

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Harold L. Brownman To Be Assistant Secretary for Installations and Logistics. September 17, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Harold L. Brownman, of Rockville, Md., to be an Assistant Secretary of the Army for Installations and Logistics. He will succeed Eugene E. Berg, who resigned effective July 15, 1974.

In March of 1973, he became Deputy Director for Management and Services of the Central Intelligence Agency after serving as Director of Special Projects. In 1967, he became vice president of systems for LTV ElectroSystems, Inc. From 1958 to 1967, he was assistant to the division director of the Airborne Instruments Laboratory, which is a division of Cutler-Hammer. He had previously served, in 1958, as program director of the Fairchild Camera and Instrument Corp. From 1957 to 1958, he had been laboratory manager of the Fairchild Controls Corp. after serving as research engineer of the Fairchild Camera and Instrument Corp.

Mr. Brownman was born on May 21, 1923, in New York City and received his B.E.E. from the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn. In 1949, he received his M.E.E. from the Polytechnic Institute. He joined the teaching staff of the Polytechnic Institute in 1946. In 1948, he became an engineer with the Fairchild Engine and Airplane Company. From 1950 to 1952, he was an engineer with SERVO Mechanisms before joining TELE Register Corp. as an engineer. In 1954, he became senior engineer of the American Bosch Arma Corp. until joining the Fairchild Corp.

He is married to the former Edith Heller, and they have three children. They reside in Rockville, Md.

Department of the Navy

Announcement of Intention To Nominate H. Tyler Marcy To Be Assistant Secretary for Research and Development. September 17, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate H. Tyler Marcy, of Brewster, Mass., to be Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Research and Development. He will succeed David Samuel Potter, who was appointed Under Secretary of the Navy on August 27, 1974.

Since 1972, he has been a self-employed consultant after serving as director of technology for the IBM Corp. in Armonk, N.Y., from 1968 to 1972. In 1962, he became vice president, general products division, systems development division, of the IBM Corp. He had previously been laboratory manager for IBM in Poughkeepsie, N.Y. From 1956 to 1957, he was assistant manager of product development for the IBM Corp. and was employed in the navigation computer, character recognition, data processing systems for IBM in Endicott, N.Y. In 1946, he became associate director for the special projects department for the M. W. Kellogg Co.

Mr. Marcy was born on September 14, 1918, in Rochester, N.Y., and received his B.S. degree from M.I.T. He received his M.S. from M.I.T. in 1941 before working in the servomechanism laboratory at M.I.T. He is a member of the Instrument Society of America and the Institute of Electrical Electronic Engineers.

He is married to the former Cynthia Spencer, and they have five children. They reside in Brewster, Mass.

Department of the Navy

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Gary Dean Penisten To Be Assistant Secretary for Financial Management. September 17, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Gary Dean Penisten, of Southport, Conn., to be Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Financial Management. He will succeed Robert D. Nesen, who resigned effective May 1, 1974.

He is currently manager, group finance operation, power generation business group, for the General Electric Co. He served as manager, strategic planning operation of the industrial and marine turbine business division, from 1971 to 1972. He had served as manager, finance, medium steam turbine, of the generator department. In 1965, he served as manager for the program and staff management after he had been audit administrator since 1963. From 1958 to 1963, he served as a cost estimator and junior to the supervising traveling auditor of the corporate audit staff, after having trained in the appliance park project since 1953.

Mr. Penisten was born on May 14, 1931, in Lincoln, Nebr., and received his B.S. degree from the University of Omaha in 1953. He served as a first lieutenant in the United States Army Reserve from 1950 to 1963.

He is married to the former Nancy M. Golding, and they have four children. They reside in Southport, Conn.

Department of Commerce

Announcement of Intention To Nominate James Leonard Pate To Be Assistant Secretary for Economic Affairs. September 17, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate James Leonard Pate, of Akron, Ohio, to be an Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Economic Affairs. He will succeed Sidney L. Jones, who was appointed as a Deputy Assistant to the President on July 10, 1974.

Mr. Pate is currently the director of business research and chief economist for the B. F. Goodrich Co. in Akron. From 1965 to 1968, he served as a consultant to various private industries. In 1968, he became an economist with the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland, and later became the senior economist.

He was born in Mt. Sterling, Ill., on September 6, 1935, and received his A.B. degree from Monmouth College in 1963. He received his M.B.A. degree in 1964 from Indiana University. He served as an assistant professor of economics at Monmouth College from 1965 to 1968. Previously, he had been a teaching associate at the Graduate School of Business at Indiana University from 1964 to 1965, where he had also been a graduate assistant.

He and his wife, Donna, have three children, and they reside in Akron, Ohio.

National Mediation Board

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Kay McMurray for Reappointment as a Member of the Board. September 17, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Kay McMurray, of Hinsdale, Ill., for reappointment as a member of the National Mediation Board for a term expiring July 1, 1977. He was initially appointed on October 3, 1972, to serve a term expiring July 1, 1974.

Mr. McMurray was born March 18, 1918, in Oakley, Idaho, and received his A.B. degree from Stanford University in 1940. He joined United Air Lines in 1940 and became a captain in 1942 after attending flight school and serving as a copilot for 13 months. During this time, he was elected to the United Air Lines pilot negotiating committee. From 1949 to 1953, Mr. McMurray returned to Boise, Idaho, where he was assistant to the president of Inland Empire Insurance Co., a registered representative (NYSE) with Wegener & Daly, and legislative representative for the Western Highway Institute.

From 1953 to 1971, Mr. McMurray was executive administrator of the Air Line Pilots Association, and from 1971 to 1972 he was special consultant to the president of United Air Lines.

Mr. McMurray is married. He and his wife have three children.

The National Mediation Board was established in 1934 and consists of three members, not more than two of whom may be members of the same political party. The Board designates its own Chairman annually. The principal duty of the Board is to mediate differences between the railroads, the express and Pullman companies, and the airlines on the one hand, and their employees on the other, growing out of their attempts to make and maintain agreements establishing rates of pay, rules, and working conditions of the employees as directed by the Railway Labor Act.

National Employ the Handicapped Week, 1974

Proclamation 4314. September 17, 1974

*By the President of the United States of America
a Proclamation*

The single greatest difficulty facing the handicapped person is not his or her own disability but rather the attitudes of society toward that disability. Yet handicapped people have proven themselves capable of performing a wide range of jobs with great diligence, skill, and efficiency.

As scientists, teachers, Government officials, aerospace engineers—in nearly every occupation—otherwise qualified but handicapped Americans have contributed significantly to our Nation's progress.

Let us resolve in 1974 to make use of the talents and abilities and energies of the handicapped. Our Nation needs them.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, GERALD R. FORD, President of the United States of America, in accordance with the joint resolution of Congress approved August 11, 1945, as amended (36 U.S.C. 155), designating the first week in October of each year as National Employ the Handicapped Week, do hereby call upon the people of the United States to observe the week beginning October 6, 1974, for such purpose.

I urge the Nation's Governors, Mayors, and all other public officials, as well as leaders in every area of American life, to join with the handicapped themselves in active participation in this observance.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this seventeenth day of September, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America, the one hundred ninety-ninth.

GERALD R. FORD

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 2:17 p.m.,
September 17, 1974]

GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE UNITED NATIONS

*The President's Address to the 29th Session of the General Assembly.
September 18, 1974*

Mr. President, Mr. Secretary General, your Excellencies:

In 1946, President Harry Truman welcomed representatives of 55 nations to the first General Assembly of the United Nations. Since then, every American President has had the great honor of addressing this Assembly.

Today, with pleasure and humility, I take my turn in welcoming you, the distinguished representatives of 138 nations.

When I took office, I told the American people that my remarks would be "just a little straight talk among friends." Straight talk is what I propose here today in the first of my addresses to the representatives of the world.

Next week, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger will present in specifics the overall principles which I will outline in my remarks today. It should be emphatically understood that the Secretary of State has my full support and the unquestioned backing of the American people.

As a party leader in the Congress of the United States, as Vice President, and now as President of the United States of America, I have had the closest working relationship with Secretary of State Kissinger. I have supported and will continue to endorse his many efforts as Secretary of State and in our National Security Council system to build a world of peace.

Since the United Nations was founded, the world has experienced conflicts and threats to peace, but we have avoided the greatest danger—another world war. Today, we have the opportunity to make the remainder of this century an era of peace and cooperation and economic well-being.

The harsh hostilities which once held great powers in their rigid grasp have now begun to moderate. Many of the crises which dominated past General Assemblies are fortunately behind us. And technological progress holds out the hope that one day all men can achieve a decent life.

Nations too often have had no choice but to be either hammer or anvil, to strike or to be struck. Now we have a new opportunity—to forge, in concert with others, a framework of international cooperation. That is the course the United States has chosen for itself.

On behalf of the American people, I renew these basic pledges to you today.

—We are committed to a pursuit of a more peaceful, stable, and cooperative world. While we are determined never to be bested in a test of strength, we will devote our strength to what is best. And in the nuclear era, there is no rational alternative to accords of mutual restraint between the United States and the Soviet Union, two nations which have the power to destroy mankind.

—We will bolster our partnerships with traditional friends in Europe, Asia, and Latin America to meet new challenges in a rapidly changing world. The maintenance of such relationships underpins rather than undercuts the search for peace.

—We will seek out, we will expand our relations with old adversaries. For example, our new rapport with the People's Republic of China best serves the purposes of each nation and the interests of the entire world.

—We will strive to heal old wounds, reopened in recent conflicts in Cyprus, the Middle East, and in Indochina. Peace cannot be imposed from without, but we will do whatever is within our capacity to help achieve it.

—We rededicate ourselves to the search for justice, equality, and freedom. Recent developments in Africa signal the welcome end of colonialism. Behavior appropriate to an era of dependence must give way to the new responsibilities of an era of interdependence.

No single nation, no single group of nations, no single organization can meet all of the challenges before the community of nations. We must act in concert. Progress toward a better world must come through cooperative efforts across the whole range of bilateral and multilateral relations.

America's revolutionary birth and centuries of experience in adjusting democratic government to changing conditions have made Americans practical as well as idealistic. As idealists, we are proud of our role in the founding of the United Nations and in supporting its many accomplishments. As practical people, we are sometimes impatient at what we see as shortcomings.

In my 25 years as a Member of the Congress of the United States, I learned two basic practical lessons:

First, men of differing political persuasions can find common ground for cooperation. We need not agree on all issues in order to agree on most. Differences of principle, of purpose, of perspective will not disappear. But neither will our mutual problems disappear unless we are determined to find mutually helpful solutions.

Second, a majority must take into account the proper interest of a minority if the decisions of the majority are to be accepted. We who believe in and live by majority rule must always be alert to the danger of the "tyranny of the majority." Majority rule thrives on the habits of accommodation, moderation, and consideration of the interests of others.

A very stark reality has tempered America's actions for decades and must now temper the actions of all nations. Prevention of full-scale warfare in the nuclear age has become everybody's responsibility. Today's regional conflict must not become tomorrow's world disaster. We must assure by every means at our disposal that local crises are quickly contained and resolved.

The challenge before the United States [Nations] is very clear. This organization can place the weight of the world community on the side of world peace. And this organization can provide impartial forces to maintain the peace.

And at this point I wish to pay tribute on behalf of the American people to the 37 members of the United Nations peacekeeping forces who have given their lives in the Middle East and in Cyprus in the past 10 months, and I convey our deepest sympathies to their loved ones.

Let the quality of our response measure up to the magnitude of the challenge that we face. I pledge to you that America will continue to be constructive, innovative, and responsive to the work of this great body.

SUMMARY
PROPOSED RESCISSIONS AND DEFERRALS
 (DOLLARS IN THOUSANDS)

Item	Budget Authority
Rescissions:
Appalachian Regional Development Programs: Air- port Construction*-----	$40, 000
Agriculture: Rural Electrification Administration: Loans*-----	455, 635
Deferrals:
To be deferred part of year:
Corps of Engineers—General construction-----	108
Health, Education and Welfare:
Library resources-----	5, 437
Higher education:
(University community services)-----	2, 906
(Land grant colleges)-----	9, 500
(State postsecondary education commissions)---	350
School assistance in federally affected areas-----	16, 000
Rehabilitation services (innovation and expan- sion)-----	5, 000
Public assistance (Child welfare services)-----	375
Environmental Protection Agency: Construction Grants*-----	9, 000, 000
General Services Administration: Automatic data processing fund-----	4, 300
To be deferred for entire year:
Agriculture: Agriculture research service (Construc- tion)*-----	770
Commerce: Fisheries loan fund*-----	4, 039
Interior:
Oregon and California Grant lands*-----	23, 693
Construction and rehabilitation-----	1, 055
Upper Colorado River Basin fund-----	1, 150
State: International Center, Washington, D.C.-----	500
Transportation: Federal-aid highways
1975 & prior programs-----	4, 370, 090
1976 program-----	6, 357, 500
Foreign Claims Settlement Commission: Payment to Vietnam prisoners of war-----	10, 500
General Services Administration: Automatic data processing fund-----	14, 000
Total-----	20, 322, 908

*Action taken prior to enactment of the Impoundment Control Act on July 12, 1974.

NOTE: For the President's memorandum to the heads of departments and agencies concerning the rescissions and deferrals, see the following item.

Budget Deferrals and Rescissions

The President's Memorandum to the Heads of Departments and Agencies. September 20, 1974

I have today sent to the Congress my first special message under Title X of the recently enacted Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974. A copy of that message is attached.

The package I have submitted contains reports on budget authority totalling $20.3 billion. Included among these items are some which are not covered by the new Act, but release of virtually any of them would lead to spending above that contemplated by the FY 1975 Budget.

Gaining congressional support for the items contained in this transmittal, and for those I will be sending up in the future under this Act, is absolutely vital if we are to make any headway against inflation by controlling Federal expenditures. This Government must set an example of fiscal restraint for the people of America and the world.

Each of you knows my position on cutting back below 1975 Budget levels. I need your strong assistance in supporting this first critical step, and the others that follow, to meet our budgetary goals. I know I can count on you to work closely with the Congress in order to gain the necessary acceptance of the deferrals and rescissions I propose today and in the future.

GERALD R. FORD

Counsel to the President

Announcement of Appointment of William E. Casselman II. September 20, 1974

The President today announced the appointment of William E. Casselman II, as a Counsel to the President. Mr. Casselman will be associated with Philip W. Buchen, who is Counsel to the President with Cabinet rank, and with Phillip E. Areeda, whose appointment as Counsel to the President and member of his senior staff has been announced to begin October 14.

Mr. Casselman had served as Legal Counsel to the Vice President since December 12, 1973. From 1971 to 1973, he was General Counsel of the General Services Administration. In 1969, he was appointed Deputy Special Assistant to the President for Congressional Relations. From 1965 to 1969, he was Legislative Assistant to Congressman Robert McClory of Illinois.

Mr. Casselman is admitted to the District of Columbia and Virginia State Bars and is a member of the American and Federal Bar Associations. He currently serves on the National Council of the Federal Bar Association and was the 1973-74 chairman of the general counsels committee. He is a recent recipient of the Association's distinguished service commendation. From 1971 to 1973, he served as a member of the Administrative Conference of the United States.

Born on July 8, 1941, in Washington, Pa., and raised in Deerfield, Ill., Mr. Casselman holds a J.D. degree from the George Washington University Law School and a B.A. degree in government from Claremont Men's College. He is married to the former Caroline Murfitt of Weston, Mass. They have two daughters and reside in Alexandria, Va.

United States Tariff Commission

Announcement of Intention To Nominate Daniel Minchew as a Member of the Commission. September 20, 1974

The President today announced his intention to nominate Daniel Minchew, of Baxley, Ga., to be a member of the United States Tariff Commission. He will succeed Jefferson Banks Young, who resigned effective June 24, 1974.

Since 1971, Mr. Minchew has been Administrative Assistant to Senator Herman E. Talmadge, in charge of the Senator's Washington and Georgia offices. In 1969, he became the legislative director of the United States-Japan Trade Council after having served as assistant Washington representative of the National Cotton Council from 1966 to 1969. He had previously been an instructor at the University of Georgia in the department of political science.

Mr. Minchew was born on September 9, 1939, in Savannah, Ga. He received his A.B. degree from the University of Georgia in 1961 and his M.A. from Oxford University in 1963. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and the U.S. Senate Administrative Assistants and Secretary's Club.

He is married to the former Shirley Coffield of Eagle Creek, Oreg. They reside in Washington, D.C.

Postal Rate Commission

Announcement of Appointment of Clyde S. DuPont as a Commissioner. September 20, 1974

The President today announced the appointment of Clyde S. DuPont of Virginia to be a Commissioner of the Postal Rate Commission. He will succeed Rod Kreger, who resigned effective January 7, 1974.

Since 1969, Mr. DuPont has been Minority Counsel for the Post Office and Civil Service Committee after having served as a professional staff member of the Judiciary Committee from 1967 to 1968. From 1964 to 1967, he was Legislative Assistant to Senator Hiram L. Fong, after having served as his research assistant and file clerk since 1960.

He was born on December 28, 1933, in Waialua, Hawaii. He received his B.S. degree from Brigham Young University in 1959 and his J.D. degree from George Washington University Law School in February 1963. He served as a staff sergeant in the United States Air Force from 1952 to 1956. He is a member of the District of Columbia Bar Association.

He is married to the former Joan Kimball, and they have three children. They reside in Alexandria, Va.

The Career Civil Service

The President's Memorandum for Heads of Executive Departments and Agencies. September 20, 1974

Whatever else, recent experience has proven one thing about the Federal Government: It can continue to function and move ahead even under the most difficult circumstances. This is due chiefly to more than two million career civil servants who, day-in and day-out, give of themselves in a thoroughly dedicated and efficient manner to assure this continuity.

These men and women act in the best traditions of the career civil service which has demanded from them for more than 90 years the highest degree of professionalism and competence. In return, it has assured them of a competitive system free from political considerations either in their appointments or in their promotions.

I intend to keep it that way—and I call upon you to see to it that the merit principles contained in the Civil Service Act and the personnel laws and regulations are fully and effectively carried out in your department or agency. Appointments and promotions in the career service must not be made on the basis of either politics, race, creed or sex.

I have informed the Chairman of the United States Civil Service Commission of my determination to keep the Federal career service just that—a career service in which men and women can be accepted in the first place on their ability and promoted on their merit. I ask you to make sure your agency fully complies with both the letter and the spirit of the law in this regard.

GERALD R. FORD

White House Inspection of Tax Returns

Executive Order 11805. September 20, 1974

INSPECTION BY PRESIDENT AND CERTAIN DESIGNATED EMPLOYEES OF THE WHITE HOUSE OFFICE OF TAX RETURNS MADE UNDER THE INTERNAL REVENUE CODE OF 1954

By virtue of the authority vested in me as President of the United States, and in the interest of protecting the right of taxpayers to privacy and confidentiality regarding their tax affairs consistent with proper internal management of the Government, and in the further interest of maintaining the integrity of the self-assessment system of Federal taxation, it is hereby ordered that any return, as defined in Section 301.6103(a)-1 of the Treasury Regulations on Procedure and Administration (26 CFR Part 301) as amended from time to time, made by a taxpayer in respect of any tax described in Section 301.6103(a)-1(a)(2) of such regulations shall be delivered to or open to inspection by the President only upon written request signed by the President personally.

Any such request for delivery or inspection shall be addressed to the Secretary of the Treasury or his delegate and shall state: (i) the name and address of the taxpayer whose return is to be inspected, (ii) the kind of return or returns which are to be inspected, and (iii) the taxable period or periods covered by such return or returns.

In any such request for delivery or inspection, the President may designate by name an employee or employees of the White House Office who are authorized on behalf of the President to receive any such return or make such inspection, provided that the President will not so designate an employee unless such employee is the holder of a Presidential commission whose annual rate of basic pay equals or exceeds the annual rate of basic pay prescribed by 5 U.S.C. 5316. No disclosure of such return, or any data contained therein or derived therefrom shall be made by such employee except to the President, without the written direction of the President.

All persons obtaining access to such return, or any data contained therein or derived therefrom shall in all respects be subject to the provisions of 26 U.S.C. 6103, as amended.

GERALD R. FORD

The White House,
September 20, 1974.

[Filed with the Office of the Federal Register, 4:42 p.m.,
September 20, 1974]

Press Secretary to the President

The President's Remarks Announcing the Appointment of Ronald H. Nessen, With Mr. Nessen's Response, September 20, 1974

MR. HUSHEN. Ladies and gentlemen, the President of the United States.

THE PRESIDENT. Thank you very much, Jack.

This is an opportunity for me to make a very, very pleasing announcement. I think I am very, very fortunate on this occasion to have the opportunity of announcing to all of you and to others, in fact, that Ron Nessen is going to be my Press Secretary.

Ron, as you know, has a superb reputation—standing—in the electronic media, but I was pleased to find out in my discussions with him that he has a background in the writing press.

So we are very fortunate to have someone like Ron who not only knows the writing but also the electronic press.

I had the opportunity of getting acquainted with Ron in the many, many trips that he took with me on Air Force Two. I think the number is some 57. So, in that luxurious aircraft—[laughter]—in the many travels we made around the country, I was given the opportunity of getting to know Ron very well.

I admired his skill and objectivity as a reporter. I enjoyed his company. I was greatly impressed with his ability and overall approach to the problems that I faced and others did.

So when I asked Ron if he would take the job, I couldn't have been more pleased.

I must say that this announcement comes at a somewhat unique time. I just spent 2½ hours with one of the leading Communists, and now I am about to meet with one of the most wealthy and influential capitalists.¹ So in between those two meetings, it is my privilege and pleasure to indicate to all of you that Ron Nessen will be my Press Secretary, and I couldn't be more pleased.

MR. NESSEN. Thank you, Mr. President.

THE PRESIDENT. Fine, Ron. You are the boss.

MR. NESSEN. My wife said to tell you that this entitles you to one free dancing lesson. [Laughter]

THE PRESIDENT. I need it. [Laughter]

MR. NESSEN. Thank you very much for the trust you put in me, and I will try to live up to it.

THE PRESIDENT. I have no doubt about it, Ron.

So, I will turn the job over to Ron. He has my full backing and support, and I think I am very lucky to have somebody like him handling the job.

MR. NESSEN. You are not going to leave me out here all alone, are you?

THE PRESIDENT. You better get used to it. No, I am going to stand here until you finish your remarks.

MR. NESSEN. Well, I did want to say a couple of things.

I hope the White House Press Corps is ready for another Ron. I am a Ron, but not a Ziegler, I can tell you that.

I do want to say a couple of things. One is that I will never knowingly lie to the White House Press Corps. I will never knowingly mislead the White House Press Corps, and, I think, if I ever do, you would be justified in questioning my continued usefulness in this job.

¹ The President was referring to his meetings with Soviet Foreign Minister A. A. Gromyko and David Rockefeller.

My concept of the job is that a Press Secretary does not always have to agree with the decisions of the President. I think a Press Secretary's job is to report to you the actions of the President, why he has taken the actions, how he has arrived at the action.

I don't think that the Press Secretary and the press are natural antagonists. I think we really both have the same aim. I have been out on the other side for a long time, and now I am on this side, but I think we have the same aim, which is to get as much news as possible about what goes on in this place to the American people.

Obviously, the Press Secretary needs to know what is going on to do that job, and I have been assured that I will know what is going on.

I don't expect to be a salesman for the President. I am not going to try to sell his programs to you.

I am apolitical. Like most of you, I have worked on covering most of the political campaigns of the last 15 years. The last time I voted, I am ashamed to say, was in 1960, when I voted for John Kennedy. Other than that, I have no affiliation with any political party.

I think my models in trying to do this job will be Bill Moyers for his knowledge and his honesty and the amount of information that he put out, Pierre Salinger for the good humor and the good fellowship and the grace that he brought to this job, and I would hope to be able to earn as much respect from you as Jerry terHorst had.

I think it is probably too late to go back to a honeymoon, but maybe we could have a trial reconciliation.

Thank you very much, Mr. President.

THE PRESIDENT. Thank you, Ron.

We are very proud to have him, and we look forward to working together.

I will leave you to your friends.

Thank you very much.

NOTE: Deputy Press Secretary John W. Hushen introduced the President at 1:45 p.m. in the Briefing Room at the White House. Following Mr. Nessen's remarks, he answered reporters' questions. The White House press release also included the question-and-answer session.

For a release on the appointment of Mr. Nessen, see the following item.

Press Secretary to the President

*Announcement of Appointment of Ronald H. Nessen.
September 20, 1974*

The President today announced the appointment of Ronald H. Nessen of Maryland as Press Secretary to the President.

Mr. Nessen joined the staff of United Press International in Washington in 1956, working there until 1962, when he joined the National Broadcasting Co.

His first NBC assignment was in Washington, where he served from 1962 to 1965 as a White House correspondent during the term of President Johnson. He was assigned to Southeast Asia by NBC in 1965 and covered Vietnam until he was wounded by a grenade fragment in 1966. He returned to Washington and later that year was assigned to New York, where he anchored a weekly Vietnam television report and a 5-minute daily Vietnam report on the Today show.

In 1967, Mr. Nessen received a series of foreign assignments from NBC, covering Latin America, Asia, Africa, and then London. He returned to the United States, where he covered the Presidential campaign of 1968. After that, he was based in Washington, specializing in urban affairs. When Gerald Ford became Vice President, Mr. Nessen was assigned to cover most of the 118,000 miles traveled by the Vice President. When President Ford took office in August, 1974, Mr. Nessen became NBC's White House correspondent.

He was born in Washington, D.C., May 25, 1934. Mr. Nessen attended American University, where he majored in history.

He is married to the former Young Hi Song of Seoul, South Korea, and has two children, Edward 1½, and Caren, 18. The Nesses live in Bethesda, Md.

Digest of Other White House Announcements

Following is a listing of items of general interest which were announced to the press during the period covered by this issue but which are not carried elsewhere in the issue. Appointments requiring Senate approval are not included since they appear in the list of nominations submitted to the Senate, below.

September 14

The President met at the White House with the National Security Council.

Stanley R. Resor, U.S. Representative for Mutual and Balanced Force Reductions Negotiations, met with the President for consultation prior to the resumption of the talks in Vienna on September 24.

The President greeted Patti Albers, of Phoenix, Md., the one millionth visitor to the White House in 1974.

September 15

The President hosted a reception at the White House for members of the Republican National Committee and the Republican National Finance Committee.

September 16

The President met with the bipartisan Congressional leadership to discuss the program for the return of Vietnam era draft evaders and military deserters.

September 17

The President met with the Cabinet at the White House.

The President met with Secretary of State Kissinger, Secretary of Agriculture Butz, OMB Director Ash, and Chairman Greenspan of the Council of Economic Advisers. They discussed the domestic crop situation, the Public Law 480 program, and the World Food Conference to be held in Rome in November.

The White House announced that the President has asked Dr. Paul W. McCracken, former Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, to serve as Special Consultant to the President to assist in the Summit Conference on Inflation.

William P. Clements, Jr., Deputy Secretary of Defense and Chairman of the Combined Federal Campaign, met with the President to discuss plans for the Campaign. Also participating in the meeting were Senator Edward W. Brooke and Speaker of the House Carl Albert, Vice Chairmen of the Campaign.

The President met with Secretary of Transportation Brinegar, Secretary of the Treasury Simon, Chairman Burns of the Federal Reserve Board, Chairman Greenspan of the Council of Economic Advisers, and other Government officials to discuss the financial condition of the international air carriers. Secretary Brinegar described the Administration's program of specific steps which are underway and will improve the financial health of U.S. flag carriers. On the following day, the White House announced that the President had decided that the Administration will not support the request of Pan American World Airways for direct Federal subsidy.

Former Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel met with the President.

The President hosted a working dinner for Senate bipartisan leaders and ranking committee members to discuss reductions in the fiscal 1975 budget.

September 18

The President met at the White House with a delegation of European parliamentarians who were visiting the United States as part of an annual program in which Members of the U.S. Congress and the European Parliaments exchange visits.

September 19

The President held a breakfast meeting at the White House with a bipartisan group of Congressional leaders and the Chairmen and ranking Republican members of the Armed Services Committees to review procedures for Congressional oversight of CIA covert operations.

The President today accepted with deep regret the resignation of James R. Roach as a member of the Board of Foreign Scholarships. The President expressed appreciation for the time and considerable skill Dr. Roach has dedicated to the work of the Board.

The President transmitted to the Congress the first annual report of the Federal Prevailing Rate Advisory Committee. The Committee was created to advise the Civil Service Commission on the Federal blue collar wage system.

The President went to the Capitol to attend a luncheon meeting with Republican members of the House Appropriations Committee. They discussed Federal spending and control of inflation.

The President greeted the crews of the SR-71 aircraft which set speed records in flights from New York to London and London to Los Angeles. Maj. James V. Sullivan and Maj. Noel F. Widdifield, USAF, flew from New York to London on September 1, and Capt. Harold B. Adams and Maj. William C. Machorek, USAF, flew from London to Los Angeles on September 11.

Indian Foreign Minister Sardar Swaran Singh met with the President.

September 20

The White House announced that, at the invitation of President Park, President Ford will visit the Republic of Korea on November 22-23.

Senator Henry M. Jackson met with the President at the White House to discuss further efforts to achieve an acceptable trade bill.

Soviet Foreign Minister A. A. Gromyko met with the President at the White House.

The President announced the reappointment of Addie J. Key as a member of the Board of Advisers of the Federal Reformatory for Women for a term of 4 years.

David Rockefeller met with the President to discuss proposals for a national development bank which would assist in creating new communities and redeveloping older cities.

Governor Rafael Hernández-Colón of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico met with the President.

The President met with Andrew J. (Buck) May who is retiring as office manager and assignments editor of the White House photographic department.

The White House announced that Australian Prime Minister E. Gough Whitlam will meet with the President on October 4.

NOMINATIONS SUBMITTED TO THE SENATE

The following list does not include promotions of members of the Uniformed Services, nominations to the Service Academies, or nominations of Foreign Service officers.

Submitted September 17, 1974

WILLIAM D. ROGERS, of Virginia, to be an Assistant Secretary of State.

PETER M. PLANIGAN, of New York, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to Spain.

EDWARD S. LITTLE, of Ohio, a Foreign Service officer of Class one, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to the Republic of Chad.

HAROLD L. BROWNMAN, of Maryland, to be an Assistant Secretary of the Army, vice Eugene E. Berg, resigned.

H. TYLER MARCY, of Massachusetts, to be an Assistant Secretary of the Navy, vice David Samuel Potter, elevated.

GARY DEAN PENISTEN, of Connecticut, to be an Assistant Secretary of the Navy, vice Robert D. Nesen, resigned.

JAMES LEONARD PATE, of Ohio, to be an Assistant Secretary of Commerce, vice Sidney L. Jones, resigned.

KAY McMURRAY, of Idaho, to be a member of the National Mediation Board for the term expiring July 1, 1977 (reappointment).

CHECKLIST OF WHITE HOUSE PRESS RELEASES

The following releases of the Office of the White House Press Secretary, distributed during the period covered by this issue, are not included in the issue.

Released September 16, 1974

Advance text: remarks announcing the program for the return of Vietnam era draft evaders and military deserters

Fact sheet: Presidential clemency board

News conference: on the President's amnesty proposal—by Laurence H. Silberman, Deputy Attorney General, Justice Department, Martin R. Hoffmann, General Counsel, Defense Department, and Byron V. Pepitone, Director, Selective Service System

Released September 17, 1974

Biographical data: Paul W. McCracken

Released September 18, 1974

Advance text: address to the United Nations General Assembly

Released September 20, 1974

Fact sheet: budget deferrals and rescissions

News conference: on budget deferrals and rescissions—by Roy L. Ash, Director, Office of Management and Budget

Fact sheet: Executive order on inspection of tax returns by the President and White House employees

ACTS APPROVED BY THE PRESIDENT

Approved September 17, 1974

H.R. 15172----- Public Law 93-417
An act to authorize the Secretary of State to prescribe the fee for execution of an application for a passport and to continue to transfer to the United States Postal Service the execution fee for each application accepted by that Service.

Approved September 18, 1974

H.J. Res. 1070----- Public Law 93-418
Joint resolution authorizing the President to proclaim the period of September 15, 1974, through October 15, 1974, as "Johnny Horizon '76 Clean Up America Month."

Approved September 19, 1974

H.R. 15406----- Public Law 93-419
An act to amend title 37, United States Code, to refine the procedures for adjustments in military compensation, and for other purposes.

S. 3052----- Public Law 93-420
An act to amend the Act of October 13, 1972.

H.R. 13267----- Public Law 93-421
An act to authorize Federal agricultural assistance to Guam for certain purposes.

CUMULATIVE INDEX TO PRIOR ISSUES

Third Quarter, 1974

[See Index of Contents for Documents in this Issue]

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon

ABM. See Anti-ballistic missile systems
 Acts approved. See last page of text in each issue

Addresses and Remarks of the President

Ash, Roy L., dinner honoring the President	819
Belgium, visit	718, 727, 728, 732
Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, signing ceremony	799
Economy, national, address to Nation	830
Farewell remarks to Cabinet and White House Staff	1019
French gift for the American Revolution Bicentennial, exchange of remarks with French Ambassador Jacques Kosciuszko-Morizet	796
Loring Air Force Base, Maine, report to Nation on Soviet visit	766
Lowman, Dr. Charles LeRoy, Medal of Freedom presentation	997
National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency	813
People's Republic of China, martial arts and acrobatic troupe visit to the White House	801
Resignation, address to Nation	1014
Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, visit	718, 727, 735, 742, 744, 748, 766
United States Space Week, 1974	815
Vice President Gerald R. Ford, remarks following President's resignation announcement	1018
Administrative Conference of the United States, Chairman	1003, 1005
Adult Education, National Advisory Council on	1021
Agriculture, Department of Appropriations, veto	1014
Secretary	796, 799, 803, 1000
Albrecht, Richard R.	804
Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration	806, 818
Alsop, Donald D.	1022
American Revolution Bicentennial, French gift	796, 797, 804
Annenberg, Walter H.	817
Anthony, Robert Armstrong	1003, 1005
Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocols to treaty on the limitation of	750, 756
Antigua, U.S. Special Representative	994

Appointments and Nominations

Administrative Conference of the United States, Chairman	1003, 1005
Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, Administrator	806, 818
Ambassador, U.S., to Syria	999, 1005
Corporation for Public Broadcasting, Board of Directors, members	1010, 1022
Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman	828, 995
Council on International Economic Policy, Executive Director	788, 804
Federal Aviation Administration, Deputy Administrator	817, 995
Federal Energy Administration, Assistant Administrator	789, 804
General Counsel	789, 804
Office of Intergovernmental and Regional Relations, Director	839, 1005

Appointments and Nominations—Continued

Federal Regional Councils, Chairmen	829
Foreign Claims Settlement Commission, Chairman	793
Members	804, 839, 1005
Interior Department, Assistant Secretary	838, 1005
United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Director	838, 1005
International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission	1021
Justice Department, Assistant Attorney General	998, 1005
Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, Administrator	999, 1005
National Commission for the Observance of World Population Year, 1974, members	798
National Corporation for Housing Partnerships, Board of Directors, member	1022
Office of Economic Opportunity, Director	807, 1005
President's Commission on White House Fellowships, members	830
Securities and Exchange Commission, member	806, 818
State Department, Assistant Inspector General, Foreign Assistance	830
Assistant Secretary	1002, 1005
Treasury Department, Deputy Secretary	804
General Counsel	804
U.S. attorney, Texas	804
U.S. circuit judge, 2d circuit	804, 1022
U.S. Court of Military Appeals, Associate judge	1003, 1005
Chief judge, withdrawal of prior nomination	1022
U.S. district judges, Georgia	804
Minnesota	1022
U.S. marshals, California	804
Louisiana	803, 818
White House Staff, Deputy Assistant	795
Special Assistant	816
Appropriations bill, veto	1014
Arends, Repr. Leslie C.	802
Argentina, President Juan Domingo Peron, death	771
Armed Forces, United States	729, 731
Arms control and disarmament	750, 751, 753, 755, 756, 763, 764, 769
Armstrong, Anne L.	802, 815
Army, Department of the, Assistant Secretary	802
Arnett, Alvin J.	817
Ash, Roy L.	802, 804, 817, 819, 994
Atlantic Relations, Declaration on	728, 729, 731
Atomic Energy Commission	1009, 1021
Augelli, Anthony T.	1004
Awards and Citations
Presidential Medal of Freedom	997, 1005
Baker, Repr. LaMar	802
Balaguer, Joaquin	1021
Barbados, U.S. Ambassador to	994
Baudouin I, King	728, 732, 790

Belgium, King Baudouin I.	728, 732, 790
President's visit
Arrival in Brussels	728
Declaration of Atlantic Relations	729, 731
Departure from Washington	718, 727
Luncheon in Brussels	732
Prime Minister Leo Tindermans	790
Bell, J. Raymond	793, 804
Berg, Eugene E.	802
Bicentennial, American Revolution	796, 797, 804

Bill Signings

Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, remarks and statement	799, 800
Department of Defense Appropriations Authorization Act, 1975, statement	1007
Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974, statement	838
Birknes, John A.	804
Bisplinghoff, Raymond L.	1021
Bohanon, Luther	1004
Brandy imports	807
Brennan, Peter J.	802
Brezhnev, L. I.	735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
Broadcasting, Corporation for Public	1010, 1022
Budget, federal spending	799, 800, 821, 832, 1014
Budget, Office of Management and. See Management and Budget, Office of
Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, Congressional	799, 800, 804
Burch, Dean	791, 802, 995
Burnham, D.C.	830
Burns, Arthur F.	802
Business and industry, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	741, 759, 791
Butz, Earl L.	803
Cabinet
Meetings with the President	802, 1021
President's farewell remarks	1019
California, U.S. marshal	804
Callaghan, James	999
Captive Nations Week, 1974	801
Carlos, Prince Juan	814
Carlson, Jack W.	838, 1005
Cary, Frank	794
Casey, Thomas R.	828, 829
Central Intelligence Agency	1008
Checklist of unpublished releases. See last page of text in each issue
China, People's Republic of, Wushu Troupe, visit to the White House	801
Civil defense medical and food stockpiles	798
Claims Settlement Commission, Foreign	793, 804, 839, 1005
Clements, William P., Jr.	1012
Coffee Agreement, International	796
Cole, Kenneth R., Jr.	830
Colombia
President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen, inauguration	994
U.S. Ambassador to	994
Combined Federal Campaign	1012
Commerce, Department of, Secretary	788, 1000

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon—Continued

Commercial Commission, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.....	741	Credit Corporation, Commodity Cultural exchanges, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	1004	Executive Orders
Commodity Credit Corporation.....	1004	Curtis, Sen. Carl T.....	802	Civil defense medical and food stockpiles (EO 11794).....	798
Congress		Customs Service, United States.....	1008	Disaster relief functions (EO 11795).....	799
House of Representatives, Judiciary Committee ..	791, 818, 822, 840, 995, 1008	Cyprus	817, 819, 999	Exports, regulation of (EO 11796).....	999
Meetings with the President		Dean, Dizzy.....	813	Federal facilities in rural areas, report (EO 11797).....	1000
Bipartisan leadership.....	802, 1012, 1021	DeBaca, Fernando E. C.....	816	Secretary of Agriculture (EO 11793).....	796
Republican leaders.....	802, 1010	Defense, Department of		Exports, regulation.....	999
Sequoia meetings.....	802	Appropriation authorization.....	1007	Fabiola, Queen.....	790
Senate, Foreign Relations Committee	807	Deputy Secretary.....	1012	Federal Aviation Administration, Deputy Administrator.....	817, 995
Congress, Communications to		Secretary	799	Federal Bureau of Investigation.....	1008
See also Veto Messages and Memoranda of Disapproval		Defense Appropriation Authorization Act	1007	Federal employees. See Government employees
Commodity Credit Corporation, annual report transmittal.....	1004	Defense spending. See under Economy, national		Federal Energy Administration
Cost of Living Task Force, message.....	1002	Dent, Frederick B.....	788	Administrator	788
Government executive development, message	808	Digest of other White House announcements. See last pages of text in each issue		Assistant Administrator.....	789, 804, 1004
Government services to rural areas, annual report transmittal.....	1021	Disarmament. See Arms control and disarmament		General Counsel.....	789, 804
Hazardous Materials Transportation Control Act of 1970, annual report transmittal	802	Disaster assistance, States receiving		Office of Intergovernmental and Regional Relations, Director.....	839, 1005
International Coffee Agreement, annual report transmittal.....	796	Minnesota	805	Federal Regional Councils, Chairmen.....	829
International Maritime Traffic Convention, amended text transmittal.....	998	New York	829	Federal Reserve System
National Advisory Council on Adult Education, annual report transmittal	1021	Ohio	798	Board of Governors.....	802
National Heart and Lung Advisory Council, annual report transmittal	998	Disaster relief functions.....	799	Monetary restraint.....	833
National security investigations and wiretaps, letter to Chairman of Senate Foreign Relations Committee	807	District of Columbia, National Guard, Commanding General.....	802	Federal spending. See Budget; Economy, national
Telegraph and telephone regulations, transmittal to Senate.....	1007	Doar, John M.....	824, 825	Fisheries Commission, International Pacific Salmon	1021
Trade agreements program, annual report transmittal.....	1012	Domestic Council.....	802	Food, civil defense stockpiles.....	798
Urban transportation policies and activities, annual report transmittal	1001	Dominica, U.S. Special Representative.....	994	Ford, Vice President Gerald R.....	766, 802, 817, 818, 1012, 1015, 1018
World Weather Program, annual report transmittal.....	1001	Dominican Republic		Foreign Claims Settlement Commission	793, 804, 839, 1005
Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974.....	799, 800, 804	President Joaquin Balaguer, inauguration	1021	Foreman, Ed.....	829
Connor, Robert E.....	798, 805	U.S. Ambassador to	1021	Forest Products Week, 1974, National.....	1000
Conservation, forest products and resources	1000	Donovan, Eileen R.....	994	France
Construction, cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	739, 761, 791	Doub, William O.....	1021	Bicentennial gift.....	796, 797, 804
Construction, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in Housing and Other.....	739, 761	Dow, James E.....	817, 995	President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing	797
Cook, William Holmes.....	1008, 1005	Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, Alcohol	806, 818	Fulbright, Sen. J. William.....	807
Cooperation in Europe, Conference on Security and	757	Drug Abuse, Strategy Council on	1021	Gallegos, Bert A.....	807, 1005
Coors, Joseph.....	1010, 1022	DuPont, Dr. Robert L., Jr.....	806, 818	Gardner, Stephen S.....	804
Corporation for Public Broadcasting.....	1010, 1022	Eberle, William D.....	788, 804	GATT. See General Agreements on Tariffs and Trade
Cortina, Pedro Mauri.....	814	Economic Advisers, Council of, Chairman.....	802, 815, 817, 818, 828, 995	Gelmer, William W.....	839, 1005
Cost of Living Task Force, proposed.....	1002, 1005	Economic cooperation with U.S.S.R.....	741, 759, 791	General Agreements on Tariffs and Trade	1013
Council. See other part of title		Economic Opportunity, Office of, Director	807, 817, 1005	Geneva Peace Conference on the Middle East	758
Courts, United States		Economic Policy, Council on International, Executive Director.....	788, 804	Genscher, Hans-Dietrich.....	994
U.S. attorney, Texas.....	804	Economy, national		Georgia, U.S. district judge.....	804
U.S. circuit judge, 2d circuit.....	804, 1022	Address to Nation.....	830	Germany, Federal Republic of
U.S. Court of Military Appeals		Cost of Living Task Force, proposed.....	1002	Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.....	790
Associate judge.....	1003, 1005	Defense spending.....	1007	Vice-Chancellor and Minister of Foreign Affairs Hans-Dietrich Genscher	994
Chief judge.....	1022	Federal spending.....	799, 800, 821, 832, 1014	Gesell, Gerhard A.....	802
U.S. district judges		Inflation	800, 802, 821, 830, 1014	Ghana, U.S. Ambassador to	994
Georgia	804	Emergency Board No. 185, railway labor dispute	789	Giscard d'Estaing, Valéry.....	796, 797
Minnesota	1022	Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974	838	Goldwater, Sen. Barry.....	1010
New Jersey	1004	Energy		Goodearle, Roy.....	803
Oklahoma	1004	Conservation	788	Government departments and agencies, energy conservation.....	788
U.S. marshals		Uranium supplies.....	1009	Government employees, executive development	808, 818
California	804	U.S.S.R., cooperation with.....	737, 761, 791	Gray, L. Patrick III.....	1009
Louisiana	803, 818	Energy, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in the Field of.....	737, 761	Greece
Massachusetts	804	Energy Administration, Federal.....	788, 789, 839, 1004	Cyprus conflict.....	817, 820
		Environment		Prime Minister Konstantinos Karamanlis	994
		U.S.S.R., cooperation with.....	753, 762	Green, S. William.....	829
		U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint statement.....	753	Greenspan, Alan.....	828, 995
		World Weather Program.....	1001	Greenwalt, Lynn Adams.....	838, 1005
		Environmental Protection Agency, appropriations veto	1014	Gregg, Lucius Perry, Jr.....	1010, 1022
		Environmental warfare.....	753, 765	Grenada, U.S. Special Representative.....	994
		Erbe, Norman A.....	829	Griffin, Sen. Robert P.....	802
		Erickson, William D.....	1022	Gurfeln, Murray I.....	804
		Europe		Habib, Philip C.....	1002, 1005
		U.S. forces.....	729, 731	Hadden, A. Roby.....	804
		U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint communique.....	757	Hadsel, Fred L.....	994
		European Economic Community, brandy imports.....	807	Haldeman, H. R.....	1008

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon—Continued

Hartman, Arthur A.	791	Joint Statements		Memorandums to Federal Agencies
Hays, David W.	829	Union of Soviet Socialist Republics..	753	Combined Federal Campaign.....	1019
Hazardous materials transportation..	802	Jones, Sidney L.	795	Mental Health Administration, Alcohol,
Health, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	740, 761, 791	Judiciary Committee, House.....	791, 818, 822, 840, 995, 1008	Drug Abuse, and.....	806, 818
Health, Education, and Welfare, Department of		Justice, Department of		Meskill, Thomas J.	1022
Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration. See Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration		Assistant Attorney General.....	998, 1005	Middle East
Secretary	802, 804	Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. See Law Enforcement Assistance Administration		North Atlantic Council meeting, remarks	731
Health Cooperation, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee for.....	740, 761	Special Prosecutor.....	1008	U.S.-U.S.S.R. joint communique.....	758
Heart and Lung Advisory Council, National	998	Karamanlis, Konstantinos.....	994	Military Appeals, U.S. Court of.....	1003, 1005, 1022
Heart research, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	740, 761, 791	Keene, Joseph W.	803, 818	Milk, support price.....	842, 958, 963
Helms, Richard.....	1009	Kelly, Bernard.....	829	Minnesota
Herndon, Lillie E.	1010, 1022	Key Biscayne, Fla.	790, 802	Disaster assistance.....	805
Hodgson, James D.	802	King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr.	771	U.S. district judge.....	1022
Hogan, Repr. Lawrence J.	995	Klasinger, Dr. Henry A.	763, 791, 807, 814, 817, 1018, 1021	Missile systems, protocol to treaty on the limitation of anti-ballistic....	750, 756
Hostetter, Amos B., Jr.	1010, 1022	Klein, Herbert G.	994	Mitchell, John N.	842, 951
Housing, cooperation with U.S.S.R.	739, 761, 791	Kleindienst, Richard G.	842, 951	Monagan, Robert T.	1021
Housing and Other Construction, United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in.....	739, 761	Korff, Baruch.....	813, 817, 818, 1021	Montgomery, Robert E., Jr.	789, 804
Housing Partnerships, National Corporation for.....	1022	Kosciusko-Morizet, Jacques.....	796	Morton, Rogers C.B.	802, 994
Housing and Urban Development, Department of, Secretary.....	799, 1003, 1005	Kosygin, A. N.	740, 790	Mount Vernon, French sound and light spectacle for American Revolution Bicentennial	796, 797, 804
Hunt, E. Howard.....	841, 870	Labor, Department of, Secretary.....	802	Murphy, Richard W.	994, 999, 1005
Hurwitch, Robert A.	1021	Labor, railway dispute.....	789	National Advisory Council on Adult Education	1021
Iceland, Special Ambassador to 1100th anniversary	994	Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, Administrator.....	999, 1005	National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services.....	802
Immunity from prosecution.....	1011	Letters, Messages, Telegrams		National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the Presidency.....	813, 818, 1021
Impeachment inquiry		See also Congress, Communications to		National Commission for the Observation of World Population Year, 1974..	798
See also Watergate investigation		Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman Herbert Stein, exchange of letters on resignation.....	815	National Corporation for Housing Partnerships	1022
Brief submitted to the House Judiciary Committee.....	840	French gift for the American Revolution Bicentennial, exchange of letters with French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing.....	797	National Forest Products Week, 1974..	1000
Impeachable offense.....	826	Resignation, letter to the Secretary of State	1021	National Heart and Lung Advisory Council	998
Internal Revenue Service.....	842, 983	Livestock Credit Act of 1974, Emergency	838	National Science Foundation.....	1021
International Telephone and Telegraph	841, 945	Loomis, Philip A., Jr.	806, 818	National Student Government Day, 1974	1010
Milk support price.....	842, 958, 963	Loring Air Force Base, Maine.....	766, 790	Natural resources, forests.....	1000
News conference by Special Counsel St. Clair.....	822	Louisiana, U.S. marshal.....	803, 818	New Jersey, U.S. district judge.....	1004
Presidential tapes and documents.....	822-828, 1008	Lowman, Dr. Charles LeRoy.....	997, 1005	New York, disaster assistance.....	829
Wiretaps	807, 841, 923	Lung Advisory Council, National Heart and	998	News Conferences Other Than Presidential
Imports, brandy.....	807	Luns, Joseph.....	728	Congressional support assessment, Republican Congressional leadership	1010
Impoundment Control Act of 1974, Congressional Budget and.....	799, 800, 804	Lynn, James T.	1008, 1005	House Judiciary Committee impeachment inquiry, Special Counsel St. Clair	822
Independence Day, 1974.....	790	Management and Budget, Office of, Director.....	802, 804, 817, 819, 994	President's visit to the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Secretary of State Kissinger.....	763
Industry. See Business and industry.		Maritime Traffic Convention, International	998	Nominations submitted to the Senate. See last page of text in each issue
Interior, Department of the		Martinez, Samuel.....	829	North Atlantic Treaty Organization
Assistant Secretary.....	838, 1005	Massachusetts, U.S. marshal.....	804	Brussels meeting with North Atlantic Council	728, 731, 732, 769
Office of Oil and Gas, Associate Director	803	Mauritania, U.S. Ambassador to.....	994	Cyprus conflict.....	820
Secretary	802, 994	McAninch, Vernon D.	994	Declaration on Atlantic Relations....	729, 731
Under Secretary.....	802	Mead, Dana.....	802	Secretary General Joseph Luns.....	728
United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Director.....	838, 1005	Medals. See Awards and Citations		Nuclear powerplants.....	1009
Internal Revenue Service, impeachment inquiry	842, 983	Medical stockpiles for civil defense....	798	Nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of underground.....	751
International Coffee Agreement.....	796	Meetings with Foreign Leaders		Office. See other part of title
International Economic Policy, Council on	788, 804	Belgium		Ohio, disaster assistance.....	798
International Maritime Traffic Convention	998	King Baudouin I.	728, 732, 790	Oklahoma, U.S. district judge.....	1004
International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission	1021	Prime Minister Leo Tindermans.....	790	O'Neill, John Ellis.....	802
International Telephone and Telegraph	841, 945	Germany, Federal Republic of, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.....	790	Otis, Webster.....	829
Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor.....	790	Italy, Prime Minister Mariano Rumor.....	790	Parker, Joseph O.	1021
ITT. See International Telephone and Telegraph		Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Chairman N. V. Podgorny.....	790	People's Republic of China. See China, People's Republic of
Jackson, Levi A.	830	General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev.....	735, 748, 790	Peron, Juan Domingo.....	771
Japan, U.S. Ambassador to.....	802	Premier A. N. Kosygin.....	790	Pettit, John Whitney.....	1010, 1022
Jenner, Albert E., Jr.	824	United Kingdom, Prime Minister Harold Wilson.....	790	Podgorny, N. V.	739, 741, 790
Johnston, Donald A.	994			Population control.....	793

Index to Documents of the Administration of Richard Nixon—Continued

- Population Year, 1974, National Commission on the Observance of World... 798
 Post, Marjorie Meriweather... 802
 Presidency, National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the... 818, 818, 1021
 Presidential Medal of Freedom, Dr. Charles LeRoy Lowman... 997, 1005
 Presidential tapes and documents... 822-828, 1008
 President's Commission on White House Fellowships... 830, 1002
 President's travel
 Domestic
 Bel Air, Calif... 819, 994
 Los Angeles, Calif... 830
 Palm Beach, Fla... 802
 Foreign
 Belgium... 718, 727-735
 Union of Soviet Socialist Republics... 718, 735-771
- Proclamations
 Captive Nations Week, 1974 (Proc. 4302)... 801
 Imports of brandy (Proc. 4304)... 807
 National Forest Products Week, 1974 (Proc. 4305)... 1000
 National Student Government Day, 1974 (Proc. 4307)... 1010
 United Nations Day, 1974 (Proc. 4300)... 794
 United States Customs 185th Anniversary Year (Proc. 4306)... 1008
 United States Space Week, 1974 (Proc. 4303)... 805
 White Cane Safety Day, 1974 (Proc. 4301)... 794
 World Population Year, 1974 (Proc. 4299)... 793
 Railway labor-management dispute... 789
 Raven, Jack E... 829
- Reports to the President
 Emergency Board No. 185, railway labor dispute... 739
 Research, medical... 740, 761, 791
 Resignation, President's
 Address to Nation... 1014
 Letter to Secretary of State... 1021
 Possibility of... 1010
 Press Secretary Ziegler, remarks to reporters... 1018
- Resignations and Retirements
 Ambassadors
 Barbados... 994
 Ghana... 994
 Mauritania... 994
 Army Department, Assistant Secretary... 802
 Atomic Energy Commission, member... 1021
 Council of Economic Advisers, Chairman... 815
 District of Columbia, National Guard, Commanding General... 802
 Federal Energy Administration, Assistant Administrator... 1004
 National Advisory Council on Supplementary Centers and Services, member... 802
 National Science Foundation, Board member... 1021
 Office of Economic Opportunity, Director... 817
 Transportation Department, Assistant Secretary... 1021
 U.S. district judge
 New Jersey... 1004
 Oklahoma... 1004
 Rhodes, Repr. John J... 802, 1010
 Rural areas
 Federal facilities... 1000
 Government services, report transmittal... 1021
- Rush, Kenneth... 802, 804, 817, 995, 1002
 St. Christopher-Nevis-Anguilla, U.S. Special Representative... 994
 St. Clair, James D... 787
 St. Lucia, U.S. Special Representative... 994
 St. Vincent, U.S. Special Representative... 994
 Saletic, William G... 1021
 SALT. See Strategic arms limitation
 San Clemente, Calif... 803, 994, 1004
 Sant, Roger West... 789, 804
 Sawhill, John C... 788
 Scallia, Antonin M... 998, 1005
 Schmidt, Helmut... 790
 Science and technology, cooperation with U.S.S.R... 737, 740, 741, 761, 791
 Scott, Sen. Hugh... 802, 1010
 Securities and Exchange Commission... 806, 818
 Security and Cooperation in Europe, Conference on... 757
 Sequoia meetings, with certain Members of Congress... 802
 Simon, William E... 802, 1004, 1005
 Sirica, John J... 1008
 Sisco, Joseph J... 817
 Smith, Elmer E... 829
 Smith, Wilfred J... 839, 1005
 Snyder, Daniel J., III... 829
 Southward, Maj. Gen. Charles L... 802
 Spaatz, Gen. Carl A... 807
 Space program, cooperation with U.S.S.R... 762
 Space Week, 1974, United States... 805, 815
 Spain
 Foreign Minister Pedro Mauri Cortina... 814
 Joint declaration of principles with U.S... 814
 Prince Juan Carlos... 814
 State, Department of
 Assistant Inspector General, Foreign Assistance... 830
 Assistant Secretaries... 791, 1002, 1005
 Secretary... 763, 791, 802, 807, 814, 817, 1018, 1021
 Under Secretary... 817
- Statements by the President
 Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974, signing ceremony... 800
 Deaths
 Dean, Dizzy... 813
 King, Mrs. Martin Luther, Sr... 771
 Peron, Juan Domingo... 771
 Spaatz, Gen. Carl A... 807
 Warren, Earl... 795
 Department of Defense Appropriation Authorization Act, 1975, bill signing... 1007
 Emergency Livestock Credit Act of 1974... 838
 Energy conservation... 788
 Independence Day, 1974... 790
 Joint declaration of principles between the United States and Spain... 814
 Supreme Court decision on Presidential tapes and documents... 829
 Tapes of Presidential conversations, release... 1008
- Statements Other Than Presidential
 Brussels meeting with the North Atlantic Council, Press Secretary Ziegler... 781
 Uranium supplies, Deputy Press Secretary Warren... 1009
 Stein, Herbert... 802, 815, 817, 818
- Strategic arms limitation... 750, 753, 755, 756, 763, 764, 769
 Strategy Council on Drug Abuse... 1021
 Student Government Day, 1974, National... 1010
 Supplementary Centers and Services, National Advisory Council on... 802
 Supreme Court of the United States... 772, 802, 822-829, 1008
 Surganov, F. A... 742
 Syria, U.S. Ambassador to... 999, 1006
 Tariff Commission, United States... 1021
 Taylor, Joseph Z... 830
 Technology. See Science and technology
 Telegraph and telephone regulations... 1007
 Texas, U.S. attorney... 804
 Tindermans, Leo... 750
 Trade
 Coffee... 796
 Multilateral negotiations... 1013
 Regulation of exports... 999
 Trade Reform Act, proposed... 1013
 Transportation
 Cooperation with U.S.S.R... 762
 Urban... 1001
 Transportation, Department of
 Assistant Secretary... 1021
 Federal Aviation Administration... 817, 995
 Treasury, Department of the
 Deputy Secretary... 804
 General Counsel... 804
 Secretary... 802, 1004, 1006
 United States Customs Service... 1006
 Treaties and other international agreements
 Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol to treaty on the limitation of... 750
 Declaration on Atlantic Relations... 729
 Economic, industrial, and technical cooperation agreement with U.S.S.R... 741
 Energy agreement with U.S.S.R... 737
 Heart research agreement with U.S.S.R... 740
 Housing and construction agreement with U.S.S.R... 739
 International Maritime Traffic Convention... 998
 Telegraph and telephone regulations... 1007
 Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of... 751
 Trione, Henry F... 1022
 Turkey, Cyprus conflict... 817, 820
 Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of... 751
 Union of Soviet Socialist Republics
 Agreements with U.S.
 Anti-ballistic missile systems, protocol on the limitation of... 750, 756
 Construction... 739, 761, 791
 Economic, industrial, and technical... 741, 759, 791
 Energy... 737, 761, 791
 Heart research... 740, 761, 791
 Housing... 739, 761, 791
 Underground nuclear weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of... 751
 Chairman N. V. Podgorny... 739, 741, 790
 General Secretary L. I. Brezhnev... 735, 742, 748, 750, 753, 763, 790
 Joint statements... 753
 North Atlantic Council meeting, remarks... 731
 Premier A. N. Kosygin... 740, 790
 President's visit
 Address to the Soviet people... 744
 Departure from Washington... 718, 727
 Dinners in Moscow... 735, 748
 Luncheon in Minsk... 742
 News conference by Secretary of State Kissinger... 763

United Kingdom		Veto Messages and Memorandums of Disapproval		Weinberger, Caspar W.....	802, 804
Foreign Minister James Callaghan....	999			Whitaker, John C.....	802
Prime Minister Harold Wilson.....	790			White Cane Safety Day, 1974.....	794
U.S. Ambassador to.....	817	Appropriations bill.....	1014	White House Fellows.....	1002
United Nations Day, 1974.....	794			White House Fellowships, President's Commission on.....	830, 1002
United States Courts. See Courts, United States		Vice President. See Ford, Vice President Gerald R.		White House Staff
United States Customs 185th Anniversary Year.....	1008	Virgin Islands, drought, emergency assistance.....	828	Communications Director.....	994
United States Space Week, 1974.....	805, 815	Walters, Vernon A.....	1009	Counsellor for Economic Policy.....	802, 804, 817, 995, 1002
United States Tariff Commission.....	1021	Warren, Earl.....	795	Counsellors.....	791, 802, 995
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Commercial Commission....	741	Warren, Gerald L.....	1009, 1012	Deputy Assistant.....	795
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in the Field of Energy.....	737, 761	Watergate investigation		Deputy Press Secretary.....	1009, 1012
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee on Cooperation in Housing and Other Construction.....	739, 761	See also Impeachment inquiry		President's farewell remarks.....	1019
United States-Union of Soviet Socialist Republics Joint Committee for Health Cooperation.....	740, 761	Central Intelligence Agency.....	1008	Press Secretary.....	731, 791, 818, 824, 825, 1012, 1018
Uranium supplies, enriched.....	1009	Court documents.....	772	Special Assistant.....	816
Urban transportation.....	1001	Federal Bureau of Investigation.....	1008
Vaky, Viron P.....	994	House Judiciary Committee.....	791, 818, 840, 995, 1008	White House Statements
Van Court, Arthur F.....	804	Impeachable offense.....	826	Cyprus cease-fire agreement.....	999
Velde, Richard W.....	999, 1005	National security investigations.....	807	Wiretaps.....	807, 841, 923
		Payments to defendants.....	824, 826, 827, 841, 870	World Population Year, 1974.....	793, 798
		Presidential tapes and documents.....	822-828, 1008	World Weather Program.....	1001
		Supreme Court review....	772, 802, 822-829	Wushu Troupe.....	801
		Weapons tests, treaty on the limitation of underground nuclear.....	751	Zamyatin, L. M.....	791
		Weather Program, World.....	1001	Ziegler, Ronald L.....	731, 791, 818, 824, 825, 1012, 1018
		Weber, John W.....	1004

Index to Documents of the Administration of Gerald R. Ford

- Abrams, Gen. Creighton..... 1088
Ackley, Gardner..... 1070
Acts approved. See last page of text in each issue
- Addresses and Remarks of the President
Alexandria Police Association picnic..... 1101
Appointment of Press Secretary ter-Horst..... 1025
Conferences on inflation... 1091, 1093, 1132
Congress
House of Representatives..... 1058
Joint Session..... 1029
Senate..... 1057
Council on Wage and Price Stability Act, bill signing..... 1065
Davies, Rodger P., memorial ceremony honoring..... 1054
Education Amendments of 1974, bill signing..... 1055
Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, bill signing..... 1084
First Continental Congress, reconvened in Philadelphia, Pa..... 1095
Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, bill signing..... 1059
Little League World Series teams..... 1067
Mansfield, Sen. Mike, reception honoring..... 1068
Meetings with foreign leaders
Israel, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin..... 1130, 1144, 1146
Jordan, King Hussein I..... 1039, 1041, 1044
Michigan Republican State Convention..... 1066
National Council on the Arts, reception..... 1090
National Hispanic Heritage Week, 1974, proclamation signing ceremony..... 1086
O'Hare Field, Chicago, Ill..... 1045
Ohio State University, summer commencement..... 1078
Pardon for former President Nixon..... 1102
Pope Air Force Base, Fayetteville, N.C..... 1133
Radio and Television Directors' Association convention..... 1147
Sixth International Conference on Urban Transportation..... 1119
Stein, Herbert, farewell dinner..... 1067
Swearing-in ceremony..... 1023
United Way campaign..... 1064
Veterans of Foreign Wars..... 1045
Vice President of the United States, selection of nominee..... 1050, 1051
World Golf Hall of Fame..... 1134, 1135
- Aeronautics and Space Administration, National..... 1098
AFL-CIO..... 1041, 1098
Aging, National Council on the..... 1084
Agriculture, Department of Secretary..... 1074, 1081
Under Secretary..... 1064
Air Show, Farnborough International..... 1098
Alexander, Donald C..... 1099
Alexandria Police Association..... 1101
Alloto, Joseph..... 1042
Ambassadors
Foreign presentation of credentials, visits, etc..... 1028, 1062, 1063
United States. See Appointments and Nominations; Resignations and Retirements; countries to which assigned
American Junior Miss..... 1063
American Legion..... 1098
American Medical Association..... 1081
American National Red Cross..... 1039
American Revolution Bicentennial..... 1095
American States, Organization of..... 1073
Amnesty for draft evaders and deserters..... 1047, 1098
Animal health research bill..... 1037
Apollo-Soyuz Test Project..... 1101, 1145
- Appointments and Nominations
Ambassadors, United States
Cyprus..... 1055, 1064
France..... 1088, 1099
German Democratic Republic..... 1089, 1099
Ghana..... 1052, 1064
Greece..... 1036, 1042
Korea, Republic of..... 1036, 1042
Council on Wage and Price Stability, Chairman and members..... 1074
Defense, Department of, Deputy Assistant Secretary..... 1093, 1099
Federal Energy Administration, Assistant Administrator..... 1093, 1099
Federal Trade Commission, member..... 1092, 1099
International Atomic Energy Agency, U.S. Representatives and Alternates..... 1122, 1147
National Council on the Arts, members..... 1085
People's Republic of China, Liaison Office, Chief..... 1089
State Department, Assistant Secretary..... 1089
Strategic Arms Limitations Talks, U.S. Delegation..... 1095
Summit Conference on Inflation
Deputy Executive Director..... 1061
Executive Director..... 1063
Steering committee..... 1063
United Nations, General Assembly, 29th session, U.S. Representatives and Alternates..... 1121, 1147
United States Railway Association, Board of Directors..... 1147
Withdrawal of prior nomination..... 1147
Veterans Administration, Administrator..... 1080, 1084
Vice President of the United States..... 1050, 1051, 1064
White House Staff
Assistant to the President..... 1142
Assistant Press Secretaries..... 1038, 1039
Counsels..... 1037, 1143
Counsellors..... 1026, 1027
Deputy Press Secretary..... 1038
Liaison with Vice President-designate..... 1053
Photographic Department, Director..... 1063
Press Secretary..... 1025
Special Assistant..... 1122
Speechwriting staff, Executive Editor and Administrator..... 1064
Appropriations..... 1074, 1138
Arceda, Phillip E..... 1143
Arends, Rep. Leslie C..... 1041
Armed Forces, United States
Aviation career incentive pay..... 1043
Europe..... 1052
Indian Ocean fleet..... 1071
Promotion of naval and marine officers..... 1044
Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, United States, Assistant Director..... 1146
Armstrong, Anne L..... 1074, 1098, 1099
Army, Department of the, Chief of Staff..... 1088
Arts, National Council on the..... 1085, 1090
Ash, Roy L..... 1028, 1041, 1063, 1074, 1080
ASTP. See Apollo-Soyuz Test Project
Atkins, Ollie..... 1063
Atomic energy, agreement with United Kingdom..... 1038
Atomic Energy Agency, International..... 1122, 1147
Atomic Energy Commission
Appropriations bill..... 1074
Chairman..... 1081, 1122, 1147
Australia, extradition treaty with U.S..... 1059
Aviation Career Incentive Act of 1974..... 1043
- Awards and Citations
Ohio State University, Doctor of Laws honoris causa conferred upon the President..... 1079
Balance of payments..... 1082
Barbados, Ambassador to U.S..... 1082
Baroody, William J., Jr..... 1142
Becker, Benton..... 1110, 1111, 1115, 1116, 1123, 1124, 1125, 1127
Beirne, Joseph A..... 1098
Bennett, W. Tapley, Jr..... 1122, 1147
Bicentennial, American Revolution..... 1095
- Bill Signings
Council on Wage and Price Stability Act, remarks and statement..... 1065
Education Amendments of 1974, remarks and statement..... 1055, 1056
Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, remarks and statement..... 1084
Federal Employees' Compensation Act amendments, statement..... 1118
Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974, statement..... 1043
Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, remarks and statement..... 1059, 1060
Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974, statement..... 1118
Public Works for Water and Power Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, statement..... 1074
Small Business Amendments of 1974, statement..... 1065
Youth Conservation Corps Act amendments, statement..... 1066
- Black, Shirley Temple..... 1052, 1064
Blackwell, Robert..... 1147
Boo, Ben..... 1042
Booth, Arch N..... 1088
Bowden, Marie..... 1099
Bowmer, Angus L..... 1085
Bradley, Tom..... 1042
Brennan, Peter J..... 1074, 1088
Brock, Sen. Bill..... 1062
Broomfield, Repr. William S..... 1080
Brown, Repr. George E., Jr..... 1085
Brown, Dr. Harold..... 1085
Buchen, Philip W..... 1087, 1108, 1123
Budget, Federal spending..... 1081, 1066, 1070, 1072, 1074, 1083, 1137
Budget, Office of Management and. See Management and Budget, Office of Bulgaria, People's Republic of, consular convention with U.S..... 1143
Burch, Dean..... 1098, 1099
Burger, Warren E..... 1023
Burns, Arthur F..... 1086, 1028, 1041, 1063, 1090
Burruss, Richard T..... 1053
Bush, George H..... 1041, 1063, 1064, 1089
Business Amendments of 1974, Small..... 1066
Business Council..... 1063
Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., National Federation of..... 1099
Busing..... 1057
Butz, Earl L..... 1074, 1081
- Cabinet
Meetings with the President..... 1028, 1062, 1064, 1081
White House dinner..... 1081
Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for Spanish-Speaking People..... 1063
Callaghan, James..... 1041
Campaign. See Elections
Campbell, J. Phil..... 1064
Canada, extradition treaty with U.S..... 1148
Carmichael, Oliver C., Jr..... 1122, 1147
Casey, Thomas R..... 1074
Cavanaugh, James H..... 1062, 1064, 1082

Index to Documents of the Administration of Gerald R. Ford—Continued

Cederberg, Repr. Elford A.	1040	Conservation Corps, Youth.	1086	Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.	1084
Chamber of Commerce of the United States.	1098	Constitution Week, 1974, Citizenship Day and.	1144	Employment and Training Act of 1973, Comprehensive.	1041, 1141
Checklist of unpublished releases. See last page of text in each issue		Continental Congress, First.	1095, 1099	Employment and unemployment Government employees, reduction in force.	1083
Chester, John J.	1063	Cooper, John Sherman.	1089, 1099	Legislative priorities, message.	1141
Chicago, Ill.	1045	Cost of Living Council.	1031	Public works program, expansion.	1089, 1132
China, People's Republic of		Costa Rica, Ambassador to U.S.	1062	Veterans.	1048
Bipartisan Congressional delegation, proposed visit.	1080	Cotton, Sen. Norris.	1063	Youth, summer.	1086
Premier Chou En-lai.	1063	Council. See other part of title		Enarson, Dr. Harold.	1079
U.S. Liaison Office, Chief.	1089	County Officials, National Association of.	1041	Energy Administration, Federal.	1081, 1093, 1099
Chinese People's Institute of Foreign Affairs.	1080	Courts, United States		Energy Agency, International Atomic.	1122, 1147
Chou En-lai.	1063	Deputy U.S. marshals pay raise bill, veto message.	1035	Energy Commission, Atomic.	1074, 1081, 1122, 1147
Church, Sen. Frank.	1063	U.S. circuit judge, 8th circuit.	1063	Energy crisis.	1033, 1071, 1139, 1140
Cities, National League of.	1041	U.S. district judge, Hawaii.	1146	Erlwine, John A.	1122, 1147
Citizenship Day and Constitution Week, 1974.	1144	Crane, Repr. Philip M.	1041	Europe, U.S. forces.	1052
Clements, William P., Jr.	1041	Crawford, William R., Jr.	1055, 1064	Evans, Gov. Daniel J.	1042
Cilburn, Van.	1085	Cuba, relations with U.S.	1073
Coal mine health and safety, report.	1098	Cyprus		Executive Orders
Cole, Kenneth R.	1062	Slain U.S. Ambassador Rodger P. Davies.	1045, 1054, 1055	Aviation career incentive pay (EO 11800).	1043
Columbus, Ohio.	1075, 1081	U.S. Ambassador to.	1055, 1064	Display of flag in memory of Abrams, Gen. Creighton (EO 11802).	1088
Columbus Day, 1974.	1053	Davies, Rodger P.	1045, 1054, 1055	Davies, Rodger P. (EO 11801).	1055
Commerce, Department of		Dean, Mrs. John Wesley, III.	1133	Exports, regulation of (EO 11798).	1037
Assistant Secretary.	1146	DeBaca, Fernando.	1099	Navy officers, promotion (EO 11799).	1044
Secretary.	1043, 1074	Defense, Department of		Exhibitions, international.	1036
Commerce of the United States, Chamber of.	1098	See also specific service branch		Exports, regulation.	1037
Communications Workers of America.	1098	Assistant Secretary.	1044	Extradition treaties.	1059, 1143
Community Development Act of 1974, Housing and.	1059, 1080, 1064	Deputy Assistant Secretary.	1093, 1099	Fahmy, Ismail.	1041
Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973.	1041, 1141	Deputy Secretary.	1041	Farm Family of the Year.	1064
Comprehensive Health Insurance Plan, proposed.	1032	Joint Chiefs of Staff.	1041	Farnborough International Air Show.	1098
Conable, Repr. Barber B.	1040	Secretary.	1041, 1043, 1047, 1098	Fasser, Paul J., Jr.	1099
Conant, Melvin E.	1093, 1099	Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974, Juvenile Justice and.	1118	Fayetteville, N.C.	1133
Congress		Dent, Frederick B.	1074	Federal employees. See Government employees
Bipartisan delegation to China.	1080	Diego Garcia, U.S. naval base.	1071	Federal Energy Administration
House of Representatives, remarks.	1058	Digest of other White House announcements. See last pages of text in each issue		Administrator.	1081
Joint Session, address on assuming office.	1029	Disarmament Agency, United States		Assistant Administrator.	1093, 1099
Meetings with the President		Arms Control and. See Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, United States		Federal Reserve System, Board of Governors, Chairman.	1026, 1028, 1041, 1063, 1080
Bipartisan leadership.	1028, 1052, 1063, 1136, 1147	Distributive Education Clubs of America.	1082	Federal-State-local cooperation.	1060
Black Caucus.	1063, 1064	Dixon, Paul Rand.	1092, 1099	Federal Trade Commission.	1092, 1099
Courtesy calls by individual Members.	1063	Dobrynin, A. F.	1041, 1101, 1146	Ferguson, Clarence Clyde, Jr.	1122, 1147
Republican campaign committees, chairmen.	1063	Dole, Sen. Robert.	1063	First Continental Congress.	1095, 1099
Republican candidates.	1063	Domestic Council.	1062, 1064, 1082	First Lady's Staff
Senate majority leader.	1053, 1064	Dominick, Sen. Peter H.	1041	Press Secretary.	1081
Senate, remarks.	1057	Dunn, Gov. Winfield.	1146	Social Secretary.	1081
Congress, Communications to		Earle, Ralph, II.	1095	Fisher, Max.	1080
See also Letters, Messages, Telegrams; Veto Messages and Memorandums of Disapproval		Eberle, Harold F., Jr.	1081	Fitzsimmons, Frank E.	1041
Atomic energy agreement with United Kingdom, amendments.	1038	Economic Advisers, Council of		Fong, Sen. Hiram L.	1080
Consular convention with Bulgaria, transmittal to Senate.	1143	Chairman.	1026, 1028, 1041, 1063, 1067, 1071, 1090, 1092, 1099	Food Conference, World.	1081
Extradition treaties		Chairman-designate.	1026, 1028, 1063, 1080	Ford, Mrs. Gerald R.	1041
Australia.	1059	Economic Opportunity, Office of.	1072	Foreign assistance, bipartisan congressional leadership, meeting with the President.	1136, 1147
Canada.	1143	Economy, national		Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974.	1043
Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act, annual report transmittal.	1098	Address to Joint Session of Congress.	1029	Forsythe, Repr. Edwin B.	1063
Federal pay raise and employment, message.	1083	Defense spending.	1072, 1134, 1136	4-H Clubs.	1082
Freedom of Information Act amendments, letter to chairmen of House-Senate conference committee.	1061	Federal spending.	1031, 1066, 1070, 1072, 1074, 1137	Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. Julian V.	1064
Highway and traffic safety programs, annual report transmittal.	1087	Inflation.	1029, 1030-1032, 1055, 1065, 1070, 1072, 1074, 1091, 1093, 1182	France, U.S. Ambassador to.	1088, 1099
Legislative priorities, message.	1137	Pay increase for Federal employees.	1083	Freedom of Information Act amendments.	1061
North Atlantic Treaty Organization, U.S. forces in Europe, report transmittal.	1052	Summit conference.	1031, 1063, 1080, 1081, 1082, 1091, 1093, 1132	Frelinghuysen, Repr. Peter H. B.	1080
Special International Exhibits, annual report transmittal.	1036	Wage and price controls.	1070, 1071	Friedman, Abraham S.	1122, 1147
Congress, First Continental.	1095, 1099	Education, Ohio State University, remarks.	1076	Fulbright, Sen. J. William.	1080
Connor, John T.	1063	Education Amendments of 1974.	1055, 1056, 1064	Gardner, Stephen S.	1099
Conservation, forest and rangeland resources.	1043	Education bill, veterans.	1048	Garn, E. J.	1042
		Education Clubs of America, Distributive.	1082	Garriott, Owen K.	1098
		Egypt, Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy.	1041	Gaudin, Donald A.	1098
		Elections		General Motors Corporation.	1029, 1055
		President's plans.	1069	General Services Administration, Administrator.	1104, 1109, 1110, 1113, 1115, 1117
		Republican congressional campaign committees.	1063	German Democratic Republic, U.S. Ambassador to.	1089, 1099
		Ellsworth, Robert.	1044	Germany, East. See German Democratic Republic
		Emergency assistance, Puerto Rico.	1073

Index to Documents of the Administration of Gerald R. Ford—Continued

Ghana, U.S. Ambassador to.....	1062,	Jensen, Tom.....	1082	Meetings with Foreign Leaders
Glerek, Edward.....	1062, 1064	Jewish High Holy Days.....	1083	Israel, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.....	1130,
Goldwater, Sen. Barry.....	1081	Jewish War Veterans.....	1086	1144, 1146
Golf Hall of Fame, World.....	1041	Johnson, Alexis U.....	1089	Jordan, King Hussein I.....	1089, 1041, 1044
Government employees	1134, 1135	Johnson, George E.....	1146	Mohafy, Pat.....	1063
Benefits.....	1118	Joint Chiefs of Staff.....	1041
Deputy U.S. marshals, pay raise.....	1085	Joint Statements		Memorandums to Federal Agencies
Pay increase.....	1073, 1088, 1099, 1138	Jordan.....	1044	Presidential transition.....	1087
Personal liability under Freedom of		Jordan		Mexico, Foreign Minister Emilio Ra-
Information Act amendments.....	1081	Joint statement.....	1044	basa.....	1081
Reduction in civilian work force.....	1083,	King Hussein I.....	1039, 1041, 1044	Michel, Repr. Robert H.....	1063
1099		Jordan, Repr. Barbara.....	1080	Michigan Republican State Convention.....	1066
Uniformed services, aviation career		Jordan-United States Joint Commis-		Miller, Arnold B.....	1096
incentive pay.....	1043	sion.....	1044	Miller, Herbert J.....	1109-
Governors' Conference, National.....	1041, 1042	Justice, Department of		1111, 1115, 1123, 1124, 1125, 1129
Greece, U.S. Ambassador to.....	1036, 1042	Attorney General.....	1041,	Miller, Robert H.....	1146
Greenspan, Alan.....	1026,	1047, 1098, 1105, 1108, 1109		Miller, Robert W.....	1081
1028, 1071, 1080, 1090, 1092, 1099		Special Prosecutor.....	1070,	Mills, Repr. Wilbur D.....	1052
Griffin, Sen. Robert P.....	1041	1071, 1109-1116, 1118, 1123, 1126, 1128,		Miltich, Paul A.....	1088
Guenther, Kenneth A.....	1146	1129		Montoya, Sen. Joseph M.....	1099
Guinea-Bissau.....	1029	Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Pre-		Moorhead, Repr. William S.....	1082
Hale, David L.....	1081	vention Act of 1974.....	1118	Morris, Karen.....	1088
Hall, Paul.....	1083	Kenna, E. Douglas.....	1086	Morse, F. Bradford.....	1146
Hammer, Rhea Mojica.....	1099	Kennedy, Sen. Edward M.....	1082	Mortgages.....	1080
Hanks, Nancy.....	1090	Kennerly, David Hume.....	1041	Morton, Rogers C. B.....	1026, 1028, 1081
Hansen, Sen. Clifford P.....	1083	Khaddam, Abd al-Halim.....	1084	Mullen, Mary.....	1084
Harlow, Bryce N.....	1040	Kilberg, William J.....	1099
Hartke, Sen. Vance.....	1098	Kirk, Norman E.....	1088	National Aeronautics and Space Ad-
Hartmann, Robert T.....	1026, 1023	Kissinger, Dr. Henry A.....	1026, 1041, 1054, 1122	ministration.....	1086
Health		Klein, Herbert G.....	1081	National Association of County Of-
Coal mines.....	1098	Klosson, Boris.....	1095	icials.....	1041
Insurance.....	1082, 1081	Knauer, Virginia.....	1074	National Association of Manufacturers.....	1096
Legislative priorities, message.....	1141	Korea, Republic of, U.S. Ambassador		National Association of Retired Teach-
Health, Education, and Welfare, De-		to.....	1036, 1042	ers.....	1084
partment of, Secretary.....	1041, 1043	Kubisch, Jack B.....	1036, 1042	National Council on the Aging.....	1084
Health Insurance Plan, Comprehensive,		Kuchel, Thomas H.....	1122, 1147	National Council on the Arts.....	1088, 1099 proposed.....	1082	Kurfess, Charles F.....	1088	National Federation of Business and
Heath, Edward.....	1146			Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.....	1099
Henning, John F.....	1098	Labor		National Governors' Conference.....	1041, 1042
Highway and traffic safety programs.....	1067	Conference on inflation.....	1182	National Hispanic Heritage Week, 1974.....	1086
Hispanic Heritage Week, 1974, National.....	1086	Pensions.....	1084, 1099	National League of Cities.....	1041
Holland, James R.....	1039	Labor, Department of		National Legislative Conference.....	1082
